5. May make regulations for improved hotel accommodation to meet the requirements in any locality and enforce the same either by suspension or cancellation of the license.
6. May, in its discretion, suspend or cancel a license at any time.
7. May conduct inquiry into any matter the Board may deem necessary and require evidence to be given under oath.
8. May supersede the necessity for a vote on local option by prohibiting the sale or other disposal of liquor in any portion of the Province—
   (a) For all time.
   (b) For any particular day.
   (c) For any special period.
   (d) To any class of persons.
   (e) During any special hours.

The new license law further provides that all liquor shops throughout the Province shall hereafter be closed at seven o'clock p.m. every night, and adds Labor Day to the list of dry days.

Industrial Conditions in Germany.

The American Association of Commerce and Trade in Berlin has published regularly since November 7, 1914, a weekly report on the general conditions in Germany during the European war. Its contents may well serve to offset the exaggerated tales of suffering and famine reported at the beginning of the war; but the picture is in many ways dark enough. There are figures showing the number of union workers now at the front—from the metal trade 170,677; from the wood workers 43,877; from the factory workers 24,166; from the brewery workers 14,866. The writers of the report are satisfied because unemployment has steadily and noticeably decreased. They do not consider that the state of the families of the enlisted men is even now precarious in the extreme, and that when the men return from the war unemployment stares them in the face. The industrial world will be in no position to employ large forces of workers or to pay good salaries, and thousands of men will be idle. The condition of the women at the present time is deplorable; the majority of the female members of the factory workers union are said to be out of work. Economy in production is of course felt by the workingmen sooner than by the producers. The amount paid for workmen's insurance has considerably decreased and the decrease is not entirely due to the fact that there are fewer workers.

The Association is optimistic in its final statement. We can draw our own conclusions. The report says:

"In summing up the situation it can be safely estimated that about one-third of the German industry is suffering under the war, one-third is able to shift along comfortably, while the remaining third is occupied to its fullest capacity. The confines between these groups remained clearly outlined in the beginning, but are gradually growing less distinct as the adaptation to the situation progresses, and a more even distribution of work is now taking place; and while the industries are not gaining in strength they are in no way losing any of their vitality. In conclusion one may say that Germany's industry after the war will undoubtedly resume its peaceful activity with undiminished vigor."

Indeed He Had.

"Have you ever thought seriously of marriage, sir?" "Indeed, I have; ever since the ceremony."

When giving a sick person an alcoholic bath, make a mitten for your hand out of an old bath towel. It will hold more moisture and be better for rubbing purposes.

Moderate cold is a stimulant, because it drives the blood from the surface of the body, and induces exercise in order to restore circulation.

TRIBUTE TO BRITISH PRESS.

Holy Admires Work of Raising Army Even by Reverses.

The Tribuna of Rome publishes an article from its London correspondent, Signor Gastone Chesi, entitled "The Marvels of British Patriotism: What the Press Has Done for the Army," in which the following eloquent tribute is paid to the work of British journals and journalists during the war:

The very reverses of the allies in France during the first month of war were ably used by the press to stimulate patriotism and to induce young men to enlist without delay. A consciousness of the national and imperial peril that seemed to be imminent was created in the masses. . . . Having thus received the first impulse, the great patriotic movement continued in wonderful fashion. One may term it a product of the press, since it was the press that aroused the youth of the country, apparently inert and apathetic, or absorbed in its usual sporting pleasures; it was the press that cried silence to the working classes complaining of wages or of excessive hours of work; it was the press that threatened the speculators and those in search of illicit gains; those who held up food supplies, the shippers who demanded exaggerated rates for freights, the mining companies which raised the price of coal without reason—the press which brought about the intervention of Parliament and of the state in their affairs.

Watching, encouraging, warning, the daily press has not left the brain of the British citizen a moment's rest. It has obliged him to think day and night of the war, of its fluctuations, of possible dangers, of incumbent duties and necessary sacrifices.

Thus from the bosom of a people eminently pacific, unused to arms, has arisen, as by magic, this first army of a million men now sailing towards France, while in these islands another million is growing and maturing ready to replace the first at the right moment.

This is the contribution spontaneously, freely, and patriotically given by the press to the country. England, perhaps, will never succeed in appreciating at its true value what she owes to her journalism and to her journalists.

A Forth Bridge Fabrication.

An officer tells of an interesting sidelight on the false dissemination of news in Germany afforded by an incident on a ship conveying prisoners after the recent naval battle to Edinburgh. Steaming up the Forth, the bridge came in sight, and attracted the interest and attention of the rescued German seamen, who inquired: "What great structure is that?" On being informed that it was the celebrated Forth bridge the men expressed their surprise and incredulity, and remarked that that was impossible as the Forth bridge had been blown up by the Germans months ago.

The Humorist's Daughter.

The 7-year-old daughter of a well-known humorous writer appeared one morning at the breakfast table with suggestions of a cold beginning to manifest itself.

"Why, Kathleen," said her father, "you are a little hoarse."

"Am I?" said Kathleen, resentfully. "You said I was a little pig yesterday!"

Discreet.

"Have you a careful chauffeur?"

"Very. He never runs over anyone unless he's sure he can make a getaway."

Nor is his heart less hard than what
It used to be last season, but
He saved his fees with foresight keen
And now he owns a limousine.

A Russian Princess in Paris.

Picture shows M. Millerand, the French War Minister, and the Russian military attache with the Princess Naritchine at the Invalides, Paris, inspecting the ambulances sent to France by her ally, Russia.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL STUDY

INTERNATIONAL LESSON, MAY 2.

Lesson V.—Saul Tries to Kill David. 1 Sam. 19. Golden Text: Prov. 29. 25.

I. Saul's Intention to Kill David (Verses 1-3).

Verse 1. Saul spake—Doubtless in a burst of passion. He hardly gave a deliberate order that David should be slain. Jonathan was not sure just how much of his father's desire to kill David would be carried over to a calmer mood. So he tests him out in the morning.

2. In the morning — Jonathan gave his father a chance to sleep over his wild outburst of wrath against David.

3. In the field where thou art—So much did Jonathan love David that he did not want to trust to his own judgment the seriousness of his father's intention to do away with David. David was to be present to hear what Saul had to say and to study his attitude.

II. Jonathan's Intercession for David (Verses 4-7).

4 To thee-ward very good—Jonathan could have advised David to flee from Saul. But in so doing he would have deprived his father of the very best support on the battlefield which he had. Jonathan was considerate of David. But he also was regardful of the interests of his father.

5. Put his life in his hand—A frequent Old Testament expression (see Judg. 12. 3 and 1 Sam. 28. 21). So also, Jehovah wrought a great victory [in Hebrew "salvation"] for all Israel. See Judg. 15; 1 Sam. 11. 9, 13.

6 Saul swate—Under the influence of Jonathan's appeal. But he was not sincere in his expression of desire not to kill David, as the events soon showed.

7. As heretofore. — For a long time, doubtless, David was safe in Saul's presence.

III. Saul Overcome by an Evil Spirit (Verses 8-12).

8. A great slaughter — David's great victory which saved Saul from destruction was the cause of the new outburst of Saul's unquenchable hatred of David.

9 An evil spirit—See 1 Sam. 16. 14. The result of Saul's jealousy was an unholy brooding which drove him to fits of madness. Saul's jealousy did not have its origin in David. David, it will be remembered, was brought to Saul for the purpose of dispelling his distemper. Had David not come across his path, Saul's jealous spirit would have been kindled to red-heat by some one else.

With his spear in his hand—The spear was the scepter of the king, his symbol of royalty. In his council (1 Sam. 22. 6) and here in his house the spear in his hand; at table the spear was at his side (1 Sam. 20. 33); when he slept in camp it was stuck by his pillow in the ground (1 Sam. 26. 7). Tristram in his book Land of Israel, says: "We recognized the sheik's tent, among a group of twenty others . . . by the tall spear planted against it." The ancient Israelite custom lives in that of the modern Arab.

10. David fled—This was the beginning of David's life as a fugitive (see Psa. 59. 1-4).

11. In the morning — Saul was not so much crazed as to be bereft of all his wit. "He imagined that David would go home to his wife. He knew that to seek him out there would rouse the townspeople, who would rally to the protection of their favorite hero. Saul, therefore, would wait until the morning, when David happened to leave his house, before making any attack on him. As Psa. 59 shows, David was in danger not from Saul only, but from Ruffians in Saul's employ.

12 Through a window—See Josh. 2. 15; Acts 9. 25; 2 Cor. 11. 33. David's house, like Rahab's and the one from which Saint Paul escaped, was probably on the town wall. While Saul's men watched the front door, David was being let down over the wall out of a window.

The Wandering Jew.

After voyaging 33,000 miles between the United States and Brazil, both of which countries have denied him admission, Nathan Cohen, appropriately termed the "wandering Jew," has just been doomed to another six weeks' trip back to Brazil. He originally came here from Brazil, but the authorities deported him back to Brazil because it was reported he was mentally unsound. Our neighbor in the Southern Hemisphere refused to allow him to land, and the steamship company of Lamport and Holt has been forced to furnish him with passage back and forth between the countries. He has travelled 33,000 miles for $45, the price of a single steerage ticket, and there is little hope that his ceaseless voyage will soon end. The Hebrew Sheltering and Immigration Society has interested itself in the case and maintains that the sea life has made Cohen sound of mind, and it has applied to Washington to have him examined before a board of special inquiry.

The Paisley Advocate

PAISLEY, APRIL 29th, 1915

AMERICA'S GREATEST ACHIEVEMENT

Disarmament on the Great Lakes and the Canadian Frontier

The greatest achievement of America is the joint achievement of her two English-speaking nations. That supreme achievement which North America can show the world is an international boundary line between two nations across which in a hundred years neither nation ever once launched a menacing army or fired a hostile gun. Think of that achievement! A thousand miles up the mighty St. Lawrence, a thousand miles along the Great Lakes, a thousand miles across the open prairie, a thousand miles over a sea of mountains—four thousand miles where nation meets nation and sovereignty meets sovereignty, but never a fortress, never a gun, never a sentinel on guard! Four thousand miles of civilized and Christianized internationalism—that is North America's greatest achievement.

And why America's achievement? Why America's alone? Not because these two nations are spent and wasted forces, degenerate sons of coward sires, weak to defend a national right, slow to resent a national insult. No redder, prouder, hotter blood ever beat in British veins than the Pilgrim blood of New England, the Cavalier blood of Virginia, the Celtic blood of North Carolina, or the blood of the Ulster Scot of Kentucky and Tennessee. The same blood, red, proud, hot, throbs through Canadian veins from Cape Breton to Vancouver. Not blood from Britain alone, but from France as well, and from Germany. All the great war nations of Europe, through the generations, have poured their best blood into the heart of America. If blood tells, that blood should tell in us. And that blood has told. The men of America, in the United States and Canada, have never belied their breed. On the battle-fields of the Revolution the American Republic justified its breed; and in the deadlier Civil War, with more prodigal hand, South and North alike paid the full measure of devotion to causes they deemed to be great. Canada's half century of national history has no war page, and no battle-field consecrated by the blood of her sons; but, not once or twice in Britain's bloodwrit story, the sons of Canada, by their deeds of valor in the Empire's wars, have proved to the world their British heritage.

No, whatever else may be true, Europe cannot say that North America's greatest achievement was wrought by nations of the lesser breed and the craven heart. Nor can it be said that this continent has been without excuse for war. Again and again questions have arisen, situations have been created, tempers have been aroused, which in other times and for other nations would have involved the excuse of national honor and vital interest, and the gauntlet would have been thrown down.

To all the boasted defense policies of the war nations of Europe North America offers straight contradiction, and through a hundred years of peace these two civilized nations have given to Europe's war lords the unflinching and triumphant lie. The Great Lakes are not barbarized by the black menace of forts and battleships, because the two nations they divide desire supremely to be free, are fit for freedom, and have each united all their peoples in unchallenged devotion to freedom's great experiment. Through this one great lesson in North America the American Republic and the British Empire are working into the public opinion of the world this maxim of international politics: Any nation that desires to be free and is fit to be free, and stands for national freedom, must be given freedom's unfettered chance.

What the sons in America have done on the Great Lakes, on the St. Lawrence, on the Niagara, and across the sweeping plains, the fathers in Britain, in France and in Germany might do, ought to do, on the North Sea and in the channel. It can be done on all the continents. The jungle can be made a neighborhood. The remainders of barbarism can be swept away on every boundary line. If America takes her stand and leads her way all the continents will do it.—From Dr. J. A. Macdonald's Forefathers' Day address, in Boston, Dec. 21, 1914.

Children Cry
FOR FLETCHER'S
CASTORIA

—Renew your subscription to the city dailies or weeklies before the term ends and save interruption in the year's reading. We can get you any paper you want and save you a little money.

—The Toronto Globe says "Craigie" is a gripping story. McArthur has it $1.25.

EARNING A LIVING

(By Elbert Hubbard)

I am fully convinced that the most important thing in the world is Earning a Living.

And there is a difference between earning a living and getting a living.

You can get a living in several ways—borrow, beg, steal, by hook or crook—mostly crook.

But when it comes to Earning a Living, you turn the trick in just one way and no other—you work.

And the more intelligence and love you put in your work the bigger your reward.

And congenial work—work you do through choice is joyous work and joyous work is just play.

In the country we talk about the boy or girl earning a living. We mean that the person is performing a needed service for some one.

If you "work for yourself" it means that youare producing something which the world needs, and that in return for the product you are paid money.

And money is the symbol of value—the token of service rendered.

I remember when I was about ten years old coming home with a dollar bill.

I proudly showed the money to my mother.

She looked at the money in astonishment—for money was a curiosity in the family—and then she looked at me.

"Where did you get that money?" she asked, somewhat severely.

And I answered proudly, "I earned it."

"How did you earn it?"

"Why, Haven's cattle broke into the corn, and I got on a horse, went and found ol' man Haven, and we drove the steers back in the pasture and fixed the fence. And said if I hadn't seen the steers and helped get them back they might have foundered—so he gave me a dollar."

And my mother kissed me and asked, "But are you sure you earned that dollar?" And I assured her that all the steers would be dead were it not for me.

In my boyhood I earned money by picking berries, hoeing potatoes, husking corn, herding cattle, working on threshing machine, carrying water to the harvest hands, shingling roofs, tending masons—carrying messages to Garela?

And for these services rendered men paid me money.

Of course Ididn't know I was getting an education—that was an unearned increment—Survival Value.

And always for honest labor there is a return beyond the money.

The money is tangible gratitude and must be paid. But the money isn't all.

To earn a living is the natural and safe way of utilizing human energy.

Life is energy focused and individualized. Human energy unused makes for disease. Human energy wrongly used makes vice and crime.

Vice is direct injury to yourself. Crime is direct injury to society.

Both tend to disease, dissolution and death.

Work tends to health, happiness, progress and prosperity.

And be it known that health, happiness, progress and prosperity are all not only contagious but infectious.

All good things are "catching." Life is motion. You keep good things by giving them away.

—There will be a flood of emigration to the United States and Canada at the conclusion of the European war, according to Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, as reported in an interview in Chicago. "The men of northern and central Europe," he said, "are beginning to feel freer to leave their native lands than ever before. Forced military service, among other things must be more repellent to them now than ever before. The news lands on this continent will invite them. Canada is in much the same situation that the United States as regarding immigration. We have all the industrial workers we need. What we want now is agriculturists, and we are making an effort to get them, just as the railroads of the western United States are doing."

—The Government grant to the fall fairs of the province will be paid in full this year. Announcement to this effect was made by the Department of Agriculture, and letters sent out to the secretaries of all the fair boards informing them of the Government's decision. The payment of the grants in full was foreshadowed in the House during the session by Hon. James Duff, who pointed out that when the decision to cut the grants in half was taken conditions generally were such as to make reduction necessary, but that since that time conditions have improved. This statement was followed by the placing of the full amount of the grants, $75,000, in the main estimates.

A POSITIVE CURE FOR RHEUMATISM

Hundreds of People Have Found "Fruit-a-tives" Their Only Help

READ THIS LETTER

Superintendent of Sunday School in Toronto Tells How He Cured Himself of Chronic Rheumatism After Suffering for Years.

55 DOVERCOURT ROAD, Oct., 1st, 1913.

"For a long time, I have thought of writing you regarding what I term a most remarkable cure effected by your remedy "Fruit-a-tives". I suffered from Rheumatism, especially in my hands. I have spent a lot of money without any good results. I have taken "Fruit-a-tives" for 18 months now, and am pleased to tell you that I am cured. All the enlargement has not left my hands and perhaps never will, but the soreness is all gone and I can do any kind of work. I have gained 35 pounds in 18 months".

R. A. WAUGH

Rheumatism is no longer the dreaded disease it once was. Rheumatism is no longer one of the "incurable diseases". "Fruit-a-tives" has proved its marvellous powers over Rheumatism, Sciatica, Lumbago—in fact, over all such diseases which arise from some derangement of stomach, bowels, kidneys or skin.

"Fruit-a-tives" is sold by all dealers at 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size, 25c. or sent postpaid on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

REGINALD SIMONS

We regret having to announce the death of Mr. Reginald M. Simons at the home of his parents, 60 St. Clarens Avenue, Toronto, on 22nd inst. Mr. Simons was born in Paisley and left here when a youth. For several years he occupied a position in the head office of the Bank of Toronto. About two years ago the bank official sent him to Teneriffe, Canary Islands in the hope of improving his health, and later they arranged for him the position as manager at Youngstown, Alta., believing that the clear atmosphere of the west would benefit him. Had his health not failed he was destined to fill a leading position in the bank's service, and it is a loss to the world that he was cut off in his young and ambitious manhood. For several months past his father and mother were in constant attendance on him, but even with the best medical skill obtainable the Great Physician took the case into His own hands. Interment took place at Mount Pleasant cemetery in Toronto on Saturday afternoon. There is hardly a family in Paisley that did not in earlier days receive some evidence of kindness and thoughtfulness from Reggie Simons, as he was familiarly called. He was always on hand for any service to his fellows, and in his quiet, gentlemanly way he counted it a privilege to do anything. Reggie was confirmed in the Church of the Ascension, Paisley, at an early age, and there are many things to witness that he lived as a true disciple of the Head of the Church. While living in Youngstown he was approved by the people and appointed by the Bishop to take charge of the services in the absence of the minister. He bore his long illness with Christian patience and was ever solicitous for those about him, and at the early age of 28 years his spirit returned to his Maker. Our people, we know, will join in extending sincere sympathy to the bereaved family and relatives in their sad loss. The young fiancee who is among those who mourn. Friends attending the funeral from a distance were: Mr J R Laidlaw, of Paisley; Mr and Mrs Allen, of London; Mr and Miss Hutchison, of Thamesville; Mr and Mrs J Sutherland and J Sutherland, jr, of Guelph.

ARCHIBALD MacNEVIN

The late Mr MacNevin, who passed away at his home on Albert St. on Thursday night, April 22nd, had almost reached his 89th birthday. He was born in Scotland in 1826 and came to Canada with his parents at an early age, settling in Haldimand County, where the family are well known. In his early business life Mr MacNevin was engaged in lumbering. Later (1876) he moved to Kent County and took up agricultural pursuits meeting with much success on the farm. In 1906, owing to advancing age, he removed to Paisley. Mr MacNevin was a man of broad views. In religion he was a Presbyterian. In politics he was notably independent of partisan influence, always giving his support to that party in which he thought he saw the least corruption. He was an enthusiastic member of the Masonic order. While of a quiet, retiring disposition he made many friends and won the respect of all with whom he was associated. He leaves his widow (nee Eliza Thorburn), a large family and numerous relatives to mourn his demise. The sons are: Dr Jas A MacNevin, of Amherstburg, Wash; Dr M G MacNevin, of New York City. The daughters are: Mrs S Ballachey, of Paisley; Mrs David Aspland, of San Francisco, Cal; Mrs (Dr) Donovan, and Mrs (Dr) A W Morse, of Hyde, Man; and Miss Helen at home. One son, Douglas, died some years ago. The remains were taken to Blanheim for interment, accompanied by his daughter, Miss MacNevin, and brother-in-law, Mr. James Thorburn, of Caledonia. An immense concourse of people awaited them at Blenheim, some of the old friends of deceased coming over eight miles to pay their last tribute of respect to one whom they had so highly esteemed. The solid oaken casket was opened and all looked for the last time upon the features which were in a perfect state of preservation, thanks to the chill of undertaker Cavill. Thus was laid to rest as the sun of a bright April day sank below the western horizon, one of Canada's pioneers, full of years and greatly honored, the grave surrounded by old friends and acquaintances.

BALLACHEY, LAIDLAW & CO.

"The Store with the Quality"

Men's Shirts

For Everyday Work

We have them made of the best shirting materials procurable. They are large and roomy, the seams are double sewn, and the buttons are put on to stay. Many colors and all sizes, 14½ to 18. 75c to $1.50.

For Finer Wear

Our assortment is large. White Pleated, Cross Bar Pleats, Plain Vesting, Mushroom Tucks, and neat Stripes in many colors. We have them with Collars either attached or separate, and Stiff or Soft Cuffs. $1.00 to $2.00.

We stock the Arrow Collar in Different Shapes

Top Prices for Produce

BALLACHEY, LAIDLAW & CO.

Both 'Phones——All Produce

Tired Eyes

Sensations exist for our guidance
They are Nature's warnings.
Over-worked eyes demand rest.
Eyes that tire easily call for help.
Properly adjusted glasses afford the only assistance possible.
We make a specialty of relieving tired eyes and guarantee satisfaction.

A Stopped Watch

One that will not go AT ALL—doesn't cause as much bother as one that runs now fast, now slow, in an erratic fashion.

The first you don't pretend to depend upon—the other is a constant source of annoyance.

Most people can afford a watch, but no one can afford an uncertain fast and slow one.

And when our repair department is so close at hand there is really no excuse for carrying anything but an accurate time-piece, no matter what the first cost was.

Consult us about any watch troubles that may arise.

I. SHOEMAKER
JEWELER AND OPTICIAN

SHOES

Our new spring Shoes have just arrived and we have Shoes for all Ladies, Gents and Children at the old prices.

We have not raised our prices as we bought our supply before the advance in prices.

We have a full stock of Men's Women's and Children's heavy waterproof shoes on hand to keep the feet dry.

Call and have a look at our shoes.

Eggs Taken in Exchange

H. PFAFF & SON'S
SHOE STORE

"Only a Scrap of Paper"

Only a scrap of paper—A LIFE INSURANCE APPLICATION—but a Bellon's signature was there, and his defenceless widow and children were saved from poverty and dependence by the resources of a staunch life insurance company.

THE BEST INSURANCE AT LOWEST NET COST is furnished by

THE DOMINION LIFE
of Waterloo, Ont.

Its profits to policy-holders are unexcelled. Its strength is impregnable. To ensure the safety of your wife and children PLACE INSURANCE PROTECTION ON YOUR LIFE.

Write for a sample "SCRAP OF PAPER"

Buggies—We are again well supplied with the reliable McLaughlin and Brantford makes, also standing to all kinds of repairs and renewal of parts on old vehicles. A number of second hand buggies to sell cheap.

Furniture A large assortment always in stock, and catalogues of best makers to select from. Any article, large or small, sets or single pieces for furnishing the home.

Single and Double Harness and Harness Supplies

We are agents for the Singer Sewing Machines and Cyphill Cream Separators

J. SEILER, Eden Grove

CANADIAN PACIFIC
FOR WINNIPEG AND VANCOUVER
Leaves Toronto 10.30 p.m. daily.
Attractive Tours to Pacific Coast Points
Particulars from Canadian Pacific ticket agents, or write M. G. Murphy, D.P.A., C.P. Ry. King and Yonge Sts., Toronto.

W. H. McFarlane, Agent, Paisley

Central Business College Stratford, Ont.

Ontario's Best Practical Training School

We have thorough courses and experienced instructors in each of our three departments, Commercial, Shorthand and Telegraphy. Our graduates succeed and you should get our large, free catalogue. Write for it at once.

D. A. McLACHLAN, Principal

Court Saugeen, C.O.F No. 28

MEETS in Oddfellow Hall on the second Wednesday evening of each month, at 8 o'clock sojourning brethern are welcome.

W. E. ARCHER, R.S.
W. ARCHER, C.R.

Ahiram Lodge, No. 205, I.O.O.F.

MEETS every Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock in the Odd Fellows' Hall. Visiting brothers always welcome.

J. J. F. HOUSTON, N.G.
E. A. GRANT, R.S.

T. H. GEORGE
Issuer of Marriage Licenses
Notary Public and Conveyancer
Land, Loan, Insurance and General Agent. Notes, Book Accounts and other Debts Collected. Conveyancing Neatly and Cheaply Executed.
—FARMS LOANS A SPECIALTY—
Offices in Putnam Block, Queen St. S., Paisley

You Can Begin Any Day at the NORTHERN Business College
OWEN SOUND
Individual Instruction
Our own three story building and 34 successful years of experience. Expert instructors produce the very best results. Catalogue free.
C. A. FLEMING F.C.A. G. D. FLEMING
Principal Secretary

Business Directory

JOHN SUTHERLAND & SONS LIMITED
INSURANCE—FIRE AND MARINE
GUELPH - ONT.

J. C. GIBSON
Issuer of Marriage Licenses
Paisley, Ont.

LEGAL

D. FORRESTER, B.A., L.L.B.
BARRISTER, SOLICITOR AND NOTARY PUBLIC
OFFICE—TOWN HALL, PAISLEY

MEDICAL

DR. M. C. BLACK, M.D., C.M., F.T.M.C., M.C.P.S.
Owner Graduate of Trinity University and Polyclinic, New York. SPECIALTY—Diseases of the eye, ear nose and throat.

DR. H. E. OAKE, Physician, Surgeon and Accoucheur. Specialist in Diseases of the eye, Ear, Nose and Throat. Late house surgeon Kingston General Hospital. Office hours—10 to 12 a.m. 1 to 4 p.m.
Successor to Dr. O'Neill

DR. J. F. HOUSTON
Honor Graduate of Toronto University Licentiate of the Royal College of Physician, and Surgeons of Edinburgh and Fellow and graduate Coombe Lying-in Hospital, Dublin late assistant Edinburgh Eye Infirmary. SPECIALTY—Diseases of the Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat.
Successor to Dr. Morrison.

DENTAL

DR. A. H ALLEN
DENTIST, formerly of Toronto.
Graduate of the Royal College of Dental Surgeons of Ontario. Honor Graduate of Toronto University Dental Department. Master of Dental Surgery, Graduate of the Detroit Post Graduate School of Prosthetic Dentistry, have Office over Moore's Drug store, opposite the Post Office.

VETERINARY

R. B. GRANT, V. S., Graduate of Ontario Veterinary College, Toronto. Government Inspector of contagious diseases and apply Tuberculin test in cattle. Also in export stock and issue certificates for same. Oxygen gas treatment for milk fever. Office and residence opposite the old Northern Hotel.

AUCTIONEERS

R. C. PEARCE, Licensed Auctioneer. Sales attended to in all parts of the County of Bruce. Terms moderate. Orders left at the Advocate Office will receive prompt attention. Telephone at house.

R. J. NESBITT, Licensed Auctioneer for the County of Bruce, is prepared to conduct sales in any part of the county. Terms reasonable. Orders may be left at ADVOCATE office or address Ormsby P.O.

Our Shoes for Spring and Summer, 1915

Exemplify in a marked degree the remarkable advancement made in the manufacture of fine Shoes. Here one can readily appreciate the exceptional styles and fit of Canada's best-made Shoes.

We have spent much time investigating and studying the merits of all the different lines of Shoes which have a reputation for quality. We have chosen the goods which we know will boost our reputation as good merchants—shoes which combine quality, workmanship and style at the right price—shoes that will insure for us your permanent patronage and lead you at all times to associate our store with the best merchandise.

Bring us your BUTTER and EGGS—we pay the Highest Price in Cash or Trade

Dutch Setts, English Multipliers and all kinds of Garden Seeds—fresh, the sure-to-grow kind

F. Carter & Son

Groceries, Crockery, Boots and Shoes

Goods Delivered — Both 'Phones

THE STORE WITH THE QUALITY

Use Sherwin-Williams Paints

Home Defence

Be Loyal to the Home You Live In

Defend it against the weather conditions which are operating against the appearance of your building every day.

By using

Sherwin-Williams Paints and Varnishes

Victory will be yours!

There is nothing more pleasing to the eye than a neatly painted building. It is something that is admired by everyone. Not only does a coat of Paint add to the appearance but it protects the surface from cracking and rotting. A good coat of Paint also adds to the value of your building.

Come and see us. Let us tell you how.

Use Sherwin-Williams Paints

W. H. DAVISON

BRUCE PHONE — BELL PHONE

This is the kind of Wall Paper Artist We Do NOT Employ—

No sloppy job like this done by our men. It costs you no more to employ clean, careful workmen than men like the above.

Our Wall Paper Stock

We have just put into stock the newest and

MOST ARTISTIC PATTERNS.

Complete range of all lines for parlor, hall, dining-room, bed-room or kitchen papers on hand, ready for delivery. We would like to show you our different sample books. Stock on hand of all samples shown.

H. GLOVER

PAPERHANGER AND DECORATOR

Men and Teams Wanted Tp. of Elderslie

APPLICATIONS will be received by the undersigned up till one o'clock, Monday, May 3rd, for men and two teams to work on road grader for season of 1915; also man to operate same. W. U. PEARCE, Tp. Clerk, Box 84, R. R. 3, Paisley.

TORONTO LIVE STOCK MARKETS

TORONTO, Tuesday, April 27th, 1915

Butchers picked	$7 90	$7 95
do choice	7 75	7 80
do cows	6 50	7 00
do bulls	6 00	7 00
Stockers, choice	6 00	6 50
do common	5 00	5 75
Heavy feeders	7 25	7 50
Short keep	7 40	7 50
Milch cows, choice	80 00	90 00
do common	45 00	60 00
Sheep, ewes	7 00	8 00
Bucks	6 00	7 00
Spring Lambs, each	11 00	12 00
Calves	9 00	9 00
Hogs, fed and watered	9 80	....
" f.o.b.	9 40	....

—The Canadian overseas division "performed most brilliant and valuable service" in the words of Sir John French, in an encounter with the German legions at Langemarck. The foe had massed upwards of 50,000 troops at that point and attempted to break through the Allies' lines. The Canadian division was forced to fall back in order to keep in touch with the right of the neighboring troops. In the rear of the latter had been four 4.7-inch guns, which thus passed on to the enemy. But some hours later the Canadians made a most brilliant and successful advance, re-capturing these guns and taking a considerable number of German prisoners, including a colonel. A disaster was prevented by the great fight put up by the Canadians, but at great loss of men in both rank and file. Twenty-two officers were killed and 64 wounded, and the list of casualties among the men is not yet counted up. The story of the brilliant feat sent a thrill through all Canada, and won the admiration of the world.

—The Kincardine Reporter published a list of names eligible for the Liberal nomination for the House of Commons in North Bruce, but there was a name that was not mentioned, and that was J. J. Hunter. The Liberals have been looking for a "David" to go out and do battle with the political giant Hugh Clark, and from present indications this responsible position may be placed on the shoulders of J. J. Hunter, editor of The Kincardine Reporter, who is an old war horse when it comes to running a campaign. It is said Mr. Hunter is very popular in the town of Kincardine, where he takes an active part in the Methodist Church. He is a member of the Orange order and occupies a seat at the Town Council Board. He is also Secretary of the Agricultural Society, and an able platform speaker, and if elected would make a creditable representative.—Ripley Express.

A THOUGHTFUL GIFT

Send THE ADVOCATE to the absent member of the family or to the distant friend. It is as good as a letter from home and is a weekly visitor. You can better imagine how the home paper is appreciated when you are absent yourself and a copy is forwarded to you.

PAISLEY MARKET

Fall wheat, per bushel	$1 30	$1 30
Spring wheat, per bush	1 00	1 20
Buckwheat	70	75
Peas, per bush	....	....
Oats, per bush	50	55
Barley, per bush	65	75
Potatoes, per bag	40	50
Butter, in pound prints	30	30
Eggs, fresh, per doz	22	22
Hay, per ton	15 00

ARBOR DAY

Observance should be General. The Objects for which it stands are to the General Advantage of Canada

Arbor Day is not observed in Canada to the extent which its importance warrants.

The people of Canada must ever keep in mind their dependence upon her forests. With large areas suitable only for forestry purposes, it is essential that the value of trees and their protection should be thoroughly impressed upon Canadians.

While Arbor Day is observed in the rural schools, and in some city schools, its recognition by the general public is not as general as it should be.

In the province of Ontario, Arbor Day is celebrated to a limited extent in the schools. This is not sufficient, however. There is need in every part of Canada for the education and instruction which Arbor Day represents. The day should be observed as a public holiday, at a time most suited to the climatic conditions of the locality. Public recognition should be given to Arbor Day, and the planting and protection of shade trees, the preparation of flower and vegetable gardens, and the thorough cleaning up of homes and surroundings should be advocated as special duties for the day.

Arbor Day has its justification in the value of trees, from whatever point of view they may be considered. Nothing contributes so much to make the world a pleasant place to live in as trees. The true home feeling is not satisfied without the presence of the trees, with their shelter and shade, their beauty of form and leaf, their blossoms and fruit, their varying shades with the passing of the seasons, and their fulness of color in the autumn days. They also afford homes and shelter for our feathered friends, the birds, during their annual visits to us.

There is nothing which will add beauty and value to the home and the schoolhouse more than the presence of trees; there is likewise nothing which adds more to the comfort of the pedestrians than shade-trees on the roadside. The way may be long and dusty, but under the cool shade of the trees relief is found.

It is to be hoped, therefore, that the celebration of Arbor Day will become more general; that the planting and care of trees and shrubs around schoolhouses, homes, public spaces and by roadsides may have the effect of developing a keener appreciation of the value and beauty of trees; and that in thus enlarging the field of Arbor Day activities, greater interest may be created in the protection of our Canadian forests from the reckless destruction by fire and the axe with which they are threatened.

MACHINE-RUN NATION

Monetary Times

There is not a citizen in Canada who objects to his part in financing the war. But every citizen in Canada has a right to object to financing politics, patronage and contract scandals. The evidence given before various committees at Ottawa during the past few weeks has once more demonstrated how this country's conscience is being strangled with politics and patronage. The methods do not belong to any particular regime or to either of the political parties. One can trace them back for half a century, in public documents. To use the words of the scathing editorial of The Ottawa Citizen last week, "there is a maggot eating at the heart of Canadian national life." This maggot has been busy for many years past.

On board an ocean liner years ago, a group of passengers were discussing what factor ruled United States. Numerous replies were given. Finally a little man from New York answered the question. "Graft," he said. And the crowd dispersed. We are no better in Canada; we are as bad and maybe worse. Whatever is considered at Ottawa or at any of the nine provincial capitals, and especially at Ottawa, is considered first from the viewpoint of politics. Patronage follows. A man's ability as a cabinet minister or as a fire ranger is largely judged by the color and strength of his political affiliations. Many able men who would be of value to the country are not employed because they cannot see clearly through this blurred glass of politics. Where politics reign supreme in public life, patronage sits on the right hand and the retinue is regularly composed of what we in America know as "graft" which, in plain English, is robbery.

No one, apparently, is to be shouldered with the responsibility for the toy boats made for our soldiers. Royal commissions and investigating committees have a habit of unwinding evidence, but they usually fail to bring culprits to justice. Some one may be blamed. Someone may receive a severe raiding. The evidence to date shows that the government's middleman, who is a politician, has had his full share. There should have been few middlemen concerned in our war contracts. The evidence to date shows that the distribution of patronage has been up to the usual standard of political impurity. It shows, too, that large sums, greatly in excess of their market value, were paid for articles purchased.

All these things and other are disgusting the non-partisan citizen. They make him wonder as to what proportion of his war-tax is helping to pay for war and what proportion is helping to maintain the rotten political system with which his country is cursed. The Liberal votes with his party. The Conservative votes with his party. The non-partisans are too disgusted to vote at all. Politics and patronage first, it is, and the devil take the blindmost. When some Liberals vote and act as they talk, when some Conservatives do likewise, when the non-partisans give up idle disgust for energetic action, when crooks in high places are given short shrift, when the jail is allowed to claim its own, then we may begin to have a country run on business principles rather than with hindrance of politics, patronage, and their corrupt companions.

THE SOUL OF MUSIC

IS REVEALED IN

COLUMBIA RECORDS

¶ No man or woman can be said to have known the soul of music who has been denied the privilege of hearing the new Columbia Grafonola play Columbia Records.

¶ No matter what one's mood or fancy conjures up, there is a musical selection on a Columbia Record which enables the listener to revel in its delights.

¶ If it is to dance there are a thousand tunes to start one's feet a-moving.

¶ If one feels more sober, there are a hundred ballads to stir the imagination.

¶ If the taste runs to Grand Opera, the most famous artists of the opera stage are willing to charm you.

¶ If it is to laugh, there are hundreds of songs and selections to provide mirth.

¶ Why not go and investigate the Columbia Grafonolas and Records at the dealer's, whose name is mentioned below:

G. R. WELSFORD'S

Paisley

Agents wanted where not actively represented. Apply MUSIC SUPPLY CO., Toronto

WHAT IS YOUR DIET?

Fruit and Vegetables More Nutritious than Meats

Canadians eat too much meat. They are one of the three greatest meat eating peoples in the world, Australia and the United States being the other two. High prices for meat are coming. The cost of food as well as its nutritive value should be considered.

Prof. James Long, the eminent British authority, recently addressed the following advice to the War Office:

"Jam has three and a half times the energy value of butter. Its value lies in its richness in sugar—of which one-half its weight consists—in the minerals present in the skins of fruits, in its laxative character and its mechanical aid to digestion.

"The sugar of fruit has a remarkable effect on nutrition. Commercial sugar, if eaten too freely, causes irritation, acidity and other forms of indigestion.

"The most nutritious and useful varieties of jam are those made from plum, apricot, gooseberry and currant, but a mixture of plum and apple stand at the head of the list. Jam should not be considered a dainty but as an article of food."

Dr Frank T Shutt, of Ottawa, Dominion chemist, gives us the following authoritative statement as to the great importance of vegetables, especially fresh or home grown. The importance in connection with small gardens in towns and cities is very apparent, and the subject is opportune at this time of the year. It may be that a small garden will keep down the doctor's bills.

"That many of the ills that flesh is heir to arise from indiscretions in diet is a fact that more of us should realize—and the earlier in life the better. Many of us, and perhaps that applies especially to those who live in the city, eat too much. As a result, we get too stout as life advances, and what is still more serious an extraordinary strain is put on certain of the organs of the system in nature's effort to get rid of the waste. Further, we who live more or less sedentary lives, eat too much meat; the man who sits at a desk all day long, or stands behind a counter, may work as hard as the navy or ploughman, but it is a different kind of work. It does not call for the same amount of strong food. There is no necessity to diet ourselves by formula or to weigh out what we should eat, but we ought to be guided to a certain extent in our eating by common sense and the knowledge which science furnishes respecting the requirements of the body for the maintenance of the vital heat, the development of energy and the repair of tissue.

"As city people we might keep in better health if we would eat less meat and concentrated foods and use more vegetables and fruit. And this advice might especially be emphasized for the summer diet, when there is not the same call for the system for the stronger foods.

"Fresh vegetables are wholesome, palatable and productive of good health. Though in direct food value vegetables yield a first place to meats, it must not be supposed they are destitute of those nutrients which build up the body tissue and keep the machinery going. It would be possible, though not desirable, to live exclusively on vegetable foods. But vegetables, and especially fresh vegetables, are not to be regarded merely from the standpoint of maintenance—though we assert that nowadays they would make a very good showing on the ground of economy. Nor need we urge their extensive use on the grounds simply that they are appetizing and furnish variety to the diet. They, in addition to these excellent qualities, possess medicinal value; they are aids to digestion and afford that bulk or volume to the food necessary for the right distension of the alimentary tract. Many vegetables contain salts which are gently laxative, relieving constipation that scourge that is the forerunner of so many dangerous and not infrequently fatal diseases. And again many vegetables, especially those used in salads, have a special value in cooling the blood and are, therefore, most wholesome in the summer season.

"Fresh vegetables are vastly superior to those that are wilted from keeping a day or two, in succulence, crispness and palatability. To be enjoyed at their best vegetables must be eaten strictly fresh."

GOING TO PAINT?

There's no doubt about LOWE BROTHERS "High Standard" Paint

You know when the painter puts it on that it will give best results, because when properly put on a surface fit to receive it, it has never failed in all the quarter century of its history.

Satisfaction is what you want, and you cannot get it if you are in doubt. Let us supply colors and show how to be certain.

For Sale at Sinclair's Hardware

—"Advertising is the education of the public as to what you are, where you are, and what you have to offer in the way of skill, talent and commodity. The only man who should not advertise is the man who has nothing to offer the world in the way of commodity or service."—Elbert Hubbard.

AN ELECTRICAL FARM

Norway is fortunate in having many waterfalls to furnish "white coal," or electric power, at very low cost. At an agricultural exhibition at Christiana, visitors saw a model farm at which electricity did much of the work. At night, the farmhouse, yard, stables and sheds are brilliant with electric light. Electric stoves do all the cooking. A small motor runs a coffee mill, a knife polisher, a fruit parer, a sausage spill, and a bread cutter. There is an electric dish washer, a clothes washer, a centrifugal drier, an electric mangle, and electric irons. In the workshop there are a lathe, a saw, a grindstone, a glue heater, and a soldering iron, all driven by electricity. In the stable an electric motor runs an apparatus for rubbing down horses and for shearing sheep. By way of illustrate the fields of the farm are fertilized with artifical manure made at the Norwegian electrical nitrate works.

Homeseekers' Excursions to Western Canada

Particular attention is directed to the remarkably low round trip fares in connection with homeseekers' excursions to Western Canada via Canadian Pacific Railway.

Tickets are on sale each Tuesday until October 26th inclusive, and are good to return within two months from date of sale.

The C.P.R. offers the finest possible equipment and latest train service via one of the most scenic routes in the world.

It is the only line operating through standard and tourist sleeping cars, also dining cars to Winnipeg and Vancouver. All equipment is owned and operated by the C.P.R. affording the highest form of efficiency.

If such a trip is under consideration apply to any C.P.R. agent for full particulars or write M. G. Murphy, D. P. A., Toronto.

PUMP REPAIRING

THE undersigned having purchased Mr W. Hicks outfit, is prepared to do all kinds of pump repairing, also furnish repairs, such as cylinders, valves and other parts of wooden or iron pumps. A few lloak western pumps for sale. Wood turning done. Turned whiffletrees, neckyokes and iron posts for sale.

W. RAE

Desirable Residence for Sale

THAT very desirable village property on Queen Street south, the Strachan residence. Is offered for sale. House new, brick veneered, and in first-class condition. Apply to D. FURLEZ KH, Paisley.

Night Constable Wanted

APPLICATIONS will be received by the undersigned up to 8 p.m. on Wednesday, the 5th day of May next, for the position of night constable for the villages of Paisley. Duties will be made known at my office. J. GIBSON, Town Clerk.

MARRIED

PICKARD—DURYEE—At St. Paul's manse, Owen Sound, on April 21st, by Rev. D. McEachern, Mr. Roy H. Pickard to Miss Pearl Edna Duryee, late of Paisley.

DIED

WELSFORD—In Guelph hospital, on April 27th, Samuel Welsford, aged 45 years. Interment will be made in Paisley cemetery. Funeral service in the Methodist church after arrival of noon train.

SIMONS—In Toronto, on April 23rd, Reginald M., eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. S. A. St. Geo. Simons, 261 St. Clarens Ave., and formerly of Paisley, aged 28 years.

MACNEVIN—At Paisley, on April 22nd, Archibald McNiven, aged 88 years and 11 months.

In loving memory of our dear son, R. Stoddart, who died April 29th, 1914, sincerely regretted:

We cannot feel that thou are far,
Since near at hand the angels are;
And when the sunset gates unbar,
Shall we not see thee, waiting son.
And white against the evening star
The welcome of thy beckoning hand.

FATHER, MOTHER AND SISTER.

Facts & Comment

The self-satisfied man is easily satisfied.

High is the Head of the Stag
That stands on his own Hill-crag.

One thing to put off until to-morrow is "getting even" with some one.

Some person with a gift for figures says that from B.C. 1400 to A.D. 1861, Europe had 227 years of peace and 3,130 years of war.

Poiret, the famous Paris designer of gowns, has gone to the war, but whenever there is a lull in the fighting he busies himself in making sketches of soldiers' dress. Out of them, when the war drum is no longer heard, will blossom new and wondrous designs for women's gowns.

If the average student in the business colleges has trouble in learning to write with a typewriter that prints only half a hundred characters, what would he say to one that prints 4,200 characters? Such is the first Chinese typewriter recently invented by a Chinese student.

Just how expensive forgetfulness may prove, even when it has to do with small sums only, appears in some figures recently compiled at the University of California. Last year the students paid a total of $1,129 in fines for failures to return library books on time, and $1,010 for failures to file their study cards when they were due.

Even the ragman has his ups and downs. Clippings from tailors' shops, which a year ago were worth only four and one-half cents a pound, now sell for ten and one-half, and those that are nearly all wool bring as high as twenty-two cents a pound. The next thing we know the ragman will be driving round in a six-cylinder car.

The great sugar refineries in New York can do business and pay dividends on a margin of one-eighth to three-sixteenths of a cent a pound, because modern methods enable them to manufacture 35,000 barrels of sugar a day. Fifty years ago, in the good old times when house holders paid seventeen or eighteen cents a pound for sugar, the refiners made four or five cents a pound.

Englishwomen have hit upon an ingenious plan for providing motor ambulances for service in France. The idea is that the women who have the same Christian name shall contribute to buy a car that will represent them collectively, and that will bear their name. The response has been generous. Consequently the soldiers will soon see ambulances marked Beatrice, Alexandra, Blanche, Lois, Elizabeth, and other names that Englishmen know and love.

Like Queen Mary of England and the Czarina of Russia, Madame Poincare, the wife of the president of the French Republic, is of German ancestry. Her grandfather, Herr Mouhauer, was a distinguished German court musician. His daughter married an Italian painter named Benucci, and her four daughters grew up in Paris. Henriette Benucci, now Madame Poincare, spent much of her youth at Wolfratshausen in the Isar valley, at the home of her uncle.

Some years ago Prof. Samuel P. Langley, Dr. Alexander Graham Bell, and other authorities predicted that travel by air would eventually become the safest of all. Now it is reported that an officer of the Royal Flying Corps has asked to be permitted to rejoin his regiment, because he could not bear to see his brother officers running all the risks of the trenches while he himself was flying in safety above them. As a matter of fact, the number of casualties to flyers since the war began has been surprisingly small.

FINISH LARGEST AQUEDUCT.

Scheme to Supply Mountain Water to Italian Provinces.

Water from the Apennines was distributed recently for the first time to the provinces of Bari, Foggia and Lecce through the Apulia Aqueduct, the largest in the world, which was begun in 1905. More than 2,000,000 persons now are assured of a supply fresh from mountain streams brought through 1,575 miles of pipe. The territory served has suffered for centuries from lack of an adequate supply.

For the construction of the aqueduct, the cost of which is estimated at $30,000,000 and upon which 4,000 workmen have been engaged nearly ten years, the course of the Sele river has been diverted. A collecting basin has been built at its source, 1,370 feet above the level of the sea whence the waters are conveyed by tunnel for seven and one-half miles, penetrating a water shed, and then through the aqueduct which is 185 miles long. While the most important parts of the aqueduct have been completed it will take a year longer to finish all the minor details.

Lessons of the War.

The war in the air and under the sea, so often and so dramatically prophesied, has come, and yet it has come with many limitations. Neither the air craft nor the submarine has proved to be a deciding factor in war. There is nowhere else in the world a better field for submarine activity than the North Sea and the near-by British waters. The British navy has been concentrated in those waters since the opening of the war and thus far it has not lost a single first-line fighting ship by submarine. So long as its battle fleet remains intact it is the deciding factor in naval supremacy. The loss of the smaller ships which the German submarines have sunk has not affected the battle fleet.

It has happened, as Sir Percy Scott prophesied, that:

"If we ever go to war with a country that is within striking distance of submarines, I am of the opinion that that country will at once lock up its dreadnaughts in some safe harbor."

But the facts will not support his deduction that:

"Now that submarines have come in, battleships are of no use either for defensive or offensive purposes, and consequently building any more in 1914 will be a misuse of money subscribed by the citizens for the defense of the Empire."

If the British battle fleet did not exist the German battle fleet would come forth as its raiding squadrons have come forth. It would not have to turn back as they have. Germany would control the seas. Submarines might make it an uneasy control as they now worry the English in their sea dominance. Nevertheless the battleship fleet is the supreme and deciding factor in the struggle for sea power.

Nor does the experiment of a submarine blockade seem destined to affect vitally British commerce. In the first two weeks of the blockade the submarines sank less than a dozen British ships, most of them small. Between January 21st, and March 3rd, 8,734 vessels of more than 300 tons each entered or cleared British ports. Of these the submarines destroyed fifteen. In the meanwhile, since the opening of hostilities six German submarines have been reported lost.

The London Board of Trade's summary of shipping casualties reported during February shows that the ordinary risks of navigation were responsible for a considerably larger number of British ships than were victims of German torpedoes, mines, or guns.

The number of steamers lost was thirty-three of an aggregate net tonnage of 34,947, with ninety-seven lives, of which nine steamers, aggregating 12,389 tons, went down by German submarines, with one of six tons by mine. A total of 9,603 tons was sunk by a German mine.

Such are the results from what is probably the best submarine fleet in existence operating in a most favorable field. The threat of submarine operations has added tremendously to strategic and patrol problems in naval warfare, but it has not taken from the dread naught its place of primary importance.

Nor has the aeroplane become a deciding factor in war. It has fastened that honor more securely than before upon the guns. It has given eyes to the artillery so that supremacy in the air means chiefly better service of the guns and better intelligence of the enemies movements. Attacks by aeroplanes and Zeppelins have had little or no direct military effect. The airship, like the submarine, has complicated warfare and added to its destructive powers. Neither has developed into a decisive method of attack in itself.

The automobile also has increased the speed of troops and increased the commissariat facilities so that larger bodies of men can be maintained at the front than would otherwise be possible. In a few instances armored motor-cars have served in direct attack. But like the aeroplane, the motor-car has chiefly been useful in its auxiliary services to the men and guns at the front.

Against all the increased effectiveness of war in killing, one single expedient has made defensive warfare more effective than ever before—the trench. It had its origin in the American Civil War. It was generally used in the Japanese-Russian War. With the advent of heavier and more accurate artillery it has become deeper, better protected, and better screened. Backed by the fire of modern guns the odds in favor of defenders in trenches are greater than ever before.

Costliness of Sea Power.

The staggering money-cost of modern naval warfare is indicated in some degree by the following authoritative estimate. If the twenty-nine Dreadnoughts now in commission in the British navy were sent on an eight-hour full-power coal-burning run they would consume 4,320 tons of fuel, running up a bill of some $15,000. If a single Dreadnought battle squadron of eight ships were ordered to steam at full speed for twenty-four hours and to fire each gun and each torpedo tube once, the cost to the nation would be approximately $1,000,000 allowing nothing for the depreciation of material.

German-American Denounces the Kaiser.

In a recent magazine article, a German-American, while loyal to his German ancestry, denounces the Kaiser in the following manner:

Possibly you have noticed how the Kaiser travels in following the army during the present war.

He has a special train, and lives in luxury. He has courtiers, servants and conveniences and amusements. When he leaves his special train, there is a special camp for his personal comfort. Hundreds of special soldiers and scouts look after his safety, and hundreds of courtiers and servants look after his wants. If a palace is in the neighborhood, that is taken possession of for the Emperor.

This is war for the Emperor. But for the men who do the fighting and share the danger, it means sleeping on the ground, subsisting on little food, probably a wound, and possibly death.

A million better men than Emperor William live meanly and risk death, while he lives as well as when in his palace at home, and is in no danger.

The Emperor ordered the war: the million better men who make greater sacrifices because of war opposed it. Millions of dollars are paid in taxes that the Emperor and his family may live in an extravagant and luxurious style unknown to the people: the Emperor wastes more every year than a thousand average German families live on.

And who is this great Emperor William? The descendant of a poor but "noble" family called Hohenzollern, which has risen by politics to its present distinction. Frederick William was the prince to whose policy his successors have agreed to ascribe their greatness. Compared with the other crowned heads of Europe, he was a pitiable figure. The Elector of Saxony at first refused to recognize him. His taste for military pomp became a mania. The food of the "royal" family was so bad that even hunger loathed it. But he was always a maniac about fighting; he made a specialty of tall soldiers. His feeding about his troops seems to have resembled a miser's feeling about his money. He loved to collect them, to count them, to see them increase. The nature of Frederick William was hard and bad, and the habit of exercising arbitrary power made him frightfully savage. His rage constantly vented itself to right and left in curses and blows. When his majesty took a walk, every human being fled before him, as if a tiger had broken loose. If he met a lady in the street, he gave her a kick, and told her to go home and mind her brats. His son Frederick (afterwards Frederick the Great) was in an especial manner the object of his aversion. The business of life according to him was to drill and be drilled. The recreations suited to a prince were to sit in a cloud of tobacco smoke, to sip beer between puffs, to play backgammon, to kill wild hogs, and shoot partridges by the thousand.

The Duty of the Canadian Hen.

Someone should stir up the Canadian hen and make her realize that we are at war, and that every part of the country should do its best. During the last fiscal year Canada imported 11,230,000 dozen eggs. The eggs came from Great Britain, Hong Kong, Japan, New Zealand and the United States. It is only a few years ago that we were exporting eggs to Great Britain.

Machine Weaves and Stretches Wire Fence.

There is a little motor-driven fence-building machine which weaves and puts up wire fencing at a speed of about 250 feet an hour and can be equipped to build fences from 9 inches to 5 feet in height. Between 25 and 50 different styles of fence can be made by simply changing gears or leaving out line wires.

In building a fence with this type of machine the end and corner posts must be in place before the operation commences, but these posts may be placed at any distance apart up to two miles. Wires to show the line of the fence are stretched along the ground before the machine commences to weave, but these are not fastened to the posts until the main wire is woven in. The work of fastening the fencing to the posts is done just as fast as the weaving progresses. The weaving mechanism itself is simple. The line wires pass through tubes, just back of the hand of the operator, and the wire for weaving is carried on spools which make a figure-eight movement around the line wires as the machine travels ahead. Each spool holds 70 feet of wire and when one runs out it is quickly changed for a filled pool.

The fact that each line wire is stretched separately makes a tight fence, no matter how hilly and uneven the land may be. A 1½ horse-power gasoline engine operates the weaving mechanism and drives the machine ahead at the same time. The operator merely steers the machine and changes the spools when necessary.

Value of Peat in Feed.

Peat is used by manufacturers of molasses feed as a filler and a carrier for the molasses. It has very little feeding value, considerably less than wheat straw. The use of peat in prepared foods makes the analysis of the feed misleading, as the protein is usually calculated on the basis of the nitrogen content, and the nitrogen in the peat is not in the form of protein. Beet molasses fed alone is very laxative and often serious effects result from its liberal use. Peat is said to have some corrective value when fed with such molasses. If this is true this is about the only real value it has in these prepared foods.

Corn Improvement.

The greater part of the Report of the Ontario Corn Growers' Association, now ready for distribution, is taken up with valuable hints on the breeding of seed corn. Methods of improving the yield of husking and silage varieties are given by both college-trained specialists and by practical farmers, with the result that the report contains what may be termed the latest word in corn growing.

The raising of alfalfa as an alternate crop is advocated, and some excellent pointers are given concerning its cultivation.

The report also contains a homely but very timely talk by an Essex county man on "The Value and Intelligence of Birds on the Farm," which will be found most refreshing as well as informing reading. A brief but suggestive article is also given on the use of electricity on the farm.

In spite of the fact that money talks, it doesn't seem particularly garrulous with some of us.

READ THE LABEL

FOR THE PROTECTION OF THE CONSUMER THE INGREDIENTS ARE PLAINLY PRINTED ON THE LABEL. IT IS THE ONLY WELL-KNOWN MEDIUM-PRICED BAKING POWDER MADE IN CANADA THAT DOES NOT CONTAIN ALUM AND WHICH HAS ALL THE INGREDIENTS PLAINLY STATED ON THE LABEL.

MAGIC BAKING POWDER
CONTAINS NO ALUM

ALUM IS SOMETIMES REFERRED TO AS SULPHATE OF ALUMINA OR SODIC ALUMINIC SULPHATE. THE PUBLIC SHOULD NOT BE MISLED BY THESE TECHNICAL NAMES.

E. W. GILLETT COMPANY LIMITED
WINNIPEG TORONTO, ONT. MONTREAL

GRAVE DANGER TO NATION

GERMAN CENSORS CONDEMNED BY HERR STADTHAGEN.

Socialistic Press Has Been Oppressed by Military Officials Passing on War News.

The newspapers in Copenhagen have obtained copies of the official report of the debate in the German Reichstag on the imperial budget, including the text of the speech made by the socialist Deputy, Herr Stadthagen, which the military censors refused to allow the German newspapers to publish. The speech deals entirely with the German press censorship. Herr Stadthagen said:—

"From all parts of the country come strong protests against the severity, the inequality, the injustice, the inefficiency of the censorship. The military censors have made the whole of the socialistic press a target for their malicious attacks, which are not intended to preserve military secrets, but to suppress the free discussion of questions in regard to which the people of Germany have the fullest

Right to Express Their Opinion.

The Volkszeitung, our local organ at Danzig, was suppressed for saying that there was no danger of a famine in Germany, but that the price of many necessaries of life was too high for the working classes and imposed considerable hardships on them. At Konigsberg our local daily newspaper was suppressed for saying that the victories won by the German army were due to the fact that universal manhood suffrage exists in Germany and to the right possessed by German workmen to combine in trade unions or in political associations.

"At Kattowitz our newspaper, the Freie Presse, had always appeared at three o'clock in the afternoon, but the military censor there insisted on seeing all the proofs before publication, and then declared that he had no time to read them before three o'clock, with the result that the publication of the newspaper had to be delayed until some hour of the evening, sometimes later, according to the whim of the august official who wielded despotic away in those regions.

"The Vorwaerts received a warning from the military authorities because it protested against wildly sensational reports of English atrocities on German prisoners on the grounds that such reports stimulated public enthusiasm for the war, and hence to discredit them meant diminishing enthusiasm for the war. When the Vorwaerts protested against the publication of a report that the German army had captured Hellort and seven French army corps (about 350,000 men) at one stroke, the military authorities in Berlin warned the editor that he was doing a public disservice and exposed his newspaper to the penalty of suppression. The Vorwaerts was not allowed to reply to attacks made on it by another Berlin newspaper, the Neueste Nachrichten, which is a conservative organ, although this journal had been permitted to libel the Vorwaerts in the greatest terms of abuse.

"On another occasion the Vorwaerts was not allowed to publish a speech made in the Berlin Town Council by Herr Wurum, in which the authorities were urged to prevent the prices of necessary commodities of everyday life from being raised above a certain level. The publication of the Vorwaerts was temporarily suspended for declaring that the hostility existing in other countries against Germany was due to the fact that the German method of government is based on which together had produced many undesirable features.

Autocracy and Militarism,

"We were even forbidden to reprint an attack on the English censors published by the London weekly newspaper Truth. The Vorwaerts was forbidden to publish an article saying that the destruction of the despotism of the Tzar would be a blessing to the Russian people; doubtless our astute censors thought this was an indirect hit at the German Emperor. The Vorwaerts was not allowed to publish a speech made by the English member of Parliament, Mr. Ramsay Macdonald, in which Macdonald spoke against the war and other anti-war utterances made in England were likewise suppressed. Why!

"These are only a few cases selected from many of which we know but they suffice to show that the censorship is badly administered, inefficiently conducted and unjustly balanced, so that energetic measures should be taken by the supreme authorities to remedy what is really a grave danger to the welfare of the German nation."

UNIVERSITY HOSPITAL SUPPLIES.

The various committees in charge of supplies report satisfactory progress.

A sheet shower was held on Wednesday last in the Physics Building, which resulted in an addition to our store, amounting to about seventeen hundred sheets. In addition to this, the necessary quota of the following articles has been reached—Surgeons' gowns and masks, nurses' caps, covers for hot water bottles and pneumonia jackets.

In spite of efforts, however, the number of articles required is still great. In the first place, ten thousand sheets are still needed, and this is an urgent necessity not to be denied. Next to sheets the most pressing needs are pajamas, of which nearly two thousand suits are required, and surgical nightshirts. Also let us not forget the need for socks. Each letter from the front emphasizes the urgency of the demand for them.

The writer will be glad of contributions to the wool fund, of offers from women who are willing to knit if wool is sent to them, as well as of contributions of socks.

(Mrs. A.) JEAN McPHEDRAN,
Convenor of the Ontario Red Cross Sock Fund.

MRS. F. N. G. STARR,
Treasurer.
University Hospital Supply Association.

A Sharp Lad.

"When I was a boy we didn't have such wonderful mechanical toys."

"You needn't have told me that, pa. From the way you stick to mine I'd have guessed it."

Lack of interest in a story is enough to prove its truthfulness.

Macintosh—"So you and your wife eloped!" Macpherson—"Yes, but I have since had reason to believe that her father bought the ladder I used and placed it just where I couldn't help seeing it."

German Soldiers in Poland Pause In Their Work of Digging Trenches for Their Midday Meal.

SPRING BLOOD IS WATERY BLOOD

How to Get New Health and New Strength at This Season

Spring ailments are not imaginary. Even the most robust find the winter months most trying to their health. Confinement indoors, often in overheated and nearly always badly ventilated rooms—in the home, the office, the shop and the school—taxes the vitality of even the strongest. The blood becomes thin and watery and is clogged with impurities. Some people have headaches and a feeling of languor. Others are low-spirited and nervous. Still others are troubled with disfiguring pimples and skin eruptions; while some get up in the morning feeling just as tired as when they went to bed. These are all spring symptoms that the blood is out of order and that a medicine is needed. Many people take purgative medicines in the spring. This is a serious mistake. You cannot cure yourself with a medicine that gallops through your system and leaves you weaker still. This is all that a purgative does. What you need to give you health and strength in the spring is a tonic medicine that will enrich the blood and soothe the jangled nerves. And the one always reliable tonic and blood builder is Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These Pills not only banish spring weakness but guard you against the more serious ailments that follow, such as anaemia, nervous debility, indigestion, rheumatism and other diseases due to bad blood. In proof of this Mrs. D. E. Huzzey, Hazenmore, Sask., says: "About a year ago I was badly run down, my nerves were all unstrung, and I could not go up stairs without stopping to rest. As I was a long ways from a doctor I decided to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and in the course of a few weeks I felt like a new person. As an all round restorative I can heartily recommend this medicine."

If you are ailing this spring you cannot afford, in your own interest, to overlook so valuable a medicine as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

For Baking Day.

Bake your cakes on flue-cleaning day. And on the day before scrub the oven out with hot soda water. Make a pint of whitewash with a small cake of whiting, and whitewash the interior of the oven. The difference is extraordinary.

Sieve the flour, and warm it. It may be damp, and, if not, warmed flour makes prize cake.

Beat yolks and whites of eggs separately, and add the whites last of everything.

Put sultanas, etc., in a colander and pour hot water through. This cleanses, makes the fruit swell and juicy, and partly cooks it. Never "drops" either. Dry afterwards in the oven.

If you are following a recipe, do not guess quantities; weigh accurately.

Don't "rub" butter into flour. Melt it and cream it. Much better. Dissolve carbonate of soda in a little warm milk. This provides for its even distribution.

If your mixture is too wet, sift, quickly and evenly, warm flour and finely grated dry breadcrumbs over it. The equivalent of two eggs is a dessertspoonful of vinegar to a gill of milk.

A teaspoonful of glycerine makes a cake very light. Butter your cake tin well, and line with proper paper, buttered.

If your tin is old, stand it on sand to prevent burning. If "gas" cooking, cover the cake tin with one same size, rim on rim. When the cake has risen and begun to brown, move it to cooler tray. To test if done, run a skewer into the middle of the cake, but not through it. If it comes out clean, the cake is done.

Two lumps of sugar in your oven will brown a cake without burning.

A basin of cold water will cool a hot oven. Put at bottom.

A burnt cake, but not done, should have burnt part removed, and place covered with beaten egg and brown sugar. Stand cake on sieve when cooked.

Cut out this column and paste up inside your pantry door. You will find it very helpful—especially if you are a beginner—to have it always at hand.

AN EXCELLENT REMEDY FOR LITTLE ONES

Mrs. Sidney Dalby, Audley, Ont., writes: "I have used Baby's Own Tablets for the past twelve months and have found them an excellent medicine for my little girl." Thousands of other mothers say the same thing—once a mother has used the Tablets she would use nothing else. They are pleasant to take; the result is sure, and above all they are guaranteed by a government analyst to be absolutely free from injurious drugs. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

BIG AID TO BRITAIN.

The British Navy and Canadian Railway Expansion.

The present conflict in Europe has demonstrated beyond the possibility of doubt that the maintenance of Britain's superiority at sea, and the expansion of the wheat areas in British Dominions, have been linked together as basic factors in the consideration of plans for imperial offense and defence. The lawmakers in London, as a matter of policy, have allowed nothing to interfere with the building up of an all-powerful navy, and they have steadfastly ignored the protests of Englishmen who have contended that Great Britain would be in an impossible position if a war should develop with a power ful maritime power. There were numerous men in England who believed that in the event of an important European struggle involving Great Britain, the hunger of London would dictate terms of peace." But the Admiralty were convinced that the sea power of Britain would keep all the routes open for foodstuffs. The lands in the British Isles which might have been devoted to the growth of more wheat were left as before, and the investors of Britain by placing their funds in the bonds of railways in Canada, in South Africa, in Australia, and in New Zealand, where vast stretches of fertile country remained to be opened up encouraged the production of a steady supply of foodstuffs which might be called upon in case of emergency. The under-water craft of Germany have failed to throttle the shipping of Great Britain. Her ships come and go almost as they please. And the resources of wheat lands, in themselves many times the area of the British Isles are available for the need of the people of Britain.

In facilitating the expansion of the various companies in the Dominion during the last thirty years, the successive governments, federal and provincial, have enabled Canada to take up the burden of a greater production in this year of the Empire's peril. Canada is measuring up to her advertised destiny as the "Granary of the Empire," or, more emphatic still, "Bread Basket of the World." The prophecies of leaders of thought for three decades are on the verge of fulfillment. The large exportable surplus of the wheat fields in Canada will go to feed a fair proportion of the dependent millions of England, and probably the war-harassed Belgians as well. The railway lines which have been constructed east and west and north and south throughout the country have made her present position possible. Without these essential traffic arteries the Dominion would have been merely a helpless spectator while the greatest war in history rumbled through to a conclusion. Canada's most important contribution to the cause of Empire is in wheat and flour and bread.

The bulk of supplies of Canadian wheat for export are drawn each year from the wheat fields of the prairie provinces. The total supply may be computed by a study of the carryings of the railways. During the crop year 1913-4, the Canadian Northern alone handled from the territory served by its western lines, 47,295,000 bushels. Estimating the increase this year at 30 per cent., this road should haul out approximately 56,750,000 bushels of wheat from the provinces lying between the Great Lakes and the Rocky Mountains. That quantity of wheat converted successively into flour, and into standard loaves of bread, would feed Greater London, with its estimated population of 7,252,963, for more than four and a half years.

So long as Britain holds command of the seas, the available supply of foodstuffs from Canada alone should suffice to overcome the handicap her cities maintain she imposed upon herself by producing but a quarter of the wheat she annually consumes.

Rough on Tommy.

The mails from home had just been received by a certain regiment. Not only were there letters, but many parcels from relatives and friends at home for lucky soldiers. One of the Tommies received a large box addressed to himself, and with a triumphant yell he rushed off to his company's lines and gathered them around him to share in the eagerly anticipated contents of his box.

"Smokes, lads!" he cried as he undid the wrapping. "From the old man; I knows it. An' there's sure to be a bottle or two of Scotch."

He opened the box, gave one look at the contents and collapsed in a heap.

"What is it?" cried his comrades pressing round.

"It's from ole Auntie Mary," groaned the disappointed warrior. "Bandages an' ointment an' embrocation an' splints an' a book on "Ow to be yer own Surgin'!"

It doesn't pay to do things by halves, such, for instance, as saying the right thing at the wrong time.

It All Came From Strain and Cold

BUT G. K. MACDONALD FOUND RELIEF IN DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS.

Nova Scotia Man After Fifteen Years' Suffering Found a Cure Through Reading an Advertisement.

Harrigan Cove, Halifax Co., N. S., April 19th (Special).—After suffering for fifteen years from lame back and kidney trouble Mr. George K. MacDonald, a well-known resident of this place, is telling his neighbors of the great benefit he has received from using Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"My trouble started from a strain and a cold," Mr. MacDonald states. "I was troubled with stiffness of the joints and cramps in the muscles. My sleep was broken and unrefreshing, my limbs were heavy and I had a dragging sensation across the loins.

"My back ached and I suffered from rheumatism, when reading an advertisement led me to try Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"I am only too pleased to say that the treatment was successful. Dodd's Kidney Pills have done me a great deal of good."

Mr. MacDonald's symptoms show that he was troubled with Kidney disease. That's why Dodd's Kidney Pills cured him.

To Disinfect a Room.

The usual method employed is to burn sulphur in a closed-up room, and this is perhaps as effective as any other method. Fill any large vessel, such as an old bucket or tin bowl, half full of earth, and stand it in the centre of the room on an old metal tray. Lay a piece of paper on the top of the earth, and pour onto this a pound of common sulphur or brimstone. Close all the windows, and push a mass of crumpled newspapers up the chimneys, set the projecting edges of the paper alight in several places, so that it might ignite the sulphur. Leave the room, closing the door tightly. A mat laid on the outside will prevent the fumes escaping from the room. If the room is disinfected after a serious illness brown paper should be pasted over the edges of the window and door, and left for twelve hours after the sulphur has burnt out. After that time the windows should be opened and left open for twenty-four hours. The fumes of sulphur will destroy the colors of most fabrics, and therefore during any sickness of an infectious nature nothing should be used in the way of hangings except such as can be disinfected afterwards. All bedding should be sent to a professional disinfector. The sanitary or health authorities in a town will generally give particulars of this work, and see that it is done. All wallpaper in a room must be stripped off and destroyed, a fresh paper being put on its place. Old paper is in itself a great cause of infection, and a new paper should never be pasted over an old one. This should always be removed beforehand.

A FOOD DRINK

Which Brings Daily Enjoyment.

A lady doctor writes:

"Though busy hourly with my own affairs, I will not deny myself the pleasure of taking a few minutes to tell of the enjoyment obtained daily from my morning cup of Postum. It is a food beverage, not a stimulant like coffee.

"I began to use Postum 8 years ago; not because I wanted to, but because coffee, which I dearly loved, made my nights long, weary periods to be dreaded and unfitting me for business during the day." (Tea is just as injurious as coffee, because it, too, contains the health-destroying drug, caffeine.)

"On advice of a friend, I first tried Postum, making it carefully as suggested on the package. As I had always used 'cream and no sugar,' I mixed my Postum so. It looked good, was clear and fragrant, and it was a pleasure to see the cream color it a light golden-brown.

"Then I tasted it critically and was pleased, yes, satisfied with my Postum in taste and effect, and am yet, being a constant user of it all these years.

"I continually assure my friends and acquaintances that they will like Postum and receive benefit from its use. I have gained weight, can sleep and am not nervous."

Name given by Canadian Postum Co., Windsor, Ont. Read "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

Postum comes in two forms:

Regular Postum — must be well boiled. 15c and 25c packages.

Instant Postum — is a soluble powder. A teaspoonful dissolves quickly in a cup of hot water, and with cream and sugar, makes a delicious beverage instantly. 30c and 50c tins.

Both kinds are equally delicious and cost per cup about the same.

"There's a Reason" for Postum —sold by Grocers.

Leon Chester Thrasher, American, whose death through sinking of "Falaba" by U-28, may cause serious complications, according to the position taken by the United States, in its reply to the German notification of a submarine war zone, the destruction of American life, or American property through enforcement of the decree, would be looked upon as an unfriendly act. Thrasher was a mining engineer, and was bound for Secondee, West Africa, when he met his death.

A Nova Scotia Case Of Interest to All Women

Halifax Sends Out a Message of Help to Many People.

Halifax, N.S., Dec. 15.—When interviewed at her home at 194 Argyle St., Mrs. Haverstock was quite willing to talk of her peculiarly unfortunate case. "I was always 'blue' and depressed, felt weak, languid and utterly unfit for any work. My stomach was in disordered that I had no appetite. What I did eat disagreed. I suffered greatly from dizziness and sick headache and feared a nervous breakdown. Upon my druggists recommendation I used Dr. Hamilton's Pills.

"I felt better at once. Every day I improved. In six weeks I was a well woman, cured completely after different physicians had failed to help me. It is for this reason that I strongly urge sufferers with stomach or digestive troubles to use Dr. Hamilton's Pills."

Dr. Hamilton's Pills strengthen the stomach, improve digestion, strengthen the nerves and restore debilitated systems to health. By cleansing the blood of long-standing impurities, by bringing the system to a high point of vigor, they effectually chase away weariness, depression and disease. Good for young or old, for men, for women, for children. All dealers sell Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butternut.

Who Can Do It!

A Boston school teacher tells this story: 'Children,'' said a second-grade teacher, "you should be able to do everything equally well with your left and right hands. With a little practice you will find it so easy to use one hand as the other."

From the rear of the room came the piping inquiry:

"How about putting your left hand in the right-hand pocket of your trousers?"

LOW FARES TO THE CALIFORNIA EXPOSITIONS VIA CHICAGO & NORTH WESTERN RY.

Four splendid daily trains from the New Passenger Terminal, Chicago to San Francisco, Los Angeles and San Diego. Choice of Scenic and direct routes through the best of the West. Something to see all the way. Double track. Automatic electric safety signals all the way. Let us plan your trip and furnish folders and full particulars. H. B. Bennett, G.A., 46 Yonge St., Toronto, Ontario.

Except for their vanity, it would be impossible to please some people.

Minard's Liniment Cures Dandruff.

In a cinematograph show two Scotsmen were agreeably surprised to find a cup of tea and a biscuit given them free by an up-to-date management at 4 o'clock. Half an hour later one of them broke the silence. "We've seen the pictures noo, Tam," he said; "we micht as weel gang awa' oot." To which Tam, after a moment's thought, replied: "Gang yr awa' gin ye want tae! I'm stayin' tae dinner!"

Minard's Liniment Co., Limited.

Gentlemen,—I had my leg badly hurt, the pain was very severe and a large swelling came above the knee. I expected it would be serious—I rubbed it with MINARD'S LINIMENT, which stopped the pain and reduced the swelling very quickly. I cannot speak too highly of MINARD'S LINIMENT.

ANGUS T. SMITH.

Port Hood Island.

"Don't you think some men look better with long whiskers?" asked the critical girl. "Yes," replied Miss Cayenne. "I do think every man who insists on having a large diamond in his shirt front ought to be compelled to wear long whiskers."

Minard's Liniment Cures Burns, Etc.

Best Liniment of All Destroys Every Pain But Never Burns

"How thankful we are to get hold of such a wonderful household remedy as Nerviline," writes Mrs. B. P. Lemontagne, from her home near Wetaskawin, Alberta. "In this far-away section, far away from a doctor or druggist, every family needs a good supply of liniment. Nerviline is the best of all. It destroys every pain, but never burns. We use Nerviline in a score of ways. If it's rheumatism, aching back, pain in the side, sciatica or stiff neck,—you can laugh at them if you have lots of Nerviline handy. For earache, toothache or cramps I don't think anything could act more quickly. For a general all-round pain remedy I can think of nothing more valuable and speedy to cure than Nerviline."

The above letter is convincing—it tells how reliable and trusty this old-time remedy is. Nerviline for forty years has been a household word in Canada. Scarcely a home in Canada you can find without Nerviline. Every community has it living examples of the wonderful curative properties of Nerviline which will cure pains and aches anywhere in the joints or muscles. It's penetrating, soothing, warming and safe for young and old to use. Get the large 50c. family size bottle; it's the most economical. Small trial size 25c. at any dealer's anywhere.

Whooping Cough.

"The germ of whooping cough was discovered by Bordet and Gengou, two French bacteriologists. It grows in the air passages leading to the lungs, and the presence of masses of germs on the delicate lining of these passages irritates them and causes the spasmodic cough. A rapid succession of these coughs catches the breath and the spasm ends in a deep in-rush of air, the "whoop."

The germs are present in great numbers in the spray thrown out in coughing, particularly during the early stages of the disease, and they are likely to get smeared over the hands of the patient while he struggles to get his breath during the coughing spasm. So the disease spreads very rapidly by more or less direct contact, the germs being passed from mouth to hand and from hand to mouth, or exchanged on pencils, drinking cups and other things which go from mouth to mouth.

Whooping cough is a particularly hard disease to check because the patient is usually up and about for a period of many weeks and has a much greater chance of spreading germs than if he were isolated in bed. Often whooping cough is caught from a child in the early stages before the whoop develops and when people think it has only an ordinary cough.

The only safe rule is to keep children away from other children who have any cough at all.

Corns Drop Out

Instant Relief

Paint on Putnam's Corn Extractor tonight, and corns feel better in the morning. Magical the way "Putnam's" eases the pain, destroys the roots, kills a corn for all time. No pain. Cure guaranteed. Get a 25c bottle of "Putnam's" Extractor to-day.

"Oh, yes, my husband is an enthusiastic archaeologist!" said Mrs. Moles. "And I never know it until yesterday! I found in his desk some queer-looking tickets with the inscription, 'Flyaway, 6 to 1.' And when I asked him what they were he said they were relics of a lost race. Isn't that interesting!"

Minard's Liniment for sale everywhere.

SEED POTATOES.

EARLY IRISH CORNLEE POTATOES, specially selected and Government inspected for seed. Only limited quantity. Price, One Dollar per bushel f.o.b. Brampton. Also Connelmere's Pride and New Snow, two excellent new potatoes. Price, Two Dollars per bushel. Special prices for large quantity. Cash must accompany all orders. H. W. Dawson, Brampton.

NURSERY STOCK.

STRAWBERRIES, RASPBERRIES, POTATOES. Catalogue free. McConnell & Son, Port Burwell, Ont.

STRAWBERRY PLANTS, GOOD PLANTS, guaranteed. Senator Dunlap $2.50 per thousand, $2.00 500-400, $1.25 for 250. J.C.H. Bloomfield. Leaves Canada, Howard Leaves, Bloomfield, Ont.

NEWSPAPERS FOR SALE.

PROFIT MAKING NEWS AND JOB OFFICES for sale in good Ontario towns. The most useful and interesting of all businesses. Full information on application to Wilson Publishing Company, 73 West Adelaide St., Toronto.

MISCELLANEOUS.

CANCER, TUMORS, LUMPS, ETC. Internal and external, cured without pain by our home treatment. Write us before too late. Dr. Rollman Medical Co., Limited, Collingwood, Ont.

NO MORE DANDRUFF.

DANDRUCURE

Will stop your falling hair, cure the itching, and make your hair glossy and smooth. Sample enough for 3 days, postpaid, 15 cents. 604 Traders Bank Bldg., Toronto, Ont.

Success assured in rearing Baby Chicks if you feed them

Purina Chick Feed

Send dealer's name and ask for particulars.

The Chisholm Milling Co., Ltd.,

Dept. S, Toronto, Ontario.

KERMATH Marine Engines

America's Standard 4 Cycle Motor Mount

Specifications, Engine Rating, Etc.

KERMATH MFG. CO. Dept. Detroit, Mich.

KEELEY CURE

1253 DUNDAS TORONTO

FOR ALCOHOLIC & DRUG ADDICTIONS

HAWK BICYCLES

An up-to-date High Grade Bicycle fitted with Roller Chain, New Departure Coaster Brake and Stands, Detachable Tires, high grade equipment, including Mudguards, $22.50 Pump and Tools

Send for FREE 1915 Catalogue, 76 pages of Bicycles, Sundries, and Repair Material. You can buy your supplies from us at Wholesale Prices.

T. W. BOYD & SON, 27 Notre Dame St. West, Montreal.

Still Holds Its Own.

The automobile people to the contrary notwithstanding the fresh sparking device continues to be a sofa, with the lights turned low.

Minard's Liniment Relieves Neuralgia.

"Nature," observed the philosopher, "always tries to make compensation. For instance, if one's eyesight is lost the sense of hearing grows more acute." "Faith," replied Pat, "I believe you're right, for I've noticed that when a man has one leg shorter, the other is always longer."

YOUR OWN DRUGGIST WILL TELL YOU Try Murine Eye Remedy for Red, Weak, Watery Eyes and Granulated Eyelids; No Smarting—just Eye Comfort. Write for Book of the Eye by mail Free. Murine Eye Remedy Co., Chicago.

"Poor Jim was always such a considerate husband, mum." "Considerate! Why, the brute used to beat you." "True, mum; but he never hit me where the marks could be seen by the neighbors, mum."

Canoes, Skiffs, Motor Boats

THE PETERBOROUGH LINE.

If any canoe can give you satisfaction, it is a "PETERBOROUGH." Always and ever the acme of service, model, strength and finish. Over fifty styles and sizes. Write for catalogue. The latest canoe is the Peterborough canvas covered. Ask for illustrated folder. Skiffs for the popular Outboard Motors. Power Launches, all sizes and powers. Get folders telling all about these.

THE PETERBOROUGH CANOE COMPANY, LIMITED, PETERBOROUGH, ONT.

"Overstern" V Bottom Motor Boat $55.00

Freight Prepaid to any Railway Station in Ontario. Length 16 Ft., Beam 3 Ft. 9 In., Depth 1 Ft. 6 In. ANY MOTOR FITS.

Specification No. 2B giving engine prices on request. Get our quotations on—"The Penetang Line" Commercial and Pleasure Launches, Row boats and Canoes.

THE GIDLEY BOAT CO., LIMITED, PENETANG, CAN.

House-Cleaning Supplies | SINCLAIR'S | Lawn Mowers $4 to $6.50

The Hardware Store of Better Values

A complete stock of FISHING TACKLE to choose from.

Garden Tools of all kinds

FROST WOVEN FENCE

Ring Lock Style

7 strand.....26c rod
8 strand.....28c rod
9 strand.....32c rod
10 strand ... 35c rod

Gates

3½ x 4 ft.....$2.25
13 ft.....$5.00

Seed - Seed Seed!

Only the best grades of Timothy, Red, Alsike and Alfalfa at the best prices.

We also have in stock CORN, RAPE, MANGOLD and TURNIP.

You can do it with

JAP-A-LAC

Made in 21 colors and natural (clear) — renews everything from cellar to garret

PRICES—10c, 15c, 30c, 50c and 90c.

GRAINING TOOLS, 50c.

Bruce 'Phone 11 — Sinclair's Hardware — Bell 'Phone 30

We handle the Gendrich, Raymond, New William, White, Singer and Standard — all the very latest models. Edison Gramophones and Records, Bell Pianos and organs.

PETER McKINNON, Agent, Paisley
Ross Street

BRUCE TP. ROUTES

P. O. Inspector Reports in Favor of Tiverton as Starting Point

Representation having been made to the P.O. inspector at London that a better mail service could be had on Willow Creek route if the route started from Glamis instead of Tiverton, the inspector reports that in his opinion the present service is preferable. He says that "With Tiverton as the distributing office an even service all the year round is given, the patrons receiving their mail via Kincardine from R P.O. train No. 204 of the Palmerston and Kincardine branch, G.T.R., due at Kincardine at 10.15 p.m. As this train does not leave Toronto until 5 p.m., the patrons would receive the late evening editions of the Toronto daily papers of the previous day, also of the London papers, the connecting train leaving London at 4.10 p.m., and would have despatch via train No. 194 leaving Kincardine at 5.30 a.m. on the day after mailing, so that a letter mailed by any patron would reach Toronto at 11.10 a.m., Hamilton at 11.40 a.m., and London at 10.00 a.m. on the day after mailing, whereas with service from Glamis the patrons could for six months of the year receive their Toronto daily morning papers on date of issue via the Eden Grove R.R. No. 1 (Glamis to Pinkerton and railway station) arriving at Glamis at 1.45 p.m., but for the remaining six months they could only receive the morning daily papers of the previous day, no evening papers of the previous day arriving in Glamis in time for this route. The despatch of mails for this route would for the six summer months be via the Eden Grove R.R. No. 1 of the following day, and letters for Toronto would not leave Pinkerton station until 3.13 p.m., three hours after the time they would have reached Toronto if despatched via Tiverton."—Review.

—BUTTER PAPER—real vegetable parchment, not a cheaper imitation—printed and sold at The Advocate Office at lowest possible prices. We can print 500 sheets or more with your name on, and for the convenience of those who do not require that quantity, we keep printed wrappers on hand without any name on and sell this in quantities of 100 sheets or over.

TWO WOMEN SAVED FROM OPERATIONS

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—Their Own Stories Here Told.

Edmonton, Alberta, Can. — "I think it is no more than right for me to thank you for what your kind advice and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound have done for me.

"When I wrote to you some time ago I was a very sick woman suffering from female troubles. I had organic inflammation and could not stand or walk any distance. At last I was confined to my bed, and the doctor said I would have to go through an operation, but this I refused to do. A friend advised Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and now, after using three bottles of it, I feel like a new woman. "I most heartily recommend your medicine to all women who suffer with female troubles. I have also taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Liver Pills, and think they are fine. I will never be without the medicine in the house."—MRS. FRANK EMSLEY, 903 Columbia Avenue, Edmonton, Alberta.

The Other Case.

Beatrice, Neb.—"Just after my marriage my left side began to pain me and the pain got so severe at times that I suffered terribly with it. I visited three doctors and each one wanted to operate on me but I would not consent to an operation. I heard of the good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was doing for others and I used several bottles of it with the result that I haven't been bothered with my side since then. I am in good health and I have two little girls."—MRS. R. B. CHILD, Beatrice, Neb.

CASTORIA

For Infants and Children

In Use For Over 30 Years

Always bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher

The City Bakery

Is always ready to supply your needs. Why worry and melt over a hot fire? We are here to do your Baking for you. Let us try.

Other than baking we try to keep a fresh supply of Greens and Fruit on hand—as well as a full stock of Fresh Groceries.

We would appreciate it if the public would make their purchases early on Thursdays as it is impossible for us to maintain a strict observance of the Thursday half-holiday on account of our Ice Cream Parlor which will be open every Thursday evening.

We need your trade. Butter and Eggs for Cash or Trade. Dutch Set Onions for sale.

Bruce and Bell 'Phones

F. S. McLACHLAN

Buy High-Grade Flour

Direct From the Mill

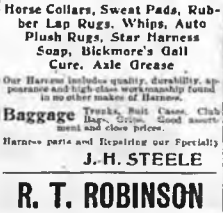
MAKE the best bread and pastry you've ever tasted. Prices of flour and feeds are listed below. Orders may be assorted as desired. On shipments up to 5 bags buyer pays freight charges. On shipments over 5 bags we will prepay freight to any station in Ontario east of Sudbury and South of North Bay. West of Sudbury and New Ontario add 15 cents per bag. Prices are subject to market changes. Cash with orders.

Cream of the West Flour

the hard wheat flour guaranteed for bread

	Per 98-lb. bag
GUARANTEED FLOURS
Cream of the West (for bread)	$3.95
Toronto's Pride (for bread)	3.80
Queen City (blended for all purposes	3.50
Monarch (makes delicious pastry)	3.50
FEED FLOURS
Tower	2.00
CEREALS
Cream of the West Wheatlets (per 6-lb. bag)	.35
Norwegian Rolled Oats (per 90-lb. bag	3.40
Family Cornmeal (per 98-lb. bag)	2.30
FEEDS	Per 100-lb. bag
Bullrush Bran	$1.40
Bullrush Middlings	1.50
Extra White Middlings	1.60
Crushed Oats	2.10
Cracked Corn	1.85
Barley Meal	1.90
Geneva Feed (Crushed Corn, Oats and Barley)	1.90
Oil Cake Meal (old process)	2.05
Cotton Seed Meal	1.95

These prices are not guaranteed for any length of time owing to the unsettled condition of the market.



Every bag of Flour ordered entitles purchaser to two bags of bran or middlings at 10c. per bag less than the prices given above. Special prices to farmers. Chop and others buying in carload lots.

You can get a free copy of "The Old Millers Household Book" (formerly Dominion Cook Book) if you buy three bags of flour. This useful book contains 1,000 carefully selected recipes and a large medical department. If you already have the former edition (Dominion Cook Book) you may select one book from the following list each time you order from us not less than three bags of flour. If you buy six bags you get two books, and so on. Enclose 10 cents for each book to pay for postage. Remember at least 3 bags must be sent:

— BOOKS —

Helen's Babies
Lorna Doone
Mill on the Floss
Tom Brown's School Days
Adam Bede
David Harum
Innocents Abroad
Redpath of Sunnybrook Farm
The Lilac Sunbonnet
The Scarlet Pimpernel
Beautiful Joe
Little Women and Good Wives
The Story of an African Farm
Black Beauty
Quo Vadis
The Three Musketeers
The Mighty Atom
Mr. Potter of Texas
Jess
A Welsh Singer

The Campbell Flour Mills Company Ltd.
(West) Toronto

Steele's for

Horse Collars, Sweat Pads, Rubber Lap Rugs, Whips, Auto Plush Rugs, Star Harness Soap, Bickmore's Gall Cure, Axle Grease

Our Harness includes quality, durability, appearance and high-class workmanship found in no other makes of Harness.

Baggage Trunks, Suit Cases, Club Bags, Grips. Good assortment and close prices.

Harness parts and Repairing our Specialty

J. H. STEELE

R. T. ROBINSON

CARPENTER AND CONTRACTOR

ESTIMATES furnished for the erection of any class of building. Large or small contracts undertaken.

Address Chesley or Cargill P.O

PURDY'S LIVERY

Rates Reasonable, and every effort made to satisfy

F. PURDY

—Clubbing rates with all the city dailies and weeklies.

Many Colleges Close for Vacation at midsummer. Our College does not.

ELLIOTT Business College

TORONTO — ONT.

is strictly first-class. None better in Canada. Enter now, so as to take a position in the early fall. One graduate writes: "My new position pays three times what I got at teaching school less than four years ago. Just previous to entering your College. We placed this young man in a position after graduation, and have now placed him again. Catalogue free.

W. J. ELLIOTT, Principal. Cor. Yonge and Charles Streets.

W. H. BAKER

Having opened a shop in Sinclair's old hardware building, Queen St. North, we are prepared to do all kinds of

Sign and Carriage Painting

HOUSE DECORATING AND PAPER-HANGING, as usual. Prices right.

ROBT. IRVING
PLASTERER

SEE Robt. Irving the Plasterer before letting any work in this line. Separate estimates for all kinds of plastering, or with Jas Dewar for whole contracts for erection of buildings.

Thorobred Shorthorns for Sale

THE Aberdeen P.O. is now closed. In future our bread will be known as the "Aberdeen Shorthorns." A number of choice young bulls and heifers for sale at the present time. G CHRISTIE & SON, Port Elgin, R.R. No. 2.

PINKERTON

The village green again resounds to the voice of football. While the young men are straining every nerve to increase production on their farms they do not forget the old saying that "All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy."

Mr James Gale, of Queen's University, who has been spending a few days with his parents at the manse, left on Tuesday for a western mission field.

Rev George Mason of Harriston was in the village last week.

It is reported that Mr Adam Knox has been granted a license.

Miss Jessie Murray of Paisley is spending a week at her home in the village.

UNDERWOOD

Everybody's busy housecleaning and seeding this week.

Miss Ferguson, of Southampton, recently visited her sister, Mrs Sam George, on the 8th.

Mr Ab Coleman is working the Ayton creamery this season.

Miss Margaret McRae spent the week-end at her home on the 2nd of Saugeen.

We are glad to see Mr Jack McKay able to be around again.

Mr Wes Schmidt is down from the West on a visit to his mother, Mrs Schmidt of the 6th.

Miss Mary McEwen of Tiverton, visited at her grandfather's, Mr Hugh McDougall's, last week.

GLAMIS

Mr J B Hodgkinson, our blacksmith here for the past few years, has sold out his business to Mr J D Robertson of Arnow.

The ladies of Glamis and vicinity met in the Presbyterian Church to do work for the Red Cross Society and made up about fifty hospital shirts for the soldiers.

We are sorry to lose Mr Jas Brown from from our village. He has moved with his family to Paisley, where he goes into the blacksmith business.

Mr Madden has the contract of putting a cement foundation under Miss Alexander's house.

Services in the Baptist church every Sunday now during the summer months, beginning next Sunday. Mr McCauley will preach.

Mr and Mrs Kirkwood of Tiverton visited old friends in Glamis last week.

Mr W F Bald, I P S, visited the Glamis school on Wednesday.

Mr Richard McGregor, on the 4th, purchased an automobile recently.

Capt Peter McKinnon has gone on the lakes for the summer.

Mr Duncan Guest and his aunt Miss Guest of Berwie, visited the latter's brother here over the week end.

Mr I J Husk has returned from Kincardine hospital.

Miss Jennie M Stanley has returned to New York.

Children Cry
FOR FLETCHER'S
CASTORIA

—In the county of Bruce last year six persons contributed $6,578.78 to the Ontario Government in succession duties. With the exemption cut in two this year there will be more revenue from this source, providing, of course, that the usual number of wealthy men die. The receipts from succession duties in Grey county were $4,174.24. The estates in terms that gave a percentage of their wealth to the revenue of this province are as follows: Mrs. Henry Cargill, $804.36; Robt. Finlay of Brant, $48.10; Jas. Howe, $1,398.76; John McIver, $58; Donald McLeod, $50; R. R. Moore of Toronto Head, $589 90; John O'Hagan of Owendale, $699 66.

Red Cross Appeal to the Farmers

Our country with its Allies, is waging a great war for justice, for the protection of small nations in the enjoyment of their rights, for continued and growing freedom, and for the maintenance of its word of honor. Much destruction and desolation is being caused. Lives are being lost by the thousand. Canada's first contingent is now in the thick of it. Some will fall sick, many may be wounded; some will pay the last full measure of devotion to their country and its cause.

The Red Cross Society exists to succor the sick and wounded in war. It needs more money to provide more beds at hospitals in Great Britain and France; it needs more money to pay more Red Cross nurses; it needs more money, and more things made by women, to supply to clearing hospitals, base hospitals and recovering hospitals.

I appeal to farmers to send sums from $1 to $50 during the first week in May. Every $50 provides one additional hospital bed with the giver's name over it. By sending me about $10,000 you would serve your country well, bring credit to yourselves, and make us all very proud of you. For the sake of the wounded boys make the gift substantial. It will be an investment towards the recovery of some Canadian soldier who stood in our stead that our cause might be upheld.

Faithfully your friend,
JAS. W. ROBERTSON,
Chairman,
Red Cross Society at Ottawa

GREENOCK COUNCIL

Knox's Hotel, Pinkerton,
April 19, 1915

Council met as per adjournment. Members present—D Phelan, Jas D Campbell, Jas Collison and N McKinnon. The reeve in the chair.

Minutes of last meeting were read and adopted.

The following accounts were ordered to be paid:

P Meyer, taking J Collins to House of Refuge and paying for his dinner	$3 35
J Loughlees, work with surveyor	2 00
Wm Wittman, work on con. 8 at sluk hole	15 00
Sid Parker, work with surveyor on base line	75
M Hetzler, work with surveyor on base line	75
Jas Clark, drawing tile to townline Brant	3 50
F Gibb, 3 days road work paid in taxes	3 00
S A Rife & Co., clothing for John Collins	10 00
J Coumans, spikes 80c, shoes $2.50, socks 45c, underclothes $1—for John Collins	4 63
G P Renwein, rep rail on bridge	75
Jas Warren, survey of base line across roads 9 and 10	15 95
Ed Schnlaier, work with surveyor	1 50
W H Moffatt, war stamps for Clerk	3 00
A E Knox, room, council meeting	1 00

Campbell—McKinnon—That the clerk draft a by-law for the purpose of empowering the Council of the Township of Greenock to sell all the timber on the original road allowances within the Township, not now open for public travel, or not already sold.—Carried.

By-law No 529, for the purpose of giving power to the Council to sell timber on road allowances, was drafted and read a first time.

Collison—McKinnon—That By-law No 529 be now read a second and third time and finally passed.—Carried.

By-law duly read a second and third time and finally passed.

Campbell—McKinnon—That this Council do now adjourn to meet at Chesley on Thursday, the 27th day of May for the transaction of general business, and as a Court of Revision.—Carried.

THOS H PURDY, Clerk.

J. B. Bowes' (Chatsworth, Ontario) Weather Predictions for 1915

(First published Jan. 8th, 1915.)

These predictions are based upon purely scientific principals, as I know them, and are more particularly applicable to the districts between the 30th and 55th latitudes of the Northern Hemisphere and the Rocky Mountains or prevailing Chinook winds.

They are based on the fact that the moon makes a tide on the earth, the earth makes a tide on the sun for the same reason (attraction.) The earth being one of the planets, they all have the same effect in proportion to their weight and distance from the sun. When, for example, the planet Venus is in conjunction or opposition, or, in other words, the three in a straight line, there will be the tide of the earth and Venus, or will we call it a Neipe tide on the sun. My assumption is that more heat comes to the earth at such times—that extra heat excites the greatest force at or near the equator. This extra heat makes the air lighter, and the colder and heavier air of the Northern and Southern Hemispheres flow to the point of least resistance, with all the consequent results—winds, frosts, snow. I expect these predictions to be at least 75 per cent. correct.

JANUARY—Average temperature with good conditions for snow falls.

FEBRUARY—Average until about the 21st, very stormy and very cold. This will be the coldest time of the winter.

MARCH—Heavy thaw sets in about the 7th. Spring sets in very early. Balance of month very much warmer and dryer than average.

APRIL—Warmer than average and decidedly dry.

MAY—First week rain, snow and frost. Balance about average temperature and very dry.

JUNE—About average temperature and very dry until the last week, when heavy rains will set in, with some likelihood of frost.

JULY—Higher temperature than average, sultry, with best chance for rain about the 23rd.

AUGUST—About average temperature, sultry, and more than average rainfall before part of month.

SEPTEMBER—From the 10th to the 20th, a very cold wave of wind, rain and frost. I expect this to be very pronounced.

OCTOBER—Very much warmer and dryer than average.

NOVEMBER—Warmer than average and very dry.

DECEMBER—Fore part warmer and dryer than average. About 15th, rain, snow and frost. Latter part mild.

JANUARY—4, 1916, winter commences.

Owing to the above conditions, it is very necessary to have all cereal crops in as early as possible to insure a crop. The lack of moisture in the spring months and the latter part of October and November will be very serious for the pastures. The Gulf and similar streams will be very inactive from the middle of March until the 25th of June, also from Sept. 25th until Dec. 15th, so that Britain and all similar places are in for a very cold spring and fall.

—Many people do not plant trees because it requires so many years for them to grow to maturity; there are more who are selfish and not willing to go to the trouble of planting trees because they feel that they will not get much benefit out of them. The right view for us to take is that we should do those things which not only help ourselves, but which also add to the comfort and happiness of those who come after us. Boys and girls who plant trees will live to enjoy them and at the same time they will have the satisfaction of knowing that they are doing something which will benefit others for many years to come.—Charles W. Fairbanks.

The Paisley Advocate.

D. McKENZIE, Publisher
Vol. 47—No. 18

PAISLEY, ONTARIO, MAY 6, 1915.

$1.00 per Annum in Advance
$1.25 if not so paid

Spring and Summer Styles

We have a new and up-to-date line of Dress Goods added to our stock, also a complete range of Wash Goods, such as Piques, Crepes, Voiles, Dimity, etc. Our Prints are of the newest patterns.

A complete line of Laces and Embroideries

In the Men's Department you will find a complete line of up-to-date Clothing—seasonable patterns and summer weights.

Collars, Ties and Hosiery; also a full line of Boy's Clothing

Men's and Women's Raincoats from $4.49 to $12.00

SHOES

Our Shoes are all made over A1 lasts and fit the feet. Men's Velour Calf and Patent Leather with cloth tops of the newest designs. Ladies' Patent Leather, cloth top, with the famous Spanish Louis heel, worn by all up-to-date dressers.

See our Bargain Counter—Odd Sizes, $1.49

A Fresh Line of Groceries

Highest Prices Paid for Farm Produce!

M. J. CAMPBELL

W. H. McFarlane's Old Stand ∴ Paisley

New Spring Suitings

See our goods and styles before buying. We have a large stock to choose from.

We Make a Specialty of . . .

Ladies' Tailoring

No trying on or worrying. Just leave your measure and we will attend to the rest. All the newest goods and latest styles from which to make your selection. Satisfaction guaranteed.

I. S. Cruickshank

CHANGE OF BUSINESS BARGAINS

Children's Boots, Booties, Children's and Women's Slippers, Children's and Misses' Boots and Shoes, Gents' Boots and Shoes. Children's Footwear, from Booties up to sizes 10, 11 and 12, at prices ranging from 50c up. These are extra good quality, but we want to get rid of them, so we are almost giving them away.

Gents' Fancy Silk and Linen Wash Ties regular 50c and 75c, for 25, 35 and 40c. These are seasonable money savers.

Neck Scarfs and Silk Handkerchiefs at a big discount.

CHINA—Austrian, Bavarian and German China, some hand-painted pieces—in Biscuit Jars, Raw Fruit Bowls, Nifty Milk and Cream Pitchers, Tea Pots, Cake Plates, Nut Bowls, Celery Trays, etc., at all prices very, very low. This class of goods will soon be souvenirs, as none can now be bought to renew stock. Just the line from which to purchase pieces to replace those you find broken at housecleaning time.

1000 Crates of Eggs Wanted at Once. Farmers, call and get your crates and fill them up. Highest Prices in Trade or Cash for both Butter and Eggs.

Our Ice Cream Parlor will be open some day this week. Watch for our opening day.

A. T. BONATHAN

Hyde's Old Stand Successor to W. S. Mitchell

—Private funds to loan.
D. FORRESTER.

—Car load of cement just received. J S Dewar.

—Fresh Sausages, 2 lbs. for 25c. H. E. McGREGOR.

—Forget the war for an hour—read "Craigie," a cure for the blues.

—Wilkinson plows and repairs at P. Carter & Son's.

—Marriage licenses issued and money to loan. T. H. GEORGE.

—Pure maple syrup — any quantity. Ballachey, Laidlaw & Co.

—Good driving horse for sale, 7 years old. Enquire at Advocate office.

—Full lines of fine engagement and wedding rings at I. Shoemaker's jewellery store.

—How about curtains? From 10c to 90c a yard we have them. Ballachey, Laidlaw & Co.

—Highest prices paid for hides and sheepskins. H. E. McGregor, Butcher, Steele Block.

—Highest price for beefhides, horsehides, calfskins, sheepskins, tallow, &c. P. OLTSHER, Paisley Meat Market.

—"Rough on Rats" clears out Rats, Mice, etc. Don't die in the house. 15c and 25c at drug and country stores.

—"Craigie"—A gripping story, says Toronto Globe. McArthur's, $1.25.

—It's only a dollar, but it means a good deal to THE ADVOCATE if hundreds are slow in paying that on their subscription.

—FOR SALE—Two brood sows due to farrow May 15th; weight 800 lbs., 2 years old. Apply to A. T. Edwards, lot 4, con. 9, Elderslie.

—EGGS FOR HATCHING—Single Comb Black Minorcas, pure bred and excellent laying strain. $1.00 for 13 eggs. D. H. COOPER, Paisley.

—Our customers will please bear in mind that our store will be closed every Thursday afternoon for the summer. Ballachey, Laidlaw & Co.

—Eggs for Setting—from a proven good strain of that great utility breed, the Barred Rocks—15 eggs for 75c. Apply to Mrs. A. McKenzie, Paisley —FOR SALE—Two good colonies of bees, a quantity of unrendered wax, extractor, storing can, 12 double-storied boxes, and other bee-keeping equipment. W. CLAYTON, Paisley.

—If you have a guest at your home, are going out of town for a visit, or know of any interesting news, kindly let us hear from you. We will always appreciate such favors.

—Just received at R Stevenson's an assortment of pipes that will surely please. Come and select your choice. Tobaccos, stationery, also our wonderful salve that cures burns and sores, soothing for burns.

—HOMESEEKERS' EXCURSIONS every Tuesday up to and including October 31st to the Canadian Northwest. For tickets, maps, etc., apply at the Canadian Pacific Railway ticket office, W. H. McFarlane's old stand, Paisley.

—Five Roses, Rainbow, Purity, Cream of the West, and Stark's high-grade flours, also Bran and Shorts, Blatchford's Sugar and Flax, Caldwell's Molasses Meal, and full line of Poultry Foods and Toules. Always in the market for coarse grains. E. G. ECKEL.

—SEEDS, SEEDS—We can supply everything that is wanted by the farmer or gardener for spring seeding and planting. Many seeds usually sold in packages can be bought from us in bulk at much better value, all from reliable growers. See us before ordering. E. G. ECKEL.

—The annual meeting of the Women's Institute will be held in Putnam's hall on Thursday, 6th inst., at 2.30 o'clock. At this meeting officers will be elected for the year and reports received. A full attendance of all those interested in the work of the Institute is requested. A. MCBRIDE, Sec'y.

—Private John A. McLeod, mentioned last week as one of the wounded in France, was the youngest member of the Princess Pats, and was endearingly called "The Baby." He is 22 years of age and was born in Paisley, but three years ago went to Calgary, where he enlisted last August. A letter to his mother, giving an account of the trip from Valcartier to Salisbury, appeared in THE ADVOCATE. He took a special course in aeroplane gun instruction at Salisbury, and while engaged in this work the aeroplane on one occasion turned turtle, and, dashing to the ground, instantly killed its other occupant. McLeod, however, marvellously escaped unhurt. He afterwards became motorcycle despatch rider at Salisbury, and was responsible for some record performances. He is the only son of Mrs. A. H. McLeod, who now lives at Elbo, Sask.

—"Craigie," McArthur's Bookstore, for $1.25. Worth $1.75.

—Friday, May 7th, is Arbor Day.

—Mr. Geo. Welsford was in Toronto for a few days.

—Mr and Mrs. Anson Shaw, of Simcoe, are visiting their daughter, Mrs. George Saville.

—Tiverton Presbyterian congregation have given a call to Rev. Mr. Robertson, of Bridgeburg.

—Miss Nettie Scott is in Hamilton this week as delegate to the Provincial Woman's Missionary Society.

—Mr. and Mrs. John Sutherland, of Guelph, were here over Sunday visiting her mother, Mrs Saunders.

—Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Bradley are up from Toronto for a few days at the home of their daughter, Mrs E. G. Reed.

—Miss Bertha Rose, formerly of Paisley, but a resident of Chesley for the past ten years, is leaving that town to make her home in London.

—Paisley business places close at one o'clock p.m. every Thursday during May, June, July and August. The public will please take notice.

—Miss Margaret Pletcher has been down to Toronto visiting her sister before the latter's departure for France with the Toronto University staff of nurses.

—An appropriate sermon was preached to the Oddfellows on Sunday morning by Rev. R. A. Pacey, B.A., in the Methodist church. Over sixty members were in line.

—While walking to work last Thursday morning Mr. Burton Tooke met with a painful accident, in the nature of a sprained ankle, and has been unable to be out since.

—In the prescribed examination on the Old Testament in connection with the Methodist Sunday teachers' training course, Miss Alice Thompson of Paisley passed with honors, taking 98 per cent.

—Messrs. I. Shoemaker, J. H. Steele, J. S. Dewar, Geo. L. Carter, John Brown, A. Jack, J. McMillan, Jas. Conlter and Jos. Forrester attended the South Bruce Liberal convention at Formosa on Tuesday.

—Mr. Geo. Greer, of 12th Bruce, had his shoulder dislocated on Monday last through a runaway accident. His team became frightened at the noise of a disc harrow that was hitched behind the waggon.

—Four more citizens have joined the autocar club this spring—Messrs. J. J. Jacques, F. C. Ryan, J. McMillan and D. McGregor. The first three have bought Ford cars while the latter has a Studebaker.

—Six Paisley boys enlisted with the 18th Batt. are among the latest Canadian soldiers to cross the ocean and soon to engage in active warfare. The contingent sailed from Halifax on April 18th, arriving at Bristol on the 29th.

—The officers of the Epworth League for the current term are: Hon. Pres., Rev. S. A. Pacey, B.A.; Hon. Vice-Pres., Miss L. Thompson; Pres., Dr. Gage; 1st Vice-Pres., J. H. Fleming; 2nd Vice-Pres., Miss A. Thompson; 3rd Vice-Pres., Jas. H. Thompson; 4th Vice-Pres., Miss Ella Mitchell; Sec'y, Lawrence Winch; Treas., Miss May Grant; Organist, L. R. Putnam.

—"Craigie"—Agnes Bowes Hall's book at McArthur's. $1.25.

—The Bowling Club reorganized on Friday evening, appointing the following officers: President, I. Shoemaker; Vice-Pres., J. H. Glover; Sec'y-Treas., Thos Muir; Committee—F. C. Ryan, Rev. L. W. Diehl, G. B. Bell, D. McKenzie, Geo. Welsford and S. F. Ballachey. The membership fee was fixed at $3.00, the same as last year, and to one under 20 years of age will be accepted as a member. The green is looking better than ever at this season of the year, and will require only slight repairing before the play can begin.

—The tent caterpillar has been allowed to have pretty much its own little way among the trees and shrubbery of this locality, and the result is that the tiny white tents are showing up so numerously among the yet unfoliaged branches that they might be mistaken for early bloom. These destructive insects are easily destroyed before they are large enough to leave the tents, which are the protective houses of their infancy. A month from now every crawling one will be doing his part to strip the trees of the freshly opened leaves. Now is the time to get after the wriggling mass. Take a coal oil torch, made from an old rag tied on the end of a pole, and in a few minutes every colony around your premises can be burned out. Hold the blazing torch beneath the tent for a few moments and the result will be complete annihilation. Unless given such treatment, the trees will be almost devoid of leaves before midsummer, and in the case of fruit-bearing trees, the crop will be nil.

More's Wall Papers for 1915

Be wise in time and see our excellent aggregation of new and artistic effects in room decorations before purchasing your supply.

We have never shown a better range of Wall Paper or at more reasonable prices.

P. B. MORE ∴ Druggist

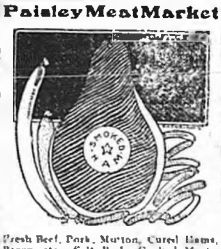
Established over Forty-one Years

THE STANDARD BANK OF CANADA

ASSETS OVER $48,000,000

The A, B, C of Banking

Absolute Security
Best of Service
Courteous Treatment IN



We solicit your account in our SAVINGS DEPARTMENT

PAISLEY BRANCH

F. C. RYAN Manager

Branches also at Hanover and Tiverton.

Paisley Meat Market

Fresh Beef, Pork, Mutton, Cured Hams, Bacon, etc. Salt Pork, Cooked Meats, Home-made Sausage (2 lbs. for 25c), Bologna and Headcheese. Kidney Suet. Poultry in season.

Cash for Hides and Skins . . . Bruce and Bell Phone. P. Oltsher

J. S. DEWAR

PAISLEY

Builder, Contractor and Cement Worker

Brick or cement buildings erected, brick work, cement work and plastering contracts taken.

Cement Supplies Furnished

Building Blocks, Window and Door Sills, Culvert Tile, Wall Curbing, Lawn Rollers, Lawn Vases, Verandah Columns, Balusters and other fancy Cement Products.

Building Material

Cement, Lime, Lath, Shingles, Glazed Sewer Pipe and Flue Lining, Mortar Color, etc.

Large supply of

Oilcloths and Linoleums

just to hand

Now is the time to get your new supply, before they are picked over.

We have also a good assortment of Squares, and our prices can't be beaten. Give us a call before buying.

For good Butter and Eggs we pay the highest price in either CASH or TRADE . . .

Both 'Phones PUTNAM & SON

BALLACHEY—PARK

On Wednesday afternoon, April 28th, in Brant Avenue Methodist Church, Brantford, was solemnized the marriage of Allie Leone, daughter of Mr Edward P. Park, of Brantford, and Frederick Allen Ballachey, of Buffalo, N.Y. Mr Clifford Higgin presided at the organ and played the Lohengrin wedding march as the bride and her father entered the church, preceded by the bridesmaid, Miss Gladys Cameron, of Toronto. The bride wore a becoming suit of Belgian blue with hat to match and a corsage bouquet of pink roses and lily of the valley. The bridesmaid's costume was of cream crepe de chine with black hat and she carried pink sweet peas and lilies. The groom was supported by his brother, George T. Ballachey, of Buffalo. Rev. A. E. Lavell, pastor of the church, performed the ceremony, immediately after which the bride and groom left for a wedding journey in the east. Dr and Mrs Ballachey will reside at 541 Norwood Avenue, Buffalo. The church was prettily decorated for the occasion with palms and spring blossoms. The bride is a well-known and most popular young resident of Brantford and has a very large circle of friends who will sincerely wish for herself and her husband every future happiness. The groom is a son of Reeve Ballachey, of Paisley, and has many friends here who will join in the congratulations.

—The Toronto Globe says "Craigie" is a gripping story. McArthur has it $1.25.

Suits to Order at $15.00

At the present time when everything is going up in price we are pleased to let you know we can give you a Suit in the latest style at the popular price of $15.00.

For Something Better

We have "Quality First" Imported Tweeds and Worsteds at $18.00 to $25.00 which are the best values, bar none, in Canada to-day and we invite an inspection of the new goods.

Ladies' Tailoring a Specialty

We Guarantee Satisfaction

G. B. IRWIN

Merchant Tailor and Furnisher

Tested Recipes.

Ginger Blocks. — Ingredients: Four tablespoonfuls of butter, or butterine, one-third cupful of sugar, one egg, one-half cupful of golden drip syrup, one-half cupful of milk, one and three-quarters cupfuls of sifted pastry flour, one teaspoonful of baking powder, two teaspoonfuls of ginger. Method: Cream butter, sugar and yolk; add the syrup and beat hard. Sift dry ingredients together, then add, alternating with the milk. Whip white of egg and fold in. Bake in square tins. When done cut into blocks and sift confectioners' sugar over. To make the blocks of uniform form shape trim the very outer edge of cake before cutting. These rims can be used for a pudding some other day.

Ashy Tea Cakes. — Ingredients: Four eggs, one pound of fine granulated sugar, one pound of sifted pastry flour, one teaspoonful of fine anise seed. Method: Beat eggs and sugar for at least half an hour, then beat in gradually as much of the flour that is needed to be able to handle it. Take onto a floured board and using rest of flour knead and roll about half an inch thick and cut with small round cutters. Now brush flat tins with melted wax, strew anise seed over and place the cakes half an inch apart. Let stand over night then bake a golden color. They will look as though they were frosted.

Walnut Jumbles. — Ingredients: One and one-half cupfuls of sifted pastry flour, one teaspoonful of baking powder, one-half cupful of granulated sugar, one quarter cupful of butter, one-half cupful of shredded walnuts, one egg, one quarter cupful of milk. Method: Sift flour, baking powder and sugar together, rub butter in as for pie paste. Beat egg well and add to milk. Beat this into flour, then add the nuts. Knead lightly and roll half an inch thick. Now strew sugar over, press down with rolling pin and cut into small rings with a doughnut cutter.

Spice Jumbles. — Use above recipe with these variations: Take three-quarters cupful of mixed chopped nuts, one teaspoonful of mixed spices, cinnamon, cloves and all spice, and if need be add one more spoonful of milk if dough gets too thick. Top may be strewn with chopped nuts also.

Currant Cakes. — Method: Use recipe for walnut jumbles, omit nuts but use one cupful of cleaned currants, also one teaspoonful of lemon extract. Part of the currants are to be retained for top screw them over rolled paste then press down light with pin. Cut with small round or oval cutter.

Cinnamon Stars. — Ingredients: Two tablespoonfuls of butter, one cupful of sugar, two eggs, one and one-half cupfuls of sifted pastry flour, one teaspoonful of cinnamon, one-fourth teaspoonful of baking powder. Method: Cream butter, sugar and eggs until light, sift all dry ingredients together, then stir into egg mixture. Take onto a floured board, using a very little more flour if needed. Roll quite thin, then cut with a star cutter. Bake on waxed tins in very moderate oven.

Chocolate Fingers. — Ingredients: Three eggs, one-half pound of powdered sugar, one-half pound of sifted pastry flour, two ounces of powdered chocolate. Method: Beat sugar and eggs for half an hour, sift chocolate and sugar together then stir into the flour. Beat well then with a pastry squirt form oblong cakes, size of a finger on waxed tins. Set away over night then bake as other cookies in moderate heat. They too have the appearance of being frosted owing to the light components rising to top during night. If you have no pastry tube or squirt form little round mounds by dipping up portions with a small spoon dipped in cold water.

When baking any of the above cakes be sure to use only moderate heat. Remove cakes from pan as soon as done and place in tin pails or cans as soon as cold. If kept in closed tin small cakes will keep a long time and remain palatable.

Hints for the Home.

To remove the mark of a scorch wet whatever is scorched with cold water and place it in the sun. When dry the mark will have disappeared.

To keep bread fresh soak a small new sponge in cold water, place it in a saucer, and stand the saucer in the breadpan. The bread will remain fresh and moist for several days.

Overstrain may easily result from attention to lessons at school, toiling then with constantly helping with the house work and with the younger children when she is at home.

Cut a few slices of sponge cake, soak with juice from a tin of apricots. Lay an apricot on each slice and border with whipped cream. The fruit looks exactly like the yolk of an egg, and the cream resembles the white. It is as delicious as it is pretty, and can be made in a few minutes.

To have fresh lettuce all summer from our planting, instead of pulling it up, as most people do, you take a sharp knife, and cut all the leaves as you need them, just leaving the stalk. In a short while it will again be covered with leaves.

When using plaster of paris to fill a wall crack moisten it with vinegar instead of water, which will make it more like putty. Work it in the gap and smooth with an old knife. It will not then harden before you have time to apply it as when water is used.

If a room becomes filled with smoke a towel dashed in vinegar and hot water and wrung out, then taken and thrown above one's head through the room, will remove all smoke in a few moments. Only a small portion of vinegar in a little water is sufficient for the purpose.

Place a bowl of butter into a larger basin containing sufficient salted water to reach nearly to top of the butter bowl. Cover with a piece of fine white muslin, allowing the ends to reach the water, which keeps the muslin damp. By doing this butter can be kept firm and cool in the hottest day of summer.

The virtues of bicarbonate of soda as a deodorant are known and appreciated by very few, most of them nurses and physicians. What woman will not be glad to learn, for instance, that it is a perfect neutralizer of perspiration odors? There are many expensive powders put up for this purpose, and some of them are effective, but plain sodium bicarbonate at 5 cents a whole lot, is quite as good as the best of them. It may be rubbed on the shields, or through the armholes of a waist thereabout and be relied upon to neutralize any odor. The armpits may also be bathed with a solution of it before dressing. The most fastidious dancers, who have found resistant bathing ineffective for this affliction, will find this simple precaution a great boon.

Postal Laws of Canada.

Under the Post Office Act, Sections 61 and 62, the Postmaster General has the exclusive privilege of receiving, collecting, conveying, and delivering letters within Canada.

Bills and accounts, whether in open or sealed envelopes, as well as circulars or other printed matter enclosed in envelopes sealed or ready to be sealed are letters within the meaning of the Post Office Act.

There is a penalty under Section 63 of the Post Office Act which may amount to $50 in for each letter unlawfully carried.

It has been brought to the attention of the Post Office Department that some business firms are arranging to avoid paying the War Tax which became effective on the 15th April, propose making arrangements for the delivery of accounts, bills, circulars, etc., through means other than the Post Office, contrary to the Postal Act, and a warning is hereby given that the Post Office Department intends to insist that the law shall be rigidly lived up to, and will in no circumstances allow these parties to avoid paying the one cent, tax has been imposed for war purposes.

All letters conveyed, received, collected, sent or delivered in contravention of the Post Office Act will be seized and necessary steps immediately taken for the prosecution of the offenders in all cases where the law has been contravened.

Post Office Department,
Ottawa, Canada.

Sublime Simplicity.

There is a simple tomb in Lucknow, in India, that cost no more than many a plain farmer's gravestone in our rural burying places, but Mr. Clarence Poe declares that it impressed him more than anything else he saw in India except the Himalayas, the Taj Mahal, and the view of Benares from the river.

It is the tomb of the heroic Sir Henry Lawrence, who died so gloriously a death in the great mutiny of 1857. No commander in all India had planned more wisely for the defense of the men and women under his care; but the siege had only begun when he was mortally wounded. He called his successor and his associates to him, and at last, having omitted no detail of counsel or information that might enable them to carry out his far-seeing plans, he roused himself to dictate his own immortal epitaph:

Here Lies
Henry Lawrence
Who Tried to Do His Duty.
May the Lord Have Mercy on His Soul

And so to-day these lines, sublime in their simplicity, mark the last resting place; and you feel that not even the great Akbar in Secundra or Napoleon in Paris has a worthier monument.

HORSE RAISING PROFITABLE

IMPORTANT FACTOR IN OVERSEAS COMMERCE.

America Supplying Over 120,000 Horses to the Warring Nations.

In these days of automobiles it is not generally realized that horse raising is still a profitable industry as well as an important factor in overseas commerce. It is estimated that more than 120,000 horses have been shipped to Europe since the beginning of the war, destined for use in the field, and the shipments are steadily increasing.

The best ones are used for the most part in the cavalry and artillery services. A single firm is now completing a shipment of 20,000 horses, which will reach Europe by way of Italy, from where they will be forwarded as quickly as possible to the armies of the Allies at the front.

The horses purchased by the European armies are as a rule short legged, shaggy animals capable of great endurance. Probably 40 per cent of the horses sent abroad for army service have not been broken to the halter. Such horses are of little value for breeding purposes and as far as the improvement of horseflesh in general is concerned the country is well rid of them.

The entire country is being ransacked to meet the European demand. A large proportion of the horse supply is gathered from the Western plains. The great ranges and the markets where the horses are gathered for sale are picturesque surroundings of the wild Western life, which is now rapidly passing.

The collection of this army of horses for Europe suggests a great wild west show on an immense scale. Thousands of cowboys are required for the work and much daring riding and dressing must be done before the tens of thousands of horses are rounded up on the ranges and finally entrained for the East.

The largest of the horse markets, which is located at Miles City, Mont., has supplied thousands of the horses and will continue to do so for them. No wild west show in the East can rival in interest this great horse market. Months are required to round up the horses for a single sale, when thousands of horses will be inspected and disposed of in a few hours. At one of these horse auctions more than 10,000 horses were sold in less than three days.

The horses are driven in or shipped from the surrounding country for weeks in advance. They are for the most part green horses, only a small percentage having felt the bridle. On arriving at the market they are driven into a series of pens, each enclosure holding from thirty to fifty animals. The pens are enclosed by high board fences of very strong construction. Upward of a hundred cowboys are employed in the market alone in rounding up the animals, driving them from one enclosure to another and displaying them for sale.

The horses are auctioned off in a large arena. The purchasers are seated in a covered stand at one side or perched along the fences. The buyers include some of the most expert judges of horseflesh in the world. The principal horse dealing firms are represented, together with buyers for the European armies. The sale proceeds very rapidly and often several thousand horses will be put through their paces before the purchasers and disposed of in a single hour.

A herd of perhaps forty horses will be driven from an enclosure along the high boarded runways with the aid of perhaps a dozen riders. The horses came pounding into the enclosure in a cloud of dust. The auctioneer, who is always mounted, cracks a long whip and, with the aid of his cowboy assistants, puts the horses through their paces. They are driven around the enclosure before the grandstand two or three times and then bidding is commenced.

It is usually necessary to shout the prices at the top of their voices in order to be heard above the confusion of pounding hoofs. The auctioneer announces the good points of the horses on sale. The auction is frequently interrupted by a fight among the horses or a desperate attempt of one of the horses to climb the enclosure.

At few minutes as most suffices to complete the sale and at a signal the bars at one side of the enclosure are lifted and the cowboys skillfully drive the horses to another enclosure. Another group of riders are ready waiting meanwhile to pour the next lot into the enclosure, and so the animated sale goes on.

Long trains of cars run among the horse pens and the work of loading horses goes rapidly forward.

The Kaiser's Train.

The most luxurious train in Europe, a veritable palace on wheels, says a contributor to Tit-Bits, is that which the Kaiser uses when he travels between Berlin and the fighting line.

Six coaches, each weighing over sixty tons, compose the special train, and of these four are reserved for the Emperor and his suite, and the other two are used for kitchens. The second coach in the train is the one reserved by the Kaiser for his personal quarters, and it contains a salon, bedroom, dressing room, bathroom, and sleeping apartments for his bodyguard. The salon is panelled in the wood of an ancient cedar tree taken from Mount Lebanon, the gift of ex-Sultan Abdul Hamid of Turkey. The floor is of black wood taken from the piles of a wooden bridge built across the Rhine by Julius Caesar in the year 55 B.C., and the ceiling is decorated with a design representing the six great rivers of Germany.

The windows of the saloon are protected by thick steel bars, and armed sentries stand at the doors of the apartment night and day. The last coach in the train is used by an engineer, who has charge of the machinery that operates a complicated system of emergency brakes. The Kaiser's two dachshunds, Ward and Heal, have their kennels on the train, and they generally accompany their master on his travels.

The Lightest Wood.

According to the Scientific American, the lightest wood in existence is the wood of ambarch, a leguminous plant that grows near Lake Chad and on the tributaries of the upper Nile. The tree, which sometimes raises the pith tree often attains a diameter of six or seven in the two or three years of its life. At that age it dies, and another shoot starts from its roots. When cut, the wood is almost white, and is soft and brittle, like the pith of the elder. Some of the wood is exported to the United States and England to make floats for fishing tackle, and in general to be used as a substitute for cork. Ambarch wood contains minute crystals of calcium oxalate, which quickly dull the axes and knives of the choppers. On the other hand, the presence of the crystals makes the wood, it is said, an excellent substitute for the usual razor strop.

Many Automobiles Required

Soldiers Have Plenty to Eat and Shoot, While Removal of Wounded is Greatly Facilitated by Auto Ambulances.

The part which motor vehicles have been playing in the present war has been a source of pride as well as keen interest to motorists everywhere. The British army, from top to bottom, has been motorized as much as possible and even the Canadian contingents are provided with considerable automobile equipment.

The motorization of the Canadian army division is a prominent feature of the development of the overseas forces. Three motor machine gun batteries have been, or are being provided for the Canadian fighters in the Sifton, Borden and Eaton battery units and the Canadian Army Service Corps also have a great many gasoline-driven vehicles, which are used in a less spectacular, yet highly important, duty—namely the transporting of supplies of food, ammunition and clothing to those in the front lines. Further, the Red Cross Society has found the motor ambulance indispensable. To date, no fewer than twenty-eight motor ambulances have been donated for army medical purposes by the people of Canada. It is almost impossible to estimate the value of these gifts in the humanitarian work which they are doing.

Training On the Road.

An interesting part of the training of the motor department of the C.A.S.C., now in practice at the Exhibition Military Camp, is the holding of extensive route tours by motor car for the purpose of giving the members of the Service Corps a certain amount of experience in road work. Many motor vehicles, nearly all of which are large trucks, are used in the trips which occupy a period of one to four days. The officers of the corps travel at the head of the flying column in touring cars and the privates ride in the trucks, five to a truck.

A unique feature is that the column camps at the road-side each night and lives exactly under active service conditions. The schedules call for a fifty mile drive each day, which is a long distance when the number and speed of the trucks are considered.

Lots of Good Food.

In all reports received from the trenches, whether private or official, the statement has always been made that the best of food is plentiful. The mechanical transport of the Army Service Corps probably can be thanked for this state of affairs. With the motor trucks, the fighters in the trenches are able to have meat as food not more than 48 hours after the animals have been killed and a variety of fresh food is supplied by means of the motor cars. The splendid diet provided has been a means of keeping the soldiers in good health under trying conditions.

The motor trucks of the modern army transport are able to carry a load of three tons, or 6,000 pounds, at least. The old horse-drawn carts cannot carry more than 3,000 pounds of load each and the pace of the latter is comparatively very slow. Moreover, the horses get tired and need more or less careful attention almost constantly. The result is that it is found that one motor lorry can replace four or five horse vehicles.

Equipment for a Division.

For the Divisional Supply Column of an army division, the size of the whole second Canadian contingent, the following motor vehicles constitute the regular equipment. Two motor cars, seven motorcycles, thirty-eight 3-ton lorries, three tractors, two workshop trucks and one store truck. For a Divisional Ammunition Park, whose duty it is to keep the fighting units supplied with ammunition, the following is the motor equipment. Five motor cars, nine motorcycles, six tractors, six 3-ton lorries, four workshop trucks, and two store and tool trucks. The motorcycles are used for messengers and emergency purposes. The motor cars are employed by the officers to keep in personal touch with all parts of the divisional front. The tractors haul heavy trailers containing supplies and the lorries are used in transporting heavy loads.

Author of "An Englishman's Home" Killed in Battle.

Lieut. Col. Guy du Maurier, D.S.O., who has been killed in action, had been in the army for thirty years. But it was as the author of "An Englishman's Home" that his name first became widely known to the public. This remarkable play, says the London Globe, was produced in 1909, anonymously at first, and proved one of the great est dramatic successes of the day. Incidentally it led to trouble between the censor of plays and the late Mr. Pelissier when the chief of the Follies desired, but was not allowed, to produce a "potted" version of the play.

The Oldest Scottish University.

St. Andrews, which has just lost its principal and vice-chancellor, Sir James Donaldson, is the oldest of the Scottish universities, being founded by Bishop Wardlaw in 1411, a few months before the battle of Harlaw, and while the King, James I., was still a prisoner in England. Its beginnings, says the Pall Mall Gazette, were simple, for though, as Bellenden states in his "Chronikis of Scotland," "many excellent and noble clerkis war brocht out of sundrs countries to be preceptouris in it," the first building, then called the Pedagogium of St. John, but later St. Mary's College, was not erected until 1430.

Polish Peasant Women and Girls in National Costume.

The sufferings of that part of Poland overrun by the Germans have been compared by Mrs. Stephen Graham with those of Belgium. "Orders had evidently been given," he writes, "that everything serviceable was to be removed from the country that might give warmth to the German soldiers in the winter campaign was to be left untaken. . . . Germans dead on the battlefield below Warsaw were found to be wearing the clothing of Polish peasants under their uniforms. Some were found wearing Russian boots, and many carried scarves, cotton shawls and flannel petticoats. In many of the villages of Poland the people have buried their boots and spare clothes, with their money.

"They say that the German soldiers come and pull the boots off their feet to put into their forraging sacks."

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL STUDY

INTERNATIONAL LESSON, MAY 9.

Lesson VI. — Friendship of David and Jonathan. 1 Samuel 20.

Golden Text: Prov. 17. 17.

I. Saul Again Attempts to Take David's Life (Verse 32-34).

Verse 33. Saul cast his spear.—He brandished it as in 1 Sam. 18. 11. His ungovernable temper is well shown here. Not only does he make an exhibition of himself before his whole court on a fast day, but he would alienate Jonathan, his heroic son as well as David, his great warrior. With the Philistines watching his every move, this was the acme of foolishness.

34. How he was grieved for David.—Saul had insulted Jonathan surely. Jonathan, however, thinks only of the shame which his father had done David.

II. David's Danger Made Known to Him (Verses 35-40).

35. At the time appointed.—See 1 Sam. 20. 18-23.

A little lad.—One who would not suspect what was being done.

38. The arrows.—Three arrows were shot (1 Sam. 20. 20). For the purposes of the event it was not necessary for the narrator to describe the shooting of the individual arrows.

40. His weapons.—His bow and quiver.

III. The Farewell of Jonathan and David (Verses 41, 42).

41. A place toward the South.—David was hiding a little southward of the stone Ezel (1 Sam. 20. 19).

Fell on his face.—Prostrated himself. Three times.—In token of reverence and respect to royalty. Jonathan being the king's son. But also in gratitude to Jehovah because of the love he bore David. Jacob, a knowledge from's supplanty, he bowing to him (see Gen. 33. 3; also Gen. 43. 26; 1 Sam. 25. 23).

42. Forasmuch.—The oath already sworn was binding. Less than rebukes all possible doubt that might have come to David's mind by referring to the oath.

He Got a Poor Bribe.

Colonel Carter, says Collier's Weekly, had been playing golf for only three months. Therefore, when the secretary of the club saw the colonel playing his ball several feet in front of the tee disks during a tournament, he thought the veteran soldier had forgotten the rule.

"Colonel! Colonel!" he exclaimed. "You must play from behind the tee disks!"

The colonel's face turned red, but he preserved his dignity.

"It's none of your business, sah," he answered as calmly as possible, "but this is my third stroke!"

POULTRY

Ventilation a Frost Protection.

Ventilating poultry houses is one of the most discouraging things with which the farmer has to contend. With a judicious use of curtains the most of the frost can usually be kept out, but during a severe winter it is almost impossible. The best authorities advise a combination of curtains and over them some kind of an absorbent straw ceiling with a flue. To prevent frost on the wall and ceiling it is necessary to keep the walls warm and not in contact with the chilly air of the outer wall or at the same temperature as the outer air. The latter, of course, means a cold henhouse, with the thermometer around zero. If the house is well planned and you have the necessary number of windows and curtains to provide ventilation. It would be a good plan to put in a flue, but be sure to make it large enough so as to take out enough air. Be sure and arrange it so you can control the outlet. A flue 14 x 14 or 18 x 18 inches will help in reducing the frost. If the flue in your dairy barn is too small, you will find it well to have at least one more. You can see by observing that less frost collects near the flue. It is better to have another one, instead of one flue too large.

Preserving Eggs at Home.

Many recipes for preserving eggs have been tried with more or less success, but best results are secured with two. Neither of those, however, is as good as cold storage. Their chief use lies in their application to home conditions. They are applicable where eggs are cheap in the spring but rise considerably in price in the fall. Eggs preserved by them can be used for all cooking purposes except boiling. In order to boil them without cracking the shells, a needle hole or two may be made in the shell to let the air escape. The quality is good provided the eggs were fresh when put down, and especially so if they are not fertile.

The prime requisites for success in keeping eggs by these recipes are, first, strictly fresh or new laid eggs, and second, a cool, dark place. The eggs may be laid in a stone jar or a wooden tub where no metal is exposed on the inside. After almost filling the receptacle with eggs, a solution is poured over until every egg is completely covered, preferably half an inch to an inch deep with the solution.

Waterglass or silicate of soda is one preservative that can be obtained of most druggists at 10 to 30 cents a pound. It is a colorless, heavy liquid which must be diluted with 10 parts of pure rain water. Eggs in this solution will keep perfectly for eight to twelve months.

Another mixture of lime is made by using the following proportions of ingredients: To each pound of fresh stone lime add a half pound of table salt and 5 quarts of boiling water. The lime is first slaked with a little of the water so it will break down in a crumbly mass before the balance of the water is added. Water is added in half cupfuls at a time, until the breaking down is complete; then the mixture is stirred until of the consistency of cream, when the balance of water and salt may be added. Stirring is continued until the salt is all dissolved. This process is done the evening before the solution is to be used. In the morning after the sediment has settled, the clear liquid is siphoned off and poured over the eggs.

If it is desired to sell eggs stored by either of these methods, a price of about 5 cents lower than the current market price can usually be secured.

Charcoal for the Chickens.

Charcoal is a health promoter for the fowls. If you will put some ears of corn in a hot oven and let them burn quite black and feed when the grain gets cold enough you will perhaps be astonished to see how greedily the poultry will partake of the charred corn. Give such a feed every two weeks. We do not mean that the fowls should have to depend on the charred grain for the meal, but an opportunity to eat what they wish from the cob.

OFFICERS' HIGH MORTALITY.

British Lost Number Equal to 15 Per Cent. of U.S. Quota.

It may be interesting to Americans, especially army officers, to note that in the ten days' fighting about Neuve Chapelle 700 officers were killed. This represents 15.3 per cent. of the total number of commissioned officers in the United States army. This fight was practically nothing more than a skirmish as compared with the great engagements in France at the beginning of the war.

The total casualties among the British officers are estimated at over 700 a month. It is estimated that if the United States were plunged into a war on a huge scale every single mounted officer would have been killed at the end of eight months of fighting.

HINTS FOR THE HERD.

Careful vs. Careless Methods in Feeding and Marking.

Know what each cow produces over and above her keep, and promptly get rid of unprofitable ones. A 4,000 and 8,000 pound cow costs about the same to keep. One just pays for her keep, the other nets a profit of $50 to $60 per annum. Ascertain carefully, your best market, whether for whole milk or butter fat. Co-operate and reciprocate with your neighbors; nothing else pays quite so well as co-operation.

Use Only Pure Bred Bulls.

Keep and use only a pure bred bull. Upon this depends the upkeep and improvement of the herd. There is very little difference in the cost of raising calves of superior and inferior breeding, but there is a great difference in the profits obtainable from superior and inferior cattle. If necessary, go into debt for a good bull.

Feed Liberally.

Note that a balanced ration of 12 pounds gives as much butter fat as an unbalanced 21 pound ration, and that continuous silage is sometimes cheaper than pasture. A ton of alfalfa hay equals in food value 60 bushels of oats. Keep in mind that only 100 pounds of butter fat yearly per cow cost the producer on an average 35 cents per pound; and that 300 pounds yearly cost 12½ cents about per pound. Thus does it pay royally to improve the herd.

Produce the Feed.

It pays better to market your hay and grain in the form of milk, butter fat, steers and hogs. Erect one or more silos, grow alfalfa, corn, sorghum, sweet clover, kaffir corn and soy beans. Beet tops, mixed with corn, have made excellent silage. Reason your crops. Use silage and thus secure milk-producing fodder the year around, which will enable you to keep up your milk yield during the entire year. Silage requires one-eighth the storage space of hay.

Use the Manure.

Remember that $100 worth of hay (clover) contains $85 worth of plant food; that when this is fed to the cow, three-fourths of the plant food is returned in the manure. $100 worth of cream contains but $1 worth of fertility while $100 worth of butter contains but ten cents worth of fertility. This makes it plain that feeding hay to the cow leaves nearly all its fertilizing constituents in the manure to be returned to the land, while had the hay been sold, this fertility would have been a total loss to the soil. Either use the manure daily upon the farm, or store it in a shallow concrete pit, at a reasonable distance from the barn or milk-house, and thus save the valuable nitrogen that the ground, sun and rain would help eliminate. Keep the pasture highly fertilized. The addition of lime phosphates, etc., to a cow pasture, has meant a large increase in the yield of milk. Mortgage your farm for a manure-spreader.

Keep the Cows Comfortable.

Remember that the dairy cow is a daily revenue producer and is the most valuable asset on the farm. She requires work, and is profitable in proportion to the attention she receives. She is a source of immediate income, and at the same time helps keep up the fertility of the soil. Also remember that the dairy cow is a mother, and that good care, kind and gentle usage, liberal feeding, and healthful environment are necessary if she is to give good profit from her motherhood. As you measure to the cow, so shall it be measured to you in return.

Be Considerate to the Cows.

During milking time use no profane language. Keep dogs and strangers out of the barn. Become acquainted with and know your cow. It pays. Under no circumstances permit a cow to be kicked or abused by the hired man—it never pays. It is mean and brutal as well. There always is some reason for a cow's being restless. Find the cause and remove it.

Provide Shade and Wind Protection.

Provide ample wind protection, shade, salt and clean water. He who obeys all of these commands will reap abundant profits, for he who sets apart the gross product of a succession of single good cows regularly for 50 years, and keeps the accumulations at 6 per cent. interest will, at the age of 70, have to his credit not less than $30,000.00. Note well, that a thrifty steer may gain 500 pounds in a year which 500 pounds reduced to a dry food basis of weight amounts to but 60 or 70 pounds. A cow yielding 8,000 pounds of milk per annum will produce 900 pounds of dry food matter, milk solids. And note that the dairy cow has increased the total bank deposits of one of the western states three hundred per cent. in ten years. A business asset.—Western Home Monthly.

You never can tell. The college student with the broadest shoulders isn't always the one who carries off most honors.

FROM BONNIE SCOTLAND

NOTES OF INTEREST FROM HER BANKS AND BRAES.

What Is Going On in the Highlands and Lawlands of Auld Scotia.

Altogether 30,000 Scottish miners have enlisted in the army since the outbreak of the war.

Official intimation has been received in Glasgow that Lieut. T. Aitken Gray, 9th Glasgow Highlanders, is missing.

The death has occurred at Lennie, of ex-Bailie Robert Crawford, a prominent Glasgow citizen, at the age of 70 years.

Cambuslang contemplates erecting a new gas holder with a capacity of 750,000 cubic feet at a cost of about $75,000.

The death is announced of Mr Robert Johnstone, saddler, Market Place, Selkirk, a former standard-bearer of the town.

Fraserburgh Town Council have resolved to impress upon the War office the advisability of billeting troops in Fraserburgh.

On the petition of the Glasgow Corporation, the recent rise in house rent in the city is engaging the attention of the Government.

Mr. J. J. Watson, Ballcorrd, Broughty Ferry, has gifted $2,500 to Dundee Institution for the blind and Dundee Y.M.C.A.

It has been decided to provide an institute for Liberton village, to include reading and recreation rooms, as well as a miniature rifle range.

A hall for the Lenzie Troop of Boy Scouts erected at a cost of $450, has been opened by Mrs. Wardle. Miller-neuk Provost Walker presided.

Dundee Town Council have decided that no steps shall be taken in connection with the housing and town planning scheme until the close of the war.

An alarming explosion occurred at Langloan Ironworks, Coatbridge, when a huge of hot slag exploded. Much damage was done but no one was injured.

News has been received at Ballachulish of the death in action in France of Sergeant Vernes R. Campbell of the Argyle and Sutherland Highlanders.

The employes of the Dunfermline Corporation Gas Works are negotiating for a rise of not less than 4 cents per hour, and the lamplighters for 48 cents weekly.

Mr. Andrew Bell Stewart, F.E.I.S., headmaster of Lairdsland School, Ochiltree, who has been in the service of the Board for a period of 40 years, has resigned.

At a meeting of the West Kilbride School Board, several applications were submitted, asking that children should be exempted to allow them to assist in potato planting.

At a meeting of Cowlairs Ward Committee, it was stated that owing to 1,900 men having enlisted, it was difficult to maintain the present service of the street cars.

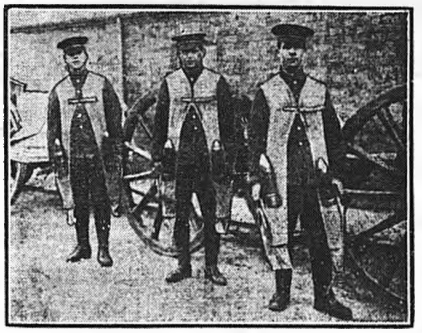
The Parks' and Galleries' Committee have agreed to offer the use of the Art Galleries at Kelvingrove to the military authorities for the housing of wounded soldiers.

A committee of ladies and friends of the Glasgow Highlanders is endeavoring to raise a fund to provide a pipe and drum band for the 3rd battalion of the regiment.

At Ayr, Dean of Guild Court, plans were passed for the erection of a tuberculosis hospital at Hunter's Avenue, for the Corporation of Ayr, at an estimated cost of $15,000.

Private Wm. Hodge of the Royal Scots, son of David Hodge, Arbroath, is among those mentioned in General French's despatches for distinguished service in the field.

Two miners named Brown and Simpson, both of Bothwellhaugh, were severely injured in a fall of stone in Hamilton Palace Colliery, belonging to the Bent Colliery Co.



At a meeting of the Edinburgh Town Council, a resolution was passed calling on the Government to take action to keep the price of necessities within the purchasing power of the people.

Mr. S. M. Murray, secretary of the Educational Institute of Scotland, and editor of the "Education-al News," has intimated his resignation. He has been in poor health for some time.

The Rev. George Edward Mackenzie, M.A., B.D., the senior assistant of Glasgow cathedral, has been gazetted a lieutenant in the Seaforth Highlanders, and has joined his battalion at Bedford.

The chief constables of Scotland by a majority, have adopted a resolution in favor of the appointment of female constables, and application will be made to the Secretary of Scotland for authority to appoint them.

Two men were talking of hard times. "Does your wife ever grieve because she threw over a wealthy man in order to marry you?" queried Hall. "Well, she started to once," was the reply, "but I cured her of that without delay." "I wish you would tell me how," said Hall. "I started grieving with her," replied the other; "and I grieved harder than she did."

Ingenious Jackets for Carrying Shells.

Our illustration shows men of the Royal Artillery wearing coats which are supplied for use in special emergencies, for carrying ammunition on the person directly to the guns in circumstances where it is impossible to get ammunition up to the firing-line otherwise, or for use in rushing up supplies to a battery running short to save time when other methods are rendered impracticable. The jackets have deep pockets and supporting straps and handles. The weight of the British field artillery shells is 18 lbs. each. Modern field artillery ammunition is made in one piece, the cartridge and detonator and the shell being all enclosed and attached in a single copper case, exactly in appearance like the ordinary rifle bullet. Thus its porterage, as shown, presents no difficulty.

HE WAITED UPON ROYALTY

KING OF SPAIN THE JOLLIEST OF ALL MONARCHS.

An Ex-Servant of the British Royal Household Talks of the Kaiser and Others.

When I was in the Royal service it was part of my duty to be in attendance in the apartments at Windsor Castle or Buckingham Palace set aside for the reception of foreign Royalties who were visiting the British Court. In the performance of this duty I have attended on almost every crowned head in Europe, says a writer in London Answers.

Perhaps the most kindly and courteous foreign monarch I ever waited on was the King of Italy, who last visited this country in 1903 as the guest of the late King.

The King of Italy is a very early riser, and the night he arrived at Windsor his Majesty asked me to have the fire lighted in the writing-room adjoining his bed-room by seven on the following morning, and a cupful of chocolate ready for him at the same hour. He told his aide-de-camp to apologize to me for giving me this trouble. Every morning he was at Windsor his Majesty rose at 6.30, and would read and write in his room until his breakfast was served at 9 a.m.

Consigned to the Basement.

The most humptious King I ever attended was certainly the Kaiser. It was his habit to criticize the various objects of art about the rooms allotted to him, and point out to his attendants their defects, comparing them unfavorably with some of his own possessions.

The one work of art at Windsor Castle with which his Majesty had no fault to find was a head and shoulder bust of himself, which he had given to King Edward shortly after the latter's accession.

The Court happened to be at Windsor Castle the day it arrived, and when King Edward saw it he said, with a laugh, to the late Sir Arthur Ellis, who was standing by, and who was the Comptroller of the Royal Household:

"Well, Arthur, we must not forget to have this bust put in a prominent place when the Emperor comes here, but in the meantime let it be kept in the Armory."

The Armory was the name given to a room on the basement floor, where a number of indifferent pictures, busts, and valueless pieces of old armor were stored, to which the bust of the Kaiser was added.

A Matter of Tact.

A couple of years later the Kaiser came to Windsor. The night before he arrived the late King came down to Windsor to have a look round, and to see that all the necessary preparations for his guest had been properly made.

After he had made an inspection of the rooms with Sir Arthur Ellis, his Majesty suddenly stopped and asked:

"Where on earth is the bust of the Emperor?"

"In the Armory, I believe, sir," replied Sir Arthur.

"Well, then," said his Majesty, "for mercy's sake get it brought up and put in the most conspicuous place you can, or you will have the Emperor clearing out of this hotel tomorrow in a huff, and goodness knows what complications will follow."

The Kaiser's bust was accordingly put in a most conspicuous place in the Blue Drawing Room, which was used then as the chief reception room at Windsor. The Kaiser was delighted when he saw it, and declared that it was the best piece of work the artist who had made it had ever executed.

Alfonso's Mistake.

The King of Spain was one of the jolliest monarchs who ever had at Buckingham Palace. A funny thing happened the first time he visited London, in 1905—that was before his marriage. King Alfonso was given the usual suite of rooms set apart for reigning monarchs on the left wing, which was on the same floor as the private rooms of King Edward.

When the Spanish King went up to get ready for dinner on the night of his arrival he entered King Edward's apartments by mistake. His Majesty was in his dressing-room putting on his shirt when his guest suddenly entered. King Alfonso, of course, apologized profoundly for his mistake, which the late sovereign took in the utmost good humor. He asked King Alfonso to remain in his rooms till he had finished dressing, and then escorted him to his own room.

Most of the reigning Sovereigns when guests of our King, break fast in their private apartments, and it was part of my duty to look after the serving of their morning meal.

Kings have a variety of tastes in the kind of things they like for breakfast.

The late King of Denmark on his last few years, never had any breakfast, but at noon would take a mutton chop served on a piece of buttered toast.

The King of Spain generally breakfasts entirely on chocolate, which he drinks three large cupfuls. After the first he lights a cigar, and smokes it while he drinks two more cups of his favorite beverage.

Some Royal Menus.

The Kaiser had by far the heartiest appetite of any reigning monarch I ever met.

For breakfast he would have, in addition to eggs and bacon, fish and a large helping of game, and conclude with a plate of fruit. He drank a small cup of black coffee at the end of the meal, and then smoked a very strong and enormously long cigar.

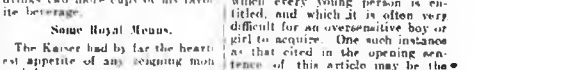
The late King of Portugal was another monarch who had a fairly good appetite. He had an extraordinary liking for eggs, and would eat as many as four or five at breakfast. A favorite dish of his was a couple of eggs, very hard boiled inside a couple of lemons, a method of cooking that gave them a most peculiar flavor.

GILLETT'S LYE EATS DIRT

The Tsar's breakfast used to consist of the strongest black coffee and a few pieces of dry toast. The coffee was always made for his Majesty by his own valet, who was, by the way, one of the most remarkable men I ever met. He spoke English, French, German, and Italian absolutely perfectly, and had travelled all over the world. He was very fond of going to the theatre, and went every night during his master's stay in London. He had written several plays himself which had been successfully produced in Russia.

Unwise Modes of Punishment.

Years ago, a little girl, wearing an old plaid shawl folded corner wise over her shoulders and a Quaker bonnet with a green silk cape, left her home, one rainy Sunday morning, for Sunday-school.



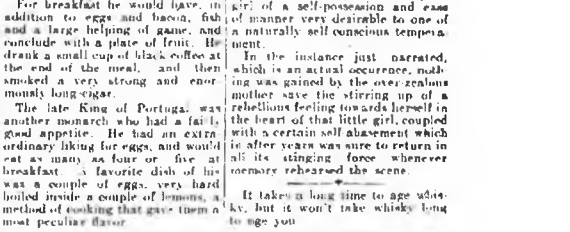
Choking sobs and a tear-stained face marked her as a very unhappy child. Her appearance at Sunday-school in this unusual rig had been chosen by her conscientious mother as the most effectual mode of punishment at her command for some, to her mind, grievous offence of her little daughter. Nellie was an extremely sensitive child, and her mother reasoned that her dread of ridicule would cause this wearing of her oldest clothes on Sunday to be a punishment which she would not soon forget. And herein her mother's judgment did not err; for years afterwards the memory of that day of torture to her sensitive spirit would always stand out in all its unjust proportions whenever she saw a child being compelled to undergo the same harsh mode of punishment.

It is not necessary to mortify a child to make it aware of a fault. A few judiciously chosen words, or if more stringent methods are deemed advisable, a withholding from it of some anticipated enjoyment, may often have the same salutary results as the attendant mortification of this harsher mode of punishment.

There is a certain dignity to which every young person is entitled, and which it is often very difficult for an oversensitive boy or girl to acquire. One such instance as that cited in the opening sentence of this article may be the means of robbing such a boy or girl of a self-possession and ease of manner very desirable to one of a naturally self conscious temperament.

In the instance just narrated, which is an actual occurrence, nothing was gained by the over-zealous mother save the stirring up of a rebellious feeling towards herself in the heart of that little girl, coupled with a certain self abasement which is after years was sure to return in all its stinging force whenever memory rehearsed the scene.

It takes a long time to age whiskey, but it won't take whisky long to age you.



Canoes, Skiffs, Motor Boats

THE PETERBOROUGH LINE.

If any canoe can give you satisfaction, it is a "PETERBOROUGH." Always and ever the acme of service, model, strength and finish. Over fifty styles and sizes. Write for catalogue. The latest canoe is the Peterborough canvas covered. Ask for illustrated folder Skiffs for the popular Outboard Motors. Power Launches, all sizes and powers. Get folders telling all about these.

THE PETERBOROUGH CANOE COMPANY, LIMITED,
PETERBOROUGH, ONT.

"Overstern" V Bottom Motor Boat $55.00

Freight Prepaid to any Railway Station in Ontario. Length 12 Ft., Beam 3 Ft. 0 In., Depth 1 Ft. 6 In. ANY MOTOR FITS.

Specification No. 28 giving engine prices on request. Get our quotations on "The Penetang Line" Commercial and Pleasure Launches, Row boats and Canoes.

THE GIDLEY BOAT CO., LIMITED, PENETANG, CAN.

The Paisley Advocate

PAISLEY, MAY 6th, 1915

WAR AND PEACE

A differentiation must be made between pacificists and passivists. The former believe in peace, but they do not believe that peace is the ultimate end to the exclusion of all other human considerations. The latter ignore every other end or subordinate all else to the one end of peace.

The horror of violence in every form can be overdone. There are more terrible experiences than violent death — starvation, endless drudgery, ignominy. There are compensations in the fight as well as penalties. If war destroys life and property, it may also make life more real and property less worshipped. If it kindles international hatred and kills race consciousness, it may also bree donational feeling of high order.

The one thing that war cannot do is the thing for which it is most praised. War cannot right wrongs. Vengeance cannot repay injustice. War will not bring back the murdered Belgian father to his child. It will not blot out the horror of outrage from the vision of women and girls. It cannot rebuild the grandeur of Rheims and Louvain.

But it is well at times that the heart of a nation should beat high with courage and indignation. It is well that a people should be bound together even in a spirit of anger and amaze. It is well in the day of enervating softness and decadence that the primitive passion for the fray should come into a nation's heart and cleanse it of its rottenness.

We are already experiencing some of the finer fruits of war along with some of its ashes. "It means more to be a Canadian to-day," said Dr. Falconer, "than it did a week ago." It is gradually dawning on us that the reports of atrocities in France and Belgium could hardly have been exaggerated. There are hundreds of pacifists walking the streets of Toronto to-day with great and burning indignation in their hearts.

Peace is a dead, negative thing over against injustice, cruelty, sin. There are more things in the life of man than comfort and material progress. War is hell, but hell before now has been the straight and narrow gate through which peoples and individuals have entered into the presence of God.—Toronto Daily News.

—As THE ADVOCATE remarked recently, and does so again, why can't the municipalities of Bruce County follow the Daylight Saving plan? The people of America are now beginning to realize the absurdity of lying in bed in the summer months during the hours of daylight in the morning and then seeking recreation and continuing to prowl about at night in the hours of darkness, and, as a consequence, what are termed "Daylight Saving" by-laws are being passed in numerous towns and cities both in Canada and the States. These by-laws provide for the moving forward one hour of the hands of all clocks in the municipality. This starts work and business life in the town or city one hour earlier in the morning and gives an additional hour of daylight in the evening in which the youth and beauty employed in offices and stores can seek recreation or participate in athletic sports, the bowlers can play upon the green, or in the case of the proud householder can be devoted to the garden or lawn or to beating carpets, etc, for wifey. There would also be a wonderful saving of light, electricity, gas and oil, which is an item worth considering. These are only a few of the advantages to be derived from the adoption of such a measure. Daylight saving by-laws were put into effect in several towns and cities last year and everywhere was pronounced a great success, and is being put in force again this year. Other towns are now following suit and daylight saving is being adopted in many municipalities in Ontario this summer.

—The proposition of the Dominion Government to have the Canadian soldiers mark their ballots for candidates in the ensuing general election is not apparently taken very seriously by the average politician of either party. Of course, it is quite possible that some extremists may attempt to have the voice from the French trenches heard in our land. But can it be done? One naughty Grit writer says that if becomes more apparent daily that the plan is neither practical nor dignified. Brushing aside the possible objections of the British Government and General Joffre to distractions which might slacken discipline and interfere with the success of the war, it is absurd to think that the soldiers would interrupt their headlong charges on the Germans to drop a ballot for candidates not named, on issues they know nothing about. The duty of the scrutineers, as laid down in the Act, is to get the ballots of the soldiers. It is not stated anywhere that they are to bring away German bullets, which is liable to happen if they get near enough to the firing line to hold a competent election. Besides, there is always the danger of a shell putting the ballot boxes out of business. Moreover, the ballot boxes run extraordinary risks of capture and detention on their way back to Canada, such risks being not necessarily from the Germans. The only perfect ballot box in existence, a ballot box nobody can beat, has been offered for the last twenty years to the Governments of both parties and the inventor's head has turned white with discouragement. And even his ballot box, supposed it should be used, is not built for war conditions. The opinion gains ground that the soldiers at the front will vote — when they get home, but not before.

—A piece of election legislation that would be more practicable and quite as essential to the perfect working of our voting system as that providing for getting the soldiers' votes, is a measure that would allow an absentee from his polling sub-division to mark a ballot in favor of the candidate whom he would like to support in his own riding, without being put to expense and loss of time.

South Bruce Candidates

BOTH PARTIES READY FOR ELECTION

The Conservatives Select John Purvis

At their convention held at Formosa on Thursday last the Conservatives chose as their candidate in the approaching Dominion election a man who is very well known throughout the riding, Mr. John Purvis, the auctioneer, of Holyrood. Others nominated were W. M. Recking of Carlisi, Dr. Fowler of Teeswater, John Rowland of Walkerton, F. W. Lippert, mayor of Walkerton, Dr. Biehn of Chesley, and John Joynt of Lucknow. All of these withdrew except Mr. Purvis and Dr. Biehn. A ballot being taken, the former was chosen by a considerable majority.

Addresses were made by Senator J. J. Donnelly and W. D. Cargill, M.P.P.

Officers of the Association elected are: Hon. Pres., James Tolton, Walkerton; Pres., W. H. Brown, Chesley; Vice-Pres., E. Seigner, Carrick.

Mr. Reuben Truax Again the Liberal Choice

By the unanimous vote of a largely attended convention at Formosa on Tuesday Mr. R. Truax, M.P., was renominated, without another name being considered.

The speaker of the occasion was Mr. Archie McCoig, M.P.P., of Chatham. Short addresses were also made by R. E. Truax, M.P., Wm. McDonald, M.P.P., J. G. Anderson, ex-M.P.P., H. J. Mooney, C. J. Mickle and R. D. Cameron.

The following officers of the Association were elected: Geo. Durst, Pres.; Dan McDonald, Vice-Pres.; J. Johnston, Sec'y; M. A. Halliday, Treas.

SAMUEL WELSFORD

The remains of this former Paisley boy were brought from Guelph on Friday for burial in the Paisley cemetery. Service was held in the Methodist church, conducted by Rev R A Facey, B.A., and attended by a large number of friends of the family. The deceased having been a member of the Masonic order, the rites at the grave were performed by Cargill and Paisley brethren.

The deceased was a son of the late Jas Welsford, and was born in Paisley, attended school here and learned the trade of harnessmaking with Mr A McGill. He worked in Brantford, Toronto, Guelph and other places, and for a time was in business for himself in Cargill.

He had been seriously ill only a few days from peritonitis, and taken to the Guelph General Hospital, his death occurring a very short time after a surgical operation had been performed.

Sam was a man of most exemplary and sterling character. He made many friends and but few, if any, enemies. His passing away will be deeply deplored and his memory cherished by relatives, friends and acquaintances. He was married to Annie Galbraith, of Toronto, who survives him. Four brothers and two sisters mourn his loss—William and Charles in Guelph; Robert, in Buckingham, Que.; George, in Cargill; Mrs M Pinkerton, at Glendenning, Man., and Mrs L Martin, Cargill.

6000 Canadians Killed, Wounded and Missing

The Militia Department at Ottawa issued a statement on Monday giving the Canadian casualties in the battle of Langemarck as 5,403 non-commissioned officers and men—killed 705, wounded 2,163, missing 2,536.

These losses were sustained in repelling attacks by German forces which are estimated at at least a hundred thousand.

TORTURED BY CONSTIPATION

"Fruit-a-tives" Cured Paralyzed Bowels and Digestion

ST. ROMUALD DE SHAWINIGAN, QUE. Feb. 3rd. 1914.

"It is a pleasure to me to inform you that after suffering from Chronic Constipation for six years, I have been cured by "Fruit-a-tives". While I was a student at Berthier College, I became so ill I was forced to leave the college. Severe pains across the intestines continually tortured me and it came to a point when I could not stoop down at all, and my Digestion became paralyzed. Some one advised me to take "Fruit-a-tives" and at once I felt a great improvement. After I had taken four or five boxes, I realized that I was completely cured and what made me glad, also, was that they were acting gently, causing no pain whatever to the bowels. All those who suffer with Chronic Constipation should follow my example and take "Fruit-a-tives" for they are the medicine that cures".

MAGLOIRE PAQUIN

"Fruit-a-tives" are sold by all dealers at 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size, 25c. or sent postpaid on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

THE PINKERTON HOTEL LICENSE

Centre Bruce License Board met at Chepstowe on April 22nd to consider applications for licenses for the ensuing year. The Riversdale, Chepstowe and Glamis hotels were granted renewal of licenses.

Adam Knox made application for a license for the Pinkerton hotel, which for a year has been without a license. Mr. Knox submitted a petition signed by 47 of the qualified electors of polling sub-division No. 5, Greenock, in which the hotel is situated, asking that a license be granted.

There was also placed before the License Board a petition signed by 13 electors of the same sub-division praying that a license be not granted. A number of persons appeared before the Board at their meeting in Chepstowe on April 22nd, and addressed the Board as to why they thought the license should be granted. There were also a number of persons, among whom was Rev Geo Mason, of Harriston, who set forth their reasons why a license should not be granted to Mr. Knox. Objection was also made to Mr Knox's petition. It was claimed that two names of voters thereon which, though rightfully on the voters' list, were not now resident in the riding. It was also claimed that the last revised list for No 5 contained the names of a number of persons not now residing within the riding, and therefore should not be considered by the Board. Owing to these objections being made the Board referred the petitions and list to the clerk of the township, and as soon as he makes his report to license inspector as to the validity of the names on the list and on Mr Knox's petition the Board will meet to decide on the application of Mr Knox.

On Tuesday evening a revision of the voters' list was made at Pinkerton by Clerk Purdy, with the following result: Of the 97 names in polling sub-division No 5, seven were disallowed, leaving 88 qualified. On the petition there are 47 names, of which two were disallowed, leaving 45 on, so that there is still a majority of one favorable to granting a license to Mr Knox. The names of three qualified voters who are not residing in the sub-division also appear on the petition.

Further consideration of the petition will be from the new Provincial License Commission, the life of the old riding license boards expiring on Tuesday.

—A cure for the blues—read "Craigie" at McArthur's bookstore, $1.25.

—Mr C M Bowman, M P P, has recently been elected a director of the Mutual Life Assurance Co. of Waterloo, of which company his father, the late J H Bowman, was president for many years. Mr C M Bowman is also a director in three manufacturing companies in which he has large financial interests—The Bell Furniture Co of Southampton, the Stevens-Hepner Co of Port Elgin, and the Durham Furniture Co of Durham.

—Names of former Bruce Co men appear in the long list of wounded at the front. Among these are Lieut Davison of Chesley, a nephew of Mr Wm Davison of Paisley; George Green of Chesley; Wm Barry of Dunkeld; Arthur Robertson of Owen Sound but formerly of Southampton; and Alex McAuley of Southampton.

—A bear is at large in Glenelg. While plowing on his newly leased farm near Zion last week, Mr. Dan McAuliffe perceived a large brute enter the field, gaze a few moments and disappear. Others, it seems, have also noticed him.—Durham Review.

Children Cry
FOR FLETCHER'S
CASTORIA

—Sergeant—"Sly, there! Where are you going?" The absent-minded beggar (who climbed out of the trench)—"Oly Hunlay! When that blooming shell whistled over'ead it thought hit was twelve o'clock!"

BALLACHEY, LAIDLAW & CO.

"The Store with the Quality"

How About Summer UNDERWEAR AND HOSIERY

?

We are ready for all Requirements.

Top Prices for Produce

BALLACHEY, LAIDLAW & CO.

Both 'Phones——————————All Produce

Tired Eyes

sensations exist for our guidance. They are Nature's warnings. Overworked eyes demand rest. Eyes that fire easily call for help. Properly adjusted glasses afford the only assistance possible.

We make a specialty of relieving tired eyes and guarantee satisfaction.

A Stopped Watch

One that will not go AT ALL—does n't cause as much bother as one that runs now fast, now slow, in an erratic fashion.

The first you don't pretend to depend upon the other is a constant source of annoyance.

Most people can afford a watch, but no one can afford an uncertain fast and slow one.

And when our repair department is so close at hand there is really no excuse for carrying anything but an accurate time-piece, no matter what the first cost was.

Consult us about any watch troubles that may arise.

I. SHOEMAKER
JEWELER AND OPTICIAN

SHOES

Our new spring Shoes have just arrived and we have Shoes for all Ladies, Gents and Children at the old prices.

We have not raised our prices as we bought our supply before the advance in prices.

We have a full stock of Men's Women's and Children's heavy waterproof shoes on hand to keep the feet dry.

Call and have a look at our shoes.

Eggs Taken in Exchange

H. PFAFF & SON'S
SHOE STORE

When a man gives his fiancee a diamond ring and later fails to give his wife a Life Insurance policy, he needs a guardian, not a wife.

Be Wise and Insure Your Life in

THE DOMINION LIFE

Highest earnings of any Canadian company—3.22 per cent.

Low Death Loss
Economical Management

Head Office - Waterloo, Ont.

Buggies—We are again selling the reliable McLaughlin, Tudhope and Brantford makes, also attending to all kinds of repairs and renewal of parts on old vehicles. A number of second hand buggies to sell cheap.

Furniture A large assortment always in stock, and catalogues of best makers to select from. Any article, large or small, sets or single pieces for furnishing the house.

Single and Double Harness and Harness Supplies

We are agents for the Singer Sewing Machines and Capital Cream Separators

J. SEILER, Eden Grove

CANADIAN PACIFIC
FOR WINNIPEG AND VANCOUVER
Leaves Toronto 10.30 p.m. daily.
Attractive Tours to Pacific Coast Points
Particulars from Canadian Pacific ticket agents, or write M. G. Murphy, D.P.A., Cor. King and Yonge Sts., Toronto.

W. H. McFarlane, Agent, Paisley

Central Business College
Stratford, Ont.

Ontario's Best Practical Training School

We have thorough courses and experienced instructors in each of our three departments, Commercial, Shorthand and Telegraphy. Our graduates succeed and you should get our large Free catalogue. Write for it at once.

D. A. McLACHLAN, Principal

Court Sangeen, C.O.F. No. 88

MEETS in Oddfellows Hall on the second Wednesday evening of each month, at 8 o'clock. Sojourning brethren are welcome.

A. E. ARCHER, R.S.
W. ARCHER, C.R. (2178)

Ahiram Lodge, No. 205, I.O.O.F.

MEETS every Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock in the Hall (Sidley's Block. Visiting brethren always welcome.

F. J. F. HOUSTON, N.G.
E. E. GRANT, R.S.

T. H. GEORGE
Issuer of Marriage Licenses
Notary Public and Conveyancer

Land, Loan, Insurance and General Agent. Notes, Book Accounts and other Debts Collected. Conveyancing Neatly and Cheaply Executed.

—FARMS LOANS A SPECIALTY—

Office in Putnam Block, Queen St. S., Paisley

You Can Begin Any Day at the
NORTHERN Business College
OWEN SOUND
Individual Instruction
Our own three story building and 34 successful years of experience. Expert instructors produce the very best results. Catalogue free.
C. A. FLEMING, F.C.A., Principal — G. D. FLEMING, Secretary

Business Directory

JOHN SUTHERLAND & SONS
LIMITED
INSURANCE—FIRE AND MARINE
GUELPH - ONT.

J. C. GIBSON
Issuer of Marriage Licenses
Paisley, Ont.

LEGAL

D. FORRESTER, B.A., L.L.B.
BARRISTER, SOLICITOR AND NOTARY PUBLIC
OFFICE—TOWN HALL, PAISLEY

MEDICAL

DR. M. C. BLACK, M.D., C.M., F.T.M.C., M.C.P.S. (ONT.) Graduate of Trinity University and Polyclinic, New York. SPECIALTY—Diseases of the eye, ear, nose and throat.

DR. R. E. GAGE, Physician, Surgeon and Accoucheur. Specialist in Diseases of the Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat. Late house surgeon Kingston General Hospital. Office hours 10 to 12 a.m., 2 to 4 p.m. Successor to Dr. O'Neill

DR. F. J. F. HOUSTON, Honor Graduate of Toronto University, Licentiate of the Royal Colleges of Physicians and Surgeons of Edinburgh and Glasgow. Late graduate Cornell Univ. Ithaca, N.Y. Late assistant Edinburgh Eye Infirmary. Specialty—Diseases of the Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat. Successor to Dr. Morrison.

DENTAL

DR. A. H ALLEN
DENTIST, formerly of Toronto.

Graduate of the Royal College of Dental Surgeons, of Ontario. Honor Graduate of Toronto University Dental Department. Master of Dental Surgery. Graduate of the Dr Meyers' Post Graduate School of Prosthetic Dentistry, New York. Office over Monk's Drug store, opposite the Post Office.

VETERINARY

R. D. GRANT, V.S., Graduate of Ontario Veterinary College, Toronto. Government Inspector of contagious diseases and apply Tuberculin test to cattle. Also inspect export stock and horse purchases for same. Oxygen gas treatment for milk fever. Office and residence opposite the old Northern Hotel.

AUCTIONEERS

R. G. PEARCE, Licensed Auctioneer. Sales attended to in parts of the County of Bruce on reasonable terms. Orders left at the Advocate Office will receive prompt attention. Telephone at house.

R. J. NESBITT, Licensed Auctioneer for the County of Bruce, is prepared to conduct sales in any part of the county. Terms reasonable. Leave order at ADVOCATE office or address Glenelg P.O.

A Few "Becauses"

Why we ask for and expect your Grocery Trade

BECAUSE, as far as is possible to determine, our stock takes in all the good kinds, and leaves the others out.

BECAUSE, if you are particular about eatables, our store will appeal to you.

BECAUSE we play the game of business fair and square. We make right any mistake we may make just as soon as we hear of it.

BECAUSE we try awfully hard to "get there on time." We appreciate the inconvenience of waiting for goods to be delivered.

BECAUSE, in spite of all these advantages, your dollar is as large here as anywhere, often larger.

TRY AND PROVE.

DUTCH SETT ONIONS—4 Pounds for 25 cents.

Leave your order with us for CUT FLOWERS and POTTED PLANTS.

Don't forget we pay the Highest Price for BUTTER and EGGS in Cash or Trade.

F. Carter & Son

Groceries, Crockery, Boots and Shoes

Goods Delivered Both 'Phones

THE STORE WITH THE QUALITY

Use Sherwin-Williams Paints

Home Defence

Be Loyal to the Home You Live In

Defend it against the weather conditions which are operating against the appearance of your building every day.

By using

Sherwin-Williams Paints and Varnishes

Victory will be yours!

There is nothing more pleasing to the eye than a neatly painted building. It is something that is admired by everyone. Not only does a coat of Paint add to the appearance but it protects the surface from cracking and rotting. A good coat of Paint also adds to the value of your building.

Come and see us. Let us tell you how.

Use Sherwin-Williams Paints

W. H. DAVISON

BRUCE PHONE BELL PHONE

This is the kind of Wall Paper Artist We Do NOT Employ—

No sloppy job like this done by our men. It costs you no more to employ clean, careful workmen than men like the above.

Our Wall Paper Stock

We have just put into stock the newest and

MOST ARTISTIC PATTERNS.

Complete range of all lines for parlor, hall, dining-room, bed-room or kitchen papers on hand, ready for delivery. We would like to show you our different sample books. Stock on hand of all samples shown.

H. GLOVER

PAPERHANGER AND DECORATOR

Men and Teams Wanted Tp. of Elderslie

APPLICATIONS will be received by the undersigned up till one o'clock, Monday, May 2nd, for men and two teams to work on road, gravel for season of 1915; also teams to supply same. R. C. PEARCE, Tp. Clerk, R.R. No. 4, Paisley.

TORONTO LIVE STOCK MARKETS

Tuesday, May 11th, 1915

Butchers picked	$7 80	$8 10
do common	6 60	6 90
do cows	5 80	6 10
do bulls	6 25	7 15
Stockers, choice	6 25	7 00
do common	5 50	6 00
Heavy feeders	6 60	7 25
Sheep, ewes	7 50	8 00
Milch cows, choice	85 00	100 00
do common	40 00	60 00
Sheep, ewes	7 00	8 25
Bucks	6 00	7 00
Spring Lambs, each	8 00	11 00
Calves	9 50	11 00
Hogs, f.o.b	9 65	.....
" fed and watered	9 75	.....

REDUCE THE HIGH COST

Now is the season for the average man to consider whether or not he wishes to reduce the high cost of living. There is no doubt about it, the nearer we can get to the soil the nearer we get to the actual first cost of what the soil produces. The laboring man with a piece of land at the back of his house might just as well engage his spare hours in tilling that soil as in most sorts of recreation. But labor isn't recreation, says the working man. Tilling of a piece of land is different from the ordinary work in which most men are engaged during the day. Walking the streets becomes labor if a person is forced to walk, but walking is a recreation if he chooses to walk when he doesn't have to. It's the same with gardening. The person who does it against his will inevitably regards gardening as a labor, but the man who goes at it for the pleasure he can get out of it and the pleasure and satisfaction he finds in seeing things grow, not to say anything of the profit he may derive, will cease soon to regard it as labor and class it as a satisfying source of healthgiving recreation.

Most people work harder when engaged in most kinds of athletic sport than they do when engaged in their real work. We don't wish to belittle sport, nor to tie a man's nose down to an onion bed all summer, but if he likes onions it wouldn't do him any harm to spend part of his time in the recreation of growing his own onions. If such recreation is not going to help him financially, physically or otherwise, let him avoid the exercise.—Durham Chronicle.

Night Constable Wanted

APPLICATIONS will be received by the undersigned up to 8 p.m. on Wednesday, the 5th day of May next, for the position of night constable for the village of Paisley. Duties will be made known at my office. J. C. GIBSON, Town Clerk.

PAISLEY MARKET

Fall wheat, per bushel	$1 30	1 30
Spring wheat, per bush	1 00	1 30
Buckwheat	70	75
Peas, per bush	.....	.....
Oats, per bush	50	55
Barley, per bush	65	75
Potatoes, per bus	40	40
Butter, in pound prints	27	27
Eggs, fresh, per doz	22	22
Hay, per ton	.....	15 00

LANGEMARCK

When our Canadian troops left for the front they fully understood that it was no picnic expedition upon which they had entered. Leading men among the officers, and many among the rank and file made the last dispositions of their affairs before they left, just as though they might never return. Many of them quite simply and quite seriously accepted it as a fact that in the risks and hazards of such a war as that which we were engaged in, it would be a miracle to be preserved through it, and the most sensible attitude would be one, not so much of expected return as of full renunciation and complete sacrifice in the patriotic duty undertaken.

There is no fatalism about this. When a man undertakes a high and responsible duty in which his life may be required, he holds nothing back. Perhaps it would be well for all of those who have sent or permitted their protectors to go to the fighting line, to accept the situation in the same spirit, prepared for the completest sacrifice, not even hoping for the opportunity of thanksgiving that may come, and will come to many, when the war closes. Then will be more calmness of mind if the supreme sacrifice can be fully made at once. If those who have gone should return the joy will be the greater at last for those who had been as dead and are alive again.

In the face of the tremendous list of casualties this, perhaps, is the first and most necessary consideration. We are happily unaccustomed to war in Canada. A century of peace has left us with little understanding of what war means in its terrible demands. But we must not, as a nation, on that account behave with hysteria and wild regret. Christendom must have a surer hope of the foundational things of life than to grieve for those who have fought the good fight and entered into rest. We may, perhaps, feel the bereavement so deeply as to grieve for ourselves, but there should not be much rein given to selfish grief at a time when they who have fallen gave their lives that we might live. To do so would constantly suggest the question whether we were worth dying for, whether we are prepared to make this land that is preserved to us a land worthy to guard the memories of those who have fallen to give it freedom, and its children an enduring heritage.

All these months there has come to us the tale of men wounded, dead, missing. The men in the ranks understood what it meant. The civilians who stayed at home may not have quite felt all that lay behind. But after this battle of Langemarch no man who values his country or his citizenship can fail to realize what the war means. Six thousand men in one combat, men of our own towns and villages, the men we knew, the men we worked with, the men who lived among us, from all over Canada, have suffered in accomplishing a deed which will live in our annals. It will be told to our children in the history books of the years to come, as the tale of the great wars and battles of old are still living in our admiration and told in our schools, and built up into the imperial tradition that is greater than the will-to-power, because it is the expression of the will-to-freedom, the will-to-brotherhood, the will-to-humanity.

There may be other fights in this war which will need as heroic courage, as cool daring and as clear-eyed grappling with an emergency, but this is the fight that sets the standard. Men will say it was hotter than Langemarck, or there may be more casualties than at Langemarck, but Langemarck will stand as the battle in which the Canadians first had their chance, first found themselves relying on their own brains and bravery, and were not found wanting.

They fought from Thursday till Sunday with little support, with little to eat or drink, with precarious supplying of war, and with an overwhelming force before, in flank and behind them. They held the line and when it broke they re-formed it, and they charged their six-fold foe again and again and defeated him. On Thursday they were on the extreme left of the British line. The French and Belgians were beyond them. Their front covered about three miles or 5000 yards. The first brigade was well to the rear, and the heavy guns were posted to the rear of the French. Overcome by gas, the French gave way and left the Canadian left flank open. General Turner extended his Highlanders for a mile and a half at right angles to his first front, so as to face and flank the German columns who were pursuing the retreating French. This succeeded in preventing the Germans getting behind the Canadian lines, and the position was retained through Thursday night and Friday morning.

Then the 10th Battalion and the 16th Canadian Highlanders came up and attacked the Germans and recaptured the four guns which had been lost behind the French lines. The Germans had pushed six miles to the rear of the Canadian and French lines, and there was danger of the whole force being cut off. General Mercer, who had been far in the rear, brought the 1st and 4th Battalions into action, supported by the 2nd and 3rd, and swept the new German trenches. Two British brigades also assisted in this. The Highlanders were still in their precarious advanced position, gradually falling back in the face of superior numbers, but they divided Germans, or 6000 men, it is estimated, got behind the Highlanders on Friday and cut them off. They kept on firing while their ammunition lasted, and out of this brigade have come the Canadian highlander prisoners, of which Berlin has boasted, but they continued to fight far into Friday night.

On Saturday and Sunday, reinforced by three British brigades, the fighting continued, and new lines were established, cutting the Germans from their objective, the much coveted Ypres, the first step to Calais. It is clear that had the Germans attacked along the left flank instead of tackling the Canadians, who were not worth considering, probably, in the the German military estimate, they might have gained a greater success than they did. As it was the Germans were baffled before they could attain their object of getting across the canal in force. To the Canadian troops the military critics unanimously and unstintingly accord the credit of stopping them.

They did what was necessary to be done. They did it without hesitation. They did it effectively. They did it with a headlong valour which bequeaths the traditions of British courage in campaigns that are historic. They paid a heavy price, but they went out to pay the price and those of us who cannot go to the front should have nothing but gratitude for their sacrifice. Those who can follow them to the front should make no delay. There is no greater cause in the world today, and there is no more glorious call to duty. There is much more of the same kind of work to be done.—Daily World.

THREE THINGS MAKE COLUMBIA RECORDS

The Most Delightful in all the World

The Artists

All artists of note seek to have Columbia Records perpetuate their fame.

From Grand Opera stars like Mary Garden and Zenatello to such leading virtuosi as Ysaye and Pablo Casals. From entertainers like Billy Williams, originator of Tipperary, to Whit Cunliffe, of "Hello, Hello" fame. All stand ready to reveal themselves on Columbia Records.

Reproductive Qualities

Columbia Records excel for the clarity, volume and sweetness of tone, and durability of material.

They are well and truly made, and are practically everlasting, if carefully used.

Listen to a Columbia and compare it with any other Record, and your choice will always be a

COLUMBIA

Their Price

Columbia Records cost no more than others.

But every Columbia Record is a double-disc and will play on any machine.

You can get them for as low as 85 cents or as much as $7.50. But no matter what price you pay, the Columbia Record at that price is better value than can be obtained in any other record.

Go, see and hear Columbia Grafonolas and Records at

G. R. WELSFORD'S

Paisley

Agents wanted where not actively represented. Apply MUSIC SUPPLY CO., Toronto

SCHOOL REPORTS

PAISLEY PUBLIC SCHOOL

ROOM IV

Entrance Class.—Jr. — Agnes Pearce, Alan Shoemaker, Jack Little, Lauchens Blue, Arthur McDonald, Marguerite McLeod, Annie Kincaid, Wilfrid Grant, David McGregor, Hilda Carter, Wilmer Barnett, Blanche Collins.

Jr IV—Honors—Rita Cormack, Irvine Cage, Mary Laidlaw, Anabel Blue. Fred Shoemaker, Jean Bullerton, Jean Shaw, Inez Bell. Pass—Grace Brown, Arthur Kincaid, Irene Marshall, Willie Sheepy, Donald Elves, Lena Grant, Mildred Irving, Mabel Benton, Grant Hay, Howard Rae, George Grant.

CORA R. L. FISHER, Teacher

ROOM III

Sr III—Pass—Robert Irving, Fatewell Fletcher, Rena Wakefield, Marguerite Hopper, Rose Woodcock, Grace Allen, Velma Pfaff, Alvin McEwen. Fail—Reginald Beaton, Gertrude Irving, James Sutherland, Malcolm McNeill, Archie McClure, Hazel Bird, David Hay.

Jr III—Honors—Charles Rae, Earl Brown. Pass—Daisy Vance, Bella Stark, Bessie Facey, Willie McLennan, Annie McKinnon, Gilbert Little, Mary Parker, Malcolm McKinnon, Victor Godwin. Fail—Seofield Russell, Hillda Bell, Lillian Pfaff, Cecil Hepburn, Hilda McPhail, Clarence Flood.

MAY E. BOYLE, Teacher

ROOM II

Sr II—Honors—Eva McMahon, Catharine Pearce, Ross McKenzie, Mearle Hepburn, John Scott. Pass—Howard Blue, Fred Vettle, Viola Reans, Howard Pearce, Ella Brown. Absent from part of tests—Ella Brown.

Intermediate II—Honors—Ella Halsall, Oscar Hopper, Jack Shoemaker, Florence Bell. Pass—Reta Leeson, Helen McArthur, Marjorie Bird, Sherwood Collins, Hettie Godwin, Nelson Belbeck, John Sutherland, Wilfred Hay, Rosella Clayton. Absent from part of tests—Florence Bell, Hettie Godwin, Wilfred Hay.

Jr II—Honors—Hazel Hay, Nellie Watson, Gregon Irving, Angus McKinnon, Phemie Morland. Pass—Willie Mitchell, Russell Grant, Paul Oliver, Hugh McArthur, Charlotte Sutherland, Verna Rae, J. D Babcock, Harry Flood, Clifford Marshall.

INA C GALBRAITH, Teacher

PRIMARY ROOM

Class A—Greta Fleming, Mary Fletcher and Edna Brown (equal), Rea Godwin, David Leitch, Elroy Hunt, Jack Pearce, Dora Nicholson, Bertha Irving, Mary Sutherland, Melville Brown.

Class B—Jean Grant, Gordon Baller, Teddy Muir, George Fleming, Douglas Facey, Gervais Heath, Gladys Bradley.

Class C—Glen Sinclair, Bruce McKenzie, Sadie McKinnon, Leota Hepburn, Jack McArthur, Isobel Pearce, Alvin Blue, Wilfred Shoemaker, Rhea Irving, Viola Fleming, George Clayton, Mabel Pearce.

Class D—Alma Tocke, Gladys Bird, Arthur Marcar, Mabel Nicholson, Velma Rae, Willie Sutherland, Lena Maxwell, Bessie Marcar, Stanley Hills, Elmer McLeod.

ELIZABETH MILLER, Teacher

CARD OF THANKS

The undersigned desires to thank all friends and acquaintances for the great kindness and sympathy extended to me in my bereavement.

MRS. S. WELSFORD, Guelph.

Ready-for-Use Paint

YOU are paying your painter to paint; not to mix paint. Science and experience have demonstrated that machines can do the mixing more thoroughly than the hand, and the maker's name on the can is safer than the use of unknown ingredients and varying skill.

Lowe Brothers High Standard Liquid Paint

is machine mixed—ready-for-use. The supreme result of over a third of a century of paint "know how." The "Little Blue Flag" on the can stands for quality in an entire line of paint products for every purpose—Floor paints, stains, enamels, varnishes, Mellotone for interior surfaces. Ask about them.

For Sale at Sinclair's Hardware

Homeseekers' Excursions to Western Canada

Particular attention is directed to the remarkably low round trip fares in connection with homeseekers' excursions to Western Canada via Canadian Pacific Railway.

Tickets are on sale each Tuesday until October 26th inclusive, and are good to return within two months from date of sale.

The C.P.R. offers the finest possible equipment and fastest train service via one of the most scenic routes in the world.

It is the only line operating through standard and tourist sleeping cars, also dining cars to Winnipeg and Vancouver. All equipment is owned and operated by the C.P.R. affording the highest form of efficiency.

If such a trip is under consideration apply to any C.P.R. agent for full particulars or write M. G. Murphy, D. P. A., Toronto.

—A circular has been issued to all newspapers by the Dominion government warning them to refrain from publishing any news with regard to the movement of troops in Canada. This is a commendatory measure to prevent facts about Canada's army falling into the hands of the enemy. The penalty for infringement of this law is a fine of $1000, or a term of one year in prison for the offender. Readers will therefore understand the absence of some military news which would otherwise have been published.

PUMP REPAIRING

THE undersigned having purchased Mr. Hooks outfit, is prepared to do all kinds of pump repairing. Also for sale, pump cylinders, valves and other parts of wooden or iron pumps. A few block wooden pumps for sale. Wood for sale of tons. Turned white trees, neck yokes and fence posts for sale.

W. RAE

Desirable Residence for Sale

THAT very desirable village property on Queen street, south, the residence now occupied by Mrs. Hugh Bell. House new, brick, roughcasted, and in first-class condition. Apply to D. FOURESTER, Paisley.

In a short time Canada will have two complete army divisions of upwards of 50,000 men at the front, with two further army divisions in Canada in training and ready to furnish reinforcements as soon as required. It is expected that reinforcements at the rate of approximately 8,000 per month will be needed, and these will be sent from the third and fourth contingents as the call comes from the War Office. Instead of sending forward whole battalions at a time, the intention of the Militia Department is to send representative units of one company each from each battalion, the most thoroughly trained men having the first call.

BORN

BELL.—In Kincardine Tp., on April 26th, to Mr. and Mrs. Allen Bell, 10th con. Kincardine, a daughter.

FARMERS

Consider Purity in Paint in Preference to Price.

You wouldn't pay the regular price for Sugar that analyzed 10% of sand. You wouldn't pay "all wool" prices for cotton-and-wool clothing. Why should you pay your good money for impure Paint, when you can get

MARTIN-SENOUR "100% PURE" PAINT

We guarantee Martin-Senour "100% Pure" Paint (except a few dark shades that cannot be prepared from pure Lead and Zinc alone) to be 100% pure White Lead, pure Oxide of Zinc, pure Linseed Oil, pure Colors and Turpentine Dryer; and to be entirely free from adulteration or substitution; and sold subject to chemical analysis.

Every experienced Painter knows that the above formula is right. It is the standard of the paint world.

You get absolute purity — extreme fineness — uniform quality—when you insist on "100% Pure" Paint.

SENOUR'S FLOOR PAINT — The old reliable.
RED SCHOOL HOUSE PAINT — for the barn and sheds
MARTIN-SENOUR WAGON and IMPLEMENT PAINT — for wagons, tools, etc.

We'll send you, free, "Farmer's Color Set" and our fine book, "Town and Country Homes", if you write for the name of our nearest dealer-agent.

ADDRESS ALL ENQUIRIES TO
The MARTIN-SENOUR Co. LIMITED
655 Drolet Street, Montreal. 75

wife of a baronet could a girl as humble as she was be?

It had been all very well for them to be lovers when he had been a poor lad despised by his family, and never likely to do anything more in life than just earn his bread and the bread of his wife and children when he should become possessed of these. It had not mattered much then whether the wife were a lady or a poor girl of the people. But it mattered now; Maggie said to herself that it mattered terribly now. The girl had no doubt in her own mind that it would depend upon how she took it whether or not Sir Randolph Dare left him any money or allowed him to inherit the bare title without the means of keeping it up. She, the humble, hard-working Maggie, could be no proper wife for him; why, apart from the humbleness and the poverty, was she not unworthy by the mere fact of being a foundling, and unable to tell him whence she came and who her parents had been?

Here in this late hour of a Sabbath afternoon, in the foggy gloom of the atmosphere of London before the winter had fully gone and the spring has full and gloriously come the pretended and unhappy Maggie saw the whole situation in the same light as that in which she had seen it when first the news of his heirship to the baronetcy had blighted her cherished dream of love. Now, as then, she felt that if she married him she would only be a millstone hung about his neck for ever. It was the duty of her very love to set him free.

But even apart from this, how could she wait for him? If indeed he could not come home until another year should have passed how could she in the meantime keep her own body and soul together, not considering the needs of little Alice and of the helpless old mother? On their first coming up to London she had imagined that in some way or other she would surely be able to earn an ample living for the three of them; but by this time the succession of disappointments and miseries which they had endured had taught her how very slight was the chance of any unskilled worker to earn any but the most begrudged and miserable pay. During the past two months she had been hoping against hope that her scanty wages from the shop would suffice for her and the two who depended upon her. To attain the end she had toiled early and late, sparing herself not, learning by heart the many and various rules which Mr. Jeffery had invented seemingly for the purpose of displaying his own ingenuity in the devising of small torments. So well had she worked and so heavily had she tried to be not merely civil but attractively pleasant to customers, that she had counted on receiving at the end of the month not only the full sum of the monthly salary due to her, with nothing deducted except the subscriptions for the library, the boot-cleaning, and the house-doctor, but even a few words of commendation and encouragement from the employers whom she had served so devotedly.

And what had been the result? This: that she had been paid seven shillings less than if sixteen or, rather, instead of the thirteen shillings odd which the unavoidable deductions mentioned above would have left her. On asking the reason of this, she had been told that during the month there had been certain fines levied against her name. Feeling like one stunned, she had begged to know for what faults of commission or omission these fines had been inflicted, and had then dazedly scanned a list of small offences against the regulations which had been laid to her charge. She could not remember having committed any of them, for had been all careful, oh, so careful! But it could not have been of any use to say what she could not remember, so she had simply stammered a half-choking Yes, sir, and had hurried out to be alone with her bitter disappointment in the cold, sweet midnight streets. And that night, walking home in solitude more desolate than she had endured for the first time, try as she might, she would never be allowed to take home the full sum of her slender monthly wages. That night, for the first time, there had sprung up in her mind the suspicion that Mr. Jeffery he suffered, and you and I, dear little girl, must bear it as bravely as we can. I am afraid it haven't picked up much money out here as yet. I'm soldiering, you see, and soldiering, though it's the sort of work that a man loves, isn't the sort of work that brings in a fortune very quickly. But I shall be coming home some time or other, not in a year's time to take up my new career, and to look in your face again, my little sweetheart. Think of that, and try to be patient. A year seems long, but it is little enough as compared with the many years of separation which we believed to be inevitable when I went away.

Your ever devoted lover,

Alexander Dare.

Already Maggie could have repeated the letter by heart line for line, and even word for word. She had read it a dozen times of more, and the four and de separ together which it had aroused in her had caused the sentences of it to be graven upon her throbbing brain, never to be effaced. He to whom she had pledged herself loved her still, she had no doubt of that. He loved her still, and with a love whose truth and ardor could not be mistaken. It was plainly evident that he had written and sent this letter before receiving her last communication, that had passed, written as with her heart's blood, in which she had told him that it would be better for him now if he cut himself free from her, as she knew she could not be the right sort of wife for him now that he had the prospect of being rich and of occupying a high position in the world. To be a baronet was in her eyes to be a very important personage indeed; and of what use as the home far up in the North, where they were known, and where, at the very worst, they could have kept themselves from starving and from homelessness far more easily than it was possible to do in London. Maggie knew well enough that it was only her own eager insistence which had induced her adoptive mother to consent to the move. But how could she have guessed, inexperienced girl that she was, that, although the great metropolis is the very mother of prosperity and the chosen meeting place of the prosperous, yet she has no help to give to the anxious man or woman who seeks to earn even a bare livelihood without any special skill or qualification.

And now Mrs. Maitland wanted to go back to that cottage home whence they had come. All day long she urged that they must go back. But they could not go without money. And where was the money to come from? And, they could not go without Alice, and the doctor said that the little girl was too ill to be moved.

CHAPTER XXIII.

The dusk was creeping on very decidedly now, so that it would not be possible for Maggie to read over yet once more the letter of love which, tender though it was, had filled her heart with sorrow until it was near to bursting. In a way she felt glad of this; glad because it seemed to her that if the daylight had lasted she would have done nothing but read and re-read that letter, and ponder over it for hour after hour, day in, day out. And there were so many other things to be thought of, was she not selfish even now in so often forgetting that while at home in the miserable little room under the roof of the grimy house in a street off Lower Grove her two dear ones were awaiting her, helpless and perhaps, also, anxious because she had been so long away? They were both very patient, the child especially, considering how much they both suffered; of course, Alice had been for some time out of danger, but in the stead of acute danger she was held down now by a weakness which seemed to increase instead of to diminish every day that passed. A week ago an offer had come from the charitable Directors of a Children's Convalescent Home at the seaside to take the little girl for a month in order that she might be strengthened by the change of air and the invigorating sea winds. But the doctor had said there would be no moving her as yet; and so she still lay chained to her mattress in the dingy, squalid quarters, waiting for the help and the comfort which was so long in coming.

The old woman, too, was ill. Somehow or other Maggie always thought of her as "the old mother" lately; yet now, when she gave her thought to the matter, she remembered that Mrs. Maitland was not actually old in years, but had only been to look old—that is to say, very old—since they had come to London. Under the cooking of the fatal move the worthy peasant woman had looked fresh in the face, although years of hard toil about the little farmstead had bent her figure out of all youthful gracefulness and straightness. But during the past few weeks she had become a mere wreck of her former self. She was very ill. Maggie had noticed this every day of late, had noted it with a guilty feeling that she herself was responsible for the dear old mother's now seriously failing health. If it had not been for her and her rash youthful hopes, this creature of hardly northern growth would never have been transplanted to the unsustaining atmosphere and artificial conditions of a great city. Mrs. Maitland was in a condition to take to her bed; any one who looked at her could see this fact for himself, and the doctor had said so times without number. But this taking to bed was what the dear old woman never would have done, not even if she had had a proper bed to take to and had had servants to do the work which her living up would cause to be left undone. And how could Maggie urge that she should be up when there was no one else to watch Alice and feed Alice, and to do the hundred and one little duties that have to be done even in a single room and with the most limited supply of crockery, tinware, and other similar conveniences whose use makes considerable work?

(To be continued.)

Smoking in British railway trains was officially prohibited prior to the year 1868.

The United States provides more than half of the world's production of copper, for of 873,460 tons used in a recent year, 492,650 tons were produced by the U.S.A.

Farmer (to horse dealer)—No, I don't bear ye no malice. I only hope that when you're chased by a pack of ravening wolves you'll be drivin' that horse you sold me!

BENSON'S Corn Starch

In the famous

Yellow Package

Don't ask merely for 'comstarch' or even for 'the best starch', but insist on BENSON'S —the 'Quality Starch' with a reputation gained by half a century's experience.

AT ALL GROCERS
53

NAIL DRIVING AIDS AUSTRIA.

Trojan Horse Building and Citizens Pay for Helping.

An inhabitant of a neutral country, just returned from Vienna, brings the story of a new plan conceived by the authorities of the Austrian capital to raise money for war charities.

One of the prettiest spots of the city on the Danube is the Schwarzenberg Square. A huge wooden horse, not unlike the one used by the Greeks in the capture of Troy, is being erected there, and every loyal Viennese is invited to drive at least one nail into the body of this equine statue.

The right to prove one's patriotism by nail driving is taxed at 2 cents a nail, and as there is room for 300,000 nails the sum of $60,500 is expected to be realized

Not Exactly.

Isn't Jones a dreamer?

Well, not exactly. You see, his castles in the air generally include an heiress.

In the last three months of 1914, 16,575,017 lb. of cocoa was exported from the United Kingdom, more than the total for the whole of the year 1913.

Much unnecessary talk manages to escape from a tiny mouth.

PRESIDENT SUSPENDER
NONE-SO-EASY
MADE IN CANADA

The Darkest Hour;

Or, The Hope That Still Lived.

CHAPTER XXII.

A young girl sat on a [illegible] Paris one evening at the early works of the afternoon setting.

Notwithstanding the girl was, the big [illegible] of her small-featured face already [illegible] pretension, was very thin, too unattractively thin to which thin not even the most devoted lover of girlish slenderness could have called her merely slender now. Her shabby black frock hung about her attenuated figure and shoulders as from a peg in the one fold of approaching evening [illegible] ought her insufficient [illegible] her chilled body, and the [illegible] from her shoes and from the edge of her [illegible] a worse chill to her feet, and through them upward to her [illegible]. It was not the sort of weather for sitting out of doors, as [illegible] present would have said so. But Maggie Maitland had wanted to be quite alone for a while in order to [illegible] the situation of those who were dear to her, and where [illegible] to be alone and one's home is a single apartment where not a moment's [illegible] is still left, it is very difficult [illegible] to concentrate a thought, and [illegible] a history in one of the periodicals.

[illegible] week, imperfect, and [illegible] girl was sitting here now, in Regent's Park, on the late daylight of a [illegible] afternoon.

She had gone [illegible] to Hyde Park, but [illegible] crowded. Besides, although there [illegible] flourishing were gay with [illegible], and the sight of so much bright [illegible] somehow increased the misery of the [illegible] human soul whose regret [illegible] had it is nothing [illegible] to be [illegible] wandered more [illegible] amongst the [illegible] and gloomier [illegible] than whether [illegible] of misery did not [illegible] to harrogate a Sunday [illegible], and where exotic [illegible] formed the only [illegible] to the [illegible] of wide, [illegible] distant grass stretches, based over with the [illegible] veil of approaching twilight. She had [illegible] to a quiet part for any hard-pressed man or woman to fly to for a temporary refuge from the cares of the world without. Certainly the [illegible] of the grass and trees, of the [illegible] and of the [illegible] where the ducks made themselves happy, was to one melancholy and more [illegible] than the streets, although partly to the weather and partly perhaps mostly to the fact that the day was Sunday. [illegible] of a Sunday afternoon in London is perhaps worse than anywhere else in the world. But all the melancholy was welcome to Maggie Maitland then, because it was in sympathy with her own bitter and despairful mood.

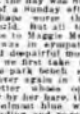
At the moment when we first take notice of her here on this park bench she was [illegible] over again a letter which, [illegible] daylight a letter whose open sheets were [illegible] by her hand. Night fingers that now were almost blue with cold. She had been reading and re-reading this letter ever since she had sat down here, devouring its lines with her wistful, hungry eyes as if her fainting heart within found in them food for love. The letter had come to her from over the sea, and the date was far back. This is what she read:

"Capetown, January 11.

"Dearest Little Maggie,—Since I wrote to you last I have had astounding news from home. A London solicitor has informed me by cable that Ronald Dare is dead—that he died in poverty in London quite recently—and that I am consequently my uncle's heir. Destiny is a queer thing, isn't it? How could any one have imagined when I left England a few months ago that I should come back before very long as heir to the baronetcy and to whatever goes with it? When I went away, as you know, I had to slink into my uncle's house through the good offices of the butler in order to see my cousin Christine and to say goodbye to her. Sir Randolph would have kicked me out if he had found me there. He disliked and despised me, as you also know, because my mother did not belong to the same social class to that to which he himself belonged. Some other time he has probably shown his contempt for me and now he has to accept me in the only one who can carry on the precious title that he values so much! It's a bit hard on him, but I dare say he'll take it out of me by willing all his money away to his daughter, and leaving me without a sixpence to support the title. In these circumstances I'm sure it's a great pity for us all, a great shame, that, failing her brothers, Christine should not come in for the baronetcy. It would be such more fitting and satisfactory. But as things are, I am the heir, and I'm not going to make myself humblest as well as the poorest of the poor. In a way I am glad, and in another way I am sorry. But on the whole I'm most glad! It is because this worldly advancement makes me worthier of you.

"My plans are briefly made, as I cannot in this letter tell you what I mean to do, nor give you any data for my future movements. But one thing is quite clear, and that is, that I shall be coming home [illegible] and back to you, little sweetheart. The more I think of this new good fortune, as I suppose most people would call it, the more I find that one thing I am, and everything I do, and everything I think of, is for you, and is suggested with you in my mind. Darling, darling, we shall know how to spend the money when we get it—if indeed we ever get it, shan't we?

"Now that the change has come in my position and prospects, I must say that I am sorry that you ever came to London. Of course, it is natural that I should not feel my heart go back to the old days now that you are in London as if you had remained in the country. You see I know very, very well the shallowness, sorrow and pitfalls which must lie about the feet of a girl like you always in London. I must confess me that you are not quite alone, and in a sense that is true enough, but Mrs. Maitland is not much of a protector in such matters, especially as you spend your whole week, except Sunday, apart from her, do you not? You seem very thankful to have got work, even of so poor a kind, your [illegible], indeed, makes me feel that you must have had a long and hard struggle before you succeeded in getting it. You do not say exactly how much money you get, so I cannot judge whether you are comfortable on the side or are suffering severely. In any case you seem very brave and bright over it all for braver and brighter than I could be, when I think of the cruel position in which you have left me, I feel that I am so sorry now that you should ever have had to undergo all that you have lately undergone; but, my darling, you must know well some day soon be my wife, and then again, some other day in the future, will be Lady Dare. That is the name by which you never thought to have a title, did you?



"As soon as I get another letter I will come to you. If I get a great deal I will send you regularly enough to keep you and the mother and Alice in comfort, without you needing to keep on with your work. I daresay you've been working hard enough, for you've been a few weeks before I come home and we are married. I feel sure that you have got quite thin and have lost all that dimpled roundness of face that made me think when I saw you first that you were the prettiest girl in the world. You may have lost your roses, too, but you'll soon get them back again when we can afford that you shall have a rest. Dear little girl, it has almost broken my heart to think of you as there in London fighting the battle of life all alone and unhelped. But I am trusting that you are nothing like alone right with you. I have prayed for you and I feel sure you have prayed for me, and I have been greatly comforted by the thought that God is watching over you, and will watch over you always. You are so young and so, [illegible] that it seems a shame. You should have to be breadwinner for a family. When we are married, of course, the mother and the little sister will come to live with us.

"Write me soon and often. It seems a long, long time since I have had a letter from you, and when it's a long time like that I get so nervous and fidgety that I can't help thinking that you can have no idea of [illegible]. I hardly bear to be far away from you, but I suppose we must be thankful that they can venture to face the world together and to hand and heart to heart, for, my own sweetheart, I hope that you and I, dear little girl, must bear it as bravely as we can. I am afraid I haven't picked up much money out here as yet. I'm soldiering, you see, and soldiering, though it's the sort of work that a man loves, isn't the sort of work that brings in a fortune very quickly. But I shall be coming home some time or other, not in a year's time to take up my new career, and to look in your face again, my little sweetheart. Think of that, and try to be patient. A year seems long, but it is little enough as compared with the many years of separation which we believed to be inevitable when I went away.

Your ever devoted lover,

Alexander Dare.

Already Maggie could have repeated the letter by heart line for line, and even word for word. She had read it a dozen times of more, and the four and de separ together which it had aroused in her had caused the sentences of it to be graven upon her throbbing brain, never to be effaced. He to whom she had pledged herself loved her still, she had no doubt of that. He loved her still, and with a love whose truth and ardor could not be mistaken. It was plainly evident that he had written and sent this letter before receiving her last communication, that had passed, written as with her heart's blood, in which she had told him that it would be better for him now if he cut himself free from her, as she knew she could not be the right sort of wife for him now that he had the prospect of being rich and of occupying a high position in the world. To be a baronet was in her eyes to be a very important personage indeed; and of what use as the

Watch Your Colts

For Coughs, Colds and Distemper, and at the first symptoms of any such ailment, give small doses of that wonderful remedy, Spohn's Distemper Compound.

SPOHN'S DISTEMPER COMPOUND

If any druggist, Turf Goods house, or

SPOHN MEDICAL CO.,
Chemists and Bacteriologists, Goshen, Ind., U.S.A.

Redpath SUGAR

The inherited preference for Redpath Sugar that exists in so many thousands of Canadian homes to-day, is based on genuine satisfaction for three generations. Satisfaction first with "Ye Olde Sugar Loafe", made in Canada by John Redpath 60 years ago—then with Canada's first Granulated Sugar, made by the Redpath Refinery in 1880—now with the modern 2 lb. and 5 lb. Sealed Cartons of Redpath Extra Granulated—

"Canada's favorite sugar, at its best"

Get Redpath Sugar in original packages—then you are sure of the genuine!

CANADA SUGAR REFINING CO. LIMITED. MONTREAL.

A GOOD MEDICINE FOR THE SPRING

Do Not Use Harsh Purgatives —A Tonic is All You Need

Not exactly sick—but not feeling quite well. That is the way most people feel in the spring. Easily tired, appetite fickle, sometimes headaches, and a feeling of depression. Pimples or eruptions may appear on the skin, or there may be twinges of rheumatism or neuralgia. Any of these indicate that the blood is out of order—that the indoor life of winter has left its mark upon you and may easily develop into more serious trouble.

Do not dose yourself with purgatives, as so many people do, in the hope that you can put your blood right. Purgatives gallop through the system and weaken instead of giving strength. Any doctor will tell you this is true. What you need in spring is a tonic that will make new blood and build up the nerves. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is the only medicine that can do this speedily, safely and surely. Every dose of this medicine makes new blood which clears the skin, strengthens the appetite and makes tired, depressed men, women and children bright, active and strong. Mrs. S. E. Stephens, Ponoka, Alta., says: "I suffered severely from headaches, and was badly run down in health. I had tried several remedies with no benefit, until I was advised to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and these have fully restored my health, and I can recommend them with confidence to all weak women."

Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

FLIERS NOT MEANT FOR WAR.

Zeppelin Did Not Originally Intend Them for Fighting.

When, seven years ago, the first Zeppelin landed at the Kaiser's feet, William II. saluted the inventor with the words:

"I salute the greatest man of the twentieth century."

Count Zeppelin has devoted twenty years to his work on dirigible balloons with metal bodies. "I intend," he explained when he began his first effort, "to construct a vessel able to go to places that cannot be approached by other means except with great difficulty, able to reach unknown coasts and interiors by always moving in a straight line above earth and sea, able to move from one naval base or army to another, carrying men or despatches, so as to observe the movements of fleets or hostile armies, but not for active participation in operations of war."

Count Zeppelin is an old acquaintance for France. On July 20, 1870, when war was declared, he and four young officers with seven cavalrymen started to make reconnaissance just before Marshal von Moltke was to open hostilities. They hoped to return before being discovered, but soon found themselves obliged to beat a hasty retreat. They were pursued, but succeeded in passing through Wissembourg, Worth, and some other villages. At Retchshof, however, a squadron of chasseurs barred the way, and one officer, Lieut. Winslow, was killed. He was the first German to be killed in the war. Three other officers and seven dragoons were surrounded and compelled to surrender.

Zeppelin, mounted on a French horse, which he had taken, managed to escape. He was promoted Colonel when peace was signed and General in 1891. Soon afterwards he retired and devoted himself to his dirigible balloon work. He was 76 years old when war was declared last summer.

CAREFUL DOCTOR

Prescribed Change of Food Instead of Drugs.

It takes considerable courage for a doctor to deliberately prescribe only food for a despairing patient, instead of resorting to the usual list of medicines.

Some truly scientific physicians recognize and treat conditions as they are and should be treated. Here's an instance:

"Four years ago I was taken with severe gastritis, and nothing would stay on my stomach, so that I was on the verge of starvation.

"I heard of a doctor who had a summer cottage near me—a specialist—and, as a last hope, sent for him.

"After he examined me carefully he advised me to try a small quantity of Grape-Nuts at first, then as my stomach became stronger to eat more.

"I kept at it and gradually began to have color in my face, memory became clear, where before everything seemed a blank. My limbs got stronger and I could walk. So I steadily recovered.

"Now after a year on Grape-Nuts I weigh 153 lbs. My people were surprised at the way I grew fleshy and strong on this food."

Name given by Canadian Postum Co., Windsor, Ont. Read "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a Reason."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

OVER 1,000,000 MEN.

Perfectly Armed and Equipped to the Last Button

Italy to-day has 1,200,000 first line soldiers under arms. They are from twenty to twenty-six years of age. They are perfectly armed and equipped otherwise "to the last button."

General Zuppelli, the Italian Minister of War, speaking on the military situation in Italy, said that a miracle had been accomplished in that a country which for about twenty years had maintained a military organization merely for the preservation of peace had created what he termed one of the most perfect war machines. The change was not easy, General Zuppelli said, as was proved wherever the same work was attempted. Great Britain, for example, had faced the same problem, and though possessing greater resources was even less prepared than Italy. The War Minister said that the equipment of the army with weapons was superior proportionately to that of the German army at the beginning of the war.

Eagerness of the soldiers concentrated along the frontier to begin action is so great that their officers are compelled to hold them closely in check, for fear of disturbing border incidents.

In view of the extensive preparations which have been made the question is asked with increasing frequency why Italy does not enter the war. Men in a position to speak with authority say that a majority of the people prefer and the Government still hopes to obtain territorial concessions from Austria without a rupture of friendly relations.

Death Nearly Claimed New Brunswick Lady

Was Restored to Her Anxious Family When Hope Had Gone.

St. John, N.B., Dec. 15th—At one time it was feared that Mrs. J. Grant, of 3 White St. would succumb to the deadly ravages of advanced kidney trouble. "My first attacks of backache and kidney trouble began years ago. For six years that dull gnawing pain has been present. When I exerted myself it was terribly intensified. If I caught cold the pain was inexcusable. I used most everything, but nothing gave that certain grateful relief that came from Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butternut. Instead of being bowed down with pain, to-day I am strong, enjoy splendid appetite, sleep soundly. Lost properties have been instilled into my blood —cheeks are rosy with color, and I thank the day that I heard of and got a medicine as Dr. Hamilton's Pills."

Every woman should use these pills regularly because good health pays, and it's good, vigorous health that comes to all who use Dr. Hamilton's Mandrake and Butternut Pills.

HAVE MOVIES AT THE FRONT.

British Soldiers Enjoy Bath and Pictures in Rest Periods.

The British at the front are nearly all devotees of the "movies" and now they have a picture palace of their own. It is situated in the town hall of the village which is the headquarters of the Fourth Division and it is crowded every day with soldiers taking their rest from the trenches.

In the same village is a brewery fitted up as a bath house. The first thing the men do after issuing from the steaming vats and putting on fresh clothes is to flock to the picture show.

At first films were obtained at great expense from Paris and the mechanism was rigged up by soldiers who were movie operators before the war. Afterward one of the London agencies acquired some 16,000 feet of film and presented it to the brigade. Returning officers now make a point of bringing back fresh films with them.

The First Step.

"Pa," plaintively coaxed Mrs. Nookoyne, "I want to git in society."

"All right," resignedly assented Mr. Nookoyne. "I s'pose we kin hire a reporter to write somethin' scandalous about us."

The Hope of His Side.

Kaiser: "The strain is terrible. I'm afraid I shan't keep the wicket long."—Melbourne "Punch."

Suffered For More Than Two Years

THEN JOSEPH GAGNE FOUND A CURE IN DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS.

Quebec Man Took His Wife's Advice and Is Now Enjoying a New Lease of Health.

Ste. Marguerite Bay Mills, Saguenay Co., Que., April 28th (Special).—"Yes you can tell the public of the great relief I got from Dodd's Kidney Pills." The speaker was Mr. Joseph Gagne, a well-known resident of this place, and he has every reason to be enthusiastic over the great Canadian Kidney remedy.

"For more than two years I suffered from Kidney disease," Mr. Gagne continued. "It finally developed into pleurisy and I was a very sick man when my wife persuaded me to give Dodd's Kidney Pills a trial.

"I took just three boxes and they made me well."

Dodd's Kidney Pills make their users enthusiastic because they not only cure the particular ailment aimed at but they spread good health all over the body. They do this by curing the Kidneys. Cured Kidneys strain all the impurities out of the blood. That means pure blood and new health all over the body.

A SQUARE DEAL.

In any organization so large as that of the C.P.R., where under normal conditions over 100,000 employees are on the payroll, one great problem is that of keeping the employees, so to speak, dynamic, part of a living organization and not of mere machines. Zeal and ambition must be kept burning. Just as every soldier of Napoleon carried a field marshal's baton in his knapsack, so every office boy in the Company must feel he is a possible president, not merely earn his dollar a day till pension day. The system introduced on the Western lines with this in mind has proved exceedingly efficient. Each superintendent or foreman or head of a department makes two reports a year on his staff. Bright men are thus earmarked for special promotion. If any man is criticized the report is shown to him or initialled by him before it goes to Winnipeg. He gets a square deal, and if he has any life in him he mends his ways so that no such criticism can be made twice. Then again there are independent scouts, looking for the bright men, the tidy station agent, the courteous trainman, the man cool in emergency, the inventive mechanic, the stenographer who can run the office when the chief is absent. These scouts are searching for merit only, not for faults.

Over the whole system of the Canadian Pacific ideas and suggestions made by employees are not only welcomed, but lead to promotion. They go to the Record Office, where a statement of the employee's career is attached to the suggestion before it is considered by a committee. If the idea is adopted the record of the employee's career is then before the eyes of the powers that be, and recognition is sure to follow. The needle in the haystack is easy enough to find with a magnet, and there are a dozen magnets looking out for merit among the 100,000 employees of the C.P.R.

No More Corns

Guaranteed Cure

Never known to fail; acts without pain in 24 hours. Is soothing, healing; takes the sting right out. No remedy so quick, safe and sure as Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor. Sold everywhere—25c per bottle.

AN APPRECIABLE GIFT.

Appeal for Maple Syrup and Sugar for Red Cross Society.

The Canadian Red Cross Society has sent an urgent appeal to Mr. J. H. Grimm, who is well known in the maple syrup industry, for a donation of syrup and sugar for the boys at the front.

A letter from Colonel Gorrel, of the First Canadian Contingent, tells of the enthusiastic reception accorded a recent case from Canada containing, among other things, a few cakes of maple sugar. He states, "the men went fairly crazy with delight when it was given to them."

To a Canadian away from home it would be difficult to conceive of a more acceptable gift in the spring of the year than some genuine sugar or syrup from "the land of the Maple."

There are few farmers who could not spare at least a gallon of syrup or ten pounds of sugar for such a worthy and patriotic object. Those who respond,—and it is hoped there will be many,—are asked to pack carefully and express to The Canadian Red Cross Society, 56 Wellington St., Montreal, Que.

The express companies will carry such parcels free if plainly marked for "The Red Cross."

Ask for Minard's and take no other.

THINGS WORTH KNOWING.

What is believed to be the most durable highways in the world have been made in France of a concrete composed of iron shavings, cement and sand.

From ordinary sea weeds a London chemist claims to have extracted a gum that is proof against fire, acids and moisture and that is a better insulator against electricity than vulcanite.

A new electric torch for use about automobiles or machinery has an electric-magnet in its base, energized by the battery that supplies the light, to hold it against any iron or steel surface.

So that the burning of telephone wires fastened to a house will be lessened a new German system incloses the wires in cement cylinders, the inner surfaces of which are softer than the outer.

To test the strength of newly invented automobile inner tube it was used to tow a street car behind a traction engine in a California city and it withstood a strain calmated at seven tons.

Economy of fuel consumption in steamships often requires the mixing of two or more kinds of coal, and an Englishman has invented a coaling barge that mixes coal as it delivers it into a bunker.

An eastern railroad has built a machine operated by compressed air that loads two cars at once with steel rails or unloads them and places the rails ready for laying at a rate of four a minute.

The Russian government has been convinced by a number of Swiss engineers that it is perfectly feasible to bore a sixteen-mile tunnel through the Caucasus Mountains to join the Black and Caspian seas.

SICKLY CHILDREN PROMPTLY CURED

Baby's Own Tablets are an ideal medicine for little ones. They regulate the bowels and stomach and promptly cure constipation, indigestion, cold and simple fevers, expel worms, cure colic, and give baby health and happiness. Concerning them Mrs. Fred VanDerder, Dunnville, Ont., writes: "I have used Baby's Own Tablets for my four children and find they always give perfect satisfaction." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Some System.

Rankin—What do you think of the plan of giving cabaret patrons little hammers with which to pound on the tables for applause?

Phyle—It is an extremely ingenious method of turning a knock into a boost.

Sore Eyes Granulated Eyelids, Eyes inflamed by exposure to Sun, Dust and Wind quickly relieved by Murine Eye Remedy. No Smarting, just Eye Comfort. At Your Druggist's 50c per Bottle. Murine Eye Salve in Tubes 25c. For Book of the Eye free ask Druggists or Murine Eye Remedy Co., Chicago

Minard's Liniment Lumberman's Friend.

Boxing is now one of the subjects of physical instruction in the State schools of Australia.

Good-Bye, Old Backache Nerviline Will Fix You!

Stiffness is Rubbed Right Out; Every Sign of Pain Disappears.

Gee whiz—think of it!

No more stomach dosing necessary to cure your lame back.

Every trace of lameness, every bit of stiffness, every sign of weakness in the back's muscles can be rubbed away for all time to come by good old "Nerviline."

No other liniment can do the work so quickly, can penetrate so deeply, can bring ease and comfort to the back-weary sufferer as Nerviline invariably does.

Backache isn't the only malady Nerviline is quick to cure. For lumbago or sciatica you could go far to find relief so speedy as Nerviline gives. For chronic rheumatism there are pain destroying properties in Nerviline that give it first rank. The way it limbers up a stiff joint and takes soreness out of strained or rheumatic muscles is simply a wonder.

If you have an ache or a pain anywhere, if you have a sore back, a stiff neck, a stiff joint, a strained muscle—if you have lumbago, congested chest or sore throat, just try Nerviline. Rub it on plentifully—it won't blister, it can't do anything but cure you quickly. The large 50c. family size bottle is the most economical, of course, but you can, from any dealer, also get the 25c. small size of Nerviline, the king of all pain-relieving remedies.

A Base Libel.

She—I gave Rover one of my doughnuts to-day, and what do you suppose he did with it?

He—I don't know. Did he eat it?

She—No! Really! And yet they say dogs have no reasoning powers.

Jarrah trees in the Australian forests grow to a height of 120 feet; karri trees to 200 feet.

Minard's Liniment Co. Limited

"I was very sick with Quinsy and thought I could not live. I used MINARD'S LINIMENT and it cured me at once. I am never without it now."

Yours gratefully,

MRS. C. D. PRINCE.

Nauwigewauk, Oct. 21st.

An Economy.

"No money, no trunks," said the irate landlord. "If you don't pay your board bill, we hold your trunks till you do."

"Splendid!" said Dedbroke. "That'll save me the expense of storage on these things of mine until next season. By-by, old man!"

Minard's Liniment used by Physicians.

Errand Boy to Employer—"I wish to leave at the end of the week!" Employer—"Why do you want to leave? I thought you were satisfied with your work." "So, I am," replied the boy, "but I don't like doing a horse out of a job."

SEED POTATOES.

EARLY IRISH COBBLER POTATOES, specially selected and Government inspected for seed. Only limited quantity. Price, One Dollar per bushel f.o.b. Brampton. Also Canadensen's Pride and New Ideal, two excellent new potatoes. Price, Two Dollars per bushel. Special prices for large quantity. Cash must accompany all orders. H. W. Dawson, Brampton.

NEWSPAPERS FOR SALE.

PROFIT-MAKING NEWS and JOB OFFICE for sale in good Ontario town. The most useful and interesting of businesses. Full information on application to Wilson Publishing Company, 73 West Adelaide St., Toronto.

MISCELLANEOUS.

CANCER, TUMORS, LUMPS, ETC., internal and external, cured without pain by our home treatment. Write us before too late. Dr. Bellman Medical Co., Limited, Collingwood, Ont.

KERMATH Marine Engines

"America's Standard 4 Cycle Marine Motor"

Write for Catalog

KERMATH MFG. CO. Dept. Detroit, Mich.

Just a Scratch

BUT it needs looking after. Carbolated "Vaseline" will help it to heal quickly. A treatment free of infection. First aid treatment with

CARBOLATED

Vaseline

Made in Canada

It is a most effective antiseptic dressing for cuts, bruises, boils, and skin irritations of all kinds, such as eczema, poison ivy and barber's itch. Also good for corns.

AVOID SUBSTITUTES. Insist on "Vaseline" in original packages. Refuse substitutes. For free booklet on "Vaseline" and its uses, write to our Montreal office.

CHESEBROUGH MFG CO. (Consolidated) 1880 CHABOT AVE., MONTREAL

Contributory Negligence.

Mrs. Phatpurse—Percy Earlcroft married? Taken in by a designing parlor maid? How shocking!

Mrs. Stuffedcoin—Designing, I say. Ought to have looked up her references before he hired her.

Just That.

Jealous—What is an expert, pa?

Pa—A fellow who tells others how to do the things he can't do himself.

Keep Minard's Liniment in the house.

NEW PERFECTION OIL COOK STOVES

"NOW SERVING 2,000,000 HOMES"

THE NEW PERFECTION Oil Cookstove, for years manufactured in the United States, is now made in Canada.

The Perfection Stove Company, Ltd., at Sarnia, Ont., is manufacturing these stoves for distribution by The Imperial Oil Company, Ltd., throughout the Dominion.

The NEW PERFECTION is the best-known and most-liked oil stove in the world. Over 2,000,000 are now in use—saving money and labor for their users and keeping kitchens clean and comfortable.

The NEW PERFECTION brings gas stove conveniences to the kitchen. It lights like gas, cooks like gas. 1, 2, 3, and 4 burner sizes.

Ask your dealer to show you a NEW PERFECTION Oil Cookstove—made at Sarnia, Ont., by Canadian workmen. If he can't supply you, write us direct.

ROYALITE OIL GIVES BEST RESULTS

THE IMPERIAL OIL COMPANY Limited

BRANCHES IN ALL CITIES

THE IMPERIAL OIL COMPANY LIMITED

Made in Canada

House-Cleaning Supplies

SINCLAIR'S

The Hardware Store of Better Values

Vacuum Cleaner for Rent

50c per Day

Lawn Mowers

IT'S EASY WITH A GOOD MOWER

$4.00 to $5.50

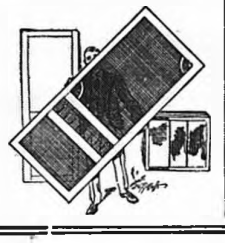
"New Perfection" Oil Stoves

Are durable, simple in operation, and suitable for all kinds of cooking the year round. Especially popular in summer because they keep the kitchen cool and clean.

Made with 1, 2, 3 and 4 Burners

From stock—2-Burner, $8; 3-Burner, $11

Ovens, $2.50 and $3



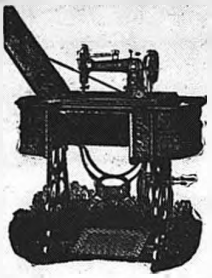
"Stop the fly's unwholesome buzz.
Handsome is as handsome does."

Price of DOORS
$1.25, $1.50, $1.90, $2.25, $2.50
complete with Hinges, etc.

WINDOWS priced at 15c, 25c, 30c, 35c, 40c and 60c

FLY SWATTERS, 10 CENTS

"The fly discriminates disease,
So therefore you should await:
Unswattled flies are very bad,
But swatted flies are not."



Seeds Seeds Seeds

MANGLE, RAPE, TURNIP AND CORN
At the Best Prices.

Bruce 'Phone 11

Sinclair's Hardware

Bell 'Phone 30

We handle the Goodrich, Raymond, New Williams, White, Singer and Standard — all the very latest models. Edison Gramophones and Records, Bell Pianos and organs.

PETER McKINNON, Agent, Paisley
Ross Street

Dorothy Spong, Ephemia Elder, Walter Hopper. Jr III—Pass—Reuben Gregg. Sr II—Honors—Gordon Belbeck, Norman Rhody, Lillie Bissell. Pass—Marjorie Hopper. Failure—Lloyd Hopper. Jr II—Honors—May Bissell, Mary Spong. Pass—Nettie Butchart, Fred Bishop. Sr I—Honors—Elvin Gregg, Gordon Hopper. Jr I—Honors—John Rhody. Pass—(Ruby Cargill, Pearl Alexander and Hugh Bissell—equal). Artie Alexander. Primer—C—Isabella Elder. B—Margaret Bohm. A—Edith Hopper, Grace Gregg, Adolph Rody.

M. KERR, Teacher

—Some of our contemporaries are advocating for the removal of that disease which afflicts all more or less at this season of the year, spring fever, accompanied with the general lassitude and feeling of out of sorts, that some spring medicine should be taken, says The Stratford Beacon. One of them says not too much, and also plenty of nature's great medicine, sleep. The Beacon ventures to put in another plea here for what many now consider has come to be a hobby, gardening. To those whose work is mainly indoors there can be no better spring tonic than some exercise in the open air. Walking is good, but gardening is equally as good and with it comes the fact that it will bring in reward in other ways in a little while in the production of fresh vegetables for the table, or of beautiful flowers to adorn it, as well as to contribute to the general beauty of the city.

—It may be information of a beneficial sort to fishermen that in accordance with the act which states specifically that there can be no fishing done in any of the Inland waters in Ontario with spears, that this includes all streams such as creeks, etc. It is therefore a violation of the act to use a spear when fishing for suckers. The fish can be caught with a hook during the season of running or any other time without leaving the party liable. The use of the spear has been banned owing to parties abusing the privilege given, it having come to light that on occasional muskinonge was taken in this way. It remains within the power of the fish inspector to prosecute parties found spearing suckers.

CASTORIA

For Infants and Children

In Use For Over 30 Years

Always bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher

—BUTTER PAPER—real vegetable parchment, not a cheaper imitation—printed and sold at The Advocate Office at lowest possible prices. We can print 500 sheets or more with your name on, and for the convenience of those who do not require that quantity, we keep printed wrappers on hand without any name on and sell this in quantities of 100 sheets or over.

The City Bakery

Is always ready to supply your needs. Why worry and melt over a hot fire? We are here to do your Baking for you. Let us try.

Other than baking we try to keep a fresh supply of Greens and Fruit on hand—as well as a full stock of Fresh Groceries.

We would appreciate it if the public would make their purchases early on Thursdays as it is impossible for us to maintain a strict observance of the Thursday half-holiday on account of our Ice Cream Parlor which will be open every Thursday evening.

We need your trade. Butter and Eggs for Cash or Trade. Dutch Set Onions for sale.

Bruce and Bell 'Phones

F. S. McLACHLAN

Buy High-Grade Flour

Direct From the Mill

MAKE the best bread and pastry you've ever tasted. Prices of flour and feeds are listed below. Orders may be assorted as desired. On shipments up to 5 bags buyer pays freight charges. On shipments over 5 bags we will prepay freight to any station in Ontario east of Sudbury and South of North Bay. West of Sudbury and New Ontario add 15 cents per bag. Prices are subject to market changes. Cash with orders.

Cream of the West Flour

the hard wheat flour guaranteed for bread

	Per 98-lb. bag
GUARANTEED FLOURS
Cream of the West (for bread)	$3.45
Toronto's Pride (for bread)	3.60
Queen City (blended for all purposes	3.50
Monarch (makes delicious pastry)	3.50
FEED FLOURS
Tower	2.80
CEREALS
Cream of the West Wheatlets (per 6-lb bag)	.35
Norwegian Rolled Oats (per 90-lb. bag	3.40
Family Cornmeal (per 98-lb. bag)	2.30
FEEDS	Per 100-lb. bag
Bullrush Bran	$1.40
Bullrush Middlings	1.50
Extra White Middlings	1.62½
Crushed Oats	2.10
Cracked Corn	1.85
Barley Meal	1.90
Geneva Feed (Crushed Corn, Oats and Barley)	1.90
Oil Cake Meal (old process)	2.05
Cotton Seed Meal	1.95

These prices are not guaranteed for any length of time owing to the unsettled condition of the market.

Every bag of Flour ordered entitles purchaser to two bags of bran or middlings at 10c per bag less than the prices given above. Special prices to farmers' clubs and others buying in carload lots.

You can get a free copy of "Ye Old Millers Household Book" (formerly Dominion Cook Book) if you buy three bags of flour. This useful book contains 1,000 carefully selected recipes and a large medical department. If you already have the former edition (Dominion Cook Book) you may select one book from the following list each time you order from us not less than three bags of flour. If you buy six bags you get two books, and so on. Send 10c in stamps for each book to pay for postage. Remember at least 3 bags must be flour:

— BOOKS —

Helen's Babies
Lorna Doone
Mill on the Floss
Tom Brown's School Days
Adam Bede
David Harum
Innocents Abroad
Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm
The Lilac Sunbonnet
The Scarlet Pimpernel
Beautiful Joe
Little Women and Good Wives
The Story of an African Farm
Black Beauty
Jan Vedder
The Three Musketeers
The Mighty Atom
Mr. Potter of Texas
Jess
A Welsh Singer

The Campbell Flour Mills Company Ltd.
(West) Toronto

GLAMIS

Mrs W J McKeeman is attending a woman's convention in Hamilton. She will also visit in Beamsville before returning.

Miss Alberta Kirktown spent the week end at her home.

Miss Minnie Howson spent a few days visiting friends in Paisley.

Mr John Wittig and Mrs McIntyre, from the 4th of Bruce, spent Sunday afternoon at J C McIntyre's.

Rev and Mrs Reith, Mrs McKeeman and Miss Jennie, Miss Lizzie Campbell, Miss Maud McKay were the delegates to Bruce Presbytery held in Chesley on Thursday.

The reeves of the three townships were here on business on Monday.

Mother's day will be observed in the Baptist church on Sunday. Special music will be provided.

GRESHAM

Mr Geo Brown delivered two fine 3-year-old steers to Paisley the other day, for which he received $221.60. They were the best cattle delivered out of Gresham for some time. Mr Cormack was the buyer.

Messrs Geo Fullerton and Jas A McKinnon have both bought new autos.

Mrs Geo Fullerton and Mrs Wm Parker attended the ladies' meeting in Chesley last week. They motored over in Mr Geo Fullerton's new car.

Centre Bruce Sabbath School was re-opened last Sunday with the re-election of all the old teachers. Mr Alex Wood is Superintendent and L McLean Young, Sec'y-Treas.

Miss Jean Fullerton, of Paisley, visited friends here and on the 6th over the week-end.

PINKERTON

We understand that Mr Harry Purdy, township clerk of Greenock, has the task of deciding on the number of legal signatures to Mr Adam Knox's petition for a license. He will be at the hotel on Tuesday evening for that purpose.

Our schoolboys went down to defeat in a baseball game played on Wednesday evening of last week with the pupils of Eden Grove academy. However, the game was new to our boys and they no doubt learned some valuable lessons.

Rev and Mrs Gale and Mrs A Gregg attended the Presbyterial W M S in Chesley on Thursday last.

Mr and Mrs E Gale, of Toronto, are visiting the former's parents at the manse.

Children Cry
FOR FLETCHER'S
CASTORIA

WILLOW CREEK

Mr Fred Schnittker has purchased Mr Aaron Roppel's farm, lot 16, con 7, Bruce.

Mr Jos Wrightson has purchased a new touring car.

Mr Rich McGregor has purchased fine touring car.

Mrs Thos Wrightson has engaged Miss Rosie Hellig from Carrick for the summer.

LOVAT

Mr Dune McArthur is engaged with Mr Dune McGillivray for the seeding.

We are pleased to hear that Mr Neil McLean is able to be around again.

Mr Robt McGregor spent Sunday in Glamis.

Mr John Rose made a business trip to Walkerton this week. It is expected that John will bring an auto back with him.

Mr and Mrs Geo Pace spent Sunday at her old home on the 7th of Kincardine.

SIXTH CON. BRUCE

Mr and Mrs Arthur Burrows, of Walkerton, have moved into Mr J McGillivray's house. Mr Burrows intends working at the Lovat Brick and Tile yards.

Mr Mac Campbell is engaged with Mr Peter Barrie for the summer.

Mr and Mrs Jas B McKay spent Sunday at Mr and Mrs John McKay's, Paisley.

Wedding bells are ringing.

WALKERTON

Some boys in Walkerton who are said to be indulging in the practice of shooting fish will do well to be guided by the experience of Amos Vassel, of Kinlough, who was fined $14.50 the other day for this offence, Provincial Constable Armstrong catching him in the act. It is said that Vassel had been warned last year against the practice, but his failure this year to heed the instructions proved a rather costly outlay.

R S Andrews, of Toronto, who was charged with peddling without a license last August, and who, it seems, avoided arrest by sending his horse back from Chesley to Paisley and leaving at that time for parts unknown, was served with a summons by the chief of police of Toronto, and his case came before Magistrate Tolton at Walkerton last Thursday when he was assessed $61.60. Provincial Constable J H Armstrong prosecuted the case.

Considerable difficulty, we understand, is being experienced in getting a fit and proper person to lash the Indian here, as nobody seems to be falling over himself for the job. Some able-bodied man who is out of work might get in on some easy coin by offering himself for the job, and the brutal manner in which the Indian abused his wife shouldn't make volunteers scarce to avenge the lady's wrongs, for never, in our opinion, has a man deserved a flogging more than this chap. No doubt some capable person will be found to lick the Indian, and here's hoping that he may handle himself good. In 1870, which was the last time a party was whipped in Walkerton, the town policeman is said to have thrown such energy into the work that he had to be warned to ease off a little, as the man collapsed under the stripes before he was half through with the program.

Messrs John Bester and Joseph Zettel are each confined to the house with a broken leg, the result of a mishap on Saturday morning last while attempting to move Bester's house in the west ward to the front part of his lot. The house, which is a two-story rough-cast dwelling, had been raised up on blocks and someone, it seems, was tacking it up still higher on one end when the blocks on the other side suddenly collapsed and caused the house to fall on the legs of Bester and Zettel, who were placed under the building, and who, it seems, were obliged to remain there nearly an hour before the rescuing party could release them. On being removed Zettel was found to have sustained a compound fracture of his right leg, which was discovered broken in two places below the knee. Bester also sustained a painful break below the knee, and although both are progressing favorably under the doctor's care, it will be some weeks before their injured trotters are fit for service again.

The South Bruce License Commissioners met in Walkerton on Thursday last, and after granting the usual tavern licenses for the ensuing year, wound up their affairs and officially passed out of existence. The board, which was constituted of Messrs John M Fischer, George Sirrs, George Moffatt and License Inspector White, was noted for the fearless manner in which it did its duty and was certainly a credit to South Bruce. Where it saw an over-abundance of licenses it wielded the pruning hook, and within the past few years Walkerton alone was reduced from seven to four licenses. Being more than figure heads, they did work off their own beats that would have sent the spineless jelly-fish on some other boards to the hospital with nervous prostration. Inspector White's record for doing things would almost make some of the other inspectors feel that they had done nothing but draw salary. Some of them were a big joke and the curtain that dropped on them fell on a mere farce. If a man is to be remembered by his works they are already forgotten. As the Government is about to employ 25 inspectors at a salary each of $1000 a year, and they to work under the new central commission at Toronto, the splendid work done by Inspector White is likely to insure him a place on the new board.—Herald and Times.

SCHOOL REPORTS

S S No 10, Bruce & Greenock
March and April

Honors 75, pass 60. Those marked * missed one or more examination. Sr IV—Kate McGillivray 79. Jr IV—Louisa Ross 65, Harold Nelson and John McGillivray 60*, Violet Vance 50*. Sr III—John George McGregor 79, Kathleen Bruce 59, Lizzie Ross 49, Archie Arthur 30*. Jr III—Sandy McGillivray 78, Bessie McGillivray 60, D J Metcalf, Victor Kidd 23*, Nellie Metcalf 15*. Sr II—Hazel Vance 90, Archie McGillivray 86, Willie McArthur 50*, Willie McDougald 41*. Jr II—Harry Metcalf 73, Christina McGregor 70, Wilfred Dudgeon 66, Murray McGregor 42. Sr I—Myrtle Vance 82, Howard McGregor 80, Edna Vance 74, Emma Bruce 60, Willard McDougald 54. Jr Pt II—Greta McKay, Annie McGillivray. Jr I—Verna Dudgeon, Elvin Roppel, Sheldon Kidd, Roy McGregor. 1—Reta Nelson, Roy Metcalf.

A R Rankin, Teacher

S S No 7 BRANT

Sr IV—W Brown, S Scott, G Kerry, H Reed, F Young, M Fordyce, O Seller. Jr IV—G Scott, D McKeeman, T Desmond, G Kerry. Sr III—G Gregg, L Scott, W O'Reilly, D Desmond, E Acton. Jr III—J McKeeman, K Kauffman. Sr II—F Smith, M Young, T Young, V Bloe, A Young, H Brown, A Hoffarth. Jr II—L Kerry, T Desmond. (2d Kauffman, S Kauffman, N Kerry—equal), (E Bloe, M Young, H Scott—equal), L Gregg, J O'Reilly. Sr I—P Gregg, M Pearson, C Hoffarth, D Hoole. Sr Primer—M Napper, B Edmunds, J Alexander, W Zettler, A Kauffman, J Kupperschmidt. Jr—G Kerry, D O'Reilly, N Gregg, G Gregg, F Kauffman, V Young, L Zettler, A Zettler, W Pepper. No. enrolled, 36; average attendance, 28. H S Lovell, Teacher

S S No 1, Elderslie

Sr IV—Janie Luttrell, Maurice Gowanlock. Jr IV—Jean Reid, Anna Luttrell. Sr III—Mabel Claxton, Ellen McPherson, Viola McPherson, Ivan McPherson, John McIntyre. Jr III—Annie Taylor, Laura Reid. Sr II—Peter Reid. Jr II—Norman Somerville, Austin McPherson. Sr I—Keith McIntyre, Jr I—Thelma Gowanlock, Lillian Stoddart. Primer—Alex McIntyre.

Perfect attendance—Mabel Clarke, Thelma Gowanlock, Janie Luttrell, John McIntyre, Ellen McPherson, Austin McPherson, Jean Reid, Laura Reid, Norman Somerville.

Average attendance 17.

Tena E Oswald, Teacher

S S No 4, Elderslie

Sr IV—Failure—Hazel Burns. Sr III—Failure—Lelia Burns. Jr III—Pass—Eric Hegedorn. Failure—Edgar Maurer, Oliver Maurer. Jr II—Honors—Jean Burns. Pass—Minnie Turner. Failure—Philip Turner, Ethel Hammond. I (c)—Pass—Gladys Perrie, Edna Hammond, (b)—Honors—Emily Burns. (a)—Laurence Tanner.

Prudence Kerr, Teacher

S S No 1, Elderslie & Brant

Sr IV—Pass—Rodger Hood. Jr IV—Honors—Ted Cargill. Pass—Irene Hubbin. Failure—Florence Spong. Sr III—Pass—

REMARKABLE CASE of Mrs. HAM

Declares Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Saved Her Life and Sanity.

Shamrock, Mo.—"I feel it my duty to tell the public the condition of my health before using your medicine. I had falling, inflammation and leucorrhœa, female weakness, pains in both sides, backaches and bearing-down pains, was short of memory, nervous, impatient, passed sleepless nights, and had neither strength nor energy. There was always a fear and dread in my mind, I had cold, nervous, weak spells, hot flashes over my body. I had a place in my right side that was so sore that I could hardly bear the weight of my clothes. I tried medicines and doctors, but they did me little good, and I never expected to get out again. I got Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Blood Purifier, and I certainly would have been in grave or in an asylum if your medicines had not saved me. But now I can work all day, sleep well at night, eat anything I want, have no hot flashes or weak, nervous spells. All pains, aches, fears and dreads are gone, my house, children and husband are no longer neglected, as I am almost entirely free of the bad symptoms I had before taking your remedies, and all is pleasure and happiness in my home."—Mrs. John Ham, R. F. D. 1, Box 22, Shamrock, Missouri.

If you want special advice write Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., (confidential) Lynn, Mass.

Steele's for

Horse Collars, Sweat Pads, Rubber Lap Rugs, Whips, Auto Plush Rugs, Star Harness Soap, Bickmore's Gall Cure, Axle Grease

Our Harness includes quality, durability, appearance and high class workmanship, found in no other makes of Harness.

Baggage Trunks, Suit Cases, Club Bags, Grips. Good assortment and close prices.

Harness parts and Repairing our Specialty

J. H. STEELE

R. T. ROBINSON
CARPENTER AND CONTRACTOR

ESTIMATES furnished for the erection of any class of building. Large or small contracts undertaken.

Address Chesley or Cargill P.O

PURDY'S LIVERY

Rates Reasonable, and every effort made to satisfy

F. PURDY

—Clubbing rates with all the city dailies and weeklies.

Many Colleges Close for Vacation at mid-summer. Our College does not.

ELLIOTT Business College

TORONTO — ONT.

is strictly Restrictive. Name better in Canada. Enter now, so as to take a position in the early fall. One graduate writes: "My new position pays three times what I got at teaching school just than four years ago, just previous to entering your College." We placed this young man in a position after graduation, and have ever placed him again. Catalogue free.

W. J. ELLIOTT, Principal. Cor. Yonge and Charles Sts.

W. H. BAKER

Having opened a shop in Sinclair's old hardware building, Queen St. North, we are prepared to do all kinds of

Sign and Carriage Painting

HOUSE DECORATING AND PAPER-HANGING, as usual. Prices right.

ROBT. IRVING
PLASTERER

SEE Robt. Irving the Plasterer before letting any work in this line. Separate estimates for all kinds of plastering, or with Jas Dewar for whole contracts for erection of buildings.

Thorobred Shorthorns for Sale

THE Aberdeen P.O. is now closed. In future our brand will be known as the "Aberdeen Shorthorns." A number of choice young bulls and heifers for sale at the present time. G CHRISTIE & SON, Port Elgin, R.R. No 3.

The Paisley Advocate.

D. McKENZIE, Publisher
Vol. 47—No. 19

PAISLEY, ONTARIO, MAY 13, 1915.

$1.00 per Annum in Advance
$1.25 if not so paid

Grand Opening of Summer Goods!

We have now on display a full range of Summer Novelties, such as are seen on Fifth Avenue, New York. They include Embroidered Voiles, plain and flowered Crepes, the new Silk Poplin in all shades, the fashionable black and white striped Muslins, Vestings, etc. We have the well known Vivyella Cloth in all shades—the cloth that washes without fading or shrinking. These novelty dress goods are carried in dress lengths only, making them exclusive.

In our staple department you will find a complete stock of Factory Cottons, Cambrics, Lonsdales, Madapalons, Longcloths, Bridalcloths, etc, also Curtain Scrims, plain and flowered Voiles, Bungalow Nets, Reversible Cretonnes, Art Sateens, Ginghams, Repps, Galateas, Shirtings, etc.

Before purchasing come in and look over our Men's, Ladies' and Children's Shoes. We have added several new lines, including Oxfords and Pumps of the latest designs. Our Pumps are made over pump lasts, not over a shoe last, as a great many pumps are, so you will find they fit the feet.

In our Men's Furnishings you will find a new stock of Men's and Boys' Straw Sailors, Felt Hats, Shirts, Ties, Sox, etc. Perhaps there never was a time when better values were offered in Men's Clothing than right now, even with conditions so uncertain. They are made of strong English and Canadian cloths in medium and dark patterns, light and dark Grey and Browns. The coats are 3-buttoned, single-breasted, sack style, lined with strong Italian cloth; the vests close with 5 buttons; the trousers are extra strongly made and sewn. We have them all prices.

We sell the famous "Niagara Maid" Silk Gloves the pure silk that gives long wear, the high-class workmanship, the perfect fit and the guaranteed double tip.

Fresh Groceries Every Week

Highest Prices Paid for Farm Produce

M. J. CAMPBELL
W. H. McFarlane's Old Stand : : Paisley

New Spring Suitings

See our goods and styles before buying. We have a large stock to choose from.

We Make a Specialty of . . .
Ladies' Tailoring

No trying on or worrying. Just leave your measure and we will attend to the rest. All the newest goods and latest styles from which to make your selection. Satisfaction guaranteed.

I. S. Cruickshank

CHANGE OF BUSINESS BARGAINS

Children's Boots, Booties, Children's and Women's Slippers, Children's and Misses' Boots and Shoes, Gents' Boots and Shoes. Children's Footwear, from Booties up to sizes 10, 11 and 12, at prices ranging from 50c up. These are extra good quality, but we want to get rid of them, so we are almost giving them away.

Gents' Fancy Silk and Linen Wash Ties regular 50c and 75c, for 25, 35 and 40c. These are seasonable money savers.

Neck Scarfs and Silk Handkerchiefs at a big discount.

CHINA—Austrian, Bavarian and German China, some hand-painted pieces—in Biscuit Jars, Raw Fruit Bowls, Nifty Milk and Cream Pitchers, Tea Pots, Cake Plates, Nut Bowls, Celery Trays, etc., at all prices very, very low. This class of goods will soon be souvenirs, as none can now be bought to renew stock. Just the line from which to purchase pieces to replace those you find broken at housecleaning time.

1000 Crates of Eggs Wanted at Once. Farmers, call and get your crates and fill them up. Highest Prices in Trade or Cash for both Butter and Eggs.

Our Ice Cream Parlor will be open some day this week. Watch for our opening day.

A. T. BONATHAN
Hyde's Old Stand Successor to W. S. Mitchell

—Private funds to loan.
D. FORRESTER.

—Fresh Sausages, 2 lbs. for 25c. H. E. McGREGOR.

—Wilkinson plows and repairs at F. Carter & Son's.

—Marriage licenses issued and money to loan. T. H. GEORGE.

—Good driving horse for sale, 7 years old. Enquire at Advocate office.

—Our stock of men's suits is exceptionally good. Ballachey, Laidlaw & Co.

—Full lines of fine engagement and wedding rings at I. Shoemaker's jewellery store.

—FOR SALE CHEAP—Top buggy, auto seat, steel tired, good as new. Apply to H. B. PUTNAM.

—Dress muslins at 10c a yard. Fifteen designs and colors. Ballachey, Laidlaw & Co.

—Highest prices paid for hides and sheepskins. H. E. McGregor, Butcher, Steele Block.

—Highest price for beefhides, horsehides, calfskins, sheepskins, tallow, &c. P. OLTSHER, Paisley Meat Market.

—How about that new rug? We can supply nearly any size in every price. Ballachey, Laidlaw & Co.

—"Rough on Rats" clears out Rats, Mice, etc. Don't dig in the house. 15c and 35c at drug and country stores.

—It's only a dollar, but it means a good deal to THE ADVOCATE if hundreds are slow in paying that on their subscription.

—Eggs for Setting—from a proven good strain of that great utility breed, the Barred Rocks—15 eggs for 75c. Apply to Mrs. A. McKenzie, Paisley.

—If you have a guest at your home, are going out of town for a visit, or know of any interesting news, kindly let us hear from you. We will always appreciate such favors.

—Just received at B. Stevenson's an assortment of pipes that will surely please. Come and select your choice. Tobaccos, stationery, also our wonderful salve that cures burns and sores, soothing for burns.

—HOMESEEKERS' EXCURSIONS every Tuesday up to and including October to the Canadian Northwest. For tickets, maps, etc., apply at the Canadian Pacific Railway ticket office, W. H. McFarlane's old stand, Paisley.

—Five Roses, Rainbow, Purity, Cream of the West, and Stark's high-grade flours, also Bran and Shorts, Blatchford's Sugar and Flax, Caldwell's Molasses Meal, and full line of Poultry Foods and Tonics. Always in the market for coarse grains. E. G. ECKEL.

—SEEDS, SEEDS—We can supply everything that is wanted by the farmer or gardener for spring seeding and planting. Many seeds usually sold in packages can be bought from us in bulk at much better value, all from reliable growers. See us before ordering. E. G. ECKEL.

Wrecked and Traded

A motor car cheaper than a horse is the style of a deal made by Mr. W. J. Ellis, of the Central Hotel, on Monday. This looks to be something of a bargain for Jim, but the machine is decidedly out of commission in the meantime, while the steed is in good order. It happened this way. Mr. Easton Mahon, of South Hampton, went through here in his car on Monday, on the way to Chesley with another gentleman. In turning the corner to take the fourth concession of Elderslie he did not slow down, wishing to take the first grade there on high gear. The speed was too fast, however, for control on the turn, and the car shot into a ditch and became a wreck. The two men were thrown headlong over the front, Mr. Mahon evening without the slightest injury, while his companion suffered only a few minor bruises and scratches. They came back to town and it was while returning to the scene of the wreck in T. F. Pearce's car that another painful chapter was added to the tale by the accident to Mr. Hugh Nichol. Whether the combination of accidental circumstances had a calamitous effect on Mr. Mahon's system, we know not, but the outcome was a trade, "outright, unseen," between him and Mr. Ellis, the latter getting $50.00 in good money to boot. The lame car was later pulled in behind a wagon to Patterson's garage for repairs.

—The new Methodist hymn book may be ready for public sale by about mid-summer of 1916, or at all events by the end of that year. It will number approximately 650 or 660 hymns and 600 tunes. The book at present in use has 936 hymns and 338 tunes. The aim has been to produce a book that will contain a minimum of little-used poetry and that will be much richer musically. Those interested in church union will be pleased to learn that about 350 hymns will be common to both the Methodist and Presbyterian hymnals.

—Mr. and Mrs. S. Ballachey are spending a week visiting in Buffalo, Brantford and Burford.

—Mr. Hanly Irwin disposed of his last year's Studebaker and is now driving a new 1915 five passenger car of the same make.

—Rev. Mr. Gale, of Pinkerton, will preach at preparatory communion services in Knox church on Friday afternoon and evening.

—Drive the fly from its entrenched positions by cleaning up and disinfecting its breeding places—the garbage can, the privy pit and exposed manure pile.

—Mr. A. Platt continues to improve since his recent operation, and we are glad to learn is now able to sit up in his bed at the hospital in Toronto. Mr. H. Platt went to the city again on Monday.

—Privates Sam Fleming and Thos. Babcock were home from Guelph camp over Sunday. These two members of the third contingent have been drafted into the reinforcement camps that is to be sent to the front to help fill the depleted ranks of the Canadian forces.

—Mr. Dan Sparrow last week bought a Ford auto. This is the fifth new car in town this spring. There are now 25 autos in Paisley, and we heard one man claim that there are more to the population than in any place of its size in the country. Perhaps so.

—Mr. D. G. Anderson has sold his interest in the St. Mary's Argus to Mr. A. Stewart. Mr. Anderson was a former high school teacher in St. Mary's and thought he would have an easier time in helping to publish a newspaper, but his experience reached the limit when in the newspaper game. The snap is not what it appears to be when looking in from the outside.

—The W. C. T. U. held a parlor meeting at the home of Mrs. (Dr.) Allen when a very pleasant and profitable evening was spent. A short musical programme was given, also a recitation. Miss Hyslop, Provincial Organizer of the W. C. T. U. gave a very interesting address, outlining the wonderful work done by the union. Five new members were added to the local union.

—Mrs. Thos. Dent, of Bruce Tp., who is now 92 years of age is recovering from a siege of illness, and was in town on Tuesday. She is not able to walk, however, being propelled about in an invalid's chair. Mrs. Dent is remarkably bright in intellect for one of her great age, takes a keen interest in the war and reads the news papers daily. As some of our readers will remember, Mrs. Dent in her childhood was at times a playmate of the late Queen Victoria in Old England, and has something of an acquaintance with the royal families of Europe. She informed THE ADVOCATE on Tuesday that the Kaiser could not be expected to develop into a good and wise ruler, as when a boy he was very saucy to his mother.

—Miss Ella J. Anstead, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Anstead, of Paisley, has been appointed princip al of the training school for nurses at Ogdensburg, N.Y. Miss Anstead is a graduate of the New York ho[illegible] and has had several years experience in institution work, having occupied positions in McLean hospital, Waverley, Mass.; Butler hospital, Providence, R.I., and Bloomingdale hospital, White Plains, N.Y., three of the largest and highest class private institutions for the insane in the east. For the past three years she held the position of Assistant Superintendent of Nurses in the New York Infirmary for Women and Children. The Ogdensburg hospital authorities feel that they have found in Miss Anstead a person highly qualified for the position in which she has been appointed, and one whose opportunities and the manner in which they have been utilized could scarcely be better.

Badly Injured

Mr. Hugh Nichol, of Victoria St. south, will be laid up for months as the result of an accident he met with on Monday forenoon. He was working with his team, clearing away some fence debris on Goldie St. for Mr. T. H. George. He was throwing some boards on the back of the wagon, when an auto came over the hill. The team took fright and ran towards the fence. In his efforts to stop the animals Mr. Nichol was knocked down and the wagon passed over him. The occupants of the car were the owner, Mr. T. F. Pearce, Messrs. P. Oltsher, Ist. B. Craig and E. Mahon, the latter from Southampton. They stopped and did what they could in the way of attending to the injured man, procuring a doctor also a vehicle and stretcher to convey him home. Mr. Nichol's left leg is broken in two places above the knee and in the right leg there was a long cut that required numerous stitches. The team got clear of the wagon, which is badly broken up. The animals don't appear to be injured. To Mr. Nichol the accident is a serious misfortune, as he will be inexpectated for work for at the least a few summer, so that he will be unable to attend to his farm crops or do teaming.

More's Wall Papers for 1915

Be wise in time and see our excellent aggregation of new and artistic effects in room decorations before purchasing your supply.

We have never shown a better range of Wall Paper or at more reasonable prices.

P. B. MORE .·. Druggist

Established over Forty-one Years

THE STANDARD BANK OF CANADA

ASSETS OVER $48,000,000

The A, B, C of Banking

Absolute Security
Best of Service
Courteous Treatment

We solicit your account in our SAVINGS DEPARTMENT

PAISLEY BRANCH

F. C. RYAN Manager

Branches also at Harriston and Tiverton.

Paisley Meat Market

Fresh Beef, Pork, Mutton, Cured Hams, Bacon, etc. Salt Pork, Cooked Meats, Home-made Sausage (2 lbs for 25c), Bologna and Headcheese. Kidney Suet. Poultry in season.

Cash for Hides Bones and Skins . . . Bell Phones P. Oltsher

J. S. DEWAR

PAISLEY

Builder, Contractor and Cement Worker

Brick or cement buildings erected, brick work, cement work and plastering contracts taken.

Cement Supplies Furnished

Building Blocks, Window and Door Sills, Culvert Tile, Well Curbing, Lawn Rollers, Lawn Vases, Verandah Columns, Balusters and other fancy Cement Products.

Building Material

Cement, Lime, Lath, Shingles, Glazed Sewer Pipe and Fire Lining, Mortar Color, etc.

Large supply of

Oilcloths and Linoleums

just to hand

Now is the time to get your new supply, before they are picked over.

We have also a good assortment of Squares, and our prices can't be beaten. Give us a call before buying.

For good Butter and Eggs we pay the highest price in either CASH or TRADE . . .

Both 'Phones PUTNAM & SON

A Bright Young Life Cut Off

Death brings sorrow even in the case of those ripe in years and whose failing vitality makes it more or less anticipated, but when the silent messenger of death calls away the bright young boy or girl then the loss is particularly hard to bear. The case of Samuel G. H. only son of Mr and Mrs Henry McMorran, of Greenock, is indeed sad. His death, the cause of which was rheumatic pnd heart trouble, took place on Sunday morning, May 9th. He was just in his thirteenth year, and one of the brightest lads in this community. In his home school he always held a leading place in his class, and the same while attending Paisley school for a term. Only the memory of the lovely boy is left, yet how sweet, how uplifting its influence! For after all, death is but the slipping off of the outer body. "When death strikes down the innocent and the young, for every fragile form from which he lets the panting spirit free, a hundred virtues rise, in shapes of mercy, charity and love, to walk the world and bless it. Of every tear that sorrowing mortals shed on such green graves, some good is born, some gentler nature comes." The bereaved parents and friends have the sympathy of all in the surrounding district in the loss they have sustained. The funeral took place on Tuesday afternoon, to Stark Vale Cemetery.

—"Cruiglo," McArthur's Bookstore, for $1.25. Worth $1.25.

Suits to Order at $15.00

At the present time when everything is going up in price we are pleased to let you know we can give you a Suit in the latest style at the popular price of $15.00.

For Something Better

We have "Quality First" Imported Tweeds and Worsteds at $18.00 to $25.00 which are the best values, bar none, in Canada to-day and we invite an inspection of the new goods.

Ladies' Tailoring a Specialty

We Guarantee Satisfaction

G. B. IRWIN
Merchant Tailor and Furnisher

The Housewife's Corner

Ways to Use Strawberries.

Strawberries are the first of all summer fruits—the breaths of the good things which follow in their wake. Virgil placed strawberries in the same rank with flowers because of their fragrance, and who couldn't fall to look at the little red berry with its pretty green hull that it contained the elements of endless delectable dessertal

The fruit is at its best when served without washing and the sugar must not be allowed to remain on the berries too long before serving, for it extracts the juice and destroys the firmness. It is a good plan to heap the berries lightly on individual plates and to pass the sugar as they are served.

Strawberry batter cups are a delightful variation of the strawberry and are made thus: Stir one pint of sugar into a quart of bruised berries. Make a batter of one and one-half cupfuls of flour (carefully sifted with half a teaspoonful of salt and one heaping teaspoonful of baking powder), two well beaten eggs, one cup of milk and one tablespoonful of butter. Pour into well buttered moulds a little of the batter, add a layer of the berries, and continue to alternate the layers until the cups or moulds are three-quarters full. Steam or bake forty minutes. Serve with the following sauce: Cream together one cup sugar, one-half cup butter, add the whipped white of one egg, and one cup of mashed berries. Place on ice two or three hours before using.

Novelties are always welcome on the tea table and strawberry fingers look so tempting and dainty. To make them, beat four eggs lightly, fold the beaten eggs into their weight of sugar and flour, add a pinch of salt and a few drops of almond flavoring. Beat the mixture ten minutes and spread thinly on a buttered shallow pan. Bake in a quick oven and when delicate brown remove and allow to cool. Cut the cake in half, spread sliced sweetened strawberries on top and cover with the remaining half of cake. Cut into narrow strips, simulating fingers, sprinkle generously with powdered sugar and serve.

Old fashioned strawberry shortcake is a treat not to be mentioned in the same breath with the endless imposters masquerading everywhere as the genuine article. Here is a recipe guaranteed to result in the strawberry shortcake that mother used to make: Stir a generous teaspoonful of baking powder into a cup of flour and sift. Work in all the butter the flour will take up and then enough sweet milk to make a very soft dough. Roll out on the moulding board, handling as little as possible until about one inch thick. Bake in a brisk oven and when baked remove and split the cake in halves. Butter the steaming sides generously, fill with bruised berries sweetened with powdered sugar. The small, sweet berries are the best to use. Serve immediately.

There is a French recipe for strawberry pie which is excellent and well worth trying. Line a pie tin with a light rich puff paste. Hull three pints of large, not too ripe berries, roll them in fresh butter and powdered sugar. Lay a rim of paste one third of an inch thick and one inch wide around the edge of the pie tin and make the edges adhere to the paste lining. Pile the prepared strawberries into the centre, arranging in dome form. Cover with another thin layer of puff paste; press gently with the thumb at edge. Baste the surface with white of an egg and sprinkle with granulated sugar. Bake in a moderate oven half an hour without allowing the surface to brown. The buff paste must be very thin so as to thoroughly bake before the berries become too hot.

A trifle for which our English cousins are rightly famous is made of strawberries. It is prepared as follows: Make a custard of one quart of milk, put over the fire with a cup of sugar, bring to the boiling point and stir in the beaten yolks of four eggs. Stir constantly for a moment and remove from the fire. Dip half a dozen ladyfingers in cream and arrange them in a glass dish. Pour over them a layer of strawberries slightly sweetened. Arrange another layer of the ladyfingers and another layer of the berries. Pour the custard over all. Beat the whites of the eggs until stiff and stir into them four tablespoonfuls of powdered sugar; color with a little juice of the berries. Pile the meringue roughly over the top and ornament with a circle of large, firm, sweet berries. The ingredients of the trifle must be very cold when put together, and it is a good plan to keep the dish on ice until ready to serve.

Light delicious strawberry puffs are made thus: With the tips of the fingers rub into a pint of flour that has been sifted a heaping tablespoonful of butter. Add a pinch of salt and one and one-quarter teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Then stir in enough sweet milk to make a soft dough. Roll the dough out to half an inch in thickness and cut into squares. In the centre of each put four or five berries. Fold the dough over to cover the fruit and roll lightly between the hands until a round ball is formed. Put the ball on a plate and put the plate in a steamer to cook fifteen minutes. When cooked remove and serve immediately with strawberry sauce made as follows: Beat half a cupful of butter until it is soft and creamy, then stir in gradually a heaping cupful of powdered sugar. Beat in one at a time six or seven mashed strawberries. Place on ice.

Strawberry mousse is attractive and dainty as well as delicious. Mash well one quart of strawberries and one pint of granulated sugar. Let this stand two or three hours and in the meantime soak a quarter of a package of gelatine in half a cup of cold water. Put the crushed berries through a coarse sieve. Pour one-third of a cup of boiling water over the soaked gelatine and when it is thoroughly dissolved stir into the crushed fruit. Place the bowl containing the mixture in ice water and stir until it begins to thicken. Add three quarts of whipped and drained cream. Fold the cream in gently. Place in a packed freezer, using more salt than usual, cover and beg deeply. It will require about four hours to harden.

Strawberry sandwiches may be offered at the tea table. Mash the berries slightly, adding a little orange juice and plenty of powdered sugar. Butter thin slices of bread and spread with the strawberries.

For those who like to bottle up the summer goodies the recipe for strawberry juice will be interesting. Wash and hull red berries, add an equal amount of sugar and let stand for several hours, then place on stove and simmer for fifteen minutes. Strain through a wet cheese cloth and pour into sterilized bottles. When cold seal. The juice is excellent for sauces, punch and ices. It serves as a refreshing drink if diluted with water.

Strawberry fool is a summer dessert. Put two pounds of ripe strawberries into a pan with four ounces of castor sugar. Cover closely and let simmer for ten minutes, stirring occasionally to prevent burning. Put the fruit through a sieve and when nearly cold add enough custard to make it thick. Add a gill of cream. Stand on ice.

Hints for the Home.

Every housekeeper should possess a wooden spoon for stirring all fruits or soups containing any acid.

To sharpen scissors take a bottle and cut with the scissors as if you had to cut the neck off the bottle. This is effective.

The best liniment for rheumatism is made by mixing one part of turpentine and two of olive oil. It is also good for neuralgia.

To clean a mincer after using grind stale crusts of bread through it. The bread collects all the fat, grease and skin from the small teeth.

In conversation never interrupt any one who is speaking; it embarrasses the speaker, and spoils all interest in the information about to be conveyed.

When making milk puddings use half milk and half water for mixing them. This is more economical, and the pudding will taste almost as well as if made with all milk.

When steaming potatoes put a cloth over them before putting the lid on. They will take much less time to cook, and be much more mealy than when done in the ordinary way.

Nickel silver is best not cleaned with plate-powders. Damp a piece of flannel in cloudy ammonia, and rub well on to the nickel silver, then polish with a chamois leather.

If your gas mantles are smoky and so dull that the light is dimmed you can easily clean them. Simply sprinkle a pinch of salt over the mantle and light the gas. The light will turn them clear.

If, when you buy a new clothes line, you put it in a large saucepan of cold water and bring it to boil, let it boil for ten minutes, and then cool down, it will last twice as long as usual.

Here is a trick learned from an old umbrella repairer. Instead of glueing on the handle (which is not lasting) cry winding a thread around the stick, and then screw on the handle.

To take tea stains from white silk stretch the stained part over a basin and pour a little boiling water over it. Spread a little borax on the stain and rub gently with a wooden spoon. Repeat until the stain disappears.

To prevent the iron from sticking when ironing starched things rub it over with a little wax. Take any odd piece of candle you may have and tie them up in a square of white cotton rag. If the iron is quickly rubbed over with this there will be no danger of sticking, and the wax will help to give the linen a good gloss.

Wet boots or shoes which have been worn in wet weather and are thoroughly soaked should be carefully dried, to prevent the leather from hardening or cracking. On removing shoes wipe off all the wet or mud with a soft cloth, and while still wet rub with paraffin oil, using the woolly side of a flannel, and then polish off with soft flannel. When partly dry rub them again with paraffin, and put them in a warm place.

Aftermath of the Battle of Neuve Chapelle.

The British losses in the battle of Neuve Chapelle, one of the hardest fights of the present war, were appalling. Whole regiments were wiped out and thousands were badly wounded. Here are some of the British injured arriving in England at one of the south coast ports, awaiting transportation to the hospitals.

FACING THE FLY PROBLEM.

Simple Methods of Exterminating the Pests.

Among those griefs of spring and summer there certainly are none worse than our annual fly crop, and we certainly should not neglect the simple measures necessary to protect us against this pest and the dangers which accompany it.

Foremost among those in the prompt removal of the accumulation of horse manure and of all barnyard filth as well. Nothing equals those substances as fly incubators and not only should our yards be well cleaned up before the warm weather definitely sets in, but we should arrange for its prompt removal during the entire fly season.

When circumstances make this impossible, provision must be made to collect the manure in fly proof receptacles or to have on hand such fly repellants as kerosene emulsion, to be sprinkled daily upon the pile. The latter, however, are only poor makeshifts, not to be compared in efficiency to the prompt removal of the manure.

Next and foremost among our fly fighting measures is an absolutely clean yard.

Second in importance is the provision of suitable screens to our dwellings, milk houses and other places frequented by our little black enemies.

Of peculiar interest in the prevention of fly born diseases is the proper construction and protection of privy vaults, and care must be taken that human excrements are at no time accessible to flies.

The closing or screening of privy and cesspools is here sufficient, while the occasional use of such substances as crude carbolic acid and the chloride of lime will aid in repelling the unwelcome and disgusting visitors when it is not possible to provide for an adequate construction.

The liberal use of sticky fly paper within doors and of fly traps on windows, garbage cans, etc., will likewise help to bring the desired results.

One or more or less isolated farms, all these measures will contribute considerably in rendering life more comfortable and will likewise aid in the prevention of diseases like typhoid, but when we come to face the problem in closely built communities, a certain degree of co-operation is almost indispensable.

Civilization depends upon co-operation and common efforts in nearly all things, and there is no reason why the fly pest cannot be eradicated by similar attempts. There is sufficient evidence to show that they are thoroughly worth while and the measures necessary are so simple as to be in reach of practically every household.

It is simply a question of organization, and when we consider how many other good things are being accomplished by intelligent co-operation, there seems to be no reason why the fly problem cannot be dealt with in the same manner.

Since the war began nearly 30,000 officers have been appointed to the British Army.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL STUDY

INTERNATIONAL LESSON. MAY 16.

Lesson VII. David Spares Saul.—1 Sam. 26. Golden Text: Luke 6. 27.

I. David in Saul's Camp (Verses 5, 6).

Verse 6. Ahimelech the Hittite—He is not mentioned elsewhere. Uriah was also a Hittite. The Hittites were the descendants of Heth. For references to the Hittites, see Gen. 23. 2; 26. 34; Josh. 3. 10; 1 Kings 10. 29; 2 Kings 7. 6. Our chief information concerning the Hittites comes from Assyrian and Babylonian inscriptions. They are also mentioned in the Egyptian hieroglyphics.

Abishai the son of Zeruiah, brother to Joab. Abishai and Joab were David's nephews, sons of his sister. They were famous as warriors (see 2 Sam. 23. 18; 3. 30; 2 18; 10. 14; 18. 2, 5, 12, 21, 17; 1 Chron. 18. 12; also 2 Sam. 16. 9; 1 Kings 1. 7; 2. 28-34).

II. Saul in David's Power (Verses 7-12).

7. Came to the people—That is to Saul's army.

His spear stuck in the ground—See lesson for May 2, verse 5.

8. Hath delivered up—See 1 Sam. 24. 18.

10. Jehovah will smite him—The king's person was inviolate. He was in Jehovah's hands. David knew Saul ought to meet a violent death, but he dared not lay his hands on him. (Compare Nabal's sudden death, 1 Sam. 25. 38, with Saul's death, 1 Sam. 31. 3-6).

11. Cruse—A small cup or jar.

12. A deep sleep from Jehovah—A sleep caused supernaturally. (See Gen. 2. 21; 15. 12).

III. Taunting the Bodyguard of Saul (Verses 13-16).

13. Stood on the top of the mountain afar off—a great space being between them. David was taking no chances. He trusted Saul no more now than on the former occasions.

14. That cried to the king—Abner recognizes David and upbraids him for his effrontery to speak even to the army of Saul. "Who are you but an outcast, daring to call on the name of Saul!"

15. Are not thou a valiant man—and who is like to thee in Israel?—David returns Abner's insult with biting irony. "There is no one, to be sure, who can even approach you in valor. Yet to what extent did you protect your king." (See 2 Sam. 2. 8; 3. 31-34, 38).

Thy lord the king—David still recognized Saul as lord and king.

16. Worthy to die—In Hebrew the phrase is: "Ye are sons of death;" that is, practically dead, so far as any protection they could render the king.

An Inch of Rain.

When the Weather Bureau reports that an inch of rain has fallen, it means that the amount of water that descended from the sky in that particular shower would have covered the surrounding territory to a depth of one inch, if none of it had run off or soaked into the ground.

It means that on one acre of ground enough water to fill more than six hundred barrels, of forty-five gallons each, has fallen. That quantity of water weighs more than 110 tons. If the rainstorm covered one thousand acres, which would be a very small shower indeed, 110,000 tons of water would fall from the clouds.

Rainstorms frequently cover whole states, and often two or three, or five inches of water falls in one storm. In that case the weight of water that falls to the earth is simply enormous. A single widespread and heavy storm might result in a hundred billion tons of rain.

Our Debt to the Engineer.

A recent issue of the General Electric Review calls attention to the extent to which the engineer has transformed our civilization. Consider, for example, the warship of a hundred years ago, and compare it with the latest modern superdreadnaught. The finest of the old ships depended on the wind for her motive power, and if he attained was of little more use than a log floating on the surface of the waters. Her armament consisted of cast-iron muzzle loading guns that were laboriously handled by manual labor, and there was nothing in her from stem to stern that resembled a machine except the pumps, made of hollow tree trunks, and the capstand that raised the anchor. The modern superdreadnaught, on the other hand, has engines that normally develop 60,000 horse power and that, if rumor is correct, can at a pinch develop 100,000 horse power. Her normal speed, independent of wind and weather, of twenty-five knots an hour, can if necessary be increased to almost thirty knots. Her batteries of fifteen-inch guns can hurl projectiles that weigh a ton for almost twenty miles. Her torpedo tubes can fire torpedoes twenty-one inches in diameter. Her every vital part is protected with solid steel, fourteen inches thick.

TO MEASURE WATER FLOW.

A New Apparatus Gives Very Accurate Readings.

The number of pounds of steam per hour flowing past a given point in a pipe of a given diameter, or the number of gallons of water or feet of gas per minute has always been a more or less difficult matter to determine accurately. Until the recent invention of a meter for this purpose the problem was one which involved the use of considerable mathematics.

The new apparatus consists of a plug which can be screwed into a pipe at any convenient point and when so attached a tube extends from the plug across the diameter of the pipe. At equal distances along the tube are small holes opening toward the direction in which the contents of the pipe is flowing, while at a right angle to these is another similar set of holes. The first of these is known as the leading set, the second as the trailing set.

Supposing the contents of the pipe to be water, the action of the flow meter is as follows: The effect of the water in passing the leading set is to develop a pressure in the tube equal to the static pressure of the liquid, plus the pressure due to velocity head, while in the trailing set it develops a pressure equal to the static minus the velocity head. These two pressures are conducted through suitable pipes to the meter where they enter cylinders containing mercury. The mercury cylinders in turn control the movement of a finely pivoted balance so that as the mercury rises in one cylinder and falls in the other due to the variation of pressure the balance carries a recording hand which indicates the flow on the dial and at the same time by means of a pen makes a continuous record on a moving paper chart revolving with a drum. The drum revolves by means of an eight day clock to which it is attached.

The meter is capable of adjustment to varying temperatures of the water or other contents of the pipe and is said to give most accurate readings extending over a period of twenty-four hours' time, for which the recording attachment is designed.

"Really, that proverb, 'People that live in glass houses shouldn't throw stones,' is a remarkably sensible one, isn't it?" "Possibly; but it seems to have had more effect in keeping people out of glass houses than in stopping them throwing stones."

War Time Opportunities

Periodical Payments Offer Safe Solution to the Investment Problem.

Modern banking facilities have wrought big changes in the methods of investing money. Whereas, formerly it was only possible for the owner of large lump sums of money to purchase bonds or debentures, now the way is open to the modest savings depositor to become a bond owner in a comparatively short time. Many security houses will accept part payment for a bond, carrying the customer for a period of time until he can himself pay the balance of the purchase money. While yet other bond houses which have special facilities for carrying on this class of business, accept deposits similar to a savings bank and will their clients bonds on the instalment plan. By this means it is possible for a thrifty person to be an out-and-out bondholder before his carriages have much more than reached the half century mark; and in addition to the fact that his money is earning big interest, there will be all the advantages of a safe, easily convertible investment. This latter method is what is known as the periodical payment plan, or the savings investment system.

How the Plan Operates.

The periodical payment or savings investment system is operated along similar lines to a savings bank, except that the depositor-investor undertakes to deposit certain definite sums at regular stated intervals—usually monthly or quarterly. The necessity of this is apparent, as instalments must be regular where the purchase of a commodity is concerned. A pass book is usually issued showing the amount deposited and sums withdrawn from time to time for the purchase of securities.

Under one plan the deposits are left until one hundred dollars has accumulated, the bond banker allowing four per cent. interest on all balances. When the sum stipulated has been reached, the depositor is notified, and asked what security he wished to buy. Usually a wide range of standard bonds and debentures are offered him, though bond houses naturally prefer that their own underwritings be purchased. When the client has made his selection delivery of the bond is made and thenceforth he receives the increased rate of interest on his money. Under his contract he continues his deposits at regular intervals until he has another hundred dollars, when he makes another purchase in the same way.

Under the other alternative plan the depositor becomes a bond-owner at a still earlier date. After a certain sum has been deposited, say forty dollars, the depositor has the privilege of selecting his security and becoming a genuine bond owner. The bondhouse sells him the security, loaning him the balance of the purchase money on the collateral of the bond itself. On this loan the investment pays interest, which is usually, however, fully covered by the portion of the bond interest payable on this latter sum. Thus, if the balance loaned the investor is sixty dollars and the interest charged him six per cent. and the bond is also a six per cent. security, the interest charge is fully met. The advantage, moreover, of this plan, is that the depositor investor will be drawing big interest in his deposit, probably six per cent., this being the balance accruing to him after he has paid the interest on the loan out of the bond interest.

Investor Fully Secured.

The time was when banking houses desired chiefly the wealthy man's large account, and small deposits were not so very acceptable, but this was quite a while ago, and conditions are now entirely different. But selling of bonds on the instalment plan is still somewhat of an innovation, though some firms have been doing it for several years. Some reliable Canadian bond houses specialize in this very kind of investment and have special facilities for economically handling this class of business. Certainly it is a rare opportunity which is offered the small investor. Sums of ten dollars per month and upwards are received on deposit at a reasonable rate of interest, and just as soon as a few payments have accumulated, the depositor is given an opportunity to invest his money in securities which will yield him twice ordinary bank interest. And that, too, without in any way impairing his capital; for the usual form of contract provides for its termination at any time the depositor desired, when he will receive his full cash balance without deduction, and whatever securities he has purchased. If the latter have been carefully selected, there should be no trouble in easily converting them into cash.

Why Men Only Are Color Blind

Just think of it! Scarcely more than a hundred years ago it was not known that there was any human being who saw green when red was shown to him. In a word, color blindness was unknown. The bare fact that some eyes are born not to possess normal vision for colors was wholly unknown.

Then a non-medical man, the distinguished chemist Dalton, who discovered that he himself was color blind to red, startled as usual the sceptical medical world with the announcement that there were many persons thus affected.

Indeed, physicians who did not scoff at Dalton called the trouble Daltonism, and the subject of color blindness was not given practical importance until the present generation, when the Swedish physiologist—also not a doctor of medicine —emphasized its relationship to railroad wrecks, wrecks on lighthouse reefs and similar emergencies.

Only in the past dozen years or so has it become imperative in all civilized countries, in recognition of the immense numbers of persons who are color blind without knowing it, to demand that all applicants for railroad, art, steamship and engineering positions shall submit to color tests. One man almost in every twenty is color blind.

The new discoveries about color blindness are many and increase almost every day. It has just been found that women are never color blind. Yet color blindness is a characteristic that is inherited and passes on from generation to generation.

This seems odd at first thought. Nevertheless color blindness is inherited, according to the laws of Mendelian hereditary. If all are born girls, it remains dormant and reappears in one of every four male children of the next generation. In consequence of this, it is called a sex linked characteristic.

One investigator, Dr. W. H. Howell, professor of physiology at Johns Hopkins University, reported that color blindness is more common among imperfectly educated persons than among college and university graduates. This is not true. It has nothing to do with education, although there is a form of defective vision which prevents the eye from seeing colors perfectly. This is due to tobacco and is not true of color blindness.

Another statement made in Prof. Howell's great volume on physiology is that one-hundredth of 1 per cent—one woman in ten thousand—of women are color blind. Women are never color blind. That is an error. Even the most masculine of the sex have not yet been shown to be color blind.

There are two types of complete color blindness, each of which has to do with groups of colors—red to blue and white and black. When the color blind man has two important colors such as red and green and their combinations affected he is said to be "dichromatic." When he is totally color blind and sees merely white, gray and black he is "monochromatic."

The color blind who come into the double color errors are, in turn, subdivided into three groups. They are red blind, green blind and violet blind. Red blindness is the one most frequently encountered. These men are really blind to both green and red and they distinguish only yellows and blues.

To such unhappy persons green, red, and orange and yellow all appear as yellow of varying tints. Therefore if a man happens to see too much yellow and light browns around, he had best test his eyes for color blindness. He will run right past a red flag or a green light and think it yellow. He will also mistake greenish blues and bluish greens as gray and the blue violets and purples all strike his eye as blue. Moreover, if he looks at a rainbow or a spectrum of all the colors he will not see beyond the green, which will appear yellow. A neutral band of gray will also be seen sometimes in the rainbow or other spectrum between the blue and green.

In this common type of red blindness the peculiar defect is absence of any recognition of green. It is confused with dull reds and grays. Everybody knows that when any one stares fixedly at a color and closes his eyes an opposite color—called a colored after image—is to be seen.

In the other great division of color blindness there is an entire loss of vision for all colors. Everything appears in shades of gray. The eye is supersensitive to light.

Thus, to say a person sees everything with a jaundiced eye may be more true than poetic.

The very central part of the inner back wall of the eyeball—the retina —contains the seat of color vision. Its innermost bullseye contains the visual points for green. The next outer ring of the bullseye is red, the third outer one blue, then white, and the outermost black. If you paint a target on the wall and make the rings from the bullseye to the circumference each green, red, blue, white and black, you will have the condition in a healthy normal retina.

These questions are often asked: "I would like to become a sailor or an engineer. Can I be cured of color blindness? Can I train myself to an intelligent knowledge of the difference?" The answer at present is unfortunately, no. The hereditary factor or "unit character," as it is called, which causes color blindness to pass on forever through the generations is contained in the mysterious Pandora's box of dark pigment present in the "nucleus" or yolk spot of the human egg. Until science unravels this, color blindness will continue to pass on from mother to son.

HEAVY TOLL OF SUBMARINE

HAS COST MANY LIVES IN ITS DEVELOPMENT.

Principal Causes of Accidents Have Been Collision With Other Vessels.

The sinking of the United States submarine F-4 while manoeuvring in the waters off Honolulu recalls some of the disastrous accidents that have happened to submarine boats of the other naval powers which have experimented extensively with undersea craft—France, England, Germany and Japan. Although the sinking of the F-4 is the first fatal accident the United States navy has experienced with submarines, their development in the case of the four other nations has been accompanied by Many Terrific Fatalities.

All of them have lost submarines with their crews, the principal cause of these accidents being the result of the submarines colliding with other vessels, in some cases with war vessels acting as guardians while the submarines were manoeuvring. As a rule the submarine alone suffered from these collisions, sinking before aid could reach them.

In 1906 France sustained a submarine loss which not only shocked that nation but stunned the marine authorities of the world. On October 16 of that year the submarine boat Lutin with thirteen men aboard started out in the morning for her submersion trials in the waters near Bizerta. The vessel descended and did not rise again. After waiting for her to re-appear the officers on the accompanying warship became anxious, but they did not abandon hope, and her fate was in doubt for some time.

Finally it was decided that the Lutin lay at the bottom of the sea at a depth of forty meters. Vessels equipped with the necessary apparatus were hurridly summoned to drag the spot where the and after some hours work they succeeded in locating what was believed to be the sunken submarine. On October 18 word was flashed to the Minister of Marine in Paris that the Lutin had been found at a depth of 120 feet. He was informed that the vessel was lying on her side and that while the hull of the vessel was intact, the probable chances were that the entire crew had perished.

Submarine Disappeared

Despite all efforts the Lutin was not raised until October 29. The submarine was towed to the Ferryville dock near Tunis. Efforts were immediately made to remove the bodies from the vessel. They were found de be decomposed, principally by reason of the acids that escaped from the batteries.

A commission was formed to investigate the accident. On November 21 Minister of Marine Thomson announced its report.

The commission found that a pebble had been the direct cause of the accident. An interior bulkhead of one of the water ballast compartments near the stern was too weak to withstand the pressure of the intake of water and had given way. This abnormal pressure was due to the fact that the corresponding intake of water had not closed because of the presence of a pebble in front of the sluice gate of the sea valve.

According to the commission most of the crew had taken refuge in the manoeuvring compartment, but the members had quickly become affected by the increased air pressure. An attempt had been made to open the hood, but had failed, principally because of the weakened condition of the men. The bodies of three of the crew were found in a position which indicated they had through the open hood. The body of the commander was found with his right hand clutching the exit ladder below the hood. His left hand rested on the crank which opened the hood, but he had been unable to turn the crank because two bodies were wedged in the cupola, in space hardly sufficient for the presence of one.

Made an Attempt to Escape

Two clocks were found on board the Lutin. One had stopped at 10:28 o'clock. The minute hand had fallen off the other clock, but the hour hand showed the time approximately 11:10. In spite of this the commission decided the imprisoned men had lived less than fifteen minutes.

A French submarine also was the victim of an accident which shocked the world in May, 1910. On the 27th of that month the submarine Pluviose left Calais at 1:45 P.M. for submersion tests. Half an hour later the steamship Pas de Calais of the Calais and Dover Line, carrying passengers and mail to England, left her pier. There were many Americans on board, who subsequently were witnesses to the fatal accident.

The Pas de Calais had got well out into the stream when her paddle wheel struck something which caused the steamer to rock violently and come to a stop. The captain thought he had hit a submerged wreck. As he stood deliberating the form of the Pluviose in the wake of the steamer. The captain immediately ordered out the boats to go to the aid of the submarine.

Rose to the Surface

The sailors quickly reached the submarine and climbed aboard her. They rapped loudly on the steel skin, but received no response. Suddenly the Pluviose began to sink, and the sailors barely had time to climb back into their boats. Without warning the submarine plunged beneath the waves. The Pas de Calais put back to port and transferred her passengers and mail to another vessel.

News of the accident quickly spread to Calais and Paris. Torpedo boat destroyers and two tugs were despatched to the spot. The crew of the Pluviose consisted of a commander, three officers and twenty-four men.

The salvaging vessels formed a ring around the spot despite the strong north easterly swell. Four divers made attempts to descend to rescue the imprisoned crew, but owing to the strong tide had to give up. Attempts at rescue were given up for the time being and it was decided to send powerful tugs and dredgers from Cherbourg to recover the submarine.

All the available chain in Calais was requisioned and placed at the disposal of the divers. Although the submarine went down a mile from shore it was decided to fasten the chains to her and have powerful tugs drag the vessel to shallow water. The Pluviose lay in seventeen metres of water. As soon as petrol appeared on the surface of the water it was decided that the tanks had been broken by the collision and no hope was held out for the crew.

Less than a year after the sinking of the French submarine Pluviose Germany suffered the loss of a submarine when the U-3 was sunk in Kiel harbor on January 17, 1911.

The U-3, with a crew of thirty, was manoeuvring in the harbor when she plunged to the bottom shortly after noon. Her absence was discovered immediately and the repair ship Vulkan, tender for submarines, equipped with cranes, was brought to the spot. Divers descended and succeeded in placing heavy chains around the tapering ends of the submarine.

A feature of this accident was the fact that during the time the crew remained imprisoned in the submarine sixty feet below the surface they communicated through a telephone attached to a buoy which was released from the bow of the submarine a few minutes after she had gone to the bottom. All through the rescuing operations the commander of the U-3 kept in communication with the rescuers and directed the work of rescue.

With Their Rescuers

Although the U-3 slipped from the grappling chains of the Vulkan more than once, the rescue ship succeeded in bringing the submarine to the surface in three hours. Eight hours had elapsed from the time the U-3 went down until the Vulkan brought her up. The authorities were not worried by her prolonged submersion, because they knew that the submarine had enough oxygen in her tanks to last for twenty-four hours. They were also reassured when the buoy telephone jumped to the surface and the commander at the other end of the wire told them all was well on board.

When the periscope of the U-3 appeared, all members of the crew except two officers and coxswain climbed through the submerged torpedo tube and rose to the surface, where they were quickly picked up. These men were equipped with diving helmets and suits.

The other three decided to remain with the submarine until she was raised completely, figuring there was enough oxygen left for them to remain aboard safely. When the work of raising was completed these men were found dead in the conning tower. Apparently they had not miscalculated the supply of oxygen, but death probably was due to atmospheric pressure on the heart and lungs rather than suffocation.

On April 15, 1910, Japan suffered the loss of the submarine No. 6, which sank in Hiroshima Bay with a commander and fourteen members of the crew.

News of the sinking did not reach Tokio until the following day and then salvage apparatus was sent from the cruiser Topchashi. Divers descended and the sunken vessel was located. The salvage corps succeeded in raising it a few days after the accident. The crew had died from the results of carbonic acid gas poisoning, conditions indicating that death had come three hours after the sinking of the submarine, at 2 P.M.

A manuscript, a sailor's log, of rapidly approaching death, was Found in the Conning Tower.

This manuscript had been prepared by Lieut. Sakuma, who commanded the submarine.

England sustained a severe loss when on February 2, 1912, the submarine A-3 collided with the British gunboat Hazard off the south west coast of the Isle of Wight. The submarine went to the bottom like a stone, causing the death of four officers and a crew of ten.

The A-3 was one of the oldest type of English submarines, a type which was very unfortunate. In February, 1905, the A-8, while stationed at Queenstown, was the scene of an explosion which cost the lives of six of the crew, twelve being injured. The A-8 sank off Plymouth in June, 1905, fourteen members of a crew of eighteen losing their lives. The A-6 sank at Portsmouth in November, 1905, but with great difficulty. The old A-1 collided with the steamer Berwick Castle in 1904, twelve members of the crew being drowned, while seven members of the crew of the new A-1 were injured in an explosion which occurred on August 6, 1910.

The Entire Crew Was Rescued

A peculiar accident happened to the United States submarine F-1 on October 11, 1912, when the submarine was manoeuvring in the water near Fort Watsonville, Cal. The vessel crashed into a pier and drifted out of the reach of assistance. Two members of the crew, John Schroeder and E. Turcett, were drowned. The body of Scroeder drifted ashore, but how he escaped from the watertight submarine remained a mystery.

SOLD FIRST TEA IN ENGLAND.

Dan Rawlinson's Sign Still Hangs Over Successor's Shop.

Two tradesmen, or rather, two firms, mentioned by Pepys, still exist—Hill, the Bond Street violin maker, and Dan Rawlinson of Fenchurch Street, the first grocer to sell tea in England, whose concern survives under the name of Davidson, Newman & Co. The identical sign of three sugar loaves that hung over Rawlinson's shop adorns the present establishment. There too may be seen the canisters and scales dating from the 17th century. Dan Rawlinson charged his customers $15 a pound for tea.

Scheme to Invade Britain

Populace Still Firmly Believes That Kaiser's Army Can March Victoriously Over England.

Two movements, apparently diverse in character, but in reality correlated, recently sprang into existence in Germany, writes a neutral correspondent who has been on a business trip to Germany. These movements seem to have the same aim in view, namely, to bring about a speedy close of the war. Both parties are working silently; no documents referring to their projects are allowed out of the hands of their trusted agents; everybody is approached personally, so that no information may leak out, either through treachery or by an incautious act. No official name is attached to either of the movements, though the government is cognizant of every step taken by the chief promoters and has sanctioned everything that has been done.

The secrecy enables the authorities to keep doors open for escape in the event of failure, and the government would then be able to declare that everything done had been done without its knowledge and would not, had the facts been known, have obtained under any circumstances its permission.

The first movement refers to the collection of funds, already said to have reached several million marks, to be presented as a special reward to the army which has been assembled and is now ready to invade Great Britain. This event is to take place when the British fleet has been substantially reduced by means of submarine attacks and losses which the forcing of the Dardanelles—an impossibility in the opinion of the German authorities—must entail.

The invasion plan is reported to have been worked out in such detail that German railway officials have been appointed to take charge of the railway stations in the particular district where a landing is contemplated, and every one of these new station masters knows exactly where to go. The invasion scheme is a strong favorite with a large percentage of the German public, who have still not a shadow of doubt about the empire's final victory.

The contributions to the fund vary from the groschen—about one and a half cents—which the school children bring to the schoolmaster, up to the more substantial amounts collected by women by organized house to house canvassing. Children, schoolmasters and women, of course, play a prominent part in the mass war propaganda which still are very much to the front in all grades of society in Germany.

The other movement is patronized by the more serious part of the German nation, that part which knows where the shoe pinches. As it costs nothing to join this movement—an attraction never despised at any time in Germany—it has met with much support, especially among business men, house and land owners, artisans, these chiefly among the building trade, and last, but not least, a certain section of the social democrats, the so-called "rebels." The promoters' endeavor is concentrated upon obtaining signatures to a petition which it is intended to present to the Kaiser, having for its object the stopping of the war at the earliest possible moment, as the financial losses suffered have been almost ruinous.

Admiration of the glorious victories achieved by the army is expressed in no measured phrasing, and while the signatories have not the slightest doubt of Germany's ability to crush the countries' enemies, they nevertheless venture to suggest to the Kaiser's advisers that peace on reasonable terms would be exceedingly welcome to them.

In well-informed circles it is said that the Kaiser is behind this stop-the-war movement; indeed, that he has even expressed guarded approval of the scheme. In any case, however, it will be interesting to watch developments in connection with this matter.

FLEETS OF FORMER DAYS

WAR CRAFT OF EARLIER DAYS NUMERICALLY STRONG.

Spaniards Mustered More Ships Than are Gathered Together by Nations Now.

There is no certainty as to the total number of the allied fleet gathered at the Dardanelles, but whatever the number, it is a mistake to say that it is the largest in number of any naval fleet ever assembled. The most formidable, no doubt, in tonnage, weight of metal and other elements of offence, but not the largest numerically.

At La Hogue, May 19, 1692, the French had 76 vessels and the English and Dutch allies 56-60. Blake had 46 vessels at Dungeness, Nov. 28, 1652, against Van Tromp's 98, and the Dutch under Van Tromp off Goodwin Sands, Oct. 20, 1639, had 110 vessels to 67 in the Spanish fleet. Sept. 1, 1591, secured what Hawson in his "Twenty Famous Battles" calls "the most rumptiously gallant fight in all the annals of naval warfare," when 53 Spanish vessels were fought single handed at Flores, in the Azores, by the English man-of-war Revenge, commanded by Sir Richard Grenville, who accorded to follow the other five British line of battleships of Howard's fleet when they ran from what they regarded with reason as a hopeless fight.

The Spanish had 120 ships in the Armada they launched against England July 29, 1588, and the English a scratch fleet of 197 vessels, mostly small ones, no match for the formidable Armada, which evidently expected to tow the British Islands home with them. At Lepanto, Oct. 7, 1571, the Spaniards had 209 sail and the Venetians 216.

Mark Antony's Fleet.

If we go still further back we find at Actium, B. C. 31, 500 ships under Mark Antony and 250 under Octavius Caesar. The young Octavius won the battle by his possession of more mobile vessels. The pirates of Illyria had devised a light and powerful craft, long and narrow, sharp at either end, with a powerful ram, a mast in the centre and two banks of oars. They were of light draught, easily handled, and possessed one of the great indispensable factors of naval success, speed, a factor which can never be disregarded with impunity in the construction of ships. This sort of vessel contributed largely to the effective force of Octavius.

The largest fleets in numbers were at Salamis, 481 B. C., when the Persians had 700 vessels of the class considered formidable in that day and the Greeks 380. These vessels were mostly triremes, boats with three benches for the rowers, and a mast that could be raised or lowered by means of stays. This mast carried square sails.

There was some chivalry in a naval fight in the good old days of Blake and Van Tromp, when sneaking submarines and barbarous torpedoes were unknown, and naval commanders "courted war like a mistress."

When the Spanish Admiral Oquendo declined to come out of the shallow waters of Goodwin Sands to fight because he had no powder, Van Tromp said: "I have powder enough for both. I will give you half of mine."

"It is not only powder I need, but masts for my ships," replied Oquendo. To which Van Tromp replied: "I have plenty of masts, a whole shipload of them, and you can have them if you will only come out and meet me."

The result justified the caution of Oquendo, for when the two fleets did meet the Spaniards were so terribly beaten by the Dutch that of 67 ships only 18 reached Dunkirk in safety.

Fleet of Four Motor Ambulances and a Field Kitchen Presented to the Canadian Red Cross Association for Service in Europe by Major R. W. Leonard, St. Catharines.

The Paisley Advocate

PAISLEY, MAY 13th, 1915

—Many young Americans have enlisted in the regiments that Canada has recruited for the war. "How many persons," asks The Youth's Companion, "remember that sixty-eight thousand Canadians served in the Union Army during the Civil War?"

—The agitation by the Rogerites for a Dominion election in June appears to have blown over. It would be quite satisfactory to the majority of Canadians to even extend the life of this Parliament beyond the usual term rather than have an election while the war continues.

—The British House of Commons has passed the second reading of Lloyd George's bill to amend the Defence of the Realm Act. The bill originally was destined to place a heavy surtax on wines, spirits and beer, but under pressure from the Irish party its provisions were amended to giving the Government control of the sale of liquor in areas where munitions of war are being made. Under the bill a Central Committee will be set up for Scotland and England. It will act on the recommendations of local committees of employers and workmen in the districts affected. The Government will absolutely control the sale of liquor in selected districts, including that dispensed in clubs and grocery stores. A commission will deal with the question of compensation to the liquor dealers for their losses.

REAL WAR MUST BEGIN

One gets the pulse of Germany, the measure of her madness, in the reported popular commendations awarded Von Tirpitz for the success of his agents in destroying the Lusitania and sending to death 1200 of the men, women and children on board of her.

It was for just such an occasion as this that the people of Germany have been schooled and choired in their chants of hate against the whole British race.

For more than two months the German submarines have been destroying what they dare of British shipping—and in nearly every case the attacks have been made on defenceless ships.

These German under-water warboats do not seek battle. They go by stealth, searching out opportunities for doing murder. They avoid contact with British armed men on the sea; they seek the unarmed ships where they can kill women and children at little risk to themselves.

During the two months in which these crimes have been done against non-combatant vessels, Britain has been sending an almost continuous stream of troopships away from her front door across the Channel—to Belgium, to France, to Egypt, the Dardanelles. Not one of these boats has been touched by a German shell or torpedo, or bomb from a Zeppelin. Why? Because these are armed and ready. They are looking for attack and prepared to take care of the enemy. The Germans find it safer to assault non-combatant vessels and slay defenceless men, women and children. Among the lost on the Lusitania were nearly one hundred and fifty infants under two years of age. What success in baby-killing! What joy in Germany!

It but remains for every Government in the Empire, not only the British and those of the Dominions, but those of the Provinces and municipalities to place all other matters second and concentrate every effort on making thorough war on these venereed savages.—Star.

ELDERSLIE COUNCIL

Gillies Hill, May 3rd, 1915

Council met on above date, members all present. Minutes of last meeting read and adopted.

Mr S K Ewart addressed the board in the interests of Chesley Fair. On motion of Messrs Fraser and Thomson the usual grant of $25 was made to Chesley and Paisley Agricultural Societies.

Lewis—Fraser—That no wire fence bonuses be paid until after Oct 1st.—Carried.

Lewis—Fraser—That the following accounts be paid and that the Reeve and Clerk issue orders on the Treasurer for same; John McBeath, repairing culverts, road division 17, $3; H Rudolph, building culvert and digging ditch on con 8, $14.—Carried.

Allen—Thomson—That this board do now adjourn to meet again on Friday, May 28th, at one o'clock p.m. as a Court of Revision and for general business.—Carried.

K C Pearce, Clerk

—The Advocate office has a splendid stock of wedding stationery and calling cards on hand, also the most beautiful styles of type, so we are able to turn out the finest lines of wedding invitations, announcements, cards, etc. We can do work fit to invite the best of people to a wedding, so why pay two or three times as much to city printers or engravers for something that isn't a whit better for the purpose? See our samples.

BRITISH PRISONERS IN GERMANY

From time immemorial prisoners of war have evoked pity and sympathy. The agony and humiliation of the British prisoners must be indescribably acute and galling. But from that state of suffering there can be no redress, it being part of the fortunes of war, but the lack of comforts and food stands in a different category. This want will grow in volume and intensity as the days go by.

As a result of an official organization having been created recently to carry parcels to the British prisoners in Germany, insuring proper transmission through a neutral carrier, the "Khaki" Magazine of Imperial House, Kingsway, London, has started a fund to supply food and comforts for those who have no relatives or friends to look after them, as it is known that these poor fellows are not getting a proper supply of food.

An appeal is made to you for $2.00 only, as there are so many demands made upon you in other directions. This money will go for the direct benefit of the prisoners, as there is no cost of transmission and no waste of any description. Information having been established showing the kind of food, clothing, etc., which can be sent without confiscation by the German Government.

This appeal should get a large response as there is no other fund which deals with this particular condition.

The "Khaki" Magazine and Cabled News Sheet was created primarily for the overseas soldiers bringing them late news from their homes. It is now supplying, free of charge, in addition to the soldiers at the front and in training, the various hospitals in England and France, as well as the grand old fleet. It is a purely patriotic endeavor and in no way commercial.

When the "Khaki" Magazine was founded, amongst the many who gave their support and expressions of goodwill for the work it had undertaken were: The Duke of Wellington, K G; the Duke of Manchester; the First Lord of the Admiralty; the Countess of Zetland; Lady Leven; Mrs Leopold de Rothschild; Lieut-General Sir Robert Baden-Powell, K.C.T.O.; the Right Hon. Austen Chamberlain, P.C.M P.; Lord Desborough; the Earl of Essex; Viscount Bryce; the Earl of Ronaldshay; Lord Willoughby de Broke; Viscount Milner; the Earl of Kintore; Sir Gilbert Parker, M.P.; Sir William Bull, M.P.; Mr. Evelyn Cecil, M.P.; the Right Hon. Sir Charles Johnston, Lord Mayor of London; the Right Hon. J. E. Rayner, Lord Mayor of Liverpool; the Right Hon. W. H. Bowater, Lord Mayor of Birmingham; the Right Hon. James Taggart, Lord Provost of Aberdeen; the Right Hon. Crawford McCullagh, Lord Mayor of belfast.

ALL SUBSCRIPTIONS WILL BE PUBLISHED IN THIS PAPER, and you are requested to send yours to any office of the Royal Bank of Canada and mark it, "Khaki Prisoners' Fund." The subscriptions will also be duly acknowledged in the Magazine and various newspapers in England from time to time.

BRUCE PRESBYTERIAL W.M.S.

The annual meeting of this society was held in Geneva Church, Chesley, on Thursday, April 29th. A large number of delegates were present and the meeting was one of the most successful ever held. Mrs Robertson, of Walkerton, presided. This is the first meeting held since the amalgamation of the W P M S and the W H M S and the reports tell only of eight months work, from May, 1914, to December of the same year. There are 19 Auxiliaries with a membership of 410. Contributions in money amounted to $981 14. Clothing valued at $501 84 was sent to the Lake of the Woods School and to the Deaconess' Home in Toronto for distribution among the poor in that city and from some of the auxiliaries to the Belgian sufferers both clothing, money and fruit. Miss H M Kipp, Hospital Secretary W M S, Toronto, addressed the meeting. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Hon Pres, Mrs Robertson, Walkerton; Pres, Mrs Hogg, Southampton; 1st Vice-Pres, Miss Robertson, Southampton; 2nd Vice-Pres, Miss Sewers, Queen Hill; 3rd Vice-Pres, Mrs Reith, Glenelg; Cor Sec'y, Miss Scott, Paisley; Rec Sec'y, Miss Miller, Paisley; Treas, Mrs Dougherty, Port Elgin; Mission Band Sec'y, Miss Warren, Walkerton; Stranger Sec'y, Miss McLean, Hanover; Supply Sec'y, Miss Warren, Walkerton; Messenger Sec'y, Miss McCallum, Paisley; Home Helpers' Sec'y, Miss Tolmie, Southampton. Mrs Norman Robertson was appointed delegate to the annual meeting in Montreal in June next. Mrs Dougherty invited the Presbyterial to meet in Port Elgin in April, 1916. The delegates were entertained to dinner and tea in the school room. In the evening Rev Mr Hills occupied the chair and the speakers were Rev Frank Russell of Central India, Mrs Kipp of Toronto, Rev Mr Wilson of Walkerton and Rev Mr Gale of Pinkerton, formerly Home Missionary in New Ontario.

—A freak colt was born on Saturday on the farm of Mr. Fred Begg, of Edgar, Grey Co. The animal had no eyes, nor was there any depression in its head where the eyes ought to have been. The colt is a Clydesdale filly. Since its birth it has experienced difficulty in breathing and it is not expected to live.

MIRACULOUS CURE OF ASTHMA

Suffered Terribly for 15 Years Until He Tried "Fruit-a-tives"

D. A. WHITE, Esq.

81 WALLACE AVE., TORONTO,

Dec. 22nd. 1913.

"Having been a great sufferer from Asthma for a period of fifteen years (sometimes having to sit up at night for weeks at a time) I began the use of "Fruit-a-tives". These wonderful tablets relieved me of Indigestion, and through the continued use of same, I am no longer distressed with that terrible disease, Asthma, thanks to "Fruit-a-tives" which are worth their weight in gold to anyone suffering as I did. I would heartily recommend them to all sufferers from Asthma, which I believe is caused or aggravated by Indigestion". D. A. WHITE

For Asthma, for Hay Fever, for any trouble caused by excessive nervousness due to Impure Blood, faulty Digestion or Constipation, take "Fruit-a-tives"

50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size, 25c. At all dealers or from Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

From Jack McLeod at the Front

The following interesting letter is one that was penned before the writer was wounded in action:

Dear Mother—I received three letters from you to-day, also three from McPhersons and one from Winnie, and was certainly glad to get them, as it is some time since I received any mail from any person except your parcel.

I haven't much news to tell except that the weather is getting much finer. But the Germans think it is getting real hot, and it is for them, and will be. You asked how I felt under fire. Well, I didn't feel the way I thought I would. I was afraid I would be scared stiff, but it didn't bother me the least bit at any time except one night we were told we had to take a trench.

I thought the bayonet would put the shivers up me a bit, but it didn't. It was pitch dark, and the Germans were on a rise about two hundred feet from us.

When we got through our own entanglements the officers had a hard time to keep us back, as we were like a bunch of wild horses, but we crept up to their entanglements and when the charge sounded it was breaking down and we could see what we were doing.

The Germans were off their guard, but it didn't take long for them to get busy, and they had more men than we thought. As soon as I looked over their trench one fellow tried to harpoon me, but I jumped back and hit some person coming up behind that shoved me head first into the trench.

By the time I was up most of the Germans were out and nearly all our fellows in, so when I got into working order it was all over, and I didn't have the experience of feeling a bayonet go through myself or put one through another. The engineers mined them and we retired to our own. The Germans thinking we were in the trench taken from them, made a counter attack about 9 o'clock in broad daylight. They reached the trench but found it empty, and started firing up their sandbags again. When they were pretty well settled in their own home the engineers exploded the mines. There was just one big crash and puff along their trench and German legs, arms, heads, etc., flew up. The sand bags were blown flat and the Germans that didn't go up were easy targets and none got away, as we and the artillery opened fire on them. Sometimes at night I think I still hear the groans and screaming of them.

We have been reviewed twice by Sir John French and he handed out quite high praise for us.

The Canadian Contingent is also doing good work and took part in the big battle at Le Basee.

I am going to apply for a commission when I have a little more experience and I think I will get it. I never thought of trying for it until Lieut. Stewart now wounded recommended me, but I don't think I can get it in my own regiment.

With love to all.

Jack.

P.S.—I can't tell how the papers came to call me Charles, as I have never given them anything but what was right, so you should have no trouble in the allowance.

"Blind Pigs" in License Town

In the report of the license commissioners' meeting it is noted Inspector Reany has his eye on certain people in this community engaged in making a little money by selling bottles of whiskey. We often hear of "blind pigs" in local option territory, but in this case the inspector would have us know that three "piggeries" exist in licensed towns as well. We note also that when action is taken against these parties on the evidence secured the inspector hints that he doesn't want the names kept out of the paper. Now, we confess, we have been lenient with a number of violators of the law in other cases than the kind he mentions, but if anyone has had the conception that this is to be the custom of The Times let us say right now that it will not be. If people are to indulge in despicable practices they must look for publicity, and the light will be turned on full blast.—Port Elgin Times.

—A cure for the blues—read "Craigie" at McArthur's bookstore, $1.25.

BALLACHEY, LAIDLAW & CO.

"The Store with the Quality"

How About Summer UNDERWEAR AND HOSIERY ?

We are ready for all Requirements.

Top Prices for Produce

BALLACHEY, LAIDLAW & CO.

Both 'Phones——————All Produce

Tired Eyes

Sensations exist for our guidance
They are Nature's warnings.
Over-worked eyes demand rest.
Eyes that tire easily call for help.
Properly adjusted glasses afford it only assistance possible.
We make a specialty of relieving tired eyes and guarantee satisfaction.

A Stopped Watch

One that will not go AT ALL—doesn't cause as much bother as one that runs now fast, now slow, in an erratic fashion.

The first you don't pretend to depend upon—the other is a constant source of annoyance.

Most people can afford a watch, but no one can afford an uncertain fast and slow one.

And when our repair department is so close at hand there is really no excuse for carrying anything but an accurate time-piece, no matter what the first cost was.

Consult us about any watch troubles that may arise.

I. SHOEMAKER
JEWELER AND OPTICIAN

SHOES

Our new spring Shoes have just arrived and we have Shoes for all Ladies, Gents and Children at the old prices.

We have not raised our prices as we bought our supply before the advance in prices.

We have a full stock of Men's Women's and Children's heavy waterproof shoes on hand to keep the feet dry.

Call and have a look at our shoes.

Eggs Taken in Exchange

H. PFAFF & SON'S
SHOE STORE

WISE OLD BEN

Benjamin Franklin once said: "It is strange anomaly that men should be careful to insure their houses, their furniture, their ship, their merchandise, and yet neglect to insure their lives—surely the most important of all to their families, and far more subject to loss."

THE DOMINION LIFE

Highest earnings of any Canadian company—$22 per cent.

Low Death Loss
Economical Management

Head Office - Waterloo, Ont.

Buggies—We are again selling the reliable McLaughlin, Tudhope and Brantford makes, also attending to all kinds of repairs and general work on all vehicles. A number of second hand buggies to sell cheap.

Furniture—A large assortment always in stock, and catalogues of best makers to select from. Any article, large or small, sold or single pieces for furnishing the home.

Single and Double Harness and Harness Supplies

We are agents for the Singer Sewing Machines and Capital Cream Separators

J. SEILER, Eden Grove

CANADIAN PACIFIC

FOR WINNIPEG AND VANCOUVER

Leaves Toronto 10.30 p.m. daily.

Attractive Tours to Pacific Coast Points

Particulars from Canadian Pacific ticket agents, or write J. D. Mercer, D.P.A., Cor. King and Yonge Sts., Toronto.

W. H. McFarlane, Agent, Paisley

Central Business College Stratford, Ont.

Ontario's Best Practical Training School

We have thorough courses and experienced instructors in each of our three departments, Commercial, Shorthand and Typewriting. Our graduates succeed and you should get our large, free catalogue. Write for it at once.

D. A. McLACHLAN, Principal

Court Saugeen, C.O.F No. 88

Meets in Oddfellow Hall on the second Wednesday evening of each month, at 8 o'clock. Sojourning brethren are welcome.

W. E. Archer, R.S.
W. Archer, C.R. Deputy

Ahiram Lodge, No. 205, I.O.O.F

Meets every Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock in the Hall Oddfellow Block. Visiting brethren always welcome.

J. F. Hounsom, N.G.
R. S. Grant, R.S.

T. H. GEORGE

Issuer of Marriage Licenses
Notary Public and Conveyancer

Land, Loan, Insurance and General Agent. Notes, Book Accounts and other Debts Collected. Conveyancing Neatly and Cheaply Executed.

—FARMS LOANS A SPECIALTY—

Office in Putnam Block, Queen St. S., Paisley

You Can Begin Any Day at the NORTHERN Business College

OWEN SOUND

Individual Instruction

Our own three story building and 34 successful years of experience. Expert instructors produce the very best results. Catalogue free.

C. A. Fleming, F.C.A. G. D. Fleming
Principal Secretary

Business Directory

JOHN SUTHERLAND & SONS
LIMITED
INSURANCE—FIRE AND MARINE
GUELPH - ONT.

J. C. GIBSON
Issuer of Marriage Licenses
Paisley, Ont.

LEGAL

D. FORRESTER, B.A., L.L.B.
Barrister, Solicitor and
Notary Public
Office—Town Hall, Paisley

MEDICAL

DR. M. C. BLACK, M. D., C. M., F. P. S. C., M.C. P. S. Honor Graduate of Trinity University, Toronto; Member of the College of Physicians and Surgeons of Ontario; Licentiate, Royal College of Physicians, London, England; Licentiate, New York. Specialty—Diseases of the eye, ear, nose and throat.

DR. H. E. CAGE, Physician, Surgeon and Accoucheur. Specialist in Diseases of the Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat. Late house surgeon Kingston General Hospital. Office hours—10 to 11 a.m., 1 to 4 p.m.
Successor to Dr. O'Neill

DR. P. J. F. HOUSTON, Honor Graduate of Toronto University, Licentiate of the Royal College of Physicians and Surgeons of Edinburgh and Glasgow, post graduate Course he Lying in Hospital, Dublin, late Assistant Edinburgh Eye Infirmary. Specialty—Diseases of the Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat.
Successor to Dr. Morrison.

DENTAL

DR. A. H ALLEN
DENTIST, formerly of Toronto.
Graduate of the Royal College of Dental Surgeons of Ontario. Honor Graduate of Toronto University Dental Department. Master of Dental Surgery. Graduate of the Dr. Mayer Post Graduate School of Prosthetic Dentistry, New York. Office over Morse's Drug store, opposite the Post Office.

VETERINARY

R. B. GRANT, V. S., Graduate of Ontario Veterinary College, Toronto. Government Inspector of contagious diseases and Supply Tuberculin test in cattle. Also inspect export stock and issue certificates for same. Surgeon and treatment for milk fever. Office and residence opposite the old Northern Hotel.

AUCTIONEERS

D. C. PEARCE, Licensed Auctioneer. Sales promptly attended to in all parts of the County of Bruce on reasonable terms. Orders left at the Advocate office will receive prompt attention. Telephone at house.

D. J. NESBITT, Licensed Auctioneer for the County of Bruce, is prepared to conduct sales in any part of the county. Terms reasonable. Leave order at Advocate office or address Gillies P.O.

A Few "Becauses"

Why we ask for and expect your Grocery Trade

BECAUSE, as far as is possible to determine, our stock takes in all the good kinds, and leaves the others out.

BECAUSE, if you are particular about eatables, our store will appeal to you.

BECAUSE we play the game of business fair and square. We make right any mistake we may make just as soon as we hear of it.

BECAUSE we try awfully hard to "get there on time." We appreciate the inconvenience of waiting for goods to be delivered.

BECAUSE, in spite of all these advantages, your dollar is as large here as anywhere, often larger.

TRY AND PROVE.

DUTCH SETT ONIONS—4 Pounds for 25 cents.

Leave your order with us for CUT FLOWERS and POTTED PLANTS.

Don't forget we pay the Highest Price for BUTTER and EGGS in Cash or Trade.

F. Carter & Son

Groceries, Crockery, Boots and Shoes

Goods Delivered — Both 'Phones

THE STORE WITH THE QUALITY

Home Defence

Be Loyal to the Home You Live In

Use Sherwin-Williams Paints

Defend it against the weather conditions which are operating against the appearance of your building every day.

By using

Sherwin-Williams Paints and Varnishes

Use Sherwin-Williams Paints

Victory will be yours!

There is nothing more pleasing to the eye than a neatly painted building. It is something that is admired by everyone. Not only does a coat of Paint add to the appearance but it protects the surface from cracking and rotting. A good coat of Paint also adds to the value of your building.

Come and see us. Let us tell you HOW.

W. H. DAVISON

BRUCE PHONE — BELL PHONE

This is the kind of Wall Paper Artist We Do NOT Employ—

No sloppy job like this done by our men. It costs you no more to employ clean, careful workmen, than men like the above.

Our Wall Paper Stock

We have just put into stock the newest and

MOST ARTISTIC PATTERNS.

Complete range of all lines for parlor, hall, dining-room, bed-room or kitchen papers on hand, ready for delivery. We would like to show you our different sample books. Stock on hand of all samples shown.

H. GLOVER

PAPERHANGER AND DECORATOR

Eldersile Tp. Court of Revision

THE Court of Revision of the Assessment Roll of the Township of Eldersile for 1915 will hold its first sitting at the Township Hall, Glitter Hill, on Friday, May 28th inst., at 1 o'clock p.m., Parties having business with the court are requested to attend at said time and place.

H. B. PEARCE, Tp Clerk

Eldersile, May 8th 1915.

TORONTO LIVE STOCK MARKETS

Toronto, Tuesday, May 11th, 1915

Butchers picked	$9 00	$9 00
do common	6 00	6 50
do cows	7 00	7 00
do bulls	6 75	7 25
Stockers, choice	6 50	7 25
do common	5 00	6 00
Heavy feeders	7 35	7 75
Short keep	7 25	7 50
Milch cows, choice	60 00	80 00
do common	30 00	60 00
Sheep, ewes	7 00	8 00
Bucks	6 00	7 00
Spring Lambs, each	11 00	15 00
Calves	6 00	11 00
Hogs, f o b	9 75	9 90
" fed and watered	9 10	9 15

Paisley Court of Revision

Assessment Roll, 1915

TAKE NOTICE that the Court of Revision, to try all complaints in regard to persons wrongly placed upon or omitted from the Roll, or assessed at too high or too low a sum, will be held at the Council Chamber at 2 o'clock a.m. on Saturday, 29th May, inst.

J. C. GIBSON, Town Clerk.

Notice to Contractors

THE undersigned will be at Lots 2 and 3, Townline Brant and Elderslie, on Monday, May 17th, at 3 p.m. to let the contract of building railing at above fills. Said railing will be 200 ft. long requiring 41 cedar posts 10 ft. long, 3 in. top; also 727 ft. wire fencing, 9 strands, 8 gauge, uprights 16½ in. apart. Tenders will be received at above place and time.

H. B. NESBITT, Howse of Brant, LAB. E. and SE. Howse of Eldersile, Commissioners.

Desirable Residence for Sale

THAT very desirable village property on Queen Street south, the Strachan residence, is offered for sale. House new, brick veneered, and in first-class condition. Apply to D. FORRESTER, Paisley.

PUMP REPAIRING

THE undersigned having purchased Mr W Hoch's outfit, is prepared to do all kinds of pump repairing, also furnish repairs, such as cylinders, valves and other parts of wooden or iron pumps. A few Hoek wooden pumps for sale. Wood turning done. Turned whiffletrees, neckyokes and fence posts for sale.

W. RAE

Homeseekers' Excursions to Western Canada

Particular attention is directed to the remarkably low round trip fares in connection with homeseekers' excursions to Western Canada via Canadian Pacific Railway.

Tickets are on sale each Tuesday until October 26th inclusive, and are good to return within two months from date of sale.

The C.P.R. offers the finest possible equipment and fastest train service via one of the most scenic routes in the world.

It is the only line operating through standard and tourist sleeping cars, also dining cars to Winnipeg and Vancouver. All equipment is owned and operated by the C.P.R. affording the highest form of efficiency.

If such a trip is under consideration apply to any C.P.R. agent for full particulars or write M. G. Murphy, D. P. A., Toronto.

PAISLEY MARKET

Fall wheat, per bushel	$1 30	1 30
Spring wheat, per bush	1 00	1 20
Buckwheat	70	75
Peas, per bush
Oats, per bush	50	55
Barley, per bush	65	75
Potatoes, per bus	40	40
Butter, in pound prints	27	27
Eggs, fresh, per doz	22	22
Hay, per ton		15 00

From Footman to Army Boss

The appointment of Sir William Robertson as the Chief of Headquarters Staff is one without precedent in the British Army. The position carries with it practically the complete control of all other staff appointments which are traditionally regarded as the birthright of men of good family. At the outbreak of the war there was scarcely a man on the General Staff whose name could not be found in the peerage; the Chief of Staff was invariably a man of aristocratic birth. The new Chief of Staff is of humble origin. He began life as a pantry boy. At 18 he was promoted to be an indoor footman in the establishment of a wealthy Wiltshire squire, but he made an indifferent and rebellious sort of footman, and one day ended his career as such by telling the well trained butler under whom he served to go to a much hotter place than the pantry. Robertson then walked to the nearest town, took the Queen's shilling and became a private of Dragoons. He become a lieutenant ten years later, and his subsequent rise, considering the tremendous prejudice that has existed in the army toward the advancement of rankers was fairly rapid. He became chief of the staff college at Sandhurst and at the outbreak of war was Quartermaster-General.

Like Kitchener, his abilities lay in his great powers of organization. As Quartermaster-General he was responsible for the organization of the transport and commissariat arrangements, and in an incredibly short time and in the face of the most stupendous difficulties, he built up that vast and complicated machinery by which troops, food, clothes and ammunition can be daily moved between England and the front without a hitch or the least delay or confusion. As Chief of Staff Sir William Robertson has before him the still more difficult task of reorganizing the General Staff. In carrying out this work he will combat the most powerful social influence and deep-rooted traditions and custom of the army. There are not many in the army who would have had the courage to undertake such a task. There are, of course, able officers and good soldiers on the General Staff, but it is a matter of common knowledge that it is overburdened with ornamental officers who are on it for no other reason than their wealth and social position. General French, like other great British generals, could not escape from the old influence. In giving staff appointments to dukes and wealthy peers or their sons he did no more than did Lord Roberts in South Africa or Lord Raglan in the Crimea or the Duke of Wellington in the Peninsular war. This has always been done practically of necessity by the British commander-in-chief in any campaign.

But the plain fact is, and it is one apparently acknowledged, tacitly if reluctantly, by Gen French, that in this great war there is no room on the staff for the ornamental officer. No one doubts for a moment the courage of men like the Duke of Westminster or the Duke of Roxborough or a host of others, or their willingness to undertake any task, however hazardous, they may be asked to perform; but the hard fact remains that they are men with little military experience, and have no knowledge of staff duties. On the General Staff they are simply in the way. They are unfitted for any special duties beyond that of carrying despatches and they are under no command except that of the commander-in-chief, who is far too busy to concern himself about them. They are therefore, more or less at the loose end of a string with a deal of time on their hands which they occupy as often as possible in entertaining their friends and relations on three-day visits from England at various villas along the rear of the British lines.

Either to get rid of the ornamental staff officer altogether or to find some useful or purposeful work for him is Sir William Robertson's determination. His method is a very simple one. He offers a job—it may be one on the lines of communication or a post on the field telephone or telegraph service, something at all events that will take him from headquarters and keep him busy—and the man to whom it is offered must either accept it or clear out. In the last week sixteen officers have been got rid of in this way, four of whom have returned to England. Moreover, the new Chief of Staff had absolutely forbidden all those visits on the part of smart society women to the front, which had during the last few months become a feature of the social life at the British headquarters. All this of course is but a small part of the work which the new chief has in hand; but how difficult it has been and is may be gathered from the fact that Sir William Robertson frankly admitted to a friend in London lately that only for the fact that there was a man at the head of the war office who could say no to a duke or even to a prince he would have been compelled to put up with the presence of the ornamental staff officer at the front. "And I would have resigned, of course, rather than do that," said the Chief of Staff.

The new chief aims at making the General Staff as efficient as it is possible to make it. He will put any man on it whether he is a duke or a newly promoted ranker who can most efficiently perform the particular work required of him. He has not found a duke yet fit to be a staff officer, but he has found the cousin of one and has no hesitation in putting him on the staff. Sir William Robertson's influence is making itself felt right through the army. He the best soldiers he is liked because they have confidence in his tremendous efficiency, but generally speaking, the new Chief of Staff with his rugged, harsh features, ragged moustache and rough manners is feared rather than liked. He is devoid of all the courtierlike qualities which usually distinguish the soldier of high rank. His manners are still the manners of the barrack room, and so often is his language. He has a big appetite and can eat and enjoy the coarsest foods. When visiting the trenches he never troubles to bring a knife or fork with him; he takes his lunch or dinner of beef off a tin plate with his hands. But his efficiency, courage, his masterful and overbearing personality render him without doubt one of the most remarkable men in the British army, in which he is probably destined to hold a still higher position perhaps before the war is over.—Mail and Empire.

—"I must say those are fine biscuits!" exclaimed the young husband. "How long was you at those cookin' lessons?" inquired the young wife's mother, in a private interview. "I didn't say they were fine. I merely said I must say so."

—Renew your subscription to the city dailies or weeklies before the term ends and save interruption in the year's reading. We can get you any paper you want and save you a little money.

A THOUGHTFUL GIFT

Send THE ADVOCATE to the absent member of the family or to the distant friend. It is as good as a letter from home and is a weekly visitor. You can better imagine how the home paper is appreciated when you are absent yourself and a copy is forwarded to you.

VILLAGE COUNCIL

Council met at 8 p m, May 5th. All members present. Minutes of last meeting read and adopted.

Mr W L Murray addressed the council with reference to the dump.

A committee representing the library board interviewed the council in connection with the proposed Carnegie library.

Mr Nixon, agent for the J & J Taylor Safe and Prince Cell Works, Toronto, gave quotations of prices of their wares.

John H Godwin resigned his position as night constable, etc.

Applications for the position of night constable were opened and read.

A petition was presented, signed by R H Conn and others, requesting some work to be done on Alma St. Referred to R and B committee.

George — More — That J H Godwin's resignation be accepted.—Carried.

George—Collins — That the property committee be and are hereby appointed to meet and confer with a committee appointed by the library board in reference to the building of a Carnegie library.—Carried.

Collins—George—That Mr Geo S Stewart be and is hereby appointed night constable, etc.—Carried.

Grant—Collins—That the clerk draft a by-law to prohibit the riding of bicycles on sidewalks.—Carried.

More—George — That the clerk be instructed to notify Mr J S Nichol that he will be required to conform to the village by-law with regard to the kind of building permitted to be erected within a certain distance of Queen St.—Carried.

On motion of Messrs Grant and Collins the following payments were ordered: M Leitch $41 66, J H Godwin $33 33, J H Maurer $35 00, Paisley Elec Light Co $43 91, Weighmaster $8 63, John Dobson $4 99, Alex Blue $4 38, E Dobson $11 20, T F Pearce $9 10, J H Godwin 85c, Geo Flood 50c, W J Ellis $1 00, J C Gibson, J P $1 50, Alex Jack $50 00.

Council adjourned to meet as a Court of Revision when notified.

J C GIBSON, Clerk.

INFERIOR LIGHTNING RODS

Again I wish to warn the farmers of Ontario against inferior lightning rods. One of the same companies that bunkoed the farmers with iron-centred rods last year is reported to be selling the same rod again this year. Watch out for them.

There is no difficulty in spotting these rods. The outside covering is a thin sheet of copper. Inside of the copper is a strip of galvanized steel or iron one-half inch wide and two galvanized steel or iron wires about No 10. The copper sheath is twisted around the strip and wires giving the rod a corrugated appearance. The steel or iron will rust out in from five to ten years. For photograph of what happened to a rod of this kind in less than eight years see Figure 34, Bulletin 220, which may be had by writing the Department of Agriculture, Toronto.

An Illinois firm is circularizing the trade and others advocating the "Mast" lightning rod system. They declare that twisted cables are positively dangerous, claiming they act like "choke-coils," that tubes only should be used, that insulators must be used, etc. For concentrated essence of error these circulars surpass anything else I have ever seen.

Beware of the man with the iron-centred rod and the man who claims that twisted cables are dangerous. This Department will be glad to be informed regarding the operations of either.

WM H DAY.

Department of Physics,
O A C, Guelph

HOW TURNER FIRED A GUN.

An Impromptu Effect That Startled His Fellow Artists.

Turner's impromptu effects were at times consternating to his fellow painters. Mr. Randall Davies, quoting from Leslie, gives in "Six Centuries of Painting," Constable's experience in 1829, when he exhibited his "Opening of Waterloo Bridge." It was placed beside a gray sea piece, by Turner, which lacked all positive color.

"Constable's picture seemed as if painted with liquid gold and silver, and Turner came several times while he was heightening with vermilion and lake the decorations and flags of the city barges. Turner stood behind him looking from the 'Waterloo Bridge' to his own picture, and at last brought his palette from the great room where he was touching another picture, and, putting a round dash of red lead, somewhat bigger than a shilling, on his gray sea, went away without saying a word. The intensity of his red lead, made more vivid by the coolness of his picture, caused even the vermilion and lake of Constable to look weak. 'He has been here,' said Constable, 'and fired a gun.' On the opposite wall was a picture by Jones of 'Shadrach, Meshach and Abednego in the Furnace.' 'A coal,' said Cooper, 'has bounced across the room from Jones' picture and set fire to Turner's sea.'"

Next time Turner came in he glazed the scarlet seal and shaped it into a buoy.

BORN

OSBORNE—In Greenock, on May 2nd, to Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Osborne, a son.

MCRAE—At Winnipeg, on April 15th, to Mr. and Mrs. John W. A. McRae, twins—boy and girl.

DIED

MCMORRAN—In Greenock, on May 9th, Samuel G. H., only son of Henry and Charlotte McMorran, aged 12 years, 6 months and 14 days.

THERE HAS NOT BEEN

any increase in the price of

Columbia Records

They are made in Canada—consequently are not subject to the 7½ per cent War Tax.

They sell from 85 cents to $7.50, but no matter what price you pay, the Columbia Record at that price is exceptionally good value for the money.

Go to the dealer whose name is mentioned below, and ask him to give you a catalogue of Columbia Records.

If he hasn't any, owing to the big demand, write direct to The Columbia Graphophone Co., Toronto, and you will receive one by return mail. But go to the local dealer whose name is mentioned below, and ask him first; also ask him to play over some of the newest Records, including:

Mary Pickford's official song, entitled—

A1701	Sweetheart of Mine I'm Not Ashamed of You, Mollie	.85
A1686	Somewhere a Voice is Calling Whispering Hope	$1.00
A5649	Handel's Largo, by Casals Melody in F, by Casals	$1.50
A5644	A Perfect Day Suzi	$1.25

G. R. WELSFORD

Paisley

Agents wanted where not actively represented. Apply Music Supply Co., Toronto

—"Advertising is the education of the public as to what you are, where you are, and what you have to offer in the way of skill, talent and commodity. The only man who should not advertise is the man who has nothing to offer the world in the way of commodity or service."—Elbert Hubbard.

The Garden and Chickens

A Stevens Point, Wis., man who was bothered with his neighbor's chickens threaded kernels of corn with tags at the end of the thread. On the tags were printed such notices as these:

I've been scratching in Mr. Sackett's garden.

I'm a naughty chicken.

I have been trespassing.

I am a feathered bandit.

When the neighbor returned to his home in the evening he found his chickens running around with tags in their beaks. He was convinced that it was time to see that his fowls were kept off the premises of Mr. Sackett. The scheme was not a new one, but it is always found to be popular with the garden devotee who has a neighbor owning chickens.—Buffalo News.

—There is considerable difficulty experienced in the rivers, harbors and canals just now on account of the low level of the water. Freighters passing down the St. Lawrence from Port William to Montreal have to be lightered before entering the river. The water in the rapids is six inches lower than it was a year ago. Local men claim that the water in Lake Huron along Bruce Co. shore is 24 inches lower than usual. Of course in the spring the water here is always at its lowest mark and gradually rises as the season advances. According to the engineers the water level in Duluth Bay is fifteen inches below normal.

The Darkest Hour;

Or, The Hope That Still Lived.

CHAPTER XXIII.—(Continued).

Maggie Maitland put her lover's letter carefully away inside the bodice of her shabby black frock, and, rising from the bench, began shiveringly to plod her way homeward through the deepening dusk. She was reproaching herself bitterly for having stayed too long away from the poor little home where she was so much needed. And yet it was urgently necessary for her to occupy herself at some time or other with thoughts and plans for the future support of even that barest and poorest of refuges. It had to be supported, and food had to be found for the feeding of three persons; and how was this to be done?

Certainly it could not be done if things went on as they were going on now; that is to say if she, Maggie, the sole bread-winner of the family, only succeeded in earning her own living—and that an insufficient living—and five shillings a month, or at the utmost seven, to feed the other two members of the household and to meet all the other expenses which even the smallest and poorest of homes unavoidably entails. There were rent and candles and fuel although not so much of this last was afforded—and boots, and soap, and a score of other things which could not very well be done without; Maggie's heart sunk more and more within her as she counted up the items. How should she meet all these constantly pressing needs? More than all, how should she supply the good quality food for want of which Alice was slowly dying?

Oh, yes, that was the truth, and she knew it! Alice was slowly dying, and for lack of strengthening food and fostering warmth. Even if she had been yearning and struggling to wait until her absent lover could return with money enough to save them, would she have been able—would the three of them have been able to hold out until that time.

She felt that they could not have done so, she knew that she herself could not be able to bear unaided for a whole year—no, not even for a whole month—the burden of their support. Surely, then, this must mean that her Auld Robin Gray, Dr. Sidney Kendal, had been sent by Providence to rescue her and hers from going down for ever in the black waters of misery.

Surely she must take this as a sign that she was not willed by destiny to be the wife of the brave young fellow who had wooed and won her heart a year ago and had then gone out to seek in a younger country the fortune upon which their happiness was to have been built. She told herself that the present pressure of her great need had perhaps been put upon her in order that she might be forced to turn to the patient love of the kindly old man who by dint of helping her had grown to love her.

There was just one gleam of hope shining faintly through the thickening blackness that had gathered around the path of her life; just one gleam, and no more. A few mornings ago there had come for Mrs. Maitland by the first post in the morning a letter from a man in their own district in Scotland saying that he enclosed a money order for five pounds in part repayment of a loan which David Maitland had made him shortly before the latter's death. The letter had been strangely reticent as to the amount of the loan, neither had the writer explained how it came about that no mention of the loan had been found in honest David Maitland's few papers. Mrs. Maitland had, indeed, stared at the money order dumbfoundedly.

"Five pounds was a mighty big sum to your father, lassie," she had remarked to Maggie as soon as her astonishment had allowed her to speak. "And it would have needed a deal of persuasion to make me believe that David would have lent such a sum of money without telling me about it, let alone without putting it down on paper. And, according to this good man, whoever he may be, it was more than five pounds that was lent—may be even twenty pounds! Well, well, it's hard to believe, but I suppose seeing is believing. Folks don't pay back money that ain't owing. It's mostly a hard enough job to get them to pay back what is owing. And what's his name that sends it? Robert Watt? Why, I never heard of him before in my born days! Indeed, then, my goodman David must have been real underhanded. I never would have thought it of him never! This sets me thinking that maybe he did a few more underhand things that'll come to light by and by."

And so the dead David Maitland was deprived of his reputation for openness of dealing and for having made his good wife his confidant in all that he did, thought, or hoped. Maggie herself was astonished, but she had never doubted the genuineness of the loan. That precious five pounds would have been used, at the wish of Mrs. Maitland, to pay for their return to Scotland if it had not been for the doctor's stern refusal to allow Alice to be moved. Maggie had half suspected that his determined firmness on this point had been partly due to his unwillingness to let her go away from London before she had given him her final answer, but even her inexperienced eyes could see that Alice was not getting better, and that in her present state of weakness there might in very truth be some danger that to move her, and especially to expose her to cold and raw weather, might result in the premature cutting off of her frail little life.

So they had stayed, and the five pounds had done wonders, and the thought that more might come from the same source whence this had come, in payment of that mysterious debt which they were all willing enough to take for granted, made the only ray of hope for the future which her straining eyes could see. For she loved Alexander Dare very dearly after all, and there was in her heart a faint, secret thought that perhaps there would presently come to her, in reply to the letter in which she had for his own good renounced him, a wild, passionate appeal from him, in which he would pray her not to wreck his life by dreaming for a moment that the severance of the bond between them was possible. If she should write like this, saying from his heart that in his new fortune as well as in the old she was all in all to him, that it would be no burden upon him to support her adoptive mother and sister, but only a great privilege of love, and finally that she had promised herself to him and could not go back upon her promise—why, then, her hungry heart would leap with joy to take him at his word and to fulfil that promise which they both regarded as a sacred one. This was the chance that kept her from giving her final answer to Dr. Kendal, although that answer became more imperatively necessary every day. She had not told Mrs. Maitland of the doctor's offer of marriage. She had not told her because she knew that the pleading in the old mother's eyes—a pleading for herself, for Alice, for them all—would compel her to put her hand at once and for ever in the old man's hand without waiting to see whether that other faint, lingering hope might blossom into fulfilment.

But on this Sabbath evening her hand was to be forced by other means than Mrs. Maitland's tears and prayers.

She was walking through the park towards Clarence Gate, a soaked, shivering, unhappy creature, trying to walk faster than her weakness would allow in the hope of getting some comforting warmth into her thin chilled body, when a man passing her in the gloom stopped short abruptly, and spoke her name in a tone of surprise. She uttered an exclamation. He was a man whose face and figure had been familiar to her in her early childhood, but whose name she had never known—for the very good reason that during the past ten or twelve years he had been abroad, supposedly engaged in making the fortune which boastful, simple folk imagine can be made so easily in the newer countries across the sea.

"Maggie Maitland!" he exclaimed again, putting out his hand, and studying her as closely as the evening light would allow. "You are Maggie Maitland, aren't you? Who'd have thought of meeting you here in London—and on the first evening of my coming up here, too! But I'm glad—very glad. I'm Robert Watt, you know. You remember me, don't you? You'll remember me by sight, anyhow. I—"

He broke off stammeringly as if at some inconvenient recollection. And Maggie guessed what it was that had so suddenly embarrassed him.

"Oh, you must be the Mr. Watt who sent us the five pounds a fortnight ago. You said it was in repayment of some money my father lent you. My mother, Mrs. Maitland, you know, to whom you addressed the letter—does not remember the debt at all. She was very much surprised, because she had always thought that her husband told her everything connected with his business. As we have no written proof of the loan having been made, it is all the more good of you to say you will do your best to repay the whole sum as soon as possible. You can't have any idea how welcome the money will be to do—of how welcome the five pounds was—" She stopped, confused in her turn. Then she asked him: "What made you think of sending it just at this time? Had anybody told you that our coming up to London had been a mistake, and that we were badly in need of money? Because I didn't know that anybody knew. I am very sorry, and so will mother be. She's so proud and independent; she won't take help from any one—not as a gift, I mean. How did you come to send us the five pounds just at the right time like this?"

She had become aware that he was faltering, hesitating, showing confusion. And in a flash she drew a conclusion from his manner. She laid her hand upon his arm.

"You're not telling me the truth, Mr. Watt," she said reproachfully. "And I don't like that. You must tell me the truth, [illegible] whatever it be. Did not my father lend you money after all? Did you send the five pounds only as charity to us because you had heard somehow that we were very badly off?"

Apparently, Robert Watt, the good worthy fellow, felt himself to be helpless against her pleading. However that may have been, he did presently stammer forth a tale which the anxiously listening girl felt to be the truth indeed. He said that Dr. Sidney Kendal, who happened to know him slightly, had written to him enclosing a five-pound note, asking him to send it to Mrs. Maitland, inventing some little story about it which should reconcile that independent-minded woman to the acceptance of it. The doctor had written that the little family of three, of which Mrs. Maitland was the head, were almost destitute, but would take no direct help from him, because such help would appear to them in the light of charity. He was therefore constrained to find a means whereby they could be helped with money without injury to their inconvenient pride, and he had thought the ingenious falsehood necessary for the securing of this end a perfectly legitimate and pardonable one.

Maggie listened with her pale cheeks blanching yet further.

"Then there's no more to come," she cried, hardly knowing what she was saying in the sharpness of her disappointment and in her self-resentful sense of having been outwitted.

If there were no more money to come, except through Dr. Kendal why, then, the last, lingering hope of holding out somehow until Alexander Dare's return had been shattered at a blow.

Robert Watt was staring at her wonderingly. And in another moment to his increased amazement she had left him without a good-bye, and was running as fast as her tired feet could take her homeward to face the situation that had now grown utterly desperate.

There was only one thing to do, and she was going to do it. And fortune favored her with the opportunity of carrying her resolve immediately into effect. For in the attic-room, which she called home, she found both Alice and Mrs. Maitland quietly sleeping in the gloom which only the light of a single cheap candle relieved; and beside Alice's bed, thoughtfully watching her yet, and perhaps waiting too for the coming home of the girl for whose sake he had dealt so tenderly with this child sat the dignified grey-bearded man whom Maggie called her Auld Robin Gray.

He looked up at her as she came in. And even in the dusk he knew by the expression of her small, white face that she would give him his answer to-night.

Yes, the old doctor, grey-bearded, and patient by reason of much worldly experience, knew beyond a shadow of doubt—knew by some mysterious sixth sense—that Maggie would give him her answer to-night.

And with the sense of relief, of calm, deep joy which this sudden new certainty produced in him, there came before his mind for the first time an absolutely clear perception of the situation as it stood between him and this girl. He saw it in its strangeness, and veritably it was strange. He told himself that perhaps no situation exactly like it had ever existed before. The story of the king and the beggarmaid belonged, if it were true at all, to ancient times of romance; but never before surely in these latter days of steam engines and all-round matter of factness and vulgar commercialism had a medical man, who had risen high in his profession, and who in rising had amassed much wealth, offered his hand, his name, and his riches to an utterly humble, poor, and insignificant girl of whose antecedents he knew nothing and to whom his sole introduction had been the discovery of her lying in a dead faint on the stones of Trafalgar Square under the contemptuously surprised inspection of an unsympathetic policeman, who had stumbled against her helpless and prostrate figure.

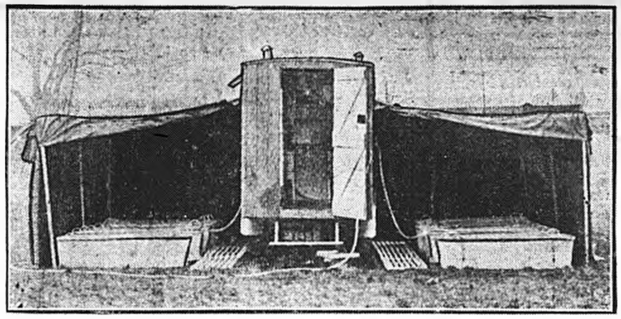
The doctor saw himself as he had been when a young man, seeking always for some woman whom he could love sufficiently to want to marry her. He had always been urged by his family to marry as soon as possible, if only for the reason that a married doctor had always a far better chance of success than an unmarried one; but year after year, and even decade after decade had passed, and still Sidney Kendal had failed to find the woman of whom he could say that he wanted her more than he had ever wanted, or could ever want, any other woman in the world. From a young man he had become an old one, into whose life and thoughts the idea of marriage had ceased to enter; during the past five years, indeed, he had joked with his intimate friends about his final self-dedication to perpetual bachelorhood. And here he was on the point of taking to wife a girl so far below him in class, in position, and in years, that his friends would think him a madman and fool to have even recognized at all the possibility of marriage with her.

Most people would have said if they had seen her now as she stood before him pale and blue with the cold, thin to attenuation, and miserable-looking in every way, that she had not even prettiness or grace to recommend her. He could almost have wondered himself in these moments what it was in her that had won his love. But he remembered that in days when trouble had weighed less heavily upon her than now, in days when the sky of her life had still had a gleam of blue somewhere amid its darkening clouds, she had possessed a beauty such as might have won for her the admiration of even the most difficult to please among men. Her features were very good; it was only the color and roundness which had departed from them. The lustre had gone out of her hair, too; her pretty, light brown hair, whose sheen and ripple made it remarkable in the days when she was in good health. After all, it is only the supremest beauty that can endure under bad conditions. And the conditions for Maggie Maitland had lately been bad enough. He had risen to meet and support her, for under-feeding had brought her now into such a state of weakness that any violent exertion, such as running upstairs, made her heart beat painfully. She leaned back against the wall, very pale, with her breath coming jerkily.

"You have been out a very long time," he said reproachfully, "and in weather like this, too! Where have you been? I was beginning to feel anxious about you, so was your mother, but I comforted her, and told her you were sure to be all right."

"I've been sitting in the ark Regent's Park reading a letter and thinking," Maggie began to explain, not very coherently. "I felt I wanted to be alone, to think, so as to know what to do."

"You have been sitting in the Park in this weather!" exclaimed the grey-bearded man in a tone of amazed rebuke. "Why, that was madness! You may have caught a chill that will mean a long and severe illness. And that sort of thing is hardly the best way to lighten the troubles of those who love you."



"That's true enough," Maggie acknowledged, bowing her head under his censure. "That's true enough. Only, somehow, when you've anything hurting you, whether in mind or in body, you don't think of those things. And I didn't think I've really hurt myself—not this time. I was cold, of course, and I've got my feet wet, but that's nothing new."

She smiled a little sadly, and went over to the fireless grate to take off her wet stockings and shoes. She had no alternative pairs to change them for, but she slipped her bare feet into Mrs. Maitland's clumsy boots, and then returned to say what she had to say to the man who had been the only friend who had held out a saving hand to her and hers during the months of their loneliness and bitter trouble in London. As for him, he looked from the fireless grate to her thin figure and pinched, colorless face, and she knew that the look meant her to understand that that hearth would not be cold but for the inconvenient pride of Mrs. Maitland, which led her to refuse any help that took the semblance of charity.

"I know—I know," the girl faltered. Looking into her face, the old man who loved her felt more sure even than before that the barrier of her opposition to this love had in some mysterious sudden way been broken down. And then she began to speak, and he understood in a moment what it was that had wrought the change.

"I have run home, or run as much as I could, so that I might tell you the sooner what I have been thinking about this afternoon, and what discovery I have made. I had another letter from Alexander Dare yesterday. I didn't tell you about it when you came last night, because I wanted to think over it by myself before talking about it. I took it out with me this afternoon, and read it over and over again. It didn't help me much in my difficulty about choosing what I ought to do, because he wrote it before my letter reached him, I mean, of course, the last letter I sent, the one in which I told him that I thought it would be better for him not to think of marrying me now that he was heir to Sir Randolph Dare. He hasn't answered that letter yet. And so, I'm surprised to find, this letter is just as loving as the others, though he talks about his better fortune all the time. He says—and I'm sure he means it—that he's gladdest about the change in his position for my sake. He doesn't seem to think at all that I shouldn't be fit to share that position with him. Perhaps he does think it, only he won't let me know that he does. He's so good, he wouldn't hurt me for anything in the world. But that only makes all the more reason why I should tell him what I think about it. And that's why all the love that's in his letter makes me feel more than ever that I mustn't marry him. It wouldn't be fair for me to keep him to his word, no, not even though he may think now that he'd rather have me for his wife than anybody else in the world. He mightn't think so afterwards—not after he had married me and had found how stupid and helpless I am to be the wife of a man of the sort he's going to be. And I mightn't be happy either. I know I couldn't be happy if I thought he was ashamed of me, and was wishing he'd never married me. And, you see, though it didn't matter whether he pleased Sir Randolph or not last year when he first loved me, yet it matters a great deal now. If he vexes his uncle now he mayn't have money enough to carry on the title."

(To be continued.)

Hot Baths by Car for Wounded and Unwounded British Soldiers.

This motor bath, built for the St. John's Ambulance Association, carries twelve folding baths, which are of proofed canvas on a double iron frame. When in use, the baths are in a tent, as shown. Hot water is conveyed to the baths by two hose. The heating apparatus, which is in duplicate, is inside the body. Paraffin gives the heat. Water is supplied at the rate of two gallons a minute to each of the two bath taps. The supply tank holds fifty gallons, and the two boilers each hold five gallons. The equipment of the interior includes a fumigating cupboard, in which thirty suits of clothes can be fumigated at a time.

Timely Spraying.

Especial pains should be taken to destroy the eggs as well as the winter flies of the pear psylla, as effective work greatly reduces the number of eggs deposited on the trees.

In early spring while the insects are able to crawl they are very sluggish in their movements. This habit makes them very vulnerable to treatment and the grower should take full advantage of it by so spraying that none of the insects be allowed to escape. It is essential to wet thoroughly all portions of the trees and especial care should be taken to force the liquid under the loose bark and into all the cracks and crevices in the bark. One tree should be thoroughly sprayed before proceeding to another, for in balmy weather the flies may dodge quickly to the opposite side of the tree. In planning this work, be sure to select days when there is no danger of the spraying mixture freezing on the trees.

The eggs about to hatch and the young nymphs succumb easily to an application of lime-sulphur mixture. In this lies a very important hint to the fruit grower. The eggs of the psylla are laid principally during April and commence to hatch early in May or when the blossom cluster buds are beginning to separate at the tips. Most growers spray much earlier than this for the San Jose scale, but by postponing the treatment of pear orchards until the blossom clusters are well advanced one may deal an effective blow against the psylla and with the same treatment successfully combat the scale. The spray should be used in liberal quantities and pains should be exercised to wet all portions of the tree, especially the fruit spurs and the under sides of the young wood where most of the eggs are laid.—H. Hodgkins, New York.

Proper Distance for Planting.

Standard apples, 30 feet apart each way.

Standard pear and strong growing cherries, twenty feet apart each way.

Duke and Morello cherries, eighteen feet apart.

Prunes, plums, apricots, peaches, nectarines, sixteen to twenty feet apart.

Dwarf pears, ten to twelve feet each way.

Dwarf apples, ten to twelve feet each way.

Grapes, rows ten to fifteen feet apart, seven to sixteen feet in rows.

Good Horse Sense.

A horse should not be watered immediately after being fed grain. Idle horses should not be fed too much grain.

Have the horses' teeth examined once a year.

Do not continually dose your horse; keep him well by proper care. Horses cannot be kept in a thriving condition if they are compelled to get all their living from the straw stack.

Do not change the grain ration abruptly.

Immature Breeding.

By breeding the heifer at less than two years of age you are sure of getting her to producing something at an early age, but you are also sure that she has been stunted before she reached maturity; that her calf will not be as large and vigorous as it should be and that she cannot possibly produce as much milk as she would had she been bred at a period when her capacity for production was nearer perfect development.

To a "T."

"That fits to a 'T'" is a well-known saying, although its origin may be a little obscure, it is asserted by graphologists that a person's character can be read not only from their handwriting, but from the manner in which they form the letter "T" alone.

It is claimed that the vertical line represents the fatality of life while the horizontal bar across it is the influence which the human will exercise over that fatality. It is, moreover, asserted that the higher or the lower that any writer crosses his "t" is an infallible guide to the amount of ideality which exists in his nature. The lower portion of the letter corresponds to the practical and material part of one's character, while the higher the horizontal bar is made—and sometimes it is even above the vertical line—the more artistic is the temperament. The optimist crosses his "t's" with a line sloping upward, as it were, from the earth to the sky; but the poet is often above the line—in other words, his thoughts are in the heavens.

Whether there is anything in this—who knows? Examine your own writing and see.

"What kind of a fellow is he?" "Oh, he's the kind of fellow who goes out for a walk with you, and then tells you how democratic he is—not afraid of being seen with anybody."

Silver Gloss
LAUNDRY STARCH

means perfect starching, whether used for sheer Laces, dainty Dimities, delicate fabrics, Lace Curtains or Table Linens.

"Silver Gloss" has been the favorite in the home for more than 50 years

AT GROCERS

The Canada Starch Co. Limited

SPOHN'S DISTEMPER COMPOUND

INFLUENZA Catarrhal Fever, Pink Eye, Shipping Fever, Epizootic

And all diseases of the horse affecting his throat, speedily cured; colts and horses in the same stable kept from having them by using Spohn's Distemper and Cough Compound, 3 to 6 doses often cure; one bottle guaranteed to cure one case. Safe for brood mares, baby colts, stallions, all ages and conditions. Most skillful scientific compound. Any druggist.

SPOHN MEDICAL CO., Goshen, Ind. U.S.A.

Canada's Favorite Sugar for Three Generations

The Redpath "Sugar Loafe" of 1854 was the first cane sugar refined in Canada. "Redpath Granulated" of 1880 was the first Canadian granulated sugar. "Redpath Cartons" of 1912 marked the introduction to Canadian Stores of this new and better way of marketing sugar.

Redpath

EXTRA GRANULATED SUGAR

For Sixty Years Redpath Sugar has consistently led in purity, in quality, and in the appreciation of the thousands who use it. It is the product of a thoroughly modern refinery, operated by men of skill and experience, whose one aim is sugar perfection.

Get Redpath Sugar in Original Packages—it's well worth while!

2-lb. and 5-lb. Sealed Cartons. 10, 20, 50 and 100 lb. Cloth Bags.

CANADA SUGAR REFINING CO., LIMITED, MONTREAL. 124

NEW STRENGTH IN THE SPRING

Nature Needs Aid in Making New Health-Giving Blood

In the spring the system needs a tonic. To be healthy you must have new blood, just as the trees must have new sap to renew their vitality. Nature demands it, and without this new blood you will feel weak and languid. You may have twinges of rheumatism or the sharp stabbing pains of neuralgia. Often there are disfiguring pimples or eruptions on the skin. In other cases there is merely a feeling of tiredness and a variable appetite. Any of these are signs that the blood is out of order—that the indoor life of winter has lessened your vitality. What you need in spring is a tonic medicine to put you right, and in all the world of medicine there is no tonic can equal Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These pills actually make new rich, red blood—your greatest need in spring. This new blood drives out the seeds of disease and makes easily tired men, women and children bright, active and strong. Miss Edith Brousseau, Savona, B. C., says:—"I was as pale as a ghost, suffered from headaches, severe palpitation of the heart at the slightest exertion. I had little or no appetite and seemed to be drifting into a decline. I was attending High School in Vancouver at the time, and the doctor advised me to stop. I did so and took his treatment for some time, but it did not help me in the least. Upon the advice of a friend I began taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and in a very short time they gave me back complete health, and enabled me to resume my studies. I have enjoyed the best of health since, and owe it all to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

These Pills are sold by all medicine dealers or can be had by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

VOYAGE IN AN AIR SHIP.

How It Feels to be in a Zeppelin Raid.

A correspondent of the Dagnes Ryheder received permission from the German military authorities to go aboard a Zeppelin during a recent raid, and he has sent a graphic description to his paper. He does not mention names of towns or cities which were bombarded by the Zeppelin, as he was sworn to secrecy in this regard.

"A voyage in a Zeppelin while on a raid over the enemy's country is never to be forgotten," he writes in the Dagnes Ryheder. "Aside from the nerve destroying excitement of the occasion, the most pronounced experience of the voyage is the intense cold that envelops the airship like a cake of ice in its flight through the black night. No one can realize who has not experienced it just what this means. We have no lights and are not even permitted to smoke in order to relieve the monotony of the uncanny night.

The roaring of the North Sea below us reaches our ears, while above us is the star decked sky. We get the impression that the airship is like some extinguished star roaming through black, cold space. We do not talk; somehow no one cares to talk. We remain silent. The air breaks over the bow of the ship like the waves seem to penetrate our very marrow. All is dark below us. Presently the faint lights of a village are discernible, and then the brighter illumination of a city comes in sight. We feel like a bird of prey that is about to pounce down upon its enemy.

We get ready to drop our bombs as the city lights are almost under us. The order is given. We see here and there a sharp white flame as the bombs strike, and from the depth below us presently is heard the faint roar of the explosion sounding to me like the cry of some damned soul. For a short time the Zeppelin rises, then it falls again, and we return on our journey, the intense cold again enveloping us.

CROSS, SICKLY BABIES

Mrs. Chas. E. White, Waterford, N.B., writes:—"I have used Baby's Own Tablets for both my babies and find them excellent. My baby girl was cross and sickly, but after giving her the Tablets she became strong, healthy and happy." Baby's Own Tablets never fail to make sickly children well and the mother can give them to her children with absolute safety. They are guaranteed by a government analyst to be free from injurious drugs. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

"I don't know how to take this chicken apart," declared the bride. "Well, coming down here, we tackled a motor successfully," said the young husband. "We ought to be able to handle a small job like this. Where's the book of instructions?"

A Brave Englishwoman.

Miss Muriel Thompson, of the First Aid Nursing Yeomanry Corps, has been personally decorated by King Albert with the Order of Leopold II. for bravery in the field in rescuing wounded from trenches under heavy shell fire.

SOME HISTORIC SWIMS.

Byron's Feat in the Dardanelles—Other Hard Swimmers.

The forcing of the Dardanelles has elicited many references to Byron's famous swim from the European shore to the Asiatic. This was the route taken not only by his own Don Juan, but by all others known up to the first decade of the nineteenth century to have performed the feat.

Chief among these in Byron's day was a Neapolitan and a young Jew. Each of these, like Byron himself, with his companion Ekenhead, were watched the whole time by hundreds of spectators, whose interest in the matter had been stimulated by a controversy about the strength and the exact direction of the tides. As it was, the force of the stream made straightforward progress impossible, and extended a passage of one mile to something between three and four.

Capt. Bathurst, of a frigate then lying in the Golden Horn, with a companion named Turner, had both tried to follow Leander's exact course from Abydos to Sestos, only to meet with repeated failures. No doubt, therefore, says the Westminster Gazette, they convinced themselves that they would have done better to steer the poet's course; this, be it said, somewhat the easier, was shown by Hobhouse to be beset by many serious risks.

Of these Byron made light, saying that he had been fully trained to overcome them by the far more exhausting and perilous swimming of the Tagus. Byron, of course, is not alone among British bards in his natatory prowess. The tradition of Shakespeare's doings in the Avon should perhaps be rejected. His contemporary, Spenser, it is circumstantially attested, showed himself perfectly at home on and under the river Lee when, in 1580, secretary to the Lord Deputy de Wilton.

Shelly, as a boy, in the south of England, circumnavigated in his morning dip the pond covering a hundred acres in the park of Field Palace; he surpassed this performance, however, in salt water between Bournemouth and Swanage. But his literary champion of the art during this period was the gigantic John Wilson ("Christopher North"). To him the water formed as much his element as the land. Windermere and Loch Lomond he seldom took a header in without making a complete compass of them and in his Magdalen days, without once touching the shore, he did about a third of the distance from Oxford to Westminster. In his Balliol days A. C. Swinburne never attempted to rival this, but, in company with his contemporaries, John Nichol and G. R. Luke, both Snell exhibitioners, acquitted himself with distinction on the reaches between Iffley and Nuneham.

Beware the Thermometer!

One would hardly believe it possible that the thermometer used for the regulating of the heat of a sick room could be the very cause of the poisoning and almost the death of the persons sleeping in it; but a case has recently come light which should sound a note of warning. It is vouched for on the highest medical authority.

By accident a thermometer had been left lying upon the heating apparatus of a night nursery, and the mercury rose to such a degree that it burst the glass of the thermometer, and the fumes were breathed by a couple of children who were sleeping in the room. Happily, they were discovered in time, although severe symptoms had set in.

The doctor was able to trace the cause. It was a case of mercurial poisoning, and promptly applied remedies just saved the lives of the children.

They Helped Him and His Friend

THAT IS WHY H. A. CLARK RECOMMENDS DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS.

Western Man Tells Why Dodd's Kidney Pills Are So Popular on the Prairies.

Homeglen, Alberta, May 3rd (Special).—Just why Dodd's Kidney Pills are so popular on the prairies is shown by the statement of Mr. H. A. Clark, a well-known resident of this place.

"Since I came West," Mr. Clark states, "I was often troubled with my stomach and back. Finally I decided to try Dodd's Kidney Pills and before I had taken more than half a box I was so much benefited that I recommended them to a friend. He also found them a benefit. I am still taking Dodd's Kidney Pills. I would not be without them."

In new countries bad water is one of the difficulties settlers have to fight and bad water makes its first attack on the kidneys. To resist this attack the Kidneys must be stimulated and strengthened. In other words the Kidneys need Dodd's Kidney Pills. By giving the Kidneys the help they need people get new health, and Dodd's Kidney Pills add to their popularity.

KNITTING NEURITIS.

Ailment Which Slightly Resembles Writer's Cramp.

Many women since the war have taken to knitting with a vigor that knows no bounds. Unfortunately their zeal has produced a definite malady which may be compared with tennis elbow or writer's cramp.

In one single country village where the knitting fever ran very high three women are suffering in various degrees from what is known as "knitting neuritis." It affects the upper arm and shoulder rather than the fingers, and seems to affect only those who knit with difficulty, having not practiced the art in their youth.

It is said that the English method of knitting, which is equally popular in England as the German method, has a greater tendency to produce this affection.

"When any untrained set of muscles is suddenly called upon to repeat indefinitely a complex and unaccustomed sequence of movements," a London physician said recently, "a spasmodic paralysis is very likely to develop. In knitting neuritis the trouble begins with the worker feeling that the usual wrist and finger movements cannot be followed out with their customary ease. Later the muscles get stiff, and finally, in the later stage, develop a spasmodic cramp as soon as the knitting needles are taken into the fingers. A peculiar characteristic of the ailment is that while the fingers are thus affected when any attempt is made to knit, there is no interference with other varieties of finger movement.

"The only treatment is to give up knitting indefinitely. Sometimes after a couple of months complete rest one can begin again. In other cases a year or more of abstention is necessary, otherwise the trouble recurs unmediately."

IN A SHADOW

Tea Drinker Feared Paralysis.

Steady use of either tea or coffee often produces alarming symptoms, as the poison (caffeine) contained in these beverages acts with more potency in some persons than in others.

"I was never a coffee drinker," writes a lady, "but a tea drinker. I was very nervous, had frequent spells of sick headache and heart trouble, and was subject at times to severe attacks of bilious colic.

"No end of sleepless nights—would have spells at night when my right side would get numb and tingle like a thousand needles were pricking my flesh. At times I could hardly put my tongue out of my mouth and my right eye and ear were affected.

"The doctors told me to quit using tea, but I thought I could not live without it—that it was my only stay. I had been a tea drinker for twenty-five years; was under the doctor's care for fifteen.

"About six months ago, I finally quit tea and commenced to drink Postum.

"I have never had one spell of sick headaches since and only one light attack of bilious colic. Have quit having those numb spells at night, sleep well and my heart is getting stronger all the time."

Name given by Canadian Postum Co., Windsor, Ont. Read "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

Postum comes in two forms:

Postum Cereal—the original form—must be well boiled. 15c and 25c packages.

Instant Postum—a soluble powder—dissolves quickly in a cup of hot water and, with cream and sugar, makes a delicious beverage instantly. 30c and 50c tins.

Both kinds are equally delicious and cost about the same per cup.

"There's a Reason" for Postum. —sold by Grocers.

THOUGHTS ON MISTAKES.

We may make mistakes in trying to help others, but what pardonable mistakes they are!

The man who does things makes mistakes, but he never makes the greatest mistake of all, doing nothing.

Mistakes are often the first letters in the lessons of life. We can make strong words out of them, if we will.

When you make a mistake do not look back at it long. Take the reason of the thing into your mind; then look forward.

It is foolish to try to hide our mistake; in the first place, it cannot be done very long; and if it could it would only add a second mistake to the first.

It is a mistake to pay no attention to the mistakes of others, nor try to help them out of them. Aiding others to be strong is the best way to strengthen ourselves.

One of the mistakes that poisons home life is the unwillingness to yield in unimportant trifles. The desire always to have one's own way is far from the way of life.

If we do not look ahead and plan our life we shall some day realize our great mistake. A life without a plan is as crazy as affair as a house without a plan for its building.

It is not our mistakes that cause us to fail, but only a wrong attitude toward our mistakes. The Chinese say, "Our greatest glory is not in never failing, but in rising every time we fall."

Magic "Nerviline" Ends Stiff Neck, Lumbago

Any Curable Muscular or Joint Pain is Instantly Relieved by Nerviline.

GET TRIAL BOTTLE TO-DAY

You don't have to wait all day to get the kink out of a stiff neck if you rub on Nerviline. And you don't need to go around complaining about lumbago any more. You can rub such things away very quickly with Nerviline. It's the grandest liniment, the quickest to penetrate, the speediest to ease muscular pain of any kind.

One twenty-five cent trial bottle of Nerviline will cure any attack of lumbago or lame back. This has been proved a thousand times just as it was in the case of Mrs. E. J. Grayden, of Caledonia, who writes:—"I wouldn't think of going to bed without knowing we had Nerviline in the house. I have used it for twenty odd years and appreciate its value as a family remedy more and more every day. If any of the children gets a stiff neck, Nerviline, cures quickly. If it is earache, toothache, cold on the chest, sore throat, Nerviline is always my standby. My husband once cured himself of a frightful attack of lumbago by Nerviline, and for a hundred ailments that turn up in a large family Nerviline is by far the best thing to have about you."

Army Precedence.

In a march-past, what British regiment would march at the head of the troops? The Household Cavalry most people would say. No; the Royal Horse Artillery, that gallant gimmick whose title certainly entitle it to take the "right of line," though for gallantry it is really difficult to say which regiment comes first.

After them come the Life Guards, Horse Guards, and the other cavalry regiments, according to their numbers. The Royal Artillery take precedence of the Royal Engineers, and even of the Foot Guards, which head the infantry of the line.

These come in the order they appear in the Army List, the only exception being the Rifle Brigade, which comes after the Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders.

Wonderful.

Mr. Craig was reading the evening paper while his wife sat by knitting.

"Just listen to this, Debby," he said. "It says here that more than 5,000 elephants a year go to make our piano keys."

"Gracious," cried the wife. "Ain't it wonderful, Dan, what some animals can be trained to do."

Minard's Liniment Lumberman's Friend.

Makes a Difference.

"There is no sadder sight to me," said the Socialist orator, "than the laborer's empty dinner pail."

"Shure!" said a man in the crowd, "that all depinds on whether it's empty before th' noon hour or after."

Keep Minard's Liniment in the house.

"I've been reading an article on electricity, John," said a woman to her husband, as she laid down a copy of a technical newspaper she had been perusing, and looked over her glasses at her better half. "And it appears that before long we'll be able to get pretty well everything we want just by touching a button." "It will never pay here," growled the husband. "You would never be able to get anything in that way." "Why not, John?" asked his wife, the light of battle flashing in her eyes. "Because nothing on earth would ever make you touch a button. Look at my shirt."

How a Sick Woman Can Regain Health

READ THIS VERY CAREFULLY.

"For years I was thin and delicate. I lost color and was easily tired; a yellow pallor, pimples and blotches on my face were not only mortifying to my feelings, but because I thought my skin would never look nice again I grew despondent. Then my appetite failed. I grew very weak. Various remedies, pills, tonics and tablets I tried without permanent benefit. A visit to my sister put into my hands a box of Dr. Hamilton's Pills. She placed reliance upon them and now that they have made me a well woman I would not be without them whatever they might cost. I found Dr. Hamilton's Pills by their mild yet searching action very suitable to the delicate character of a woman's nature. They never once griped me, yet they established regularity. My appetite grew keen—my blood red and pure—heavy rings under my eyes disappeared and to-day my skin is as clear and unwrinkled as when I was a girl. Dr. Hamilton's Pills did it all."

The above straightforward letter from Mrs. J. Y. Todd, wife of a well-known miller in Rogersville, is proof sufficient that Dr Hamilton's Pills are a wonderful woman's medicine. Use no other pill but Dr. Hamilton's, 25c. per box. All dealers or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ontario.

World's Waste.

We are the most wasteful people in the world, an American once said of the English.

The Americans are very keen on waste, for they make money from it. The humble "junk" business, as they call it, has prospered in America as in no other place, and this snapping up of unconsidered trifles has made many an American fortune. In Boston lives a dealer who has accumulated more than a million dollars, while several of his competitors could sign big cheques. One Philadelphian dealer has half a million invested in buildings alone.

Scattered over the State of New Jersey are a good dozen wealthy men who have made their money out of what others have thrown away. One of those New Jersey dealers recently bought the greatest "lot" of junk ever purchased in that State—namely, the old iron and refuse which the French abandoned at Panama. The original cost of that material was about a million dollars.

What sum the junk dealer paid for it is, of course, not known, and what he made out of the deal no one dared to estimate.

Lady Not Thrown In.

Customer (looking at auto). What! The lamps not included in the advertised price of the machine! But the lamps are shown in the illustration.

Salesman—My dear sir, so is a very beautiful woman, but we're not giving the lady with each car.

Corns Cured Quick

Applied in 5 Seconds

Sore, blistering feet from corn-pinched toes can be cured by Putnam's Extractor in 24 hours. "Putnam's" soothes away that drawing pain, eases instantly, makes the feet feel good at once. Get a 25c. bottle of "Putnam's" to-day.

Two neighbors had a long litigation about a small spring, which they both claimed. The judge wearied out with the case, at last said. "What is the use of making so much fuss about a little water?" "Your honor will see the serious nature of the case," replied one of the lawyers, "when I inform you that both are milkmen."

SEED POTATOES.

EARLY IRISH COBBLER POTATOES, specially selected and Government inspected for seed. Only limited quantity. Price, One Dollar per bushel f.o.b. Brampton. Also Canadensen's Pride and New Ideal, two excellent new potatoes. Price, Two Dollars per bushel. Special prices for large quantity. Cash must accompany all orders. H. W. Dawson, Brampton.

NEWSPAPERS FOR SALE.

PROFIT-MAKING NEWS AND JOB OFFICE for sale in good Ontario town. The most useful and interesting of all businesses. Full information on application to Wilson Publishing Company, 73 West Adelaide St., Toronto.

BUFF ORPINGTONS.

LOOK! BUFF ORPINGTONS—WINNERS! Worlds best shows. Guaranteed zero weather layers. Baby chicks, $2.00. Settings, half-price, $3-$10. H. Gattley, Weston, Ont.

MISCELLANEOUS.

CANCER, TUMOUR, LUMPS, ETC., internal and external, cured without pain by our home treatment. Write us before too late. Dr. Bellman Medical Co., Limited, Collingwood, Ont.

NO MORE DANDRUFF.

DANDRUCORE

Will stop your falling hair, ease the itching, and make your hair glossy and smooth. Sample enough for 3 days, postpaid, 15 cents. 406 Yonge St. Arcade, Toronto, Ont.

KERMATH Marine Engines

"America's Standard 4 Cycle Marine Motor"

2 Cyl., 4 Cycle, 12 to 30 H.P. Right and Left Reversible. Write for Catalog. Kermath Mfg. Co., 1849 Jefferson Ave., Detroit, Mich.

KEELEY CURE

1253 DUNDAS TORONTO

FOR ALCOHOLIC & DRUG ADDICTIONS

Thoughtful of Him.

Mr Manley—Well, my dear, I've had my life insured for five thousand dollars.

Mrs Manley—How very sensible of you! Now I shan't have to keep telling you to be so careful every place you go.

Ask for Minard's and take no other.

Excluding warships, 462 vessels of 1,027,316 tons gross were under construction in the United Kingdom at the end of the year 1914.

Minard's Liniment Co., Limited.

Dear Sirs—Your MINARD'S LINIMENT is our remedy for sore throat, colds and all ordinary ailments.

It never fails to relieve and cure promptly.

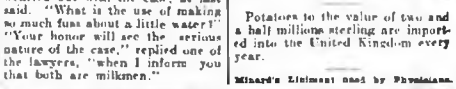
JOHN WHORTEN.

Port Mulgrave.

According to Father.

Little Charlie had been naughty, and was now doing penance in the corner.

"I can't help being naughty," he said, in a thoughtfully sad voice. "I never heard of any boy being perfect—except one."



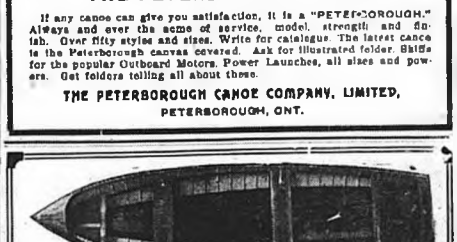
"Who was that?" asked mother, trying to hide her smiles.

"Farver—when he was little," came the crushing retort.

YOUR OWN DRUGGIST WILL TELL YOU Murine Eye Remedy for Red, Weak, Watery Eyes and Granulated Eyelids; Murine Soothes Eye Comfort. Write for Book of the Eye, by mail Free. Murine Eye Remedy Co., Chicago.

Potatoes to the value of two and a half millions sterling are imported into the United Kingdom every year.

Minard's Liniment used by Physicians.



Canoes, Skiffs, Motor Boats

THE PETERBOROUGH LINE.

If any canoe can give you satisfaction, it is a "PETERBOROUGH." Always and ever the acme of service, model, strength and finish. Over fifty styles and sizes. Write for catalogue. The latest canoe is the Peterborough canvas covered. Ask for illustrated folder. Skiffs for the popular Outboard Motors. Power Launches, all sizes and powers. Get folders telling all about these.

THE PETERBOROUGH CANOE COMPANY, LIMITED, PETERBOROUGH, ONT.

"Overstern" V Bottom Motor Boat $55.00

Freight Prepaid to any Railway Station in Ontario. Length 18 Ft., Beam 3 Ft. 9 In., Depth 1 Ft. 6 In. ANY MOTOR FITS.

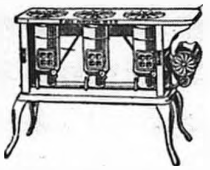
Specification No. 2B giving engine prices on request. Get our quotations on—"The Penetang Line" Commercial and Pleasure Launches, Row boats and Canoes.

THE GIDLEY BOAT CO., LIMITED, PENETANG, CAN.

House-Cleaning Supplies

SINCLAIR'S

The Hardware Store of Better Values



Vacuum Cleaner for Rent 50c per Day

Lawn Mowers

It's Easy with a Good Mower

$4.00 to $5.50

"New Perfection" Oil Stoves

Are durable, simple in operation, and suitable for all kinds of cooking the year round. Especially popular in summer because they keep the kitchen cool and clean.

Made with 1, 2, 3 and 4 Burners

From stock—2-Burner, $8; 3-Burner, $11

Ovens, $2.50 and $3

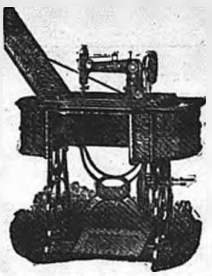
"Stop the fly's unwholesome buzz.
Handsome is as handsome does."

Price of DOORS
$1.25, $1.50, $1.90, $2.25, $2.50 complete with Hinges, etc.

WINDOWS priced at 15c, 25c, 30c, 35c, 40c and 60c

FLY SWATTERS, 10 CENTS

"The fly disseminates disease,
So therefore you should see at:
Unswatted flies are very bad,
But swatted flies are not."



Seeds Seeds Seeds

MANGLE, RAPE, TURNIP AND CORN
At the Best Prices.

Bruce 'Phone 11

Sinclair's Hardware

Bell 'Phone 30

We handle the Goodrich, Raymond, New Williams, White, Singer and Standard—all the very latest models. Edison Phonophones and Records, Bell Pianos and organs.

PETER McKINNON, Agent, Paisley
Ross Street

The City Bakery

Is always ready to supply your needs. Why worry and melt over a hot fire? We are here to do your Baking for you. Let us try.

Other than baking we try to keep a fresh supply of Greens and Fruit on hand—as well as a full stock of Fresh Groceries.

We would appreciate it if the public would make their purchases early on Thursdays as it is impossible for us to maintain a strict observance of the Thursday half-holiday on account of our Ice Cream Parlor which will be open every Thursday evening.

We need your trade. Butter and Eggs for Cash or Trade. Dutch Set Onions for sale.

Bruce and Bell 'Phones

F. S. McLACHLAN

SCHOOL REPORTS

S S No 8, GREENOCK & ELDERSLIE

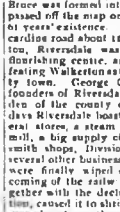
Sr IV—Winnie Megraw, John Acton, Douglas Cottrill, Chester Teeple. Jr IV—John McAngus, Grace McMorran. Sr III—Jack Nelson. Jr III—Alice Watson, Bessie Nelson, (Edna Megraw and Lula Greaves—equal) Howard Watson, Annie Ritchie. Sr II—Clara McMorran, Archie Thompson, Joe Rowley. Jr II—Lewis Rowley, Mabel Hay, Roy Teeple, David Rowley, Christina McAngus. Jr II—Viola Megraw, Bessie Ritchie, Reta Cottrill, Louis Thompson. Sr I—Bessie Davison, Jim Cobham, Harry Greaves, Clarence McKeeman. Jr I—Lily B. Keenan, Edna Greaves, Emma Cobham, Jean Hay, Jack Cottrill, Timmy—Mary Thompson, Roy Daniels, John Thompson.

M D GALBRAITH, Teacher

S S No 9, Bureer

V—J G Brown 63*. Sr IV—R Wrightson and K H Hemmaney 53. Jr IV—H Urquhart 61, R Fullerton 50, E Brown 40 Sr III—W Nelson 69, F Wrightson 55, R Greer 54. A Parker 43, L M Brown 43, J Smith 8. Jr III—E Wrightson 34. *I McKinnon. Sr II—M Wrightson 59, J Pace 57, C Fullerton 53, A George 45, A McDougall 44, J Brown 35. Jr II—G Roppell 55, C Fisher 41, W Smith 8, *E Hyde. Sr I—H Wittig, L Smith, P Hemmaney, J Mahaney, S Schwass. Jr I—C McKinnon, Gordon McMann. Sr I—H McDougall, H Smith, George McMann. Jr Class—G McMahaney, C Smith. A Class—H Gottschalk, M Morrison, M Wood, E McKinnon, C Roppel. Those marked * were absent for exams. No on roll 47; average attendance 39.

M NIXON, Teacher



Children Cry
FOR FLETCHER'S
CASTORIA

Riversdale Post Office Closed

The Riversdale post office, which was established in 1863, or two years before Bruce was formed into a separate county, passed off the map on Saturday last, after 61 years' existence. Situated on the Kincardine road about 11 miles from Walkerton, Riversdale was in the late '50's a flourishing centre, and came nearly defeating Walkerton as the site for the county town. George Cromer, one of the founders of Riversdale, was the first warden of the county of Bruce. In those days Riversdale boasted two or three general stores, a steam saw mill and grist mill, a big supply of hotels and blacksmith shops, Division Court office, and several other business places. The mills were finally wiped out by fire and the coming of the railway to Walkerton, together with the decline in rural population, caused it to shrink so that one might now almost pass through without noticing it. It still has the only licensed bar between Walkerton and Kincardine, but the passing of the post office, which is now being supplanted by rural routes, still further marks it as a has-been.—Herald and Times.

WOMEN FROM 45 to 55 TESTIFY

To the Merit of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound during Change of Life.

Weathrock, Me. — "I was passing through the Change of Life and had pains in my back and side and was so weak I could hardly do my housework. I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it has done me a lot of good. I will recommend your medicine to my friends and give you permission to publish my testimonial." — Mrs. LAWRENCE MARTIN, 12 King St., Westbrook, Maine.

Marston, Wis. — "At the Change of Life I suffered with pains in my back and loins until I could not stand. I also had night-sweats so that the sheets would be wet. I tried other medicine but got no relief. After taking one bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I began to improve and I continued its use for six months. The pains left me, the night-sweats and hot flashes grew less, and in one year I was a different woman. I know I have to thank you for my continued good health ever since." — Mrs. M. J. BROWNELL, Marston, Wis.

The success of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, is unparalleled in such cases.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

Buy High-Grade Flour

Direct From the Mill

MAKE the best bread and pastry you've ever tasted. Prices of flour and feeds are listed below. Orders may be assorted as desired. On shipments up to 5 bags buyer pays freight charges. On shipments over 5 bags we will prepay freight to any station in Ontario east of Sudbury and South of North Bay. West of Sudbury and New Ontario add 15 cents per bag. Prices are subject to market changes. Cash with orders.

Cream of the West Flour

the hard wheat flour guaranteed for bread

GUARANTEED FLOURS	Per 98-lb. bag
Cream of the West (for bread)	$4 65
Toronto's Pride (for bread)	3 80
Queen City (blended for all purposes	3 70
Monarch (makes delicious pastry)	3 70
FEED FLOURS
Tower	2 60
CEREALS
Cream of the West Wheatlets (per 6-lb. bag)	35
Norwegian Rolled Oats (per 90-lb. bag	3 40
Family Cornmeal (per 98 lb. bag)	2 30
FEEDS	Per 100-lb. bag
Bullrush Bran	$1 40
Bullrush Middlings	1 50
Extra White Middlings	1 62½
Crushed Oats	2 15
Cracked Corn	1 90
Barley Meal	1 90
Geerts Feed (Crushed Corn, Oats and Barley)	1 90
Oil Cake Meal (old process)	2 65
Cotton Seed Meal	1 95

These prices are not guaranteed for any length of time owing to the unsettled condition of the market.

Every bag of Flour ordered entitles purchaser to two bags of bran or middlings at 25c. per bag less than the prices given above. Special prices to farmers' clubs and others buying in carload lots.

You can get a free copy of "Ye Old Millers Household Book" (formerly Dominion Cook Book) if you buy three bags of flour. This useful book contains 1,000 carefully tested recipes and a large medical department. If you already have the former edition (Dominion Cook Book) you may select one book from the following list each time you order from us not less than three bags of flour. If you buy six bags you get two books, and so on. Purchase to count for each book to pay for postage. Remember at least 3 bags must be flour

— BOOKS —

Helen's Babies	Beautiful Joe
Laura Jeanne	Little Women and Good Wives
Miller of the Flow	The Story of an African Farm
Tom Brown's School Days	Black Beauty
Adam Bede	Quo Vadis
David Harum	The Three Musketeers
Innocents Abroad	The Mighty Atom
Helmets of Nuptshook Farm	Mr Potter of Texas
The Lilac Sunbonnet	Jess
The Scarlet Pimpernel	A Welsh Singer

The Campbell Flour Mills Company Ltd.
(West) Toronto

SECOND CON. ELDERSLIE

Seeding operations are almost completed in this section.

Messrs Robt Jefkins and J B Allen attended the Liberal convention at Formosa last week.

Monday morning was a busy time for some of the farmers on this con, who were delivering their fat cattle in Chesley, and we have no doubt but they all returned home with smiling face and full pocketbooks.

Hugh Watt is busy putting in his crop on lot 22.

Mrs (Rev) Brown of Keady and Mr H Ferrier and his two little daughters Kathleen and Gladys of Bervie were visitors at W J Allen's last week.

Mrs V Addison has removed to Chesley to make her home with her daughter Mrs H Adolph. Mrs F McLeod and Miss Dina Addison are going to reside with their brother Mr David Addison of Chesley.

Miss Tena Mitchell visited her sister Mrs Coleman of Tara over Sunday.

Mr James Vancise had a runaway with his driver one day last week. While he was in at a neighbor's it was tied to the fence and broke loose leaving the buggy in the barnyard. It went home alone but no serious damage was done.

Mothers' Day was observed in 2nd Con S S on May 9th by the largest attendance that the S S has registered for over ten years. A program was well rendered by the members of the school. It consisted of addresses by the Superintendent, Mr Halliday of Chesley, readings by Mrs A Lillico, Mrs W J Allen, Mrs J Caldwell and Mrs R Jefkins. The musical part consisted of a chorus by mothers of the S S, a male quartette by Messrs C J Halliday, D C Lillico, T Patterson and J B Allen, a duett by Mrs Dawson and Mrs C J Halliday, and a solo by Mr T Patterson. The school was tastefully decorated with flowers and each person as they entered was presented with a white flower boquet in honor of mother.

Children Cry
FOR FLETCHER'S
CASTORIA

GLAMIS

Miss Sara McIntyre is home from Toronto visiting her parents, Mr and Mrs J C McIntyre.

Mrs McKeeman, accompanied by Phyllis Moffat, has returned from Hamilton and Beamsville.

Mrs Reith returned from Hamilton where she attended the Women's Missionary Convention.

Miss Bertha Moulton and Miss Kate McDermid motored to Port Elgin on Monday night and returned on Tuesday in time for school.

Miss Kate McLeod, who has been spending some time at her home on the 2nd, returned to Detroit.

The marriage of Miss Sara McLennan to Mr Arthur Pinkerton took place in Brandon on Saturday, May 1st. They expect to make their home to Rocanville, Sask. Their Glamis friends wish them every success and happiness in life.

—Clubbing rates with all the city dailies and weeklies.

TURNERS'

Seeding is all finished up and rain is badly needed.

Mr and Mrs Sam Fleming, of Paisley, were calling on friends here, before Sam leaves for the front.

Mr Donald Christie has purchased a Ford touring car.

Mrs Fleming, sr. of Paisley, was visiting Mr Arch Pollock, sr.

Mr Henry Dier lost a valuable cow last week.

Mrs Hillis is visiting her father in Hanover, who is very ill at present.

Mr and Mrs Holloway, of Port Elgin, visited Miss Annie Pollock on Sunday.

WALKERTON

Congratulations are due to Mrs H Bacon, who on Sunday of last week celebrated her 92nd birthday. Mrs Bacon, who is without doubt of Walkerton's oldest citizen and settler, having come here with her husband in the spring of 1856, received many kind remembrances from friends and members of the family on the day. The aged lady, although confined to her bed, is still in possession of all her faculties, and her many acquaintances hope to see her spared to have a few more milestones.

Chief Ferguson went to Ambleside on Monday night and arrested Peter Waechter, a farmer of Greenock, on a charge of threatening to shoot his two brothers-in-law. Waechter it appears became incensed at his brothers for some reason and went to the barn, where with a loaded double-barrelled shotgun he threatened to shoot anyone coming near. He held his fort for several hours until the arrival of Chief Ferguson and his assistants. He was taken before Magistrate Tolton and and was remanded one week for trial. If the evidence on Monday next warrants it Waechter will be examined as to sanity.

Two local men whose names appear on the prohibitory list of Walkerton appeared before Magistrate Tolton on Monday, and were assessed $10 and costs on a charge of being drunk. Another fellow pleaded guilty to being drunk and disorderly and resisting arrest and paid $1 and costs. Another gent, who celebrated the event of his name being taken from the Indian list by getting a hilarious jag on, appeared in court yesterday also charged with being drunk and disorderly and paid $5 and costs. Into court, and a fifth also paid a fine of $5 and costs on a similar charge.

On Wednesday afternoon of last week the village of Formosa was visited by a disastrous fire which swept unchecked until considerable damage was done. The fire started about 3 o'clock on the property of Mr Geo Seitz, being caused, it is thought, by a spark from the smoke-stack of the sawmill. The building was soon in flames which spread to Mr Seitz's house and both buildings were consumed. The house and stable of Mr Walter Tedy then took fire and were destroyed, and the flames then spread to Mr Weller's cooper shop which, together with his residence and a large stock of staves and flour barrels, were destroyed. Mr A Oppermann's large stable about two hundred feet away from the cooper shop also fell a prey to the flames. The Mildmay fire brigade was sent for, and with their assistance and that of a large crowd from the surrounding district, including Teeswater, the townspeople were able to check the conflagration. It was about six o'clock before the flames were under control. With the exception of that of Mr Seitz, all the property destroyed was insured.—Telescope.

—A deputation of wholesale liquor men who interviewed Hon. J. A. Calder and Hon. F. W. Turgeon at Regina, were informed that the decision of the Saskatchewan Government to take over the wholesale liquor business is final. Advocating the cause of the retail liquor dealers, the deputation asked that permission be granted to sell light wines and beers over the bars after July 1st, but to this J. A. Calder made an emphatic reply: "We will not allow the sale of wines, beers, or even soft drinks."

Importance of Farmers' Gardens

Fresh vegetables make up a very small part of the diet of many families on farms. It is impossible to estimate the value of the vegetables which may be grown in the home garden, but it is safe to say that a well-kept garden will yield a return many times as great as the return from an equal area devoted to general farm crops. There is great satisfaction in having an abundant supply of fresh vegetables where they can be secured on short notice. Vegetables and fruits furnish a large part of the salts required by the human system, so that they are valuable medicinally as well as for food. If more succulent food were available, less money would be spent in doctors' fees and for medicines.

Fresh vegetables from the home garden are not subjected to exposure in marketing, are not liable to infection and are of a much better flavor than vegetables that have been gathered for some time. The home vegetable garden deserves greater attention from the average farmer.

Hor-e cultivation of the garden is recommended wherever possible, and, where the work is to be done by means of horse tools, the garden should be arranged that the rows will run lengthwise. It is often a good plan to grow vegetables for the table in the same field with corn or root crops. Two or three rows in this field, on the side close to the house, can be planted to tomatoes, radishes, cucumbers, cabbages, beans, peas, etc., and will supply fresh vegetables for the table during the growing season. They can be easily cultivated and kept clean when the corn and root crops are being attended to with the horse implements. One lady in Prince Edward Island, on one of the farms where illustration work was being done for the Commission of Conservation, who desired to go into the poultry business, moved the garden out to the field and had it attended to as above suggested. This plan worked so well that it has been continued and gives excellent satisfaction. There is no reason why the same thing can not be done on many farms; it will mean that a better and more abundant supply of vegetables will be obtained, and, also, that the woman's work on the farm will be considerably lightened. Every pound of food supplied from the garden means that there will be more of the other products of the farm for sale.

CASTORIA

For Infants and Children

In Use For Over 30 Years

Always bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher

—The Meaford Monitor reports the following story, which we give for what it is worth. According to the story perpetual motion must have been discovered. It says: "Mr Seymour Charters lost a gold watch out of his pocket last year when plowing. This year while his father was plowing he turned up the self-same watch, and what is more, the watch was going and showed the right time to a minute. It is a stem winder, and it is thought the fish worms crawling over it kept it wound up." Some story, isn't it?

Steele's for

Horse Collars, Sweat Pads, Rubber Lap Rugs, Whips, Auto Plush Rugs, Star Harness Soap, Bickmore's Gall Cure, Axle Grease

Our Harness includes quality, durability, an guarantee and high class workmanship found in no other makes of Harness.

Baggage Trunks, Suit Cases, Club Bags, Grips, Hand assortment and close prices.

Harness parts and Repairing our Specialty

J. H. STEELE

R. T. ROBINSON

CARPENTER AND CONTRACTOR

ESTIMATES furnished for the erection of any class of building. Large or small contracts undertaken.

Address Chesley or Cargill P.O

PURDY'S LIVERY

Rates Reasonable, and every effort made to satisfy

F. PURDY

—Clubbing rates with all the city dailies and weeklies.

Many Colleges Close for Vacation at midsummer. Our College does not.

ELLIOTT Business College

TORONTO - ONT.

is strictly first-class. None better in Canada. Enter now, so as to take a position by the early fall. One graduate writes: "My new position pays three times what I got at teaching—school less than four years ago, just previous to entering your College. We placed this young man in a position after graduation, and have now placed him again. Catalogue free.

W. J. ELLIOTT, Principal. Cor. Yonge and Charles Streets.

W. H. BAKER

Having opened a shop in Sinclair's old hardware building, Queen St. North, we are prepared to do all kinds of

Sign and Carriage Painting

HOUSE DECORATING AND PAPER-HANGING, as usual. Prices right.

ROBT. IRVING
PLASTERER

SEE Robt. Irving the Plasterer before letting any work in this line. Separate estimates for all kinds of plastering, or with Jas Dewar for whole contracts for erection of buildings.

—NOTICE PAPER—real vegetable parchment, not a cheaper imitation—printed and sold at The Advocate Office at lowest possible prices. We can print 500 sheets or more with your name on, and for the convenience of those who do not require that quantity, we keep printed wrappers on hand without any name on and sell this in quantities of 100 sheets or over.

The Paisley Advocate.

D. McKENZIE, Publisher
Vol. 47—No. 20

PAISLEY, ONTARIO, MAY 20, 1915.

$1.00 per Annum in Advance
$1.25 if not so paid

Grand Opening of Summer Goods!

We have now on display a full range of Summer Novelties, such as are seen on Fifth Avenue, New York. They include Embroidered Voiles, plain and flowered Crepes, the new Silk Poplin in all shades, the fashionable black and white striped Muslins, Vestings, etc. We have the well known Vivyella Cloth in all shades—the cloth that washes without fading or shrinking. These novelty dress goods are carried in dress lengths only, making them exclusive.

In our staple department you will find a complete stock of Factory Cottons, Cambrics, Lonsdales, Madapalons, Longcloths, Bridalcloths, etc, also Curtain Scrims, plain and flowered Voiles, Bungalow Nets, Reversible Cretonnes, Art Sateens, Ginghams, Repps, Calateas, Shirtings, etc.

Before purchasing come in and look over our Men's, Ladies' and Children's Shoes. We have added several new lines, including Oxfords and Pumps of the latest designs. Our Pumps are made over pump lasts, not over a shoe last, as a great many pumps are, so you will find they fit the feet.

In our Men's Furnishings you will find a new stock of Men's and Boys' Straw Sailors, Felt Hats, Shirts, Ties, Sox, etc. Perhaps there never was a time when better values were offered in Men's Clothing than right now, even with conditions so uncertain. They are made of strong English and Canadian cloths in medium and dark patterns, light and dark Grey and Browns. The coats are 3-buttoned, single breasted, sack style, lined with strong Italian cloth; the vests close with 5 buttons; the trousers are extra strongly made and sewn. We have them all prices.

We sell the famous "Niagara Maid" Silk Gloves the pure silk that gives long wear, the high-class workmanship, the perfect fit and the guaranteed double tip.

Fresh Groceries Every Week

Highest Prices Paid for Farm Produce

Wool Wanted! 10,000 lbs. Wool wanted, for which we will pay highest price in Cash or Trade.

M. J. CAMPBELL

W. H. McFarlane's Old Stand : : Paisley

New Spring Suitings

See our goods and styles before buying. We have a large stock to choose from.

We Make a Specialty of . . .

Ladies' Tailoring

No trying on or worrying. Just leave your measure and we will attend to the rest. All the newest goods and latest styles from which to make your selection. Satisfaction guaranteed.

I. S. Cruickshank

CHANGE OF BUSINESS BARGAINS

Children's Boots, Booties, Children's and Women's Slippers, Children's and Misses' Boots and Shoes, Gents' Boots and Shoes. Children's Footwear, from Booties up to sizes 10, 11 and 12, at prices ranging from 50c up. These are extra good quality, but we want to get rid of them, so we are almost giving them away.

Gents' Fancy Silk and Linen Wash Ties regular 50c and 75c, for 25, 35 and 40c. These are seasonable money savers.

Neck Scarfs and Silk Handkerchiefs at a big discount.

CHINA—Austrian, Bavarian and German China, some hand-painted pieces—in Biscuit Jars, Raw Fruit Bowls, Nifty Milk and Cream Pitchers, Tea Pots, Cake Plates, Nut Bowls, Celery Trays, etc., at all prices very, very low. This class of goods will soon be souvenirs, as none can now be bought to renew stock. Just the line from which to purchase pieces to replace those you find broken at housecleaning time.

1000 Crates of Eggs Wanted at Once. Farmers, call and get your crates and fill them up. Highest Prices in Trade or Cash for both Butter and Eggs.

Our Ice Cream Parlor will be open some day this week. Watch for our opening day.

A. T. BONATHAN

Hyde's Old Stand Successor to W. S. Mitchell

—Private funds to loan.
D. FORRESTER.

—Fresh Sausages, 2 lbs. for 25c. H. E. McGREGOR.

—Wilkinson plows and repairs at P. Carter & Son's.

—Pure maple syrup still in stock. Ballachey, Laidlaw & Co.

—Marriage licenses issued and money to loan. T. H. GEORGE.

—Fresh kiln of lime ready May 24th. T. ARIT, lot 19, con. 12, Sullivan.

—Good driving horse for sale, 7 years old. Enquire at Advocate office.

—Full lines of fine engagement and wedding rings at J. Shoemaker's Jewellery store.

—All our millinery at reduced prices. Don't miss this chance. Ballachey, Laidlaw & Co.

—FOR SALE CHEAP—Top buggy, auto seat, steel tires; good as new. Apply to H. B. PUTNAM.

—Highest prices paid for hides and sheepskins. H. E. McGregor, Butcher, Steele Block.

—For dress goods and trimmings we think we have what you require. Ballachey, Laidlaw & Co.

—Highest price for beefhides, horsehides, calfskins, sheepskins, tallow, &c. P. OLTSHER, Paisley Meat Market.

—"Rough on Rats" clears out Rats, Mice, etc. Don't die in the house. 15c and 25c at drug and country stores.

—It's only a dollar, but it means a good deal to THE ADVOCATE if hundreds are slow in paying that on their subscription.

—Eggs for Setting—from a proven good strain of that great utility breed, the Barred Rocks—15 eggs for 75c. Apply to Mrs. A. McKenzie, Paisley.

—Auction sale of 15 milch cows and 10 young calves at the Central Hotel stables, Paisley, on Saturday, May 22nd, at two o'clock p.m. Jas E. Cass, prop; R. C. Pearce, auct.

—If you have a guest at your home, are going out of town for a visit, or know of any interesting news, kindly let us hear from you. We will always appreciate such favors.

—Just received at E. Stevenson's an assortment of pipes that will surely please. Come and select your choice. Tobaccos, stationery, also our wonderful salve that cures burns and sores, soothing for burns.

—HOMESEEKERS' EXCURSIONS every Tuesday up to and including October to the Canadian Northwest. For tickets, maps, etc., apply at the Canadian Pacific Railway ticket office, W. J. McFarlane's old stand, Paisley.

—Five Roses, Rainbow, Purity, Cream of the West, and Stark's high-grade flours, also Bran and Shorts. Blatchford's Sugar and Flax, Caldwell's Molasses Meal, and full line of Poultry Foods and Tonics. Always in the market for coarse grains. E. G. ECKEL.

—SEEDS, SEEDS—We can supply everything that is wanted by the farmer or gardener for spring seeding and planting. Many seeds usually sold in packages can be bought from us in bulk at much better value, all from reliable growers. See us before ordering. E. G. ECKEL.

—Walkerton claims a population of 3156. Kincardine is the second largest town in Bruce with 2368 inhabitants.

—Walkerton's total tax rate will likely be 31½ mills for 1915, thus including the county and provincial levies for patriotic purposes.

—Capt. McKeesock, a former Chesley lawyer who went to France with the 48th Highlanders and has been missing, is now officially reported as a prisoner at Bischofswerder in Saxony.

—A monument was erected at Goderich a few days ago over the grave in which were buried the bodies of a number of unidentified sailors who were drowned in the great lake disaster of Nov. 9th, 1913. The base of the monument is a solid block of grey unpolished granite, upon which rests a block of finely polished red granite, the whole being about five and one-half feet high. On one face the single word "Sailors" is inscribed, and on the other the words "A memorial to the unidentified seamen, whose lives were lost in the Great Lakes disaster of November 9th, 1913." A grey granite marker is placed at the foot of each grave with the name of the steamer from which the body came and a number which corresponds with the number on the records kept of the body.

CARD OF THANKS

Mr. and Mrs. H. H. McMorran desire to express their thanks for the sympathy extended to them in their sad bereavement, and the many acts of kindness shown by neighbors and friends, also the teacher and children of U.S.S. No. 8.

—Mrs. S. Fleming was down to Guelph over Sunday visiting her husband.

—Mrs. Hogg arrived last week from an extended visit at Long Beach, Cal.

—Mrs. R. B. Fleming has purchased the Palmatier dwelling on Victoria St.

—Dr. Thos. O'Hagan is here from Detroit, on a visit to his brother in Elderslie.

—Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Simons have gone to Preston Springs for a couple of weeks.

—Mrs. John Bannerman, of Elderslie, has returned from Guelph hospital, where she underwent an operation recently.

—Mr. Stanley McGill is home for a couple of weeks' vacation. He has been in the optical business at Sarnia for some time, and now goes to take another position in the same line at Chatham.

—Mr. and Mrs. Alex Ross, of Vinemount, also Mr. D. C. McMorran and daughter Miss Mae, of Lucknow, and Mrs. Hulmer, of Wingham, attended the funeral of their nephew last week.

—Next Tuesday evening Mr. John McCharles, of Toronto, will give an address in the Church of the Ascension on "Germany and the War." A collection will be taken in aid of the Young People's Society. All are cordially invited.

—Austen Grandelet, who enlisted at Walkerton for the first contingent, was reported to have died from wounds received in battle, but the report proved to be untrue. This young man is a former Greenock and Paisley boy, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Grandelet, who before enlisting was living with his aunt, Mrs. Foster, near Walkerton, but now of Tara.

—A musical evening for the benefit of the Red Cross Society will be given at the home of Dr. and Mrs. A. H. Allen this Thursday evening from 8 till 11. It is the twenty-fifth anniversary of their wedding and a cordial invitation is extended to everyone to come and spend a pleasant evening, and bring a silver contribution for the wounded soldiers. A good programme has been prepared.

—Dr. Black has had a very painful existence for the past two weeks, suffering from what turned out to be an abscess in his face. He was under the care of his brother medicos of the town, who have treated his case skilfully and successfully. Dr. Middlebro, of Owen Sound, was called for consultation, and performed an operation which was found to be necessary. The patient is now recovering most satisfactorily.

—A number of appeals for various reasons are entered by Paisley ratepayers against the assessment this year. The Bruce Telephone Co. claim they are not liable for business tax; J. H. Glover, of the Balmoral hotel, appeals on the same ground; W. Flood and Mrs. H. A. Blough claim to be assessed too high on property; Mrs. Hogg, Mary B. Pearce and T. F. Pearce and the Hogg Estate trustees, all appeal against income assessment; Jas. R. Craig and T. F. Pearce appeal against business assessment for auto livery; W. R. Tooke appeals on canine assessment, and J. A. Elwes has sold a lot for which he is assessed.

—Mrs. F. Last, of Oddie St., had a very chilling adventure in the woodshed at her own home on Saturday last. She had asked her neighbor, Mr. D. H. Sparrow, to repair the cistern top which had become decayed. The cistern was full of water, and while Mrs. Last was reaching for some loose debris that was floating on top, she fell in head first. Mr. Sparrow had the greatest difficulty in rescuing the lady from danger of drowning, but accomplished it single handed. Not until help arrived, however, to place a short ladder in the cistern could the victim of the accident be got out of the wash. The cheery old lady now laughs about it, but at the same time realizes that she had a close call.

Nurse Going to the Front

The young lady referred to in the following from the Guelph Mercury, is the eldest daughter of a former stationmaster at Paisley: Mrs. James Robertson, Drayton, accompanied her daughter, Miss Ivete, who had been paying a visit to her home there, to Guelph on Monday to say good-bye. Miss Robertson is being sent with several other nurses by the Canadian Department of Militia and Defence to the battle ground in France to care for wounded soldiers. The party leave Toronto in a few days. Miss Robertson is well qualified for this work. After graduating from the Guelph General Hospital Training School for Nurses six or seven years ago, she spent three years as assistant in the operating room of Dr. Howard A. Kelly's hospital at Baltimore, and for the past year has had charge of the operating room in Wellesley Hospital, Toronto. The party have been receiving special preparation in Toronto for their work at the front. While here she visited Miss Gibson, a nurse in training at the same time at the General Hospital, and was interested in looking over the soldiers' quarters here.

More's Wall Papers for 1915

Be wise in time and see our excellent aggregation of new and artistic effects in room decorations before purchasing your supply.

We have never shown a better range of Wall Paper or at more reasonable prices.

P. B. MORE : : Druggist

Established over Forty-one Years

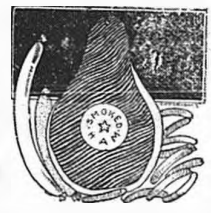
THE STANDARD BANK OF CANADA

ASSETS OVER $48,000,000

The A, B, C of Banking

Get the Savings Habit.

Highest Current Rates Allowed, and Interest Compounded Half-Yearly on Deposits.



We solicit your account in our SAVINGS DEPARTMENT

PAISLEY BRANCH

F. C. RYAN Manager

Branches also at Harriston and Tiverton.

Paisley Meat Market

Fresh Beef, Pork, Mutton, Cured Hams, Bacon, etc. Soft Pork, Cooked Meats, Home-made Sausage (2 lbs. for 25c), Bologna and Headcheese. Kidney Suet. Poultry in season.

Cash for Hides and Skins . . . Both Phones P. OLTSHER

J. S. DEWAR

PAISLEY

Builder, Contractor and Cement Worker

Brick or cement buildings erected, brick work, cement work and plastering contracts taken.

Cement Supplies Furnished

Building Blocks, Window and Door Sills, Culvert Tile, Well Curbing, Lawn Rollers, Lawn Vases, Verandah Columns, Balusters and other fancy Cement Products.

Building Material

Cement, Lime, Lath, Shingles, Glazed Sewer Pipe and Flue Lining, Mortar Color, etc.

Large supply of

Oilcloths and Linoleums

just to hand

Now is the time to get your new supply, before they are picked over.

We have also a good assortment of Squares, and our prices can't be beaten. Give us a call before buying.

For good Butter and Eggs we pay the highest price in either CASH or TRADE . . .

Both 'Phones PUTNAM & SON

—"Craigie," McArthur's Bookstore, for $1.25. Worth $1.25.

—Mrs Ostler, of Brantford, is visiting at the home of her brother, Mr Hugh Nichol. The latter is recovering rapidly from the shock of the accident he met with last week, but a broken leg takes time to mend.

Lacrosse Schedule

Paisley, Southampton, Tara and Chesley will have intermediate teams in the O.A.L.A. competitions this season. Messrs. R. B. Hulmer of Southampton, Jos. Cavill of Chesley, C. S. Cummer of Tara, and J. S. Dewar of Paisley, representatives of these respective clubs comprising the district, met here on Friday and arranged the following series of games:

June 10—Chesley at Tara
11—Paisley at Southampton
17—Tara at Paisley
18—Southampton at Chesley
24—Southampton at Tara
24—Chesley at Paisley
July 1—Tara at Chesley
8—Southampton at Paisley
15—Paisley at Southampton
16—Chesley at Southampton
22—Paisley at Chesley
23—Tara at Southampton

Paisley club can put a team of strong, seasoned players in the field this year, and it is expected they will be able to make a good showing in the competitions. They get their first workout at Hanover, being engaged to play the local stickhandlers there on the 24th.

Suits to Order at $15.00

At the present time when everything is going up in price we are pleased to let you know we can give you a Suit in the latest style at the popular price of $15.00.

For Something Better

We have "Quality First" Imported Tweeds and Worsteds at $18.00 to $25.00 which are the best values, bar none, in Canada to-day and we invite an inspection of the new goods.

Ladies' Tailoring a Specialty

We Guarantee Satisfaction

G. B. IRWIN

Merchant Tailor and Furnisher

The Housewife's Corner

Ways of Serving Bananas.

Sliced Bananas with Jelly or Fruit Sauce.—Six ripe bananas are skinned, scraped and sliced and put into a bowl. One cup of grape, plum, peach or apple jelly is dissolved with one-half cup of boiling water. Pour over the bananas while hot; then set in clove place. The hot sauce brings out the flavor of the banana, but it must be served ice cold. This can be served as a first course.

Cream Banana Soup.—Three ripe bananas, 2 cups of milk, 2 cups of rice stock, 1 tablespoonful of butter, 1 tablespoonful of flour, 1 tablespoonful of nutmeg, 1 cup of croutons. Put the milk and rice stock on to boil. When boiling add butter and flour, which have been rubbed until smooth. Boil five minutes; add salt, nutmeg and the bananas, which have been skinned, scraped and mashed through press or strainer. Boil five minutes. Serve with croutons. Croutons are made by cutting stale bread into half inch slices; place on pie tin in oven until nice and brown. A hint to new housekeepers is, when mixing flour and butter have the butter soft, not melted.

Banana Croquettes with Rice Sauce.—Four very ripe bananas, 1 egg, 1 cup of dry bread crumbs, 1 teaspoonful of salt, 1 tablespoonful of milk, 2 tablespoonfuls of flour. Skin and scrape the bananas; cut in half; dust the bananas with salt, roll in flour, then in the egg which has been beaten with the milk; then cover with bread crumbs and fry in deep fat or oil. Serve with rice custard sauce made as follows: 2 cups of milk, 1 cup of boiled rice, 2 tablespoonfuls of chopped cooked raisins or dates. Put rice, milk and to boil in top of double boiler. The boiled rice is put through the meat chopper and added to the milk; add sugar, salt and nutmeg. Boil twenty minutes or until creamy; then add the raisins. Boil two minutes. This makes eight croquettes with eight helpings of rice sauce. This makes a very good meat substitute.

Bananas and Rice. — Four very ripe bananas, 1 cup of rice, 1 teaspoonful of salt, 1 teaspoonful of butter, ½ cup of brown sugar. Wash, boil and blanch the rice as usual. Brush agate platter or large pie tin with butter. Pile the rice in mound shape; dust with salt. Skin and scrape and split the bananas; spread over the rice; cover with brown sugar; put in hot oven; bake twenty-five minutes, or until bananas are done a light brown. Serve on dish in which it is baked. Garnish with red jelly. This amount makes six helpings and is served in place of meat or fish.

Scalloped Bananas. — Six ripe bananas, 1 cup of fresh bread-crumbs, ½ cup of brown sugar, 1 tablespoonful of butter, ¼ teaspoonful of salt. Skin, scrape and slice the bananas; brush bake dish with butter; put half of bananas in, dust with salt, half of bread-crumbs and half of sugar, rest of bananas, salt, crumbs and sugar. Divide the butter in small pieces and put over top; add ½ cup of water; cover and put in moderate oven twenty minutes; uncover and bake twenty minutes longer or until nice and brown. This makes six good sized helpings, and can be served with grape juice sauce, which is made as follows: 1 cup of grape juice is brought to boil; add 1 teaspoonful of cornstarch mixed with cold water. Boil two minutes and sweeten to taste.

Banana Omelet.—Two very ripe bananas, 4 eggs, 1 tablespoonful of lemon juice, 2 tablespoonfuls of cold water, 1 tablespoonful of butter or bacon drippings, 1 teaspoonful of salt. Separate the eggs; beat the yolks until creamy, add water and salt; beat the whites of eggs until very light and mix with the yolks. Have omelet pan hot, pour in eggs. Shake the pan when eggs are set; put in oven a few minutes to dry. The bananas are skinned, scraped and split; heated in fry pan with 1 teaspoonful of butter and lemon juice. Place the warm banana on the omelet, fold over and serve at once.

Banana Fritters.—Four ripe bananas, 1 cup of flour, 1 teaspoonful of baking powder, ½ teaspoonful of salt, ½ cup of milk, 1 egg. Sift flour, baking powder and salt together; add the milk and well-beaten eggs. Skin, scrape and split the bananas; then cut in half, making 8 pieces; dip in batter (remove with fork) fry in deep hot fat or oil; drain on paper and serve with thin, tart, warm apple sauce. Entree or a meat substitute.

Bananas in Casserole.—Ten ripe bananas are skinned, scraped, split and put in casserole, which has been brushed with bacon fat. Sprinkle each layer with salt and dust with paprika. Add 2 tablespoonfuls of water; put on cover; place in hot oven 40 to 45 minutes and serve as vegetable.

Banana Salad.—Four very ripe bananas, 1 cup of Malaga grapes, ½ cup of French dressing made with lemon juice, 2 cups of shredded lettuce. Have the bananas ice cold; skin, scrape and slice fine; mix with the grapes, which have been cut in half and seeds removed. Line bowl with the lettuce, put bananas and grapes in centre; pour over the dressing and garnish with ripe olives. Everything must be ice cold.

French Dressing. — Three tablespoonfuls of olive oil, 1 tablespoonful of lemon juice, ½ teaspoonful of salt and a dash of paprika. Put the salt and paprika in soup plate with small piece of ice; add the oil, stirring all the time, then the lemon juice. Stir until thick.

Toasted Banana Sandwiches.—Four ripe bananas, 16 thin slices of white bread, crust removed. Butter the bread; skin and scrape the bananas; cut in half; then split in three or four slices; lay evenly between bread; dust with a little salt and place on shallow pan; put in hot oven to toast or twice bake. Serve warm. These are very nice to serve for afternoon affairs with cocoa or tea.

Bananas with Fresh or Canned Strawberries.—Four very ripe bananas, 1 cup of fresh or half cup of canned berries, half cup of sugar, 1 tablespoonful of lemon juice. Skin and scrape the bananas; cut in thin slices into ice cream glasses; mash the strawberries through strainer; add the sugar and lemon juice; pour over the bananas. Whipped cream can be put on top of the bananas and a berry on the cream. If canned or preserved berries are used, use less sugar. This amount makes five glasses.

Hints for the Home.

Rice forms the principal article of food of about one-third of the human race.

Adding a little sugar to the water in a vase makes the flowers keep fresh longer.

It is a good plan to warm a knife board before using it. A few moments in front of a fire is sufficient.

If you wear a belt at any time do not let it be different in color from that of the blouse, otherwise you will appear short-waisted.

A teaspoonful of butter added to the sugar and water boiled for icing, which has become grainy, will make it smooth and creamy again.

A piece of coarse muslin placed over the hole in the pot into which a plant is to be put will prevent the earth from washing away when the plant is watered.

Sugar, raisins, rice, tapioca, barley, dried peas, and beans are much cheaper bought in big quantities and stored away in tin cans or biscuit boxes.

A sewing machine can be thoroughly cleaned by being well oiled with paraffin and left for twelve hours. Then use ordinary oil, and when carefully dried it will run as smoothly as when new.

When cream is too thin to whip easily place the dish containing the cream in a pan of cold water until it is thoroughly chilled, then put it into a pan of hot water, and it will whip without difficulty.

Shabby leather bags may be improved in appearance by being rubbed over with the well-beaten white of an egg, and then polished with beeswax and turpentine, the final rubbing being given with a soft, clean cloth.

Very good griddle cakes can be made with the odds and ends of stale bread. Break the bread up into small pieces and pour over them just enough milk for the bread to absorb. Soak this overnight, and in the morning add an egg, a little flour, baking powder, and enough milk to make them the proper consistency.

Where Nature Is Generous.

There are few places where nature has hidden her gifts so bountifully as in Cuba. This is especially true about the tropical fruits of that region. Besides the well-known banana, orange, lemon, lime and fig there are many fruits that are unknown to us. There is the mango, which grows on a tree similar to our apple tree. It grows in long bunches and it is yellow in color. It is very juicy when it is ripe. Then there is the zapotilla, which has a white bell-shaped flower that is quite as fragrant as our orange blossom. It has a delicious fruit the size of a peach in a rough russet skin. One of the strangest fruits is the star apple. It is so called because when cut in half a star appears in the centre. It is eaten with a spoon and tastes like strawberries and cream. There are a number of wild fruits that can be cultivated. Among these is the custard apple. It is green in color, tough skinned and full of small black seeds.

Women live longer than men, as an average.

There are a great many men who are willing to admit that they can't sing, but every one of them thinks he is a good judge of human nature.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL STUDY

INTERNATIONAL LESSON, MAY 23.

Lesson VIII.—David King Over Judah and Israel. 2 Sam. 2. 1-7; 5. 1-5. G. T.—Psa. 28. 7.

I. David Goes Up to Hebron (Verses 1-4).

Verse 1. After this—After the defeat of Saul and Jonathan the way was clear for David's rise to the throne.

Inquired of Jehovah—If he was to be made king, it would be the Lord's doing. He would not take matters into his own hands. His inquiry was made through the usual way of Urim and Thummim (see 1 Sam. 10. 22; 23. 6).

Hebron — A place particularly well adapted for a temporary capital. It was easy to defend because of the mountains. David was familiar with his surroundings, and he had many friends there (see 1 Sam. 30. 31). In the north, the Philistines and the adherents of Saul divided the supremacy between them. The modern name of Hebron is El Khulil, which means "The Friend," referring to Abraham. "The friend of God" (2 Chron. 20. 7; Isa. 41. 8; James 2. 23).

2. His two wives—See 1 Sam. 25. 42, 43.

3. The cities of Hebron—That is, the towns and villages near Hebron.

4. The men of Judah came—The members of his own tribe. See 1 Sam. 30. 26 for evidence that David had been in very close friendly relations with the elders of his tribe.

Anointed David—David had been privately anointed by Samuel (1 Sam. 16. 13). A public ceremony, as in the case of Saul (1 Sam. 10. 1; 11. 14, 15), was necessary.

II. His Loving Memory of Jonathan (Verses 4-7).

4. They told David—This part of verse 4 is distinct from the other part. David evidently had been making inquiries as to what had become of the bodies of Saul and Jonathan.

The men of Jabesh-gilead—If the men of Gilead were favorable to David, he would have little difficulty in extending his kingdom northward. There was reason, therefore, for his kindly attitude toward them. This fact, however, is not to be taken as lessening his real sense of gratitude for their burial of Saul and Jonathan.

6. Loving kindness and truth, or mercy and holiness are attributes of God which are frequently found together (see Exod. 34. 6; Psa. 25. 10; 40. 11; 57. 3; 86. 15).

7. Be ye valiant—That is, to hold Gilead against the Philistines until David could aid them.

III. Anointed King Over Israel (Verses 1-5).

1. Then came—That is, after the death of Ishbosheth, the son of Saul (see 2 Sam. 4).

All the tribes of Israel—The warriors, men over the age of twenty. See Num. 1. 3; Exod. 19. 3-8; 24. 3; Num. 27. 19-23; 2 Sam. 5. 1; 1 Chron. 29. 22; 1 Kings 12. 20; 2 Kings 11. 19; 21. 24; 23. 30; Judg. 20. 1. These passages show the rights and authority of the "congregation of Israel." Joshua, David, and Solomon were presented to this congregation for approval; Jeroboam, Josiah, Josiah, and Jehoahaz were elected by the congregation.

We are thy bone and thy flesh—Having a common ancestry (see Gen. 29. 14; Judg. 9. 2).

2. Thou leddest out and broughtest in Israel—As a war leader.

Jehovah said to thee—The divine call.

Three reasons in the order of their importance are given for electing David king: the tie of relationship; his proved capacity as a military leader; the divine choice" (see on the first and third reasons Deut. 17. 15, on the second 2 Sam. 3. 18).

3. Made a covenant with them—A mutual agreement, he to rule according to the laws and they to show allegiance. The king's rights were defined (1 Sam. 10. 25); later these were limited (1 Kings 12. 3). "The Israelite monarchy was not an absolute and irresponsible despotism."

They anointed David king—A third time.

REDUCE PARIS LIGHTS.

New System as Protection Against Zeppelins.

The street lighting of Paris has been reduced to the same limit as that of London, if not to a greater degree. Careful experiments have been made by aeroplanes approaching the city from a distance and flying over it, and regulations adopted from the data thus obtained.

A dirigible flying at a height of 2,000 yards, it has been found, can in clear weather detect the halo of light crowning Paris from a distance of fifty miles. The total number of lights (electric and gas) in Paris is 55,000. These will be reduced to 10,000 until 10 o'clock at night (the earliest hour a Zeppelin visit is to be expected) and after that hour to 5,500 only.

This number will constitute the alarm lighting and will not be reduced if Zeppelins are signalled from the line of fire, which they must cross to reach Paris. If they are signalled as having arrived near Paris this "alarm lighting" will be reduced to as near zero as possible, as quickly as possible, and then only will the firemen turn out and give the signal.

It has been recognized that it is useless to give the fireman's bugle signal as soon as Zeppelins are signalled as being somewhere around, as after all the only thing to be done is to move from the upper stories to the basement or cellar, which does not require many minutes, even allowing time to put on a certain amount of clothing, a very necessary precaution, as few cellars are heated.

The difficulty of finding one's house in a street where all the houses are alike and all the light is suppressed is far greater than would be thought.

Stout Lady—"That seems to me to be a very small piece of meat for the lion." Attendant—"It may seem a small piece to you, mam, but it's heaps for the lion."

"I told you Jones was foolish to be courting so many girls." "How did it turn out?" "As you might expect. His expenses were so heavy that he got behind with his board, and had to marry his landlady."

Enemies on the Battlefield, Companions in Their Suffering.

That the hatred of one people for another is manufactured rather than natural is the conviction of many, and this picture furnishes proof of the contention. A German marine and a French Turco, both wounded in the fighting, are seen here fraternizing in the courtyard of a Belgian hospital, and with the good-hearted Belgian nurse as a companion, they all forget their enmity and become the best of friends.

Bonds and Their Yields

Offer Splendid Opportunities to Both Investor and Speculator—a Yield is High.

The outstanding feature of industrial bonds is the high rate of interest which they usually yield. Taking all classes of bonds into consideration, it is safe to say that no other form of bonded debt pays to the money lender so much interest on the capital required. The interest yield is usually much higher than on ordinary real estate mortgages, though often the underlying bonds of a private corporation are a lien on very valuable real estate. Industrials stand at the top of all other bonds in point of high yield.

They Are a Large Class.

Under the category "Industrial bonds" is included the obligations of all manufacturing and mercantile companies of a private character. These companies while manufacturing or supplying articles of use to different members of the community they serve, do not usually supply necessaries like those supplied by public service corporations. Operations are carried on by virtue of a government charter granted under some one of the existing Joint Stock Company Acts.

By reason of the fact that industrial bonds are obligations of private companies not supplying public services, they cannot be regarded as having the same element of permanence about them as the more gilt-edged bonds dealt with in previous articles. While many mercantile pursuits, such as the milling and shipping industries, are very necessary to the life of the nation, it cannot be inferred that the debts of all private companies engaged in such pursuits are always amply secured. For this reason it is advisable for the prospective investor in industrials to investigate for himself the security behind the bonds he contemplates purchasing.

How They Are Secured.

The first consideration is the value of the real estate, to be determined not from the book cost of the property, but based upon an independent appraisal is usually given in the prospectus issued by bond houses issuing the securities. If the realty valuation exceeds the value of the bond issue then the safety of the principal can scarcely be questioned. If not, then other factors must be carefully considered.

The relation of current or liquid assets to current liabilities is important. The former should greatly exceed the latter, and leave substantial net quick assets. In fact, where a careful investment is being made, the net quick assets alone should be sufficient to cover the bonds.

The earnings of a company bulk large in considering the safety of an industrial bond. Whether the gross is increasing or decreasing should be carefully noted. The net earnings of a company should be sufficient to guarantee payment of interest and all fixed charges as well as providing a sinking fund. A safe rule is for net earnings to be about three times the bond interest.

Management a Real Factor.

The management and control of an industrial concern is also most important. The success of a private enterprise is largely dependent upon the men behind it; and given sound and experienced management, the margin of security behind the bonds may be much less than in a case where there are less capable managers and ample fixed and liquid assets.

The big attraction of industrial bonds is, of course, their high yield. Six per cent. and more is to be had on a first-class security; and in the case of recently organized companies an even higher yield can be obtained.

There Is a Good Market.

A big advantage, too, is the comparative ease with which they are converted into cash. Canadian industrial bond listings are numerous, and there is an active trading bond market in the big financial centers of the world.

Bonds are purchased when a company is first organized, when they can often be picked up cheap. Stock bonuses have been amongst the inducements offered investors during the past few years. Some industrial bonds are quite cheap now, and will doubtless advance in price within a reasonable time. On the other hand, there are many standard issued which vary very little in price from month to month, and have all the advantages of price stability together with a moderately high yield.

Speculative Features.

All industrial bonds are in a sense speculative, inasmuch as they depend largely on the success of private enterprise for their own increase in value or even their permanence of value. Because of this they offer a better than usual opportunity to the astute buyer to make a substantial profit on the turn.

There are many industrial bonds of sterling quality; and others which are intensely speculative in character. This makes it imperative that the services of a thoroughly reliable bond house be secured when purchasing for investment.

3 TIMES IN AS MANY YEARS.

Losses of Titanic and Empress of Ireland Recalled.

Three times in as many years Ontario has been hit hard by maritime disasters. On April 15, 1912, when the Titanic went down after striking an iceberg, several people were known to be lost.

The Empress of Ireland disaster, on May 29, 1914, came as a much more serious blow. When that ship went down, after being rammed by the collier Storstadt, in the neighborhood of 150 men, women and children, hailing from Toronto and many from other points, lost their lives, among them 60 members of the Salvation Army returning to London for the jubilee.

The later disaster, the torpedoing of the Lusitania, making the third in as many years, accompanied by the appalling loss of life.

In the case of the Titanic the heart of Ontario was touched more by the feeling of sorrow for others than by the weight of her own. It was different in the Empress disaster. People of all classes mourned for loved ones passed from their sight almost "in the twinkling of an eye." Many Rachels tarried for their children, but the people bore their losses with fortitude.

Other great disasters recorded in marine annals of recent years are:

Year.	Steamship.	Lives Lost.
1890—	Str. Shanghai, burned	300
1891—	Str. Utopia, collision	563
1892—	Str. Nanchow, foundered	508
1893—	Warship Victoria, collision	300
1894—	Str. Horn Head, sunk by iceberg	62
1895—	Warship Reina Regina, collision	400
1905—	Str. Colima, wrecked	171
1905—	Str. Copernicus, sunk	152
1897—	Str. Kapunda, foundered	306
1898—	Str. La Bourgoyne, collision	540
1904—	General Slocum, burned	953
1904—	Str. Norge, wrecked on reef	700
1905—	Str. Hilda, sunk	193
1906—	Str. Valencia, foundered	110
1907—	Str. Siriu, foundered	293
1905—	Brazilian cruiser Aquidaban, sunk	212
1907—	Str. Larchmont, lost	183
1907—	Str. Hong Kong, struck rock	130
1912—	Str. Titanic, wrecked by iceberg	1,500
1913—	Str. Volturno, burned in mid-Atlantic	1,310
1914—	Str. Empress of Ireland, wrecked after collision with s.s. Storstadt	964

"Ringing Island" is an old nickname for England, which was so called because it was said to have more bells than any other country.

The Great War Reviewed

Close of Winter Campaign Shows Teutonic Cause in Desperate Straits Against Russian Foe, Expert Declares.

The opening move of Germany in the east was the first drive to Warsaw, which developed at the precise moment the lines of battle were developing in Flanders. Originally obscured by the Antwerp and Ypres operations, it suddenly filled the press of the world with reports of the imminent fall of the Polish capital. Petrograd was silent while Berlin was in full tide of victorious statement. Yet, looking backward after many months, it seems plain that the first German offensive in Poland was less considerable than was at first supposed and a direct effort to assist Austria rather than to conquer Poland.

In early October Austrian fortunes had sunk to the very lowest level. Conquering armies were sweeping the ruins of one Austrian host in upon Cracow, of another up the slopes of the Carpathians. The mission of Austria had been to keep Russia in play until Germany had disposed of France, and now, at the critical moment in the Flanders campaign, Germany must either abandon the battle along the Yser and about Ypres or by some strategic combination use small reserves to postpone Austrian destruction.

Germany chose the latter expedient, and gathering up an army she flung it straight upon Warsaw, through Central Poland. It was a venture such as Lee made when he sent Early to Washington in 1864 in the hope of drawing Grant away from Petersburg. German command was seeking to save Austria, not her own territories. Like Early's raid, that of the Germans almost succeeded. Late in October the guns of the Kaiser's host sending shells into the suburbs of Warsaw. But as Grant was able to put a corps of veterans into Washington while Early was still before Fort Stevens, the Grand Duke Nicholas in his turn pushed Siberian troops through Warsaw at the critical moment, struck at the German flank and turned it. Immediately the German invasion was turned back a retreat to the frontier was inevitable. Warsaw, like Washington, just half a century before, was saved.

Russian Advance Stopped.

But Germany had attained her purpose. As a consequence of the invasion of Poland, Russian advance in Galicia stopped. Russian armies flowed back to the San. Przemysl was relieved, Jaroslav reoccupied, an advance to Lemberg in sight. For the moment Austria was saved; there remained to Germany time to finish her fight in Flanders, to win, if she could, in the west, before a new crisis in the east should demand a new diversion of her forces.

Instead of victory, however, there came defeat. Germany failed at the Yser, and about Ypres the golden moment for obtaining a decision in the west had passed. Weather, reinforcements of the Allies, the growing strength of their fortifications, the enormous and sterile German sacrifices, all combined to convince the German high command that if a decision were to be had against any enemy that enemy was Russia. Such blows as she had struck France and Britain insured that they would be unable to take the offensive effectually for months to come. There was left time to "deal with Russia," to "put the Slav out," as the genial Bernhardi would phrase it.

By the time the battles of Flanders had terminated, however, the situation had again changed in the east. New Austrian disasters had sent the armies of Hapsburg rushing back in disorder upon Cracow and on the Carpathians. Russian advance guards were in sight of the suburbs of Cracow, Cossack parties were beginning to flow down the Hungarian side of the Dukla Pass into the Hungarian plain. Austrian corps were being recalled from Belgrade, newly occupied by them, and Austrian disaster at Valievo was in sight.

On the German frontier the situation was even more threatening. A huge Russian army was moving upon Czenstochowa and Kalisz, patrols had for the first time touched German soil in the Province of Posen west of the Warths, another Russian army was moving southwest upon Cracow, become the gate to Germany, not the outwork of Austria. Finally, a strong Russian army was again in East Prussia, flowing west toward the Mazurian Lakes, spreading ruin and terror in its pathway. Not alone Hapsburg but Hohenzollern interests now demanded an offensive in the east.

Victory Sought on Vistula.

By December 1 Germany was committed to her eastern campaign. She had definitely failed to get a decision in the west; she was seeking along the Vistula what she had missed at the Marne and the Yser. Eastward from France and Flanders corps after corps of her veteran troops were coming, giving way to reserves; the campaign of the west had ended.

In the military history of the future it is far from unlikely that Von Hindenburg's campaign in Poland will be estimated the finest, from the purely professional side, in the great war. Confused as in the record still, the world does know that at the battle of Lodz the Russian army was almost destroyed; that by using his strategic railways, by making full use of his troops, superior in morale, in training, in equipment, the great German commander almost succeeded in enveloping the Russian Polish army. Two factors served to block the second German bid for a decision, the weather and the great numerical superiority of Russian reserves. By all the seasonal calculations Polish roads should have been frozen solid; they were a river of mud. Winter, which in Napoleon's invasion had begun prematurely, now held off with equal perversity. From the closing sides of the German net the Russians slipped safely. At Lodz their losses were enormous; but when the battle was over, when they had withdrawn, they stood behind Bzura as solidly as the Belgians behind the Yser.

In the eastern campaign the battle of Lodz was wholly comparable with that of the Marne in the west. At the Marne the Germans lost and retreated, at Lodz they won a local success and advanced a few more miles, but these two conflicts were the decisive engagements of the war to May 1; in both Germany failed in the battle which was to dispose of a nation. By January 1 she was at a standstill in Poland as in Northern France, the great prize had escaped her, only the incidental advantage had been brought home. She had set out to destroy an army first in the west, then in the east, she had won some kilometres or versts of territory, captured some hundreds of thousands of French and Russians, demonstrated the superiority of her organization in both fields, but the war was beginning, not ending.

Greater Prize Lost.

The close of the winter campaign in the east shows Germany the gainer in a number of great battles, holding many square miles of Russian territory, an inexpugnable, on her new front from the Baltic to the Nida. Measured by local advantage the prize is fairly hers, but the greater reward has slipped through her hands. Russia has not been crushed, decisively beaten back to the Vistula; Warsaw holds out. But, above all, Russian attack is now at the summit of the Carpathians, German effort concentrated in meeting Russian offensive.

In sum, the end of the winter campaign saw German fortunes in the east not less desperate than they had been in the opening weeks of winter. She had won provinces and lost time, now she must deal with all three of her opponents, for the first time prepared as she had been in August. Hope of a decision against one had vanished. Only her own allies were weaker than in August; France, Russia, even England, were ready now. Not only ready, but in the Carpathians and in France and Belgium pressing more and more heavily against German resistance, German defence. Germany had been granted her opportunity, her chance for a decision. Spring saw the Allies reaching out to grasp their chance, saw the whole problem of the great war changing with the season.

What I Know.

I know that this day will never come again. Therefore I will make it the best day in which I have ever lived. I know that happiness is a thing within, and that it is always in the world and very near to me. I know I have but to search for it, and that as soon as I begin to hunt it out I have it. Also, I know that as soon as I get happiness and begin to give it away it comes back doubled—and more—to me. I know this.

I know that work is a stimulus, and that it keeps the world alive and moving. I know that the people who work with love in their hearts and interest in their brains are the real doers and benefactors of mankind. I know that I can be a doer and a benefactor.

I know that life is exactly what I make it. I know that other people and other forces can influence my life and work only as I follow it. I know that I am young if I live youth; I know that I am happy if I live happiness; I know that I am worth while if I attempt and accomplish worth-while things. I know that the greatest thing I can ever do is to do my best at all times and under every circumstance.

Glasgow is the second largest city in the United Kingdom.

THE DAY.

Here's to the day, Kaiser, when you shall die
And pass into that living death that outrivals life
There is not glory, but eternal gloom for thine.
For thee the gourd of life has held but poisoned wine;
Its ashes of regret lie crusted on your lips.
Beside the leper of the world you stand outcast—
Beside the Turk.

You leave the imprint of destruction where you pass;
The unborn children of your brutish tribes
Shall rise to curse thee in the days to come.
Since when loves God a thief—the slayer of a child,
That you should blazon on your belted Huns
In blatant blasphemy, "Gott mit uns"?
Alone the Turks with thee

But broken fragments of that bauble
Fame are thine;
The graves are many and the land is dead.
Drape over the doors the sombre colors of your Prussian flag.
Where lie in death the old and young,
Where weep within the mothers of their sons,
And then, "War Lord," cannot return one life;
Not him of God, you, but of the Turk.

The land is dead!
The mills turn slowly, for the corn is lean;
The sails flap idly, for the way is closed;
The waters lap lean, hungered hulks;
The quays are sombre with the tools of war;
Faith lies shattered in the souls of men;
Worms channel through the God of Might.

With foot on neck you mounted "Uber Alles!"
The human stepping-stones you labelled "swine" switched
Their souls, are they, too, with the swine "swinehund"?
And you expect the lips that wail in anguish for their dead
To frame a glad acclaim when you in splendor pass
You, and your friend, the Turk.

Small greatness this, to bring a people to their knees
To bow the heads of men to walk in shame.
To mutrify their fame to thrust them back in hell.
And nourish in their hearts the crime of Cain.
Unmask the strident cry of culture as a lie
Loose within the garden of the world your viper breed.
Unleash that pariah, the Turk.

The net draws closer and your glass is past.
Much blubbed the clamor of your pirate song.
Unfathered, from despair, your cry,
"We clasped the hand of pity with their blood.
We closed Thy gates of mercy, Lord,
But in our hour of need make Peace.
I do not know the Turk."

W. A. Fraser in Toronto Daily News.

The Airman.

Among the heroes of the present war will be those who go forth to battle in the air. Death by sword, bullet and bayonet has become commonplace. In this department of warfare France leads, and her winged craft are already speeding to repel the foe, equipped with concentrated destructiveness. Men fight according to temperament. Some are cowards. But to ascend to the upper air levels in cold blood, every faculty in tense play, and to swoop into oblivion with a last side-long glance at the good blue sky and the sweet green earth—that calls for something new in the way of courage. France and Britain have sure faith that their sons are equipped with this courage.

Self-Loading Stone Boat

"Labor costs money, and loading stones on even a low plank stone boat is certainly often the hardest kind of labor. But Mr. W. J. Stevenson suggests an idea for eliminating a lot of this kind of work by constructing the boat in such a manner as to enable it to practically load itself. His plan is to use as a stone boat two broad and strong hardwood planks. These lie side by side, forming the bottom of the boat. But in order to make these take on their own load, they are simply attached to each other at the rear end by a hinged joint, to that they may open out like a pair of shears (see illustration), to be placed one on each side of a large stone, from which the earth has been loosened somewhat. The forward ends of the planks are connected by the draw chain, and when the draught is applied to this, it causes the planks to close together under the load. To facilitate this, the inner edges of the planks should be slightly bevelled. It is certainly not very hard to construct such a stone boat, and very easy to load stone upon it."—The Canadian Countryman.

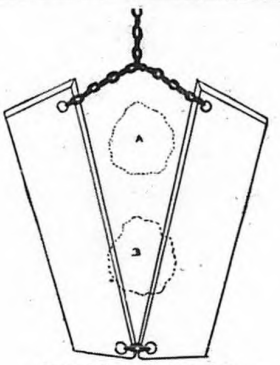

Diagram of a simple self-loading stone boat.

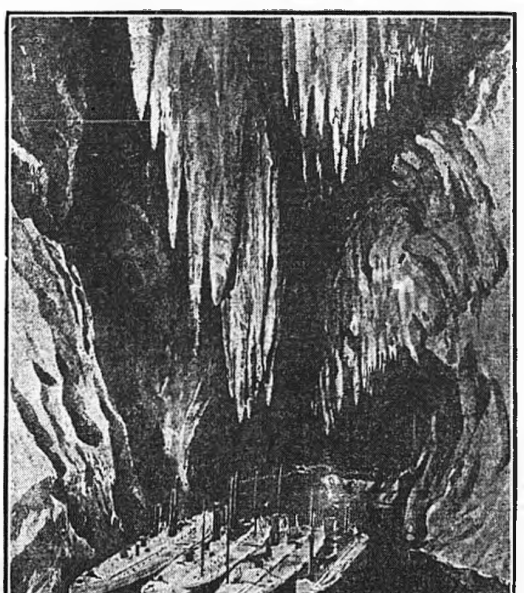
Diagram of a Simple Self-loading Stone Boat.

KIDNAPPER KILLED.

Macedonian Bandit Who Held Missionary for Ransom, Is Killed.

The Sofia (Bulgaria) correspondent of Reuter's Telegram Company states that Yanne Sandansky, the Macedonian brigand leader who gained notoriety in 1901 through the kidnapping and holding for a large ransom of Miss Ellen M. Stone, an American missionary, has been slain.



Sandansky was killed in the district between the mountain or Perun and the town of Nevrenkop by some persons whose name is not known.

Miss Stone and Mrs. Tsilka, the wife of an Albanian preacher, were captured and carried off by brigands on September 3, 1901, while they were on their way with a company of friends from Bansko to Djumaa. There were more than thirty-five brigands in the attacking party. Except Mrs. Tsilka, the friends of Miss Stone were allowed to proceed on their way. Later a demand was made for $112,500 ransom for the release of the two women.

The kidnapping of Miss Stone became a matter of international importance, and her release was worked for by the government at Washington with energy. Mr. Spencer Eddy, First Secretary of the United States Legation at Constantinople, who had charge of the negotiations to secure her release, declared on February 23, 1902, that the capture of Miss Stone was a political matter and that all the people of Macedonia were in sympathy with it, for they believed that it was a step toward freeing Macedonia from Turkish rule.

Negotiations for Miss Stone's release without the payment of a ransom were futile. She and Mrs. Tsilka were finally, on February 23 1902, released after the brigand had received $65,000 ransom money.

There are five thousand miles of navigable waterways in Holland.

The Enemy-Submarines' Raiding-Lair and Petrol Store on the British Coast.

The secret of the German submarines' British lurking places is one no longer. The mystery has been solved, and it is now obvious how German submarines have managed to keep on the prowl week in and week out off the Irish coast, now torpedoing merchantmen off Land's End, now chasing vessels off the Clyde and Belfast Lough. This photograph was found among the effects of the captain of an enemy submarine which was rammed and sunk by the S.S. "Wild Goose." These effects were washed up on the Brittany coast. We have reason to believe that it was this photograph which revealed to the Admiralty the hiding place to which the German under-water craft repaired from time to time to replenish their supplies of petrol from submerged cans. The cavern is in the Scilly Isles; it is inadvisable to give the precise locality.

FIREPROOFING THE CHILD

ACCIDENTS OCCUR BOTH TO RICH AND THE POOR.

Solution of Ammonium Phosphate Is Used for This Purpose and Can Be Made Quickly.

In the course of his duties a coroner's physician was struck by the number of deaths among children caused by their clothes catching fire while they were frolicking around bonfires or playing with matches. In one period of sixteen days twenty-one children were burned in this way. So he sought for a means of preventing accidents of this character, and thinks he has found it. He describes his plan as follows:

"There is a sure, easy and efficient method of fireproofing the clothing of children which every one should know. Many by fireproofing the children's play suits, as well as lace curtains and such other articles of an inflammable nature as may easily come into contact with fire and so cause serious accidents.

Tragedies Can Be Averted

"A solution of ammonium phosphate is used for this purpose, and can be made quickly and easily. Dissolve one pound of ammonium phosphate in one gallon of cold water, and a clear solution is formed in which the fabric to be fireproofed should be soaked for five minutes. The garment can then be taken out and allowed to dry, after which it may be worn with perfect safety, as it is absolutely fireproof.

"The solution produces no more harm to the material than would the same quantity of ordinary water. It will keep indefinitely, is non-poisonous, and can be Used for Several Suits.

"Ammonium phosphate is a common white crystalline powder, not patented in any way, and sells for about 25 cents a pound at any drug store.

"Any article fireproofed by this method will remain non-inflammable until washed or drenched with rain. The use of this solution is a safety measure which should be employed for pageants, carnivals and receptions where flimsy draperies play an important part in the scheme of decoration.

"Hardly a day passes without some child being burned while playing near bonfires or with matches. The records show that the accidents occur both to the children of the rich as well as the offspring of the poor.

"Victims of the open grate have been plentiful in the past, and doubtless will continue unless the proper safeguard is adopted. The fender is a preventive, but unfortunately many homes are not provided with these, and even if one's hearth is protected with a fender the child may perhaps visit the home of a neighbor where such and that visit may prove the fatal one."

Safeguard Is Not Provided,

An account of his plan for protecting children from fire has been printed in the "Child," of London, England. He has also prepared a photoplay showing the danger and the remedy.

"We cannot be too careful of children, and parents who cannot watch their children constantly can avert a possible tragedy by fireproofing their youngsters' play suits. Keep children away from fires and matches by all means, but as the records prove that all children cannot be kept away, the protection of the clothing of those who may elude parental vigilance is an added precaution that will save many lives."

Most Famous Victories.

British sailors have on their uniform a perpetual reminder of the Navy's glorious past, though not every one who wears them knows that the three rows of white tape round the edging of the blue collar and the black silk scarf knotted in front are links with Nelson. The white tapes commemorate Nelson's most famous victories—Copenhagen, the Nile, and Trafalgar—and the scarf is a token of perpetual mourning for the great admiral, adopted spontaneously by the seamen themselves.

The Paisley Advocate

PAISLEY, MAY 20th, 1915

—War is not two great armies meeting in the clash and frenzy of battle. It is much more than that. War is a boy carried on a stretcher, looking up at God's blue sky with bewildered eyes that are soon to close; war is a woman carrying a child that has been wounded by a shell; war is spirited horses tied in burning buildings waiting for death; war is the flower of a race, torn, battered, hungry, bleeding, up to its knees in icy water; war is an old woman holding a candle before the Mater Dolorosa for the son she has given for king and country.

—The Immigration Department reports that while immigration from Europe has practically ceased since the outbreak of the war there is still a considerable influx of agricultural settlers from the United States, and this latter class of immigration is being steadily encouraged by the Government. Between August 1 last and April 30 the British immigrant arrivals totalled 12,000 and the continental arrivals only 3,700. From the United States, however, during the same period new settlers have come to Canada to the number of 30,000. Nearly all of these have gone into farming operations in the west.

—North Bruce Liberals meet at Tara this (Wednesday) afternoon to select a candidate for the Commons who can defeat Col. Hugh Clark. The feeling seems to be pretty general that John Tolmie, ex-M.P., is the man who can do the trick, although he didn't do it in 1911, and if he can be induced to take the field, will be accorded the nomination. In the last election Clark's majority was 67, the majority in each municipality being as follows: For Clark—St. Edmunds 22, Eastnor 78, Albemarle 62, Amabel 69, Arran 168, Kincardine Tp. 7, Southampton 16, Wiarton 91, Tara 15. For Tolmie—Lindsay 4, Saugeen 93, Bruce 229, Kincardine town 16, Port Elgin 67, Tiverton 31. Hepworth was a tie.

—The fortunes of politics has brought the Liberal party into power again in Manitoba, after fifteen years of opposition. On Wednesday last the ministers of the Roblin government handed in their resignations, and the same day T. C. Norris was sworn in as Premier. The downfall of the defunct government was due to charges of corruption in connection with the expenditure for erection of new parliament buildings at Winnipeg. It is understood that the ministers who are retiring will not offer themselves for re-election, and that the Liberals will have the seats by acclamation, also that the old government promised to vacate enough seats to give the new government a comfortable working majority, so there will not likely be an election at present.

—The change of Government in Manitoba has brought to the front Mr. Ed Brown, a former Paisleyite who has become one of the big men of that province. Mr. Brown has been chosen for the ministerial position of Provincial Treasurer in the new Norris cabinet. It is now over a quarter of a century since the Brown brothers left Paisley and went to Portage la Prairie, where they engaged in mercantile business and soon built up a very large concern. They also acquired extensive land interests and added new departments to their business, eventually developing into one of the most influential firms in the west. For a few years Mr. Ed Brown has been living in Winnipeg devoting himself entirely to financial affairs. With his long experience he is therefore specially qualified for the portfolio which he is now called upon to fill.

Cutting Off the Military Heel

Freedom Fights Autocracy with a Vengeance

The Farmers' Advocate

This war is exploding some old theories. It has been held in the past that nothing but years of training could really make dependable soldiers, and yet in this fight territorials, colonials, recruits with a few months' hard training have faced the finest of Germany's super-trained armed host and have routed the very flower of Prussia's guard regiments. Men of Canada have stood shoulder to shoulder with British regulars, and acquitted themselves nobly. Men of Australia, of New Zealand, of South Africa, men from the shops and the farms of Britain, France, Russia, India, and all the colonies, untrained men in many instances, are now among the pick of the fighting units. Men from the colonies of Great Britain for the most part have lived all their lives in peace. They have grown up to be strong, healthy, true men, who, while abhorring war, make brave and valorous men when the right is challenged or their country threatened. They have enjoyed freedom, and freedom once enjoyed fights autocracy with a vengeance which no army, no matter how well trained, can hold in check. This is a war of mechanisms. All the machinery which human ingenuity can muster for destroying life is in use, and yet behind it all must be the cause, the duty and the man. Canadian troops, all the troops in the Allies' lines, believe they are fighting for the right, and that it is their duty to fight. The rest comes easy. They are men who have enjoyed freedom and peace, and they wish to cut off and cast away forever the military heel which has seeked to crush Europe and the world under its crunching, grinding, autocratic load.

GERMANY'S FAILING SUPPLIES

Some striking statements in the French "official review" of six months of war touch upon the question of supplies and of scarcity of primary material for projectiles in Germany. In considering this contribution to the history of the war, its probable accuracy is a first consideration. The moderation and concisiveness of the French official reports ever since the war began, and the forecast of conditions previous to the war by M. Cambon, the French Ambassador to Berlin, in the French official statement are examples of exactness and perspicacity. France was well informed in all that concerned German intentions; and by the nature of things the capacity to acquire exact information was not at an end when war was declared, nor is it now.

Rubber and copper, two materials extensively used in war preparations, are notoriously scarce in Germany. In this connection an American official of prominence and authority is quoted as follows: "It is not my intention to deny the existence of reserves, which are still immense, of munitions in the country. I only wish to say that my personal inquiries have convinced me that it is impossible for Germany, on the ground alone of munitions, even if the consumption is far below the present consumption to continue the war beyond June next. I am convinced that the most vital considerations of the present conflict relate to the scarcity of copper and gunpowder in Germany as well as of the different materials required for the manufacture of the diverse explosives now in use."

At the bottom of their hearts German official circles fully understand that there can be only one issue of the present struggle in Europe. They know in reality they are beaten. They are fighting to obtain the best conditions possible.

The silent pressure of the British navy is shown, moreover, by the condition of Germany in regard to material of which she formerly imported large quantities annually. She produces no saltpetre, yet she used before the war, 785,000 tons annually. She produces no rubber and used 224,000 tons annually. She can produce only about one-tenth of the petroleum she used in time of peace, and little more than the same amount of the copper she used. Her use of all these materials is vastly greater in war time.

Germany's failing food supply is noted in this report, illustrated by incidents in the field, where German troops have been left without food for days. "The hour of famine will sound for Germany before the end of 1915," is the confident declaration made.—Montreal Times.

SALARIES OF COMMISSIONERS

In announcing the appointment of the new Central Board of License Commissioners for Ontario, some of the ladies said the men were taking the office at "great personal inconvenience and financial sacrifice." Trash and nonsense! Worse than that—it's a deliberate fabrication. The salaries of the commissioners run from $5,500 to $6,000 each. Not one of the whole outfit could get out and earn one-quarter of that amount at anything else.

Another of the fortunate guys is a newspaper man and when he gazes on his first month's salary one of two things will happen—he'll either drop dead or faint away for the count. And so on down the line. We are not finding fault with the men who tumbled into the soft snaps. In fact we wish some fool mule would give us a lucky kick and send us into the midst of such velvet. If such a thing should happen to us we would be honest with our fellowmen. We would not plead that we were making a "great financial sacrifice" or any such nonsensical guff. We are sick and tired hearing such infernal nonsense and it's high time that all such hog-wash should be cut out. —Orangeville Sun.

WOMAN'S BEST MEDICINE

Mrs. Kelly Advises all Women to Take "Fruit-a-Tives"

Hagersville, Ont., Aug. 26th, 1913.

"I can highly recommend "Fruit-a-tives" because they did me an awful lot of good and I cannot speak too highly about them. About four years ago, I commenced taking "Fruit-a-tives" for a general break-down and they did me a world of good. We bought a good many dollar's worth, but it was money well spent because they did all that you claim for them. Their action is so pleasant, compared with other laxatives, that I found only pleasure, as well as health, in taking them. They seemed to me to be particularly suited to women, on account of their mild and gentle action, and I trust that some other women may start taking "Fruit-a-tives" after reading my letter, and if they do, I am satisfied the results will be the same as in my own case".

Mrs. W. N. KELLY

"Fruit-a-tives" are sold by all dealers at 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size, 25c, or sent postpaid on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

From Pte. Alex. Blue

Of the Second Contingent, now in England

Mr Geo Craig has received the following letter:

Sandling Camp.
Hythe, Kent, England.
May 2nd.

Dear George—Just a few lines to let you know that we arrived in England on April 24th, landing at Bristol. We had a pleasant voyage with the exception of two rough days at sea, in which I was seasick, in fact the whole battalion was the same. After landing it did not take long for us to get from Bristol to our destination by train, for we travelled about 70 miles an hour. We have a nice place here and the scenery is grand. With everything in full bloom the country is beautiful. We have lots of soldiers here. No matter where you look you see them everywhere, coming and going to the front.

I have had some interesting talks with these boys. Say, George, you have heard the sunny side of the the war there. But we see the real thing, and don't you people ever think the second contingent will not see the firing line, for the third and fourth will see it, and as many more. I would not be surprised if there is a draft made on Canada, for the cream of the British Empire is there.

I was down Sunday to the sea coast at Folkstone and saw two train loads of Canadians going to the front. They are going every evening and train loads of wounded coming back every day, and by the looks of it the Germans are gaining points.

We can hear the big guns booming where I am. In five hours' time we could be on the firing line, so you see how close we are to it.

Jimmy Watt is very sick with the mumps at Bristol hospital.

The weather is ideal here through the day, but cold in the evening.

It took us eleven days coming over. There were four subs after us, but we dodged them alright. We had the Cumberland before us, and as we came in we had all kinds of British fighting craft for protection. My, but they can get over the water.

Well, I will close now, and will write again in a few days. Hoping to hear from you soon.

A. Blue.

Became Teachers Over Forty-Three Years Ago

Taken from The Paisley Advocate of Jan. 8th, 1873

Following is a list of successful candidates for teachers' certificates in Bruce county: Second Class, Grade B—J A Greig; 3rd class—Robt B Glass, David McPherson, Daniel McTavish, John King, Thos Hagan, Thos A Keyes, John Young, Catherine Ross, Dugald McArthur, Duncan McGillivray, Samuel Nelly, Elizabeth Scott, Annie Ivey, Hugh McKay, Hubert W Hicks, Agnus Martyn, Amy H Goldthorp, John Burr, Jessie A McKenzie, Adelaide S Wilmott, Alexander W Robb, Alex McKenzie, Wm N Sisley, Geo S Grover, Maria A Elder, Donald Sutherland, Maggie Mitchell, John B Turner, Isabella Elliott, Emma M Bacon, Jas A Young, Duncan McLean, Conrad H Peterson, Neil A McGillivray, Archibald McCallum, Wm Bain, Isaiah J Elliott, Emma E Hales, Sarah Cameron, Ronald McKinnon, David Hopper, Rich A Richardson, Kate Young, Mary A Griffith, Mary C Greig, Mary M McDonald, Kate Strong, David Armstrong, Annie N McKechnie, Wm Strath, of Paisley, passed the 3rd class exam., but being only 16 years of age the Board could not grant him a certificate.

Mr. Isaac Johnston, blacksmith, has removed to his new brick building opposite the Albion Hotel.

In this issue we publish Mr Bruce's address to the electors of the north riding. In addition to Mr Gillies and Mr Bruce, Mr Ruby and Dr Sinclair, of Port Elgin are spoken of as likely to be candidate.

—A cure for the blues—read "Craigie" at McArthur's bookstore, $1.25.

BALLACHEY, LAIDLAW & CO.

"The Store with the Quality"

Suits-Suits Suits!

One hundred and sixty-eight suits to choose from---Black, Blue, Grey, Brown and Green. Prices from $7.50 to $24. New styles, as well as staple lines. Let us show you.

Top Prices for all Farm Produce

BALLACHEY, LAIDLAW & CO.

Both 'Phones——— ——All Produce

Tired Eyes

Sensations exist for our guidance. They are Nature's warnings.
Over-worked eyes demand rest.
Eyes that tire easily call for help.
Properly adjusted glasses afford the only assistance possible.
We make a specialty of relieving tired eyes and guarantee satisfaction.

A Stopped Watch

One that will not go AT ALL—doesn't cause as much bother as one that runs now fast, now slow, in an erratic fashion.

The first you don't pretend to depend upon—the other is a constant source of annoyance.

Most people can afford a watch, but no one can afford an uncertain fast and slow one.

And when our repair department is so close at hand there is really no excuse for carrying anything but an accurate time-piece, no matter what the first cost was.

Consult us about any watch troubles that may arise.

I. SHOEMAKER
JEWELER AND OPTICIAN

SHOES

Our new spring Shoes have just arrived and we have Shoes for all Ladies, Gents and Children at the old prices.

We have not raised our prices as we bought our supply before the advance in prices.

We have a full stock of Men's Women's and Children's heavy waterproof shoes on hand to keep the feet dry.

Call and have a look at our shoes.

Eggs Taken in Exchange

H. PFAFF & SON'S
SHOE STORE

Buggies—We are again selling the reliable McLaughlin, Tudhope and Brantford makes, also attending to all kinds of repairs and renewal of parts on old vehicles. A number of second hand buggies to sell cheap.

Furniture A large assortment always in stock, and catalogues of best makers to select from. Any article, large or small, sold or single pieces for furnishing the home.

Single and Double Harness and Harness Supplies
We are agents for the Singer Sewing Machines and Capital Cream Separators

J. SEILER, Eden Grove

CANADIAN PACIFIC
FOR WINNIPEG AND VANCOUVER
Leaves Toronto 10.30 p.m. daily.
Attractive Tours to Pacific Coast Points
Particulars from Canadian Pacific ticket agents, or write M. G. Murphy, D.P.A., Cor. King and Yonge Sts., Toronto
W. H. McFarlane, Agent, Paisley

Central Business College Stratford, Ont.
Ontario's Best Practical Training School
We have thorough courses and experienced instructors in each of our three departments, Commercial, Shorthand and Telegraphy. Our graduates succeed and you should get our large, free catalogue. Write for it at once.
D. A. McLachlan, Principal

Court Saugeen, C.O.F. No. 88
Meets in Oddfellows Hall on the second Wednesday evening of each month, at 8 o'clock. Sojourning brethren are welcome.
E. E. Archer, R.S.
W. Archer, C.R.

Ahiram Lodge, No. 205, I.O.O.F.
Meets every Tuesday evening in brethren's hall in the Hall Oddfellow Block. Visiting brothers always welcome.
D. J. F. Houston, N.G.
R. B. Grant, R.S.

PUMP REPAIRING

The undersigned having purchased Mr W Rusk's outfit, is prepared to do all kinds of pump repairing, also furnish repairs, such as cylinders, valves and other parts of wooden or iron pumps. A few Rock wooden pumps for sale. Wood turning done. Turned whiffletrees, neckyokes and fence posts for sale.

W. RAE

Paisley Court of Revision

Assessment Roll, 1915

Take notice that the Court of Revision, to try all complaints in regard to persons wrongly placed upon or omitted from the Roll, or assessed at too high or too low a sum, will be held at the Council Chamber at nine o'clock a.m. on Saturday, 29th May, 1915.

J. C. Gibson, Town Clerk.

Desirable Residence for Sale

That very desirable village property on Queen Street south, the Strachan residence, is offered for sale. House new, brick veneered, and in first-class condition. Apply to D. Forrest, K.C., Paisley.

T. H. GEORGE
Issuer of Marriage Licenses
Notary Public and Conveyancer
Land, Loan, Insurance and General Agent. Notes, Book Accounts and other Debts Collected. Conveyancing Neatly and Cheaply Executed.
—FARMS LOANS A SPECIALTY—
Offices Putnam Block, Queen St. S., Paisley

You Can Begin Any Day at the
Northern Business College
OWEN SOUND
Individual Instruction
Our own three story building and 34 successful years of experience.
Expert instructors produce the very best results. Catalogue free.
C. A. Fleming, F.C.A., Principal — G. D. Fleming, Secretary

Business Directory

JOHN SUTHERLAND & SONS
LIMITED
INSURANCE—FIRE AND MARINE
GUELPH - ONT.

J. C. GIBSON
Issuer of Marriage Licenses
Paisley, Ont.

LEGAL

D. FORRESTER, B.A., L.L.B.
BARRISTER, SOLICITOR AND NOTARY PUBLIC
OFFICE—TOWN HALL, PAISLEY

MEDICAL

DR. M. C. BLACK, M.D., C.M., F.T.M.C., M.O.P.S. Honor Graduate of Trinity University and Polyclinic, New York. Specialty—Diseases of the eye, ear nose and throat.

DR. H. E. GAGE, Physician, Surgeon and Accoucheur. Specialties in Diseases of the Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat. Late House Surgeon Kingston General Hospital. Office hours—8 to 9 a.m., 1 to 4 p.m. Successor to Dr. O'Neill.

DR. J. F. HOUSTON, Honour Graduate of Toronto University Licentiate of the Royal College of Physicians, and Surgeons of Edinburgh and Glasgow, post graduate Course Lying-in Hospital, Dublin, late assistant Edinburgh Eye Infirmary. Specialty—Diseases of the Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat. Successor to Dr. Morrison.

DENTAL

DR. A. H ALLEN
DENTIST, formerly of Toronto.
Graduate of the Royal College of Dental Surgeons of Ontario. Honor Graduate of Toronto University Dental Department. Master of Dental Surgery. Graduate of the Dr. Meyers' Post Graduate School of Prosthetic Dentistry, New York. Office over Morse's Drug store, opposite the Post Office.

VETERINARY

R. B. GRANT, V.S., Graduate of Ontario Veterinary College, Toronto. Government Inspector of contagious diseases and supply Tuberculin test to cattle. Also to speed expert stock and issue certificates for same. Urgent gas treatment for milk fever. Office and residence opposite the old Northern Hotel.

AUCTIONEERS

G. Pearce, Licensed Auctioneer. Sales attended to in all parts of the County of Bruce, on reasonable terms. Orders left at the Advocate Office will receive prompt attention. Telephone at house.

J. Nesbitt, Licensed Auctioneer for the County of Bruce, is prepared to conduct sales in any part of the county. Terms reasonable. Leave order at Advocate office or address Gillies P.O.

A Few "Becauses"

Why we ask for and expect your Grocery Trade

BECAUSE, as far as is possible to determine, our stock takes in all the good kinds, and leaves the others out.

BECAUSE, if you are particular about eatables, our store will appeal to you.

BECAUSE we play the game of business fair and square. We make right any mistake we may make just as soon as we hear of it.

BECAUSE we try awfully hard to "get there on time." We appreciate the inconvenience of waiting for goods to be delivered.

BECAUSE, in spite of all these advantages, your dollar is as large here as anywhere, often larger.

TRY AND PROVE.

DUTCH SETT ONIONS—4 Pounds for 25 cents.

Leave your order with us for CUT FLOWERS and POTTED PLANTS.

Don't forget we pay the Highest Price for BUTTER and EGGS in Cash or Trade.

F. Carter & Son

Groceries, Crockery, Boots and Shoes

Goods Delivered — Both 'Phones

THE STORE WITH THE QUALITY

Use Sherwin-Williams Paints

Home Defence

Be Loyal to the Home You Live In

Defend it against the weather conditions which are operating against the appearance of your building every day.

By using

Sherwin-Williams Paints and Varnishes

Victory will be yours!

There is nothing more pleasing to the eye than a neatly painted building. It is something that is admired by everyone. Not only does a coat of Paint add to the appearance but it protects the surface from cracking and rotting. A good coat of Paint also adds to the value of your building.

Come and see us. Let us tell you. w.

Use Sherwin-Williams Paints

W. H. DAVISON

BRUCE PHONE — BELL PHONE

This is the kind of Wall Paper Artist We Do NOT Employ—

No sloppy job like this done by our men. It costs you no more to employ clean, careful workmen than men like the above.

Our Wall Paper Stock

We have just put into stock the newest and

MOST ARTISTIC PATTERNS.

Complete range of all lines for parlor, hall, dining-room, bed-room or kitchen papers on hand, ready for delivery. We would like to show you our different sample books. Stock on hand of all samples shown.

H. GLOVER

PAPERHANGER AND DECORATOR

Eldersle Tp. Court of Revision

THE Court of Revision of the Assessment Roll of the Township of Eldersle for 1915 will hold its first sitting at the Township Hall, Clifton Hill, on Friday, May 28th inst. at 1 o'clock p.m. Parties having business with the said court are requested to attend at said time and place.

H. G. PEARCE, Tp Clerk

Eldersle, May 8th 1915.

TORONTO LIVE STOCK MARKETS

TORONTO, Tuesday, May 18th, 1915

Butchers' picked	8 90	9 00
do common	8 00	8 50
do cows	7 00	7 50
do bulls	7 00	7 50
Stockers, choice	6 75	7 50
do common	6 00	6 50
Heavy feeders	7 00	7 50
Short keep	7 00	7 50
Milch cows, choice	85 00	90 00
do common	60 00	65 00
Sheep, ewes	7 00	8 00
Bucks	6 00	6 50
Spring Lambs, each	8 00	9 00
Calves	9 00	10 00
Hogs, f.o.b	9 90	9 90
" fed and watered	9 25	9 35

What is Life For?

Life primarily is for living, and the world for living in. The fields are for us to enjoy as well as to yield us bread and meat. Naturally we believe that one can enjoy best a fertile field covered with a good crop. There is something satisfying in tall ranks of well eared clean corn. There is serene and poetic beauty in a field of well grown wheat, rippling in the breeze, mottled in the shadows of the sky. A pasture with its grass and shadows feeding kine, its nibbling sheep and its racing colts is a thing of joy and contentment. Then there is the coolness of the early morning, the dewy grass, the birds and all the great outdoors which ought to be a source of joy. If we are misusing these things in the country we are not getting half what we ought out of country life.

We ought now and then to take a day to forget the cares and burdens of toil and enjoy life and living. An early breakfast made sweeter by pleased anticipation is shared by the wife and children. Then lunch baskets are packed and the family sets out to explore the near by world. New vistas appear and new beauties are discovered to be commented on and enjoyed. Maybe the deep forest is the objective point or maybe it is some river's side or lake's brim and perhaps to add to the joy friends are met. A little laziness is our right and duty now, a dip in the cool water, a gazing through tree tops, the enjoyment of the luncheon at noonday, and then as evening shadows fall a contented jogging home. Such a day could be right well spent almost any time from May to November, and the joy of it should be lasting. We are rich if we but learn appreciation of what is naturally ours.—Breeders' Gazette.

THE CAUSE IS MORE THAN THE INDIVIDUAL

The Hanover Post contained a letter from Capt. Musgrove, of that town, to his wife, the patriotic sentiment of which is admirable, and worth reproducing. Below is the extract:

"There is not much to report from this week. We are still at Shorncliffe, although I am sending men over every two or three days. Capt. Darling, our Adjutant, was severely wounded about two weeks ago, and I was the logical officer to take his place, but they told me they could not spare me from the base just now, so they sent another man. However, the big forward move is impending, and they'll need us all, and more, too, when that starts.

"Don't let the tale of pessimists make you uneasy concerning the result of this war. There can be and will be only one ending, and that is as certain as night and day, and although many of us will have to go under to accomplish it, it will be done.

"The spirit that is universal in this country is bound to come out on top, for aristocrats and socialists, capital and labor are nearer to a universal brotherhood than ever before, and every person seems to feel that it is his business, and, if he cannot fight, he must do something.

"Preparations have been made here for the caring of 50,000 WOUNDED PER WEEK after May 1st, when the move will be on, and not only can the country do that, but she can keep up the supply of trained men, for England secured far more recruits than was publicly announced. However, what I suppose you are principally concerned about is whether I shall come out of it or not. Unfortunately that is not so certain. We all hope for the best, and after all if the worst does come, you will have to remember there have been, and will be, many others, and that THE CAUSE IS GREATER THAN THE INDIVIDUAL. However, I'm worth a good many dead ones yet, and hope to continue so.

NEED OF FAT AS FOOD.

No Difference to the System From What Source It Is Obtained.

The trees in a Syrian garden are as important and practically necessary part of the nutrition of the people. Combined with grain in the form of coarse bread, the tree products make a balanced and wholesome ration. For large elements of the population, at least one meal a day is commonly composed of bread and walnuts. The walnut is rich in both protein and fat, so that this combination virtually duplicates in nutrition our occidental sandwich of bread, butter and meat.

The oil to which the scriptural writers so lovingly referred is still important in that land, and the olive tree that produces it is almost as useful to the Syrian as the cow is to the American. The cow gives butter and drink, and the olive tree gives butter and food. When the workman on the Mediterranean goes from home for a day's labor, he often takes a pocketful of olives and a piece of bread for his lunch. Ranges butter, breakfast bacon and fat meat from our vocabulary, put olive oil in their place and we shall begin to think the thoughts of Mediterranean cooks.

Once cooks and palates are educated, the blood does not know the difference between the rich globules of fat that come to it. It is fat that the human system wants, and it makes no final difference whether it comes from butter, bacon, lard, olive, cocoanut, goose or bear. Fat is fat, once it is in our blood. The source from which we shall get this fundamental of nutrition depends in part upon our bringing up, but eventually our getting it depends upon the ease of winning it from our environment.—Atlantic Monthly.

The first and worst of all frauds is to cheat oneself.

Topical Poems by Sid Saunders

The Kaiser's Soliloquy

Vat iss dis Mable Leaf I hear?
De band do play, de men'r do cheer,
Undt go right to de gates of hell,
Dey don't gif tam for shot undt shell.

I neffer heard of dem before,
Dey smile undt sing midst cannon's roar,
Now—hark—dey sing—Ach dey don't fear:
"The Maple Leaf Our Emblem Dear."

Dey knock my Chermans, poof—like dot,
It makes me vish I was midt Gott,
Bud one ting I not understandt,
Vy Mable Leafs in Valderlandt?

Dey sometings say bout Lion's whelp,
Undt dey come here de Lion to help,
I vish, undt call on Gott mine friendt
To pudt dese Mable Leafs to endt

Budt Mable Leafs, vy inderfere
Midt me, who owns dis Hemisphere?
I p'raps can knock de rest aroundt,
Bud Mable Leafs, you're some aggoundt.

"Let's Save the Kiddies"

Some laughed and scoffed at your silken hose,
Your patent shoes and your nobby clothes,
And they smiled in scorn, because that you
Had millions, while they had not a sou;
And they knew as well a man you're not
And all the rest of that roomy rot.
But when they all came to the final test
Your proved your metal above the rest,
And as death you faced and others ran,
It was then you proved yourself a man,
"Let's save the kiddies," that proved your worth
And long as Vanderbilts are on earth
Your noble words will forever be
Lauded, by all both on land and sea;
May Heaven bless deeds as these divine,
Your heart was right, tho your clothes were fine.

Children Cry
FOR FLETCHER'S
CASTORIA

The Time Limit

A clergyman who was to preach before the students at Yale University asked how long he was expected to talk.

"Of course, we put no limit upon you," replied President Hadley with his usual pump-handle gesture, but we have a feeling here at Yale that no souls—are saved—after the first twenty minutes."

PAISLEY MARKET

Fall wheat, per bushel	0 90	1 30
Spring wheat, per bush	1 00	1 30
Buckwheat	70	75
Peas, per bush
Oats, per bush	50	55
Barley, per bush	65	75
Potatoes, per bag		40
Butter, in pound prints	27	27
Eggs, fresh, per doz	22	22
Hay, per ton		15 00

START ADVERTISING NOW

STAGNATION in one's business is greatly to be feared and greatly to be avoided. Action—an effort to get ahead—keeps a business healthy, wealthy and wise.

Visible action is advertising in THE PAISLEY ADVOCATE—a fresh advertisement each week. The preparation and publication of a new advertisement is a sure indication of business energy.

"Start Something" is the slogan of to-day. Start advertising now. Keep up the advertising all through the year, and your business will feel the tonic effect of your action.

To the Merchants of Paisley

Make business brisk for you and Paisley by a big and rightly-directed effort—by a series of adequate advertisements in THE PAISLEY ADVOCATE.

Get and Keep Ahead by Planning Ahead

"GET PAINT WISE"

Every householder in this city should be well informed on paint questions—WHY? Because there is hardly one article in your house that is not finished with a paint, varnish, enamel or stain.

The kind of paint
Proper condition of the surface
The weather conditions
The cost per years of wear are important features to know before the time comes to do the work. Get our booklets and pamphlets and "read up" on these subjects.

You will agree with us—that "High Standard" Paint Products are the best for every need—after a trial you will use no other. "High Standard" Paint Products are made to "GIVE BEST RESULTS." 202

For Sale at Sinclair's Hardware

A THOUGHTFUL GIFT

Send THE ADVOCATE to the absent member of the family or to the distant friend. It is as good as a letter from home and is a weekly visitor. You can better imagine how the home paper is appreciated when you are absent yourself and a copy is forwarded to you.

Homeseekers' Excursions to Western Canada

Particular attention is directed to the remarkably low round trip fares in connection with homeseekers' excursions to Western Canada via Canadian Pacific Railway.

Tickets are on sale each Tuesday until October 26th inclusive, and are good to return within two months from date of sale.

The C.P.R. offers the finest possible equipment and fastest train service via one of the most scenic routes in the world.

It is the only line operating through standard and tourist sleeping cars, also dining cars to Winnipeg and Vancouver. All equipment is owned and operated by the C.P.R. affording the highest form of efficiency.

If such a trip is under consideration apply to any C.P.R. agent for full particulars or write M. G. Murphy, D. P. A., Toronto.

Fifty-Fifty

It was a country barber shop, and a farmer with a week's growth of stubby beard had seated himself in a chair to have his whiskers cropped.

"Guess you'll have a time gittin' them off," he remarked as the barber began rubbing on the lather.

"Oh, I don't know," said the barber, carelessly. "All beards look alike to me."

"Wunst I went into a barbershop to get shaved," resumed the farmer, "and after the barber was done and I was payin' him, he remarked, 'Say, old man, if all beards was like yourn I'd quit the barber business.' I sez to him, I sez, 'Well, you haven't got anything on me, old man. If all barbers was like you I'd let my beard grow.'"

—Renew your subscription to the city dailies or weeklies before the term ends and save interruption in the year's reading. We can get you any paper you want and save you a little money.

THERE HAS NOT BEEN

any increase in the price of

Columbia Records

They are made in Canada—consequently are not subject to the 7½ per cent War Tax.

They sell from 85 cents to $7.50, but no matter what price you pay, the Columbia Record at that price is exceptionally good value for the money.

Go to the dealer whose name is mentioned below, and ask him to give you a catalogue of Columbia Records.

If he hasn't any, owing to the big demand, write direct to The Columbia Graphophone Co., Toronto, and you will receive one by return mail. But go to the local dealer whose name is mentioned below, and ask him first; also ask him to play over some of the newest Records, including:

Mary Pickford's official song, entitled—

A1701	Sweetheart of Mine I'm Not Ashamed of You, Mollie	.85
A1686	Somewhere a Voice is Calling Whispering Hope	$1.00
A5649	Handel's Largo, by Casals Melody in F, by Casals	$1.50
A5644	A Perfect Day Suzi	$1.25

G. R. WELSFORD

Paisley

Agents wanted where not actively represented. Apply Music Supply Co., Toronto

Evidence from the Front

"Your cheque for $2594.97 received. I find that this means a return to me of $231.69 for every $100.00 invested with your Company. To receive my premium back with compound interest at the rate of 4½ per cent., and insurance protection in addition, is certainly exceptionally gratifying."
POLICY NO. 6

Actual Results the True Test — Satisfaction to Policyholders — This does all

The best insurance at lowest net cost is furnished by

THE DOMINION LIFE

HIGH INTEREST RATES - LOW DEATH LOSS

Head Office: Waterloo, Ont.

Fooled 'em All

One Sunday morning a deacon observed a boy industriously fishing. After the lad had landed several he approached and said, "My son, it is very cruel to impale that poor helpless beetle upon that sharp hook."

Said the boy, "Oh, say, mister, this is only an imitation! It ain't a real bug."

"Bless me," replied the deacon. "Why I thought it was a real bug."

The boy, lifting a fine string of fish said, "So did these suckers."

BORN

PARKER—At Paisley, on May 14th, to Mr. and Mrs Arch Parker, a daughter.

The Darkest Hour;

Or, The Hope That Still Lived.

CHAPTER XXIII.—(Continued).

She paused a moment to get her breath; for she was suffering even while she spoke, and the pain at her heart seemed almost more than she could bear without breaking into sobs. Then she hurried on before the man listening to her could speak.

"So my mind was only made up more after reading his letter. It's quite plain to me that I must say goodbye to him for his own sake. That's what love ought to do, isn't it. Love oughtn't to do just what it wants for itself, but only what's best for the one it loves. So I made up my mind once for all just now."

"And did that mean that you made up your mind to marry me instead?" the doctor interrupted then in a calm, but sharply eager voice.

Maggie shook her head faintly.

"No, not at first," she said apologetically. "It wasn't because I don't like you," she added, seeing the pain marked on his face. "I like you very, very much. I think I love you—but not in the right way. That mayn't matter now, perhaps; but wait till I've told you all. Then I began to think of how I could manage if I tried to get on by myself again, without thinking of marrying anybody at all. I can see now that it's no use my trying to keep us all by working in the shop, as I'm doing now. But I thought I might do something else more profitable—take in sewing or be a waitress——"

She broke off by reason of the fact that the doctor was shaking his head. But she had to set her argument before him, so presently she summoned courage and proceeded.

"Oh, perhaps, I might be an actress, or——"

The grey-bearded doctor had risen then, and had begun softly, yet angrily, to pace the floor.

"Not that, above all things," he objected fiercely. "You're too pretty and too sweet for that."

It was the first direct personal compliment that he had ever paid her, and it did not harm her, for [illegible] very good reason that she did not accept it as true. Not that she doubted [illegible] admiration of her; she supposed that he must admire her a little, or he would not have wanted to marry her. But now, when she looked at herself in the [illegible] cracked looking-glass that served for the toilet of all the little family, she honestly did not see anything in her own face that could attract any one towards her. How could any one admire thin cheeks whose paleness was of the wrong kind, the anaemic kind, and tightened, colorless lips and heavy eyes looking out below a forehead whose candid lifelessness was crowned with waves of hair that seemed to have lost all their once brilliant lustre?

She retreated a few steps now, looking at the doctor in mingled appeal and protest.

"You say No to everything," she answered him reproachfully. "You seem to forget that other girls better born and better taught than I am get their living in one or other of those ways."

"Other girls are not you," retorted the grave old man still severely, "and other girls are nothing to me, whereas you are much to me."

Maggie only nodded in response to this.

"I thought it would be easier than it is for me to get the living of all of us up here in London," she said with a note of bitter disappointment in her tone. "And perhaps I should be beaten as I've been beaten at this shop work. But you must not think that it's because I'm a girl that I've failed—or failed up to the present. It's not that at all. It's only because I never was taught to do any one special thing. People that can't do any one special thing must always find it hard to get their living. It isn't through laziness, or for want of trying, that I've failed. You know that. But I haven't come to the end yet of what I've got to say. You needn't worry with thinking that I'm going to try any of these other things, because I'm not. I did think this afternoon of trying them, but something has happened since to make me change my mind. You see if I were to try again to get on here in London alone, I should have to have a little money for us to keep going with while I got the new work paid. When I went out this afternoon I thought there would be some more money where that five pounds came from. But when I came in—just now——"

She broke off in painful embarrassment. The greybearded man before her stopped in his cautious pacing, and stared at her with an unusual wave of redness mounting over his face. He waited for her to proceed.

"I—I met a man from home just as I reached the park gates." She did proceed stammeringly for a moment. "He knew me, of course, and was glad to meet me. We talked for a good long time, and then—and then—never mind how—it came out that he was the Robert Watt who was supposed to have sent us the five pounds in part payment of a debt he had owed my father."

The red became deeper in the doctor's cheeks. He sat down again on the seat which he had occupied before. Then almost immediately he rose again, remembering that a man ought not to be seated while a woman remained standing.

"I did it for the best," he said, stammering in his turn. "I ought not to have done it, perhaps—and especially I ought not to have told or acted a lie about it; that was wrong, and perhaps that is why I have been punished by discovery. But it hurt me so much to see the privation you endured here; and I can tell you plainly that in my opinion it was very little short of criminal to allow a sick child to suffer cold and hunger as this child has suffered them, just because you happen to be too proud to accept help which was ready to your hand." He had nodded towards the sleeping Alice. "You know very well, too, that I was not mean enough to wish to keep help from you until the need of it should force you to consent to marry me. You know that I have only been waiting for a single word of permission to move you all three into better rooms, or, at the very least, to give you fuel and food. So you ought to forgive me for the trick I played when your need had become so acute that I could not any longer steel myself to endure the sight of your cruel necessity. I could not do less than I did, and I trust that for that reason Heaven will pardon the lie that I told you or caused to be told you. Will you not yourself pardon it?"

"I do, I do," Maggie repeated chokingly. "It was very good of you, and I thank you for it. But it hurt my pride a great deal, and I know it would hurt mother's much more. She would rather die than take charity from any one. So, within the last half-hour I have made up my mind that when she is told of this she shall also be told something that shall take the sting of charity out of it. And that something will be—that you are going to marry me, and that therefore you have a right to show the three of us kindness if you choose to do so. She will be glad then, oh, so glad! Of course," she added, flushing confusedly and drooping her head, "of course, that's if you still want me."

"You know I want you more than ever," the old doctor answered her quickly. "Haven't I shown you that plainly every time I see you?"

The pale girl—she was very pale now—leaned once more against the wall for the support which her tired young limbs refused her in this moment of emotion and crisis. For reply to his words she only nodded. The consciousness that Alexander Dare's letter nestled within her bodice against her breast had given her suddenly a choking sensation which made her unable to speak. The doctor moved closer to her and put his arm about her to give support to her manifest weakness.

"Then you are going to be my wife just in order to pay me for the help which by a trick I managed to give you?" he asked her a little sadly, and perhaps even a little resentfully. What other busy professional man of established position and reputation would give time and skill as he had done to help her and hers? But the resentment was unworthy of his love and so he crushed it down.

"Well, never mind," he concluded when he had grown calm again. "I am glad and thankful enough to have you turn to me anyhow. You'll love me well enough when once you are my wife. You have made me very happy, little Maggie; happier than I've been in all my life before. I thought I was going to be a bachelor to the end of my days, but Fate has been kinder to me than I deserved or thought possible. I suppose people will call it foolish that a man on the brink of old age should marry a girl like you; but it's not their business, and so they may say what they like. I wonder how it was that I knew by your face directly you came in just now that you were going to give me your final decision, one way or the other, to-night?"

He bent his face to kiss her; his beard touched her forehead, and she shrank away. He had the right to kiss her, but first there was something else which she had to tell him, something which might alter their new position towards each other. So with one of her thin, cold hands, she gently thrust him from her.

"Not yet," she panted. "I've something else to tell you first. You think I'm the daughter of Mrs. Maitland and the sister of Alice here; but I'm not. The Maitlands have fed me and sheltered me and treated me always as their own—God bless David Maitland's memory for it, and reward the dear mother in the years that are still to come—but I'm not their own, nor any kin of theirs. I'm only a foundling. I don't know myself, and maybe shall never know what my true name is, nor who my parents were."

"A foundling?" Dr. Kendal had started back a little, releasing her as she had wished him to do from the clasp of his supporting arm. "You—a foundling?"

Maggie repeated her statement. "I must tell you the whole story," she added hurriedly. "It wouldn't be fair for me to let you marry me without knowing. And it won't take long to tell."

It took a quarter of an hour or so, although the hearer of the simple little tale made no interrupting remarks in the course of his listening. He stood quite still, with his eyes looking straight into her eyes as she told the few plain facts which alone lightened the darkness surrounding her birth and the criminal abandonment of her in infancy to the risk of death or the bare chance of some stranger discovering her helplessness and gathering her into his care. She told of the money found with her and of how it had been carefully saved for her until cruel circumstances had compelled her adoptive parents to make use of it at last in order to save themselves from ruin. She told how it had been David Maitland and his wife's firm intention to pay it back to her when fortune should smile on them again, how death and still further calamities had frustrated that intention for ever. Finally she spoke of the piece of embroidered Indian shawl being the only thing that could afford even the slightest clue to her true identity.

"Not that I wish for my own sake ever to find out who my parents were," she concluded in a tone whose sincerity had in it a touch of proud indignation. "I feel that I would rather never know—never, never, never!" She repeated the word passionately, and in so incautiously loud a tone that it was a wonder that neither Alice nor Mrs. Maitland awoke suddenly in consequence. "A mother and a father who could desert their child as mine deserted me are not worth much seeking. And yet—I should like to know—I should like to know——"

Breaking off, she covered her face with her hand, and began to cry quietly. Then the doctor, rousing himself from his amazement, went close to her again.

"This doesn't make any difference to me," he told her tenderly; "it only sets me thinking. You say you still have in your possession the piece of Indian shawl that you were wrapped in when David Maitland found you; will you show it to me, and perhaps allow me to take it away with me and keep it for a day or two?"

"Why?" The question seemed to have come from her lips involuntarily, for without waiting for his answer she crossed the room and began as softly and as noiselessly as possible to pull out and rummage in a drawer which was the depository of Mrs. Maitland's few personal belongings. Presently she drew forth a carefully rolled brown paper parcel. She recrossed the room with it, and gave it to the grave-faced, grey-bearded man who had waited, watching her.

"You must promise to bring it back safely," she insisted as she placed it in his hands. "Mother would never forgive me if it got lost."

He gave the required promise gravely. Then he drew her in his arms, claiming the right to kiss her. She struggled, resisting to the end, because of the letter that nestled secretly against her breast. Then he asked her to consent, at least, to the fixing of the date for their marriage within the next four weeks. From this, too, she shrank at first, but in the end she yielded. Then he who was her Auld Robin Gray went out, well satisfied; while far away, under an African sky, Alexander Dare guessed nothing of the calamity which threatened his love and his life's future happiness.

CHAPTER XXIV.

Christine Dare was moving restlessly to and fro across the bare floor of the miserable room in the miserable tenement house of the sordid London slum to which her brother had summoned her in the last few hours of his life. She looked now years older, although not less beautiful, not less sweet, than the Christine who had first found her way to this place, whose wretchedness had never meant to be brightened by a presence such as hers. Beautiful women, born in wealth and bred in luxury, are not supposed to penetrate to such dark spots as this grimy, misery-stricken room, whose breadth she now crossed and recrossed. And in this hour, Christine herself, although pale and red-eyed from weeping and very plainly dressed, shone as a star amid her squalid surroundings.

It was twelve o'clock in the morning. More and more restlessly she moved to and fro, only pausing to look down frequently through the window into the evil-looking and evil-smelling street below. When she was not looking out of the window her eyes returned continually towards the ragged mattress in one corner of the room, and especially towards what lay upon it. For her brother, Ronald lay there, no longer buffeted by life, but made sacred and far dearer by death. He was dead, and she, the sister, who had loved him so well, was watching him alone.

She had ceased weeping now. For hours she had knelt down beside the poor makeshift of a bed and prayed, sometimes aloud, sometimes silently, while the hot, bitter tears of a despairing grief that has some righteous indignation mingled with it streamed down her uplifted young face. Throughout the night she had left him in the charge of the woman who had first guided her up the unclean and difficult stairway to this last and poorest skulking place of the foolish boy who had played havoc with his own opening life. Very unwilling had she been to do this; very unwilling to leave him at all. But she had his secret to guard, and she could not have guarded it if she herself had kept the night vigil with him. She was staying at the house of a well-known society leader of high rank, and she had trouble enough to get away from that house and come to this miserable district even in the daytime. It would have been utterly impossible for her to invent any excuse for remaining away alone at night; impossible, even if she had been willing—as she was not—to account for the seemingly improper proceeding by a lie. After all, the friend who was her hostess had nominally the full and responsible charge of her while she was in London, and she would be acting only within the limits of her duty in refusing to allow a girl placed within her guardianship to remain away from her house during one night without the fullest and most satisfactory explanation as to where she wished to spend those long, lonely, and dark hours of her absence. Watching with the sick poor was all very well, but a limit had to be imposed on the extent even of such good work as this. And in Lady Fordham's opinion Christine had done a great deal too much of it already.

If the girl could only have let it be known that her brother lay dead in one of the houses of the poor and squalid district to visit which, early this morning, she had slipped away so mysteriously, things would have been different. But in the last moments of his life Ronald had passionately besought and commanded her never to let either his family or the world in general know how and where this last act of the pitiful drama of his young life had been played. His mother and father believed him to have died a fortnight ago. Let them still believe that such had been the case. Surely that was better, better a thousand times, than to break the mother's heart twice over! Besides, there was the family pride to be considered. Why need the world know that instead of meeting his end accidentally in the street, he had met it here in uttermost poverty, helplessness, and all-round destitution? He mentioned other reasons, too, and in the end his sister had yielded, and had given him the promise that he begged for. Very clearly had she felt the force of his urgent pleading that their mother should be spared a second shock of bereavement. She knew, as even he did not, what the first shock had meant to their mother, what a blow it had dealt to her failing health; and, greatly though it hurt her to agree to the suppression of the truth, she realised that the more merciful course would be to let things be as the dying lad wished. Brian Hardy might be told the truth—Ronald agreed quite willingly to this—but no one else. And there would be no trouble about the concealment, for he had taken this room in the name of Ronald only, and the certificate of his death would therefore be made out in that name.

Was it wrong to do this, or to help in the doing it? Christine had some doubts upon the point, but she stifled them. After all, no actual lie would have to be told in connexion with the secrecy. It would only be a case of omitting to tell the whole truth. That was surely different. In any case, she repeated to herself, the course of silence was the one that she had given her solemn promise to take. And very certainly it was the most merciful course as far as her father and mother were concerned. She felt that a second shock such as the revelation of the manner of Ronald's death would most inevitably have made her mother very ill, and might even have killed her.

She had written to Brian, and was waiting for him now, as her tired yet restless feet crossed and recrossed the bare floor of the room of death. She hoped he would come soon; she felt somehow that neither her heart nor her nerves would be able to bear this terrible loneliness much longer. In enjoining silence concerning himself, Ronald had laid a heavy burden upon her frail young shoulders. Now and again the woman who had helped to nurse him pushed the shaky door open with a clumsy attempt at gentleness and said a few words of rough comfort to the young lady whose relationship to the dead man she had guessed from the undoubted likeness between their faces. That likeness was more apparent now that death had smoothed away all suggestion of sin and failure and misery from Ronald's delicate young features. In the first hour after the death this coarse unkempt woman had felt quite anxious about Christine. The girl's grief had been so violent, so wild and uncontrolled, that it threatened to end in illness. If the worthy creature had only known it, however, there was much worse danger of such a result now that the grief was silent and found no longer a safe outlet in sobs and tears.

(To be continued.)

More than half a Century of Quality is behind every package of

BENSON'S Corn Starch

Always order by the name BENSON'S in order to get what you want

Practically every grocer in Canada has BENSON'S.

54

Bad Luck.

A third marriage is considered unlucky in certain parts of India. A fourth marriage is not. So when a man wishes to become a benedict after two previous trials and still evade superstition he evokes a very clever scheme.

Mr. Man of India goes through a ceremonial with a bird or animal or flower as the bride in order that his next wife will be the fourth and not the third venture. Though this may sound ridiculous to many of our American people is it any more so than the lengths to which persons in this country will go to avoid the number 13 or "unlucky days" and other household bogies?

Playing It Safe.

"George, I will promise to obey on one condition."

"What is that, my dear?"

"That before the ceremony takes place you will promise me never to command."

Caught in the Maelstrom.

"He is a most convincing talker."

"Yes, that is his great misfortune. He believes his own glowing stories, invests his money and goes broke."

The middle verse of the Bible is the eighth verse of Psalm cxviii.

A Side-Tragedy of the War in Serbia.

A wounded Serbian soldier attacked by typhus fever and unable to proceed further on his journey. This is not an unusual sight under the existing circumstances in Serbia.

How to Prevent Mold in Butter.

The important losses in butter through the growth of mold upon the tub lining, wrapper, or in the butter itself, which injures the saleability of the produce, have led experts to investigate this subject. Mold in butter is usually found in three forms: (1) Orange-yellow areas with some growth of mycelium under the surface. (2) Smudge or dirty green areas, either entirely inside the butter or with some surface growth. (3) Green-surface colonies, either upon the butter, causing decomposition, or upon the container or wrappings which will injure the appearance of the butter.

Experiments in producing molds artificially in samples of butter indicate that a growth of mold in or about butter is favored by excessive curd, by "leaky" butter, or by wet surfaces, wet wrappings or highly moist air. If butter molds readily, it is an indication of insufficient salting, as salt up to 2.5 to 3 per cent. is sufficient to prevent mold or reduce it to a negligible amount. The growth of molds, moreover, is largely reduced by keeping the butter at low temperatures. Improper storage temperatures, accompanied as they frequently are with moist conditions, are favorable to mold in butter. Unsalted butter is more subject to deterioration from microorganisms than salted butter. Successful storage of such butter is therefore dependent upon scrupulously clean, dry refrigeration. Cellars and ice refrigeration rarely furnish conditions which will prevent mold in unsalted or slightly salted butter, although it may be delayed or reduced. Butter properly made and normally salted (up to 2.5 to 3 per cent., equivalent to the use of a 12 to 15 per cent. brine)., will not show mold under reasonably careful handling.

Investigators in summarizing results emphasize the fact that well-washed butter is less subject to mold than that with an excess of curd, but the essential factor in molding seems to be water, not protein.

"Leaky" butter from which milky water exudes and collects in the wrapper or container furnishes the best conditions for the beginning of mold growth. From these wet areas colonies may spread to the butter itself.

Mold, the investigators find, will not grow upon the surface of a piece of butter exposed to air at ordinary humidities. The water in the butter is not sufficiently available to the mold to support the development of a colony unless evaporation is reduced by a high-moisture content of the surrounding air. In closed packages, wet or damp cellars, or carelessly packed masses with cracks or fissures in which moisture collects, mold may seriously injure the appearance of the packages or acually induce great changes in the butter itself.

Green molds may damage normally salted butter if cracks and open spaces are left by bad packing. Other investigators have found that paraffining the tubs or boxes prevents mold on the container and the liner by preventing the escape of water which would not leave the air space necessary for mold growth.

Very moderate salting prevents the appearance of the orange-yellow patches and the smudges. The green molds affect normally salted butter only when it is held under conditions of temperature or moisture that are favorable to mold growth.

Alfalfa Hay for Hogs.

A trial in feeding hogs on alfalfa hay was carried on at the North Dakota Experiment Station by W. H. Peters, Animal Husbandman. The alfalfa hay was cut into half-inch lengths and was fed both dry and steamed. The hogs were also fed a grain ration of barley shorts and tankage. One lot was fed only the grain feed, while with other lots the grain ration was reduced and alfalfa supplied in its place, the aim being to make the alfalfa-fed hogs to gain as much as the all-grain lot. With young pigs the saving in cost due to the alfalfa was 50c per 100 pounds gain on the dry alfalfa, and 40c when the alfalfa was steamed. With the fattening hogs, the saving was $1.70 per 100 pounds gain for lot fed the dry alfalfa, and $2.70 when the alfalfa was steamed.

Brood sows were also fed alfalfa hay. When the alfalfa was fed the grain ration (barley and oats) could be reduced one-third to one-fourth, and the sows did well on it. No difference was noticeable between their litters and those from the sows fed all grain.

The growing pigs were fed one-fifth to one-sixth as much alfalfa as grain, this being the amount that they would readily eat and keep making as good gains as the all-grain lot.

Of the dry alfalfa the fattening hogs eat one-sevenh as much as of grain ration, and of the steamed alfalfa one-sixth as much. The hogs did not eat as large a proportion of the alfalfa as was expected. It, however, reduced the cost of making the gains so that it was well worth while. The price put on the feeds was one cent per pound for the grains, two cents for tankage, and the alfalfa $10 per ton.

The observations of the trial indicate: First, that in order to get hogs started to eating alfalfa hay in winter it is necessary to limit the grain to such an extent that the hogs must eat hay or go hungry. Second, that, when handled in this way, they will very readily take to the hay, and a limited amount of hay can be fed very satisfactorily, securing just as good results, just as good gains, and at less cost than where grain alone is fed. Third, that the greatest advantage to be gained in feeding hay in the winter is the saving of grain and lowering of the cost of feeding.

Bix—Does your wife ever go to the club for you when you are out late? Dix—No; but she goes for me when I get home.

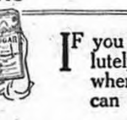
Barn Roofing

Fire, Lightning Rust and Storm Proof

Durable and Ornamental

Let us know the size of any roof you are thinking of covering and we will make you an interesting offer.

Metallic Roofing Co. Limited



MANUFACTURERS

TORONTO and WINNIPEG

4A

WORMS

"Wormy," that's what's the matter of 'em. Stomach and intestinal worms. Nearly as bad as distemper. Cost you too much to feed 'em. Look bad—are bad. Don't physic 'em to death. Spohn's Cure will remove the worms, improve the appetite, and tone 'em up all round, and don't "physic." Acts on glands and blood. Full directions with each bottle, and sold by all druggists.

SPOHN MEDICAL CO., Chemists. Goshen, Ind., U.S.A.

If you want sugar that is absolutely pure, and as clean as when it left the refinery, you can depend on getting it in

Original Redpath Packages

2-lb. and 5-lb. Sealed Cartons. 10, 20, 50 and 100-lb. Cloth Bags.

"Canada's favorite Sugar for three Generations"

CANADA SUGAR REFINING CO., LIMITED. MONTREAL.

123

BANISH PIMPLES AND ERUPTIONS

In the Spring Most People Need a Tonic Medicine

One of the surest signs that the blood is out of order is the pimples, unsightly eruptions and eczema that come frequently with the change from winter to spring. These prove that the long indoor life of winter has had its effect upon the blood, and that a tonic medicine is needed to put it right. Indeed there are few people who do not need a tonic at this season. Bad blood does not merely show itself in disfiguring eruptions. To this same condition is due attacks of rheumatism and lumbago; the sharp stabbing pains of sciatica and neuralgia; poor appetite and a desire to avoid exertion. You cannot cure these troubles by the use of purgative medicines—you need a tonic, and a tonic only, and among all medicines there is none can equal Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for their tonic, life-giving, nerve-restoring powers. Every dose of this medicine makes new, rich blood which drives out impurities, stimulates every organ and brings a feeling of new health and energy to weak, tired, ailing men, women and children. If you are out of sorts, give this medicine a trial and see how quickly it will restore the appetite, revive drooping spirits, and fill your veins with new, health-giving blood.

You can get these Pills from any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Scotsmen's 9,000 Mile Trip.

Eleven stalwart Scots arrived in London from Honolulu to join the Kings' new armies. All of them held responsible positions on sugar plantations, the majority being overseers.

The party which left Honolulu numbered fourteen, but only eleven reached London, three having joined a regiment before reaching Britain.

Of the eleven remaining four went north to join the Seaforth Highlanders, two went into the provinces to enlist in the Highland Division of the Royal Engineers, and one, a Welshman, went westward to serve in a Welsh regiment.

The remaining four, all Scotsmen, went to the London Scottish headquarters to join that famous Territorial regiment. Three were enrolled, but the fourth, Mr. Frank Brolan, did not pass the medical test, and was the most disappointed man in London.

A man of fine physique, weighing 16 stone, looking the picture of health, Mr. Brolan was passed by two doctors before leaving Honolulu.

Feeling fit and looking fit, he had travelled about 9,000 miles to fight for his country, and had been rejected. He went back to his sugar plantation.

All the members of the party paid their own expenses.

Naturally Colored Photos.

How can I make photographic prints in the true colors of the original subject?

This question has been asked by every inventor in the photographic field for many, many years. And it remained unanswered until recently, when Frederick Eugene Ives, the inventor of the half-tone process of printing and the three-color half-tone process, took out patents on this new photographic method.

The taking of photographs in colors, as invented by Mr. Ives, is said to be so simple that any intelligent amateur can master it. Mr. Ives has also invented many devices in the field of applied optics.

FIND OUT

The Kind of Food That Will Keep You Well.

The true way is to find out what is best to eat and drink, and then cultivate a taste for those things instead of poisoning ourselves with improper, indigestible food, etc.

A conservative Eastern woman writes:

"I have used Grape-Nuts 5 years for the young and for the aged; in sickness and in health; at first following directions carefully, later in a variety of ways as my taste and judgment suggested.

"But its most special, personal benefit has been as a substitute for meat, and served dry with cream when rheumatic troubles made it important for me to change diet.

"Served in this way with the addition of a cup of hot Postum and a little fruit it has been used at my morning meal for six months, during which time my health has much improved, nerves have grown steadier, and a gradual decrease in my excessive weight adds greatly to my comfort."

Name given by Canadian Postum Co., Windsor, Ont. Read, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a Reason."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

General L'Agha Melloul.

One of the most noted and interesting of the Algerian chiefs, who besides being a commander of the French Legion of Honor, holds several other decorations, photographed on a recent visit to Paris, where he went to see his sons, who are fighting at the front in the Algerian contingent for France.

SAVED BABY'S LIFE

Mrs. Jos. Desrosiers, St. Alphonse, Que., writes: "I cannot say too much in favor of Baby's Own Tablets, as they saved my little one's life. Before giving him the Tablets he was greatly troubled with worms and was like a skeleton and cried day and night. The Tablets soon expelled the worms, and now baby is the picture of health." Baby's Own Tablets also break up colds and simple fevers, cure constipation and indigestion and make the teething period painless. They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

"SINK EVERYTHING."

Wilhelm II.

To his dark minions undersea
Flashed the Imperial decree:
Sink Everything!
Spare naught! Sink everything that floats:
Merchantmen, liners, fishing boats;
Sink ships on Mercys' errand sped,
Dye Christ's red cross a deeper red:
Sink Everything!
Sink honor, faith, forbearance, ruth:
Sink virtue, chivalry, and truth,
Sink Everything!
Sink everything that men hold dear,
That devils hate, that cowards fear,
All that lifts Man above the ape,
That marks him cast in God's own shape:
Sink Everything!

Sore Eyes Granulated Eyelids, Eyes inflamed by exposure to Sun, Dust and Wind quickly relieved by Murine Eye Remedy. No Smarting, just Eye Comfort. At Your Druggist's 50c per Bottle. Murine Eye Salve in Tubes 25c. For Book of the Eye Free ask Druggists or Murine Eye Remedy Co., Chicago

A GREAT SAVING.

Economical Methods of Purchasing Supplies.

Nothing in municipal history excited more interest than the recent adoption by the City of New York of the C.P.R. method of purchasing supplies. New York orders for municipal purchases total $22,000,000 worth of good each year and found that there was much duplication and waste, some of the departments paying retail prices for the same goods as were purchased wholesale by others. Under the C.P.R. system everything is centralized so as to cut out the possibility of duplication either in purchase or payment of goods, while the terms are naturally all the more in favor of the railway. New York City sent a special investigator round the Continent to study methods of purchasing supplies, and he decided that the C.P.R. system was "the best for efficiency and saving." This was naturally the source of much gratification to Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, who was himself at one time purchasing agent for the C.P.R., and established the present system. The New York expert investigator has been busy ever since answering letters from other American municipalities. They pour in at the rate of about a hundred a week, all wanting to know about the C.P.R. and its model purchasing department, with a view to the adopting of similar methods in other cities. It has been calculated that the adoption of C.P.R. methods by American cities has saved Uncle Sam a waste of over a billion dollars.

She Soon Gained Forty Pounds

DAME BOUCHARD FOUND NEW HEALTH IN DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS.

Now She Is Advising All Her Friends Who Suffer From Kidney Disease to Use Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Portneuf, Hamilton Cove, Saguenay Co., Que., May 10th (Special).—Perfectly cured by the use of Dodd's Kidney Pills, Dame Rene Bouchard, well known and highly respected here, is advising all her friends who suffer from Kidney disease to use Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"When I commenced to take Dodd's Kidney Pills, I was so run down I only weighed eight pounds," Dame Bouchard states. "I only took four boxes in all but they brought me back to health and now I weigh one hundred and twenty pounds. You may publish what I say if you wish, for Dodd's Kidney Pills have done wonders for me."

Dodd's Kidney Pills do wonders for run-down people because they cure the Kidneys. Cured Kidneys strain all the impurities, all the poison, out of the blood and the pure blood carries new nourishment, health and life, to all parts of the body. That's why so many people say, "Dodd's Kidney Pills gave me a new lease of life."

Why Grass Is Green.

Doubtless many have wondered why the vegetation of the earth is mostly green. That is—not what makes it green, but why it is that color instead of blue or red or purple.

Moisture, it has been found, will be collected by the green foliage in proper quantities while foliage of other colors will not be properly nourished by the dews and moisture from earth and atmosphere.

A rather curious experiment proves this.

Paint a piece of glass yellow, another green and one red and one black, and place all these painted pieces of glass out in the open air over night during a summer or autumn night.

When examined early the following morning it will be found that the yellow piece will be very wet and the green piece only moist, while the red and black pieces will be dry.

This is proof that yellow foliage would collect too much dampness, and the red and black would gather none. Green, which collects the medium amount of moisture, seems to be the color best adapted to the conditions existing throughout the earth.

Yellow foliage has been known to damp off and decay under the same conditions that make green foliage thrive.

A few yellow leaved plants are grown under considerable difficulty under ordinary weather conditions.

Sore Corns Go! Absolutely Painless. No cutting, no plasters or pads to press the sore spot. Putnam's Extractor makes the corn go without pain. Takes out the sting over-night. Never fails—leaves no scar. Get a 25c. bottle of Putnam's Corn Extractor to-day.

POPULAR PEOPLE.

Bright Items About Men and Women of the Moment.

Can women keep a secret? Ask Mrs. Despard, sister of General French, and Mrs. Parker, sister of Lord Kitchener, to talk about the war, and then you will be in no doubt as to the answer.

German caricaturists are fond of representing Sir Edward Grey as having a thin, hooked nose. As a matter of fact, he has a straight, finely-shaped nose, full and beautifully modelled.

People who think it strange that Mr. Churchill should have been in the trenches at Antwerp forget that in his time has done at least five years' active soldiering, and had no fewer than three narrow escapes from death.

Admiral Beatty, the pavement artists declare, is the best draw for their purposes. In the first three months of the war Lord Kitchener was their "star" picture; in the second three months Sir John French took his place; now it is all the admiral who made the German battleships turn tail.

Our great men all seem to have a weakness for a particular word or phrase. Mr. Asquith, for instance, is partial to the word "settled," and is continually speaking of the "settled" policy or "settled" conviction of the country. Sir John French likes the phrase "make good"—used notably in the historic order "make good the Aisne."

How to age gracefully is well illustrated in the case of Lord St. Aldwyn, who has just been elevated to the rank and dignity of an earl. For all his seventy-eight years, he is as straight as a die in his walk, and can keep pace with men fifty years his junior. He is still remembered as "Black Michael," though the jet-black beard that earned him this sobriquet is today white as snow.

Wandsworth is the largest borough in London. Holborn is the smallest.

Ask for Minard's and take no other.

Disappointing the Gleaners.

"I wanter 'ave a tooth drawn," said the youngster with the pugnacious face, "and I want gas."

"Tut! tut!" murmured the dentist. "You're not old enough for gas. And I see you're not afraid of a little pain. Be a man!"

"'Tisn't that," runs a British weekly's version of the story, "but I expect just at the end I'll give a little bit of a squeal."

"Oh, that won't matter," the dentist replied. "I shan't mind."

"No," retorted the boy, "but I shall. Just you look out of the window."

The dentist turned to look out, and saw a group of grinning lads standing close by his window.

"Well!" he asked his youthful patient. "What does that mean?"

"Those are all the kids I've fought and licked," explained the boy, "and they've all followed me here just to hear me holler. Gimme gas!"

How Watt Was Paid.

James Watt, the great engineer, during his apprenticeship in London, had to live on 8s. a week, and found it difficult. For his work on the model of the Newcomen engine he was paid £5 11s., and for the supervision of the construction of a bridge at Hamilton he was paid £7, his offer being less than that of Smeaton, who offered to do the work for £10. For his work as superintendent of the Monkland Canal he received £200 per annum, and for his survey of the proposed Strathmore Canal he received the sum £50—not much, when the nature of the work, a survey of forty days, is considered.

Pleurisy Pains Vanish! Chest Colds Cured!

NERVILINE HAS NEVER FAILED TO CURE

Don't Suffer!

Nerviline is your relief.

Nerviline just rubbed on, lots of it, will ease that drawn, tight feeling over your ribs, will destroy the pain, will have you smiling and happy in no time.

"I caught cold last week while motoring," writes F. T. Mallery, from Linden. "My chest was full of congestion, my throat was mighty sore, and I had the fiercest stitch in my side you could imagine. As a boy I was accustomed to have my mother use Nerviline for all our minor ailments, and remembering what confidence she had in Nerviline, I sent out for a bottle at once. Between noon and eight o'clock I had a whole bottle rubbed on, and then got into a perspiration under the blankets. This drove the Nerviline in good and deep, and I woke up next morning fresh as a dollar and absolutely cured. Nerviline is now always part of my travelling kit, and I will never be without it."

The large 50c. family size bottle is the most economical, or you can easily get the 25c. trial size from any dealer.

He Stuttered.

"How do you like my new fence?"

"I'd like it better if the pickets were an equal distance apart. Why did you build it like that?"

"The only man I could get to build it stuttered."

Keep Minard's Liniment in the house.

That's Another Story.

He—"At a football dinner a man got up and left the table because some one told a story he didn't approve of."

She—"Oh, how noble of him! What was the story?"

I cured a horse of the Mange with MINARD'S LINIMENT. CHRISTOPHER SAUNDERS. Dalhousie.

I cured a horse, badly torn by a pitch fork, with MINARD'S LINIMENT. St. Peters, C. B. EDW. LINLIEF.

I cured a horse of a bad swelling by MINARD'S LINIMENT. Bathurst, N.B. THOS. W PAYNE.

Graciousness of Life.

Life is wonderfully gracious to us. It brings so many opportunities of recovery, so many chances of escape. But if we consistently reject them they inevitably diminish in number. Even if they did not the momentum of your own habits would rush you past them as life grew on. That tendency to resentment, that habit of retaliation, the disposition of enmity is growing upon you.

Zam Buk is the herb remedy known for blisters, heat, rashes, cooping, sore feet, chaps, cuts, ulcers. A skin food. All Druggists and Stores—Zam-Buk.

Will Quickly Cure Any Sour Stomach

Relieves Fulness After Meals.

"When I was working around the farm last winter, I had an attack of inflammation," writes Mr. E. P. Dawkins, of Port Richmond. "I was weak for a long time, but well enough to work until spring. But something went wrong with my bowels for I had to use salts or physic all the time. My stomach kept sour, and always after eating there was pain and fulness, and all the symptoms of intestinal indigestion. Nothing helped me until I used Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Instead of hurting, like other pills, they acted very mildly, and seemed to heal the bowels. I did not require large doses to get results with Dr. Hamilton's Pills, and feel so glad that I have found a mild yet certain remedy. To-day I am well—no pain, no sour stomach, a good appetite, able to digest anything. This is a whole lot of good for one medicine to do, and I can say Dr. Hamilton's Pills are the best pills, and my letter, I am sure, proves it."

Refuse a substitute for Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butternut, sold in yellow boxes, 25c. All dealers, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

Lost His Equilibrium.

"Cholly seems to be unbalanced."

"Yes. His valet failed to part his hair exactly in the middle."

Minard's Liniment Lumberman's Friend.

The period from one full moon to another is 29 days, 12 hours, and 44.4 minutes

Minard's Liniment used by Physicians.

Another Poser.

"Oh, Tommy, don't ask so many foolish questions," said his father.

"If it were so very foolish you could answer it, couldn't you?" asked Tommy.

MISCELLANEOUS.

CANCER, TUMORS, LUMPS, ETC., internal and external, cured without pain by our home treatment. Write us before too late. Dr. Hellman Medical Co., Limited, Collingwood, Ont.

SEED POTATOES.

EARLY IRISH COBBLER POTATOES, specially selected and Government inspected seed. Only limited quantity. Price, One Dollar per bushel f.o.b. Brampton. Also Commissioner's Prize and Prize Rose, two excellent main crop potatoes. Price, Two Dollars per bushel. Special price per bag for large quantity. Cash must accompany all orders. R. W. Dawson, Brampton.

NEWSPAPERS FOR SALE.

PROFIT-MAKING NEWS AND JOB OFFICE for sale in good Ontario town. The most useful and interesting of all businesses. Full information on application to Wilson Publishing Company, 73 West Adelaide St., Toronto.

KERMATH Marine Engines

"America's Standard 4 Cycle Marine Motor"

Write for Catalog. Kermath Mfg. Co., 1361 Hart St., Detroit, Mich. Kermath Mfg. Co., Dept. Detroit, Mich.

HAWK BICYCLES

An up-to-date High Grade Bicycle fitted with Roller Chain, New Departure Coaster Brake and Hubs, Detachable Tires, high grade equipment, including Mudguards, $22.50 Prime, and Tools for FREE 1915 Catalogue, 70 pages of Bicycles, Sundries, and Repair Material. You can buy your supplies from us at Wholesale Prices.

T. W. BOYD & SON, 37 Notre Dame St. W. of, Montreal.

CUTTEN & FOSTER

AUTO AND BOAT TOPS

Ford owners write for our catalogue.

SEARS-CROSS

Speedometer Station. 179 Queen Street West, TORONTO, - ONT.

Canoes, Skiffs, Motor Boats

THE PETERBOROUGH LINE.

If any canoe can give you satisfaction, it is a "PETERBOROUGH." Always and ever the acme of service, model, strength and finish. Over fifty styles and sizes. Write for catalogue. The latest canoe is the Peterborough canvas covered. Ask for illustrated folder. Skiffs for the popular Outboard Motors. Power Launches, all sizes and powers. Get folders telling all about these.

THE PETERBOROUGH CANOE COMPANY, LIMITED, PETERBOROUGH, ONT.

"Overstern" V Bottom Motor Boat $55.00

Freight Prepaid to any Railway Station in Ontario. Length 18 Ft., Beam 3 Ft. 9 In., Depth 1 Ft. 6 In. ANY MOTOR FITS.

Specification No. 18 giving engine prices on request. Get our quotations on—"The Penetang Line" Commercial and Pleasure Launches, Row boats and Canoes.

THE GIDLEY BOAT CO., LIMITED, PENETANG, CAN.

MEALS ARE NEVER LATE

WHEN you have a NEW PERFECTION Oil Cookstove to help you with the Cooking.

It lights at the touch of a match—like gas, adjusts instantly, high or low, by merely raising or lowering the wick. It means "gas stove comfort with kerosene oil."

NEW PERFECTION Oil Cookstoves are made in 1, 2, 3, and 4 burner sizes; if your dealer cannot supply you, write us direct.

ROYALITE OIL GIVES BEST RESULTS

NEW PERFECTION OIL COOKSTOVES

"NOW SERVING 2,000,000 HOMES"

THE IMPERIAL OIL COMPANY Limited

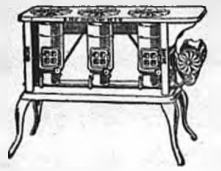
BRANCHES IN ALL CITIES

Made in Canada

House-Cleaning Supplies

SINCLAIR'S

The Hardware Store of Better Values



Vacuum Cleaner for Rent 50c per Day

Lawn Mowers

IT'S EASY WITH A GOOD MOWER

$4.00 to $5.50

"New Perfection" Oil Stoves

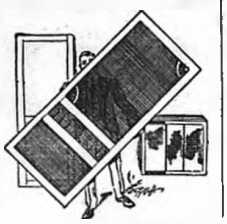
Are durable, simple in operation, and suitable for all kinds of cooking the year round. Especially popular in summer because they keep the kitchen cool and clean.

Made with 1, 2, 3 and 4 Burners

From stock—2-Burner, $8; 3-Burner, $11

Ovens, $2.50 and $3

"Stop the fly's unwholesome buzz,
Handsome is as handsome does."



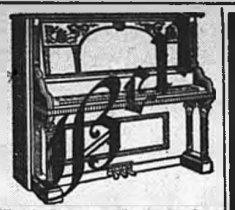
Price of DOORS

$2.25, $2.50, $2.90, $3.25, $3.50 complete with Hinges, etc.

WINDOWS priced at 15c, 25c, 30c, 35c, 40c and 60c

FLY SWATTERS, 10 CENTS

"The fly disseminates disease,
So therefore you should swat:
Unswatted flies are very bad,
But swatted flies are not."



Seeds Seeds Seeds

MANGLE, RAPE, TURNIP AND CORN At the Best Prices.

Bruce 'Phone 11

Sinclair's Hardware

Bell 'Phone 30

Travel where you will—in Canada or abroad—you find the

BELL PIANO

a leader in the realm of music.

If you would have the best, it must be a BELL.

Sewing Machines, Phonographs and Records

Records on sale at A. T. Bounthen's store

Full information for the asking from

PETER McKINNON, Agt., Paisley

—Mr. Frank McLennon, of Glamis, had his existence varied one day lately by a somewhat perilous as well as ludicrous escapade while driving to Cargill with a cow and a sheep in his wagon. The bovine took fright and in her excitement broke the halter by which she was tied, leaped out of the rack and ran homeward at a pace that would do credit to a road equine. The poor sheep suffered death in attempting to make the same getaway as the cow. It reached the ground, but was kicked to death by the horses. The team bad by this time caught the excitement, and they proceeded to make a record run into Cargill, but were caught just before entering the village. The driver is reported to have either been thrown out or fell out, but escaped with a whole skin, which is fortunate enough amid such circumstances. Team and wagon came through without damage.

—We would advise the family that makes a practise of singing "Die Wacht am Rhein" to cut it out until the feelings of Canadians against the murderous methods of the Kaiser's submarines have been somewhat allayed. We disapprove of the methods used in Victoria, B.C., on law abiding citizens, but with the feeling caused by the sinking of the Lusitania there might be facial trouble right in Chesley, and it could easily be avoided by those who have been injudiciously singing the German national song, refraining from it until the people of British origin have had time to cool off.—Chesley Enterprise.

CASTORIA

For Infants and Children

In Use For Over 30 Years

Always bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher

—Last week Reeves Brown of Chesley, McNab of Walkerton, Kastner of Wiarton, accompanied by Reeve Whicher and the councillors of Albemarle made a trip through the township to see if their claim for a reduction in valuation should be granted. It is claimed that there are about 5000 acres of good tillable land in the township and the balance, which is largely bush, has greatly depreciated since the wind storm of Good Friday, 1913, and the fires a few years ago. The deputation evidently were impressed that Albemarle's claim is reasonable.—Wiarton Echo.

Sheep Killed by Dogs

Early on Sunday morning Mr Jacob Lowes, of the 2nd con Arran, had three sheep and four lambs killed by dogs. His neighbor, Mr Archie McDermid, had 13 sheep and lambs killed the same day by the dogs. This is a considerable loss to these men, and the dogs that did the killing should be done away with.—Tara Leader.

WOMAN IN TERRIBLE STATE

Finds Help in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Cape Wolfe, Canada.—"Last March I was a complete wreck. I had given up all hope of getting better or living any length of time, as I was such a sufferer from female troubles. But I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and today I am in good health and have a pair of twin boys two months old and growing finely. I surprised doctors and neighbors for they all know what a wreck I was.

"Now I am healthy, happy and hearty, and owe it all to Lydia E. Pinkham's remedies. You may publish this letter if you like. I think if more women used your remedies they would have better health."—Mrs. J. T. Coor, Lot No. 7, Cape Wolfe, P.E.I., Canada.

Because your case is a difficult one, and doctors having done you no good, do not continue to suffer without giving Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. It surely has remedied many cases of female ills, such as inflammation, ulceration, displacements, tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, and it may be exactly what you need.

The Pinkham record is a proud and peerless one. It is a record of constant victory over the obstinate ills of women—ills that deal out despair. It is an established fact that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has restored health to thousands of such suffering women. Why don't you try it if you need such a medicine?

The City Bakery

Is always ready to supply your needs. Why worry and melt over a hot fire? We are here to do your Baking for you. Let us try.

Other than baking we try to keep a fresh supply of Greens and Fruit on hand—as well as a full stock of Fresh Groceries.

We would appreciate it if the public would make their purchases early on Thursdays as it is impossible for us to maintain a strict observance of the Thursday half-holiday on account of our Ice Cream Parlor which will be open every Thursday evening.

We need your trade. Butter and Eggs for Cash or Trade, Dutch Set Onions for sale.

Bruce and Bell 'Phones

F. S. McLACHLAN

Buy High-Grade Flour

Direct From the Mill

MAKE the best bread and pastry you've ever tasted. Prices of flour and feeds are listed below. Orders may be assorted as desired. On shipments up to 5 bags buyer pays freight charges. On shipments over 5 bags we will prepay freight to any station in Ontario east of Sudbury and South of North Bay. West of Sudbury and New Ontario add 15 cents per bag. Prices are subject to market changes. Cash with orders.

Cream of the West Flour

the hard wheat flour guaranteed for bread

GUARANTEED FLOURS	Per 98-lb. bag
Cream of the West (for bread)	$4.05
Toronto's Pride (for bread)	3.80
Queen City (blended for all purposes	3.70
Monarch (makes delicious pastry)	3.70
FEED FLOURS
Tower	2.00
CEREALS
Cream of the West Wheatlets (per 6-lb bag)	.35
Norwegian Rolled Oats (per 90-lb. bag)	3.40
Family Cornmeal (per 98-lb. bag)	2.30
FEEDS	Per 100-lb. bag
Ballmah Bran	$1.40
Ballmah Middlings	1.50
Extra White Middlings	1.62½
Crushed Oats	2.40
Cracked Corn	2.85
Barley Meal	2.05
Geneva Feed (Crushed Corn, Oats and Barley)	2.35
Oil Cake Meal (old process)	2.15
Cotton Seed Meal	2.05

These prices are not guaranteed for any length of time owing to the unsettled condition of the market.

Every bag of Flour ordered entitles purchaser to two bags of bran or middlings at 10c. per bag less than the prices given above. Special prices to farmers' clubs and others buying in carload lots.

You can get a free copy of "Ye Old Millers Household Book" (formerly Dominion Cook Book) if you buy three bags of flour. This useful book contains 1,000 carefully selected recipes and a large medical department. If you already have the former edition (Dominion Cook Book) you may select one book from the following each time you order from us not less than three bags of flour. If you buy six bags you get two books, and so on. Enclose 10 cents for each book to pay for postage. Remember at least 3 bags must be flour:

— BOOKS —

Helen's Babies	Beautiful Joe
Laddie	Little Women and Good Wives
Mill on the Floss	The Story of an Alsatian Farm
Tom Brown's School Days	Black Beauty
Adam Bede	Quo Vadis
David Harum	The Three Musketeers
Innocents Abroad	The Mighty Atom
Believers of Sunnybrook Farm	Mr. Pocket of Texas
The Lilac Sunbonnet	Jess
The Scarlet Pimpernel	A Welsh Singer

The Campbell Flour Mills Company Ltd. (West) Toronto

Steele's for

Horse Collars, Sweat Pads, Rubber Lap Rugs, Whips, Auto Plush Rugs, Star Harness Soap, Bickmore's Gall Cure, Axle Grease

Our Harness includes quality, durability, appearance and high class workmanship found in no other makes of Harness.

Baggage Trunks, Suit Cases, Club Bags, Grips. Good assortment and close prices.

Harness parts and Repairing our Specialty

J. H. STEELE

Many Colleges Close for Vacation of mildsummer. Our College does not.

ELLIOTT Business College

TORONTO — ONT.

is strictly first-class. None better in Canada. Catalogue free. Enter any time during the early fall. One graduate writes: "My new position pays three times what I got at teaching school less than four years ago, just previous to entering your College. Was placed this young man in a position after graduation, and have now placed him again. Catalogue free.

W. J. ELLIOTT, Principal, Cor. Yonge and Charles Streets.

W. H. BAKER

Having opened a shop in Sinclair's old hardware building, Queen St. North, we are prepared to do all kinds of

Sign and Carriage Painting

HOUSE DECORATING AND PAPER-HANGING, as usual. Prices right.

R. T. ROBINSON

CARPENTER AND CONTRACTOR

ESTIMATES furnished for the erection of any class of building. Large or small contracts undertaken.

Address Chesley or Cargill P.O

ROBT. IRVING

PLASTERER

SEE Robt. Irving the Plasterer before letting any work in this line. Separate estimates for all kinds of plastering, or with Jas Dewar for whole contracts for erection of buildings.

PURDY'S LIVERY

Rates Reasonable, and every effort made to satisfy

F. PURDY

—Clubbing rates with all the city dailies and weeklies.

EBENEZER

Work on the erection of the new church shed is to be commenced next week. A cement mixer is engaged to facilitate the construction of walls, while the work will be done principally by men of the locality giving their team and labor free.

The baseball club has re-organized for the summer. Dright Potts is president; Sec'y, Les Winch; Treas, Art Rushton; manager, Rich Grant; Capt., Earl Grant. The boys will have regular practice on Monday and Friday evenings. Pitcher Potts is in splendid form, his arm strong, and it looks like a good team with the support that will be given from all points of the field. In Charlie Thomas they will have a good spare slab artist. Other teams anxious for a match with Dunblane will be accommodated on short notice.

The Ebenezer garden party date is fixed for June 17th.

Messrs Lewis Grant and Neil Potts visited friends at Cluny on Sunday.

Miss Gertie McFadden spent a few days in town last week.

Mr Earl Grant spent Sunday at Arkwright.

Mr Chas Thomas is having an artesian well drilled. The drill is now down 300 feet, but no water yet.

Mr and Mrs H T Potts have returned to Tara, after spending a fortnight with their son on the old homestead.

Mr and Mrs J H McFadden spent Sunday at Mr J Bannerman's, near Paisley.

Mr and Mrs F Quigley were in Port Elgin on Monday, visiting her sister there.

Mr Robt McKay has the walls of his new cement house completed. Irwing & Mitchell, of Paisley, have the mason work contract.

GLAMIS

A lecture on the war, illustrated by over 100 limelight views, will be given by Rev Thos Wilson of Walkerton, in St Paul's church, Glamis, on Thursday evening, May 27th. Admission — adults 15c, children 10c.

The many friends of Mrs Donald McKinnon, on the 10th, will be sorry to hear that she is seriously ill.

Miss Dewar, from Tiverton, visited her friend, Miss Reta McKinnon, on Saturday and Sunday.

Mr McCauley is spending this week at his home in Tara.

Mr J Stewart, B A, of Victoria College, Toronto, preached for the Baptists on Sunday night.

Miss Elizabeth McLennan, of Paisley, spent the week end with Miss Mary Webb at her home here.

Mr W J Graham's new house is under construction. Irving & Mitchell, of Paisley, are the builders.

Mrs Woodstock has returned to her home here, after spending the winter with friends in Ripley and Kincardine.

Miss Minnie Howson is spending a few days at Dr Black's in Paisley.

Mrs Angus McGregor, of Kincardine, is visiting her son, Mr Rich McGregor.

UNDERWOOD

Messrs Simon Roppel and Herb Lukster were down to Orangeville last week on an auto trip.

Mr Carl Murray is home from Toronto on a visit to his mother, Mrs H Murray, who is just recovering from a severe fall she had some time ago.

Mr Wesley Johnson had a rather exciting runaway last week. Luckily no one was hurt and very little damage done. The team, being left alone for a moment in the barnyard, got startled some way and ran out to the road and up the 6th to Underwood, turning onto the sidewalk in front of Roppel Bros', smashing a post and narrowly missing the window. Getting rid of the wagon then, they ran up to Alex Begg's, where, one going on each side of a tree, they were stopped and caught, apparently none the worse of their run.

CARGILL

Lieutenant G S Haumore, who is in the Remount Barracks at St John's, Que, is home on a few days' leave of absence.

Mr Harvey Grice has purchased a new Ford touring car.

Mr C W Keeling spent the week end in Listowel with Mrs Keeling, who returned with him on Monday.

Misses Pearl and Ruth Nablo, who have been visiting their sister, Mrs W J Fiddes here, are returning to their home in Cayuga on Wednesday morning.

Some of the Eden Grove sports played baseball with our fans here on Saturday afternoon. Our boys were victorious, the score being 13-7 in their favor.

GRESHAM

Chesley and Underwood ministers exchanged pulpits on Sunday last.

We are pleased to learn that Mrs A Pace is better and able to be around again.

Seeding is pretty well through in this section. Some of the farmers are kept quite busy picking the caterpillar tents off their apple trees. The profusion of fruit bloom gives promise of an abundant crop this year.

Children Cry

FOR FLETCHER'S

CASTORIA

THE WESTERN FAIR

September 10th to 18th

The Western Fair of London, Ontario, will maintain its reputation this year as being one of the best Live Stock Exhibitions of the Dominion of Canada. Live stock exhibitors are always loud in their praises of the treatment they receive at London and the amount of business they do there. Buyers are always plentiful, surrounded as London is by the best agricultural district of Canada. Although large cash additions have been made to the prize list for the past three years, this year will surpass them all, when $3000 will be added to the Live Stock and Poultry Departments. This has been made possible through the generous assistance of the Dominion Government. The amount has been distributed throughout the different classes and some new classes and sections added, which will be of special interest to the farmers and live stock breeders. The prize lists will soon be ready for distribution. Send to the Secretary, A. M. Hunt, London, Ont., for prize list or any information regarding the Exhibition.

WALKERTON

Mr Roy B Whitehead, eldest son of Mr and Mrs James Whitehead here, and Stanley M Scott of Perth, son of Judge and Mrs J H Scott, formerly of Walkerton, are amongst the list of successful candidates who passed their final examinations in law. As a consequence they are now full-fledged lawyers.

James Barry, eldest son of Mr and Mrs Wm Barry of Dunkeld, who was seriously wounded while fighting in the ranks of the 28th Highlanders at the battle of Langemarck, hasn't died as a result of his wounds, as was currently reported here this week. The telegram to his parents, which told of his wounding, stated that in case of his death a wire would be sent them. As no such message has yet been received it is presumed that he is recovering.

A lady came to town the other day to purchase a new spring hat, and brought along a basket containing five dozen eggs with which to make the purchase. While stepping along the sidewalk dreaming of the poem in headgear which would shortly adorn her apex, she made a mis-step and went overboard. After adjusting herself to the normal and counting up she found just 21 entire eggs left from the five dozen and the purchase had to be postponed until the hens had time to produce another basketful. It is best not to count your millinery until your eggs are in the merchant's egg bin.

At a trial here last Monday when it was proposed to try a man's sanity on the testimony of his neighbors, a local lawyer objected on the ground that it would be unfair to anybody to have to depend on the neighbors' opinion of their mentality in order to keep out of the asylum. And how true in this! How many now roaming at large would be occupying a padded cell if what their neighbors thought of them could prevail? Probably most people are foolish, but seldom are they so loony as their neighbors appear to think. Few people would be out of the bug house if it were left for their neighbors to vouch for their wisdom. It was decided in this case to let two Walkerton doctors examine the sanity of the man, and not leave him to the tender mercies of his neighbors.

A German, who is said to have acted rather jubilant in Durham over the loss of the Lusitania, ran foul of an Englishman on Monday who badly beat him up for upholding a crime that nearly all the world condemns. The town constable later took the man in charge and ran him in jail. It is possible that he will later be interned. Although we personally haven't seen any instances, yet there are said to be some in Walkerton who are openly gloating over recent British reverses and Canadian losses at the front, and it might be well to warn such that as a result of the dastardly sinking of the Lusitania, which has greatly incensed the whole empire, that the British Government has practically decided to not only arrest all aliens and German sympathizers found in its domains, but to confiscate their property as well.

Miss M Desmond, of Eden Grove, received her diploma as a full-fledged nurse on Monday afternoon from St Michael's hospital, Toronto, where she has been training for the past three years.

Mr Beston Wells had a runaway last week. While closing Mr Wm Lamb's gate the horse started off and running under a low hanging tree tore the top off the rig and freed itself from the buggy, when it scampered over the scenery with only the harness in tow until it was finally captured.

Private Austin Gransden, who was the only man that enlisted at Walkerton with the first contingent that got to the front, has died from wounds received about ten days ago at the battle of Langemarck. Gransden was an orphan and was raised by his aunt, Mrs John Foster of Brant. For several years he worked at the blacksmith business here. When war broke out Gransden with ten others enrolled at the Walkerton armory for service, but on arrival at Valcartier the rest were either rejected for physical defects or despatched to Bermuda for service, leaving him the only one of the local eleven to cross over to the war. Although many other Walkerton boys are fighting in the ranks of various regiments at the front, Gransden is so far the only one to fall in battle. He is about 20 years of age and unmarried.—Herald and Times.

—Clubbing rates with all the city dailies and weeklies.

The Paisley Advocate.

D. McKENZIE, Publisher
Vol. 47—No. 21

PAISLEY, ONTARIO, MAY 27, 1915.

$1.00 per Annum in Advance
1.25 if not so paid

Grand Opening of Summer Goods!

We have now on display a full range of Summer Novelties, such as are seen on Fifth Avenue, New York. They include Embroidered Voiles, plain and flowered Crepes, the new Silk Poplin in all shades, the fashionable black and white striped Muslins, Vestings, etc. We have the well known Vivyella Cloth in all shades—the cloth that washes without fading or shrinking. These novelty dress goods are carried in dress lengths only, making them exclusive.

In our staple department you will find a complete stock of Factory Cottons, Cambrics, Lonsdales, Madapalams, Longcloths, Bridalcloths, etc, also Curtain Scrims, plain and flowered Voiles, Bungalow Nets, Reversible Cretonnes, Art Sateens, Ginghams, Repps, Galateas, Shirtings, etc.

Before purchasing come in and look over our Men's, Ladies' and Children's Shoes. We have added several new lines, including Oxfords and Pumps of the latest designs. Our Pumps are made over pump lasts, not over a shoe last, as a great many pumps are, so you will find they fit the feet.

In our Men's Furnishings you will find a new stock of Men's and Boys' Straw Sailors, Felt Hats, Shirts, Ties, Sox, etc. Perhaps there never was a time when better values were offered in Men's Clothing than right now, even with conditions so uncertain. They are made of strong English and Canadian cloths in medium and dark patterns, light and dark Grey and Browns. The coats are 3-buttoned, single-breasted, sack style, lined with strong Italian cloth; the vests close with 5 buttons; the trousers are extra strongly made and sewn. We have them all prices.

We sell the famous "Niagara Maid" Silk Gloves the pure silk that gives long wear, the high-class workmanship, the perfect fit and the guaranteed double tip.

Fresh Groceries Every Week

Highest Prices Paid for Farm Produce

Wool Wanted! 10,000 lbs. Wool wanted, for which we will pay highest price in Cash or Trade.

M. J. CAMPBELL
W. H. McFarlane's Old Stand : : Paisley

New Spring Suitings

See our goods and styles before buying. We have a large stock to choose from.

We Make a Specialty of . . .
Ladies' Tailoring

No trying on or worrying. Just leave your measure and we will attend to the rest. All the newest goods and latest styles from which to make your selection. Satisfaction guaranteed.

I. S. Cruickshank

Bonathan's Ice Cream Parlor

Now open and equipped to furnish you with all that is tempting and delicious in the way of Cool Drinks and Refreshments on a summer day or evening. Plain Ice Cream or Sundaes served in the parlor, or we can fill your orders for Ice Cream Bricks to be delivered at your home just when you need them.

Hot or Cold Lunches Served on Request

Fresh Groceries Arriving Daily.

Fruits and Fresh Green Vegetables always on hand

We extend a cordial invitation to farmers and their wives when in town on a hot day to call and make our parlor a resting place, and enjoy the good music free of charge.

Both 'Phones. Goods delivered to all parts of the town.

High Cash Prices Paid for Farm Produce.

A. T. BONATHAN
Hyde's Old Stand : : Successor to W. S. Mitchell

—Private funds to loan.
D. FORRESTER.

—Wilkinson plows and repairs at F. Carter & Son's.

—Marriage licenses issued and money to loan. T. H. GEORGE.

—All lines of this season's millinery at half-price at Campbell's store.

—Good driving horse for sale, 7 years old. Monitor at Advocate office.

—This is embroidery season. We have a good lot of them. Ballachey, Laidlaw & Co.

—Full lines of fine engagement and wedding rings at I. Shoemaker's jewellery store.

—FOR SALE CHEAP—Top buggy, auto seat, steel tires; good as new. Apply to H. B. PUTNAM.

—Highest prices paid for hides and sheepskins. H. E. McGregor, Butcher, Steele Block.

—Ladies! Don't miss the chance to get a hat cheap. Reductions in all millinery. Ballachey, Laidlaw & Co.

—Highest price for beefhides, horsehides, calfskins, sheepskins, tallow, &c. P. OLTSHER, Paisley Meat Market.

—"Rough on Rats" clears out Rats, Mice, etc. Don't die in the house. 15c and 25c at drug and country stores.

—It's only a dollar, but it means a good deal to THE ADVOCATE if hundreds are slow in paying that on their subscription.

—Curtain nets in unlimited quantities. Let us show you. Ballachey, Laidlaw & Co.

—POSTPONED — The lecture in the Church of England is to be held to-night (Wednesday). Interesting and instructive. Everybody welcome.

—If you have a guest at your home, are going out of town for a visit, or know of any interesting news, kindly let us hear from you. We will always appreciate such favors.

—Just received at H Stevenson's an assortment of pipes that will surely please. Come and select your choice. Tobaccos, stationery, also our wonderful salve that cures burns and sores, soothing for burns.

—HOMESEEKERS' EXCURSIONS every Tuesday up to and including October to the Canadian Northwest. For tickets, rates, etc., apply at the Canadian Pacific Railway ticket office, W. H. McFarlane's old stand, Paisley.

—Five Roses, Rainbow, Purity, Cream of the West, and Stark's high-grade flours, also Bran and Shorts, Blatchford's Sugar and Flax, Caldwell's Molasses Meal, and full line of Poultry Foods and Tonics. Always in the market for coarse grains. E. G. ECKEL.

—SEEDS, SEEDS—We can supply everything that is wanted by the farmer or gardener for spring seeding and planting. Many seeds usually sold in packages can be bought from us in bulk at much better value, all from reliable growers. See us before ordering. E. G. ECKEL.

[illegible] floors of properly ventilated houses, public conveyances or public assembly rooms, we can drink of the good fresh atmosphere when we sleep.

Camping Out at Home.

The interest in outdoor sleeping has become keen. If you reside in an old-time house, make a sleeping apartment of the back porch. It is no trick at all, and you can rig up a fine little camp. The stores are well equipped to supply you.

Holiday Visitors

Miss Zeta Black from Durham.
Miss A. McLennan from Mildmay.
Mr. Melville McArthur from Toronto.
Miss Kate McKinnon from Hamilton.
Mr. Dunc. McKerracher from Hamilton.
Mr. Norman Sheppard, from Brantford.
Mr. and Mrs. Fred Foster, from Clifford.
Mrs. Jas. Hyde and granddaughter, Ola Irving from Toronto.
Miss Ethel Barnett from Wiarton, and Mr. Stanley Barnett from Arkona.
Mr and Mrs Bert Montgomery, of Southampton, at Mr Peter McLean's, Glamis.
Miss Beattie and Miss Smith, of Walkerton, at Mr. D. Johnston's, Con. A, Elderslie.
Miss Chisholm, of Brampton, visiting her brother, of the Continuation School staff.
—Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Parrish and son George, from Caledonia, at Mr. A. Galbraith's.
—Mr. and Mrs. A. McDowell, of Hamilton at the home of her father, Mr. W. C. Austead.
—Mr. and Mrs. Louden, of Toronto, at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Conn.

—County Council meets at Kincardine next week.

—Miss B. McKenzie was visiting in Toronto over the 24th.

—Mrs. R. J. Nelson visited her mother and other friends in the city over the holiday.

—Dr. Houston is in Peterboro this week attending a convention of medical health officers.

—A plaid rug lost on Sunday going from Paisley to 8th con. Greenock. Finder please leave at Dr Houston's.

—Mrs. Harry Rowley, of Highland Grove, is here on a visit at the home of her mother, Mrs. A. McKenzie.

—Mr and Mrs Henry Reed announce the engagement of their daughter, Lily M., to Mr W W Cook of Toronto.

—Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Fullerton, of Gresham, were visiting Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Ross at Vivemount for a few days.

—Tiverton loses an old and valued citizen by the departure of Mr. R N Blair, conveyancer and real estate agent, who is removing with his family to London.

—A beekeepers' field day will be held in the apiary of Mr. Wm. Rowand, lot 42, con 2, N.D.R., on Wednesday, June 9th, at 1 30 p.m.

—Mrs. Wilson, of Toronto, was on visiting her parents over the 24th, and was accompanied by her sister Hilda on her return to the city.

—Mr. Thos. McBeath, of Goldie St., is visiting in Guelph for a couple of weeks. Miss Sarah McBeath accompanied him and remained over the holiday.

—The promotion of Junior Judge A. B. Klein to be senior Judge of Bruce county, which has been gazetted, is an appointment that is universally approved by the people of the county. A. M. Gregg from Almonte, is to be junior judge.

—Mr. Geo. C. McIntyre, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. McIntyre, of Paisley, is among the medical students at Toronto University who are given their fifth year pass standing without examination in recognition of medical services rendered at the military camp at Toronto during the last few months.

—The 24th was a very quiet day in town. Business places were closed, and a large proportion of our citizens hied themselves to Hanover, Chesley, Southampton or Guelph to take in the celebrations there. The lacrosse team played an exhibition game with the local team at Hanover.

—The W C T U will meet in Putnam's Hall on Friday afternoon, May 28th, at 3 o'clock. It is very necessary that all the members be present to make preparations for the convention which will be held in June. A cordial invitation is extended to all ladies interested in this work.

—Bell Bros. had a new barn raised on their farm near the brick yards on Friday. There was the old-time "raisin' bee," with several scores of men lending their strength to putting up the bents. We are told that Dr. Thos O'Hagan contemplates writing a tale of early days in Bruce, and was there to refresh his memory as to occurrences at such occasions in the good old times that are long past.

—The heavy downpour of rain on Friday last flooded our streets very badly in places just because of the poor drainage and small openings through which the water passes towards the river. In future when repairs or improvements become necessary at these places it would be wise to have the alterations made on a more adequate scale. It should be possible to put in a cement curb drain along main St. that would carry all surface water along a distinct channel instead of allowing it to spread all over the scenery, carrying mud and filth onto sidewalks.

—The Women's Auxiliaries of the Church of England in the County of Bruce will hold their annual convention in the Church of the Ascension (Paisley) on Tuesday, June 1st. Two sessions will be held at 3 p.m. and 8 p.m. Mrs. (Rev. Dr.) Sage of London, President of the Diocesan W.A., will speak at the afternoon meeting and the Rev. C. H. Shortt, returned Missionary from Wakato, Japan, at the evening session. The ladies of the Missionary Societies in the various churches are invited to the afternoon meeting and the public are specially invited to come and learn something about Japan in the evening. Offerings for Missionary work will be taken up.

—THE ADVOCATE office has a splendid stock of wedding stationery and calling cards on hand, also the most beautiful styles of type, so we are able to turn out the finest lines of wedding invitations, announcements, cards, etc. We can do work fit to invite the best of people to a wedding, so why pay two or three times as much to city printers or engravers for something that isn't a whit better for the purpose? See our samples.

More's Wall Papers for 1915

Be wise in time and see our excellent aggregation of new and artistic effects in room decorations before purchasing your supply.

We have never shown a better range of Wall Paper or at more reasonable prices.

P. B. MORE .: Druggist

Established over Forty-one Years

THE STANDARD BANK OF CANADA

ASSETS OVER $46,000,000

The A, B, C of Banking

Joint Accounts are a Convenience.

Keep a Savings Account, and Get Your Money Accumulate.

We solicit your account in our SAVINGS DEPARTMENT

PAISLEY BRANCH

F. C. RYAN, Manager

Branches also at Harriston and Tiverton.

Paisley Meat Market

Fresh Beef, Pork, Mutton, Cured Hams, Bacon, etc. Salt Pork, Cooked Meats, Home-made Sausage (2 lbs. for 25c), Bologna and Headcheese. Kidney Suet. Poultry in season.

Cash for Hides and Skins . . . Bruce and Bell 'Phones

P. Oltsher

J. S. DEWAR

PAISLEY

Builder, Contractor and Cement Worker

Brick or cement buildings erected, brick work, cement work and plastering contracts taken.

Cement Supplies Furnished

Building Blocks, Window and Door Sills, Culvert Tile, Well Curbing, Lawn Rollers, Lawn Vases, Verandah Columns, Balusters and other fancy Cement Products.

Building Material

Cement, Lime, Lath, Shingles, Glazed Sewer Pipe and Flue Lining, Mortar Color, etc.

Large supply of

Oilcloths and Linoleums

just to hand

Now is the time to get your new supply, before they are picked over.

We have also a good assortment of Squares, and our prices can't be beaten. Give us a call before buying.

For good Butter and Eggs we pay the highest price in either CASH or TRADE . . .

Both 'Phones PUTNAM & SON

Came Through Unscathed

That he came through the fighting without a scratch is the pleasing news received by Mrs. Dan McNeill from her son Archie, who is with the 48th Highlanders of Toronto, in France. After the big engagement in which the Canadians made such a heroic stand, the 48th were out of the trenches for a few days to get into shape for further action. Archie says the gas used by the Germans fairly blinded and smothered the men. No troops could stand against it. He had just got a box from Britain containing cakes and chocolates, and was occupied in opening it when the order came to stand to. He dropped the box and had no chance to get back for it before they were obliged to retire. "I hope," he says, "that it chokes every German who gets any of it." Archie had not seen anything of Clayton Knechtel or other Southampton boys since he went to France. The 48th is part of the 15th Battalion. The letter was written on May 7 and addressed to Southampton, but forwarded to Paisley as Mrs. McNeill is at the home of her mother, Mrs. Wm. McBeth, Inkerman St.

—Why should a newspaper man be in the position that he can't buy a car? Because he is asked to give too much free boosting to everything. However, they are beginning to get wise and anything that gets someone else money, and is mentioned in the papers, has to be paid for.—Kincardine Reporter.

Suits to Order at $15.00

At the present time when everything is going up in price we are pleased to let you know we can give you a Suit in the latest style at the popular price of $15.00.

For Something Better

We have "Quality First" Imported Tweeds and Worsteds at $18.00 to $25.00 which are the best values, bar none, in Canada to-day and we invite an inspection of the new goods.

Ladies' Tailoring a Specialty

We Guarantee Satisfaction

G. B. IRWIN
Merchant Tailor and Furnisher

The Housewife's Corner

Tested Recipes.

Stuffed Cabbage.—Remove the centre of a nice sized cabbage and fill it with sausage meat and press some between the leaves. Tie securely in a cheese cloth and boil in salted water until the vegetable is tender, drain, then pour over it a cup of hot vinegar.

Swedish Buns. — When baking bread allow one pound for buns. Work in a tablespoonful of butter and then roll out one-quarter of an inch in thickness, spread with butter, then with a generous layer of sugar and dried currants, and sprinkle with cinnamon. Begin at one end and roll up. Cut into one inch slices. Place on buttered pan, to rise to twice their size. Bake and ice after removing from oven.

English Muffins.—Scald one pint of milk, add three tablespoonfuls of butter. When lukewarm add one cake of compressed yeast dissolved in warm water, and add half a teaspoonful of salt. Beat in flour to make a drop batter. Beat well and let rise for two hours. Heat and grease a dripping pan with muffin rings, half fill rings with batter. Place in moderate oven until brown.

French Blackberry Toast. — Put one cup of canned or stewed blackberries in a saucepan with a half cup of their juice, bring to the boiling point, thicken with one tablespoonful of flour which has been mixed smooth in two tablespoonfuls of cold water. Add a little nutmeg and some sugar, if necessary, and pour over six slices of dry toast, and serve hot.

Spanish Fruit Omelette. - Beat four yolks of eggs with four teaspoonfuls of fine sugar. Add a pinch of salt to the whites and beat until dry and firm. Pour the yolks over the whites, adding the grated rind of one orange and three tablespoonfuls of juice. Mix lightly. Cook in hot butter until firm. Spread with orange pulp, fold over and garnish with sections of orange and serve at once.

Butter-Klosse (for soup). Take a lump of butter the size of an egg and beat with two eggs until light, then stir in four tablespoonfuls of flour. Drop with a teaspoon into the boiling broth and cook for five minutes.

South Bramble. — One cup of butter, one cup of sugar, one cup of chopped raisins, one egg, and the grated rind and juice of a lemon. Mix together and cook in a double boiler. When cool, make pastry dough and roll out squares of rame, put some of the mixture in middle of each square and fold over edges to make them in turn over form. Bake.

Porto Rican Cheese. — Season cottage cheese with butter, salt and paprika. Pit large dates, fill cavities with the prepared cheese, pressing closely, so as to show but a little of the cheese. Use dark, rich dates.

Rhubarb Fool.—Stew a quart of rhubarb, sweeten, rub through a sieve, reheat and stir for ten minutes. When cold, stir in either three-quarters of a pint of custard or a half pint of cream. Beat all together and serve in a glass dish.

Rhubarb Dainties. — Scoop out the centre of small sponge cakes, saving the tops; fill with stewed and sweetened rhubarb, replace tops, cover all with custard, and serve ice cold. Use the cake left over for another dainty dessert.

Rhubarb Trifle.—Put a layer of crumbled-up cake into a glass dish; on this a layer of rhubarb sauce. Repeat until dish is almost full. Have last layer of cake; then cover with a pint of custard, let set and cover with whipped cream.

Kitchen Helps.

The best liniment for rheumatism is made by mixing one part turpentine and two of olive oil. It is also good for neuralgia.

All scraps of cold vegetables should be saved and fried together in dripping with a seasoning of pepper and salt and slices of cold tomato.

A stale loaf can be made as fresh as new if wrapped in a damp cloth for a couple of minutes and then placed in the oven for half an hour.

After peeling onions thrust the knife you have used once or twice into some earth, if possible. Afterwards wash it at once in boiling water and clean it on a knifeboard.

To keep suet in but water remove the membrane or skin from it while it is quite fresh, then sprinkle thoroughly with salt, tie in a bag, and hang in a cool place.

When steaming potatoes put a cloth over them before putting the lid on. They will take much less time to cook, and be much more mealy than when done in the ordinary way.

When boiling a pudding plenty of orange peel should be put into the water. It collects all the grease, making the pudding-cloth much easier to wash, and thus saving a great deal of both time and labor.

Suet puddings made with equal quantities of stale bread, soaked in cold water and squeezed dry in a cloth, and a little flour are cheaper and quite as nourishing as if made entirely with flour.

To reheat a cold joint place the cold joint under a tap of cold water and allow the water to run over it for three minutes. Then place in the oven to heat, and it will taste like a freshly cooked one.

In cake baking after greasing the cake-tin put it in the oven and allow the fat to boil. Then while it is boiling pour in the cake mixture. This makes the cake much lighter, and less butter or lard is required for greasing.

When butter is too dear shred a pound of kidney beef suet very finely, pound it well in an enamelled bowl and moisten with a little olive oil till it is of the consistency of butter. It is then ready for use and can be used for pastry or cakes. The results will be as good as if butter were used.

Canny Scot.

The following story is told by a Scottish Member of Parliament. The skipper of a trawler on naval patrol in the North Sea thought he would like some fish for breakfast, so he commenced operations. Soon up popped a German submarine close by. The skipper (from Aberdeen) was about to ram it and earn the prize money when the submarine's commander, not suspecting this evil intention, offered to buy some fish. So the canny Scot went alongside, sold his fish, and then rammed the submarine.

We Think So, Too.

"Charles, you're spending too much money this year. Too many dances, too many clothes, too many taxis, too many——"

"Well, father, I'll tell you how I look at it. It seems to me that every family ought to be able to support one gentleman."

The Turk's equivalent of our hand-shake greeting is to cross his hands on his breast and make an obeisance.

Precautions at British Hospital in France.

A disinfector used for the disinfecting of infectious clothes and bedding at the Duchess of Westminster's Hospital at the Casino, Paris Place, Le Touquet, France

BRITISH ARMY IN AFRICA

INVADES GERMAN COLONY AND ATTACKS MIRAGE.

Operate Over Endless Desert On One Gallon of Water a Day For Each Man.

Marches through absolute desert without water for washup purposes, deploying to attack a mirage—these are some of the experiences which face the British forces making a conquest of German South west Africa. But in spite of such handicaps the British

Have Made Good Progress,

have taken Swakopmund and are pressing on after the Germans. The experience of the troops is told by an officer in the Northern Force who writes to the London Times:—

"What a world of desolation is there! Not the benign dumbness of east England or Flanders, with tussocks of grass and scrub, but a heart numbing ocean of soft white sand hillows rising in places to a height of one thousand feet, and always melting and trekking and rolling up. There is not a living thing—plant, animal or insect—to be seen.

"Fearsome is the mirage here. At four hundred yards a man looks bulky as a horseman with fluid legs. At six hundred yards a whole regiment is lost in a shimmering lake or reeds lagoon. While trying to get in touch with the regiment which had landed at the settlement we became aware of lines and streams of fantastic horsemen, infantry and guns overflowing the dunes to our right front and apparently Coming to Attack Us.

"Our companies of Rand Rifles eagerly deployed and ran forward and it was not until we were within five hundred yards that we discovered we were out to fight the South African Irish, who had gone out too far to our left front. There were no guns or horses in the country.

Weary but Necessary Grind.

"Since those days of hourly expectation we have been on one colossal fatigue. First entrenching the bases, then building sea walls, then building a railway from Walfish to Swakopmund along the sea shore, guarding its construction, building sanding blockhouses at short intervals along its course and also, of course, outposts and patrols. A weary, if necessary, grind.

"The enemy have shown a most extraordinary lack of enterprise and have never once tried to hinder this railway so necessary to our advance, as Swakopmund is a very hopeless place at which to try and land all the heavy stores and impedimenta needed by our army. Now the railway has reached Swakopmund.

"General Botha landed recently with his well-equipped Burghers and long before you get this we shall have started our advance along the main railway to Windhoek. While in the gloomy hour before dawn we heard twenty-seven terrific reports in the direction of Swakopmund, twenty-two miles away. This was an absorbing mystery to all of us.

Standing to Arms

"It was not until two weeks later, when the Imperial Light Horse made a dash on Swakopmund in the night, that the explanation was forthcoming. The Germans in an attempt to hinder us, had blown up all the public works, piers, etc. Everything was gone, in fact, save the water tanks, which were left in order to poison the water and mine the approaches.

"It was just dawning on the morning after this same night ride of the Imperial Light Horse that we heard another series of reports. This time the explanation was quicker to come and was more tragic. Men and horses, blown to eternity by mines, the cost of taking Swakopmund. Since then the Germans have been in occupation of a position at Nonidas, within a mile of our outpost line at Swakopmund.

"There have been several little affairs of outposts and patrols and the explosion of

Newly Discovered Mines

has become so frequent that we hardly remark it now. As our advance posts are withdrawn at night the Germans occupy the position and frequently undermine some are been trapped and two were killed and three wounded. So a prompt reply was sent to say—'Many thanks, and we are doing nicely here. In a game we played against you this morning we scored two goals and three tries.'

"Water has been a pressing question with us ever since we landed. It is a good deal better now, but we still are limited to a gallon a man a day for all purposes. An extract from divisional orders reads:—'It has been observed that water has been used for washing purposes. This practice must cease immediately.'

"There has been a serious leakage of information through our lines which has defied every effort to stop it. The dash on Swakopmund was known to the Germans in plenty of time to allow everybody to clear out of the town the night before. The number of big guns, troops, etc., we landed were all known to them within a few hours. It is hardly possible for natives to pass our lines as the country is with no native population.

Such a Howling Desert,

"The only explanation that we can give is that we have some traitors in our midst, probably natives, who communicate with the Germans by means of dogs, great numbers of whose spoors we see on the sand dunes every morning. This is the height of the rainy season here, and in seven weeks I believe we have had almost one-tenth of an inch of rain, nearly half the total annual rainfall.

"A little further inland they have had an abnormal fall of rain, which has just brought the Swakop river down in flood, the first time our face water has shown in twelve years. This our people call Botha's luck, as it will simplify our troublesome water question greatly. In this and country every one has given up wearing boots, and we have turned into a barefooted, baredegged, barechested and bewhiskered army."

Make the Woodlot Pay Dividends

Every farmer needs fuel; every farmer needs fertilizer; and every farm woodlot needs improvement. Why not kill all three birds with one stone? By judiciously planned thinnings, the condition of the woodlot can be greatly improved; the materials removed in the thinnings can be burned as firewood and the wood ashes left are so rich in potash as to make valuable fertilizer.

The woodlot is, perhaps, the only farm crop to which the farmer has not considered it necessary to devote any care. His grains are sowed on carefully prepared soil; his vegetables are cultivated and his fruit trees are pruned and sprayed; his forest trees alone are left to look after themselves. This is the more remarkable when it is taken into consideration that any labor expended on the woodlot not only improves the final crop, but ordinarily pays for itself as well. No detailed technical knowledge is required for the work; all that is necessary is the exercise of common sense.

It is obvious that the trees in any woodlot are not all of equal value. Some are taller, straighter, thriftier, and of a species which yields more valuable wood than others. It is also obvious that a constant struggle is going on between the trees for light and growing space. The object of thinning is simply to give the best trees the advantage in this struggle by removing the poorer ones, which interfere with their development.

First of all, defective trees should be removed. This includes trees attacked by insects or fungi (conks), trees with fire-scarred butts, with tops broken off by wind or lightning, and in general all trees which are unthrifty from any cause. Next comes the trees of poor form, such as very crooked or very branchy ones, which are interfering with the growth of better formed neighbors. And, finally, trees of less valuable species, such as dogwood, ironwood and hornbeam, that might better be occupied by such species as oak, hickory and ash, which, as a rule, produce seed more abundantly, and so reproduce themselves at the expense of more desirable trees.

While the wood removed in these thinnings is frequently of no value for other purposes, it can always be used for firewood. In this way it can practically be made to pay for itself, particularly when the future use of the wood ashes for fertilizer is borne in mind.

Bonds and Their Yields

They Are a Particularly Good Buy Just Now—Prices Are Cheap.

There are many good reasons why the present is an especially opportune time to buy municipal bonds. In the first place, they are cheap, that is, cheap in comparison with prices which have obtained during the past few years. It is not so very long since borrowing municipalities were able to secure at four and a half or five per cent. sums of money for which they now have to pay five and five and a half and even six per cent. interest. This is to the advantage of the bond buyer, who can now get many low-yield bonds considerably below par, or high-yield, gilt-edged securities at about the same price as he formerly paid for low-yield debentures.

Prices Steadily Advancing.

But conditions governing the money market cannot be expected to keep so for very much longer. In fact, there has been quite a noticeable change in the past few months. Bond prices have stiffened considerably since the first of the year, and municipalities are able to strike a little better bargain with the bond houses than was the case three or four months ago. Comparison of issues recently made with those made in January shows a firming-up in prices which the bond buyer has to pay; and a still further comparison with November and August prices shows a substantial advance in prices of Canadian municipal bonds within those periods.

There is no reason to suppose that this advancing trend will change; rather the omens point to a smarter recovery in prices of these securities which have been considerably clearer in the past. This reason alone would induce present purchasing of municipal bonds, because the price is very reasonable just now, and the market is favoring higher prices with their consequent speculative profits without corresponding speculative risks, as these securities are practically at their low now and will not likely go any lower.

A Good Selling Market.

Apart from the fact that municipal bonds are cheap and offer good opportunities to the shrewd investor, they are also a good buy at the present time because of the steady demand which always exists for this class of security. Certain institutions, holders of trust funds and other corporations, are bound by law to invest their funds in only certain absolutely safe classes of securities. Municipal bonds come within this category, and offer the ideal investment for trust funds, as well as coming within the restrictions imposed by Canadian laws.

This constant demand for municipals for investment of trust funds is greater to-day than ever before, and is bound to increase as time goes on. General financial conditions affect quickly all other security markets, but inasmuch as municipals are necessities for the trustee, there will always be a steady, stable market for the best grade bonds of this class.

Security Is Worth While.

The sound security of the municipal bond makes a strong appeal to every careful investor. No matter what conditions prevail, the buyer of a municipal bond is reasonably certain that he will get back his principal at the appointed time; and that his interest will be regular, too. This will appeal to many people at the present time, when certain branches of trade have not been quite so good as usual, and the securities issued against such enterprises—in some cases at least—are not so well secured, due to depreciation of plant and property and other unavoidable causes.

No Time Like the Present.

Taken all round, municipals are an excellent buy just now. The yield is large, and the present prices cheap, though they are steadily going up. There is the best of security behind such bonds; and there is a good market, quite apart from the demands of the ordinary investing public. In good times or bad times the municipal is a safe investment, and at the present time a particularly attractive buy because of its three-fold advantages of price, market and security of principal and interest.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL STUDY

INTERNATIONAL LESSON, MAY 30.

Lesson IX.—David Brings the Ark To Jerusalem. 2 Sam. 6. 1-19; Psa. 24. G.T.—Psa. 122. 1.

I. The Ark Brought to Jerusalem (Verses 12-15).

Verse 12. Obed-edom—The Gittite, a Levite (see 1 Chron. 15. 18, 21, 24). He was called a "Gittite" because a native of Gath-rimmon (see Josh. 21. 24, 25). He belonged to the family which originally had been appointed to carry the ark from place to place (Num. 4. 15). He was also a player on the harp, and designated as one of the players to take part in the music services on the occasion of bringing up the ark and to minister before it (1 Chron. 15. 16, 18, 19-21; 16. 4, 5, 37, 38).

13. He sacrificed—Read 1 Chron. chapter 16, for the necessary ob servances on this occasion.

14. David Danced—The usual expressions of rejoicing (Exod. 15. 20, 21; Judg. 11. 34; Psa. 149. 3; 150. 4) were made by woman.

A linen ephod—The royal garments had been laid aside and the priest's dress put on.

II. His Chosen Dwelling Place (Psa. 24).

1. The earth is Jehovah's—The reader's attention is at once fixed on Jehovah, to whom approach is to be made.

2. For he—The "he" is especially emphasized. "It was he, and no other, who laid the foundation of the world" (Psa. 104. the great "Psalm of Creation").

3-6. Only those can ascend unto God's dwelling who hath clean hands, and a pure heart; that is, clean in thought as well as in deed (see Psa. 73. 1; Matt. 5. 8), who hath not lifted up his soul unto falsehood; that is, put self in preference to God, hence chosen the transitory, false, and unreal, and hath not sworn deceitfully; that is, has been true to his neighbor as well as God.

Even Jacob—Jacob is the type of the true people of God. The generation of those who truly seek after God and his likeness, seek him as the "ideal Jacob," the true people of God, would seek him.

7-10. The procession is now represented as having reached the gates of the city.

Lift up your heads—Be opened wide for the high and Holy One, now that all opposition to his entrance has ceased.

Ye everlasting doors—The doors which from the beginning had been destined to receive the King of kings.

And the King of glory—See 1 Sam. 6. 2; 1 Sam. 4. 23.

Who is this King of glory!—The watchers at the gate raise this cry so that the response can be a loud and hearty acclaim of the King. Both question and answer were taken up by the jubilant throng.

Jehovah of hosts—The climax of the psalm. "Jehovah Sabaoth" is not only the conquering warrior; he is the ruler of the universe (see 1 Sam. 17. 45; 1 Kings 22. 19).

Men who laugh with an "ah" sound are frank, honest, and can be trusted. Those who laugh with a "o" sound are to be distrusted. "O" laughers are generous, but blustering. Those who laugh with an "ee" sound are simple, rather timid, affectionate, but of unstable character.

A teaspoonful of castor oil, poured at the roots of a palm or asparagus fern, will make the plant revive and grow like magic.

Permanent Roadways

The traffic upon highways is increasing yearly. Each year highways are subjected to constantly-increasing loads. The public demands rapid transportation and quick delivery of its goods. Moreover the public demands that all unimproved highways be surfaced, and that these surfaces be kept in good condition. If roads are built in accordance with the ordinary methods of country road construction, their life is short and their cost of maintenance is high.

A concrete foundation is essential to every form of permanent road, and, with a little more care in its construction, it can be allowed to take the wear itself, thus giving a permanent pavement at a low cost.

The use of concrete as a wearing surface, as well as a foundation, makes permanent highways possible when otherwise the cost would be beyond the financial resources of many communities.

Bond issues are required in many cities and townships to obtain the necessary funds for pavement and road construction. Unless concrete is used in the work, the pavements are entirely worn out long before the bonds mature. The result is that the community must either increase its bonded indebtedness or suffer the inconvenience of using bad highways. This inconvenience will reduce the earning capacity of the community and the value of the adjacent property.

A Remarkable Will

The will of Charles Lownsberry, a noted Chicago lawyer, who died in Cook's Asylum:—

I, Charles Lownsberry, being of sound and disposing mind and memory, do hereby make and publish this my last will and testament, in order, as justly as may be to distribute my interests in the world among succeeding men.

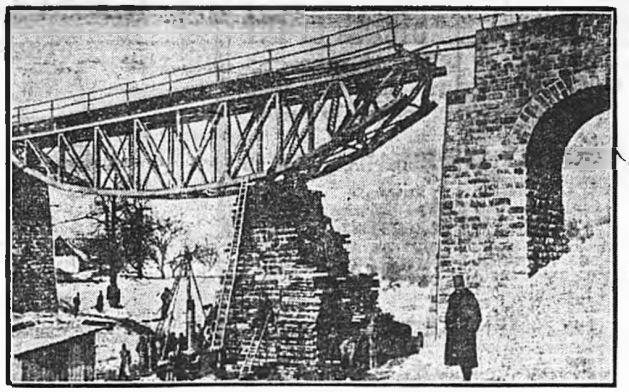
That part of my interests which is known as law and recognized in the sheep-bound volumes as my property, being inconsiderable and of none account, I make no disposal of in this my will. My right to life being but a life estate is not at my disposal; but these things excepted, all else in the world I now proceed to devise and bequeath.

Item 1.—I give to good fathers and mothers in trust for their children, all good little words of praise and encouragement, and all quaint pet names and endearments; and I charge said parents to use them justly but generously as the needs of their children shall require.

Item 2.—I leave to children inclusively but only for the term of their childhood all and every, the flowers of the field, the blossoms of the wood, with the right to play among them freely, according to the customs of children, warning them at the same time against thistles and thorns, and I devise to said children, the banks of the brooks and the golden sands beneath the waters thereof, and the odors of the willows that dip therein, and the white clouds that float high over the giant trees, and I leave to the said children the long, long days to be merry in, in a thousand ways, and the nights and the moon and the train of the milky way to wonder at, but subject nevertheless to the rights hereinafter given to lovers.

Tribute to Boyhood.

Item 3.—I devise to boys jointly, all the useful idle fields and commons, where ball may be played, all pleasant water where one may swim, all snow-clad hills where one may coast, and all streams and ponds where one may fish, or where, when grim winter comes, one may skate, to have and to hold the same for the period of their boyhood, and all meadows with the clover blossoms and butterflies thereof, the woods and their appurtenances, the squirrels and birds and echoes and strange noises, and all distant places which may be visited, together with the adventures there found. And I give to said boys each his own place at the fireside at night, with all pictures that may be seen in the burning wood to enjoy without let or hindrance and without any incumbrance of care.



Item 4.—To lovers I devise their imaginary world with whatever they may need, as the stars in the sky, the red roses by the wall, the bloom of the hawthorne, the sweet strains of music, and aught else they may desire to figure to each other the lastingness and beauty of their love.

To the Young Men.

Item 5.—To young men jointly I devise and bequeath all boisterous inspiring sport of rivalry, and I give to them the disdain of weakness and undaunted confidence in their own strength. Though they are rude I leave to them the power of making lasting friendships and of possessing companions; and to them exclusively I give all merry songs and brave choruses to sing with lusty voices.

Item 6.—And to those who are no longer children or [illegible] or lovers, I leave memory and bequeath to them the volume of the poems of Burns and Shakespeare and of other poets, if there be others to the end, that they may live their old days over again, freely and fully, without title or diminution.

Item 7.—To our loved ones with growing crowns I bequeath the happiness of old age and the love and gratitude of their children until they fall asleep.

Austrian Soldiers Repair Bridge in the Carpathian Mountains.

A unique photograph of a bridge in the Carpathians which was blown up by the Russians to cut off the Austrians. The picture shows the Austrians at work repairing the structure.

MADE IN CANADA

EATS DIRT

GILLETT'S LYE

CLEANS AND DISINFECTS

THIS LYE IS ABSOLUTELY PURE, THEREFORE TOTALLY DIFFERENT FROM THE IMPURE AND HIGHLY ADULTERATED LYES NOW SOLD.

THE WAY OF THE AGGRESSOR.

The French Review of the War Rises to the Rank of Literature.

Nothing more illuminating has been published upon the trend of the war than the French official review which is appearing in instalments in the newspapers. Those clear and lucid summaries rise to the rank of literature when the reviewer quotes German diaries and letters taken from captured and dead soldiers. Ultimate German victory was at first part of the consciousness of every German soldier. "At the moment of the battle of the Marne," says the reviewer, "the first impression was one of a failure of comprehension and of stupor." But as the retreat continued, a process of conversion began to set in in the German mind. The vast Teutonic force, in the pink of condition, with almost half a century of preparation, was actually shaken and surprised. The official expressions of victory no longer re-echoed in the minds of the fighting soldiers. The battle of Calais, which was in reality no nearer Calais than the Yser, with its terrific loss of probably 200,000 Teutons, seemed to stagger the German mind.

The failure of the capture of Warsaw completed the disillusionment. "Until during the last two months," says the report, "the most intelligent of the prisoners have all admitted that no one could any longer say on which side victory would rest." And recently letters seized on a dead officer speak of "the imminence of a military and economic hemming in of Germany." They discuss "the possibility of Germany finding herself after the war 'with empty hands and pockets turned inside out.' . . . On January 18 an officer of the German General Staff, captured, said: "Perhaps this struggle of despair has already begun." Perhaps it has! That is the way of the aggressor. No such struggle of despair can ever set in in the hearts of the scanty Belgian soldiers who have fought valiantly a losing but a glorious battle of sheer defence. Despair is the just part and lot of the aggressor; and despite all our sympathy for the hosts of honest and hard-working Germans who never sought war, who hardly know what they are fighting for, we can not but feel satisfaction that a sin against the human race should be so fitly and certainly punished on earth; that the way of the aggressor should be made hard and perilous be his name Napoleon or Wilhelm; that the wages of arrogance should be despair and defeat.

Not What She Expected.

The teacher was giving her class of little ones a party, and after they had tested their eating capacity to their utmost it was proposed they should play "menagerie." To this the youngsters agreed readily. The teacher having nominated each one a member of a curiously assorted "menagerie," she espied one little boy sitting all alone in a corner not attempting to join in the game. Now, Bobby, having consumed his fifteenth cake at tea, was in consequence not feeling very happy, and when asked if he would take the part of a lion he jerkily answered, "No." "Will you be a rhinoceros or an elephant?" asked the teacher. But he would not be either. "Well, what will you be?" "I'll—be—sick in a minute," was poor Bobby's answer.

Grease spots may be quickly removed from clothing with the aid of a small pair of scissors.

Building Good Roads

It costs the average Canadian farmer two dollars a ton to haul his produce to the market town, to the railway station or lake port. It is known that the production of field crops alone amounts to about 40,000,000 tons a year. It would be moderate to estimate that 25,000,000 of this tonnage is hauled over roads, one way or another; so we have $50,000,000 as cost of teaming field crops by the farmers. This cost could be reduced if we had first-class roads to $20,000,000, a saving of 60 per cent., leaving $30,000,000 as a saving on one class of product alone.

The building of good roads would increase the value of taxable lands not only in the vicinity of cities but also in the most remote parts. Stupendous amounts could be collected in taxes, and the assets of the nation, as well as the landlord, would increase. New towns would spring up; new railway branches would be built, and Canada would be settled and developed at a miraculous rate.

Our convicts could be profitably employed building roads. Of course, it is useless to have them constructed unless carried on in a systematic and scientific way. The roads must be "graded, topped and rolled." They should be constructed so that water will quickly drain off and so that the greatest applied pressure will not force open the foundation and cause mud to ooze up and ruts to be renewed.

Well-constructed roads shorten distance by reducing the time of travel. They would give rise to a further exploration of sparsely settled districts and would result in the discovery and shipping of more mineral and timber wealth.

I feel confident that smooth, hard roads would mean more to Canada than any other project. I believe that a remarkable awakening, a renaissance, would take place. The economic and national advantages that would ensue are incalculable. The energetic settlement and development of Canada would swell the treasury and the country would enjoy an era of prosperity unequalled in its history. Good roads in Canada would mean a higher standard of citizenship, a people pervaded by education and good morals, and a better understanding and a mutual sympathy between the diverse people in the Dominion.

BENEFITS OF FRESH AIR

Hygeia, a young lady of wide popularity at the present moment, has transformed old Demon Night Air into a good fairy who brings her gifts of clear eyes, radiant complexion, rested nerves and healthy appetite. Old Demon Night Air is no longer death, but life and health. He is a good physician whose services are gratis to those who seek them.

The hygiene fiend imagines that she is the one who discovered fresh air. All glory to her. She drinks it, eats it, lives on it, and swears by it. And the headaches that previously ground painful ridges in her saintlike nature have dissipated themselves. She no longer belongs to the society of lazy breathers whose lungs are dust bins; she rinses her breathing bellows with clear, fresh air.

It is said that improper breathing, the first cause of diseases of the lungs, is responsible for four-fifths of all indispositions, ill health and actual sickness among civilized people. This general lung weakness is a product of modern civilization and our unhygienic manner of living. Thorough and constant ventilation of the lungs is absolutely essential to a strong heart, a vigorous, healthy circulation and the power of tissues to resist disease. Since most of us are too indolent to exercise freely in the open air, spending most of our waking hours in poorly ventilated houses, public conveyances or public assembly rooms, we can drink of the good fresh atmosphere when we sleep.

Camping Out at Home.

The interest in outdoor sleeping has become keen. If you reside in an old-time house, make a sleeping apartment of the back porch. It is no trick at all, and you can rig up a fine little camp. The stores are well equipped to supply you with everything you may need in the way of comfortable furnishings. Your investment will pay you many times over. Instead of awakening with a before-breakfast grouch and a heavy, dull head, you will open your eyes to a day that is like a new experience. Work will look like good fun. The worries of yesterday will be relegated to the everlasting dust heap of the forgotten past. The universe will be quite to your liking, which is very pleasant, indeed, since none has ever been able to change it.

Drone Makes the Fat Thin.

A swinging couch with protecting side, foot and head of canvas is as comfortable as any bed, being supplied with good springs and mattress. Until very warm weather arrives one should wear the woollen sleeping suit which covers the body from topknot to toe, allowing no chilly breezes to skip down the back of one's neck like an invading icicle, and which is even aided and abetted by fleecy gloves. Unless the sleeper is thoroughly warm and comfortable sleep will not be restful. Paper sheets placed beneath the mattress are a help. A hot water bag or an electric heater is necessary in extreme weather. Even in the warmest season a woollen gown should be worn as a precaution against sudden change of temperature.

Any woman who takes the trouble to learn something about the respiratory and circulatory system of the human body will become enthusiastic about sleeping in the open air, for the wisdom of it is apparent.

She will appreciate four fundamental facts—that the thorax is a distensible air-tight cage; that it contains and is filled by the heart, lungs and great blood vessels; that the exchange of gases in the blood takes place in the lungs; and that on the development of the chest and respiratory muscles depend the development of the lungs and the force of the circulation.

Deep breathing and unlimited fresh air are the finest of all figure-developers. The sunken chest, prominent collar bones and scrawny neck will respond almost at once to outdoor sleeping. Frazzled nerves will be quieted. For the corpulent females it is a godsend, since oxygen burns up fat cells. Fresh air both develops and reduces, because it brings one to normal.

You Want Bright Eyes!

The lungs are the ventilators of the body. They consist of air cells, surrounded by dense plexuses of capillaries and nerves. The woman who pays no attention to her breathing merely sends air into the topmost cavities, which means that the lower ones are positively starving for oxygen. This lazy respiration impoverishes the blood. The result is often the gray, ashen complexion or the sallow, bilious one, the dull, listless eyes and soft, unhealthy muscles.

The lack of thorough distension and aeration of every part of the lungs is a cause of weakness of the lungs themselves as well as every part of the body, since those parts that are inactive are inviting tuberculosis, pneumonia and a trail of miserable human ills. Also the quality of food one eats is not half so important as the purity of the air one breathes. Anemia and emaciation are often produced by air hunger. The lungs must have fresh oxygen for the purpose of filtering or purifying the blood. If the blood is thin and poor the entire physical system suffers.

The woman who is always cold can breathe herself warm by standing before an open window and inhaling and exhaling slowly.

Where Nightmares Come From.

One great advantage of outdoor sleeping is that it is usually dreamless, as all healthy, restful sleeping should be. Dreams require a certain expenditure of nerve force and mental energy. While nightmares are generally associated with indigestion and late suppers, they are more often caused by rebreathing foul air that gathers like an atmosphere blanket over the bed. With the winds blowing about your couch you may be sure that your air supply is first-class and guaranteed.

Domesticate Fur Bearing Animals.

Notwithstanding all the art and artifices of the fur dresser, the supply of good fur continues to decrease and one fact stands out clearly, namely, that to meet the demand we must domesticate and breed our fur bearing animals and no longer rely on hunting them. This change is to be welcomed for humanitarian reasons as well as for many others, since the most atrocious cruelty is perpetrated on our wild animals in almost every kind of trapping, the creatures often lying not only for hours but for days with crushed and broken limbs, maimed and smashed before the hunter arrives and finally relieves their suffering or some other animal finds them and tears them to pieces.

Furs can, of course, only be produced under certain climatic conditions and these are nowhere more favorable than in our Dominion. The breeding of fur-bearing animals is an industry of great promise which should, if carried on in a conservative and rational manner—as any other industry must be to meet with success—have a great future in Canada and be an additional source of wealth to the Dominion. It is not generally recognized that a number of the more important of these animals are being bred in captivity—several of them in Canada—with success, although as yet only on a small scale. Among these are foxes of several varieties, mink, marten, fisher, Russian sable, beaver, muskrat, raccoon and skunk. The skins of the animals bred in captivity bring a higher price in the market than the skins of the same animals taken in the forest.

No Duplicates.

Customer—Waiter, this is the first tender steak I've ever had in your shop.

Waiter—My goodness! You must have got the guv'nor's.

FROM MERRY OLD ENGLAND

NEWS BY MAIL ABOUT JOHN BULL AND HIS PEOPLE.

Occurrences in the Land That Reigns Supreme in the Commercial World.

Owing to the war restricting shooting operations and beagling, there are thousands more hares than usual and consequently greater wastage of crops.

The price of bread has now been raised throughout London to 17 cents for the quarter (4-lb.) loaf. This makes the total rise since the war began 6 cents.

Lieut.-General Samuel Holt Lennox, C.B., who served in the Kaffir and Zulu war and fought at Ulindi, has died in a London nursing home at the age of fifty-nine.

A class for charwomen has been started at the Domestic Economy Training Centre at Islington, instituted by the Central Committee on Women's Employment.

With Major-General Lord Cheylesmore as president, a L.C.C. staff volunteer training corps has been formed, and it is hoped to furnish a complete battalion 1,000 strong.

A resolution protesting against any proposal to introduce women conductors into London County Council tramway cars was passed at a meeting of tramway workers at Hackney.

While going to get the men's breakfasts, Private Fox, 9th Middlesex Regiment, on duty at Hayward's Heath, stepped on the line, and was killed by the Brighton-London express.

The Lord Mayor of London presented the captain of the Thorala with $1,650, his share of the reward offered for the first unarmed British merchantman to ram a German submarine.

Introducing the Dasheen.

The dasheen, a comparatively new edible, threatens the supremacy of the potato. It is being cultivated in Florida with much success and with much profit to its cultivators, according to the Fruitman's Guide.

The dasheen stalks grow to a height of from four to six feet. The plant has shield-shaped leaves, not unlike elephant's ears. Each hill of dasheen contains one or two large spherical corms, which grow to five pounds in weight; round them are developed numerous tubers. Both corms and tubers are like the potato in composition, but they contain less water. One plant will produce from four to ten pounds of tubers in good rich soil. Both corms and tubers have an agreeable nutty flavor, and are easily digested.

The cook can serve a dasheen in the same way that she serves a potato, and she can also prepare the blanched shoots, forced from the corms in hothouses, as she does asparagus. The leaves, when tender, will take the place of spinach. Perhaps the dasheen will be a familiar vegetable in our markets before long.

Everybody

EATS City Dairy Ice Cream, (when they can get it). Hundreds of Discriminating Druggists and Shopkeepers all over Ontario appreciate its universal popularity and have secured an agency for it.

CITY DAIRY ICE CREAM is the one universal summer confection—it delights the entire human family from infancy to old age—and best of all City Dairy Ice Cream is a highly digestible food.

For Sale by discriminating shopkeepers everywhere

City Dairy

Watch for the Sign.

TORONTO.

The Paisley Advocate

PAISLEY, MAY 27th, 1915

"A LONG WAY"

It's a long way to go. As a British soldier expressed it "it's going to be one hell of a lob" to beat the Germans on land. There's no getting away from it. The Germans have the greatest war-machine that was ever launched and they are able to force home drives at stated intervals that are tremendous setbacks to the winter preparations of the Allies. They backed the Russians almost to Przemysl again and they have made some gains on the western front. They have not had all the victories, but a few months ago most of us were thinking that they would have been cleaned out of Belgium by this time.

One American writer who is a partisan of the British cause states that the British army is like an amateur boxer in training to defeat the heavy-weight champion of the world. He believes that the amateur will achieve the victory, but he shows that the singing of "Tipperary" either at home or abroad will not do it. He believes that what the British have accomplished in the way of developing a war machine for land is "one of the marvels of military history." But the Germans have been at work for half a century on the same problems and as war has come down for the most part to a question of who has the best and most machinery, it is a matter of a long building-up process on the one hand and a wearing-down on the other.

The writer to whom reference is made is E. Alexander Powell. He has visited four battle fronts and his natural sentiments are with the Allies. And we believe he best demonstrates his friendship by a declaration that before Britain beats Germany on land every man in Britain between the ages of fourteen and forty-eight must take the field. The more men to enlist the sooner the bloody business will have ended.

Mr. Powell does not doubt ultimate success. He saw the young Prince of Wales doing cross-country running in France in order that he might be fit for service. He sees the whole British army in a mood of desperate determination. He believes we are "just getting down to it." He thinks there should be less talk of "what we will do with Germany" and he declares the British have settled down to the Herculean task that lies before them.

Canadians have shouldered a share of that Herculean burden. In grim determination we must keep on adding to our strength.—London Advertiser.

—Much as we read about the war, there's one idea we haven't come across any place. In sizing up the nations and their characteristics, everyone goes off into generalities on militarism and kulture. The Germans and British are supposed to be all alike except for the philosophy of Nietsche, the politics of Treitske, the beer of Schlitzie and some more frothy things. The main fact to prove it all is the way the Germans deal with their enemies. The Germans don't seem to know how to play the game. This is the practical side of it, and it seems to us, the philosophic side as well. The Germans don't know how to play games. "Fair play" is purely a British phrase. If "kulture" is made in Germany, "fair play" is made in Britain. There is just the one brand: British fair play. Outdoor games are becoming popular in Europe, but their home is in the British Isles. A Russian gentleman would consider it more dignified to play kick-the-stick with boys on the street than to go out in flannels and chase a ball around a field. Germans have something like the same idea. An outdoor game, like tango dancing, may be all right for a fashionable fad. As a regular pastime for grown up men of education it is a bit silly. Pick a British gentleman, look up his record in who's who, and along with his titles and clubs you'll find enumerated the outdoor games he plays. If he cannot play he at least follows the play of others. And what are games but an imitation of warfare? Take our gentle game of hockey, and you see opposing armies at work. From boxing to lawn tennis the sport is simply in the fight. The British learn to fight, in battles and in business, by playing at it all the time in games or sport. In Germany probably they have no name for a fellow which means the same as "good sport." The tragedies of Belgium show up some of the Germans to us as "poor sports." The sporting page of our papers is our real military gazette. Apart from theories and systems, the British army and the British empire gets a good deal of its power and discipline from the simple process of playing games. The Germans, with all their doctrines and conceit, go astray in fighting others and in ruling others because they do not have the knack and tact to "play the game."—Ex.

Liberals Nominate John Tolmie

As generally expected, Mr. John Tolmie, ex-M.P., was the choice of the Liberals of North Bruce when they met in convention at Tara on Wednesday last. The choice was spontaneous as well as unanimous, and Mr. Tolmie accepted the nomination in a fighting speech. Health permitting, "Honest John" will be in the field to the finish.

Speeches were delivered by C. M. Bowman, M.P.P., Wm. MacDonald, M.P.P., Gideon Kastner, of Wiarton, J. J. Hunter and P. E. Malcolmson, of Kincardine, E. Roy Sayles, of Port Elgin, John Ashcroft, of Albermarle, and J. E. Campbell, of Hepworth.

The following officers were elected: President, Jos. Chambers, Amabel; 1st vice-president, Gideon Kastner, Wiarton; 2nd vice-president, E. Roy Sayles, Port Elgin; secretary-treasurer, W. J. Taylor, Tara.

Bright Prospects for Crops

Very little seeding remains to be done in this section, and nearly every farmer was waiting for the rain which came on Friday. Not for many years, perhaps, has there been as large an acreage sown with grain. Fall wheat, of which there is also a much larger acreage than in recent years, came through in splendid shape. The outlook, on the whole, is at present exceedingly bright. Spring work was completed under very favorable conditions, the soil working up into a perfect seed bed, and now that the required moisture is being supplied from the cloudy, the sowers are beginning to look forward to an abundant reaping.

Silver Wedding and Red Cross

The unique plan adopted by Dr. and Mrs. A. H. Allen of celebrating their silver wedding anniversary by throwing open their home for an entertainment in aid of Red Cross work proved a gratifying success in every way. A large number of citizens took the double opportunity of supporting the merciful cause by their presence and at the same time extending their cordial congratulations to the host and hostess upon the occasion of their celebration and spending an evening in their home. The programme rendered consisted of music by the orchestra, solo by Misses Annetta Johnston and E. McInnes, reading by Miss Fuher, violin solo by Miss Nettie Trelford, song by Mr. J. Tucker, piano duets by Mrs. L. E. Putnam and Mrs. J. B. Fleming. Rev. Mr. Little was chairman. A dainty lunch was served in the dining-room. The silver contribution to the Red Cross Society amounted to $11.

In the Trenches

Mr. and Mrs. Thos. H. George received on Monday a short letter from their son Thomas, who is now with the 10th Battalion of the British Expeditionary Force in France. The letter was written on May 2nd. At that time Tom had been in the trenches for three days, and he expected their detachment would be relieved on that or the following day. Their artillery, he said, was hammering away at the Germans, and the foe was being driven back a little every day. The German prisoners he had seen were a hard looking lot, most of them from 18 to 30 years of age. The letter does not give the location of the battalion but it will be noted by the reports in the daily newspapers, the 10th has been participating in some hot fighting during the past week. The casualties were thought to be very heavy, but latest reports show the list of killed and wounded from the 10th is not so long as at first estimated. The Canadians attached to the 10th appear to be mostly from the west.

Could We Make Shells?

This may seem a long-shot interrogation to emanate from a Paisley source, where we have nothing in the shape of ironworks to show its origin. But we see that in the town of Paris, Ont., a gang of 50 men is working night and day in the basement of the town hall manufacturing shells for the Imperial Government. We have here a building that should be much better adapted for an ordnance factory than is a town hall. We allude to the carpet factory, which is now in use but very shortly will be vacant, and in very much better condition, in some respects at least, than it was when taken over for school purposes some 15 months ago. It is quite possible that some enterprising Paisley townsmen might be induced to accept the use of the building if offered on the liberal terms that the town is ready to give it for manufacturing purposes. The war is apparently going to last for a considerably longer time than was at first anticipated, and there will be a mighty lot of shot and shell required yet to put the German war machine on the scrap heap, so that our council might be able to uncover a proposition that would put some industrial life into our community for a while at any rate.

Homeseekers' Special Train Leaves Toronto 10.45 p.m. each Tuesday Commencing June 1st, 1915

For the accommodation of homeseekers and general tourist traffic to Western Canada, through trains carrying Tourist Sleepers and Colonist Cars will commencing June 1st, leave Toronto at 10.45 p.m. each Tuesday until further notice, running through to Winnipeg.

Attention is directed to the remarkably low round trip fares in connection with Homeseekers' Excursions to Western Canada via Canadian Pacific Railway. Tickets are on sale each Tuesday until October 26th, inclusive, and are good to return within two months from date of sale.

Apply to any C.P.R. Agent for full particulars or write M. G. Murphy, District Passenger Agent, Toronto.

—A cure for the blues—read "Craigie" at McArthur's bookstore, $1.25.

THE BLOOD IS THE STREAM OF LIFE

Pure Blood Is Absolutely Necessary To Health

"FRUIT-A-TIVES" PURIFIES

These Wonderful Tablets, Made of Fruit Juices, Are The Best Of All Tonics To Purify And Enrich The Blood.

Pure, rich blood can flow only in a clean body. Now, a clean body is one in which the waste matter is regularly and naturally eliminated from the system. The blood cannot be pure when the skin action is weak, when the stomach does not digest the food properly, when the bowels do not move regularly, when the kidneys are strained or overworked.

Pure blood is the result of perfect health and harmony of stomach, liver, bowels, kidneys and skin.

"Fruit-a-tives", by their wonderful action on all these organs, keeps the whole system as clean as Nature intended our bodies to be clean.

"Fruit-a-tives" tones up, invigorates, strengthens, purifies, cleans and gives pure, rich, clean blood that is, in truth, the stream of life.

"Fruit-a-tives" is sold by all dealers at 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50 trial size 25c, or sent postpaid on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

Masonic Function

Friday evening was a special occasion within the precincts of the Masonic Hall, when R. W. Bro P. C. Ryan, D.D.G.M. for North Huron District, made his official visit to Aldworth Lodge. At the conclusion of the customary routine and ritualistic proceedings an adjournment was made to the banquet room, where tables had been prepared by matrons of the Red Cross Society and a contingent of young lady supporters of the cause were told off to act as waitresses. All who partook of the attractive and satisfying menu are ready to attest that the civilian banqueter in his home town, as well as the soldier on the battlefield, is fortunate, indeed, to fall into the hands of the Red Cross brigade. Following the banquet was a round of toasts which brought forth a number of excellent addresses, the first in oratorical merit being that delivered by Mr. Ryan on the subject of the War and the nations involved in the struggle. Since taking up the duties of his district office, it has been noted that Bro Ryan has been making a bit in after-dinner speaking, but the members of his home lodge were hardly prepared to hear such a fully developed and really eloquent exposition of the subject as he delivered on Friday evening. An occasion should be created whereby a general audience should be given the opportunity of listening to our newly-discovered, silver-tongued spellbinder. Mr. Hugh McKerracher has seen much of the British Empire and heard many of the great statesmen who are at the Parliamentary helm in this eventful time, and in his response to the toast of "The Empire" drew upon the knowledge and information gained by his sojourn in the Old Land, making a very interesting address, well seasoned with patriotic and humorous passages. Other speakers heard were R. S. Grant, I. Shoemaker, J. H. Steele, G. B. Bell, Dr. Houston, I. Logie, A. Jack, W. R. Bennett and Rev. J. W. Bell of the local lodge, also R. W. Bro Bell of Tiverton, and Zeigler of Cargill.

MY AUTO, 'TIS OF THEE

My auto, 'tis of thee, short cut to poverty—
Of thee I cheat,
I blew a pile of dough on you two years ago
And now you refuse to go—
Or won't or can't.

Through town and countryside you were my joy and pride,
A happy day.
I loved thy goody hue, thy nice white tires so new,
But now you're down and through
In every way.

To thee, old rattle-box, came many beeps and knocks,
For thee I grieve.
Badly thy top is torn, frayed are thy seats and worn,
A whooping-cough affects thy horn
I do believe.

Thy motor has the grip, thy spark the pip
And woe is thine.
I, too, have suffered chills, ague and kindred ills,
Endeavoring to pay my bills
Since thou wert mine.

Gone is my bank roll now. No more 'twould choke the cow.
As once before.
Yet, if I had the mon', so help me John
—amen,
I'd buy a car again,
And speed some more.

—An Eye to Business—"A penny for your thochts, Sandy," said a bonnie Scotch lassie after her laddie had remained silent for a while. "Weel," he replied, "the tell ye the truth, I was just thinking how fine it wad be if ye were tae gie me a wee kiss the noo." "I've nae objection, Sandy," replied the lassie promptly, and gave him a smacking kiss right away. After a time she returned another question—"An' what are ye thinkin' about the noo? Another kiss, maybe?" "Nae, nae, lassie," he answered, "It's mair serious." She nestled nearer and softly asked—"An' what micht it be Sandy?" "I was just thinkin'," said Sandy slowly, "that it was aiwes time ye were paying me that penny, lassie."

BALLACHEY, LAIDLAW & CO.

"The Store with the Quality"

Suits-Suits Suits!

ONE HUNDRED and sixty-eight suits to choose from---Black, Blue, Grey, Brown and Green. Prices from $7.50 to $24. New styles, as well as staple lines. Let us show you.

Top Prices for all Farm Produce

BALLACHEY, LAIDLAW & CO.

Both 'Phones——All Produce

Tired Eyes

Sensations exist for our guidance
They are Nature's warnings.
Over-worked eyes demand rest.
Eyes that tire easily call for help.
Properly adjusted glasses afford the only assistance possible.

We make a specialty of relieving tired eyes and guarantee satisfaction.

A Stopped Watch

One that will not go AT ALL—doesn't cause as much bother as one that runs now fast, now slow, in an erratic fashion.

The first you don't pretend to depend upon—the other is a constant source of annoyance.

Most people can afford a watch, but no one can afford an uncertain fast and slow one.

And when our repair department is so close at hand there is really no excuse for carrying anything but an accurate time-piece, no matter what the first cost was.

Consult us about any watch troubles that may arise.

I. SHOEMAKER
JEWELER AND OPTICIAN

SHOES

Our new spring Shoes have just arrived and we have Shoes for all Ladies, Gents and Children at the old prices.

We have not raised our prices as we bought our supply before the advance in prices.

We have a full stock of Men's Women's and Children's heavy waterproof shoes on hand to keep the feet dry.

Call and have a look at our shoes.

Eggs Taken in Exchange

H. PFAFF & SON'S
SHOE STORE

Buggies—We carry the reliable McLachlan, Tudhope and Bradford autos, also attending to all kinds of repairs and renewals of parts on old vehicles. A number of second hand buggies to sell cheap.

Furniture—A large assortment always in stock and catalogues of best makers to select from. Any article, large or small, sets or single pieces for furnishing the house.

Single and Double Harness and Harness Supplies
We are agents for the Singer Sewing Machines and Capital Cream Separators

J. SEILER, Eden Grove

CANADIAN PACIFIC
THE
Ideal Vacation Route
Conveniently reaching
Point-au-Baril, French and Pickerel Rivers, Severn River, Muskoka Lakes, Rideau Lakes, Lake Ontario Resorts
GOOD TILL CHANGE OF TIME MAY 31
Particulars from W. H. McFarlane, Agent, or write M. G. Murphy, D.P.A., Toronto

Central Business College Stratford, Ont.
Ontario's Best Practical Training School
We have thorough courses and experienced instructors in each of our three departments, Commercial, Shorthand and Telegraphy. Our graduates succeed and you should get our large, free catalogue. Write for it at once.
D. A. McLACHLAN, Principal

Court Saugeen, C.O.F. No. 88
MEETS in Oddfellow Hall on the second Wednesday evening of each month, at 8 o'clock. Visiting brethren are welcome.
A. E. ARCHER, R.S.
W. ARCHER, C.R. 2075

Ahiram Lodge, No. 205, I.O.O.F.
MEETS every Tuesday in the Hall Oddfellow Block. Visiting brothers always welcome.
D. J. F. HOUSTON, N.G.
H. B. GRANT, R.S.

PUMP REPAIRING
THE undersigned having purchased Mr W. Rusk's outfit, is prepared to do all kinds of pump repairing, also furnish repairs, such as cylinders, valves and other parts of wooden or iron pumps. A few tank wooden pumps for sale. Wood turning done. Turned whiffletrees, neckyokes and lemon posts for sale.
W. RAE

Paisley Court of Revision
Assessment Roll, 1915
TAKE NOTICE that the Court of Revision, to try all complaints in regard to persons wrongly placed upon or omitted from the Roll, or assessed at too high or too low a sum, will be held at the Council Chamber at nine o'clock a.m. on Saturday, 29th May, inst.
J. C. GIBSON, Town Clerk.

Desirable Residence for Sale
THAT very desirable village property on Queen Street south, the Strachan residence, is offered for sale. House new, brick veneered, and in first-class condition. Apply to D. FORRESTER, Paisley.

T. H. GEORGE
Issuer of Marriage Licenses
Notary Public and Conveyancer
Land, Loan, Insurance and General Agent. Notes, Book Accounts and other Debts Collected. Conveyancing Neatly and Cheaply Executed.
—FARMS LOANS A SPECIALTY—
Office in Putnam Block, Queen St. E., Paisley

You Can Begin Any Day at the Northern Business College
OWEN SOUND
Individual Instruction
Our own three story building and 34 successful years of experience. Expert instructors produces the very best results. Catalogue free.
C. A. FLEMING, F.C.A. G. D. FLEMING
Principal Secretary

Business Directory

JOHN SUTHERLAND & SONS LIMITED
INSURANCE—FIRE AND MARINE
GUELPH - ONT.

J. C. GIBSON
Issuer of Marriage Licenses
Paisley, Ont.

LEGAL

D. FORRESTER, B.A., L.L.B.
BARRISTER, SOLICITOR AND NOTARY PUBLIC
OFFICE—TOWN HALL, PAISLEY

MEDICAL

DR. M. C. BLACK, C.M., L.R.C.P. & S.E., L.M.C., M.C.P. & S., Licentiate and Graduate of Trinity University and Polyclinic, New York. Specialty—Diseases of the eye, ear, nose and throat.

DR. H. E. GAGE, Physician, Surgeon and Accoucheur. Specialist in Diseases of the Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat. Late house surgeon Kingston General Hospital. Office hours—2 to 4 p.m., 7 to 8 p.m.
Successor to Dr. O'Neill

DR. F. J. F. HOUSTON,
Honor Graduate of Toronto University Licentiate of the Royal Colleges of Physicians, and Surgeons of Edinburgh and Glasgow, graduate Cornell Lying-in-Hospital, Dublin, late assistant Edinburgh Eye Infirmary, Eye SPECIALTY—Diseases of the Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat.
Successor to Dr. Morrison.

DENTAL

DR. A. H ALLEN
DENTIST, formerly of Toronto.
Graduate of the Royal College of Dental Surgeons of Ontario. Honor Graduate of Toronto University Dental Department. Master of Dental Surgery. Graduate of the Dr. Mayer' Post Graduate School of Prosthetic Dentistry, New York. Office over Mara's Dental Rooms, opposite the Post Office.

VETERINARY

R. S. GRANT, V. S., Graduate of Ontario Veterinary College, Toronto. Government Inspector of contagious diseases and apply Tuberculin test if stable. Also is specialist in expert stock and horse examinations for sales. Charges for treatment for milk fever. Office and residence opposite the old Northern Hotel.

AUCTIONEERS

R. G. PEARCE, Licensed Auctioneer. Sales promptly attended to in all parts of the County of Bruce. Orders may be left at the Advocate Office will receive prompt attention. Telephone at house.

J. NESBITT, Licensed Auctioneer for the County of Huron, is prepared to conduct sales in any part of the county. Terms reasonable. Leave orders at ADVOCATE office or address Gramis P.O.

A Few "Becauses"

Why we ask for and expect your Grocery Trade

BECAUSE, as far as is possible to determine, our stock takes in all the good kinds, and leaves the others out.

BECAUSE, if you are particular about eatables, our store will appeal to you.

BECAUSE we play the game of business fair and square. We make right any mistake we may make just as soon as we hear of it.

BECAUSE we try awfully hard to "get there on time." We appreciate the inconvenience of waiting for goods to be delivered.

BECAUSE, in spite of all these advantages, your dollar is as large here as anywhere, often larger.

TRY AND PROVE.

DUTCH SETT ONIONS—4 Pounds for 25 cents.

Leave your order with us for CUT FLOWERS and POTTED PLANTS.

Don't forget we pay the Highest Price for BUTTER and EGGS in Cash or Trade.

F. Carter & Son

Groceries, Crockery, Boots and Shoes

Goods Delivered — Both 'Phones

THE STORE WITH THE QUALITY

Use Royalite Coal Oil

"Where did you get your Oil Stove?"
"I got it at Davison's."
"What is the name of it."
"Quick Meal."
"Is it a good stove?"
"Well I should say so. You find points of excellence in the Quick Meal Oil Stove that cannot be found in any other stove on the market. Don't buy your stove until you see the Quick Meal. It's the best. I never have any trouble with mine and I have had it for years. I think it would pay you to call at Davison's and see it. I know they will be pleased to show you all about it."
"Well, I'm glad you told me. I think I'll buy one to-morrow."

Use Royalite Coal Oil

They all buy the Quick Meal It's the Best!

W. H. DAVISON

BRUCE PHONE — BELL PHONE

This is the kind of Wall Paper Artist We Do NOT Employ—

No sloppy job like this done by our men. It costs you no more to employ clean, careful workmen than men like the above.

Our Wall Paper Stock

We have just put into stock the newest and

MOST ARTISTIC PATTERNS.

Complete range of all lines for parlor, hall, dining-room, bed-room or kitchen papers on hand, ready for delivery. We would like to show you our different sample books. Stock on hand of all samples shown.

H. GLOVER

PAPERHANGER AND DECORATOR

Elderslie Tp. Court of Revision

THE Court of Revision of the Assessment Roll of the Township of Elderslie for 1915 will hold its first sitting at the Township Hall, Chesley, on Friday, May 28th inst., at 2 o'clock p.m. Parties having business with the court are requested to call at said time and place.

R. L. PEARCE, Tp Clerk

Elderslie, May 8th 1915

TORONTO LIVE STOCK MARKETS

Toronto, Tuesday, May 18th, 1915

Butchers picked	$8 00	$8 20
do common	7 00	7 50
do cows	7 00	7 50
do bulls	7 00	7 50
Stockers, choice	6 75	7 00
do common	5 50	6 00
Heavy feeders	7 00	7 50
Short keep	7 00	7 50
Milch cows, choice	80 00	90 00
do common	40 00	60 00
Sheep, ewes	7 00	7 50
Bucks	5 50	6 00
Spring Lambs, each	8 00	9 00
Calves	8 00	10 00
Hogs, f.o.b	8 25	8 35
" fed and watered	8 25	8 35

A THOUGHTFUL GIFT

Send THE ADVOCATE to the absent member of the family or to the distant friend. It is as good as a letter from home and is a weekly visitor. You can better imagine how the home paper is appreciated when you are absent yourself and a copy is forwarded to you.

Resumption of Canadian Pacific Great Lakes Service

Passenger service via the Great Lakes Canadian Pacific route from Port McNicoll will be resumed commencing Saturday, May 22nd. The service this season will be maintained by the steamers "Keewatin" sailing Tuesdays, "Manitoba" Wednesdays, "Alberta" Thursdays, and "Assiniboia" on Saturdays from Port McNicoll at 4 p.m. The "Manitoba" sailing Wednesdays will also call at Owen Sound each sailing date at 10.30 p.m. Special train will leave Union Station, Toronto, at 12.45 p.m., arriving at Port McNicoll at 4 p.m., daily except Friday.

For reservations or other information regarding this service consult an Canadian Pacific Agent or write M. G. Murphy, District Passenger Agent, Toronto.

—JUST TO REMIND HIM—A Cleveland man, who visited friends in Hants, England, last year, tells the following story of a canny Scot, a beadle, whose habit it is to show tourists the remains of the Abbey in his parish. One day he had thus conveyed a party through the place, every member of which had tipped him with the exception of a crabbed old fellow of his own nationality. As the offender left the beadle whispered in his ear: "Weel, when ye gang home, if ye fin' oot ye have lost your purse, ye maun recollect that ye havena had it oot here."—Harper's Magazine.

DIED

McKAY—In Bruce Tp., on May 22nd, Rose Baker, beloved wife of James B. McKay, aged 24 years, 10 months.

MCKELLAR—At Tiverton, on May 16th, Anne Street, beloved wife of J. A. McKellar, aged 48 years.

BRADLEY—In Bruce Tp on May 23rd, Pansy May B., infant daughter of Mr and Mrs Thos Bradley, aged 10 months and 20 days.

PAISLEY MARKET

Fall wheat, per bushel	$1 30	$ 30
Spring wheat, per bush	1 00	1 30
Buckwheat	70	75
Peas, per bush	....	55
Oats, per bush	50	55
Barley, per bush	65	75
Potatoes, per bus	40	60
Butter, in pound prints	27	27
Eggs, fresh, per doz	22	22
Hay, per ton		15 00

A Penalty For Eating Pellts.

It is more difficult to be polite in the city of Hamburg than in any other place in Europe. There the most chivalrous man has to think twice before giving up his seat in a car to a lady, as he may be turned off the car for politeness. It seems that the Hamburg trolley cars will seat, according to size, 20 or 28 persons, 10 to 14 on each side. In addition four persons are allowed on the front and five persons on the back platform. When the car is full the conductor hangs out a sign, "Besetzt," which means "occupied," and is absolutely forbidden to take on another passenger until some one gets off the car.

Sometimes, while the conductor is in front collecting fares, a lady will step on the car which is already "occupied." As there is no conductor on hand to prevent her, the lady steps inside, and the gentleman who may offer her a seat comes out and takes his stand on the platform. When the conductor after going his rounds returns to his post, he promptly requests the gentleman to step off the car, as he has forfeited his seat and the car is fully "occupied." Should he refuse to leave the car he is put off. The policeman on the streets are instructed to watch the cars sharply, and if they find a car carrying even one more passenger than its proper complement the conductor is fined 73 cents, which is paid to a charity fund of the street railway company.—Philadelphia Press.

Salt and Horse Radish.

Some people care for nothing but lemon on raw oysters, but there are others who desire horse radish. Usually such folk regard the strongest horse radish as the best, but an experienced reader of the condiment poohpoohs this point of view.

"Why should the strong horse radish be considered good?" says he. "It brings tears to your eyes and lifts the top of your head off and makes you want to sneeze. It has no taste whatever. The mild horse radish, that which has stood awhile, is the best and pleasantest always.

"There is nothing so foolish as to think that the strong, biting kind is the fresh—that is the reason why it is preferred to the mild sort—for the very stalest, weakest horse radish can be made in 20 minutes strong enough to blow your head off. All you need to do is to add salt to it. Try this some time. Just take any old horse radish, stump in a spoonful of salt and then notice the difference. I don't know why salt should have such a powerful effect on the stuff, but no doubt a chemist could tell you that."—Philadelphia Record.

Turned It to Amount.

A Derbyshire man, accompanied by his wife, happened to be traveling in a train when, near Stafford, a collision occurred. He was well known for his shrewdness in business, and he proved that in the collision his wife received a contusion between the eyes, for which a jury awarded £50 damages. Some time after the affair had blown over the following confession, or something to the like effect, was elicited from the plaintiff in a moment of unguarded confidability:

"Well, you see, when the collision happened t' owld woman and I wur all reet, but when I looked out of t' carridge I seed a lot of fellies in a terrible state. One sings out: 'Ey, lad! Ise gettea me head cut open. I'll ha' twenty pecunds for this.' 'Twenty pecunds, ye silly fule!' cries another. 'Ise gotten me shoulder out, and I'll ha' forty pecunds for 't.' When I heard this," continued the clever business man, "I jumpt at t' owld woman straight out and drew my 'end bet'een her eyes, and we'so gotten fifty pecunds for it."—London Answers.

Question Is Unanswered.

A certain grocer on the hill has for some days been looking for the owner of a voice that claimed his attention at the telephone one busy morning. When he finds the man, the meeting will furnish material for an interesting item, and the following dialogue explains itself:

The Voice—Hello, there! Is that you, Charles?
Grocer—Yes.
The Voice—Have you any salt fish?
Grocer—Yes.
The Voice—Is it fresh?
Grocer—Yes; came in this morning.
The Voice—Cod or pollock?
Grocer—Got both. Which do you want?
The Voice—Well, I don't know. Is the pollock good and dry?
Grocer—Yes.
The Voice—Well, why don't you give it a drink, then?

At this point the grocer brought the colloquy to a sudden termination with a remark that would be out of place in polite society and therefore unfit for publication.—Portland (Or.) Argus.

Mice as Food in China.

The first thing which strikes the traveler in China upon his entrance into any of the many cities of the Celestial empire is the strings of dried mice which hang from the roofs of the houses suspended by their tails, just as sausages are hung in front of butcher shops in France.

The Chinese hunt these mice with a long, sharp pointed knife, which they plunge into the animals' throats. Then the mice are suspended by the tails until the blood has dripped out, when they are skinned, drawn and smoked.

Another favorite dish with the Chinese is dogs' feet. The feet of black dogs are considered more of a delicacy than those of any other color, and white dogs are rejected as being tasteless. Dogs' fat, prepared in a special manner, is looked upon as a repast fit for a king.

In the true life of the individual each day is the beginning of the new year.—Jordan.

The Right Idea in Business

THE modern merchant filled with the modern spirit carries his business to his customers' homes; that is, he doesn't wait to be found out or risk the danger of not being found out.

The best carrier of business to the customers' homes is the newspaper. THE PAISLEY ADVOCATE can carry every business in Paisley to the homes of this community with ease and without confusion—the business of grocers, dry goods men, hardware dealers, clothiers, stationers, boot and shoe houses, druggists, jewellers, furniture dealers, fruiterers, butchers, grain and feed stores, and every other class of business.

To the Merchants of Paisley

Get your business into the home and you'll sell goods there. THE PAISLEY ADVOCATE can carry your business into more homes than you are now serving. Ask us about the cost of Advertising.

BUY FROM ADVERTISERS

Rev. John MacNeill

The following sketch of the life of one who is very well known to ADVOCATE readers was written for the Walkerton High School Record, and was published in the Telescope last week:

We purpose giving from time to time brief sketches of ex-pupils who have become prominent in various walks of life. From many that might be chosen we furnish our readers this month with some account of Rev John MacNeill, pastor of Walmer Road Baptist church, Toronto.

Mr MacNeill was born in the township of Elderslie, his home being a few miles north of Paisley. As his name indicates he is of Scottish parentage, of a family in whose members there was the passion for education. Of the six brothers and sisters five attended the Walkerton High School.

John entered the High School in 1889, being one of the youngest pupils to enter in that year. Throughout his course he was an earnest and very successful student. He matriculated in 1895 and at once entered McMaster University, graduating therefrom in both arts and theology. During his student days he had charge of mission fields, and his success as a preacher attracted considerable attention. His appearance in a Toronto pulpit even in those days would draw a large congregation.

His first regular pastorate was at Winnipeg, continuing from 1899 to 1906. Marked success attended his ministry in this city. As an indication of the reputation he then enjoyed, it may be mentioned that at this time he was the recipient of a somewhat remarkable offer. Mr Stephens, a wealthy resident of Melbourne, Australia, invited him to take a trip around the world his expense, provided he would be a ...e as a preacher and lecturer in Me...borne for about two weeks. This kind offer was accepted, and eight very pleasant and fruitful months were spent in this way.

In 1906 he became pastor of Walmer Road church, Toronto, where he will complete the ninth year of his pastorate next month. The conditions in this church had been somewhat discouraging and there was an anxious looking for someone that would be the means of ushering in brighter days. The task was by no means a light one, but it was soon seen that Mr MacNeill was the right man for the place. Congregations have grown, and although the church building is one of the largest in Toronto, frequently many are turned away from the evening services for lack of accommodation. So great has been the growth of the work that he has now two assistant pastors to assist in carrying out the varied work undertaken. Although Mr MacNeill's salary is a large one, his mind is not set on money, as he has declined several offers much better financially—one a pastorate in New York city that would mean an addition of several thousands more than his present salary.

He has become widely known as a preacher. In 1913-14 he supplied the City Temple, London, England, for six weeks each summer and has been invited to act in the same capacity this summer. The City Temple, a Congregational church, is one of the most important nonconformist churches in the city. Of this church the famous Dr Parker was pastor for many years; and at present Rev R J. Campbell, perhaps equally famous, is pastor.

What is the secret of Mr MacNeill's success? Any attempt to answer such a question will meet with only partial success. Certainly he is not to any extent sensational. Quiet and dignified in manner, he addresses himself, in the delivery of his sermons, in all seriousness, to the task in hand. He is indeed eloquent and moves on from first to last with a satisfying success. The language throughout is of great beauty and ample force. The thought, too, is worthy of its beautiful expression — being clear, thought-compelling and impressive. Accompanying all this there is an intense earnestness, and we feel that the man and his message are one and indivisible. This is, it would appear, the crowning qualification, and added to the other characteristics, explains largely the success of his pulpit ministrations.

The above is but a meagre sketch, but sufficient to show that Rev J MacNeill is an alumnus of whom we should be proud. Further, his example should be an inspiration to the pupils of to-day. It is hoped that his career may be a strong influence in leading us to devote ourselves to the serious purposes of life and to aim to be of the greatest possible service to humanity.

—Renew your subscription to the city dailies or weeklies before the term ends and save interruption in the year's reading. We can get you any paper you want and save you a little money.

THERE HAS NOT BEEN

any increase in the price of

Columbia Records

They are made in Canada—consequently are not subject to the 7½ per cent War Tax.

They sell from 85 cents to $7.50, but no matter what price you pay, the Columbia Record at that price is exceptionally good value for the money.

Go to the dealer whose name is mentioned below, and ask him to give you a catalogue of Columbia Records.

If he hasn't any, owing to the big demand, write direct to The Columbia Graphophone Co., Toronto, and you will receive one by return mail. But go to the local dealer whose name is mentioned below, and ask him first; also ask him to play over some of the newest Records, including:

Mary Pickford's official song, entitled—

A1701	Sweetheart of Mine I'm Not Ashamed of You, Mollie	.85
A1686	Somewhere a Voice is Calling Whispering Hope	$1.00
A5649	Handel's Largo, by Casals Melody in F, by Casals	$1.50
A5644	A Perfect Day Suzi	$1.25

G. R. WELSFORD

Paisley

Agents wanted where not actively represented. Apply Music Supply Co., Toronto

The Best Decorators Now Advise Plain Walls

Many of the high priced metropolitan decorators have declared in favor of "flat" finishes, that is, plain, dull colors—for they are more restful, more refining, more harmonious. If you use you get all the advantages of water colors, and have a washable, durable wall finish besides, that will not fade, chalk, peel nor easily mar, on walls, ceiling, wood or metal work in private homes or public buildings. In many colors and very economical. Let us show you our large book of color combinations—and all our lines Brushes "High Standard" Products.

Mellotone

For Sale at Sinclair's Hardware

Your Floors Need Paint

Paint preserves the wood. Paint keeps floors sanitary and healthful. Painted floors make the rooms bright and cheery. Painted floors are easily cleaned—a damp cloth keeps them free of dust and germs. Paint your floors and thus have them always Spic and Span.

Senour's Floor Paint

"MADE IN CANADA"

is all ready to brush on—anyone can apply it evenly and smoothly. It gives a hard, durable, lustrous finish, that stays fresh and bright, and wears, and wears, and wears. And it costs less to use than other floor paint, because it covers more surface and wears longer.

Senour's Floor Paint comes in 14 beautiful colors, suitable for every floor in the house from kitchen to garret.

Write for a color card, and a copy of our entertaining book, "The House That Jack Built". Written for children, but "grown ups" get a lot of fun out of it. We'll also give you the name of our nearest dealer-agent.

ADDRESS ALL ENQUIRIES TO

The MARTIN-SENOUR Co.
LIMITED
655 Drolet Street, Montreal.

MARTIN-SENOUR PAINT & VARNISHES

MARTIN-SENOUR SPIC-SPAN FINISHES

The Darkest Hour;

Or, The Hope That Still Lived.

CHAPTER XXIV.—(Continued).

Suddenly there arose a great clatter of hoofs and rumble of wheels from the street below. Christine looked out and saw a carriage. Was it Brian? Then she remembered that Brian would not come in a carriage, and especially not in such a one as this, whose every appointment bore on the splashed panels the recently erased crest to outlive, and brought all the tenants of the rooms thundering to their windows. The equipage was a handsome brougham, and it was now stopping outside the doorway of the particular tenement house from which Christine looked forth.

The footman opened the carriage door, and a lady stepped out. The lady was quite a very stout lady, of middle age, and to the straining crowd gathered above, her carriage also was an unfamiliar one. Never had it been their fortune to witness a spectacle more thrilling than the footman then investigated the doorway, and the mistress appeared at first to advise her hand with plaintively at it, until she discovered, or was informed, that it was the only way to obtain admission to the wretched premises. Christine from her post at the window above had recognized the lady. Lady Fordham herself! Then at once understood that she had been driven to earth, standing for a moment quite as if she had been instantaneously petrified, she asked herself what she was to do. Should she go down and meet her friend and hostess, and turn her back from further renown of the social world? Or should she remain where she was, thereby at the same time diverting her from any chance of seeing Ronald Dare's widow? While she was undecidedly debating during this, but the decision came too late. Somewhere, in the meantime, the footman had procured a candle, and consequently on account of the stairs was made quicker than Christine had calculated upon, the door of the room to which she stood retreated to, under any circumstances, and now stood rather more than usually open. The footman's head and the candle which he disdainfully held appeared together in the opening, then they were withdrawn to allow of the entrance of her ladyship, who held up her dress carefully with a carefulness born of disgust as she passed her dainty shod feet on the unspeakably grimy floor. Her ladyship's face had anger as well as amazement and disgust clearly visible upon it, as by the light of the candle which the footman still considerately retained her she recognized Christine standing waiting for her approach.

"So this is where I find you!" were the first words which her consternation enabled her to say. "She glanced round at the filthiness. "Gregory, you may go down and wait outside. Don't let those dirty people crowd round the carriage door too closely. Of all the places I ever set foot in in my life——"

The servant having departed, leaving the candle behind him, the darkness and gloom which even the fullest summer daylight never wholly dispelled from these abodes of poverty and filth, the Countess of Fordham drew a sharp breath.

"Caroline, are you mad?" she demanded angrily to know. "What are you doing in this human rathole, which any decent person would sacrifice a fortune rather than enter?"

"How did you know I was here?" Christine asserted her question with another question.

"Why, I wanted to know where you had gone—I considered it my duty to find out, seeing that you are staying so here in town under my care, and so I made inquiries; and, as it happened, Thomas's brother saw you come out of this place yesterday. Then, as this wretched street is a short one, I found it was easy enough to discover that a strange young lady had been visiting during the last two days. There you have the explanation. And now you must come away. I cannot let you stay in this den of dirt and misery another moment. What madness possessed you to come here? What are you doing here? And—why, what is that?"

The great lady's eyes, growing used to both the gloom and the capricious flickering light of the cheap candle, had at length discovered the miserable mattress and the form on the upper corner, with the long human figure, sharply outlined under a ragged blanket, resting heavily upon it. With a second exclamation she moved forward to make a closer inspection, but ere she had gone more than a pace or two she stopped short, her face pallid, her petticoat, whose dainty frills and wonderful shades of hyacinth-blue contrasted so oddly with the dull hues of the grime wretchedness that surrounded her. Never before had the room looked so horrible, so horrible, as Christine Darce crouched on the floor by the mattress, so now that this cold-hearted creature of brilliance and grace made its misery conspicuous. Slowly she advanced, followed now in the steps of her elegant society friend.

"Why, who is this?" Lady Fordham presently asked, turning her eyes full upon the young man's upturned eyes and alarmingly pale cheeks and lips. "Who is that? And what does it all mean? Is it this man you have been coming here to see?"

Christine faltered her reply.

"Yes, I—I know him. His name is Ronald—Mr. Ronald, and he died yesterday. I have been helping him a little—as much as I could. I am waiting now for Mr. Brian to come—Brian, you know. He will do everything more that needs to be done. When he comes I will go home, but I cannot before, because there is no one else but me to watch here."

Lady Fordham looked at her still amazedly and a little doubtfully, and then looked back at the cold, moveless features and form of the lad—he still looked no more than a lad—whose soul had gone back to the Gift that gave it.

"But what have you to do with him? How is it your business to watch him?"

Confused, Christine did not immediately reply. Fortunately Lady Fordham took her reply for granted.

"It is another of your charitable works, I suppose. Really, child, you are too good."

But she is carrying it too far. It is madness—shocking, cruel madness. What do you think, Caroline, you will feel if she should see you here now, in these dirty holes, where there is a dead man with whom you have nothing whatever to do? You a girl brought up so hardly to know what dirt and poverty mean? Why, it is unpardonable! And certainly I cannot allow it. You must come away with me at once. If it is necessary to wait, I am glad that I found you out so easily, and that the carriage is waiting for you."

Christine recalled a little before the anger that flashed in the speaker's eyes. Lady Fordham was a pleasant enough woman in ordinary circumstances, but the surprise of the present situation had laid her into a state positive anger. The girl replied her, however, gently, but firmly.

"Dear Lady Fordham, I cannot, indeed, go with you now. The wretched man, Mr. Hardy—Mr. Hardy comes, because I have a message to deliver to him. It is a dying message, and I must not fail to deliver it. And I am sure that I shall not have to wait much longer, as expecting Mr. Hardy at every moment. I cannot go now, but I will give you my word, if you wish it that I will come to you at the first time."

Her elegant friend and chaperone looked at her accusingly.

"I thought I understood that your mother and Lord Montbore did not wish you to meet this Mr. Hardy again," said she, presently. "How can I be sure that you are not deceiving me about the reason for your staying here, and that the real reason is not your wish to have some love talk here alone with Mr. Hardy?"

"Lady Fordham!" Christine exclaimed in keen reproach. It was her turn now to show anger.

The worldly society woman then suppressed because of the presence of death an uncomfortable desire to laugh which had been on the point of rippling from her prettily curved lips.

"The carriage shall regain for you in an hour's time," she said with decision. "I shall expect you to be ready then."

She went out and Christine lighted her way down the dilapidated staircase. Once more the people of the squalid, lowclass street had the pleasure of seeing what they had never seen so near their homes before—a real, flesh-and-blood English peeress, and the horses started again with the clatter of hoofs and the uproarious cobbles of the narrow roadway, and before the noise had died into silence, and before the heads had been withdrawn from the rows of dirty upper windows, the figure of Brian Hardy had appeared upon the scene. He looked, by location, the house he wanted to find, and made his way up the stairs as quickly as was possible to the room in which Christine and her dead brother awaited him together.

"Christine! Are you here alone?—here, in this miserable place?"

"Brian! Oh, I could not have waited much longer!" Thank Heaven you have come at last!"

Their eyes met in a long look that was in itself a caress. On Brian's part, the look had a more passionate worship in it than even he lovelighted eyes had ever held for her before. But he spoke no further word then. He went to the corner where the poor makeshift bed was, and knelt down beside it and bowed his head. Christine knelt there too, and they prayed together. He knew nothing yet of how Ronald Dare had come to be living here and to die here. When they had risen from their knees, the girl who was to him as his very second self began to tell him the story. When the telling was all over and the time was nearly come for the carriage to call for her, she asked him for the third time the same question:

"Are you quite sure, Brian, that we shall be doing right in telling no one? Are you sure that I did right to promise him that no one but you should be told?"

Brian Hardy waited, looking down at the serene face of the twenty-year-old boy whose soul had fled.

I think God will forgive us for keeping his secret," he decided at last. "And in any case I am sure that the telling of it would have cut short your mother's life by many years."

Soon after that she went out, leaving him to do all that remained to be done for the poor young fellow whose death seemed to her to have taken from her a part of her own life. And, in the moment of saying good-bye, after the discussing of Ronald's secret had brought them closer still to each other, he had any word of Brian's led her to feel that he hoped still that her severance from him might not be for ever?

Certainly her bounding heart had been conscious that something in his words conveyed that bold and wondrous hope. The thought of it thrilled her even amid her sore and poignant sorrow.

CHAPTER XXV.

The clatter of hoofs and the noise of rolling wheels, which had seemed to be the much-impressed inhabitants of the sordid street that the carriage which had conveyed them and Lord Montbore had returned. Christine heard, too, as she stood silent and agitated in the miserable chamber of death which the presence of Brian Hardy had transformed for her into a palatial room of brightness, of inspiring faith, and still more suddenly reviving hope. She crossed the floor to the bed, knelt down beside her dead brother and passionately and repeatedly kissed the cold forehead. Then, letting back the veils that were surging up anew in her throat, and yielding her own pure forehead in turn to be kissed by the man who a few weeks before had been her affianced husband, she went out from the room and into the house and into the waiting brougham. She gave an order to the coachman to drive her to a certain address in the neighborhood of Kings Cross. She was going for the second time, as she had said, to see Harry Lewisham, the young man of whom her brother had spoken to her, and to try to save him.

When she reached his lodgings it was to be again disappointed. He was not at home, the landlady said; she did not know where he was, and when he was likely to return. He had told her to make his excuses to the young lady, if she should come.

Then Christine drove to Lombard Street to seek an interview with Mrs. Crookenden. But the great woman millionaire and financier was not in her office. She had been there early that morning, but had driven back to Grosvenor Square. Neither Christine followed her, as on the evening at the world-famous house that was said to possess more genuine art treasures than any European museum, she was shown immediately into one of the drawing-rooms.

Could this be a mere drawing-room, this veritable chamber of Paradise with its wonderful ceiling paintings, its fire-opal, its tapestries from Gobelin, its soft, rich carpets, its marvellous brocaded silks, its carefully arranged banks of exotic palms and ferns and white and rose flowers, its gold ornaments and its priceless treasures of Sevres and Dresden? Christine Dare was well enough accustomed to splendid rooms full of splendid and costly furnishings and bric-a-brac, but this room was such a one as she had never before dreamed of, much less beheld. She felt herself to be a jarring element in it in her plain-made black frock and her mourning and of humility. She did not know that her face, marred though it was by pain and grief, was an ornament of so much beauty as made all these costly treasures about her seem poor and insignificant in comparison.

"How do you do, Miss Dare?"

The owner and mistress of the room had entered by a stately vision of huge hand-some figure in a rose-colored velvet gown embroidered with gold lilies, whose pistils glittered each with a diamond or a pearl. She advanced towards the girl in her statelliest and coldest manner. Perhaps she had already guessed that her present visitor had come on no errand of glimpering, latter-day friendship, or even of peace.

"You wished to see me? I have not much time to spare, but I can give you a quarter of an hour or so."

"That is all I shall want," Christine returned with a strange, new dignity in her manner. "What I have come to say will not take long in the telling. I have come in the first place to ask you if you can tell me where Mr. Harry Lewisham is at present to be found."

A slight surprise became visible on Mrs. Crookenden's countenance. Her eyes, too, became defiant.

"May I ask who is Mr. Harry Lewisham?" she icily inquired.

Christine Dare's steadfast grey eyes met her insolent dark eyes without flinching.

"You know very well who he is," the girl answered quietly. "He is the young bank clerk whom you have lately led into the paths of dishonesty and dishonor in order that thereby you might fit him for your scandalous secret service. I have heard about him, and I want to try to save him. I have called twice at his lodgings, but he is not there. I gather that he has gone away on some errand of yours, and I have therefore come to ask you to tell me where I may follow and find him."

The commanding figure of the woman millionaire stiffened beneath its drapery of gold-embroidered velvet.

"I am afraid, Miss Dare, that I must decline to give you the information you ask for," was her coldly contemptuous reply. "May I point out at the same time that your insolence towards me may be disastrously imprudent at a time when your family—or, to speak more personally, your father—is entirely dependent upon my forbearance for the averting of immediate and irreparable ruin? You are aware, of course, that The Uplands is mortgaged to me, and that upon your father's failure to pay the interest on the mortgage when it becomes due a failure which is practically certain I shall have it in my power to take the extreme measure of turning you all off the estate as soon as I choose to do so. It would therefore be wiser in you to take more care not to anger me."

But Christine's steadfast eyes still continued to look fearless condemnation into her fierce eyes.

"I would rather meet any disaster—I would rather die of want than stand by and see evil done without trying to check the doing of it," was her brave rejoinder. "In the particular case of the clerk Lewisham there is a soul to be saved. You have lost so many souls already that I wonder you are not afraid to go to sleep at night; yes, or to wake up in the morning to face the daylight that may show up your pitiless cruelties. If my words anger and madden you, you must remember that I have lost a brother through your ill-doing. Oh, I know the whole bitter story! I have heard it from Ronald's dying lips." A sob thickened her voice. "He, the bravest and most honorable of boys has gone down through dishonor to the grave, breaking the hearts of those who loved him. Nor was he the only one of our blood to be your victim. You have stricken all of us. I can see this plainly now. Through sleepless nights I have lain and thought out the calamities which have overtaken us in the past years, and I have seen your hand behind all of them. You have been our evil genius. Your malignity has been the curse under which people have said we labored. Your influence was behind the death of my two brothers, the wrecking of my mother's life. The financial losses that we have suffered, and the ruin of my own plans in connection with the man I love. And why? Why? Have we ever injured you, we Dares? Has any one of us been guilty of anything to give you cause for vengeance against us?"

"Yes. The woman made powerful by greater riches than the world had ever seen possessed by one individual before had nodded quietly. "You have hit on the right word—Vengeance. I have struck at the truth in the cause of vengeance against you, and all that you—as a family—have suffered has been only a just retribution. One, more than twenty years ago, your father did me a great wrong. I am now revenging myself for that wrong. That is all. If I would have long enough to do it I would visit the sin of the father not only upon all the members of his present family, but also upon those Dares who are yet to be born—should there be any—unto the third and fourth generation. But that is impossible to any one whose sum of years will not equal the sum of years of Methuselah. So I do what I can in the shorter time allotted to me."

Christine Dare stood with consternation stamped upon her face.

"What was the wrong that my father did you?" she asked presently, when she found strength and calmness for speech. "Was it a wrong as he has atoned for twenty years ago, when he has only known you for less than a quarter of that time?"

The woman's face was at this time the living representative of Mammon in London, smiled again.

"It is true that he has only known Mrs. Crookenden for a short period," she rejoined, still very quietly; "but I was not Mrs. Crookenden when he dealt me the injury for which I am now taking vengeance."

"You were not Mrs. Crookenden?" the girl who confronted her gasped out. "Who were you then?"

"That is what I do not choose to tell you—not yet, at least. Neither can I tell you yet the nature of the wrong which your father did me. It may be that in the future I shall see my way to enlighten you on these points; but I cannot do so now."

There was a long silence. Then Christine said—

"And in the meantime will you not tell me where I can find this young man, Harry Lewisham?"

"No," came the cold reply. "I see no reason why I should tell you."

Christine bent her head, and moved across the room towards the door. After half a dozen steps, however, she stopped and looked back.

"If I could only feel that you were a human woman I should plead to you for this young man," she said. "But you cannot surely be a human woman like the rest of us. You have a heart of stone. I can only hope that God will deal with you more mercifully than you have dealt with your fellow-creatures."

When she turned again upon her outward way, it was to see the little broker, Ferdy Pocock, hurrying into the room. He gave her a glance of surprise, but otherwise took no notice of her.

"Lord Bernard Gauntlet will arrive in London this evening," the girl heard him announce.

(To be continued.)

"FROM THE RANKS."

Officers Who Started Their Military Career as Privates.

That it is quite possible for a private to rise, step by step, through the British Army, to the rank of General, we are reminded by the news of the recent death of Sir Luke O'Connor, who was one of the earliest rankers to do this.

He enlisted in one of the Welsh regiments when a young man, went through the Crimean War, was given a commission for signal bravery and ability, made a great name for himself when he was awarded the newly-created V.C. for saving the colors in action, and then rose until at length his career was crowned by his being made a full general and a knight.

But Luke O'Connor was not actually the first of these noted rankers who rose to be celebrated generals. Probably Sir John Elley could claim that distinction.

John Elley entered the Army by enlisting as a private in the Horse Guards, and so won the confidence and commendation of his superiors that he was given a commission. In the end he became a "Sir," and a full general.

The Duke of Wellington looked on Elley as one of his cleverest and most reliable men. Indeed, at Waterloo few of our leaders were so much trusted and consulted by Wellington as was General Elley.

Then we might mention Joseph Brome, who came into the Army as a little drummer-boy. He fought so well in battle, and displayed such early evidence of precocity as a soldier and leader, that he was given a lieutenancy, rose quickly to higher posts, and ended his military career by becoming lieutenant-general.

Joseph Brome sounded quite a family of great soldiers, for since his death both his son and his grandson have become generals.

In our own days we had General Hector Macdonald, whose tragic career is too well known to need revition. Enough to mention here that Macdonald entered a Highland regiment, showed himself so brave and able in battle that, when offered the choice of a V.C. or a commission, he chose the latter, and then rose quickly to the heights he attained during the South African campaign.

Also we must not forget William McBean, perhaps the greatest rival "Micky" O'Leary has had amongst soldiers of past days as the "one man attacker" of an army. At Lucknow McBean, with his own hand, killed eleven of the mutineers in single combat. After receiving a commission in due course he was promoted till he at last found himself General W. McBean.

It is characteristic of the cool way he had of looking at things that, in response to the congratulations of his captain at his feat just described, he answered:

"Tut, tut, sir! Why, the whole job didna tak' me twenty meenits!"

Newly Married.

Bilton: "What is the reason for Jink's sudden pseudo-pompous, dignified manner?"

Tilton: "He recently married, and he's trying to live up to his wife's opinion of him."

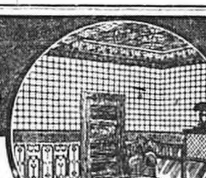
German officers are forbidden to patronize matrimonial agencies.

The time which elapses between the utterance of a sound and its return must be more than one-twelfth of a second to form an echo.

The date when the horse first became a domestic animal is unknown, so long ago did this take place.

When A Woman Wants

her summer Dresses—her "frilly things"—her fine linens—to look their whitest and daintiest—she is very particular to use



Silver Gloss
LAUNDRY STARCH

It gives that delightfully satin finish. : :

YOUR GROCER HAS IT.

The Canada Starch Co. Limited, Montreal

Beautiful Walls For Your Home
Sanitary, Fire-Proof, Inexpensive

Make your home more attractive, and protect it from fire with these beautiful, sanitary

"Metallic" Ceilings and Walls

They will out-last the building and are very inexpensive. They can be brightened from year to year with a little paint at a trifling cost. Made in innumerable beautiful designs suitable to all styles of rooms. Can be erected over old plaster as well as in new buildings. Write for catalogue.

We must shortly complete a line of Sheet Metal Roofing Materials.

THE METALLIC ROOFING CO., LIMITED
Manufacturers
King and Dufferin Sts., TORONTO 797 Notre Dame Ave., WINNIPEG

SPOHN'S DISTEMPER COMPOUND

PATHOGENIC GERMS

The diseases germs that cause Distemper, Pneumonia, Epizootic, Influenza, Colds, Sore Throat, etc., are easily destroyed and expelled from the system by using "SPOHN'S." This remedy also multiplies and strengthens the health germs in the system, and fortifies the horse, mare or colt against such contagious diseases. "SPOHN'S" is always safe and ready, and never fails to do the intended work. All druggists and large goods houses, or delivered by express.

SPOHN MEDICAL CO.,
Chemists and Bacteriologists, Goshen, Ind., U.S.A.

Few products in household use to-day have bridged the gap from the primitive things of sixty years ago as has

Redpath Sugar

Canada's first refined sugar, "Ye Olde Sugar Loafe" of 1854, was REDPATH; so was the first Canadian granulated sugar, in 1880, and the first Sugar Cartons in 1912.

The leader in every advance, Redpath Sugar stands to-day first in the estimation of tens of thousands of Canadian families. 131

Ask for "REDPATH" in Individual Packages.

2 and 5 lb. Cartons. 10, 20, 50 and 100 lb. Bags.

CANADA SUGAR REFINING CO., LIMITED, MONTREAL.

WOMEN'S WEAKNESS AND HEALTH PERILS

Anaemia Comes so Gratefully That the Victim Scarcely Realizes the Hold the Trouble Has Upon Her Until Almost in a Decline.

Woman's work is more wearing than man's because it lasts almost every waking hour. There is no eight or nine hour day for the breadwinner's wife, and often she toils under the greatest difficulty because her strength is below what it should be. The woman who is indoors all day is very often careless about what she eats and does not keep her blood up to the mark. It becomes thin and poor, which makes her weak, headachy, tired, breathless and liable to pains in the back and sides, the scourge of her sex. New blood will do wonders for the woman who is tired out, who aches all over when she rises in the morning and feels unaccountably depressed. She can gain new blood now, and drive away the pains and aches and tiredness if she will take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They have worked marvels for other women and will do the same for you if you are weak, tired, depressed or suffering from backaches or sideaches. Mrs. Elmer C. Taylor, Calgary, Alta., says: "I was so run down with anaemia that I could scarcely walk without aid. I was not able to leave the house. I had no color, no appetite, and was constantly troubled with headaches, dizzy spells and a general disinclination to move about or do anything. My friends did not think I would get better, and even the doctor was apprehensive. I was constantly taking medicine, but it did not do me a particle of good. One day a friend asked me if I had tried Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I decided to do so almost as a forlorn hope. After I had used a few boxes there was a decided change for the better, and people began to ask what I was taking, the change was so noticeable. As I continued the Pills my color came back, I could eat my meals regularly, the headaches and dizzy spells ceased, I gained in weight and took a new interest in life, my cure being complete. I have told many sickly women and girls what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills did for me and urged them to take them and shall continue to do so, knowing what a splendid medicine they are."

Every weak and ailing woman who will follow Mrs. Taylor's example and give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a fair trial will find new health and strength through their use. Sold by all medicine dealers or sent by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Chalmers' Patriotism.

When Napoleon was threatening Great Britain Thomas Chalmers (who was then parish minister of Kilmany) joined a corps formed to prevent the French from landing at St. Andrews. He held two offices in the corps—those of lieutenant and Chaplain. And from his pulpit he delivered war sermons more impassioned than many that are heard to day. "May that day," he cried, "when Bonaparte ascends the Throne of Britain be the last of my existence; may I be the first to ascend the scaffold he erects to extinguish the worth and spirit of the country; may my blood mingle with the blood of patriots; and may I die at the foot of that altar on which British independence is to be the victim."

KEEP YOUR BABY WELL

Mothers can keep their little ones happy and healthy by the occasional use of Baby's Own Tablets. There is no minor ailment of little ones that the Tablets will not cure, and above all they are absolutely safe and positively no injury can result from their use. Concerning them Mrs. Henri Huard, Kingston, Ont., writes: "There is no medicine I know of so good for little ones as Baby's Own Tablets. They have certainly been of great service to me." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

A young couple were observed as soon as they entered a railway carriage, and immediately put down as a bridal pair. But they were remarkably self-possessed, and acted like old married folk, so that after a short time the other passengers began to doubt their belief, after all. As the train moved out, however, the young man rose to remove his overcoat, and a shower of rice fell out. The passengers smiled broadly. But even that did not affect the youth, who also smiled, and, turning to his self-possessed partner, remarked audibly: "My goodness, May, I've put on the bridegroom's overcoat!"

OUR OWN DRUGGIST WILL TELL YOU that Murine Eye Remedy for Red, Weary, Watery and Inflamed Eyes, Sore Eyes and Granulated Eyelids is a Safe, Reliable and Well-possessed Eye Comforter. 2 Write for Book of the Eye mailed Free. Murine Eye Remedy Co., Chicago.

The Americans want but little here Below.

MONEY IN LIVE STOCK.

The Canadian Farmer Will Benefit By the War.

Mr. Randolph Bruce, a well-known rancher in Western Canada, has just returned from Europe with many interesting opinions as to the effect that the war will have on the Canadian farmer. The immense slaughter of cattle for the armies in the field will, he thinks, very shortly cause a great increase in the price of beef, and those farmers who are raising cattle will make more money even than those who are raising wheat at a dollar-fifty per bushel. Every effort should be made to raise cattle for the market in as large quantities and as quickly as possible. Mr. Bruce is a great believer in alfalfa as the most satisfactory food for the rapid raising of cattle for beef.

In this connection it is interesting to note that fattening young stock is becoming very popular in the United States where the market for beef is increasing so rapidly that more study has been paid to methods of increasing production.

In the early days cattle were kept on the ranges from three to five years. Experience, however, has shown that the use of thoroughbred bulls and the consequent improvement in the quality and maturing ability of market cattle, together with heavier grain feeding, has made it possible to put just as much beef on the market at from 13 to 20 months old. Experts are of the opinion that with the continued improvement of breed stock it will be possible to market at an even earlier date. Among the advantages of earlier finishing of cattle, the following are mentioned by some of the leading cattle men: Firstly, younger cattle make heavier gains of beef on a similar amount of feed than old cattle; Secondly, the money invested is turned faster, being turned over in eighteen months, where formerly it took from three to five years; Thirdly, heifers under two years old sell as readily as steers and finish more rapidly.

As the census statistics prove without shadow of doubt, the value of beef cattle in Canada is steadily increasing. In 1901 there were 3,107,744, valued at $54,197,341, or an average of $17.12, taking the good with the bad. In 1911 there were 3,939,257, valued at $86,278,406, or, an average of $21.90, an increase of $4.78 per head. Mr. H. S. Arkell, Assistant Live Stock Commissioner for the Dominion Government, says that never in our statistical history have prices attained so high a figure, either for cattle on the hoof or for meat in the butcher shop, as to-day. What it will be next year, when the full effect of the war is felt, no one can tell.

Wit and Wisdom.

In reply to a suburban Sunday School teacher a small boy stated that "an epistle is the wife of an apostle!"

Bride-to-be—"Dae ye ken, Jean, I've saved twa pound's." Bridesmaid-to-be—"Leezie, I'm dootin' he's takin' ye for yer siller."

Brown—"Jones is certainly tied to his wife's apron-strings." Smith—"Well, in these days, he is lucky if he has a wife with apron-strings."

"Before my marriage I told her all my past life. Don't you think I showed a wonderful courage!" "Yes, and a still more wonderful memory."

Caller (viewing the baby)—"Do you think he is going to resemble his father?" Mother—"I shouldn't be surprised. He keeps me up even now."

She (sentimentally)—"I was engaged to him three years—three beautiful, happy years—and then it all ended." He—"I suppose you married him then!"

No one is likely to live for one's own country if one is ignorant of it—ignorant of its glorious history, of its heroes and heroines, of its present perils and its great possibilities.

"Remember this, young man," he said, "only lunatics and rattle-brained idiots are certain of anything now-a-days. Wise men hesitate." "Are you quite sure of that?" "Absolutely certain."

A clumsy carver once sent a goose into a lady's lap. His apology was better than his carving. "Ah, madam, how potent your charms are; they attract not the living but also the dead!"

Mrs. Ryan—"They do be after sayin' that old man Kelly has got locomothor ataxy." Mrs. Murphy—"Well, he's got the money to run wan av thim if he wants ter, but I'd raythern have a good horse any day."

"Many a damsel who is a kitten with men is a cat with women," says Mr. Gelett Burgess. "The custody of the child used to keep discordant married couples together, but now," says a cynic, "it is the automobile."

A person entered an inn with a dog and an Irishman asked what breed it was. The owner looked the questioner insolently up and down, and then replied with a drawl:—"It is a cross between an ape and an Irishman." "Faith, thin, we're both related to the breast," was the ready retort.

Assassins were first heard of in Persia about 1090.

Says They are The Very Best

MR. J. A. HILL TELLS WHAT DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS DID FOR HIM.

He Suffered for Four Months from Kidney Trouble but Found Quick Relief When He Used Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Sixty-Nine Corners, Ont., May 17th (Special). — "I know that Dodd's Kidney Pills are the very best of medicines." Such is the statement made by Mr. J. A. Hill, a well-known resident of this place.

"I was sick for six months," Mr. Hill continues. "My troubles started from a cold that seemed to settle in my back. My joints were stiff and I had cramps in my muscles, my appetite was fitful and I was heavy and sleepy after meals. I had a bitter taste in my mouth and I was always tired and nervous.

"I used four boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills, and the great benefit they did me is what makes me say, 'They are the best of medicines.'"

Dodd's Kidney Pills cure sick Kidneys, and Mr. Hill's symptoms are the symptoms of Kidney disease, consequently he found quick relief in Dodd's Kidney Pills. They always cure Kidney disease.

Rules for the Baby.

Keep the baby's bib dry if you have to make sixty changes an hour. Give him not a scrap of meat before his third birthday. Save him from the kisses of friends. Keep the sun out of his face in his carriage. Keep his head above the clothes in the cradle, that he may not breathe his own breath over again. Lay him down to sleep on his side, and frequently change from one side to the other. Train him to keep his mouth closed by gently pushing it shut while he is sleeping. The air is filled with germs, dust and dirt—elements that are not good for human lungs. Never bandage him too tightly, especially in the morning after his bath and before his meal. Consider how you would feel if, after being bandaged as tightly as you could well support it, you were then to eat a hearty breakfast.

A Firm Believer in Destiny.

A sergeant of a Scottish regiment is a firm believer in destiny. No amount of argument with his more skeptical comrades can shake his belief in the slightest, he invariably closing the controversies with the rather illogical assertion that "when a man's last day comes it comes." The evening before the battle at Mons, when preparing to take a stroll, he was noticed by a corporal, a persistent opponent of the destiny theory, to quietly slip a revolver into his pocket. "Hello!" shouted the corporal, who saw a chance of ridiculing the sergeant, "what are you taking the revolver for? It'll no' save ye if your time has come." "I ken that," replied the sergeant after a moment's hesitation, "but, ye see, I micht fa' in wi' a German whose last day has come."

INSOMNIA

Leads to Madness, If Not Remedied.

"Experiments satisfied me, some 5 years ago," writes a Western woman, "that coffee was the direct cause of the insomnia from which I suffered terribly, as well as extreme nervousness and acute dyspepsia." (Tea is just as injurious as coffee, because it, too, contains the health-destroying drug, caffeine).

"I had been a coffee drinker since childhood, and did not like to think that the beverage was doing me all this harm. But it was, and the time came when I had to face the fact, and protect myself. I therefore gave up coffee abruptly and absolutely, and adopted Postum for my hot drink at meals.

"I began to note improvement in my condition very soon after I took on Postum. The change proceeded gradually, but surely, and it was a matter of only a few weeks before I found myself entirely relieved—the nervousness passed away, my digestive apparatus was restored to normal efficiency, and I began to sleep restfully and peacefully.

"Three happy conditions have, continued during all of the 5 years, and I am safe in saying that I owe them entirely to Postum, for when I began to drink it I ceased to use medicines."

Name given by Canadian Postum Co., Windsor, Ont. Read "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

Postum comes in two forms:

Postum Cereal—the original form—must be well boiled. 15c and 25c packages.

Instant Postum—a soluble powder—dissolves quickly in a cup of hot water, and, with cream and sugar, makes a delicious beverage instantly. 30c and 50c tins.

Both kinds are equally delicious and cost about the same per cup.

"There's a Reason" for Postum. —sold by Grocers.

Germs Like Girls.

"Fathers and mothers, lucky enough to have both boys and girls, know how clean the girls keep themselves, and how the boys disregard dirt. From earliest childhood the little girl's hands and face are washed, and she evades dress stains, combs her hair, and tries to look nice. But every normal boy, up to the age of fourteen, revels in dirt, and looks forward to the Saturday night bath with virtuous contempt or dread. But boys do not suffer infectious diseases as much as girls. This was brought out in an investigation made of 8,000 children of all ages and sexes. We requested the mothers themselves to report what diseases their children had had. Girls had had more infections than boys of the same age. This goes to support the modern view that dirt and disease have no necessary relation. It is not the dirt boys revel in that does harm. It is the germs in other people's bodies that should be dreaded. The girls encounter infection more than the boys because they are more sociable, meet other children more, and associate with them more intimately than boys do."

When a Woman Suffers With Chronic Backache

There is Trouble Ahead.

Constantly on their feet, attending to the wants of a large and exacting family, women often break down with nervous exhaustion.

In the stores, factories, and on a farm are weak, ailing women, dragged down with torturing backache and bearing down pains.

Such suffering isn't natural, but it's dangerous, because due to diseased kidneys.

The dizziness, insomnia, deranged menses and other symptoms of kidney complaint can't cure themselves, they require the assistance of Dr. Hamilton's Pills which go direct to the seat of the trouble.

To give vitality and power to the kidneys, to lend aid to the bladder and liver, to free the blood of poisons, probably there is no remedy so successful as Dr. Hamilton's Pills. For all womanly irregularities their merit is well known.

Because of their mild, soothing, and healing effect, Dr. Hamilton's Pills are safe, and are recommended for girls and women of all ages. 25 cents per box at all dealers. Refuse any substitute for Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butternut.

Retroactive.

Doctor: "You have nervous dyspepsia, same as Brown had. His was caused by worrying over his butcher's bills. I directed him to stop worrying."

Stranger: "Yes, and now he's cured, and I've got it. I'm his butcher."

Before 1858 the duties of the Secretary of State for the Colonies used to be carried out by the Secretary of State for War.

So powerful is the jaw of the swordfish that it has been known, in attacking vessels, to pierce through copper sheeting and oak planks to a depth of ten inches.

Had I put a anchor fall on my knee and leg, and knee swelled up and for six days I could not move it or get help, I then started to use MINARD'S LINIMENT and two bottles cured me.

PROSPER FERGUSON.

Seventy-two thousand criminals were executed during the thirty-eight years' reign of Henry VIII.

Of the many kinds of catarrh, one is entirely due to the pollen of daffodils.

Minard's Liniment Lumberman's Friend.

Buildings in Japan are very slight in structure because Japan is more subject to earthquakes than any other country.

The term "capital punishment" refers to the obsolete punishment of beheading, which affected the head, or "caput," of a person.

WAR ON FLIES.

Elimination of Breeding Places Is Urged.

Elimination of breeding places for flies instead of waiting for them to grow large enough to be killed with swatters, is urged.

"The dirty, dangerous, disease-spreading fly already has made its appearance in small numbers and as the warm weather advances will be with us in countless millions. The fight of extermination should be started now.

"The most effective way to fight the dangerous house fly is to destroy the places wherein it breeds. When you swat the breeding place you are swatting flies by the wholesale. If only a few persons in a neighborhood are careless about this important matter, the community still will be pestered with flies. It is a great deal easier to remove the conditions that cause the flies than it is to try to destroy them with swatters and poison after they are with us."

Here is a fly-killing mixture which is recommended:

"To a pint of milk and water of equal parts add two tablespoonfuls of formaldehyde. Place in shallow plates with a square of bread in the centre of each plate. The bread furnishes places for the flies to alight, and as it absorbs the mixture the flies will feed from it more readily than from the edges of the plates. It is a good plan to place plates containing the poison just outside the kitchen door, where the flies usually swarm to get in. The flies seem to like it and it kills them quickly."

Corns Drop Out

Instant Relief

Paint on Putnam's Corn Extractor tonight, and corns feel better in the morning. Magical the way "Putnam's" eases the pain, destroys the roots, kills a corn for all time. No pain. Cure guaranteed. Get a 25c. bottle of "Putnam's" Extractor to-day.

Too Had Murder's Forbidden.

"How much are those mouse-colored shoes?"

"Seven dollars."

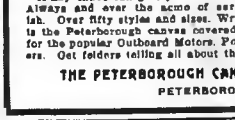
"Why are they so high?"

"European war."

"I thought the Suedes were neutral?"

Ask for Minard's and take no other.

A True Prophecy.



"My doctor told me I would have to quit eating so much meat."

"Did you laugh him to scorn?"

"I did at first; but when he sent in his bill, I found he was right."

Minard's Liniment used by Physicians.

"One of my daughters has tonsilitis," exclaimed Mr. Growler, "and the other has sprained her wrist." "That's hard luck." "Yes, nothing seems to work out in the way it ought to. The one who sprained her wrist sings, and the one with a sort throat plays the piano."

The man who marries a cook takes long chances. Cooks have a way of quitting their jobs on the least provocation.

Keep Minard's Liniment in the house.

The Simplon Railway Tunnel is about twelve miles long.

SEED POTATOES.

EARLY IRISH CORBLER POTATOES, specially selected and Government inspected for seed. Only limited quantity. Price, One Dollar per bushel. Delivery to station. Also Canadian Queen and New Snow, two excellent new potatoes. Price, Two Dollars per bushel. Special prices for large quantity. Cash must accompany all orders. H. W. Dawson, Brampton.

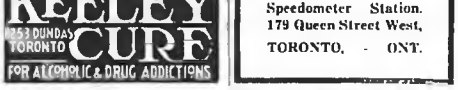
NORTH WESTERN GROWN SEED Potatoes. Extra Early Ontario, New Early Short Season, Manitoba Western or White Rose. First Grade, One Dollar, postpaid. T. E. Bowman, Aldershot, Ont.

NEWSPAPERS FOR SALE

PROFITMAKING NEWS AND JOB OFFICE for sale in good Ontario town. The most useful and profitable business. Full information on application to Wilson Publishing Company, 73 West Adelaide St., Toronto.

MISCELLANEOUS.

CANCER, TUMOURS, LUPUS, ETC., internal and external, cured without pain by our home treatment. Write us before too late. Dr. Bellman Medical Co. Limited, Collingwood, Ont.



CUTTEN & FOSTER

AUTO AND BOAT TOPS

Ford owners write for our catalogue.

SEARS-CROSS

Speedometer Station.
179 Queen Street West,
TORONTO, - ONT.

Canoes, Skiffs, Motor Boats

THE PETERBOROUGH LINE.

If any canoe can give you satisfaction, it is a "PETERBOROUGH." Always and ever the acme of service, model, strength and finish. Over fifty styles and sizes. Write for catalogue. The latest canoe is the Peterborough canvas covered. Ask for illustrated folder. Skiffs for the popular Outboard Motors. Power Launches, all sizes and powers. Get folders telling all about these.

THE PETERBOROUGH CANOE COMPANY, LIMITED,
PETERBOROUGH, ONT.

"Overstern" V Bottom Motor Boat $55.00

Freight Prepaid to any Railway Station in Ontario. Length 16 Ft., Beam 3 Ft. 9 In., Depth 1 Ft. 6 In. ANY MOTOR FITS.

Specification No. 2D giving engine prices on request. Get our quotations on—"The Penetang Line" Commercial and Pleasure Launches, Row boats and Canoes.

THE GIDLEY BOAT CO., LIMITED, PENETANG, CAN.

SINCLAIR'S

"The Hardware Store of Better Values"

The Ware That Lasts a Generation

You can cook the most easily scorched food in

"Wear-Ever" Aluminum Utensils

with less fear of burning than in any other kind, because aluminum is a better distributor of heat and retains it longer. This means a saving in fuel. And it means a saving in wear-and-tear expense, too.

"Wear-Ever" utensils are light to handle and easy to clean. They cannot form poisonous compounds with fruit acids or foods.

"Wear-Ever" utensils are made from thick, hard sheet aluminum, 99% pure, without joint, seam or solder. You can let food burn dry without injuring them. Cannot rust—cannot chip or scale—are practically indestructible.

Replace utensils that wear out with utensils that "Wear-Ever"

Sinclair's Hardware

BRUCE 'PHONE 11 :: BELL 'PHONE 30

OLAMIS

Home from Paisley High School for the holiday: Misses Alberta Kirktown, Nettie Gunn and Mary Webb.

Miss Lila Cunningham is on the sick list these days. We hope to see her around again before long.

Mr Earl Percy is spending a few days at his home here.

Miss Florence and Walter Webb is spending the holidays in Southampton.

Miss Mabel Kirktown is home from Enniskillen accompanied by her friend Miss Viola Cunningham.

W J McKeeman and family are spending the 24th at Lake Huron.

Mrs John Deehan invited a number of people to her home on Monday to sew for the soldiers.

Mr McCauley has returned from Tara where he spent a week at his home.

It is an imposition! That's the expression you hear from every person. On the part of whom? On the part of the farmer who owns plenty of land yet turns his herd of cows down through the village every morning to hunt pasture. But one of these days some person in need of a little pin money will drive the herd to pound. One of the frequent haunts of the cows is the school ground. They like crossing the walk which was put up to the school last year.

PINKERTON

(Intended for last week)

Mr Ewart Gale left on Tuesday of last week for Nipissing District, where he will assume his duties as fire-ranger. Mrs Gale left on Saturday to join her husband.

Mrs (Rev) R M Gale is visiting friends in Alma.

Mr Bald, I P S, made his semi-annual visit to the school on Monday.

The Young People's Guild of the Presbyterian church held a very enjoyable social at the home of Mr David Pinkerton on Wednesday evening.

Messrs John Chick and Wm Desmond were in the county town on Saturday!

On Wednesday evening of last week the Eden Grove football team lined up against the local eleven on the grounds here, the result being a win for the home team by 2—0. The return game was played at the station on Saturday evening, when our boys again won by the score of 2—0.

WILLOW CREEK

A number from here attended the Bruce Municipal Telephone meeting at Underwood on Friday.

A rally programme by the Y. P. A. will be given in the Evangelical church on Sunday, May 30th, at 2 p.m. Everybody welcome.

Mr John Wrightson is starting at the cement work of his new barn, and has the framing all ready.

CASTORIA

For Infants and Children

In Use For Over 30 Years

Always bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher

WALKERTON

Mr Andrew Catto, the well-known auctioneer, was operated on by Dr Lucy, of Guelph, at his home near Eden Grove on Friday last for a serious affection of the liver, and slight hopes are entertained for his recovery.

A letter written on April 29th by Gunner Wm C Wesley, of the Herald-Times staff, who was with the Canadian artillery at the battle of Langemarck, states that he came unscathed through the ordeal. Although they are still having a hot time of it, he claims that everything now is in their favor.

While driving to the Pinkerton station on their way to Walkerton on Monday morning last, Miss Mary McKee of the business college here and Miss Aileen Pinkerton of the Walkerton high school, were unceremoniously thrown from the rig by their horse stumbling and falling on the road. With the exception of some slight damage to their millinery they came through the ordeal unscathed.

In speaking of the death of Archie McFadyen, eldest son of Mr Hibbing, Minn, and an old Bruce county boy, who was born and raised near Glamis, and is well-known to the earlier residents of Walkerton, the Hibbing News of last week says: "Archie never married and had no relatives—several jackalls, claiming relationship, came here on hearing of his death, and finding nothing to appease their hunger, scooted back into their holes. There was not a drop of McFadyen blood in their veins."

Mr A J Ross, of Wingham, a former Cargill hardware merchant, was fined $10 and costs or a total assessment of $14, by Magistrate Tolton here this week for running his auto through the streets of Walkerton on the night of Saturday, May 8th, without lights. Chief Ferguson laid the charge, and Mr Ross admitted his guilt and came across with the coin. A similar charge has been laid by the chief against Mr Wm Becking, a prominent Culross man, who is alleged to have driven his car without lights between Hanover and Walkerton last Saturday night. The trial has been set for Saturday afternoon next at o'clock.

After drilling a distance of 110 feet, the Walkerton Egg and Dairy Co were surprised on Friday last to strike a regular gusher, which sent the water through an eight inch pipe about twenty feet into the air. The flow rivals, if it does not excel, the famous artesian well in Formosa.

Mr Joseph Whiteman, foreman of the cement gang on the 4th con Brant, is reported to have overheard an employee of German extraction declare to a number of fellow-workers the other day that if Great Britain tried to enforce conscription here that they would rebel and start a civil war. Unable to stomach any such remark, Whiteman, so the story goes, told the speaker to get off the job and go the Kaiser, where he belonged. "You have got all the British money you will get around here," declared Whiteman, as he signalled him the getaway sign and turned away from him like a bad smell. Then, it seems, somebody suddenly discovered that "Kultur and Kaiser" sentiments do not fill the floor barrel in this neck, and seeing $1.65 a day getting away from him, he grew wisely penitent and begged the boss to give him another chance, promising to never again give vent to a pro-German spiel, but rather to uphold the flag that fed him. Taking the admission at its face value, Mr Whiteman shortly afterwards reinstated the dismissed one and entered him on the pay roll again.—Herald and Times.

From the Orient

Hwaiking, Honan, China,
April 10th, 1915.

DEAR FRIENDS:

Another spring time is here. Would that I had the pen of Wordsworth, that I might picture its beauties to you, for surely nothing that Wordsworth ever described was more beautiful than is the spring season in this part of Honan. Perhaps I enjoy it all the more when I realize that in a little over a month the weather will be too hot to enjoy even nature. For three weeks now we have had a succession of bloom. First the snowdrops and jasmine, then the apricots and flowering almonds, the plum trees, the peach trees with their mass of pink, and the fragrant lilacs. It is these lilacs that make me think most of home and Canada. The other flowers are different, but the lilacs are the same and their fragrance just as sweet. And so, as I sit on the verandah in the evening with the breath of these lilacs filling my nostrils, the frogs calling from the city moat, do not wonder that I then feel that I should like to drop suddenly down in Eldersville. To-night I was reading Whittier's "Missionary":

"In the spring
And glory of his being, he went forth
From the embraces of devoted friends,
From ease and quiet happiness
He went forth
Strengthened to suffer, gifted to subdue
The might of human passion, to pass on Quietly, to the sacrifice of all
The lofty hopes of boyhood, and to turn
The high ambition written on that brow
From its first dream of power and human fame
Unto a task of seeming lowliness
Yet God-like in its purposes. He went forth
To bend the broken spirit"

And I read further on that his thoughts turn many times to home:

"Nay though the heart
Be consecrated to the holiest work
Vouchsafed to mortal effort, there will be
Ties of earth around it, and though all
Its perilous devotion it must keep
Its own humanity."

And so many times here, although in a land so pleasing to the sense, so beautiful and delightful, my spirit seems "amid the scenes of home."

"A holy name, the name of home
Yet where, oh, wandering heart, is thine
Here where the dusky heathen come
To bow before the dead and dumb
Dead idol of their own design."

We have the same crows and sparrows here, and they are just as musical. There are many magpies which are worse than crows. The Chinese are very fond of birds. Almost the only exercise a Chinese gentleman takes is a walk in the evening, bird-cage in hand, to give his pet an airing. Farmers who come from their homes in city or village each morning to work in the fields carry their bird cages along and hang them on a tree or a pole until evening comes and they go back again. There are many kinds of birds and many sweet songsters. Almost every one keeps fowl and eggs are very cheap. A hen may be bought for seven cents.

With spring time and warmer weather come a succession of fairs and festivals. Men and women walk many miles to these. They are usually held in some temple and the people come to worship as well as to purchase. A theatre is usually held in the evening, but a chinese theatre defies description. Many of the women going to these fairs call at the foreign compound as it is often the first time many of them have seen a foreign building and they are very curious. From cellar to garret they must go and they open any door they see. One doesn't get much opportunity to talk to them as everything is so strange and they want to use their eyes more than their ears. Still we never know how a few words may remain with them and we always ask them to come again.

With warmer weather also come many diseases and our mission hospital is crowded. Diseases of all kinds from diphteria and small pox to toothache. Men come with great cancers and growths, women with their poor bound feet slowly wasting away from gangrene, babies with sore eyes and such horrid sores on their heads. The pity of it is, many come too late as they try their own native doctors first. All diseases in China are believed to be caused by "chi" gas, and the favorite remedy is to stick needlesinto different parts of the body to let this gas out, needles have been stuck through an eye with, of course, loss of sight as a result.

Last Sunday was Easter and we had special services. The school girls sang as a chorus, "Low in the grave He lay," their first appearance in public, and it was a rare treat to the listeners. Will you pray that the risen Christ may be revealed to many hearts in China before another Easter season. Very sincerely

MARGARET WALES

Children Cry
FOR FLETCHER'S
CASTORIA

—The advisability of Canadian farmers growing large crops of flax, in view of the conditions created by the German occupation of the flax-growing areas in Belgium and Northern France, is urged in a statement issued by the Agricultural Department.

Travel where you will—in Canada or abroad—you find the

BELL PIANO

a leader in the realm of music.

If you would have the best, it must be a BELL.

Sewing Machines, Phonographs and Records

Records on sale at A. T. Bonathan's store

Full information for the asking from

PETER McKINNON, Agt., Paisley

Mrs. Jas. B. McKay

Seldom has it been our sad duty to record so sudden a death as that of Mrs. Jas. B. McKay, of 6th con. Bruce, which occurred on Saturday evening at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mr. Geo. Baker, of 4th con. Mr. McKay had driven over on Tuesday afternoon to have his horse shod at Mr. Baker's blacksmith shop, and was accompanied by Mrs. McKay, who when possible, always took advantage of such trips to visit her parents for a few hours. Shortly after arriving there the young woman went out doors, and a few minutes later Mrs. Baker followed, and found her daughter in a convulsive condition standing beside the buggy in which she had ridden over. That was the first sign of illness, and the attack became so serious and finally fatal that she could not be removed to her own home. The skill of doctors and best attention of all about her could not save her from the relentless hand of death. The deceased was of an affectionate disposition, bright and winning in her ways, and she was endeared not only to the bereaved parents in whom she was the only child, and to her sorrow-stricken husband, but to a very large circle of friends and acquaintances throughout the district. The funeral took place on Tuesday afternoon to Willow Creek Cemetery at Lovat. There was the largest attendance ever seen at a funeral in the district.

Children Cry
FOR FLETCHER'S
CASTORIA

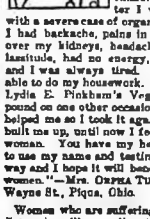
Forty-One Years Ago

From THE ADVOCATE, March 21, 1873

A goodly number of the members of Paisley Temple, I.O.G.T. drove to Chesley on March 7th, and organized a lodge of the order in that village.

The grist mills and water privileges which belonged to the late Col Valentine have been purchased by Mr. Stark. The price paid was $8,500.

MURDER AT UNDERWOOD—A report is given of the murder of a man named Price, near Underwood, on the night of March 18th. A quarrel had existed for some time between Price and another man named Johnston. On the night Johnston and four others procured clubs, entered a stable and awaited the arrival of Price and his party with their horses, according to the story of the case, where a violent and murderous attack was at once made, Price being killed. The murderers were arrested the same night, the reeve, Mr. Coulthard, having promptly despatched a constable and party of men for their apprehension. The prisoners were taken to Walkerton.



The purchase of a fire engine for the village is advocated in this issue.

Mr. Geo. Smith, being about to leave Paisley to live in Hamilton, was presented with an address and valuable comment tary by the teachers of Knox Church S.S.

FEELS LIKE A NEW WOMAN

As Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Dispelled Backache, Headaches and Dizziness.

Piqua, Ohio.—"I would be very ungrateful if I failed to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound the praise it deserves, for I have taken it at different times and it always relieved me when other medicines failed, and when I bear a woman complain I always recommend it. Last winter I was attacked with a severe case of organic weakness. I had backache, pains in my hips and over my kidneys, headache, dizziness, lassitude, had no energy, limbs ached and I was always tired. I was hardly able to do my housework. I had taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound on one other occasion, and it had helped me so I took it again and it has built me up, until now I feel like a new woman. You have my hearty consent to use my name and testimonial in any way and I hope it will benefit suffering women."—Mrs. ORPHA TURNER, 431 E. Wayne St., Piqua, Ohio.

Women who are suffering from those distressing ills peculiar to their sex should not doubt the ability of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to restore their health.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

The City Bakery

Is always ready to supply your needs. Why worry and melt over a hot fire? We are here to do your Baking for you. Let us try.

Other than baking we try to keep a fresh supply of Greens and Fruit on hand—as well as a full stock of Fresh Groceries.

We would appreciate it if the public would make their purchases early on Thursdays as it is impossible for us to maintain a strict observance of the Thursday half-holiday on account of our Ice Cream Parlor which will be open every Thursday evening.

We need your trade. Butter and Eggs for Cash or Trade, Dutch Set Onions for sale.

Bruce and Bell 'Phones

F. S. McLACHLAN

Solberg's Quotation

Sir Edward Russell, says E. A. Sothern, the actor, facetiously and in his book, "That Reminds Me," tells many stories of him.

He was dining at Portsmouth or somewhere at a regimental mess to which the officers had asked him with every show of the highest admiration and with no appearance of social superiority. After dinner, as the party sat at wine, one of the officers asked Sothern to give them a recitation. Now Sothern abominated that kind of thing. He wouldn't tolerate being treated as an entertainer when he was by way of being treated as a gentleman. He coolly declined. They pressed him. He flatly declined. Still they pressed him. He expressed his feelings. Perhaps the officers were a little affected by wine. At all events they persisted. They would take no denial.

At last he said in a manner which showed that he was nettled, but yielding: "Well, if you won't let me off I must. I'll give you the dinner scene from 'David Garrick.'"

He did. He had never acted it better. They were delighted until, springing to his feet, he made his wild, tipsy exit, just as he did on the stage, and dragged the cloth off the table and with it all the regiment's prized dessert china and decanters and glasses etc. Great was the smash. The actor did not wait to be applauded or to improve the occasion. The lesson was indeed, a rough one, and probably only a man with some roughness in his daring humor would have given it, but it was quite deserved.

How Hard Bees Work.

Darwin after extensive observation found that a bee would often visit as many as 27 flowers in the course of a minute, though with other plants in which the honey was difficult to extract the average would be as low as seven. Striking a mean between these two figures, one may say that an ordinary working bee visits 15 flowers a minute, or 900 an hour. Considering the late hours in which a bee works, it is probably no exaggeration to say that it is busy for eight hours a day, allowing for interruptions of rest. This would make it visit 7,200 flowers a day, or 648,000 in a period of six months.

Mr. A. S. Wilson in a recent paper showed the enormous amount of labor gone through by bees in making even a small quantity of honey. He found that approximately 125 heads of red clover yield 15 grains of sugar, or 125,000 heads about two pounds. As each head contains some 60 florets, it follows that 7,500,000 distinct flower tubes must be sucked in order to obtain two pounds of sugar. Now, honey contains, roughly speaking, 75 per cent of sugar; therefore the bees must make, in round numbers, 2,500,000 visits for one pound of honey.

The Barber Shop Boss.

"You're next, sir," said the tonsorial barber, indicating a fat man who was nervously polishing a paper. "I'll wait for awhile," replied the fat man. "I'm in no hurry." As another man climbed into the vacant chair the fat man leaned over to another customer who was waiting his turn and confided that he was in a hurry, a deuced hurry, but he would rather lose his turn than be shaved by the proprietor of the shop.

"It isn't that I have any grievance against this particular barber," he went on, "but I shun all boss barbers as I would a plague. In the first place, he patronizes you, and, in the second place, he is invariably the worst barber in the shop. Then, too, it takes him about twice as long. He will lather one side of your face and then go over to the desk to make change for a customer who is going out, for he is generally his own cashier. He considers it his duty to exchange airy persiflage with each customer as he leaves the shop, and by the time he gets back to you your face is caked in cold lather.

"This usually happens four or five times while you are getting shaved and you may consider yourself lucky if a salesman for a perfumery or soap house doesn't come in to talk up his wares. In that event you are bound to be kept waiting for 10 or 15 minutes and when you are finally shaved your peace of mind is destroyed for the rest of the day. No boss barbers in mine. I know 'em too well, and I wait every time."—Exchange.

Honors of High in the House.

"Utah Brigham H. Roberts!" sang out the clerk. Roberts, pale but self possessed, walked down the aisle toward the speaker's chair. At the end of the aisle Roberts stood with his hands resting upon the two desks at his right and left.

"How neat and clean he looks," whispered a woman in the gallery.

"He ought to," replied her companion, "with three wives to keep him tidy."—Chicago Times-Herald.

Clever.

Pocteo—Miss Wabash is considered the cleverest girl in our set.

Upperton (of New York, in surprise)—Clever? Well, I can't see it!

"But you haven't seen her handle a gun or punch the bag yet."—Brooklyn Life.

Steele's for

Horse Collars, Sweat Pads, Rubber Lap Rugs, Whips, Auto Plush Rugs, Star Harness Soap, Bickmore's Gall Cure, Axle Grease

Our Harness includes quality, durability, appearance and high-class workmanship found in no other makes of Harness.

Repairing Trunks, Suit Cases, Club Bags, Grips. Good assortment and close prices.

Harness parts and Repairing our Specialty

J. H. STEELE

Many Colleges Close for Vacation

Our College does not.

ELLIOTT Business College

TORONTO — ONT.

is strictly first-class. None better in Canada. Enter now, as we take a position in the early fall. One graduate writes: "My new position pays three times what I got at teaching school less than four years ago, first position to entering your College." We placed this young man in a position after graduation, and have now placed him again. Catalogues free.

W. J. ELLIOTT, Principal. Cor. Yonge and Charles Streets.

W. H. BAKER

Having opened a shop in Sinclair's old hardware building, Queen St. North, we are prepared to do all kinds of

Sign and Carriage Painting

HOUSE DECORATING AND PAPER-HANGING, as usual. Prices right.

ROBT. IRVING
PLASTERER

SEE Robt. Irving the Plasterer before letting any work in this line. Separate estimates for all kinds of plastering, or with Jas Dewar for whole contracts for erection of buildings.

R. T. ROBINSON
CARPENTER AND CONTRACTOR

ESTIMATES furnished for the erection of any class of building. Large or small contracts undertaken.

Address Chesley or Cargill P.O

PURDY'S LIVERY

Rates Reasonable, and every effort made to satisfy

F. PURDY

A Dominion Company for the People of the Dominion

Now, if ever, is the time for true patriots to patronize home establishments.

THE DOMINION LIFE

Assurance Co. of Canada

through 26 years, has fully earned the confidence of the Canadian public. It bases its claim to your consideration on

Its Unexcelled Results to Policyholders

Interest Rate 8.22% Mortality Savings 45%

Head Office: Waterloo, Ont.

Bull for Sale

YOUNG Thoroughbred Shorthorn 12 months old. Apply to J. D. McARTHUR, Port Elgin, R.R. No. 2.

—Clubbing rates with all the city dailies and weeklies.

The Paisley Advocate.

D. McKENZIE, Publisher
Vol. 47—No. 22

PAISLEY, ONTARIO, JUNE 3, 1915

$1.00 per Annum in Advance
$1.25 if not so paid

Women's Warm Weather Wear

In our Dress Goods Department you will find an up-to-date line of summer wear. We carry a line of Novelties in Dress Lengths only.

An unlimited assortment of Gloves and Hosiery to choose from.

A full line of Men's Suits and Furnishings on display at special prices.

Straw Hat season is now here and we have a full range of Sailors and Panamas.

Millinery at Half Price

In our Shoe Department you will find an up-to-date line of Pumps and Oxfords made over Pump and Oxford lasts, also a line of White Canvas Pumps.

Week End Specials

A broken line of Strap Slippers and Oxfords at clearing prices. For ladies' at 98c; Men's Oxfords at 98c; Children's Slippers at 79c; Men's Straw Hats at 15c; Mea's Felt Hats at 50c.

Wool Wanted! For which the highest prices will be paid.

Fresh Groceries Every Week. Highest Prices Paid for Farm Produce.

M. J. CAMPBELL

W. H. McFarlane's Old Stand : : Paisley

New Spring Suitings

See our goods and styles before buying. We have a large stock to choose from.

We Make a Specialty of . . .

Ladies' Tailoring

No trying on or worrying. Just leave your measure and we will attend to the rest. All the newest goods and latest styles from which to make your selection. Satisfaction guaranteed.

I. S. Cruickshank

Something New in Floor Covering

Congoleum

Cannot be injured by water and therefor can be scrubbed and cleaned frequently without effecting the gloss. Will lie flat on wooden or concrete floors without fastenge of any kind and not curl up or kick up. Made in Rug style in different dealgns and any size desired, or in imitation of wood flooring of any kind with borders to match. See samples of the goods and designs shown in catalogue. Prices lower than any other floor covering of anything like the same wearing quality.

By Buying Here You Save Money

We are also agent for the newest and best out door Clothes Reel, the "Clay" Lawn Dryer—the strongest and neatest device yet produced. Can be left out or taken in when not in use—just fold it up and carry away. 120 ft. of line guaranteed to carry the heaviest wash. Take it on 30 days trial, and if not satisfactory return at our expense. Here for inspection any time. Drop in and see it.

Fresh Groceries, Fruit and Vegetables always on hand. Highest Prices in Cash or Trade for Produce. City Dairy Ice Cream always on sale or served in our parlors.

Both Phones. Goods delivered to any part of the town.

City Dairy

A. T. BONATHAN

Hyde's Old Stand Successor to W. S. Mitchell

—Private funds to loan.
D. FORRESTER.

—Ebenezer Garden Party, June 17th, at Wm Grant's.

—Wilkinson plows and repairs at P. Carter & Son's.

—Marriage licenses issued and money to loan. T. H. GEORGE.

—All lines of this season's millinery at half-price at Campbell's store.

—Good driving horse for sale, 7 years old. Enquire at Advocate office.

—See our adv. in this issue if interested in wool. Ballachey, Laidlaw & Co.

—Full lines of fine engagement and wedding rings at I. Shoemaker's jewellery store

—FOR SALE CHEAP—Top buggy, auto seat, steel tires; good as new. Apply to H. B. PUTNAM.

—Caldwell's Calf Meal makes the calves healthy and fat. We have it. Ballachey, Laidlaw & Co.

—Highest prices paid for hides and sheepskins. H. E. McGregor, Butcher, Steele Block.

—Ladies' lightweight raincoats, suitable for summer driving, at $3.40. Ballachey, Laidlaw & Co.

—Salem Garden Party, on June 22nd, on Mr. H. Davis' grounds. Good programme being prepared.

—Highest price for beefhides, horsehides, calfskins, sheepskins, tallow, &c. P. OLTSHER, Paisley Meat Market.

—"Rough on Rats" clears out Rats, Mice, etc. Don't die in the house. 15c and 25c at drug and country stores.

—It's only a dollar, but it means a good deal to THE ADVOCATE if hundreds are slow in paying that on their subscription.

—LOST—On May 28th, on Elora road at Carg ll corner, an automobile jack. Finder please leave at ADVOCATE office.

—Ladies' low shoes $1.25, and misses' line shoes 95c—clearing lines in different styles and sizes. Ballachey, Laidlaw & Co.

—FOR SALE—A quantity of Metallic Shingles at a bargain. Could be used for lining granary, etc. Apply to ROBT. IRVING, Paisley.

—If you have a guest at your home, are going out of town for a visit, or know of any interesting news, kindly let us hear from you. We will always appreciate such favors.

—Just received at F. Stevenson's an assortment of pipes that will surely please some and select your choice. Tobacco, stationery, also our wonderful salve that cures burns and sores, soothing for burns.

—HOMESEEKERS' EXCURSIONS every Tuesday up to and including October to the Canadian Northwest. For tickets, rates, etc., apply at the Canadian Pacific Railway ticket office, W. H. McFarlane's old stand, Paisley.

—Five Roses, Rainbow, Purity, Cream of the West, and Stork's high-grade flours, also Bran and Shorts. Blatchford's Sugar and Flax, Caldwell's Molasses Meal, and full line of Poultry Foods and Tonics. Always in the market for coarse grains. E. G. ECKEL.

—Spring Specials—We can supply everything that is wanted by the farmer or gardener for spring seeding and planting. Many seeds usually sold in packages can be bought from us in bulk at much better value, all from reliable growers. See us before ordering. E. G. ECKEL.

THE DOMINION FEATHER COMPANY

Have opened an office in Walkerton. Feather beds made into down comforter. We also make the Soft Roll Feather Mattresses out of your old feather beds. Prices very reasonable. We buy new and old used feathers. Factory next to Royal Hotel.

Your King and Country Need You!

RECRUITS WANTED

A fit, young men in the County of Bruce between the ages of 18 and 45 willing to enlist with the Canadian Expeditionary Force for overseas service please forward their names to

MAJOR THOS. HAY,
O.C. 32nd Regt.
Paisley, Ont.

CARD OF THANKS

The undersigned desires to express his appreciation for the great kindness and sympathy extended to him by so many friends and neighbors since their bereavement.

JAS. D. McKAY
MR. AND MRS GEO. BAKER.

—Mrs. H. Irwin has been visiting at Niagara for a couple of weeks.

—Mrs. P. P. Ballachey, of Brantford, is a guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs S. F. Ballachey for a couple of weeks.

—The brass band gave their first regular out door programme on Monday evening, and the music was enjoyed by all within hearing.

—Mrs. (Rev.) R. J. McEwen underwent a serious surgical operation a few days ago from which she is recovering very satisfactorily.

—Mr. Jas. Coulter is building a new residence on the lot north of Dr. Black's, Queen St. south, which he purchased from Mr. J. S. Dewar. The building will be a veneered brick one.

—Mr. Jos. Foster, of 8th Bruce, has lost three head of young cattle this spring that died after about a day's sickness from some trouble that the vet cannot diagnose nor even determine after a post mortem examination.

—Mr. Art. Pfaff has been in Toronto for three weeks, keeping his brother Addie company in the hospital. The latter is progressing steadily towards full recovery, and it is hoped that he may be allowed to leave the hospital in a few days more and come home.

—There was a brisk horse market in Paisley on Tuesday, when the Imperial Army purchasing officers were here again. Over seven animals were purchased, chiefly from the local buyers, who had bought from the farmers and fitted up a lot from which few were refused.

—Mr. and Mrs. Joshua Wakefield announce the marriage of their daughter Amelia (Millie) to Rev. Robert Clyde Scott, B.A., on Wednesday, May 26th, at Vancouver B.C. The groom is a well known Paisley boy, eldest son of the late Robt. Scott. The Advocate joins heartily in congratulations.

—Ladies interested in the Women's Institute will please notice the change of date. Meetings will now be held the first Monday of every month. First meeting after change of date will be held in Pattison's Hall, Monday, June 7th, at 2.30 o'clock. All members are expected to take part in the programme.

—Lloyd Hopper, 11 years of age, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Hopper of Ellengowan, had one of his legs broken below the knee on Wednesday last. A large door of the straw shed was blown against him by the strong wind that day, with such force that he was fortunate to escape with only a broken limb.

—Dr. Black is still a patient, although he is able to be up and out of doors for lengthening hours out of doors. The Wednesday absence in this line that the changed time of a really valetudinarian, at times, now appears to be passing into the consumptive state, so that the Dr will soon be in a convalescent condition.

—A drop in live hogs is reported along this line of railway. We hear that on Tuesday the door of a stock car in which hogs were loaded at Port Elgin was broken and some of the porkers fell out between that station and Paisley. It is said that one large carcase was found beside the track near here. The fall from the car had broken the pig's back.

Archie McNeill Wounded

Among the list of casualties of Monday last in France the name of Archie McNeill appeared as one of the wounded. Archie was with the 48th Highlanders, and had come through the terrible engagements at Ypres without a scratch. He is a grandson of Mrs. Wm. McNeath, Paisley. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dan. McNeill, now live in Southampton.

Jack McLeod in French Hospital

In a letter to his mother Jack McLeod gives some particulars as to the injuries he sustained in action on April 13th. He wrote from Rosen hospital, from whence he hoped to be removed to England in a short time. He was wounded in the leg, thigh and back by an exploding shell. He says in his own optimistic way that he was very lucky in not getting closer to the shell (or the shell to him), as two other men were killed and four wounded by the same shell. He adds that, as it was the first one he could not keep ahead of, it must have been "going some."

Thos. H. George Wounded

On Wednesday morning official advice came by cable to his father here that Thos H. George, jr., had been wounded, and that further particulars as to his injuries would be sent later. Tom's last letter to his parents appears in this issue of THE ADVOCATE. It is over five weeks since he first went into the trenches, and in that time the 10th Battalion, to which he belongs, has figured in a lot of the most strenuous fighting at the front, some of their encounters with the enemy being of the fiercest character, with the list of casualties growing longer every day.

More's Wall Papers for 1915

Be wise in time and see our excellent aggregation of new and artistic effects in room decorations before purchasing your supply.

We have never shown a better range of Wall Paper or at more reasonable prices.

P. B. MORE : : Druggist

Established over Forty-one Years

THE STANDARD BANK OF CANADA

ASSETS OVER $48,000,000

A, B, C of Banking

y Saved is Money ned.

er Defer Saving, but Open a Savings Account to-day.

We solicit your account in our SAVINGS DEPARTMENT

PAISLEY BRANCH

F. C. RYAN Manager

Branches also at Harriston and Tiverton.

Paisley Meat Market

Fresh Beef, Pork, Mutton, Cured Hams, Bacon, etc. Salt Pork, Cooked Meats, Home-made Sausage (2 lbs for 25c), Bologna and Headcheese. Kidney Suet. Poultry in season.

Cash for Hides and Skins . . . Bruce and Bell Phones

P. Oltsher

J. S. DEWAR

PAISLEY

Builder, Contractor and Cement Worker

Brick or cement buildings erected, brick work, cement work and plastering contracts taken.

Cement Supplies Furnished

Building Blocks, Window and Door Sills, Culvert Tile, Well Curbing, Lawn Rollers, Lawn Vases, Verandah Columns, Balusters and other fancy Cement Products.

Building Material

Cement, Lime, Lath, Shingles, Glazed Sewer Pipe and Flue Lining, Mortar Color, etc.

Large supply of

Oilcloths and Linoleums

just to hand

Now is the time to get your new supply, before they are picked over.

We have also a good assortment of Squares, and our prices can't be beaten. Give us a call before buying.

For good Butter and Eggs we pay the highest price in either CASH or TRADE . . .

Both 'Phones

PUTNAM & SON

—Mr. Jos. Barker, a widely known citizen of Kincardine, died on May 25th, at the advanced age of 90 years. He was a Justice of the Peace and Division Court Clerk for many years, had served in the town council and was mayor for two years.

A Heavy Frost

Following the rain on Tuesday of last week, a cold blast from the north-east on Wednesday brought upon us the most severe frost we have experienced at this season for twenty years. Ice formed over an eighth of an inch thick on water in pails or other small vessels, and the plowed ground had quite a crust on it. Everything was heavily coated with hoar frost on Thursday morning. Early vegetables such as tomatoes and beans were totally destroyed, but fortunately few were growing here at that time. Corn and potato tops were cut down to the ground. Small fruit bloom such as strawberries and currants were badly blighted. Apple blossom had not fallen, and seems to be unhurt, but later the effect may be shown more clearly. Plums, cherries and pears are killed. The grain is what really suffered most in this section, and the extent of the damage can not be estimated as yet. All through central Ontario to Niagara and Western Ontario to Lambton and Essex counties the frost caught the fruit and vegetable crops which were much more advanced than heresbouts. Growers at Niagara-on-the-Lake declare that practically the whole grape crop is gone and most of the berries.

Suits to Order at $15.00

At the present time when everything is going up in price we are pleased to let you know we can give you a Suit in the latest style at the popular price of $15.00.

For Something Better

We have "Quality First" Imported Tweeds and Worsteds at $18.00 to $25.00 which are the best values, bar none, in Canada to-day and we invite an inspection of the new goods.

Ladies' Tailoring a Specialty

We Guarantee Satisfaction

G. B. IRWIN

Merchant Tailor and Furnisher

Boots That Stood the Test

AMES HOLDEN McCREADY LIMITED, Canada's largest shoe manufacturers, supplied, within thirty-three days, 32,217 pairs of leather ankle boots and 30,000 pairs of canvas shoes for the outfitting of the First Canadian Contingent, the largest quantity supplied by any manufacturer.

These boots were worn by our soldiers on active service both in this country and in the training camps in England. They were subjected to the most severe usage that boots could be subjected to. They travelled over rough roads and smooth. They waded through mud and through slush past all description. They were soaked by the never-ceasing rains of an abnormally wet English winter. They were baked on hot stoves, grilled on steam radiators and roasted before open fires. Yet, THEY STOOD THE TEST.

Out of the entire 32,217 pairs of leather boots supplied by this company only a single pair was shown to be open to criticism when the Government enquiry was made six months later.

Experts employed by the Government examined 1365 pairs and 145 odd boots made by various manufacturers. Among the number were found only seven pairs of boots of Ames Holden McCready manufacture, of which five were found to be repairable, one pair unrepairable, and ONE PAIR HAD A SOLE UNDER GAUGE.

The best proof of the durability and serviceability of the Ames Holden McCready boots, however, was afforded by the sworn statements of soldiers who had worn these boots constantly from the time they were issued in September, 1914, right through to March, 1915. They swore that they had worn the boots through all the rough experiences at Valcartier and on Salisbury Plain and that they had given excellent [illegible] throughout. Sergeant Nussey, of Toronto, who had served twelve years in the British Army, appeared before the Committee with a pair of such boots still on his feet and submitted them to the committee's inspection.

The testimony of these witnesses has since been amply corroborated by numerous reports and letters received from officers and soldiers at the front all testifying to the good wearing qualities of the Ames Holden McCready boots.

* * * *

When the question was raised concerning the quality of the Canadian soldiers' boots, Ames Holden McCready Limited placed themselves IMMEDIATELY upon record, by writing to the Government, as desirous of having the most thorough investigation of the matter. The appointment of a Parliamentary Committee and the official enquiry followed. It occupied several weeks' time. The Committee stopped at nothing in their efforts to get at all the facts.

This Company purchased the best leather and supplies available in Canada and spared no expense in manufacturing the boots. All our invoices, and shop and manufacturing records were produced before the Parliamentary Committee for their inspection and information. We had nothing to hide and were proud of the boots which were furnished to the Government.

THE AMES HOLDEN McCREADY BOOTS CAME OUT OF THE ORDEAL UNSCATHED.

The Committee reported to Parliament that the boots supplied by this company substantially complied with the sample, that no paper or other fraudulent substances had been employed in their manufacture and that all charges involving the integrity of this company or of the boots supplied by them had been abundantly disproven by the sworn evidence taken before the Committee.

The report, which was adopted by Parliament, was A COMPLETE VINDICATION FOR AMES HOLDEN McCREADY LIMITED.

* * * *

In bringing these facts prominently before the people of the Dominion, Ames Holden McCready Limited are actuated by the desire not only to protect their own good name — which needs no vindication with the thousands of Canadians who are familiar with this company and its products — but also that of a notable and important Canadian industry, which has been unwarrantably aspersed

AMES HOLDEN McCREADY LIMITED

MONTREAL - TORONTO - WINNIPEG - ST. JOHN
EDMONTON - VANCOUVER - DE LORIMIER - ST. HYACINTHE

The Darkest Hour;

Or, The Hope That Still Lived.

CHAPTER XXVI

"Why do you come here and torture me like this? Why do you not go away? Have I not given you enough?"

Enough! Is that for me? Enough for me to go, shrieking with and never trouble you any more? That will likely, my lady. That is a fine joke that is. You may be your pretty boots, to I don't go away, while there's a gold mine like you to stop over here for."

"Would you not go even if I were to promise to give you the yearly sum of money that you asked for in the condition of your going to Australia?"

Not me. I don't go to Australia, nor anywhere else further off than fifty miles, for any income you may like to name. I should have been soft as the drunk you said I would. I'd be a blooming fool but I ain't such a blooming fool as that not yet. I find these are sunnery a first-rate place to live in and I mean to live here to the end of my days. A fellow can make such a lot with his money over here. I'm going to stick to your ladyship like a leech. If I ever said I didn't mean to, I must have been drunk, that's all."

Whether or not the speaker had been drunk on any previous occasion he was most undeniably drunk now. He was a short, red-faced man, with features that must once have been handsome, but had been spoiled many years since by dissipation and evil-living. He was well dressed in a frock-coat, fairly fashionable, and looked what he was, and no better, namely, a groom or stableman who at the age of fifty had left service and was living on a mysteriously gotten income, whose amplesse many a professional man of excellent standing might reasonably have envied. His name was James Cannon, and the scene of his present interview with Lady Dare for she is wise to whom he had spoken with so much unbelitting familiarity was the outermost of the two large conservatories of The Elms. The time was late in the evening, and the place was fairly-like with a wonder of palms and ferns, from amid whose green leaves and fronds electric lamps peered bafflingly forth. Yet the only light brought by these lamps was not one of flooding light, but only of a soft radiance. In this radiance the conference and communion of the man Cannon seemed an outrage while Lady Dare, his victim, standing pallid and trembling in front of him, appeared to be years younger than she really was. Perhaps he may have thought that, in spite of her unrelieved mourning, she looked no older than she had done more than twenty years before, when he had first seen her. But his unsteady movements, his ruffianly laugh, and his reeking breath indicated that he had imbibed too much brandy to think clearly about anything for the next few hours. Ten minutes ago he had intruded into the conservatory by means of the outer door, which he had been left unlocked. Outside, the night was cold and rainy, and he showed no haste to quit the conservatory and go out again by the way that he had come.

The trembling woman before him had drawn back yet further from his hated presence.

"If you have made up your mind to that, you will certainly have by it," she cried to him, desperately. "By saying good my life's task together, and before very long. The strain is breaking me down day by day, and hour by hour. She looked at me to-night. Oh! how I wish, God, in mercy to me, would send death to you!"

For one rejoinder the commissioning man laughed rudely. The sorely tried woman put out her hands, as though the laugh had been a blow and she was trying to ward it off. At the same moment a figure emerged from behind a screen of palms that led green-like to the distant of the door, and two strong hands seized Jim Cannon by the collar in a determined grip.

"You scoundrel!" is that how you behave to a lady? Go out, and be thankful that you have escaped worse than simply."

The voice was Brian Hardy's, and the grip of Brian Hardy was hailing the half-drunken fellow in long strides towards the door.

But Lady Dare intervened.

"You had better leave him alone, Mr. Hardy," she remonstrated. "He has been rude to me, and maybe than that but he may very well be punished. He has the right in a way—I mean—I must hear it."

Brian Hardy had stopped abruptly, but still retained his firm hold of the offending stranger, who was resisting him almost savagely.

"Do you mean that this is the man?" he asked, openly.

Lady Dare understood the straight question.

"Yes, yes," she responded quickly, drawing short, sharp breaths. "He is the man."

He waited a moment. Then he said, "That is no reason why he should dare to come here drunk and be rude to you, and make you suffer as he was doing just now. Have you anything more to say to him? Do you wish him to stay here?"

Lady Dare shook her head quickly. "No, no. Let him go. I cannot endure his presence any longer."

Brian Hardy set his lips tighter and his grip on James Cannon's collar grew stronger still. He had largely recovered some of the strength of which the illness had robbed him, and he now used that strength to good purpose. Another few moments and the blackmailer had been thrust forth again into the rainy dark-ness of the night, and Brian himself was standing once more at the side of the mistress of the house.

"It is shameful that he should dare or to persecute and harass you," he was saying, with indignation in his voice. "Shall the startling paleness of her cheeks and the sharp anxiety that looked forth from her eyes. She clutched at the arm of her deliverer.

"He won't go round to the front now that he sees me," she said, "will he?" she asked, feverishly.

Brian laughed reassuringly.

"Oh, no. You need have no fear of that, you seem to forget that it is quite as much to his interest to keep your secret as it is to yours. The revelation of it would deprive him of his income. Remember that if he betrayed you he would have to go out into service again, instead of enjoying an income of a thousand a year or more while doing nothing. Dear Lady Dare, when I think of what you have just suffered, I wonder you do not realize that such confession of the whole story would be better and the safer course to take. Is not life at all, but only death in life."

"Ah! yes, but public dishonor is yet worse!" the unhappy woman wailed, despairingly. "I don't think you can have realized what the dishonor would be like. If it could fall on me alone I should not mind so much. It is of my husband and the children. Oh, Brian, what shall I am I saying? I have but one child now."

Brian opened his lips as if to speak, but closed them again before a word had found utterance. He looked at her silently for some moments, and then said:

"You do not ask me why I have come here I, who have no more right here than that fellow whom I have just thrown out. Do you guess?"

Lady Dare took her hands from before her face and looked at him unflinchingly.

"Yes, I can guess, she said. "You came to see Christine."

Brian bent his head.

"Yes, that is true—in a way. That is to say, I came by no appointment, nor with any reason except the desperate hope of a desperately unhappy man. I have waited about the grounds most of the afternoon in the hope that I might see her pass by. I did not dare to hope to speak with her or to make my presence known to her. I have nothing to say to her, except to tell her once and once again that I love her, and that the thought of living without her grows daily a more and more unbearable thing. And then I said to myself that after dark I would try the door, and if it were open I would come in here and wait, hidden by the palms, or by some bank of ferns, just on the chance that she might come out here after dinner. I tell you again I never meant to speak to her. I have not even designed to be seen by her myself, except by chance. Just to see her would have been reward enough for me. This is not right, perhaps, perhaps even you will think it is not quite honorable. If you think so, tell me to go and I will obey you. But I thought that if I did not speak to her it would not matter. Then now, I love her so! I love her so!"

In the soft electric luminance slow tears rolled down the cheeks of Lady Dare she put out her hand to the man who had her gaze so bravely.

"No, it is not dishonorable," she said. "You have never done anything dishonorable in all your life, and you will never do anything dishonorable. If it were not for my own urgent need, you should have gone to me for your own. And I think God that she had been blessed with the love of a man whose goodness would surprise her happens. But, even as things are, you shall see her now—and even talk with her if you like. I will go in and send her to you here. You need not talk to me of gratitude. What is the utmost that I have done for you in comparison with what you have at different times done for me?"

She left him. He listened to the murmur of her dress until it had died away. Ily that time she was back at the end of the immense dressing-room, where three tire sat writing a letter. The mother bent over her daughter.

"Christine, Brian is here—in the outer conservatory. He is waiting to see you. I have told him that you will be with him in a moment."

Christine rose flushing a deep red, and looked surprisedly into her mother's face. she read there that the danger was over enough, and that her mother's wish that she should see and speak with her former lover was perfect a sincere one. With a half-stifled cry of thankfulness and joy, the girl then almost ran across the room and through the other rooms beyond which divided her from the conservatory. Through the first conservatory she passed, thing no notice in her agitation of the flowers that she loved so well she hurried on, her heart beating fiercely with every step that brought her nearer to where the man she loved was waiting for her.

Sounds as of a scuffle fell upon her ear. Amazed she stood listening. Later got As she drew near the conservatory door another had told her that Brian waited, she became conscious that in the scuffle two men were struggling fiercely. It was a struggle of life and death. Half enveloped with consternation, she stood at the stopped short in momentary speechlessness. She was conscious that one of the two men was Brian, and that he was getting the better of the other, who was of much smaller build, although more desperate. A brief interval of terrible suspense and then the conflict was over. Brian Hardy stood with the other man at his mercy.

"I have found my enemy at last," he said, speaking to her across the little distance which separated them. "He followed me in here and concealed himself, and as soon as I was alone he attempted to stab me from behind with a dagger. He nodded in the direction of the door. But I was stronger the time, and have saved myself. There is the weapon down there." He pointed to a bright, glittering object on the tile floor. Will you get help while I hold him?"

The girl had stooped to pick up the thing which gleamed so brightly on the floor. In lifting her head, she saw the face of the man whom Brian held in the other grip of desperate earnestly, she seemed, for she had seen that face before.

Why, it is Mr. Powell," Verdy Powell Mrs. Crookenden's butler, who cried amazedly

(To be continued.)

VIVE LA FRANCE.

A Marshal's Baton May Be Found in the Knapsack of Jacques Goujon

A good deal is heard of brave deeds that win the Iron Cross and the Victoria Cross, but the heroism that calls for an award of the Medaille Militaire by the French Government seldom reaches us in the despatches. This token of valor is the highest mark of distinction a French soldier can receive. As in the case of the Victoria Cross, only intrepid souls may aspire to the Medaille Militaire. The wearer is among the bravest of the brave, and he finds himself in a select company. He is honored with that genuine envy characteristic of the rank and file of the French army. One of the youngest soldiers upon whose breast the decoration has been pinned in the great war is Jacques Goujon, a boy of 17.

Jacques volunteered at the beginning of the war. He knew nothing of the school of the soldier. He was simply the raw material of which heroes are made, and he soon proved himself one. The opportunity came when, with some of his comrades, he was ordered to locate machine guns of the enemy that had been very troublesome. The little party discovered the hiding place of the guns, but only after two German sentries were shot down. Before the quick-firers could be seized the French were attacked by a superior force and all but Goujon were killed. The lad disappeared into a hollow made by a shell, and remained there for 3 hours until the coast seemed to be clear. Emerging from his hole in the earth Jacques at once immediately return to his own lines, but decided to execute the orders given him.

Being an inexperienced soldier, Jacques spent no time in speculating about the reason why the machine guns, of which there were three, had not been removed by the Germans. Two of the guns he at once destroyed with bombs, and in the very act the boy was taken prisoner. But Private Goujon was not done yet. With ready wit and a pair of nimble legs he made his escape while being conducted to the rear. Later Jacques, pulling the remaining quick-firer, appeared in the French camp. No details are given in the meagre dispatch of how the boy achieved this coup. Probably darkness favored him. We know only that the Medaille Militaire was bestowed upon him, that he was mentioned in an order of the day by the adjutant of his regiment, and that he was promoted to corporal.

We have an idea that there is a marshal's baton in the knapsack of Jacques Goujon, although since he was honored in the presence of his comrades a shell has blown off one of his arms. However, it is only an incident in his career as a soldier—that splendid veteran General Pau has but one arm.

Must Be Mad.

Mr. Wealthy (to Pa) "Your daughter positively refuses to marry me, sir." Old Gentleman (quite beside himself with rage) "What! refuse a rich, amiable young man like you! Why, the girl must be mad! raving mad! I declare, if I were only younger, I—I'd marry you myself!"

Patriotism.

Rather unexpected was the reply of a Mrs. Tommy Atkins to a gentleman who inquired if her husband was at the front:

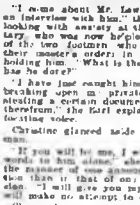
"Yes," she said, "an' I 'ope 'e'll serve the Germans as 'e served me."

Reduce Your Roofing Costs, Protect Your Buildings From Fire, Lightning and Weather

You accomplish all these results by using our heavily zinc coated

"Eastlake" Metallic Shingles

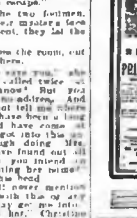
They give longer service than any other roofing. Cost less to lay. Are rust-proof and do not require painting. Those laid 28 years ago are still giving good service. Send for free book that shows how "Eastlake" shingles make your buildings lightning fire, and weather-proof and why they cost less per year than any other roofing.



We Manufacture a complete line of Sheet Metal Building Material

THE METALLIC ROOFING CO., Limited
Manufacturers
197 Notre Dame Ave., WINNIPEG
King and Dufferin Sts., TORONTO

Send For Free Book



BENSON'S Corn Starch
In the famous
Yellow Package

Don't ask merely for "cornstarch" or even for "the best starch", but insist on BENSON'S —the "Quality Starch" with a reputation gained by half a century's experience.

AT ALL GROCERS

PRESIDENT SUSPENDER
NONE-SO-EASY
MADE IN CANADA

Watch Your Colts

For Coughs, Colds and Distemper, and at the first symptoms of any ailment, give small doses of that wonderful remedy, now the most used in existence.

SPOHN'S DISTEMPER COMPOUND

Of any druggist. Turf Goods house, or

SPOHN MEDICAL CO.,
Chemists and Bacteriologists, Goshen, Ind., U.S.A.

60 years ago Grandfather got an individual sugarpackage—"Ye Olde Sugar Loafe" made by John Redpath, in what was then Canada's only Sugar Refinery.

Now, at less than half the price, his granddaughter gets a much improved article, also "individual"—

Redpath

Extra Granulated Sugar in Sealed Cartons and Cloth Bags
2-lb. and 5-lb. 10, 20, 50 and 100 lb.

"Canada's Favorite Sugar for three Generations"

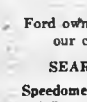
CANADA SUGAR REFINING CO., LIMITED, MONTREAL

STARVATION OR MERCILESS TORTURE

A choice between starvation or merciless torture is the dismal prospect before all victims of indigestion, for although they are in need of food to nourish the body, they are afraid to eat because of the long periods of pain and discomfort that follow even the lightest of meals.

The urgent need of all who suffer from indigestion is to gain strength so that the stomach can extract nourishment from the food taken. Pain after eating is the way the stomach signifies its protest that it is too weak to do nature's work. To take purgatives is only to aggravate the trouble. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills give new strength to weak stomachs because they enrich and purify the blood supply, thus enabling the stomach to digest food naturally. Almost from the first the appetite revives: then food can be taken without pain and the burden of indigestion disappears. The following case proves the truth of these statements. Mr. W. H. Silver, a well-known farmer living in the vicinity of Hemford, N.S., says: "For upwards of seven years I was tortured with indigestion; sometimes I was so bad that I would not taste a bit of hearty food, but would have to content myself with a bit of stale bread. At times I suffered excruciating pains in my stomach, and could hardly sleep at night. I tried various prescriptions, but got no benefit from them and naturally I was in a very reduced state of health. I had come to believe that I was doomed for the balance of my life to this most cons[illegible] ture, when I read of a cas[illegible] lar to my own cured through [illegible] of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. This gave me new courage, and I decided to try them. To make a long story short, the use of the Pills for a couple of months completely cured me. This is some two years ago, and I have had no return of the trouble, and am able to eat as hearty a meal as anyone."

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills through your medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.



"Safety First" Candle.

Candles can be easily fitted with attachments to extinguish the light at a set time. To determine the length of time it is necessary to mark a candle of the size used and time how long a certain length of it will burn.

Then it is enough to suspend a small metal dome or cap to which a string is attached directly over the flame and run the opposite end of the string over nails or through screw eyes, so that it can be tied around the candle such a distance from the flame end that the part between the flame and the string will be consumed in the time desired for the light to burn. When this point is reached the string slips off the candle and the cap drops on the flame.

COLICKY CHILDREN

Colicky children can be promptly cured by Baby's Own Tablets because these Tablets act directly on the stomach and bowels and cleanse them of all impurities. Concerning them Mrs. Jas. C. Slater, Summerville, N.S., writes: "I have used Baby's Own Tablets and am glad to say I have found them an excellent medicine for colic and loss of sleep." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

HOME STUDY
Arts Courses only.
SUMMER SCHOOL
JULY and AUGUST
QUEEN'S UNIVERSITY
KINGSTON, ONTARIO
ARTS EDUCATION MEDICINE
SCHOOL OF MINING
CHEMICAL MINING MECHANICAL CIVIL ELECTRICAL ENGINEERING
GEO. Y. CHOWN, Registrar

CUTTEN & FOSTER
AUTO AND BOAT TOPS
Ford owners write for our catalogue.
SEARS-CROSS
Speedometer Station.
179 Queen Street West,
TORONTO, - ONT.

By the Tomato Route

"Oh, dear, I wish I could go on a mountain trip this summer," sighed Alice as she and her mother sat sewing carpets.

"Why don't you try to earn some money," said her mother. "I've heard of girls raising chickens and doing other things to earn money."

"But, mother," said Alice, "you know I could never earn enough money. Why, it would take almost $15, and besides, I would want spending money."

"Well, it's up to you, suit yourself about it," said Mrs. Miller as she left the room to get supper.

But her mother's words had made Alice see things in a different light, and the rest of the day she planned ways of earning money. Many plans presented themselves, but all were rejected. Finally she picked up a catalogue that had fallen off the book-stand, and was just going to replace it when her eyes were attracted by the words, "A girl's way of making money." Eagerly she read the item. It was about a poor girl who had raised tomatoes and sold them. From half an acre of land she had cleared $25 in this way.

Alice's eyes shone with joy when she finished reading the item. "Just what I can do," she exclaimed, "that half acre of worn-out pasture will be just the thing. I'll go and ask father if I can use it.

Mr Miller immediately gave his consent to his daughter's plan and she went off very happy. The day following, after much planning and thinking, she decided to raise tomatoes. She had heard that they would be in demand about the first of August, and made her plans accordingly. For the next few days one of the hired men was busy manuring and plowing the half acre of pasture under Alice's direction.

"She's got funny ideas about raising tomatoes," he grumbled to Mr. Miller later. "I believe she has been reading that trash the experiment stations are giving out."

A week later Alice proudly surveyed her patch of ground which she had just finished planting with the plants her father had given her. Patiently and faithfully Alice worked through the spring and part of the summer until at last she was rewarded by seeing blossoms here and there on her tomato vines.

By the last of July Alice was ready to begin harvesting her crop. Every afternoon she picked three or four bushels of tomatoes and sold them in the city at fancy prices.

No More Corns
Cure Guaranteed
Never known to fail; acts without pain in 24 hours. Is soothing, healing; takes the sting right out. No remedy so quick, safe and sure as Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor. Sold everywhere—25c. per bottle.

"Breeds" Pearl Buttons.

The United States has gone into the business of "breeding" pearl buttons—at least that is what it amounts to.

A short time ago it was discovered that the mussel beds of the rivers and streams tributary to the Mississippi, from the inhabitants of which we get the shells from which pearl buttons are made, were giving out. The government stepped in and established limitations to the dredging of mussels in certain streams. But this did not help.

A more careful scientific study was made by biological experts employed by the government. It resulted in the discovery of some interesting facts about the life history of the mussel. Among them was that which proved that the diminution in the supply of pearl button material was not due to the taking out of mussels, but to the destruction of the fish in the waters.

It was learned that in its early stages of development the fresh water mussel is a parasite, its existence depending largely upon its ability to fasten itself to the gills or fins of a fish. Certain kinds of the mulluska attach themselves to a particular kind of fish. The "niggerhead" mussel, for instance, one of the most prolific and valuable varieties, is parasite to red herring almost exclusively, and the partial extermination of this fish has had a material effect upon the natural reproduction of mussels.

With this and similar information as a guide the bureau of fisheries has now established a research laboratory a few miles from Muscatine and has gone into the business of mussel farming.

Very Dear.

Clerk: "I'd like to get a week off, sir, to attend the wedding of a friend."

Employer: "A very dear friend, I should say, to make you want that much time."

Clerk: "Well, sir, after the ceremony she will be my wife."

Message of Hope For All Women

MISS MARY SABOURIN TELLS HOW SHE FOUND HEALTH.

Suffered for Three Years and Could Find No Lasting Relief Till She Used Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Thurso, Que., May 24th (Special). Tired, run-down women can read a message of hope in the statement of Miss Mary Sabourin, an estimable lady living here. In a statement to the public Miss Sabourin says:

"I was a sufferer for three years. I was always tired and nervous. My sleep was broken and unrefreshing. I was troubled with head aches and pains in my back. I had heart flutterings to add to my anxiety.

"I was treated by a doctor and a specialist, but nothing seemed to do me any lasting good till I started to use Dodd's Kidney Pills, and I took just three boxes of them."

Nine-tenths of women's troubles come from sick Kidneys. Sick kidneys fail in their duty of straining the impurities out of the blood. That means that poison and disease is carried to all parts of the body. The remedy is to cure the kidneys with Dodd's Kidney Pills. If you haven't used them ask your neighbor about them. Nearly every family in Canada is using or has used Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Salutes and Salutations

During the last few months we have grown so accustomed to seeing the military salute given and returned as scarcely to notice it. If we have a thought about the matter it is probably to the effect that a walk through the streets must be rather fatiguing to those in uniforms. Yet the soldier's salute has many advantages over the less graceful and definite forms of greeting in use among civilians. The soldier has or ought to have, no qualms on the subject; not only does he know whom to salute, but he is also taught exactly how to do it. At a stated time he is to raise the right hand with a circular movement to a stated spot, and after a stated interval he is to cut the hand smartly away.

The civilian has no such straight and simple path marked out for him, but must learn to greet his fellows as best he can. Some people never achieve anything but a frozen glare of recognition; others compel themselves to "grin horribly a ghastly smile," but it is so mechanical a contortion as to defeat its comparatively genial purpose. Others again begin smiling at such long range that when they come to close quarters their mod has prematurely spent its force.

A really good nod is one of the richest gifts of Nature. It diffuses so jolly and comfortable a glow that, if we spy the happy possessor in the distance, we cross the road just for the pleasure of meeting him. But this is a rare case, and we are more likely to plunge recklessly into a cab in order to avoid an acquaintance. There are enbarrassments enough in the matter of nodding without mentioning our horrid doubts as to whether or not we shall be recognized. Yet those doubts will cause men to pass each other with averted eyes, or with a jounty unconsciousness that never deceived anybody from the beginning of time.

WHEN DINNER COMES

One Ought to Have a Good Appetite.

A good appetite is the best sauce. It goes a long way toward helping in the digestive process, and that is absolutely essential to health and strength.

Many persons have found that Grape Nuts food is not only nourishing but is a great appetizer, and children like the taste of it and grow strong and rosy from its use.

It is especially the food to make a weak stomach strong and create an appetite for dinner.

"I am 57 years old," writes a grandmother, "and have had a weak stomach from childhood. By great care as to my diet I enjoyed a reasonable degree of health, but never found anything to equal Grape-Nuts as a standby.

"When I have no appetite for breakfast and just eat to keep up my strength, I take 4 teaspoonfuls of Grape-Nuts with good rich milk, and when dinner comes I am hungry. While if I go without any breakfast I never feel like eating dinner. Grape-Nuts for breakfast seems to make a healthy appetite for dinner.

"My little grandson was sick with stomach trouble during the past summer, and finally we put him on Grape-Nuts. Now he is growing plump and well. When asked if he wants his nurse or Grape-Nuts, he brightens up and points to the cupboard. He was no trouble to wean at all—thanks to Grape-Nuts."

Name given by Canadian Postum Co., Windsor, Ont. Read, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a Reason."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

A Brutal German Joke.

French Officer (to released French prisoner-of-war): "Well, how did you get on in Germany?"

Soldier: "Splendid!"

Officer: "Then you'll be confined to barracks until you can invent a story of ill-treatment."

COOK WELL AND SAVE.

Too many cooks add to the high cost of living by not knowing that the way meats are cooked may add much to their cost.

Nearly every cook knows that meats shrink in cooking, but not all of them are aware that boiled beef or broiled steak has more weight than a roast.

An investigation has shown that 15 per cent. of the weight of the meat is lost when it is fried or steamed; in boiling, 20 per cent; in baking, 25 per cent; and in roasting 30 per cent. of the weight is lost.

When you roast, broil or bake you may obtain the best results by having the intense heat combined with free action of the hot air which approaches the nearest to roasting before an open fire, which is what the makers of modern stoves aim for.

When the meat has been in a hot oven for fifteen minutes allow another fifteen minutes for each pound of meat while it is cooking. If the meat is boiled, a longer time is necessary, and pork requires ample time.

A Nova Scotia Case Of Interest to All Women

Halifax Sends Out a Message of Help to Many People.

Halifax, N.S., Dec. 15.—When interviewed at her home at 194 Argyle St., Mrs. Haverstock was quite willing to talk of her peculiarly unfortunate case. "I was always 'blue' and depressed, felt weak, languid and utterly unfit for any work. My stomach was so disordered that I had no appetite. What I did eat disagreed. I suffered greatly from dizziness and sick headache and feared a nervous breakdown. Upon my druggist's recommendation I used Dr. Hamilton's Pills.

"I felt better at once. Every day I improved. In six weeks I was a well woman, cured completely after different physicians had failed to help me. It is for this reason that I strongly urge sufferers with stomach or digestive troubles to use Dr. Hamilton's Pills."

Dr. Hamilton's Pills strengthen the stomach, improve digestion, strengthen the nerves and restore debilitated systems to health. By cleansing the blood of long-standing impurities, by bringing the system to a high point of vigor, they effectually chase away weariness, depression and disease. Good for young or old, for men, for women, for children. All dealers sell Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butternut.

His Reason.

"What makes him act so queerly?"

"He wants people to understand that he is the first person singular."

Ask for Minard's and take no other.

Mother Wit.

Mother (to son who has overslept): "You need a self-starter to get you up in the morning."

Son (sotto voce): "Not when I have a crank like you to get me going."

Had ship's anchor fall on my knee and leg, and knee swelled up and for six days I could not move it or get help. I then started to use MINARD'S LINIMENT and two bottles cured me.
PROSPER FERGUSON.

"Well, we have exhausted reason, logic, common sense, and justice. What more can we do?" "I guess we'll simply have to go to law."

Keep Minard's Liniment in the house.

A large white marble in a saucepan will, as it rolls about with the boiling, keep the liquid constantly stirred.

Branding for crimes is still performed in some countries, and was not abolished in Great Britain until 1822.

Minard's Liniment used by Physicians.

Russia Makes Biggest Bell.

Russia is in the lead in the line of bells, some of her manufacture being the most famous in the world. It is said that in Moscow alone, before the great fire, there were no fewer than 1,700 large bells. One called the Giant, which was cast in the sixteenth century and broken by falling from its support and recast in 1654, was so large that it required twenty-four men to ring it. Its weight was estimated at 288,000 pounds.

The Giant was suspended from an immense beam at the foot of a bell tower, but it again fell during the fire of June 19,1700, and was a second time broken to fragments, which were used with additional material in 1732 in casting the King of Bells, also a product of Moscow. The value of metal put into it was $300,000.

Sore Eyes
Granulated Eyelids, Eyes inflamed by exposure to Sun, Dust and Wind quickly relieved by Murine Eye Remedy. No smarting, just Eye Comfort. At Your Druggist's 50c per Bottle. Murine Eye Salve in Tubes 25c. For Book of the Eye free ask Druggists or Murine Eye Remedy Co., Chicago

He Hadn't Heard.

Teacher: "Where is the Dead Sea?"

Tommie: "Don't know, ma'am."

"Don't know where the Dead Sea is!"

"No, ma'am. I didn't even know any of the seas were sick, ma'am."

PILES.
You will find relief in Zam-Buk! It eases the burning, stinging pain, stops bleeding and brings ease. Perseverance, with Zam-Buk, means cure. Why not prove this? All Druggists and Stores.—50c box.
Zam-Buk

WEAR FLEET FOOT Shoes for every Sport and Recreation
Sold by all Good Shoe Dealers

Worn by Every Member of the Family

All men are born ignorants, and some never get over it.

Minard's Liniment Lumberman's Friend.

Many a man with a coat of arms has shiny sleeves.

SEED POTATOES.
EARLY IRISH COBBLER POTATOES, specially selected and Government inspected for seed. Only limited quantity. Price, One Dollar per bushel f.o.b. Brampton. Also Connaught's Pride and New Rose, two excellent new potatoes. Price, Two Dollars per bushel. Special prices for large quantity. Cash must accompany all orders. H. W. Dawson, Brampton.

NEWSPAPERS FOR SALE.
PROFIT-MAKING NEWS AND JOB OFFICES for sale in good Ontario towns. The most useful and interesting of all business. Full information on application to Wilson Publishing Company, 73 West Adelaide St., Toronto.

MISCELLANEOUS.
CANCER, TUMORS, LUMPS, ETC., internal and external, cured without pain by our home treatment. Write us before too late. Dr. Belhaan Medical Co., Limited, Collingwood, Ont.

KERMATH Marine Engines
"America's Standard 4 Cycle Marine Motor"

Canoes, Skiffs, Motor Boats
THE PETERBOROUGH LINE.
If any canoe can give you satisfaction, it is a "PETERBOROUGH." Always and ever the acme of service, model, strength and finish. Over fifty styles and sizes. Write for catalogue. The latest canoe is the Peterborough canvas covered. Ask for illustrated folder. Skiffs for the popular Outboard Motors. Power Launches, all sizes and powers. Get folders telling all about these.
THE PETERBOROUGH CANOE COMPANY, LIMITED,
PETERBOROUGH, ONT.

"Overstern" V Bottom Motor Boat $55.00
Freight Prepaid to any Railway Station in Ontario. Length 15 Ft., Beam 3 Ft. 9 In., Depth 1 Ft. 6 In. ANY MOTOR FITS.
Specification No. 23 giving engine prices on request. Get our quotations on "The Penetang Line" Commercial and Pleasure Launches, Row boats and Canoes.
THE GIDLEY BOAT CO., LIMITED, PENETANG, CAN.

Perfect Heat For Any Kind of Cooking
STRIKE a match—in less than a minute the NEW PERFECTION Oil Cookstove is giving full, easily regulated heat for any kind of cooking.
The NEW PERFECTION gives you, too, a cool, comfortable kitchen. No smoke, no odor, no coal, ashes or kindlings. Let your hardware dealer show you the NEW PERFECTION today, in the 1, 2, 3 and 4 burner sizes. If he can't supply you, write us direct.
ROYALITE OIL GIVES BEST RESULTS
NEW PERFECTION OIL COOK STOVES
NOW SERVING 2,500,000 HOMES
THE IMPERIAL OIL COMPANY Limited
BRANCHES IN ALL CITIES
Made in Canada

The Paisley Advocate

PAISLEY, JUNE 3rd, 1915

"It is not the length of existence that counts, but what is achieved during that existence, however short it may be." So wrote Lieut. Gladstone, a grandson of the former prime minister of the British Parliament, in his last letter from the trenches. In looking over the parapet to locate a German sniper Lieut. Gladstone was fatally shot in the forehead. This young man's career as a soldier was short, but he set a noble example to other young men of the Empire, and it is such examples of patriotism and fearlessness that are aiding the Allies to accomplish the object in going to war. The young soldier was as glad and proud to be at the front fighting against German militarism as his celebrated grandfather was to fight against whatever he considered political oppression in parliament.

Germany has made an official reply to the U.S. note concerning the sinking of the Lusitania with a loss of more than 100 American lives. The reply upholds the right of German submarines to attack the Lusitania or any other neutral ships in the war zone. The German Government makes the following allegations:

(1) The Lusitania was equipped with guns on her lower deck.

(2) The Lusitania was a British auxiliary cruiser.

(3) The Lusitania carried Canadian troops and ammunition.

(4) The sinking of the Lusitania was justifiable self-defence by Germany.

(5) United States citizens were to blame for sailing on her.

(6) The rapidity of the vessel's sinking was due to the explosion of ammunition on board.

(7) The immediate torpedoing of the Falaba was due to the captain sending up rockets for assistance.

(8) Attacks on other United States ships were justified by an order of the British Government (non-existent) to British ships to fly neutral flags.

(9) Masters of United States ships torpedoed were guilty of "suspicious or culpable behavior."

(10) Germany already expressed regrets for the loss of American lives, and this should be sufficient.

(11) Germany is willing to refer the questions in dispute to The Hague tribunal.

(12) Germany will call off the submarine warfare if Britain calls off the blockade of Germany.

What President Wilson Demanded

(1) Disavowal of acts of which the United States complains.

(2) Reparation as far as possible for injuries which are without measure.

(3) Immediate steps to prevent the recurrence of acts subversive of the principles of warfare.

The reply of Germany harmonizes with the tone of the most influential German newspapers, of which the following from the Hamburger Correspondenz is a sample:

"Every means that art and nature offer to overpower the enemy we shall inexorably and unabatedly use. It is foolish to wish to force submarine war under the rules of times which did not know submarines. New wine requires new bottles. It is we who draw up the laws of submarine warfare, and our enemies should be aware that we are not inclined to abandon a particle of the power which the new weapon has placed in our hands. Our watchword is not prizes, but destruction, and prize courts may become dispersed. It is laughable to suppose that we are under any obligation to cease our submarine war if England should find it to her interests to return to the old paths of international law. No compassion for passengers should prevent us from strong duty. The warning summons cost Weddigen and his crew their lives and brought rewards to their murderers."

CANADIANS GREAT STAND HELPS TO SHORTEN WAR

Sir John French Declares Artillery Fire Withstood by Canadians at Ypres Was Probably Fiercest Ever Directed Against Troops

London, May 30.—Field Marshall Sir John French, commander-in-chief of the British forces in France, in an address to the troops which fought in the second battle of Ypres, which he described as one of the "most desperate fights of the war," declared that they had done much to shorten the war.

"You may have thought," he said, "that because you were not attacking the enemy you were not helping to shorten the war. On the contrary, by your splendid endurance and bravery you have done a great deal to shorten the war. In this second battle of Ypres the Germans tried by every means in their power to get possession of that unfortunate town. They concentrated large forces of troops and artillery, and, further than that, they had recourse to that mean and dastardly practice, hitherto unheard of in civilized warfare, namely, the use of asphyxiating gases.

"You have performed the most difficult, arduous and terrific task of withstanding a stupendous bombardment by heavy artillery, probably the fiercest artillery fire ever directed against troops, and you warded off the enemy's attack with magnificent bravery.

—It is the intention of the dairy inspectors to enforce the regulation regarding the branding of butter this year. In brief these regulations are as follows: All whey butter in pound prints must be branded whether it is sold to the patrons of the factory or to the public generally. All whey butter packed in 56 lb. boxes must be branded "whey butter." It is compulsory that farmers offering dairy butter for sale in pound prints wrap the butter in parchment paper and brand dairy butter in letters at least a quarter inch long. Farmers must also have their own name of their farm printed on the wrappers.—Guelph Mercury.

From Stewart Daniel in Bermuda

We are courteously permitted to give to our readers the interesting portions of letters received by members of the Daniel family from the son and brother attached to the R. C.A. now stationed in Bermuda:

Prospect, Bermuda
May 9, 1915

DEAR SADE—Got your letter of the 20th inst. a few days ago, telling me of Gordon's sailing. You can bet I wish I were with him instead of being stuck in this resort. Everyone is fed up with rumors of moving, yet no definite move, or any prospect of doing so either.

It is hard to write anything from here—just the same daily routine seven days a week. However, all the troops can not get at those "Germ-hens" right off, but it is a bit rotten to leave the only regular infantry in Canada here while militia are right in the thick of it. Don't you see the idea?

I did my washing this a.m. Most of us do our own. Plenty of natives offer to, but when you do it yourself you know where and how it is done. Have to watch your health here in hot weather, so take no chances.

Don't you think the U.S.A. are a spineless lot if they allow Germany to get away with the torpedoing of the Lusitania? Personally I think the Kaiser is on his last legs, but I hope we get there before it is over. I want to get a few Huns before I come back, now that we are in it.

Well, my chatter is ended, so will have a light lunch at the coffee bar and turn in.

Best love to all from

STEWART

Resting After the Big Battle of Langemarck

Northern France
May 9th, 1915

Dear Mother, Father and Folks—Since I wrote last we have moved back into northern France for a rest. We drill here practically the same as in England, but when we are in the trenches we only keep under cover. This is a very pretty country, something like the prairie only it is all hedges and rows of trees. The fields are very small and hedges are used instead of fences. The sound of the cannon comes to us like the roll of thunder at a distance, only it never seems to let up. When we were in the trenches it was all around us and very close as we were between them, but here it seems very peaceable. The farmers are going on tilling the land just like as if there was nothing doing and the battle front is less than ten miles away. It is quite warm over here now and the trees are out in full blossom. The house we are in now was occupied by the Germans last fall before their retreat. Everything is going fine over here and the Allies are making advances every day and we are getting stronger every day. It's all up to the Germans when to end the war, and that's when they conclude they are well licked I guess. I must close now. I will write every little while if it is only to drop a card. Write and tell me all the news. My full address is

T. H. GEORGE, No. 81309
7th Platoon, B Co.
10th Batt, and Brigade, 1st Division
1st Canadian Contingent
British Expeditionary Force

BRUCE DEANERY MEETING

The Bruce Deanery Meeting was held in Christ Church, Tara, on Tuesday and Wednesday of this week and there was a good attendance of Ministers and lay delegates. The opening service was held on Tuesday evening when Rev. Wm. Henderson of Hanover was the preacher. Wednesday morning was taken up with general business and an address by the Rev. C. K. Masters, B. D., of Wiarton and in the afternoon the Missionary Movement was discussed and the subject was taken by Mr David Rose, Toronto, Lay Secretary of the Laymen's Movement. On Wednesday evening Rev. C. H. Short, M.A., a missionary from Japan and Mr. Rose addressed the meeting. All the addresses were interesting and educative. Rev. R. Perdue, Rural Dean, presided over the meetings and the following clergy took part in the meeting:—Rev. T. Holland, Bervie; Rev. J. L. Homer, Cargill, Rev. Wm Wallace, Chesley; Rev. Wm Henderson, Hanover; Rev. Johnston, Tara; Rev. G. J. Abey, Kincardine; Rev. R. W. James, Lion's Head; Rev. A. W. Richardson, Lucknow; Rev. L. W. Diehl, Paisley; Rev. T. H. Inns, Ripley; Rev. T. J. Hamilton, Southampton; Rev. R. Perdue, Walkerton; Rev. C. K. Masters, Wiarton.—Leader.

How Farm Help May be Secured

To the Editor of THE ADVOCATE:

DEAR SIR—In an endeavor to partially solve the "unemployment" situation in Toronto, the Civic Employment Bureau, under the supervision of D. Chisholm Property Commissioner, have started a "Back to the Land" movement, and are desirous of securing your co-operation in this regard.

Would it be possible for you to give a little publicity to this fact in your valuable paper, laying before your readers the fact that we have men here who are willing to go out and learn to become farmers.

We charge no fee whatever and they are at liberty to write us stating the kind of men they require, and in the event of them coming into the city we will be only too pleased to have them call on us and talk over their requirements.

Thanking you in advance for any news item that you may see fit to print in this connection, we beg to remain,

Very truly yours,
Civic Employment Bureau,
Per R. Newman

Toronto, Nov. 26th, 1915

—A cure for the blues—read "Craigie" at McArthur's bookstore, $1.25.

ANY DYSPEPTIC CAN GET WELL

By Taking "Fruit-a-tives" Says Capt. Swan

Life is very miserable to those who suffer with Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Sour Stomach and Biliousness. This letter from Captain Swan (one of the best known skippers on the Great Lakes) tells how to get quick relief from Stomach Trouble.

PORT BURWELL, ONT., May 8th, 1915.

"A man has a poor chance of living and enjoying life when he cannot eat. That was what was wrong with me. Loss of appetite and indigestion was brought on by Constipation. I have had trouble with these diseases for years. I lost a great deal of flesh and suffered constantly. For the last couple of years, I have taken "Fruit-a-tives" and have been so pleased with the results that I have recommended them on many occasions to friends and acquaintances. I am sure that "Fruit-a-tives" have helped me greatly. By following the diet rules and taking "Fruit-a-tives" according to directions, any person with Dyspepsia will get benefit".

H. SWAN

"Fruit-a-tives" are sold by all dealers at 50c. a box 6 for $2.50, or trial size 25c. or sent postpaid on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

This is the kind of Wall Paper Artist We Do NOT Employ—

No sloppy job like this done by our men. It costs you no more to employ clean, careful workmen, than men like the above.

Our Wall Paper Stock

We have just put into stock the newest and

MOST ARTISTIC PATTERNS.

Complete range of all lines for parlor, hall, dining-room, bed-room or kitchen papers on hand, ready for delivery. We would like to show you our different sample books. Stock on hand of all samples shown.

H. GLOVER
PAPERHANGER AND DECORATOR

A THOUGHTFUL GIFT

Send THE ADVOCATE to the absent member of the family or to the distant friend. It is as good as a letter from home and is a weekly visitor. You can better imagine how the home paper is appreciated when you are absent yourself and a copy is forwarded to you.

PAISLEY MARKET

Fall wheat, per bushel	$1 25	$ 25
Spring wheat, per bush	1 00	1 20
Red wheat	70	75
Peas, per bush	....	....
Oats, per bush	50	50
Barley, per bush	65	75
Chickens, per lb.	20	20
Butter, in pound prints	25	25
Eggs, fresh, per doz	30	20
Hay, per ton	....	15 00

TORONTO LIVE STOCK MARKETS

Toronto, Tuesday, June 1st, 1915

Butchers picked	$9 00	$ 10
do cows	7 00	8 00
do bulls	6 00	7 00
Stockers, choice	6 75	7 75
do common	6 00	6 50
Heavy feeders	7 00	7 40
Short keeps	7 00	7 10
Milch cows, choice	80 00	100 00
do common	40 00	60 00
Sheep, ewes	6 25	7 00
Bucks	5 00	5 50
Spring Lambs, each	8 00	9 00
Calves	8 00	9 00
Hogs, fed	9 15	9 25
do and watered	9 00	9 15

Paisley Court of Revision

—The appeals against village assessment were disposed of by the Court of Revision on Monday. The assessment was sustained in all cases except that of the Bruce Telephone System, their appeal against business tax being allowed, the Statutes providing that municipal owned and operated telephone lines are not liable for such an assessment. The Wingfield property assessment was reduced 7½ per cent.

—Frank Maher, the Chatsworth hotel keeper who died very suddenly in Toronto on May 21st, was a former Paisleyite, having spent his school days here. He was here last fall with the Chatsworth Rovers. The deceased had kept hotel in Wiarton before going to Chatsworth four years ago. He went to Toronto in search of hotel help, and was there stricken with heart failure. He was about 40 years of age and was the youngest son of Mr. S. Maher.

BALLACHEY, LAIDLAW & CO.

"The Store with the Quality"

WOOL

The bottom has dropped out of the Wool market, and we advise holding for a short time. We will however pay the top market price at all times. We solicit your business.

Present Prices Are:

Fine Washed, 29c. trade or 26c. cash.
" Unwashed, 19c. " 17c. "

Full stock of Yarns, Blankets and all similar lines.

BALLACHEY, LAIDLAW & CO.

Both 'Phones——All Produce

Tired Eyes

sensations exist for our guidance. They are Nature's warnings. Over-worked eyes demand rest. Eyes that fire easily call for help. Properly adjusted glasses afford it only assistance possible.

We make a specialty of relieving tired eyes and guarantee satisfaction.

A Stopped Watch

One that will not go AT ALL—doesn't cause as much bother as one that runs now fast, now slow, in an erratic fashion.

The first you don't pretend to depend upon—the other is a constant source of annoyance.

Most people can afford a watch, but no one can afford an uncertain fast and slow one.

And when our repair department is so close at hand there is really no excuse for carrying anything but an accurate time-piece, no matter what the first cost was.

Consult us about any watch troubles that may arise.

I. SHOEMAKER
JEWELER AND OPTICIAN

SHOES

Our new spring Shoes have just arrived and we have Shoes for all Ladies, Gents and Children at the old prices.

We have not raised our prices as we bought our supply before the advance in prices.

We have a full stock of Men's Women's and Children's heavy waterproof shoes on hand to keep the feet dry.

Call and have a look at our shoes.

Eggs Taken in Exchange

H. PFAFF & SON'S
SHOE STORE

Buggies

We handle the reliable McLachlan, Tudhope and Brantford makes, also attendings to all kinds of repairs and renewals of parts on old vehicles. A number of second hand buggies to sell cheap.

Furniture

A large assortment always in stock, and catalogues of best makers to select from. Any article, large or small, sets or single pieces for furnishing the house.

Single and Double Harness and Harness Supplies

We are agents for the Singer Sewing Machine and Capital Cream Separators

J. SEILER, Eden Grove

CANADIAN PACIFIC

THE
Ideal Vacation Route
Conveniently reaching
Point-au Baril, French and Pickerel Rivers, Severn River, Muskoka Lakes, Kahsa Lakes, Lake Ontario Resorts

GENERAL TABLE OF TIME MAY 9

To those from W. H. McFarlane, Agent, or write M. G. Murphy, D.P.A., Toronto

Central Business College Stratford, Ont.

Ontario's Best Practical Training School

We have thorough courses and experienced instructors in each of our three departments. Commercial, Shorthand and Telegraphic. Our graduates succeed and you should get our large free catalogue. Write for it at once.

D. A. McLACHLAN, Principal

Court Saugeen, C.O.F. No. 28

MEETS in Oddfellow Hall on the second Wednesday evening of each month, at 8 o'clock, sojourning brethern are welcome.

A. E. ARCHER, R.S.
W. Anstiss, C.R.

Ahiram Lodge, No. 205, I.O.O.F

MEETS every Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock in the Hall Oddfellow Block. Visiting brothers always welcome.

P. J. F. HOUSTON, N.G.
R. B. GRANT, R.S.

PUMP REPAIRING

THE undersigned having purchased Mr W. Rusk's outfit, is prepared to do all kinds of pump repairing, also furnish repairs, such as cylinders, valves and other parts of wooden or iron pumps. A few Rusk wooden pumps for sale. Wood turning done. Turned whiffletrees and neckyokes for sale.

Bruce Phone W. RAE

Desirable Residence for Sale

THAT very desirable village property on Queen Street south, the Strachan residence, is offered for sale. House new, brick veneered, and in first-class condition. Apply to D. FORRESTER, Ex. Paisley.

—THE ADVOCATE office has a splendid stock of wedding stationery and calling cards on hand, also the most beautiful styles of type, so we are able to turn out the finest lines of wedding invitations, announcements, cards, etc. We can do work fit to invite the best of people to a wedding, so why pay two or three times as much to city printers or engravers for something that isn't a whit better for the purpose? See our samples.

T. H. GEORGE

Issuer of Marriage Licenses
Notary Public and Conveyancer

Land, Loan, Insurance and General Agent. Notes, Book Accounts and other Debts Collected. Conveyancing Neatly and Cheaply Executed.

—FARMS LOANS A SPECIALTY—

Offices: Putnam Block, Queen St. E., Paisley

You Can Begin Any Day at the

NORTHERN Business College

OWEN SOUND
Individual Instruction
Our own three story building and 34 successful years of experience. Expert instructors produce the very best results. Catalogue free.

C. A. FLEMING, F.C.A. Principal — O. D. FLEMING Secretary

Business Directory

JOHN SUTHERLAND & SONS LIMITED
INSURANCE—FIRE AND MARINE
GUELPH - ONT.

J. C. GIBSON
Issuer of Marriage Licenses
Paisley, Ont.

LEGAL

D. FORRESTER, B.A., L.L.B.
BARRISTER, SOLICITOR AND NOTARY PUBLIC
OFFICE—TOWN HALL, PAISLEY

MEDICAL

DR. M. C. BLACK, M.D., C.M., L.M.C.C.P.S. Honor Graduate of Trinity University and Polyclinic, New York. SPECIALTY—Diseases of the eye, ear, nose and throat.

DR. R. E. GAGE, Physician, Surgeon and Accoucheur. Specialist in Diseases of the Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat. Late house surgeon Kingston General Hospital. Office hours—10 to 12 a.m.; 1 to 4 p.m. Successor to Dr. O'Neill

DR. P. J. F. HOUSTON, Honor Graduate of Toronto University. Licentiate of the Royal College of Physicians, and Surgeons of Edinburgh and Glasgow. Post graduate Course in Lying in Hospital, Dublin. Late assistant Edinburgh Eye Infirmary. SPECIALTY—Diseases of the Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat. Successor to Dr. Morrison.

DENTAL

DR. A. H. ALLEN
DENTIST, formerly of Toronto.

Graduate of the Royal College of Dental Surgeons of Ontario. Honor Graduate of Toronto University Dental Department. Master of Dental Surgery. Graduate of the Dr. Meares Post Graduate School of Prosthetic Dentistry, New York. Over Moore's Drug store, opposite the Post Office.

VETERINARY

R. B. GRANT, V. S., Graduate of Ontario Veterinary College, Toronto. Government Inspector of contagious diseases and apply Tuberculin test to cattle. Also in expert stock and issue certificates for same. Oppose the treatment for milk fever, colic and roadmoose opposite the old Northern Hotel.

AUCTIONEERS

R. G. PEARCE, Licensed Auctioneer, Sales attended in all parts of the County of Bruce, reasonable terms. Orders left at the Advocate Office will receive prompt attention. Telephone at house.

D. J. NESBITT, Licensed Auctioneer for the County of Bruce, is prepared to conduct sales in any part of the county. Terms reasonable. Leave orders at ADVOCATE office or address Glenelg P.O.

FlowersFlowers Flowers!

For Bedding, Choice Plants—
PETUNIA, ASTER, STOCKS AND PANSY

We will also take your order for any kind of plants you may want and deliver them to you within 24 hours.

Cut Flowers

For all occasions. Special illustrated book showing designs for Weddings, Funerals and all special occasions.

Choice Early Tomato Plants for Sale

BUTTER AND EGGS WANTED in any Quantity

F. Carter & Son

Goods Delivered — Both 'Phones

THE STORE WITH THE QUALITY

Use Royalite Coal Oil

"Where did you get your Oil Stove?"
"I got it at Davison's."
"What is the name of it."
"Quick Meal."
"Is it a good stove?"
"Well I should say so. You find points of excellence in the Quick Meal Oil Stove that cannot be found in any other stove on the market. Don't buy your stove until you see the Quick Meal. It's the best. I never have any trouble with mine and I have had it for years. I think it would pay you to call at Davison's and see it. I know they will be pleased to show you all about it."
"Well, I'm glad you told me. I think I'll buy one to-morrow."

They all buy the Quick Meal It's the Best!

Use Royalite Coal Oil

W. H. DAVISON

BRUCE PHONE — BELL PHONE

THERE HAS NOT BEEN any increase in the price of

Columbia Records

They are made in Canada—consequently are not subject to the 7½ per cent War Tax.

They sell from 85 cents to $7.50, but no matter what price you pay, the Columbia Record at that price is exceptionally good value for the money.

Go to the dealer whose name is mentioned below, and ask him to give you a catalogue of Columbia Records.

If he hasn't any, owing to the big demand, write direct to The Columbia Graphophone Co., Toronto, and you will receive one by return mail. But go to the local dealer whose name is mentioned below, and ask him first; also ask him to play over some of the newest Records, including:

Mary Pickford's official song, entitled—

A1701	Sweetheart of Mine I'm Not Ashamed of You, Mollie	.85
A1686	Somewhere a Voice is Calling Whispering Hope	$1.00
A5649	Handel's Largo, by Casals Melody in F, by Casals	$1.50
A5644	A Perfect Day Suzi	$1.25

G. R. WELSFORD

Paisley

Agents wanted where not actively represented. Apply Music Supply Co., Toronto

The Joke That Failed

Dean Swift said that it required a surgical operation upon a Scotsman to see the point of a joke. No doubt the celebrated wit referred to an English joke. A young Englishman at a party mostly composed of Scotsmen made several attempts to crack a joke, and, failing to evoke a smile from his companions, he became angry, and exclaimed, "Why, it would take a gimlet to put a joke into the head of you Scotsmen!"

One of them replied, "Ay; but the gimlet wuld need tae be mair pointed than thae jokes."

HE STILL COUNTED

There had been an epidemic of colds in the town, and one physician who had scarcely any sleep for two days called upon a patient—an Irishman—who was suffering from pneumonia, and as he leaned over to hear the patient's respiration he called upon Pat to count.

The doctor was so fatigued that he fell asleep with his ear on the sick man's chest. It seemed but a minute when he suddenly awoke to hear Pat still continuing:

"Tin thousand an' siventy-six, tin thousand an' siventy-sivin—"

A GOOD JOKE

A married couple stood looking into a shop window. A handsome tailormade dress took the lady's fancy, and she left her husband's side to examine it more closely, then she went back to where he had been standing and took his arm. "You never look at anything I want you to look at," she exclaimed. "You don't care how I dress. You don't care for me now. My! You haven't kissed me for three weeks." "Indeed I am sorry; it is not my fault but my misfortune," said the man. Turning around she looked at him and gasped. She had taken the arm of the wrong man.

Children Cry
FOR FLETCHER'S
CASTORIA

A Chinese Uprising.

They had cut off a Chinaman's queue
And were painting his head a bright blueue,
So the Chinaman said
As they daubed at his head,
"When I queue russus russe you'll rouse what russe dueue."
—London Tit-Bits.

Relative Importance.

Mrs. Muggins—My husband gave up fishing when he joined the church.

Mrs. Buggins—But fishing isn't sinful.

Mrs. Muggins—No, but lying is.—Philadelphia Record.

Lucky Adam.

When Adam got home from a party
One speech ne'er his pleasure could dock,
For dear Mother Eve never shouted at him:
"You villain! Just look at that shock!"
—Judge.

Uncomplimentary.

Hicks—Your wife has no sense of humor.

Wicks—You never saw her. How do you know?

Hicks—She married you.—Somerville Journal.

Advice.

To this advice, my son, give ear
And you will never grieve:
Do not believe all that you hear
Nor tell all you believe.
—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Miscalculation.

Mr. Goody—I'm surprised that you should be in this helplessly intoxicated condition.

Bibbler—Sho'm I thic; thought I c'd stand a lot more.—Boston Transcript.

Even In Domestic Affairs.

And still no date is mentioned when
All threats of strife must cease.
It needs a war cloud now and then
To make us value peace.
—Washington Star.

Uninitiated.

"My plate is damp."
"Hush!" whispered his wife. "That's your soup. They serve small portions at these fashionable affairs."—Kansas City Journal.

All Hail the Hen!

The nightingale our ears would win,
The lark sings in the glen,
But there's more music these days in
The cackle of the hen.
—Atlanta Constitution.

Suggestive Dining Rooms.

Different countries produce different foods. Perhaps that is the reason why a description of a railway restaurant in England sounds so curious to American ears. This terminus restaurant corresponds to the American lunch counter, where pie and coffee are the staple refreshments of the hurried hungry man.

Patrons crowd the English place three deep and wait for the front row to finish eating and depart. One elderly woman drinks hot spirit and water and eats sandwiches. Beside her a country couple devour buns and milk—how British "buns" sounds!—and a busy man eats sponge cake and drinks port wine. Can one imagine a Chicago broker reshing into a quick lunch counter with a demand for sponge cake? He might as well ask for a couch and four.

In this London restaurant a mother of a family regales herself and her meek husband with ginger beer and cakes, and a servant, young clergyman asks for a glass of milk. Buns, sponge cake, milk and beer—the menu is a little different from those on this side of the water.—Chicago News.

One Quotation.

Professor—Mr. Drone, I am astonished that you cannot remember any of the quotations called for in today's lesson. Can you recollect any quotation of any kind?

Student—Yes, sir: "Any fool can ask questions."—Boston Transcript.

The Habit of Reading Advertisements

NEWSPAPERS would be much less enjoyable, instructive and valuable than they are if they contained no advertisements. Many persons read the advertisements quite as thoroughly as they read the news matter. This is just as it should be.

The more advertising, the more buying. The more buying, the greater the consumption of the goods or service advertised.

More business would be done by the merchants of PAISLEY if they advertised more, and if more of them advertised. Much business goes to the big city mail-order houses because they advertise. These houses would cease to draw business from this community if they ceased to advertise.

To the Merchants of Paisley

Advertise more, and more of you advertise, and the big city mail-order houses will get less and less business from this community, and you will get more.

Advertisement Reading is Worth While

The Globe

CANADA'S NATIONAL NEWSPAPER

$3.00 per year

"The War Summary"

Almost from the very day the great European war began in August last the outstanding feature in Canadian journalism covering the conflict has been "The War Summary" daily on pages 1 and 2 of THE GLOBE. In the condensed possible form the writer has given his readers a pen picture of the developments in all parts of the world. While the details of the movements along the extended frontiers have not been overlooked, the readers of THE GLOBE have been enabled to follow intelligently and with confidence the general outlines of the stupendous conflict. "The War Summary" of THE GLOBE is reproduced daily by several papers throughout the Dominion.

The Editorial Page

THE GLOBE on its editorial page has striven to place before the public in proper perspective the broad background of the titanic struggle. This series of articles has attracted the attention not only of the Canadian people, but of leading men and journals in all parts of the world. The causes leading up to the war, the ultimatum entering into its conduct, and the results likely to flow from the cessation of hostilities have been dealt with in that bold and comprehensive manner characteristic of THE GLOBE'S editorial page.

News Service

The above features, in addition to a cable and letter service from the front unmatched in Canada, have placed THE GLOBE far in the lead of Canadian papers, and partly explain the phenomenal increase of 231-3 per cent. in THE GLOBE'S circulation during recent months.

Other Features

The sporting pages, the financial and commercial pages, the women's pages, etc., etc., with the additional pages in Wednesday's issue devoted to "Farm and Country Life," are maintained at a high standard of excellence, a standard that has justified THE GLOBE in its title of Canada's National Newspaper, and has given it by many thousands the largest circulation of any morning paper in the Dominion.

Local and City Papers

By all means take your local paper, but in the field of metropolitan newspapers THE GLOBE unquestionably offers you the greatest value to be had in Canada. Order it to-day. 25 cents per month—one dollar for four months—three dollars per year.

P.S.—According to Lord Kitchener, the big war has only begun.

THE GLOBE, Toronto.

Resumption of Canadian Pacific Great Lakes Service

Passenger service via the Great Lakes Canadian Pacific route from Port McNicoll will be resumed commencing Saturday, May 22nd. The service this season will be maintained by the steamers "Keewatin" sailing Tuesdays, "Manitoba" Wednesdays, "Alberta" Thursdays, and "Assiniboia" on Saturdays from Port McNicoll at 4 p.m. The "Manitoba" sailing Wednesdays will also call at Owen Sound each sailing date at 10.30 p.m. Special train will leave Union Station, Toronto, at 12.45 p.m., arriving at Port McNicoll at 4 p.m., daily except Friday.

For reservations or other information regarding this service consult an Canadian Pacific Agent or write M. G. Murphy, District Passenger Agent, Toronto.

—A little town in Wisconsin originated a bright idea, which seems to have taken root in a very large section of the state. When the town in question announced its purpose of observing a "pay-up week," in which all debtors would make settlement everybody smiled. But the thing was done, and several thousand unsettled bills were cleared in the process. Now the place has had its most prosperous year, and many other western towns and not a few big cities are considering a pay-up-week. The philosophy of the plan is simply this: That by paying his bills the other fellow is enabled to pay his, and so on in an endless chain, which finally comes around to you again, with you out of debt and no one owing you. Thus all are quiet, commercial skies are clear, and everybody feels better. In the first experiment over $40,000 in old accounts changed hands, and further liquidations promise to be a financial wave. The wider it extends the more sound and stable will be the business of the country. The idea of a pay-up-week is excellent and should be helped along. (A good many make it a rule to pay all debts before the new year, but there are some who neglect this matter from year to year. How delighted the publisher of this paper would be if all subscribers in arrears would pay up this week or next.

DIED

MARSHALL—In Eldernlle, on May 31st, James R. Marshall, aged 39 years, 11 months.

IRVING—Drowned, at Brandon, on May 31st, William D., only son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Irving, formerly of Paisley, aged 15 years.

PAINT PROGRESS

DON'T EXPERIMENT

with paints that haven't a good reputation when you can use Lowe Brothers "High Standard" and get the Best Known Results.

Lowe Brothers High Standard Liquid Paint

will do for you what it has done many times for others.

1. It does the work you expect.
2. It resists weather longer.
3. It covers more surface.
4. It looks better—and leaves the surface in better condition for repainting than ordinary paints.

Get our special color combinations for 1914, and booklet—"Homes Attractive and How to Make Them"—free

For Sale at Sinclair's Hardware

See Us Before Painting

TIT FOR TAT

An old lady found Dolly crying bitterly and stopped to see what was the matter.

"You mustn't cry like that child. Crying makes little girls ugly," Dolly stopped crying long enough to look at her. "Gee" she said, "you must have cried a lot when you were little."

The Housewife's Corner

Recipes.

Orange Frosting.—To the grated rind of one orange add one teaspoonful of vanilla, half a teaspoonful of lemon juice, and a tablespoonful of orange juice. Let it stand fifteen minutes, strain, add slowly the beaten yolk of one egg, stir in confectioner's sugar, and spread over cake.

Cabbage Salad. — Chop enough cabbage to fill a small bowl. Shell peanuts or walnuts, run through a food chopper, and use enough to flavor cabbage as desired. Boil one-half cupful of sugar with one-half cupful of vinegar, let cool. Beat yolk of egg with one-half cupful of cream. Mix all together lightly.

Turnips in White Sauce. — Peel the turnips and cut into small pieces; boil until tender in boiling salted water, drain, and turn into a hot serving dish. Have ready a white cream sauce made with one tablespoon butter melted in a saucepan, and one tablespoon flour, and stir until smoothly blended, but not brown, then add one cup hot milk, gradually, stirring until smooth; salt to taste. Let boil until the flour is well cooked, then turn over the turnips and serve hot.

Cinnamon Toast. Children who refuse the ordinary toast will like cinnamon toast, which is made by buttering slices of bread, toasting and spreading with a mixture of one tablespoonful of sugar to one quarter of a tablespoonful of cinnamon. Serve it hot.

Fa. Fried Fish. When frying fish dip them in milk instead of egg before rolling them in bread crumbs. This is more economical and the fish will taste better, too.

Rhubarb and Raisin Pie. — One and one-half cupfuls of rhubarb, peeled and sliced fine; one-half cupful halved raisins; one and one-quarter cupfuls sugar, two rolled crackers; one egg; flaky pastry. Line pie-plate with pastry, mix together rhubarb, raisins, sugar, crackers, and egg, and fill pie-plate; cover with pastry or make a lattice top. Bake about forty minutes in a moderate oven.

Useful Hints.

New Cake Tins. If cake persists in sticking to the new cake tins, wash it thoroughly and set on the stove until very hot, but do not burn the tin. The heat will prevent the cake sticking when next used.

A Good Arrangement. The sleeves and waist of an ordinary house-dress always wear out first, and the woman who is economical decides to throw them away, though they never look well when patched. I cut off the skirt at the waist, and open it to the bottom, hemming each side and put on a belt. Then it makes a most excellent kitchen apron.

To Save Baby From Tumbles. — Fasten a door-hook to the back of the baby's high chair and a screw-eye in the wall. Hook the chair to the wall when it is not in use at the table, and baby will be saved many falls when he comes into his chair.

Buttons Renewed. Some beautiful pearl buttons became very dingy and unattractive after having been laundered a few times. As they were too good to throw away, I gave them a bath in olive oil, then rubbed them well with soft flannel, after which they were polished with silver polish, when they looked like new.

Use Waxed Paper. Waxed paper, such as comes inside cracker boxes, is splendid to line cake pans which are a trifle thin. Cut pieces to fit, then flour them, pour in the batter, and the hot pans after baking on a wet cloth for five minutes. The cakes will drop out when inverted.

To Save Laundry. How many farmers' wives use runners of flour sacks, washed white and neatly hemmed, under the men's plates at the table, and save the cloth! You will find that fewer cloths will be required and the washing will not be nearly as hard and the linen will not wear out as quickly. Check glass toweling made into three-quarters of a yard strips is often used, too, for this purpose.

Spots on Wall Paper.—To remove, take a cupful of bran, dampen it with gasoline, tie in a cloth and rub on the soiled spots. Be careful not to do this in a room where there is a fire or a lighted lamp.

Hints for the Home.

Black currant jam—two teaspoons of it, dissolved in a glass of hot water and drank at bedtime, is an old-fashioned cure for a cold.

If a brick is used for an ironstand you will find that the iron will hold its heat much longer than when an ordinary stand is used.

To remove a white enamel bedstead, rub the iron parts all over with a cloth dipped in paraffin, then paint it with white enamel paint.

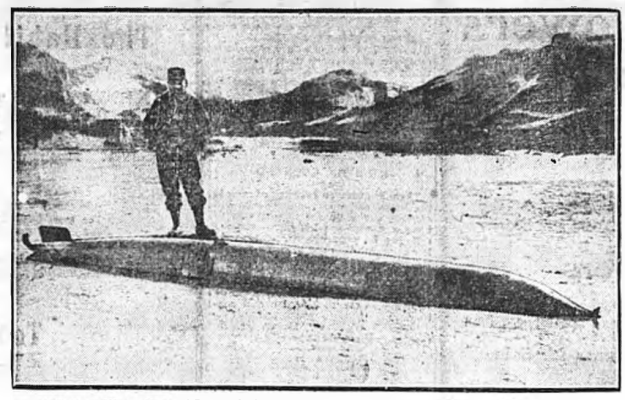
Blouses of net or chiffon do not need to be dried out of doors. Roll in a towel after rinsing or wave through the air and iron with a cool iron.

Be sure to brush the teeth after taking medicine, since many medicines contain acids or iron, both of which are injurious to the teeth.

Before roasting apples try making a small slit all the way round each apple with a knife. This will prevent their splitting when roasting.

To make two-water for invalids toast very brown a slice of bread, break it in bits and pour a cup of boiling water over it. Chill before serving.

Never use a liniment near an open flame, for a liniment usually contains some combustible element. Always rub a liniment into the skin until it is nearly dry.



BRITISH SEA POWER.

Demonstration of Its Effectiveness Most Striking Feature of War.

The New York Journal of Commerce says: After nine months of the most sanguinary, most devastating and most costly war of all human history, its most noteworthy achievement is still that of the British fleet. It took the British Navy of a century ago 10 years to accomplish what the navy of today has accomplished in half as many months. While German armies were advancing into France and Russia, the German fleet, without striking a blow, left the seas in possession of the enemy, relinquishing all the advantages which sea command confers. Appreciate the military significance of such a movement we must compare its counterpart in terms of land warfare. Had the German and Austrian armies retired within a few fortified positions, leaving the armies of France, Russia, Belgium and Great Britain to march through their territories, seizing private and public property, and exercising every possible pretext right, no one would have questioned on which side lay the balance of advantage in the war. But such a situation would have offered an exact parallel to that which has happened at sea. The two navies—German and Austro-Hungarian—have retreated into strong defended ports, while the British and French fleets have exercised all the rights over the great sea routes. History records no more remarkable illustration of the value of naval power; and although there is still a possibility that the German navy may succeed in striking the kind of blow which was contemplated by its creators, the probability decreases with every week added to the duration of the war, were it only because of the relative superiority of the British navy is constantly increasing. There never was much illusion about the kind of service which the German navy was capable of rendering. It may be that Grand Admiral von Tirpitz conjectured, when he prepared his memorandum of 1900, that as the British fleet was then so it would be found in 1914. If so, he must have been quickly disabused of any such notion. But in this very memorandum the Admiral contemplates the possibility of the greatest naval power being able to concentrate against Germany with considerable superiority of strength as a very remote one. Yet, even so, he argued: "The defeat of a strong German fleet would so substantially weaken the enemy that, in spite of the victory he might have obtained, his own position in the world would no longer be secured by an adequate fleet." Until the strong German fleet has elected to stake its destruction on the possibility of being able to cost the enemy dear it will be impossible to pass on the correctness of that conclusion.

Origin of Khaki Uniform.

In a recent article on "The Art of the options in War" it was stated that "in the Boer war khaki first came into general use." This (a correspondent points out) is not in accordance with the facts. Khaki has been in the British army on active service for more than forty years. It was in use in the Ioanki Expedition in 1877. Again all troops (British and native) engaged in the Afghanistan war, 1878-79-80, wore khaki. Even the chaps were tan-colored leather, sword belts and sabre scabbards were tan-colored leather, helmets were covered with khaki covers and puggarees. Buttons and buckles were not polished. The pomp of the parade ground was entirely absent. In the second campaign of that war 1879-80 the carrying of colors into action was abandoned, they being left with the depots at the base. By the way, khaki is a Hindustani word, meaning brown.

"Doctored" to Keep Afloat: A German Submarine's Torpedo Left to Act as a Mine.

An interesting and enlightening find has been made on the coast between Etaples and Hardelot, a short distance from Boulogne, in the picking up of a stranded German torpedo fired from a submarine. Several vessels have been attacked in the neighborhood, not many miles to the south of Havre, the torpedo was probably one which missed its mark and was carried ashore by the set of the current. By The Hague Convention, all torpedoes must be set to sink at the end of their run, but in the case of this torpedo, as with others recently found floating on the surface, the mechanism had been deliberately tampered with, so as to convert the missile after its failure to strike into a drifting mine. The torpedo shown here is lettered in red, near its tail, "U 33."

PEN PICTURE OF GREAT WAR

SPIRIT OF FRANCE LIVES IN TRENCHES TO-DAY.

"Marseillaise" Expands the Heart with Accesses of Enthusiasm Compensating for Trials.

Among so many hours in the soldier's life that modern warfare makes monotonous and unromantic there comes those too when the heart expands with accesses of enthusiasm that more than compensate for all its hardships and suffering, writes a correspondent with the French Foreign Legion. Such was the afternoon of the review we passed the other day before the General of our army corps.

All the morning in the bayloft of our cantonment we labored cleaning from rifle and equipment, clothes and person, their evidences of the week in the trenches from which we had just returned. At noon under the most beautiful of spring skies we marched out of the village two battalions strong.

It was pleasant thus little promenade, to escape for a while from the narrow circumscription to which we are so strictly confined and get a glimpse of the outer world again from which we have been so long and so completely isolated. How the hitliest things were novel and charming to pass through new landscapes and villages, to look on women and children again, to see automobiles and get a whiff of gasolene that has the strongest power of evoking new sensations and bringing back the life that we have left so far, far behind. In contrast with the sinister lifelessness and suspense that reigns along the front here, as soon as one is out of the zone of artillery fire, all is bustle and busy operations. Along the roads were the camps of the engineers and depots filled with material for defence and military works; piles of lumber, pontoon bridges in sections, infinite rolls of barbed wire, thousands of new picks and shovels, neatly laid out, that raised groans from the men as they passed, for Caesar's remark about the spade having won him more than the sword holds curiously true in the Gallic wars of to day, at least so far as our experience has gone.

Roads Teeming with Life.

The roads were teeming with life, lumbering wagons and mule trains mingling with thundering motor lorries and Paris auto busses in the immense work of ravitaillement, motor cyclists whizzing back and forth with despatches, chic officers bowling back in the depths of luxurious limousines that were once the pride of the boulevards. Whereas on the firing line each unit has a sense of terrible detachment; here we could feel reassuringly the nation working behind us, the tightened sinews of that great, complex system of which we are but the ultimate points of pressure in the mighty effort it is making.

For fifteen kilometres or so we marched back over hill and vale, singing the chansons de route of the French soldier along poplar lined canals, where the big peniches are stalled, through picturesque villages where the civilians, returned to their reconquered territory, came to their doors and greeted us as we passed. Once we passed a group of German prisoners working on the roads. They looked neat and well cared for and took good-naturedly enough the stream of banter as we marched by.

On the sunny plateau we were joined by the two relief battalions of the regiment that holds the sector to our left, and all were drawn up on the plain in columns of sections by four, a fine spectacle. We had not waited long when the General appeared down the road. He was superbly mounted, was followed by a dragoon bearing the tricolor on his lance and an escort of about a dozen horsemen. Four thousand bayonets flashed in the air as he rode by. Then the band struck up the march of the Second Chasseurs, and under the mounted figure, silhouetted on a little knoll, we paraded by to the stirring strains. At the same time, with a great fracas, a big, armed monoplane rose from the fields nearby and commenced circling overhead to protect us from the attack of any hostile aircraft to which our serried ranks offered so tempting a mark.

Rifle Firing Never Stops.

Again we manoeuvred in position and while the state-majors were conversing we stacked rifles, laid down our sacks, and broke ranks. I took the occasion to seek out a soldier of the —— and learn something of the kind of life they are leading on the plateau to our left. It is much more thrilling than ours apparently. The position is one of considerable strategic importance, so that the lines run with in a stone's throw of each other. Sapping and mining go on incessantly. The noise of rifle firing never stops up there on the crest, and the nights are lit up continually with the glare of magnesium rockets. As if the menace of having the trench blown up at any moment under their feet was not trial enough, the proximity of the lines at this point subject the French soldiers to the fire of the "minenwerfer," or bomb thrower, those engines of destruction that were one of the several novelties that German precision introduced into the present war.

The projectiles, as I understand it, are thrown from a spring gun and not by explosive force, so that there is no explosion on their leaving the cannon. A sentinel with a whistle stands in the French line; whenever he sees one of these bombs arrive he gives the signal, and anybody that is outside in the trenches dives into the nearest shelter at hand till the terrific explosion that they produce is past. Fortunately the fire of these machines cannot be trained with much accuracy.

I asked this soldier if they had been attacked lately, and he declared to me their last engagement, a typical assault in the desperate kind of struggle that goes on at these points of close contact along the front. A ditch has been dug previously to the very edge of our lines of barbed wire. For hours before the attack is to be delivered the trenches are deluged with artillery fire so intense that the French are unable to man their first line defences, but must remain back in the communicating galleries waiting the decisive moment.

Grenade Throwers Lead Attack.

Suddenly the guns are silent, and simultaneously the enemy pours out of the ditch forty, thirty yards away. Some carry wire cutters, others hold the rifle in the left hand and with the right thrower the trenches with grenades that they draw from sacks slung over the shoulder. The French rush to their crenaux. The roar of rifle and machine gun fire bursts out, and a brief, ferocious struggle ensues, which is simply a question of the speed and number of balls that can be discharged in a given number of seconds and the speed and number of men that in the same time can be rushed against the position.

The attack in question was a complete failure, and only resulted in piling higher the heaps of dead that lie where they fell in the continuous battle that at this point has been going on now for six months, with alternations of success that in no case can be estimated in more than fractions of a hundred meters.

Before I had time to gather details of this affair from my comrade of the —— came the order "Sac au dos" ran through the ranks. "Bayonnette au canon" "Presentez armes!" went from captain to captain. Again the flash of the 4,000 bayonets. And while the battalions stood there, silent, motionless, the band broke out into the "Marseillaise."

At the first bars of the familiar strains even the horses felt the wave of emotion that rippled over the field and whinnied in accompaniment. There was something sublime about it there in such a place and under such circumstances. Unconsciously our lips framed the words of the wonderful song. Instinctively our eyes turned to the south. There on the further transports of the bare hills was the faint white line that marked the enemy's trenches, and two hundred, fifty yards below, our own, where the comrades of our alternating battalions were even then engaged in the grim conflict pressing always on, desperate, determinedly, heroically.

Quoi, ces cohortes etrangeres,
Feront la loi dans nos foyers!

How marvellously every phrase of the song of 1792 applied to the situation of 1915!

Entendez vous dans nos campagnes
Mugir ces feroces soldats!

The cross was the same, the passion the same — May our hearts in the hour when the supreme demand is to be made on us be fired with the same enthusiasm that filled them as we stood there on the sunny plateau listening to the lofty Hymn of the Army of the Rhine!

Trenos in Utter Spirits.

All were in high spirits as we marched home that evening. We took a short cut, cross-country, for it was already getting dark enough to traverse without danger the field where we passed a while exposed to the distant artillery. The last glow of sunset shone down the gray valley, illumining with a brazen lustre the windings of the river as we tramped back over the pontoon bridge and into the cantonment again.

The Humor of Scott.

Although the Waverley Novels are especially to be regarded as historical romances their chief merit lies in the native homeliness of some of the characters, the dramatic excellence of some of the dialogues, and the pleasant air of comedy which inspires the author's treatment. What is it we remember most easily in the Waverley Novels? Certain characteristic personages, such as Dandie Dinmont, Andrew Fairservice, the Baillie Mr. Oldbuck, Caleb Balderstone, Cuddie Headrigg. It is the talk of these and their like which has made the Waverley Novels as familiar to us as household words, not the historical trappings, which were very easily imitated by Scott's followers and admirers. Scott, especially when he was dealing with his own countrymen, had a very fine psychological sense, and many of his creations are replete with the richer kind of humor which is the very salt of literature.

Believe in Yourself.

If you consider yourself a worm of the dust you must expect people to trample on you. If you make a doormat of yourself people are sure to wipe their feet on you. More men fail through ignorance of their strength than through knowledge of their weakness. You may succeed when others do not believe in you; but never when you do not believe in yourself. The curiosity of him who wishes to see fully for himself how the dark side of life looks is like that of the man who took a torch into a powder-mill to see whether it would blow up or not.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL STUDY

INTERNATIONAL LESSON, JUNE 6.

Lesson X. Nathan Rebukes David. —2 Sam. 11. 1 to 12. 7a.

G.T.—Psa. 51. 10.

I. David Hears of Uriah's Death (Verses 22-25).

Verse 22. All that Joab had sent him for—David wrote a letter to Joab telling him to put Uriah, the husband of Bath-sheba (whom David coveted), in the thick of the fight so that he would be slain (verses 14-16). Joab, when he saw the fortified city of the enemy, knew that they would shoot from the wall. He took pains, therefore, to send Uriah close to the wall (verse 17). But he knew this was not good strategy. He knew also that David, hearing of the command to approach the city walls, might forget his desire to have Uriah killed and, as a skilled warrior, think only of the lack of good sense in Joab in endangering needlessly a part of his army. Joab, therefore, is careful to charge the messenger to reply to David, should the latter become angry at Joab's lack of military foresight, by saying, "Thy servant Uriah the Hittite is dead also." David's leaders were ready to do his bidding and co-operate with his basest passion.

25 Let not this thing displease thee—Joab was right in thinking that his military blunders would cause David to be angry with him. But when told that Uriah was dead, David's anger was appeased and he counseled the messenger to make Joab feel at ease.

II. The Little Ewe Lamb (Verses 26 to 12. 7a).

26 She made lamentation for her husband. The time of mourning for a father was seven days (Gen. 50. 10), for a king, also seven days (1 Sam. 31. 13). At least thirty days were sometimes observed (Num. 20. 29; Deut. 34. 8). No particular time was set for the mourning of widows. Probably ten rule was seven days, the customary time.

27 When the mourning was past Bath-sheba's mourning was purely formal, the customary ceremonial time. As soon as this was accomplished, she went to David's home and became his wife.

Chapter 12. 1 Jehovah sent Nathan unto David. A year passed before David is rebuked. David's contrition is marked in Psa. 51 and 32.

Said unto him—The prophet asked David's judgment. He uses a parable in order to put a concrete case before the king. This was a usual mode of approach to the settling of a question. (See 2 Sam 14. 1-7; 1 Kings. 20. 35-41; also Judg. 9. 7-15; 2 Kings 14. 9; Isa. 5. 1, 2).

2 The rich man—He is so described as to bring his selfishness into bold relief. The parable makes no suggestion of the crime of David. The rich man's transgression was far less than that of David. The story is related, however, so as to make David flare up at the unrighteousness of even a lesser sin.

5 David's anger was greatly kindled—David manifested anger on other occasions. (See 1 Sam. 25. 13, 22, 33).

Is worthy to die—The Hebrew reads "is a son of death." This phrase is especially emphatic and frequently used in the Hebrew. (See 1 Sam. 20. 31; 26. 16; 2 Sam. 19. 28; 1 Kings 2. 26).

6. Fourfold—The legal requirement (See Exod. 22. 1; Luke 19. 8).

7. Thou art the man—The consciousness that they were God's messengers inspired the prophets with fearless courage. Samuel rebuked Saul for his disobedience; the prophet from Judah reproved Jeroboam for his idolatry; Elijah pronounced sentence on Ahab for the murder of Naboth; Isaiah chided Ahaz for his faithlessness; John the Baptist condemned Herod for his adultery. (See 1 Sam. 15. 13-23; 1 Kings 13. 1-10; 1 Kings 21. 17-28; Isa. 7. 3-9; Matt. 14. 4; Mark 6. 18; Luke 3. 19).

Love's Labor Lost.

"I had tough luck the other night."

"What was the matter?"

"I promised my wife to be home at 10 o'clock."

"And didn't get home until 2 o'clock, I suppose."

"No. I was home at 8.30."

"I don't see any tough luck about that."

"My wife was fast asleep and I didn't get any credit for making good."

Second Nature.

Crawford: "I see the belligerents are calling out the older reservists. Do you think that married men should be compelled to fight?"

Crabshaw: "Why not? They are used to it."

Beyond the Spree lies Nera, and beyond Nera lies Berlin—and lies and lies.

The AUTOMOBILE

FARM LIFE HAPPIER.

The farmer does not now have to stay at home if he has a car. He does not feel himself rooted to the spot. His wife and children will be happier and more contented. An automobile brings freedom—freedom from isolation, freedom from loneliness, freedom from the limitations of time and distance.

To the farmer a car is far more than a mere luxury. It is a vital necessity to him and his family. It offers a welcome relief. It makes him a better worker by giving him recreation and pleasure he could not otherwise have. Its broadening mental effect is one of its greatest benefits to him.

Once the farmer has an automobile he soon finds himself looking forward to summer evening rides with his family, with the cool breeze blowing away the fever heat of the day's work in the fields. He finds himself able to go on pleasure trips, to picnics, and so on, with his wife and children, which hitherto he was unable to enjoy because of the distance to be covered in the time at his disposal. Many a man has reported that he doesn't feel the

Hard Work of the Farm

as much as he did before his car gave him the needed relaxation.

A man can't get the same rest and relaxation out of a horse. In the second place, the chances are he is sorry for the brute. If a man has any sympathy and feeling for animals he knows that they must have rest over night and on Sundays. A horse is too slow and the distance he can cover is to small for any one really to get any great amount of recreation from an evening's drive. At the same time, an automobile costs money only when in actual use, unlike the horse, which is a constant expense.

In winter instead of hugging the fire, trying to keep warm, and dreading the next trip, he will have to make to town, the farmer can go and come with comfort and just as often as he pleases.

The automobile also facilitates communication and intercourse, and because it does it is one of the foremost influences in fostering a strong sense of good fellowship and fraternal co-operation among farmers.

When the church, the school and the grange flourish, the opportunities for recreation and are naturally multiplied. In enabling the farmer to make the most of these institutions the automobile helps to support and develop them and also renders its owner one more invaluable service.

Social Betterment

This influence of the automobile is only natural. When a man shuts himself off from his neighbors and sees very little of them he soon loses interest in them or what they are doing. He gets so that he cares very little about anything but what is taking place in his own little sphere. He builds about himself, as it were, a Chinese wall of indifference.

Another argument for the car on the farm lies in the fact that while in the city the working unit is generally only the head of the family, on the farm all hands turn in and help. There is work for young and old. And while the farmer himself does his full share, he has certain advantages, as compared with his faithful helpmate, who is not only tied down to the house but also probably has the care of a family of little ones.

Progressive farmers to-day appreciate that the women folk deserve a better, brighter life. And nothing has made the life of farm women brighter and broader than the automobile. An hour's ride, a visit with laughter, song and gayety, do more to erase the marks of care and preserve the roses of youth than any other means.

And of course if an automobile in the family proves beneficial to a man and his wife, it cannot help making a big difference in the upbringing of the children. A car provides just the safety valve needed to let out the excess energies and spirits of the growing boys and girls on the farm. It gives the former city advantages, without city drawbacks.

The Emergency Marine Gangway—It Might Have Helped in Case of Lusitania.

This ingenious and practical means for enabling passengers to embark to lifeboats, or for the reverse operation after rescues have been performed during stormy weather at sea, is the recently patented invention of Captain Arthur N. McGray, a widely known ship-master. It has been carefully examined by many experienced authorities and officers who have participated in recent noteworthy rescues and bears their highest endorsement as answering the recommendation of the London Conference on Safety at Sea that "suitable arrangements shall be made for embarking the passengers in the boats."

This structure is portable and quickly thrown into operative position. It consists of two long booms, which are swung out at right angles to the side of the ship, about fifteen feet apart, and have suitable floats attached to their outer ends. Between the booms is stretched a strong wire net over which passengers can readily pass. The equipment is held securely in place by guy-lines. Thus, lifeboats are lowered to the water with only a working crew in them. When safely afloat the boat is brought headon to the outer end of the emergency gangway and there temporarily moored, while, under the direction of an executive officer, the proper number of passengers only are permitted to enter the gangway and thereby "safely and sanely" reach the waiting boat.

In the case of the Lusitania, several boats full of passengers were capsized as they struck the water, and many lives were lost which might have been saved had some such device as that shown above been in operation.

Has been Canada's favorite yeast for more than forty years.

Enough for 5c. to produce 50 large loaves of fine, wholesome nourishing home made bread. Do not experiment, there is nothing just as good.

E.W.GILLETT CO. LTD
TORONTO, ONT.

IN GREAT DEMAND.

Immense Quantities of Ice Cream Consumed.

Ice cream dealers are making plans for a busy summer, the period of their greatest prosperity. A large city on a good hot day, consumes about 50,000 gallons, or 900,000 quarts of ice cream. One big firm alone has been known to sell 20,000 gallons in the space of twenty-four hours, which shows just what a great city can do when it goes out on an ice cream celebration.

The trade is one which is affected very quickly by weather conditions and the reports from the weather bureau are scanned closely in order that the proper amount of ice cream for a certain day can be made. While the product can be manufactured and stored in coolers for future use without the slightest deterioration, still the fluctuations are so great that a uniform output each day cannot be maintained. A drop in temperature coming over night will send the ice cream business to a fraction of what it was on a previous hot day.

The first indication of a hot spell in summer finds the big freezers working at full capacity to prepare for the emergency. Cooler weather will mean a decided diminution of the product and a building up of the stores of milk and cream in country depots to be drawn on as soon as the situation improves. By making a study of the business and through the experience of long years, the larger dealers know the proper way to go about assuring themselves of steady incomes. As their production decreases their supplies increase, and vice versa, so there is no real loss.

Vanilla ice cream forms about two-thirds of the output, with chocolate second and strawberry third. Vanilla, while being the most popular, is used to a great extent in soda fountains, where it is put up in drinks of various other flavors. This accounts in a large way for its supremacy.

KRUPP'S BIG STEEL WORKS

WHAT AN OUTSIDER SAW IN THE GREAT STEEL PLANT.

It Is Remarkable the Easy Way Metal is Worked in Making Gun Barrels.

I thought it very strange that Krupp should take my photograph surreptitiously. It savored somewhat of prison procedure, writes a correspondent in the Philadelphia Ledger. Undoubtedly, they required my photograph for some means of identification if need arose. They desired to make sure of recognizing me again. I have no doubt, now that they wanted my portrait for their secret service—for Krupps have the most perfect secret service in Christendom, with agents all over the world—and when the Allies get to Essen I expect they will find that photograph of mine in the archives of Krupp's. At the time I thought it queer treatment to mete out to a guest.

Dealing a Heavy Blow.

"You mustn't be surprised at anything that happens here," said my friend. "The officials here have to take care. By the way, is isn't wise to go wandering about or you might get into trouble. You won't forget to keep close beside me."

"Fritz," I found out, was the pride of Krupp's—a giant steam hammer that has been in use since 1860. People thought Alfred Krupp mad when he started to build "Fritz." The hammer cost $500,000, and is as good to-day as ever, so it has repaid its cost many times over in its half-century of hard hitting. Kings have cracked nuts with it. I did the same. I placed a nut beneath it, and "Fritz" cracked it perfectly without so much as touching the kernel. Yet the same hammer can deal a blow of 50 tons which no metal can withstand.

I was told that there were 160 of these great steam hammers in the place. I can quite believe it, for I saw a large number, and if the facts are correct, they must have cost several millions of dollars to build. I noticed, however, that even in Krupp's they cannot get on without Britain, for at least one steam hammer I saw was made in Sheffield.

Miracles of Science.

The noise, of course, was maddening. Wherever you go at Krupp's you cannot get away from the clanking and hammering of metal. Even where there is no hammering going on you can hear the sounds from afar.

An official said something to my friend, who turned to me and remarked: "Come along. If we hurry we shall be just in time to see a sight you will never forget."

So we hurried to a great steam hammer at the other end of the long work-shop. "Don't stand too close," came the injunction.

A mighty mass of glowing white-hot metal came gliding along an overhead rail and came to rest under the hammer. Then the hammer began to work. The steel seemed like dough. It was kneaded and stretched and pulled and shaped until it got longer and longer. I have never seen anything like it before.

"What are they doing?" I asked.

"Making a gun barrel."

What struck me as remarkable was the easy way the metal was worked. It might have been potter's clay instead of steel, so soft did it appear to be. Of course, it was the tremendous force exerted by the hammer which made the metal so ductile.

Before I had time to wonder I was conducted to another workshop, where I saw some huge shears cutting through armor-plate four inches thick just as though it had been putty. It seemed incredible, but then most of the things at Krupp's savor of miracles. A few minutes later I saw armor plates 10 inches thick being heat as though they were sheets of tin.

Wheels of War.

I saw the Krupp armor made, but I have not the space to describe the process. It was very strange to see the armor-plate rolled out to various thicknesses just like so much pastry. After witnessing the various temperings it has to go through and the baths and scourings and rollings, I realized it must be costly. But I was rather staggered when I found that armor-plate made on the Krupp principle costs $350 a ton, and that there is about $2,500,000 worth around the hull of a modern battle cruiser.

"It's wonderful!" I exclaimed.

My friend only smiled. "We'll go along and see how they make the celebrated weldless steel wheels for artillery," he said, "and then we'll let you into the great secret of making crucible steel—the secret which gave birth to these works."

We went outside. A motor-car was waiting.

"Get in," said my friend. "It's a bit too far to walk."

In a few minutes, after having to pull up once or twice to let a works train of trucks go by, and after being jostled across railway metals, we stopped outside another big workshop.

"Here we are. This is where the wheels are made."

In the Hands of the Potter.

It was a vast workshop, and all over it were molds for wheels. We watched men pour the boiling liquid into the molds. And we watched the metal gradually hardened. And we watched the workmen lift up the molds and disclose the completed wheel. Some of the wheels seemed to me to be more like the wheels of locomotives than of gun-carriages. It seemed I was right.

The output of this one workshop alone must have been tremendous, for it was between two and three hundred feet wide and over an eighth of a mile long. A big gallery ran all round it, and there was a perfect maze of girders about the roof, while several suspended cranes swung up huge ladlers in the making and ran about with them from one end of the building to the other. Nor did the workman stop to stare at us. They ignored our very existence and went on with their work as usual.

"I think we'll go now and have a look at the pottery."

"Pottery?" I echoed.

"Yes. The molten metal for making cast steel is carried in clay pots and they turn out five thousand of these pots in the pottery every day."

So to the pottery we went, and when we had seen the men busily engaged in making crucibles, as the earthenware pots are called, we departed for the place where the celebrated crucible steel is made.

What an animated scene met my eyes. Men walked about rapidly in pairs carrying between them crucibles full of white-hot liquid steel on long metal bars. There was no faltering or hesitation on their part. They journeyed straight to the particular mold at which they were engaged, with the assistance of many other men, in filling and pouring in their quota of metal.

Back and forth walked the men with their burdens of scalding metal in their clay pots. Every moment I expected to see some of those pots split asunder and spill that deadly liquid on the carriers, but the pots did not split because they were made of a particular kind of earth which can withstand a greater heat than vessels made of armor-plate itself could withstand.

Steel Without a Flaw.

I watched the men filling a huge mold which, when it was completed, would be a 60-ton block of steel. Drop by drop the molten steel was being poured into it. And that is the secret Krupp discovered. By pouring in comparatively small quantities of molten metal at a time air bubbles were given a chance to escape, and a flawless block of steel was the result. A simple idea, but it was worth millions of pounds.

My head was beginning to ache, so I was rather glad when my friend suggested luncheon. We rode back to the Essenhof Hotel and partook of a meal, after which, as a change from the inside sightseeing, I was taken over the ranges where the big guns are tested. Like everything else at Essen the ranges are gigantic, one of them being 10 miles long. This is used solely for testing the biggest of guns. Unfortunately, there were no big guns being tested at the time, and I had to be satisfied with examining armor plates that had been used for previous tests.

"Before we start I want to see some one in here," said my friend next day, and I followed him into one of the offices. While I was waiting, the official to whom my friend was talking looked up some letters in a case, and calling a messenger told him to take the letters along to some one in the next department. I commented on this a little later, and learned a lot about Krupp methods.

No man in Krupp's is allowed to know too much. Correspondence going from one room to another is looked up, so that the messengers cannot read it. A man may have been employed there all his life without knowing anything outside his particular department and without being allowed to go over other parts of the works. Even high-placed Germans army officers are not allowed to see all the works. In fact, every precaution is taken to prevent a man gaining more information than is necessary. Krupp agents are everywhere in the building, but I thought they were merely workmen who were not very busy.

Children's Sleep.

Much information as to the health of a child may be gained by careful watching of its attitude, movements, and expression during sleep. The child who sleeps best with the mouth wide open, and the head thrown back, is most likely suffering from enlarged tonsils, which impede its breathing; if it can only sleep when the bedclothes have all been kicked off rickets should be watched for, while lung or heart affections are shown at an early stage by the tendency to sleep high up on the pillow, so that the head and shoulders are raised. In cases of pain in any part the hand will be found to be carried to the affected spot during sleep, so that teething, headache, or earache may be diagnosed, while a curious sign of irritation in the stomach or bowels is the constant rubbing of the nose. Restless sleep, broken and uneasy, is a common symptom of the onset of serious illness, but any extreme torpor and drowsiness should also be suspected, as these frequently precede feverish ailments, such as scarlatina and measles. Convulsive attacks are nearly always preceded by the tight clasping of the hands with the thumbs folded into the palms, and the stiffening and curling up of the toes.

New Bullet Cures.

Mr. Alex. F. Humphrey of Pittsburgh, Pa., has invented a bullet for war use that is the absolute opposite to some respects of the "poisoned bullets" mentioned in the early dispatches of the war, for it carries in its nickel jacket anaesthetics to deaden the pain of its wound, and antiseptics to help to heal it. Enough narcotics are contained in the bullet to greatly lessen the pain or shock in the nervous system of a wound even in the most vital organs.

Crime in New York Alarming.

There has never been a period in the history of New York when there were more crimes of violence and bloodshed than at the present time. Attempts to blow up cathedrals, churches and court houses occur with almost the frequency of spring showers. Mysterious murders are committed almost as often as traffic is interrupted in Fifth Avenue. The deadly bomb has become as common as the town pump at the crossroads hamlet. Thugs and shotgun brazes are as numerous and daring as in the days which preceded the killing of Rosenthal. Now, the place for a beginning of the cure of this evil is the Bronx. The miscreants who blew up the Court House should be run to earth and sent to prison if all the resources for the maintenance of law and order in the State of New York have to be employed. We fear the police authorities do not realize the gravity of their responsibilities.

TORONTO'S MOST POPULAR SUMMER DISSIPATION IS CITY DAIRY ICE CREAM—the demand has spread from year to year until it is now on sale in nearly every town in Ontario. There seems to be something about the climate of Canada that makes it the confection that everybody craves in warm weather—infants, invalids, children or grown-ups, it makes no difference what your state or station. City Dairy Ice Cream is most refreshing, nourishing and digestible.

For Sale by discriminating shopkeepers everywhere

City Dairy

Look for the Sign.

TORONTO.

We want an agent in every town.

SINCLAIR'S

"The Hardware Store of Better Values"

The Ware That Lasts a Generation

You can cook the most easily scorched food in

"Wear-Ever" Aluminum Utensils

with less fear of burning than in any other kind, because aluminum is a better distributor of heat and retains it longer. This means a saving in fuel. And it means a saving in wear-and-tear expense, too.

"Wear-Ever" utensils are light to handle and easy to clean. They cannot form poisonous compounds with fruit acids or foods.

"Wear-Ever" utensils are made from thick, hard sheet aluminum, 99% pure, without joint, seam or solder. You can let food burn dry without injuring them. Cannot rust—cannot chip or scale—are practically indestructible.

Replace utensils that wear out with utensils that "Wear-Ever"

Sinclair's Hardware

BRUCE 'PHONE 11 :: BELL 'PHONE 30

EBENEZER

Miss M Matheson of Cluney, is visiting at Geo Grant's.

Miss Rachael Thomas, who has been visiting Mr C A Thoma , has gone to Chesley.

Mrs S A Fleming and children visit friends near Owen Sound.

Mr F Fleming, of Owen Sound, visited her cousin, Mrs Ernie Grant, last week.

Mr and Mrs Earle Grant attended the wedding of a friend at Dobbinton last week.

Mrs Geo Grant is on the sick list this week.

Dobbinton baseball boys came down and played a nice friendly game with our boys last Friday night, our boys winning out—score 8-0. A dainty lunch was served by the ladies and the boys all went home feeling it was good to be at Ebenezer.

Mr Chas Thomas has had an artesian well drilled to a depth of 363 feet, getting an abundance of pure water in the rock. Chas says it's a pile of money to put in a hole in the ground. Mr Boettger, of Paisley, did the job.

Our boys went to Allenford on May 24th and competed in the baseball tournament. Four teams played. The boys stood second, Allenford winning by a small margin.

The cement work on our shed is completed. Many hands make light work.

CASTORIA

For Infants and Children

In Use For Over 30 Years

Always bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher

TURNERS

Mr Ed Forrester of Kincardine spent a few days here last week.

Mr Will Clark of Toronto University spent a few days at home with his father.

Mrs Hillis has returned home from Hanover where she has been attending her father who has been very ill.

Mr Will Dent of Palmerston and his brother Henry of Underwood was visiting their aunt Mrs R Pollock.

Mr Dave Swinton of Calumet, Mich., is visiting his friends here.

Miss Keys is spending a few days with the Misses Davidson.

WILLOW CREEK

Mr and Mrs R McGregor and family autoed to Chesley on Sunday.

Miss Blanche Downie, of Kincardine, spent a few days at her home on the 4th.

Mrs John Wrightson, of Glamis, spent the week end with friends on the 4th.

The Rev Mr Biggerman, of the Moody Institute, conducted the services in the C B church on Sunday night.

Mr John Wrightson has the wall erected for his new barn.

Mr John Kidd had rather an exciting mix-up while leading a team of horses from town. One of the animals scared at something and jumped into the buggy. Both occupants were thrown out of the buggy, but gathered up little the worse for their experience. The vehicle fared worse, as one of the hind wheels was completely telescoped.

SECOND CON ELDERSLIE

Mrs Weir and her daughter Mrs Good, of Gore Bay, are visiting their friends on this line.

Mr Tulloch and son, of Brant, visited the farmer's daughter, Mrs A McGregor, last Sunday.

Miss M Hurrell spent Victoria Day with Clinton friends.

A number of the brawny farmers of this section accompanied by their better halves, attended Bell Bros' barn raising last week.

Miss Nellie Harber, of Osteka, Mich, is visiting friends in Chesley, and spent a few days last week with Mrs J Caldwell.

Blain Fortune has had an artesian well sunk. A good flow of water was struck at 120 feet depth.

UNDERWOOD

Mr Robert Carleton attended the Methodist district meeting at Wingham last week.

Mr J B Knapp has bought Mrs Northcott's house and lot.

May 24th passed off quietly here. A picnic at Baie-de-dore in the afternoon and a concert and dance in Tiverton at night made up the day's amusements. A dance scheduled to come off here was put off on account of poor attendance.

Miss Mary Drummond recently visited friends in Kincardine.

Underwood and Tiverton school boys had a friendly little game of football in Tiverton on Friday night, Tiverton winning by 2-0.

CARGILL

Mr and Mrs Hergott and children of Mildmay spent Sunday with relatives here.

Miss Margaret Garvey of Chepstow spent the week end at the home of Mr Jos Clancy here.

Miss Lillan Seiling spent Sunday at the home of Mr Thos Purdy, Narva.

Mrs Ferguson and children of Teeswater are visiting at the home of W D Cargill, M P P.

Mr Jack Gillies of Hanover Sundayed in the burg.

Mr Thomas Walsh and family who have resided here for some time have moved to Toronto.

Mrs Chas Hamilton left for Winnipeg last week. She intends staying a couple of months with her daughters.

Mr C W Keeling returned to Listowel on Tuesday afternoon.

WALKERTON

The proceeds of the art exhibit in the public school amounted to about $90.

Mr Thos Sinclair, youngest son of Mrs Donald Sinclair here, has creditable passed his fourth year in medicine at the Toronto University.

Mr Arthur Robertson, son of Mr and Mrs David Robertson, has passed his fourth year in mechanical engineering at the S P S, Toronto, with honors, and has now the degree of Bachelor of Applied Science.

Mr J A Mitchell, passenger conductor on the local G T R line, was arraigned before Magistrate Tolton in Walkerton on Thursday last on the charge of fishing on the mill pond, Mildmay, without permission of the Saugeen Fishing Club, who control the fishing rights on the pond. The conductor admitted his guilt and was fined $10 and costs, or a total levy of $18, for this minor offence.

Miss Merle Donnelly of Pinkerton, eldest daughter of Senator J J Donnelly, and a former student of the Walkerton high school, succeeded in capturing the Governor-General's medal for literature at the recent examinations in Loretto Abbey, Toronto. She also secured a gold medal for the best written essay. This double achievement, which is alike creditable to herself and gratifying to her friends, shows marked ability in the world of letters.

Robert Kerr, an automobile agent from the local option town of Kincardine, came into Walkerton on Monday to demonstrate a new Reo car with the object of making a sale here, but patronizing the local bars too freely he became so lit up with booze that his hand, it seems, lost its cunning, and while steaming from Walkerton in a zig zagging fashion run off the road into a ditch to the west of the town, the force of the impact completely demolishing one of the front wheels and damaging the car to the extent of about $150 00. The wrecked auto was towed back into town, and a charge of driving an auto while under the influence of liquor was laid by Chief Ferguson against Kerr. The accused admitted his guilt and was fined $30 and costs or a total assessment of $33 by Magistrate Tolton here on Tuesday last. It claims, that this was the first time that he was ever the worse of liquor, and as this initial spree proved so costly to his purse, it is not likely that he will go up against the booze game again.

Notwithstanding that thousands upon thousands of trout fry are put into the Dominion fish hatcherys at Southampton every year by the Government in order that the people may have fishing, yet where a small fish glooms land of the free can a poor man cast his line for a brook trout without running foul of the pasteboard warnings that prohibit him from the stream. The question is, where do the thousands of trout go every year from these hatcheries that the Government pays for so that the public may have fish. If they are going into these streams, then why should the public who pay for them be prohibited from fishing them. If they are not going into privately controlled streams, then where in the name of common sense are they going to, as no one seems to ever hear of them being turned into a public stream. If these fish hatcheries are being kept up with public money for the benefit of a few, then it is time they were abolished, or at least the expense of running them taken off the shoulders of the people and placed onto the few who are now enjoying the output. The thing should be investigated at once, and hereafter no fish from a Government hatchery should be placed in a stream from which the public are prohibited from fishing.—Herald and Times

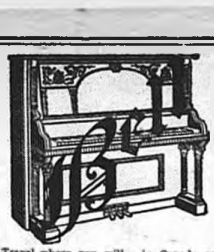
Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

ELDERSLIE COUNCIL

Gillies Hill, May 28th, 1915

Council met on above date as a Court of Revision, members all present. The clerk reported that there were no appeals against Assessor Walks' roll for current year. Some farms had changed hands since the assessor had completed his work. These were placed to present owners, and the following names added: W W Hamwood, E, lot 32, con 4; Henry Winch, e½ lot 15, con 5, and Alex Hamilton, E, lot 8, con 5. On motion of Messrs Lewis and Thomson the roll was adopted as revised and the Court adjourned.

Council met for regular business. Minutes of last meeting read and adopted.



Fraser — Lewis — That commissioners Thomson and Allen have charge of 15 sideroad, and Reeve Cass 30 sideroad, Elora road and boundary lines — Carried. Commissioners were authorized to spend $200 in their respective divisions, $600 to all.

Thomson — Lewis — That the following accounts be paid and that the reeve and clerk issue orders on treasurer for same. —Carried. Robt Christie 10,000 ft cedar, $150; Wm McCallum, building culvert and digging ditch, 10 sideroad, con 12, $5; D McArthur, postage for clerk's office, $2 50; S K Ewart, operating road grader, $50.

Allen — Thomson — That this board do now adjourn to meet again on Monday, July 5th, at 10 o'clock a m, for general business.—Carried.

R C PEARCE, Clerk

—Clubbing rates with all the city dailies and weeklies.

Travel where you will — in Canada or abroad—you find the

BELL PIANO

a leader in the realm of music.

If you would have the best, it must be a BELL.

Sewing Machines, Phonographs and Records

Records on sale at A. T. Bonathan's store

Full information for the asking from

PETER McKINNON, Agt., Paisley

ANNUAL MEETING OF THE BRUCE TELEPHONE SYSTEM

Attendance Excellent, General Satisfaction

Commissioners McNaughton, MacLean and Hunter Re-Elected by Acclamation to Serve for a Third Term

The annual meeting of the Bruce Municipal Telephone System was held at Underwood on Friday, May 21st. There was a large attendance of subscribers, also many prospective subscribers who no doubt are as anxious about the success of the system as those now on.

D McNaughton, president of the commission, occupied the chair and suitably opened the meeting by giving a general summary of how things had been carried on during the year. J B Struthers, secretary, was called upon to read the minutes of the last annual meeting, after which T G MacKay, treasurer, briefly explained the auditor's report

Commissioners McLean and Hunter dealt with the various aspects of the situation and gave the audience an idea of how things transpired during the inaugural stage of the system. For various reasons the people seemed to think that the first group of directors had put one over on the subscribers when the original annual estimate had been raised above what was intended. We now learn that the engineer in charge had estimated a low rate per annum and then immediately purchased first-class material to last 20 to 25 years or more instead of 10 years as at first intended. But the purchasing of the best material was a blessing in disguise. It was the means of starting out right and continuing it so. But the only increase the burden on the directors and present board of commissioners. There was nothing else for it but to put the all the subscribers in the territory. The fact that about 1020 or 1025 phones are on the wall is in the face of all opposition clearly shows that some fellows have been working and working hard. These were not the enemies but the friends of the people after all. It was shown that with the slight increase to take place in the toll and in the 200 or 225 phones adjacent to the pole line in the country the natural increase will be nearly 300. At least one out of the 300 are sure before three summers have gone by.

T A Mickleson was next called upon and explained matters very clearly. He went on to show how, at a meeting of the commissioners and the council, held at Underwood, the financial end of the situation was discussed, and that it was decided to set an agitation going to ask the local Legislature to amend the Telephone Act, allowing the initating municipalities who built local systems to extend the pay ment of debentures over a period of 15 years instead of 10 if the people so desired. He explained how the subscribers on the first by-law could, by signing another petition, allow the council to sell a debenture of a little over $2,600 each year for the next few years. This $2,600, along with about $7,700 collected from the subscribers, will pay the $10,300 due each year. It means that those on the system during the 11th, 12th, 13th, 14th or 15th years will be paying this $2500 instead of those now on the system. Those who have subscribed and who are not on the first by-law must go on the $13,000 by-law about to be issued. Those have signed on the ten year basis the same as the rest. It will require another signature to make it a 15 year debenture. In conclusion, he said, you must do either one of two things to tide the system over until some more subscribers come on—either extend the time or raise the rate over $12,50. If time be extended the rate need not be raised. He explained that if this $2,600 be not required after a few years it will not be necessary to issue the debenture.

A motion asking the council to pass a by-law extending the time as stated was put to the meeting and was carried unanimously, not one standing up when the negative vote was called for.

For the convenience of those who have not signed over again (a large number signed at the meeting) petitions have been sent to the various local offices, where they may be signed. By doing this you will save the commissioners a lot of trouble.

Words of much encouragement came from Reeve Johnston, ex-warden Mewhinney, Allan Nelson, Robt Russell and others whose names escaped our observation.

There were some complaints in regard to the service given at one or two of the local offices, but the matter will be dealt with by the commission. There are to be some improvements made in regard to trunk lines whereby we will get quicker and better service.

In a word, the people are behind this scheme now as they have never been before.

COM

The Auditors Statement

RECEIPTS

From Receipts	$11972 16
" Sundry sources	1388 81
" Debentures	7200 00
" Accrued interest	1182 25
" Bills payable	1000 00
" Skelton cross entry	4 50
" Loans and balance of cash on hand	3275 78
	$99954 50

EXPENDITURES

Bills payable and interest	$83380 25
Bills payable to be renewed	6000 00
Deb No 8 to 84 inclusive	6678 39
Debenture coupons on 8 to 84 less four outstanding, $108.06	3573 93
Reserve account	59 29
Interest on bank account	605 53
Changing phone, Port Elgin	3 00
Other items found in detailed sheets—Salaries and other items	8499 42
	$99954 50

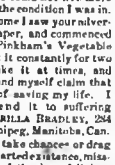
To the Commissioners and Shareholders of the Bruce Municipal Telephone System:

DEAR SIRS—I beg to hand you above report "C" and attached reports "A" and "B," which will show you the standing of the above named system as at April 1st, 1915, which I certify to be a true and correct transcript from the books of the Bruce Municipal Telephone System, as at April 1st, 1915.

The treasurer will furnish detailed items of the various expenditures except on debentures, etc.

Bruce, April 13, 1915.

(Signed) HUGH McLAREN, Auditor



DOCTORS DID NOT HELP HER

But Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Restored Mrs. Bradley's Health—Her Own Statement.

Winnipeg, Canada. — "Eleven years ago I went to the Victoria Hospital, Montreal, suffering with a growth. The doctors said it was a tumor and could not be removed as it would cause instant death. They found that my organs were affected, and said I could not live more than six months in the condition I was in.

"After I came home I saw your advertisement in the paper, and commenced taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I took it constantly for two years, and still take it at times, and both my husband and myself claim that it was the means of saving my life. I highly recommend it to suffering women."—Mrs. ORILLA BRADLEY, 284 Johnson Ave., Winnipeg, Manitoba, Can.

Why will women take chances or drag out a sickly, half-hearted existence, missing three-fourths of the joy of living, when they can find health in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?

LYDIA E. PINKHAM

For thirty years it has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has restored the health of thousands of women who have been troubled with such ailments as displacements, inflammation, ulceration, tumors, irregularities, etc.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

The City Bakery

Is always ready to supply your needs. Why worry and melt over a hot fire? We are here to do your Baking for you. Let us try.

Other than baking we try to keep a fresh supply of Greens and Fruit on hand—as well as a full stock of Fresh Groceries.

We would appreciate it if the public would make their purchases early on Thursdays as it is impossible for us to maintain a strict observance of the Thursday half-holiday on account of our Ice Cream Parlor which will be open every Thursday evening.

We need your trade. Butter and Eggs for Cash or Trade. Dutch Set Onions for sale.

Bruce and Bell 'Phones

F. S. McLACHLAN

Actual Results the True Test

Evidence from the Front

"Your cheque for $2594.97 received. I find that this means a return to me of $231.69 for every $100.00 invested with your Company. To receive my premium back with compound interest at the rate of 4½ per cent., and insurance protection in addition, is certainly exceptionally gratifying."

POLICY NO. 6

The best insurance at lowest net cost is furnished by

THE DOMINION LIFE

HIGH INTEREST RATES - LOW DEATH LOSS

Head Office: Waterloo, Ont.

This above all—Satisfaction to Policyholders

Steele's for

Horse Collars, Sweat Pads, Rubber Lap Rugs, Whips, Auto Plush Rugs, Star Harness Soap, Bickmore's Gall Cure, Axle Grease

Our Harness includes quality, durability, appearance and right class of workmanship found in no other makes of Harness

Baggage Trunks, Suit Cases, Club bags, Grips. Good assortment and close prices.

Harness parts and Repairing our Specialty

J. H. STEELE

Many Colleges Close for Vacation at midsummer. Our College does not.

E. LIOTT Business College

TORONTO — ONT.

is strictly first-class. None better in Canada. Enter now, so as to take a position in the early fall. Our graduates write: "My new position pays three times what I got in leaving school less than four years ago, and grows on the principle taught in our College." We placed this 3 year man in a position after grad. work of 3 months. Others placed him at higher figures.

W. J. ELLIOTT, Principal. Cor. Yonge and Charles Streets.

W. H. BAKER

Having opened a shop in Sinclair's old hardware building, Queen St. North, we are prepared to do all kinds of

Sign and Carriage Painting

HOUSE DECORATING AND PAPER-HANGING, as usual. Prices right.

ROBT. IRVING PLASTERER

SEE Robt. Irving the Plasterer before letting any work in this line. Separate estimates for all kinds of plastering, or with Jas Dewar for whole contracts for erection of buildings.

R. T. ROBINSON CARPENTER AND CONTRACTOR

ESTIMATES furnished for the erection of any class of building. Large or small contracts undertaken.

Address Chesley or Cargill P.O

PURDY'S LIVERY

Rates Reasonable, and every effort made to satisfy

F. PURDY

Bull for Sale

YOUNG Thoroughbred Shorthorn Bull 13 months old. Apply to J. H. McARTHUR, Port Elgin, R. R. No 3

Fire in Chesley

Fire at 4 30 on Sunday morning did more than $3,700 damage in the fire and ten cent store of Reavley & Savage. It is partly covered by insurance. The stock, much of which was destroyed by water, was valued at $2,200, while the remaining loss of $1,500 was on the building. The Oddfellows hall above the store was also badly damaged, and there will be several hundred dollars damage to the stock of B. Wright's furniture store next door. The cause of the fire is unknown as there had been no fire in the furnace for two weeks.

The Paisley Advocate.

D. McKENZIE, Publisher
Vol. 42—No. 23

PAISLEY, ONTARIO, JUNE 10, 1915

$1.00 per Annum in Advance
$1.25 if not so paid

Women's Warm Weather Wear

In our DressGoods Department you will find an up-to-date line of summer wear. We carry a line of Novelties in Dress Lengths only.

An unlimited assortment of Gloves and Hosiery to choose from.

A full line of Men's Suits and Furnishings on display at special prices.

Straw Hat season is now here and we have a full range of Sailors and Panamas.

Millinery at Half Price

In our Shoe Department you will find an up-to-date line of Pumps and Oxfords made over Pump and Oxford lasts, also a line of White Canvas Pumps.

Week End Specials

A broken line of Strap Slippers and Oxfords at clearing prices. For ladies' at 98c; Men's Oxfords at 98c; Children's Slippers at 79c; Men's Straw Hats at 15c; Men's Felt Hats at 50c.

Wool Wanted! For which the highest prices will be paid.

Fresh Groceries Every Week. Highest Prices Paid for Farm Produce.

M. J. CAMPBELL

W. H. McFarlane's Old Stand : : Paisley

New Spring Suitings

See our goods and styles before buying. We have a large stock to choose from.

We Make a Specialty of ...

Ladies' Tailoring

No trying on or worrying. Just leave your measure and we will attend to the rest. All the newest goods and latest styles from which to make your selection. Satisfaction guaranteed.

I. S. Cruickshank

Something New in Floor Covering

Congoleum

Cannot be injured by water and therefor can be scrubbed and cleaned frequently without effecting the gloss. Will lie flat on wooden or concrete floors without fastenings of any kind and not curl up or kick up. Made in Rug style in different designs and any size desired, or in imitation of wood flooring of any kind with borders to match. See samples of the goods and designs shown in catalogue. Prices lower than any other floor covering of anything like the same wearing quality.

By Buying Here You Save Money

We are also agent for the newest and best out-door Clothes Reel, the "Clay" Lawn Dryer—the strongest and neatest device yet produced. Can be left out or taken in when not in use—just fold it up and carry away. 120 ft. of line guaranteed to carry the heaviest wash. Take it on 30 days trial, and if not satisfactory return at our expense. Here for inspection any time. Drop in and see it.

Fresh Groceries, Fruit and Vegetables always on hand. Highest Prices in Cash or Trade for Produce. City Dairy Ice Cream always on sale served in our parlors.

Both Phones. Goods delivered to any part of the town.

City Dairy

A. T. BONATHAN

Hyde's Old Stand Successor to W. S. Mitchell

—Private funds to loan.
D. FORRESTER.

—Ebenezer Garden Party, June 17th, at Wm Grant's.

—Wilkinson plows and repairs at F. Carter & Son's.

—Marriage licenses issued and money to loan. T. H. GEORGE.

—Reduced prices on all Millinery. Ballachey, Laidlaw & Co.

—Good driving horse for sale, 7 years old. Enquire at Advocate office.

—Wool wanted in any quantity. We pay cash or trade. Ballachey, Laidlaw & Co.

—FOUND—A pair of steel framed spectacles in case. Enquire at Advocate Office.

—Full lines of fine engagement and wedding rings at I. Shoemaker's jewellery store

—Highest prices paid for hides and sheepskins. H. E. McIlregor, Butcher, Steele Block.

—Pine apples are now at their best. We have them in any quantity. Ballachey, Laidlaw & Co.

—Black and white hound lost. Finder please return to Guy Ruthven, Elderslie R. R. No. 1, Paisley P.O.

—Bring in that old buggy and have it repainted to look as good as new. W. JACK Gibson's old store, Paisley.

—Highest price for beefhides, horsehides, calfskins, sheepskins, tallow, &c. P. OLTSHER, Paisley Meat Market.

—"Rough on Rats" clears out Rats, Mice, etc. Don't die in the house. 15c and 25c at drug and country stores.

—Repainting and retirmming of all kinds of vehicles at W. Jack's new paint shop, Gibson's old store, Paisley.

—It's only a dollar, but it means a good deal to THE ADVOCATE if hundreds are slow in paying that on their subscription.

—FOR SALE—A quantity of Metallic Shingles at a bargain. Could be used for lining granary, etc. Apply to ROBT. HENDRY, Paisley.

—DWELLING WANTED—Furnished or unfurnished in or adjacent to Paisley, for the months of July and August. Apply to John Sutherland, Guelph, or R. Laidlaw, Paisley.

—If you have a guest at your home, are going out of town for a visit, or know of any interesting news kindly let us hear from you. We will always appreciate such favors.

TENDERS FOR BOOTH PRIVILEGES—The undersigned will receive tenders up to June 17th at 8 p.m. for the booth privileges on Riverside Park on race day, June 24th. W. J. ELLIS, Sec'y.

—Just received at F. Stevenson's an assortment of pipes that will surely please. Come and select your choice. Tobaccos, stationery, also our wonderful salve that cures burns and sores, soothing for burns.

—HOMESEEKERS' EXCURSIONS every Tuesday up to and including October to the Canadian Northwest. For tickets, maps, etc., apply at the Canadian Pacific Railway ticket office, W. H. McFarlane's old stand, Paisley.

—Five Roses, Rainbow, Purity, Cream of the West, and Stark's high-grade flours, also Bran and Shorts. Blatchford's Calf Meal and Flax, Caldwell's Molasses Meal, and full line of Poultry Foods and Tonics. Always in the market for coarse grains. E. G. ECKEL.

—WANTED—An industrious man who can earn $100 a month and expenses selling our products to farmers. Must have some means for starting expenses and furnish contract signed by two responsible men. Address W. T. Rawleigh Co., Toronto, Ont., giving age, occupation and references.

THE DOMINION FEATHER COMPANY

Have opened an office in Walkerton. Feather beds made into down comforters. We also make the Soft Roll Feather Mattresses out of your old feather beds. Prices very reasonable. We buy new and old used feathers. Factory next to Royal Hotel.

Your King and Country Need You!

RECRUITS WANTED

ALL young men in the County of Bruce between the ages of 18 and 45 willing to enlist with the Canadian Expeditionary Force for overseas service please forward their names to

MAJOR THOS. BAY
O. C. 33rd Regt.
Paisley, Ont

—Paisley Races, June 24

—Miss Ethel Pearce has gone to visit her sister at Langham, Sask.

—Miss Sutherland, of Bradford, is visiting her sister, Mrs. F. C. Ryan.

—Miss M. McDonald, of Toronto, visited her aunt, John McNeill, Elora road north.

—Mr. and Mrs Bert Reed and son of Guelph, are visitors at the home of his parents, Mr and Mrs H Reed

—Miss Olive Bates, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rich. Bates, arrived home from Swan Lake, Man., on Monday.

—Mrs. Longfield and children are up from Toronto on a visit to her parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. Mann, Goldie St.

—Mr Geo. Last, of Elderslie, was down to Woodstock attending the funeral of his uncle, who died there a few days ago.

—The pupils of the third book have contributed the sum of $2 60, and the second book pupils $3 to the Ontario Red Cross Sock Fund

—Mrs. Mack MacMillan arrived home last week after spending a couple of weeks with her sister, Mrs. H. H. Rudolph, of Weston, who has been very ill.

—Mr. Addie Hall has so far recovered from his recent operation that he was in condition to be brought home from Toronto hospital on Thursday last.

—The Paisley Fair committees will meet in the council chamber on Saturday, June 19th, to revise the prize list and arrange for this year's exhibition.

—A meeting of the Women's Patriotic League will be held in Putnam's hall on Friday, June 11th, at 2 o'clock. All women are earnestly requested to attend.

—Mr. Wm. McGowan, who has been employed with J. S. Dewar, went to London last week to enlist for the war. He is a young Irishman and has four brothers in the service.

—Salem garden party, June 22nd, at Mr. Hugh Davis', 10th con. Elderslie. Baseball match, Dunblane vs. Dublin on, and a splendid programme. Wm. McDonald, M.P.P., Rev. Bandy, of Dunblane, Prof. Brandt, of Chesley, Mr. Jas. Scott of Port Elgin, also talent expected from Paisley and Chesley. Admission 15c and 25c.

Mrs. R. W. Tanner, of Elderslie, received a telegram from Vancouver on Tuesday advising her of the death of her father, Mr. Robert Lindsay. The deceased was an old and respected resident of Elderslie, and many will regret to learn of his demise. He was 77 years of age.

—The Ladies' Aid of Fairview Presbyterian church, Chesley, will have a garden party at the residence of Mr. James Rennie, lot 29, con. 2, Elderslie, on Thursday, June 24th. Chesley band will be in attendance and a fine programme given. Ice cream and refreshments will be on the grounds. Lunch served from 6 to 8 o'clock. Admission 25c.

—A hot spell of several days that threatened to burn up vegetation was broken on Monday by the heaviest downpour of rain that we have had here for several years, and other showers have followed, so that now conditions are much more favorable for crops than for a fortnight previous when frost and drouth were blighting the grass and young grain

—A dead porcupine was brought to the school on Monday by one of the Continuation pupils, Norman McArthur of Elderslie. The little animal had been captured by two dogs, which subsequently required third Cross attendance. It took two people a couple of hours to extract the barbed quills that had stuck in the mouths and noses of the canines. This was probably the first porcupine ever seen by any pupils of Paisley school.

—A meeting of the male members of the organized Bible Class of the Baptist church was held Monday evening, when a baseball team was organized. Officers were appointed as follows: Honorary President, Rev. R. J. McKee; President, F. S. McLachlan; Vice-Pres., Jas. A. McNeill; 2nd Vice, H. Pfaff; Sec'y, Stewart Dewar; Treas., Fred Blue; Manager, Geo. Stewart; Captain, Harold Blue; Coach, F. D. Pear. A match will be played this (Thursday) afternoon, between teams from the High School and this club, in Riverside Park. Admission free.

Gravelling Contract to Let

THE undersigned will be at 2nd Con. Elderslie, on Wednesday, June 16th, at 1.30 o'clock p.m. sharp to let the job of gravelling the Elora Road south of Paisley. J. K. CASS, C. FRASER, JAS. LEWIS, Commissioners.

To Contractors

THE undersigned will be at Watson's bridge, boundary Elderslie and Greenock, on Wednesday, June 16th, at 2 o'clock p.m. to let jobs of repairing bridge and fill. D. PHELAN, J. E. CASS, Commissioners.

More's Wall Papers for 1915

Be wise in time and see our excellent aggregation of new and artistic effects in room decorations before purchasing your supply.

We have never shown a better range of Wall Paper or at more reasonable prices.

P. B. MORE .: Druggist

Established over Forty-one Years

THE STANDARD BANK OF CANADA

ASSETS OVER $48,000,000

The A, B, C of Banking

Perfect Safety.
Quick Assets.
Reliable Service

We solicit your account in our SAVINGS DEPARTMENT

PAISLEY BRANCH

F. C. RYAN Manager

Branches also at Hanover and Tiverton.

Paisley Meat Market

Fresh Beef, Pork, Mutton, Cured Hams, Bacon, etc. Salt Pork, Cooked Meats, Home-made Sausage (2 lbs for 25c), Bologna and Headcheese. Kidney Suet. Poultry in season.

Cash for Hides and Skins. Bruce and Bell Phones

P. Oltsher

J. S. DEWAR

PAISLEY

Builder, Contractor and Cement Worker

Brick or cement buildings erected, brick work, cement work and plastering contracts taken.

Cement Supplies Furnished

Building Blocks, Window and Door Sills, Culvert Tile, Well Curbing, Lawn Rollers, Lawn Vases, Verandah Columns, Balusters and other fancy Cement Products.

Building Material

Cement, Lime, Lath, Shingles, Glazed Sewer Pipe and Flue Lining, Mortar Color, etc.

Large supply of

Oilcloths and Linoleums

just to hand

Now is the time to get your new supply, before they are picked over.

We have also a good assortment of Squares, and our prices can't be beaten. Give us a call before buying.

For good Butter and Eggs we pay the highest price in either CASH or TRADE . . .

Both 'Phones PUTNAM & SON

Bruce Deanery W. A. Meeting

The annual meeting of the Bruce Deanery Woman's Auxiliary in connection with the Church of England was held on Tuesday of last week in the Church of the Ascension when a goodly number of delegates from the various branches in the Deanery were present. Mrs. Sage, of London, the Diocesan President of the W. A., and Rev. C. H. Shortt, M.A., returned missionary from Japan, gave very interesting addresses at the afternoon and evening sessions. While Mr. Shortt showed the great need in the heathen world, Mrs. Sage urged those present to do their part in backing up the missionaries in their work. Mrs. (Rev.) Diehl was re-elected president of the Bruce Deanery W.A., and Mrs. (Rev.) Hamilton of Southampton, secretary-treasurer for the ensuing year. A co-operative sale consisting of 16 quilts and various articles of clothing is being sent to the mission at Fort George, Moose Factory, on the Hudson Bay. Luncheon was served on the church lawn to about 85 ladies and children of the junior branch of the W.A., after which Rev. Mr. Diehl invited those present to go through the new school. All were delighted and many pleasant remarks were made highly commending the building. The visitors went away with pleasant recollections of the annual meeting of the W.A. in Paisley.

—The contract has been let for a new high school building in Dorham to cost $14,000

June Specials

A Good-for-any-Time-of-the-Year Suit Costs

$15.00

Special Summer Pants

$2.50

Shirts

Regular $1.50, $1.25, $1 for 75c.

Underwear

Balbriggan Mesh Cashmere Underwear, regular 50c at 42c; Cashmere 75c at 50c; Combinations accordingly.

Ties

All 50c Ties at 25c.

Hosiery

Silk and Cashmere—50c—75c at 35c

—$3.50 Auto Dusters at $2.50—

We would like you to call some day

G. B. IRWIN

Tailor and Furnisher Paisley

The Darkest Hour;

Or, The Hope That Still Lived.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

"You must sacrifice yourself in order that he may not be sacrificed. You must tell the truth to save him—or, at least, to lessen his punishment. After all, you are his fellow-creature, and in the eyes of God, who does not count money, his honor and his happiness are of the same value as yours. He will never speak, however hard he may be pressed. He will hold his tongue about you just because you are a woman. Can you be less noble, less generous? Of course he is alone in the world, but does not that make it the more terrible a shame that he should be treated unjustly? So far as I have been able to learn, he has been lonely all his life—a well-born child, who has never had any one of his own class blood, or even of his own class, to teach him rightly. It seems that when he was five years old he lived in a great house somewhere, and his mother was taken away from him, and soon afterwards his father went away—neither of them seems to have died, although he speaks of them as dead—and he was left in charge of an uncle. This uncle put him away in the care of an old woman, who took him to a Welsh cottage, and looked after him there until she died. She was told to consider him as her own child, and bring him up a Pagan or something of that sort. Then she had transferred him to the care of some other woman. I have written to this other woman, and I have her letter of reply here. She says that she is sure from what her predecessor in the boy's guardianship told her that he belonged to people of rank."

Christine Dare paused to take breath. She was pursuing with Mrs Crookenden in the latter's private sitting-room in the Grosvenor Square house; pleading for justice for the young clerk Lewisham, now remanded on the charge of having been found in possession of a certain document and a certain signet ring which he had stolen from the private cabinet of the Earl of Yoxford with intent to carry the same away.

Christine continued still more earnestly:—

"I do not mean that his being of good birth gives him any greater claim upon your humanity. I only feel that this point may make him more interesting to you. It is his lifelong loneliness that I want to dwell upon. Lewisham, it appears, is not his true name. It was the name given to the woman who first took charge of him, but she told the second guardian that when the child first came to her he persisted in saying that his name was Bernard. The clothes he was wearing when first handed over by his own people to the care of strangers have been kept. This was against the wish of the uncle, who had ordered that they should be destroyed. It appears that they have been kept because both women were struck with the mystery of the case, and felt that they had in charge a child who was not of the common. I have those clothes now, and shall call attention to them—perhaps in the Court."

"You have them?" interrupted Mrs Crookenden with a new note in her voice. The girl thought the new tone meant a softening of the money-hardened heart. "Will you let me see them?"

Christine wondered. "Of course I will let you see them gladly," she replied. "But will you not give me here and now some hope that you will be merciful to him?"

Mrs Crookenden turned upon her. "Do you know what it is you are asking of me?" she demanded. "Do you know that you are asking me to expose to the world truths for which the world would never pardon me, and would always abhor me? Do you know, in short, that you are asking me to commit myself to ruin in order that a young man, who is nothing to me, and certainly nothing of importance beside me, may be spared a few months' punishment which he, after all, deserves for one thing, if not for another?"

Christine shrank back a little. This woman, whose wickedness she loathed, and had yet a certain fascination for her, and awoke a certain pity in her. This was how it was that when presently that iron voice told her to go, she obeyed quickly, and without a murmur.

Barely two hours later the millionaire woman's carriage drew up outside the aristocratic portico of the Countess of Fordham. The millionaire woman herself alighted, and asked to see Miss Dare. In the pretty private sitting-room allotted to Christine there was a countryfied looking box with its lid propped open. The Money Queen fell on her knees beside this box, and began turning over its contents. There was the complete outfit of a four or five year old boy, the garments still as good as when they were bought, for the reason that their small owner had not, after the loss of his parents, been permitted to wear them. There were little blue knickerbockers and a short blue coat with large steel buttons, and a little frilled silk shirt to wear with these. Then there was a flannel shirt, and other little flannel articles of underclothing, some edged with embroidery—embroidery which the woman who had now looked at them had herself worked years ago. There were no names on any of the things, except on a handkerchief, a tiny handkerchief, one of the first dozen that its child-owner had ever possessed—on each handkerchief of this first dozen the child's mother had worked two initial letters. Eagerly the woman kneeling by the box looked now for these two initials in the corner of the handkerchief. Ah, she was disappointed. The initials were not there, so she thought at first, but in the next moment, looking closely—oh, so closely!—at the little piece of cambric, she discovered the outline of the two letters. The embroidery had evidently been picked out, but the mark that its working had made was still there for the keen eyes of love and longing to see; the outlines of the letters "B. G." were unmistakable. Christine, watching from her seat close by, was surprised to see something like a convulsion pass over the stony-hearted Mrs. Crookenden's face.

But the handsome and successful woman built of steel and iron did not even now betray herself. She thanked Christine for allowing her to see the contents of the box, and asked her to keep both box and contents safe until she should come again. Then she went downstairs to her carriage, and ordered her coachman to drive her to Holloway Gaol.

It was half-past four in the afternoon when she entered the cell where Harry Lewisham awaited the fulfilling of his destiny as a prisoner under remand. He showed no pleasure at the sight of the woman who had brought him to this pass.

"Why have you come?" he asked her bitterly. "Did you not feel satisfied that I should not mention your name?"

The millionaire woman, who was London's idol at the hour, stood silently looking at him. She stood like this for so long a time that he grew nervous as well as restless under her searching gaze.

"Are you trying to read into my soul?" he asked her with an uncomfortable laugh

"No," she answered him quietly. "I am only trying to see if there is any likeness to me in your face. I have found out to-day that you are my son."

"Your son?" The young man recoiled, and his eyes told her that he believed her to have gone suddenly mad.

"Yes, my son, whom I have sought for years and whom now I have found only to ruin."

She caught him and held him close, murmuring incoherent words. Then she reached up her strong arms and clasped them around his neck, and resting her head against his shoulder broke into a storm of sobs. She did this—she who had not sobbed nor scarcely wept for years.

CHAPTER XXIX.

"Will you say no to Lord Bernard Gauntlet that I wish to see him for a few minutes?"

It was Mrs Crookenden who proferred this request. She was standing in a long seeshilth driving Hatch, and she had handed her card to the porter—that ordinary looking card bearing the wonderful name that would have got her the entree of the most desirable and exclusive places in the world. Even now, for it accompanied an audacious demand, for Lord Bernard Gauntlet, who was the military hero of the hour, had but lately arrived, and could hardly be expected to accord at the present hour the dinner hour the favor of an interview to a total stranger. But as the world is now made—a great millionaire is rarely treated as a total stranger. It was not surprising, therefore, that after a very brief interval Lord Bernard's attention was brought to the important woman waiting in the vestibule that Lord Bernard would be pleased to receive her at once. He was at dinner, but that mattered nothing, as he was dining alone.

Outside, in the waiting carriage, there was a crumpled evening paper in which much was made of the approaching marriage of Lord Bernard Gauntlet and the Marchioness of Highmoor. The trousseau of the noble bride-elect had been admiringly enumerated upon. Mrs Crookenden thought of this now as she followed the hotel servant to Lord Bernard's suite of rooms. Her dark face was impassive as usual, but under her rich gown and cloak her heart was beating unnaturally fast. Would he know her? Would he recognize her—he, who had been the nearest and dearest when all the others had failed?

She entered the sitting-room in which he awaited her. The servant closed the door behind her, and she unhooked and threw off her heavy sealskin cloak, whose weight and warmth had become oppressive in this indoor atmosphere. She stood revealed in a gown that was one shimmering mass of jet. Surely the man who now advanced to meet her had never before beheld so stately a vision of mature womanhood. As they shook hands this familiar courtesy was justified by the fact that two important business letters had been exchanged between them—a shadow of trouble came into his eyes. Of whom did she remind him? And why did she look at him so strangely?

"You do me great honor in making me this visit, my dear Mrs. Crookenden," he began, and then stopped. Her silence was growing strange and perplexing and the haunting familiarity of her features was somehow sending a chill through his veins. He tried to pass over the odd feeling; but it would not be passed over. And then she spoke for the first time.

"Do you not know me, Lord Bernard? Look at me closely. Who am I?"

Still gazing at her, he answered her stammeringly:—

"I—I do not know—unless you have come back from the dead."

She smiled. "You are right. To all intents and purposes I have indeed come back from the dead. I am your wife; yes, I who am known as Mrs. Crookenden, the richest human being that the world has yet known, am your wife, the wife whom you injured and forswore and forsook. This will be interesting news for Lady High more, will it not?"

Lord Bernard Gauntlet had come up close to her, looking hard into her face. He now reeled back, with his right hand pressed against his forehead.

"You—you—my wife that died!"

"Yes, I—your wife that died!"

He sank down on to a couch, still staring at her with his keen eyes that so often had looked death in the face a thousand times more calmly. She went nearer to him.

"During all these long years I have been planning my just vengeance for the injuries done me. I have carried out that vengeance on your brother, on Randolph Dare and his family, on all, in short, but you. I have not meant to spare you, either, but something has happened to me to-day which brings me here in despairing entreaty rather than in anger. You broke my heart and wrecked my life and tried to compass my death, but I will forgive you."

The tired-looking military man before her had started up from the couch where he rested.

"I broke your heart and wrecked your life! I never wronged you in thought or word or deed. Lies told me you had disgraced your womanhood by drink and by other things of which I will not here speak. Was it not true? Was it all a conspiracy? It must have been, if you are she who was my wife. Because no woman who was what they said you were could have become what you are now."

(To be continued.)

RECRUIT RELIANT BANTAMS.

British Now Accept Men Five Feet Tall.

The British War Office authorized the enlistment of men under 5 feet 3 inches tall and not below 5 feet for the Ulster Division, the minimum chest measurement to be 34 inches. Parts as a result the enlistment have risen nearly 25 per cent. Hitherto short men in Belfast who wished to enlist were obliged to enter a bantam battalion in Liverpool or Glasgow. A few days ago a party of these left Belfast to join the Seventeenth battalion of the Royal Scots in Glasgow and another went to the "Birkenhead Bantams," the Fifteenth Battalion of the Cheshire Regiment.

The total number of recruits from Belfast since August 1 is 20,000. Nearly half are in the Ulster Division. More than a quarter are in the cavalry and in English and Scottish commands which were more likely to go to the front early. Nearly a tenth went into the Irish Brigade (Nationalist) or with Irish men in the south who were eager to get to the firing line. A feature is a comparatively large number of Jews among the recruits.

Sad Indeed.

A Boston school teacher had read Whittier's "Maud Muller" to her pupils, and at the close of her reading spoke of the sorrowful significance of the words "It might have been." She asked the boys and girls if they could think of any four sadder words. One alert youngster of a dozen years held up his hand and said:

"I know two sadder words."

"What are they?" asked the teacher.

"Please remit."

Narrow Escape Repudiated.

A tourist travelling in the Rocky Mountains, was introduced to an old hunter who claims to have killed no fewer than 100 bears.

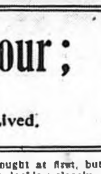
"Bill," said the introducer, "this fellow wants to hear some narrer escapes you've had from bears."

The old man, rubbing his eyes, looked the stranger over and said:

"Young man, if there's been any narrer escapes, the bears had 'em."

A Touch-Me-Not Temper.

Mrs. Bacon: And when your husband gets angry, does he tear his hair?



Mrs. Egbert: Oh, no; he's afraid to. It's not his, you know.

The Royal Irish Regiment is the oldest of all the Irish regiments.

Australia and New Zealand are the greatest wool producing countries.

Silver Gloss
LAUNDRY STARCH

means perfect starching, whether used for sheer Laces, dainty Dimities, delicate fabrics, Lace Curtains or Table Linens.

"Silver Gloss" has been the favorite in the home for more than 50 years

AT GROCERS

The Canada Starch Co. Limited

55

PRACTICAL FARMING

The Loss From Tuberculosis in Swine.

That the loss from tuberculosis in swine is increasing in Canada is shown by the following table, recently published by Dr Torrance, Veterinary Director-General. The figures were obtained from the abattoirs under the Health of Animals Branch, where a careful record of all cases of tuberculosis in swine is kept. They show the percentage of swine affected with tuberculosis for the years named:

Year.	1910	1911	1912	1913	1914
Percent.	8.90	11.60	12.69	13.41	15.72

In some parts of Canada the percentage is higher than in others, as for instance:

	Per cent.	Per cent.	Per cent.	Per cent.	Per cent.
	1910	1911	1912	1913	1914
Essex Co.	16.28	21.41	23.49	26.72	28.00
Kent Co.	24.57	26.31	25.45	30.27	32.00
Ont Prov.	10.46	13.56	14.84	16.05	19.15

While these figures show that for the whole Dominion in 1914 nearly every seventh hog was affected with tuberculosis, and for Ontario nearly every fifth hog, it does not mean that all the animals affected are unfit for food. Generally, the disease was found to be in its early stages and confined to one or two glands. Nevertheless, increasing prevalence of tuberculosis calls for attention.

Struggles Common to Horses.

This trouble, commonly called colt distemper, affects horses, but rarely mules and donkeys. It is such an infectious disease that nearly all horses contract it when colts, and usually remain immune to future exposures. The cause is a very small organism or germ which enters the system when a healthy colt comes in contact with a diseased one, or when fed and watered in infected vessels. The seat of trouble is largely restricted to the respiratory organs.

The animal eats little, and does not care to take much exercise. A little watery discharge frequently appears from the eyes, and about the same time a watery discharge from the nostrils, which soon becomes thicker and yellowish in color. Usually the glands between the lower jawbones become enlarged and undergo suppuration, with a rupture of them and free discharge of pus. When no complications occur, the disease usually runs its course in two weeks. A laxative diet, with something green, if possible, should be given, and the colt placed in clean, airy and comfortable quarters, but not in a draft.

Protect Hawks and Owls.

In some parts field mice and other small rodents cause considerable damage to grain and forage crops, and young orchards have to be protected against them. The chief enemies of these rodents are the hawks and owls, and yet these birds are most persistently persecuted. Thanks to the various agricultural colleges, farmers are becoming more enlightened and therefore better farmers.

It is estimated that each hawk or owl kills an average of a thousand mice a year, a saving of at least twenty dollars to the farmer whose property it selects for its residence.

Farm and Garden.

It is estimated that Western Australia will have 8,000 cases of pears and 20,000 cases of grapes for export this season.

Saskatchewan grain growers have decided each to raise one extra acre of wheat this year, to be called the "patriotic acre," and to present the proceeds in flour to the Imperial Government.

Many enemies may be augmented by cultivating the back yard. A penny saved is a penny earned.

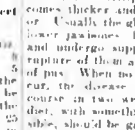
Vegetables fresh from the garden are a luxury only appreciated by those who cultivate their own back yard or the vacant lot.

Drive the fly from its entrenched haunts do not worry about its positions by cleaning up and disinfecting its breeding places—the garbage can, the privy pit and the exposed manure pile.

During the warmer months, when heat-producing food is not so much required, fresh fish should form a much larger proportion of the diet of Canadian people.

"I" is used more frequently than any other letter in the English alphabet.

Edison says we sleep too much. It isn't his fault. He has invented heaps of things to keep us awake.



CORRUGATED IRON

Galvanized, Rust Proof Made from very finest sheets, absolutely free from defects.

Each sheet is pressed, not rolled, corrugations therefore fit accurately without waste. Any desired size or gauge, straight or curved.

LOW PRICES—PROMPT SHIPMENT

Metallic Roofing Co., LIMITED
Manufacturers
TORONTO & WINNIPEG

FOR DISTEMPER PINK EYE, EPIZOOTIC SHIPPING FEVER, and CATARRHAL FEVER

Sure cure and positive preventive, no matter how horses at any age are infected or exposed. Green on the tongue, acts on the Blood and Glands, expels disease germs from the body. Cures Distemper in Dogs and Sheep, and Cholera in Poultry. Largest selling Live Stock Remedy. Use Spohn's Compound when horses have Influenza, Coughs, La Grippe among human beings and is a fine kidney remedy. Cut this out. Keep it. Show it to your druggist, who will get it for you. Free Booklet, "Distemper, Its Cause and Cures."

DISTRIBUTORS—ALL WHOLESALE DRUGGISTS
SPOHN MEDICAL CO., Chemists and Bacteriologists, Goshen, Ind., U.S.A.

FREE!! $100.00 IN CASH

AND NUMBER OF VALUABLE PREMIUMS GIVEN AWAY

1st Prize, $25.00 in cash. 2nd Prize, $15.00 in cash
2nd Prize, $10.00 in cash. 3rd Prize, $10.00 in cash
4th to 10th Prize, each $5.00 in cash

Below will be found 4 words of equal length and letters. Can you arrange these 4 sets of letters in such order that each set will spell the name of a well known article of food? If you can, by trial, patience and perseverance you can find them. By sending us a proper arrangement you can win a prize. That may require a little time, but there is ONE HUNDRED DOLLARS AND NUMBER OF VALUABLE PREMIUMS given away. Surely it is worth while to spend some time to secure a prize. Remember that all you have to do is to write these names plainly and exactly with your name and address, and send them to us. Then both answers and prize winners will be considered fairly in the competition. Every one who sends a solution may participate in this contest—we do not require the sending of any of YOUR MONEY.

OLIN	GERIT	LWOF	RABE

Send your answer at once, we will reply by return mail telling you whether your answers are correct or not, and we will send you a complete Prize List, together with the names and addresses of persons who have received Several Thousand dollars in Cash Prizes and Useful Premiums from us, and full particulars of a simple condition to be fulfilled. This condition does not involve the spending of any of your money. The publishers of this contest have not the privilege of competing in this contest. This contest will be judged by well known business men whose honesty is unquestionable who are strangers to our Company and their decision should be accepted as final. Send your answer immediately.

Address Canadian Medicine Co., Dept. 119 Montreal, Que.

Redpath Sugar has been growing better and more popular ever since. When there seemed no further room for improvement in the sugar itself, we made a decided advance by introducing the Redpath Sealed Cartons.

These completed a series of individual packages—2 and 5 lb. Cartons and 10, 20, 50 and 100 lb. Cloth Bags—which protect the sugar from Refinery to Pantry, and ensure your getting the genuine Redpath.

Get Canada's favorite Sugar in Original Packages.

CANADA SUGAR REFINING CO., LIMITED, MONTREAL. 130

The Housewife's Corner

Make Your Kitchen Sanitary.

Many of the articles which are published from time to time on sanitation in the home are not read by many housewives, because of the uninteresting way in which they are written. Here is an article by Alice R. Quirby, which appeared in "Safe Milk," published by City Dairy Co., Toronto. It splendidly combines an interesting story with an instructive article, and every housewife can benefit by the lesson, as well as fully enjoy the reading.

"You are always so busy and particular and forever talking about sanitation and hygiene that I want you to see my sanitary kitchen."

It was my newly married sister talking. I was paying my first visit to her at her new home in a distant city. I was glad it was my sister, because I would not have dared talk as plainly to anyone else as I did to her concerning the condition in which I found her kitchen.

"Now Betty, isn't it absolutely immaculate? Doesn't it come up to even your high standards for sanitary kitchens?"

Her kitchen did look immaculate and it appeared to be as sanitary as one could desire, but I saw many things which were not in keeping with my idea of perfect sanitation and without hesitation I told my sister about it. The floor was of a reddish composition with rounded corners and running up several feet like a wainscotting. There were tiles about the range and her sink was of white porcelain. It did look dainty enough, but there were only two small windows. These were high up and the lower half thickly shaded with sash curtains, while dark shades were drawn down to meet them.

"In the first place," I explained, "take down those sash curtains, put up the shades and get a new door leading to the back porch which is at least half glass. You have no sun in your kitchen, and without sun your kitchen cannot be called sanitary. Sunshine is better than all the other things in the world for destroying germs and promoting cleanliness."

Then I began to criticize my sister's kitchen from beginning to end. I pointed out to her that white tiles and porcelain sink and composition floors are by no means all there is to sanitation. In one corner was a white willow waste basket in which cracker boxes, papers that came around groceries and meats and other things had been tossed. I told her that this waste basket was not sanitary. She was inclined to doubt me until I explained that the little particles of food from the papers would attract flies and other things, and that in the tiny crevices between the woven willow strands of the basket all sorts of little things might hatch out. "Get a metal waste basket," I said, "and then you can clean it every day by setting it in the sink and pouring boiling water over it. In this way you may be sure neither roaches nor flies will deposit their eggs in it, nor can any dirt collect in it for a sufficient length of time to breed germs."

My sister was forced to agree with me and made a note of it. Then she looked as though she were challenging me to find anything else that was wrong. I did. First I told her to throw away the tin sink strainer and get one of white enamel, as the tin would rust, dirt would collect in the corners, and in spite of ordinary cleaning it would become a breeding place for germs. To prove this I picked up a wooden skewer and ran it around the corners of the strainer, scraping up a quantity of dirt. My sister looked pained and surprised. "I scrubbed that out thoroughly this morning," she said. I explained to her that a white enamel sink strainer with rounded corners would be cleaned perfectly but the tin ones and the cheap colored enameled ones would not.

The next thing I noticed was an egg beater hanging up in the kitchen pantry. My sister said she always scalded it before using, but with a pin I picked out tiny spots of dirt which had collected in the crevices. "What shall I do?" asked my sister, and I told her to get the egg beaters which are enclosed in glass. They are exceedingly simple, there are no cogs or blades to collect the dirt and they are always kept away from the dirt inside the glass jars.

Her meat chopper was arranged to fasten on her kitchen table, and she had a board which curved around in order to collect everything that went through it. She thought it was a pretty good idea until with a kitchen knife I scraped the surface of that board and proved to her that it was not possible to keep any board absolutely clean if anything moist were used on it. I told her about ordinary parchment paper, how to buy it by the roll, and how to cut off a small piece to put under the chopper, throwing away the paper after it was thus used. I also advised her to put this paper over her meat board and to use it in various other manners.

Out on the back porch her dish cloths, two of them, were hanging to dry. "Three times a day you wash these out in clean hot water and suds and then rinse them," I told her. "It takes at least twenty minutes of your time every day to wash them out, hang them up and bring them in again. If you would buy paper dish cloths, which may be secured at about 10 cents a dozen, you would save all this extra work and bother, and they would cost you scarcely more than the soap you use three times a day to keep the cloth ones clean." These paper dish cloths, I explained, are tough and insoluble and will not go to pieces and get on the sink drain.

I noticed that the milk bottle in her refrigerator had the paper cap top removed. I told her she should always keep an inverted tumbler over the bottle to prevent the milk becoming contaminated.

I made her promise me also to use pasteurized milk, warning her that raw milk even when produced under the most sanitary conditions was unsafe.

I told her to look up her milk man and at the earliest opportunity visit the milk plant employing him and ask the proprietors to show her through and explain the different methods they use to protect the health of their customers and to be sure to ask if all their milk is pasteurized before being delivered. to see for herself just how it is done.

Now my sister had a really good kitchen, probably better than the average. It cost her husband a great deal of money to have it fitted up for her, but as I have always maintained white tiles alone do not make for sanitation. They are greatly to be desired, but no less you watch out for the little things, such apparently incomsequential things as I found in my sister's kitchen, all the white tiles in the world will not mean cleanliness. It is better to have plain whitewashed walls and a scoured wooden floor together with such cleanliness as I have described than it is to have a modern kitchen and then equip it with inferior and unsanitary utensils which collect dirt and aid in breeding germs.

Be Whole and Wholesome.

To gain your own respect as well as that of your neighbor, you must be neat and physically attractive. Beauty in heavenly attire does not appeal half so strongly as cleanliness in clean raiment, and, what ever your condition in life, you can keep yourself whole and wholesome.

The wise farmer sees that his cattle are wholesomely and comfortably housed, knowing the penalty of negligence; how much more necessary it should seem to him to have everything around his house sanitary and comfortable.

Most of all, the drainage should be as perfect as possible; to breathe pure air is absolutely essential to health, and he who neglects his drainage and plumbing invites a host of skeletons into the house that will not be closeted.

A person whose body is untidy is apt to have an untidy soul; for there is an influence in the outer raiment over the mind and soul that is far-reaching and strongly defined.

A clean blouse and skirt, fresh neckwear, pretty slippers and a dainty white apron, donned in the afternoon by the tired housewife are restful and satisfying. She forgets that she has labored, that the traces of her toil are removed; it is a merciful Providence that changes the currents of our thoughts with a change of clothing, or environment.

Nine women out of ten, if consulted about the nature of a gift, will choose something for personal adornment. This is not vanity; it is a justifiable desire to make a pleasing appearance.

The hopelessness and wickedness of the very poor is fostered by the untidy and unwholesome condition of their surroundings, from which there is no escape, rather than by natural depravity.

A physically clean is usually a morally clean man, for physical cleanliness is a long step toward spirituality. The voice should be trained to be musical, the hands to be helpful, the mind filled with pure thoughts; then, and only then, is man at his highest and best and his influence the strongest.

A morally clean man, or woman, shames one who has some vice to conceal. The mob will follow the strongest leader; strength lies in purity, mental, moral and physical. Philips Brooks, the great Bishop, swayed thousands by his personality; men, women and children loved and reverenced him and his memory is an inspiration.—Shirley Strange.

In illness two pillows are much better on a bed than a bolster and a pillow.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL STUDY

INTERNATIONAL LESSON, JUNE 13.

Lesson XI. The Blessedness of Forgiveness.—Psa. 32. Golden Text, Psa. 32. 1.

I. The Heavy Hand of Sin (Verses 1-4).

Verses 1, 2. These verses recite the "blessing of forgiveness." Saint Paul, in Romans 4, uses them forcibly in his argument.

Blessed—Our Psalter (Psa. 1. 1) begins with this word and weaves its happy charm throughout the music of praise and thanksgiving. The word means "happy," as all blessing must bring happiness.

Transgression . . . sin . . . iniquity—These words frequently recur in the Old Testament. They mean, respectively, (1) rebellion, a forcible breaking of God's law; (2) "missing the mark," or wandering from the way; and (3) depravity, grave moral delinquency. These three words are repeated in verse 5.

Forgiven . . . covered . . . imputeth not iniquity—A threefold pardon including all wrongdoing. "Forgive" means to take away the burden (see John 1. 29); "cover" implies making the sin to disappear so as not to meet the eye of the judge; and "not to impute iniquity" is in the nature of a cancellation of the debt which the debtor owes, but which he will not be required to pay.

Guile—Deceitfulness. Absence of iniquity cannot be imputed where guile remains. There must be neither self deception nor an attempt to deceive God.

3. Bones—In Hebrew poetry, "the bones" denote the fundamental part of the living organism. In Proverbs, they are spoken of as the seat of health (16. 24); in Psa. 6. 2, of pain or vexation; in Psa. 22. 14, the psalmist's bones (that is, the man himself, soul and spirit as well as body) are "out of joint" because of the persecution of his enemies; in Psa. 35. 10, all his bones thrill for joy because of deliverance.

Moisture—Figuratively, the vital sap, or juice, of the living organism.

II. Penitence Before Forgiveness (Verses 5-7).

5. I acknowledged my sin—This is the first step to peace and happiness. The penitence must be complete and whole hearted. Nothing may be withheld. It is well to emphasize this fact because from the beginning man had deluded himself by thinking he need not confess at all. An infinitesimal piece of cheese in a tooth will make the covering of silver and gold invalid. Then forgavest—Although the sense of sin was enormous, Jehovah lifted it all as soon as entire repentance was made.

6. For this—Therefore—An exhortation spontaneously issuing from the life of one who has made the experience.

Mayest be found—Throughout the Old Testament is an implication that some man came for an individual when the forgiving God may not be found. (See especially Isa. 55. 6; also Deut. 4. 29; Jer. 29. 13; Prov. 1. 28; Eccl., chap. 12, and frequently in the Psalms).

Great waters overflow—Floods were frequent in Palestine; the thought was not wholly lacking that the Mediterranean might inundate the country. (See Psa. 18. 16; Isa. 28. 2, 17; 30. 28; Nah. 1. 8).

III. Instruction from the Most High (Verses 8-11).

8. I will instruct thee—Jehovah, and not (as some commentators say) the psalmist, is speaking. No human speaker would dare to say, I will counsel thee with mine eye upon thee. (See Psa. 33. 18; 34. 15; Jer. 21. 6, and in many other passages.)

9, 10. As the brute animal cannot reason and must be controlled, man is warned not to become like him.

Many sorrows will be upon them who thus become "brutish" (see Psa. 49. 10, 14, 20; 73. 22; Jer. 10. 14, 21; also Job 33. 19), but loving-kindness, or mercy, will be about him that trusteth in Jehovah.

GERMANY DECEIVED.

Newspaper Points Out Some of Her Miscalculations.

The German newspaper Der Tag, which during the first month of the war shouted:—"Herr Gott, sind diese Tage schon" (O Lord, how delightful these days are), has arrived now at a totally different state of mind and declared recently:—

"So many of our calculations have deceived us. We expected that British India would rise when the first shot was fired in Europe, but in reality thousands of Indians came to fight with the British against us. We anticipated that the whole British Empire would be torn to pieces, but the Colonies appear to be closer than ever united with the Mother Country. We expected a triumphant rebellion in South Africa, yet it turned out nothing but a failure. We expected trouble in Ireland, but instead, she sent her best soldiers against us. We anticipated that the party of "peace at any price" would be dominant in England, but it melted away in the ardor to fight against Germany. We reckoned that England was degenerate and incapable of placing any weight in the scale, yet she seems to be our principal enemy.

"The same has been the case with France and Russia. We thought that France was depraved and divided, and we find that they are formidable opponents. We believed that the Russian people were far too discontented to fight for their Government, and we made our plans on the supposition of a rapid collapse of Russia, but, instead, she mobilized her millions quickly and well, and her people are full of enthusiasm and their power is crushing. Those who led us into all these mistakes are miscalculations, have laid upon themselves a heavy responsibility."

Two Lancashire Germans.

The story of two Lancastrian lads who are serving in one of the new cavalry regiments in northern France is told in Tit-Bits:

One day the officer in command sent them, together with several others, to reconnoitre the enemy's lines, each man taking a different direction. Now the day previous there had been heavy fighting on the very ground that they were scouting, so that when our Oldham hero saw a German helmet lying behind a hedge, he was struck with a bright idea.

Putting on the Prussian headgear he thought he would be able to detect the enemy's whereabouts without himself being suspected, especially as it was getting dusk.

He had not got very far, however, when a shot rang out only a short distance away. He dropped behind a hillock and fired back in the direction of the shot, and then the rifle practice began in earnest.

For a few moments the two men fired at each other without any success. It happened that they were within shouting distance, and our Oldhamite could not resist hawling out:

"I'll get one o'er on thi yet, mad mon."

You may guess his surprise when the reply was

"Ay, if ay dunno get thee fust, tha bloomin' owd German."

A Useless Dog.

Mrs. Hanley was greatly excited when a neighbor came in to call upon her one morning. "Just think," said she, walking over to the other end of the room, "that fellow entered in broad daylight and actually stole the clock off the mantelpiece." "And you say your dog was in the very same room?" "Yes, but he couldn't do anything," returned Mrs. Hanley, loftily. "Fido is only a watchdog."

Most Likely.

Rex: By the way, who is, or rather was, the god of war?

Dix: I've forgotten the duffer's name, but I think it was Ananias.

Schmidt the Spy and His Message to Berlin.

"The shortage of officers in the English Army is so serious that they are now endeavoring to employ women as Generals."—London Opinion.

"Up, Dead, and At 'Em!"

A wounded lieutenant told the following story to a representative of the Havas Agency:

"We were at work fixing up a trench we had carried, with two sentinels watching at the sandbags barricading the end so that we could work quietly. Suddenly from a communication trench which we had not seen an avalanche of hand grenades fell on our heads. Before we knew, ten men were laid low, dead or wounded, in a heap.

"I was just opening my mouth to urge them to attack when a stone from the parapet, loosened by a projectile, hit me on the head, and I fell, unconscious, but not for more than a second, as a shell splinter tore my hand and the pain brought me to.

"As I opened my eyes I saw the Boches leaping over the sandbags into the trench, about twenty of them. They had no rifles, but carried a sort of wicker panier, full of bombs. I looked towards my left; all our men were gone, the trench empty. The Boches were advancing; a few more steps and they would be on me.

"At this moment, one of my men, laid out on the ground with a wound on his forehead, another on his chin, and his whole face streaming with blood, sat up, seized a sack of grenades near him, and shouted:

"'Up, dead, and at 'em!'

"He got on his knees and hurled grenades into the thick of the Boches. At his call three other wounded started up. Two of them, who had broken legs, seized rifles and began a rapid fire, every shot of which told. The third, whose left arm hung limp, tore out his bayonet with his right. When I had recovered enough to rise, half the enemy was down, the other half in disorderly flight.

"There remained only, with his back against the barricade and an iron shield in front of him, a huge Gun-commissioned officer, sweating, red with rage, who was firing at us with his revolver, bravely enough, I must say.

"The man who had started the defence, the hero of 'Up, dead, and at 'em!' was struck by a bullet in the jaw, and down he fell. The man with the bayonet, who had been crawling from body to body, jumped to his feet, when four paces from the barricade, was missed by two shots from the Boche's revolver, and plunged his weapon into his enemy's throat. The position was saved."

SPIES BIG MENACE TO ITALY

OBTAIN VALUABLE INFORMATION ABOUT COUNTRY.

Woman Is Arrested in Attempt to Destroy Strategic Railroad at Nervi.

It is a well known fact that Italy is infested with German and Austrian spies who, besides obtaining valuable information about the defences of the country and the preparations for war, are plotting to damage the railroads in case of mobilization. Germans disguised as workmen were arrested near Genoa recently, and it was suspected that they were attempting to blow up some of the railroad tunnels under the Ghost mountains. The Germans succeeded in convincing the police that they were workmen in a near by factory, owned by a fellow countryman. They were expelled. As a result of this incident, however, all the railroad tunnels were guarded by troops.

The police have arrested a German woman at Nervi, near Genoa, who was in the habit of going for long walks on the hills. On being challenged she was discovered standing in a suspicious attitude near a railroad tunnel where in a deep hole freshly excavated and carefully concealed an enormous quantity of dynamite was hidden. This line is one of the most important railroads in northern Italy.

Nothing but the bare announcement of the woman's arrest and its motive has leaked out so far about this case. Even the woman's identity has been withheld by the police who, it is reported, are following important clues in the hope of obtaining her accomplices. The Italian police are past masters in the "third degree" art. It seems certain that no woman would have attempted to blow up a railroad tunnel unaided.

The Corriere della Sera of Milan says it is useless to point out the extreme gravity of this case, and adds:

"When the enormous number of foreigners residing in Italy is considered and the extension of our railroad lines and the great facility with which they can be irreparably damaged is taken into account, it is clear that the Nervi case should serve as a serious warning to the Government. The more so as numerous similar instances have occurred during the present war.

"Italy is now full of foreign agents who, besides being sent here for espionage, are preparing surprises for us in case of mobilization. It is therefore indispensable that timely precautions should be adopted and the railroads closely guarded, especially in localities where communications can be easily interrupted. If such precautions are delayed until mobilization is ordered they may prove too late. It is not difficult to have the railroads guarded and any delay under present circumstances will be nothing short of criminal."

In all probability the Italian railroads will be placed under military control, a measure which has often been contemplated in cases of general strikes, and will certainly be taken in case of war.

Clever Boy.

She had shown him the family photo album, as was her custom, when he spoke up and said: "You know some people think an album is old-fashioned, but there are features I greatly admire in this one."

"And what are they?" she asked.

"Yours."

He clinched her on the spot.

Love is supposed to be a tender passion, but sometimes the girl's father makes it a tough proposition.

BROKE UP GERMAN ATTACK

Germany planned the introduction of poisonous gas as a potent agency of warfare.

The gas innovation was no mere murderous impromptu. The gas factor was to be the contribution of German science to a movement that would revolutionize the western campaign against the allies and dazzle the world with proofs of Germany's military genius.

The history of the present war may date the visible collapse of Germany's hopes from the result of the fighting at Langemarck. Germany called chemical science to her aid and poisoned the air with the gas that was to clear the way for the irresistible advance of the Kaiser's army. It was not the Kaiser's advance, but the valor of Canada's obstruction of that advance that proved irresistible.

Canada is doomed to study a weary and apparently unending list of casualties that records the heroic name of Canada's killed, wounded and missing. The dead, the suffering and the captives are not the forgotten victims of an obscure skirmish. The untried troops from Canada threw themselves across the conquering pathway which German chemistry had cleared for the mightiest attack that German strategy could plan. Canada's soldiers broke up that attack. They dislocated the plans of Germany's great general staff. They grudged neither life, limb nor liberty for the Empire which they served, and for the country whose name they carried to victory. The action in which so many Canadians fought and fell may be remembered as the turning point in this war, as a battle that changed the history of the world.

The Right Young Man.

A young man in quest of a situation entered the apartment. "Well," kindly said the captain of finance, "there's an opening in the bank for the right young man, and there have been several applicants for it already. Are you energetic and willing to learn?" "Try me, sir." "That's good for a starter. Do you gamble?" "No, sir. I have a mother to support, and can't risk my earnings that way." "Ahem! Now—here! the great man squared himself before his applicant, in indication that the most important question was now to come. "do you ever go fishing?" "Yes, sir," replied the young man, without hesitation. "Was fishing yesterday." "Ah! And what kind of catch did you make?" "Only one little perch," smiled he. "Good! You're the young man I've been seeking. All the others answered up all right until I put that last question; then they lied!"

Old "Home" Remedies.

Many household remedies have been left out of the new edition of the British Pharmacopeia. Among them are dandelion, sarsaparilla, and elder flower water. Although they have been discarded by the General Medical Council, they may still be obtained.

"All that can be said in favor of these old medicines is that they are harmless," said a well-known manufacturing chemist recently. "Sarsaparilla and dandelion have no specific effect on any portion of the human frame. As an agent for reducing inflammation elder flower water has been superseded by lead and opium lotion. The majority of the old wives' remedies are about as useful as the adder's tongue or toad's brain essence of the middle ages."

In order to enjoy life a man must be a little miserable occasionally.

The Paisley Advocate

PAISLEY, JUNE 10th, 1915

COUNTY COUNCIL

The June Session of the County Council was held at Kincardine, opening at 3 p.m. on Monday, May 31st. All members were present and the warden in the chair Mr Jno Joynt of Lucknow taking the place of the late Mr Murdoch. Mayor Parnell of Kincardine, on behalf of the council and citizens, extended a hearty welcome to the Council, to which the Warden appropriately replied. Letters were read from the Patriotic Association, the Red Cross Society and Belgian Relief Society, thanking the Council for the generous grants made at the January session, which had materially assisted them in their good works.

Mr R S Muir of Toronto addressed the Council on tax reform, but no action was taken.

Mr Douglas of Hepworth and Mr Joynt of Lucknow brought up the question of insurance on Bruce County soldiers at the front, but no action was taken.

The same grant as last year was made to Continuation Schools. The grants to High Schools were slightly changed so as to make the amount payable by the County to each High School double the Legislative grant to such schools. This will increase the grant to Chesley and Port Elgin schools slightly. The usual grants of $1500 to the Walkerton hospital and $1000 to Kincardine hospital were made and a grant of $50 each to Tiverton and Hepworth, they getting no school or other moneys from the County.

Council recommended that R French of Teeswater and J H Roberts of Tara be appointed county constables.

Mr Ballachey of Paisley applied to have a bridge in Paisley assumed as a county bridge. A committee was appointed to investigate if a county bridge and report. Considerable time was taken up going into the reports of county bridges in each municipality, the object being to have some official information in tabulated form as to all bridges in the county over which the county has jurisdiction. As the report of many of them the consideration took up a good deal of time and was finally adjourned to the December session for further consideration.

Resolutions were passed expressing the regret of the council at the death of Judge Barrett and Mr J G Murdoch of Lucknow

There was a long and very warm discussion as to the equalization of the county. The term for the use of the reports and valuations made by the county valuators is expiring, but under the Statute the council has the power to extend the time for five years. Some of the members, especially Messrs Whicher of Albemarle, Hunter of Kincardine Tp, and Phelan of Greenock, thought the present valuations unfair to their municipalities. Some wished to do away with the valuators altogether and revert to the old system of equalizing from the assessment rolls, while others wanted a new valuation made, and others wanted to extend term, the expense of a new valuation being considerable and it being doubtful if it would result any better, and many members thought that to go back to the old system of taking the assessment rolls would make matters much worse. It was finally decided to extend the term of the present valuation.

The usual large number of bridges was after attention, and a number of grants to municipalities were applied for, but except one of $200 to Albemarle, they all went out by the "Cannot recommend" route.

Mr Douglas, Hepworth, took exception to the action of the Government in taking from the County Councils the power to dismiss school inspectors, which he thought was like many other acts of the Education Dept. interfering too much with the rights of the counties to govern themselves. He pointed out that the council opposed the inspectors, pay them a large part of their salaries, are deeply interested in their work, and if they were not doing their work to the satisfaction of the council they and not the Government should have the power to dismiss them. Mr Douglas pointed out that he brought this up at a time when there was no question at all about the Bruce inspector so it was not to be considered as in any way concerning them. A motion was passed by the council protesting against the removal of this power from the council.

The committee looking into Albemarle's assessment recommended a reduction of 35 per cent. and Mr Whicher would have had this made but the council thought they had no power to do so and the Equalization stands as it was

A resolution was passed congratulating Judge Klein on his promotion to the Senior Judgeship of the county and expressing confidence that he will give the same careful and able attention to the duties of Senior Judge that he did to those of Junior Judge.

On Friday evening, after council closed, the people of Kincardine held a "Smoker" in the Armoury which was thoroughly enjoyed by all.

Council closed a very strenuous session late on Friday evening in which some very important matters were discussed and dealt with and adjourned to meet in Walkerton on the 7th of Dec.

F. A. MALCOMSON, Co. Clerk.

Presentation to Mrs. Malloch

As Mrs Malloch reached her jubilee in Paisley on Monday, May 31st, having arrived in the village on that date in 1865, the ladies of the Church of the Ascension took the opportunity of showing their appreciation of her zeal in the various avenues of church work during that long period by presenting her with a certificate of life membership in the Woman's Auxiliary to the Missionary Society of the Church of England in Canada. On behalf of the ladies the rector made the presentation of the certificate and Mrs. Sage of London, Provincial of the Diocesan W.A., pinned on the gold Winchester cross, the emblem of membership. The fee for life membership in the W.A. is $25, which money is used for the training of bible women in the mission field.

Barn Burned

Mr Joe McCallum, 10th con. Elderslie, lost his barn and contents by fire caused from lightning during Monday afternoon's storm. The building contained a large quantity of hay and grain which was all consumed. A horse was in the barn when the fire started, but was got out. There was $700 insurance on the building, and $800 on the contents, in the Formosa Mutual Co.

—Paisley Race Meet, on Thursday, June 24th.

PAISLEY PUBLIC SCHOOL

ROOM IV

Entrance Class—Pass—David McGregor, Agnes Pearce, Wilmer Barnett, Blanche Collins, Lanchton Blue, Marguerite McLeod, Hilda Carter, Annie Kincaid. Failure—Wilfrid Grant, Arthur McDonald. *Alan Shoemaker, Jack Little.

Jr IV—Honors—Fred Shoemaker, Willie Sheepy, Inez Bell, Mary Laidlaw. Pass—Reta Cormack, Arthur Kincaid Irvine Gage, Anabel Blue, Jean Shaw, Lena Grant, Irene Marshall, *Jean Fullerton. Failure—Mildred Irving, Donald Elston, *Mabel Beaton, George Grant, *Grace Brown, Howard Rae, *Grant Hay.

Those marked thus * were absent from part of term.

CORA R L FISHER, Teacher

ROOM III

Sr III—Honors—Rena Wakeford, Marguerite Hopper, Farewell Fletcher, Rose Woolcock, Velma Pfaff. Pass—Alvin McEwen, Grace Allen, Reginald Beaton, Malcolm McNeill, David Hay, James Sutherland. Fail—Archie McClure, Robert Irving, Gertrude Irving.

Jr III—Honors—Charles Rae, Earl Brown, Arnie McKinnon, Lillian Pfaff, Malcolm McKinnon. Pass—Daisy Vance, Gilbert Little, Willie McLennan, Bessie Pacey, Victor Godwin, Mary Parker, Elfreda McPhail, Cecil Hepburn, Bella Stark, Scofield Russell. Fail—Clarence Flood, Oscar Stoddart.

MAY E BOYLE, Teacher

ROOM II

Sr II—Honors—Rose McKenzie and Era McMahon (equal), Mearle Hepburn and Ella Brown (equal), Catharine Pearce, Viola Evans, Fred Petrie. Pass—John Scott, Howard Blue, Howard Pearce.

Intermediate II—Honors—Florence Bell, Ella Hassell, Marjorie Bird, Hettie Godwin, Reta Leeson, Helen McArthur. Pass—Wilfred Hay, Oscar Hopper, Sherwood Collins, Jack Shoemaker, John Sutherland, Nelson Belbeck, Roselle Clayton. Absent from part of term—Jack Shoemaker, Oscar Hopper, Nelson Belbeck.

Jr II—Honors—Nell Watson, Hazel Hay, Hugh McArthur, Gregon Irving, Phemie Morland. Pass—Angus McKinnon, Charlotte Sutherland, J D Babcock, Russell Grant, Vera Mac, Willie Mitchell, Paul Ottaber. Failure—Clifford Marshall, Harry Floyd. Absent from part of term—Paul Ottaber.

INA C GALBRAITH, Teacher

PRIMARY ROOM

Class A—Ina Godwin, Edna Brown, Mary Fletcher, Gerald Fleming, Berton Irving, Melville Brown, Jack Pearce, Mary Sutherland, Dora Nicholson, Elroy Hunt, David Leitch.

Class B—Teddy Muir, George Fleming, Douglas Parry, Gordon Bailey, Jean Grant, Gervais Heath, Gladys Bradley.

Class C—Renee McKenzie, Glen Sinclair, Sadie McKinnon, Leota Hepburn, Rhea Irving, Jack McArthur, Wilfred Shoemaker, Isobel Pearce, Alvin Elston, Viola Fleming, George Clayton, Mabel Pearce.

Class D—Gladys Bird, Alma Tooke, Arthur Murray, Velma Rae, Mabel Nicholson, Stanley Ellis, Willie Sutherland, Lena Maxwell, Elmer McLeod, Beasie Murcar.

ELIZABETH MILLER, Teacher

—Dr. Houston received a cable message on Tuesday, conveying news of the death of his uncle, Mr. Donald Fisher, of Edinburgh, Scotland. The deceased was a brother of Mrs. Wm. Houston, and a few years ago made a visit to Paisley. He made many friends here at that time. Having enjoyed the bowling on the green he donated a trophy which is still competed for by the members of the bowling club.

—Judge A. B Klein, recently promoted from Junior to Senior Judge of Bruce County to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Judge Barrett, is a Bruce boy. He spent the early days in the practice of law in Walkerton. In 1895 he was appointed Junior Judge of the county, and during the twenty years that have intervened since, Judge Klein has steadily grown in the esteem and confidence of people of Bruce, and is justly regarded as a painstaking, upright and conscientious Judge.

—Particulars of the drowning of the son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Irving at Brandon have been received by friends here. The boy's death was most tragic and yet most simple. Eyewitnesses state he was swimming across the Assiniboine river, and was within twenty yards of the bank when he appeared to dive under water. There was no sign that he was in distress, and not the least cry of pain. Those who were there expected him to rise to the surface but he did not, and then the awful realization came to them that he was drowned. The deceased was a big boy 15 years old, and a powerful swimmer. At latest report received the body had not been recovered. The youth was a grandson of Mrs. Robt. Irving and Mrs. A. McKenzie of Paisley.

New School Occupied

Teachers and pupils moved over to the new school on Friday morning, and are rapidly growing accustomed to the contrast between makeshift quarters and the most up-to-the-minute accommodation it could be provided by the School Board with the money at their command. The four public school departments are located on the first floor, while the continuation classes and laboratory are upstairs. All who have inspected the interior, particularly teachers, have nothing but the highest words of praise to utter in regard to the completion of the building and its equipment. For the benefit of those of our readers who are interested in Paisley schools, but cannot see it, we intend to show a photo engraving in an early issue.

—The Saskatchewan Legislature has passed the second reading of the "New Sales of Liquor Act," so that the booze business in that province will soon be under the control of the Government alone, and the bars go out of business as no individual will be allowed to dispense alcoholic drinks to the public.

—The Canadian contingents lost 7,327 men in the Langemarck and Festibut fights, according to returns made up to June 4th. Of the number 1,119 were killed in action, 5,683 wounded, and 1,523 missing or prisoners.

WHOLE FAMILY USES THEM

"Fruit-a-tives" Keeps Young And Old in Splendid Health

J. W. HAMMOND Esq.

SCOTLAND, ONT., Aug. 25th, 1913

"Fruit-a-tives" are the only pill manufactured, to my way of thinking. They work completely, no griping whatever, and one is plenty for any ordinary person at a dose. My wife was a martyr to Constipation. We tried everything on the calendar without satisfaction, and spent large sums of money until we happened on "Fruit-a-tives". I cannot say too much in their favor.

We have used them in the family for about two years and we would not use anything else as long as we can get "Fruit-a-tives".

Their action is mild, and no distress at all. I have recommended them to many other people, and our whole family uses them".

J. W. HAMMOND.

Those who have been cured by "Fruit-a-tives" are proud and happy to tell a sick or ailing friend about these wonderful tablets made from fruit juices.

50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size 25c. At all dealers or sent on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

Horse Estray

STRAYED from the premises of the undersigned, on June 5th, a bay mare, a little lame in one hind leg. Any information regarding the animal will be gratefully received.

W. C. ANSTEAD, Paisley, R. R. No. 2.

BRUCE TP. COUNCIL

Underwood, May 29th, 1915

Bruce Tp met on the above date pursuant to adjournment as a Court of Revision and for general business. Minutes of previous meeting read, adopted and signed.

Only three appeals against assessment were filed. These were heard and disposed of, also a number of changes made in names on roll, and some names added that had been omitted. A number of appeals against dogs were also dealt with, the roll being finally passed as revised.

As Councillor Baker had suffered severe affliction since last meeting the following resolution of sympathy was passed: That it was with feelings of sorrow the members of this council learned that since last we met at this board our colleague, Councillor Baker, has suffered severe affliction through the removal from this sphere of action of a dearly beloved daughter, therefore we, the members of Bruce township council for 1915, desire by this resolution to convey to our colleague, Councillor Baker, Mrs Baker and the bereaved husband our sincere sympathy, but believing that the God in whom they trust will give them strength sufficient. Also that this resolution be entered in the minutes and a copy forwarded to Councillor Baker. Signed on behalf of the council. James Johnson, reeve.

Tenders for gravelling were received from W B Stanley, J W Smith, W G Cole and D D McKay.

Applications for inspector received from D D McDonald, Geo Tennyson, W H Stanley, A Kerr and Wm Brown.

Tenders of J W Smith for north div and of D McKay for south div for gravelling accepted.

A Mr Donald was appointed inspector north of Underwood, and Wm Brown south of Underwood

Several sideroads being in bad condition and complaints being lodged against same, the clerk was instructed to notify the pathmasters in two divisions to have part of their share of sideroad graded this year by statute labor, the sideroad being as much a part of the beat as the concession.

A by-law was passed for regulating traffic over bridges in Bruce tp, not more than five head of cattle to be allowed on the bridge at the same time.

Complaints of the non-completion of a couple of award drains were filed, the clerk being instructed in one case to bring on the engineer to inspect the same and if necessary let a contract for completion of work; and in the other to notify party in default to complete it; ch.

A number of accounts were ten passed and council adjourned to Sat. on Saturday, June 26th.

J G MACKAY, Clerk

—To abstain from all amusements during the war seems to be the view of a section of Canadians. The latest move is that to have the Dominion Government stop horse racing, as it has stopped in England, but it is intimated from Ottawa that there is little possibility of such a step being taken.

—As a magistrate prosecuting Scott for intoxication the late Jos. Barker of Kincardine passed through three years of stormy life because of his zeal and his strong backbone in doing what he believed to be right. His office was burned down and a bullet was shot into his house but he did not quail." There was no more important man in Kincardine then, but in a few years he was elected mayor.

—THE ADVOCATE office has a splendid stock of wedding stationery and calling cards on hand, also the most beautiful styles of type, so we are able to turn out the finest lines of wedding invitations, announcements, cards, etc. We can also work fit to merit the best of people to a wedding, so why not try us for three times as much for inferior or engravers for something that can't be what better for the purpose? See our samples.

BALLACHEY, LAIDLAW & CO.

"The Store with the Quality"

Ladies' Whitewear

Don't spend weary hours at the sewing machine, when for low prices you can purchase garments all ready to wear.

Underskirts, Nightgowns Drawers, Corset Covers

Many styles and all prices.

Top Prices Paid for all Produce

BALLACHEY, LAIDLAW & CO.

Both 'Phones——— ———All Produce

Tired Eyes

Sensations exist for our guidance
They are Nature's warnings.
Over-worked eyes demand rest.
Eyes that tire easily call for help.
Properly adjusted glasses afford th only assistance possible.
We make a specialty of relievin tired eyes and guarantee satisfac tion.

A Stopped Watch

One that will not go AT ALL—doesn't cause as much bother as one that runs now fast, now slow, in an erratic fashion.

The first you don't pretend to depend upon—the other is a constant source of annoyance.

Most people can afford a watch, but no one can afford an uncertain fast and slow one.

And when our repair department is so close at hand there is really no excuse for carrying anything but an accurate time-piece, no matter what the first cost was.

Consult us about any watch troubles that may arise.

I. SHOEMAKER
JEWELER AND OPTICIAN

SHOES

Our new spring Shoes have just arrived and we have Shoes for all Ladies, Gents and Children at the old prices.

We have not raised our prices as we bought our supply before the advance in prices.

We have a full stock of Men's Women's and Children's heavy waterproof shoes on hand to keep the feet dry.

Call and have a look at our shoes.

Eggs Taken in Exchange

H. PFAFF & SON'S
SHOE STORE

Buggies—We bring the reliable McLaughlin-Buick, Tudhope and Brantford makes, also attending to all kinds of repairs, and painting, trimming and vehicles. A number of second hand buggies to sell cheap.

Furniture A large assortment always in stock and catalogues of best makers to select from. Any article, large or small, sets or single pieces for furnishing the home.

Single and Double Harness and Harness Supplies

We are agents for the Singer Sewing Machines and Capitall Cream Separators

J. SEILER, Eden Grove

CANADIAN PACIFIC

GREAT LAKES Steamship Service

Steamers leave Port McNicoll Tuesdays, Wednesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays for DULUTH, SUPERIOR, PORT ARTHUR and FORT WILLIAM. The steamer "Manitoba" sailing from Port McNicoll on Wednesdays, will call at Owen Sound, leaving that point at 10.30 p.m.

STEAMSHIP EXPRESS

leaves Toronto 12.45 p.m. daily except Friday, making direct connection with steamers at Port McNicoll on the following days.

Particulars from W. H. McFarlane, Agent, or write M. G. Murphy, D.P.A., Toronto.

Central Business College Stratford, Ont.

Ontario's Most Practical Training School

We have thorough courses and experienced instructors in each of our three departments, Commercial, Shorthand and Telegraphy. Our graduates succeed and you should get our large catalogue. Write for it at once.

D. A. McLACHLAN, Principal

Court Sangster, C.O.F No. 66

MEETS in Oddfellow Hall on the second Wednesday evening of each month, at 8 o'clock, sojourning brethern are welcome.

A. E. ARCHER, R.S.
W. AMBREY, C.R.

Ahiram Lodge, No. 205, I.O.O.F

MEETS every Tuesday All evening at 8o'clock in the Hall Oddfellow Block. Visiting brothers always welcome.

P. J. F. HOUSTON, N.G
R. H. GRANT, R.S.

PUMP REPAIRING

THE undersigned having purchased Mr W Buick's outfit, is prepared to do all kinds of pump repairing, also furnish repairs, such as cylinders, valves and other parts of wooden or iron pumps. A few Buick wooden pumps for sale. Wood turning done. Turned whiffle trees and neckyokes for sale.

Bruce 'Phone W. RAE

Desirable Residence for Sale

THAT very desirable village property on Queen Street south, the Riordan residence, is offered for sale. House new, brick veneered, and in first-class condition. Apply to H. PATRICK-STAIR, Paisley.

Stray Pigs

CAME on the premises of the undersigned, on June 8th, two young pigs. The owner is requested to prove property, pay expenses and remove the animals. H. VANCE, North St., Paisley.

T. H. GEORGE

Issuer of Marriage Licenses
Notary Public and Conveyancer

Land, Loan, Insurance and General Agent. Notes, Book Accounts and other Debts Collected. Conveyancing Neatly and Cheaply Executed.

—FARMS LOANS A SPECIALTY—

Office in Putnam Block, Queen St. S., Paisley

You Can Begin Any Day at the NORTHERN Business College

OWEN SOUND

Individual Instruction

Our own three story building and 34 successful years of experience. Expert instructors produce the very best results. Catalogue free.

C. A. FLEMING, F.C.A. G. D. JENKINS
Principal Secretary

Business Directory

JOHN SUTHERLAND & SONS
LIMITED
INSURANCE—FIRE AND MARINE
GUELPH - ONT.

J. C GIBSON
Issuer of Marriage Licenses
Paisley, Ont.

LEGAL

D. FORRESTER, B.A., L.L.B.
BARRISTER, SOLICITOR AND NOTARY PUBLIC
OFFICE—TOWN HALL, PAISLEY

MEDICAL

DR. M. C. BLACK, M.D.C.M., F.T.M.C., M.C.P.S., Honor Graduate of Trinity University and Toronto, New York. SPECIALTY—Diseases of the eye, ear, nose and throat.

DR. H. E. GAGE, Physician, Surgeon and Accoucheur. Graduate in Diseases of the Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat. Late house surgeon Kingston General Hospital. Office hours—10 to 12 a.m.; 1 to 4 p.m. Successor to Dr. O'Neill

DR. P. J. F. HOUSTON, House Graduate of Toronto University Licentiate of the Royal Colleges of Physicians, and Surgeons, Edinburgh. Post-graduate Cosmic Living Hospital, Dublin, late assistant Rotherham Eye Infirmary. SPECIALTY—Diseases of the Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat. Successor to Dr. Morrison.

DENTAL

DR. A. H ALLEN
DENTIST, formerly of Toronto.

Graduate of the Royal College of Dental Surgeons of Ontario. Honor Graduate of Toronto University Dental Department. Master of Dental Surgery. Graduate of the Dr. Meyer-Post Graduate School of Prosthetic Dentistry, New York. Office over Moran Drug store, opposite the Post Office.

VETERINARY

R. B. GRANT, V. S., Graduate of Ontario Veterinary College, Toronto. Government inspector of contagious diseases and apply Tuberculin test in cattle. Also in specialty research and horse ramifications for same. Oxygen gas treatment for milk fever. Office and residence opposite the old Northern Hotel.

AUCTIONEERS

R. C. PEARCE, Licensed Auctioneer. Sales attended in all parts of the County of Bruce at reasonable terms. Orders left at the ADVOCATE office will receive prompt attention. Telephone at house.

R. J. MERRITT, Licensed Auctioneer for the County of Bruce, is prepared to conduct sales in any part of the county. Terms reasonable. Leave orders at ADVOCATE office or address Invermay P.O.

Special! Special!

WHILE THEY LAST:

300 Odd Pieces Fancy Glass and China, each . . . . 5c.
Post Toasties, pkg. . . . . 5c.
Orange Meat, pkg. . . . . 5c.
Fly Swatters, each . . . . 5c.
Jello-O . . 4 pkgs. for 25c.

Highest Prices Paid for Butter and Eggs

CHOICE TOMATO PLANTS for sale—the early variety. Asters, Stocks, Petunias, Verbenas, Balsams. Good, healthy Plants ready for Bedding.

F. Carter & Son

Goods Delivered — Both 'Phones

THE STORE WITH THE QUALITY

Use Royalite Coal Oil

"Where did you get your Oil Stove?"
"I got it at Davison's."
"What is the name of it?"
"Quick Meal."
"Is it a good stove?"
"Well I should say so. You find points of excellence in the Quick Meal Oil Stove that cannot be found in any other stove on the market. Don't buy your stove until you see the Quick Meal. It's the best. I never have any trouble with mine and I have had it for years. I think it would pay you to call at Davison's and see it. I know they will be pleased to show you all about it."
"Well, I'm glad you told me. I think I'll buy one to-morrow."

They all buy the Quick Meal It's the Best!

Use Royalite Coal Oil

W. H. DAVISON

BRUCE PHONE — BELL PHONE

CARRIAGE PAINT SHOP

The undersigned has rented the Gibson store building on Queen St. South, where he is prepared to do Painting of all kinds, also repairing and refirnming of all kinds of vehicles. Over 25 years' experience in the best carriage shops in Canada and U.S.

W. JACK

GREENOCK COUNCIL.

McNab's Hotel, Chepstow
May 27, 1915

Court of Revision for the Township of Greenock met as per notice. All the members present, and after taking oath of member of said Court, they took their seats, with the Reeve in the chair.

The following appeals were heard and disposed of:

Birrell, Thos, con 13, pt lot 1, mill and business overcharged. Assessment reduced $600.

Donald, John, con 9, lot 28, overcharged. Assessment sustained.

Gemmer, N A, N D R lot 15 and Riversdale property, overcharged. Assessment reduced $400.

Haynes, Jas A, con 25, pt lot 11, overcharged. Assessment sustained.

Hedley, Wesley, con 5, lots 29-30, overcharged. Assessment sustained.

Hewitt, Alex, S D R lot 6, overcharged. Assessment sustained.

McKinnon, Alex, con 7, north halves lots 29, 30. Assessment reduced $300.

McNaughton, Bruce Municipal Telephone System, not assessable. Assessment struck off.

Moffatt, John W, con 12, lot 18, overcharged. Assessment reduced $300.

Moore, John G, con 25, lots pt C and D, overcharged. Assessment sustained.

Stark, Jas, dam and business assessed too high. Assessment reduced $1000.

Steffler, Wm, con A, lot 32, 33, buildings overcharged. Assessment sustained.

John McNab was placed on Roll as owner of pt lot 6, con 6.

Peter Vaad jr, was placed on Roll as owner of lot 26, S D R and lot 25, N D R, and Geo Symon struck off.

Walter Webb was placed on Roll as ..., lot 19, con 14.

The following Pathmasters were changed:

Div 13, Geo Bannerman instead of John Moore.

Div 30, Albert Dietrich instead of Wm Cassidy.

Div 52, Wes Pinkerton instead of Geo Fletcher.

Hay—Campbell—That this Court of Revision hereby confirm the Assessment Roll as the Revised and Corrected Assessment Roll of the Township of Greenock for the year A D 1915 and that this Court do now adjourn, sine die.

THOS H PURDY, Clerk

Council met at close of Court of Revision, all the members present, the reeve in the chair. The minutes of last meeting were read and adopted.

The following accounts were presented for payment: Henry Lahey, painting notice for con 16 opp lot 18, 25c; T Collason, 9 yds gravel being for 3 days' road work paid in taxes, $4 50; John J Cassidy, bal salary as assessor $50, postage $3—$53; M McNab, room for council meeting, $1

McKinnon—Hay—That the foregoing accounts being found correct the reeve issue his order for payment of same.—Carried.

Campbell—Hay—That this council supplement the grant of fifty dollars given by Brant to be spent on deviation road townline between con. 10 and 11.—Carried.

Communication from O E Klein re John Cassidy's sheep worried by dogs. The reeve was instructed to have a sheep valuator examine the said sheep and report on same.

Collison—McKinnon—That the clerk be instructed to notify Geo Herd and John McDonald to put their fences along side line between lots 10 and 11, N D R., on the proper line and to remove all cross fences and that they will be held responsible for any damage that may occur from said fences.—Carried.

Communication from John Cassidy asking one dollar for ploughing 15th side line south of 4th con. for ten years.—Ordered filed.

Campbell—Collison—That the municipal council of the township of Greenock wishes to express its regret at the change in the registry office wherein the former deputy registrar, Geo D McKay, has been removed from his position by the present registrar, W H McFarlane. For many years the relationship by this township with the registry office has been under the careful direction of Mr McKay. Our property owners, real estate investors and mortgagees have always depended upon the judgment and guidance of Mr McKay in their many transactions and in his reports upon the properties in question. We regret very much that Mr McKay has been removed from his position. As he has been a valuable assistance to the ratepayers and property owners of this township, we hope that the government will take up the matter and arrange so that Mr McKay will still continue to be a guide and assistance to the property owners of this municipality.—Carried.

Hay—Campbell—That this council do now adjourn to meet at Riversdale on Monday, June 21st, for the transaction of general business.—Carried.

THOS H PURDY, Clerk

CASTORIA

For Infants and Children
In Use For Over 30 Years
Always bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher

BORN

HYDE—In Elderslie, on June 7th, to Mr and Mrs W J Hyde, a daughter.

2,000 GERMANS DIED TO STEM ARRAS RUSH

French Force Heavy Fighting Along Widening Front—Reprisals For Gas—Other Arenas

London, June 8—Two thousand German dead were left on the field in a terrific battle fought east of Tracy le Mont yesterday after the Germans, rushing re-inforcements by automobile from 50 miles distant, had directed a desperate attack on the French to recapture two lines of trenches lost in Sunday's fighting. Fighting rivaling that north of Arras in intensity is developing at this point where the Germans apparently fear an attempt to penetrate their lines and threaten the flank of the army facing the French above Arras. Between this front and Arras another sanguinary engagement was fought southeast of Hebuterne where several hundred German dead were found on the field after two German lines of trenches were taken, together with 400 prisoners. The artillery duel north of Arras rages with undiminished fury. With the way prepared by dozens of batteries of French artillery, the infantry is rapidly forcing its way through the maze of trenches and redoubts. Last night the French at two points had reached the central redoubt of the Germans and had repelled various counter-attacks. Berlin admits that before Tracy le Mont the French penetrated their advanced trenches. Between Boisecus and Rhains the Germans have been driven back more than 100 yards. In Champagne near Mesnil les Hurlus, second line German forces, being brought up to strengthen the first line came under gun fire and were dispersed. Paris reports the use of a burning liquid with which the trenches of the Germans near Vauquois were sprinkled in reprisal for the German use of lethal gases.

Win in Central Africa

London, June 8—The colonial office announces: "In further operations against the German town of Sphinxhaven on Lake Nyasa (British Central Africa) the enemy was driven out of the town by naval bombardment and a charge. A quantity of rifles, ammunition and stores was captured. The German armed steamer Hermann von Wissman was completely destroyed. Our landing party lost one man slightly wounded."

"The Governor of Ceylon has left Kandy where riots of Buddhists were repressed on June 3. He found Colombo quiet, but the district was disturbed by disorder owing to a sudden outbreak of racial and commercial animosity against the Moslems."

British at Festubert

London, June 8—The "Eye-Witness" says: "The fighting proceeds on the Festubert front. Our guns have severely damaged the German trenches near Ferme-Du-Bois. A working party of infantry, who attempted to repair them, lost heavily."

Italians Line Taken

Roma, June 8—General Cadorna reports as follows: "While along the whole front our outposts are proceeding regularly with the occupation of important positions, meeting with little resistance, and while on the Lavarone and Folgaria plateaus the artillery duels continue, we have during the last few days engaged the enemy along the whole of the Isonzo line from Caporetto (Karfreit) to the sea. Strong advance contingents protected by artillery have solidly established themselves on the river bed for the purpose of improving up bridges to dominate both banks. The Italians are seriously threatening Tolmino. Strong bodies of Italian troops, brilliantly preceded by cavalry have crossed the lower Isonzo, throwing up bridges under the enemy's fire and fortifying their positions, trying to secure liberty of manoeuvres for the day when the employment of masses of troops is decided upon. Our losses have been comparatively small."

The Ministry of Marine announced last night: "The morning our destroyers again bombarded Monfalcone. Three of the land batteries near Castle Duino replied, and one of them was silenced, while the castle itself was burned. Last night an Italian dirigible again bombarded Pola, the Austrian naval base, and dropped bombs, which exploded on points of military value."

Netted Four Submarines

German Raiders Under Tay Bridge Nestly Trapped on Return

New York, June 8—Four German submarines were captured in the Firth of Tay in a recent raid, according to officers of the liner Cameronia from Glasgow yesterday. These craft passed under Tay bridge, the longest bridge in the world, and were caught on their return in nets spread by the port authorities. The submarines were kept entangled 62 hours, said the Cameronia officers, after which they were allowed to come up. The crews were found to be exhausted, and surrendered immediately.

Anglo-Italian Finances

Ungrudging Co-operation Agreed Upon at Recent Conference

London, June 8—The Press Bureau announces that at the meeting between the minister of the Italian treasury and the Chancellor of the Exchequer, held at Nice, June 4, arrangements were concluded for financial co-operation between England and Italy. Their resolution was to co-operate and use their financial resources with the same ungrudging spirit as in the employment of their naval and military forces.

LEMBERG ENDANGERED; RUSSIA STILL HOPES

Petrograd Expects Attacks to Lose Momentum Because of Lack of Heavy Guns

London, June 8—Battering its way from the south the Austrian army operating from Stryj has advanced to within 18 miles of Lemberg, according to unofficial despatches from Vienna. On the centre, according to Teutonic official statements the troops of Gen. von Mackensen forming a phalanx along the railway from Przemysl to Lemberg, the apex of which is crammed with heavy guns, have driven the Russians beyond Wysnia, northeast of Mosciska and are advancing. On the Dniester the legions of Gen. Linsingen have effected a crossing at Zurawna and have taken by storm a hill of commanding importance to the north of the eastern bank of the stream. Military experts here now view with alarm the steady advance of the Teutons in Galicia. It is admitted that the Russian artillery arm is weak and supplies of heavy ammunition uncertain.

Russian Strategy

Petrograd, however, is optimistic. The Russian war office admits that many prepared lines of defenses, believed to be impregnable, have been rendered untenable because of the poison gas which the Teutons are now employing in vast quantities in the eastern theatre. The Russian armies, however, now are declared superior to the Germans in mobility. On wide sections of the front, through this mobility they are preventing the Kaiser's legions from using their heavy guns which cannot be transported rapidly, now that the Germans are far removed from their strategic railways. Enormous losses are being inflicted upon the Germans and Austrians and when the time comes for the Russians to resume the offensive the invaders will be unable to stem the momentum of the Russian drive. The Russians claim a victory of some proportions along the Pruth.

The German activities in the Baltic near the Gulf of Riga indicate an effort to outflank the chain of fortresses defending Warsaw and other important cities. According to reports the Germans have lost three transports in a naval engagement of smaller units which continued for three days ending Sunday. The Russians lost the transport Yenesei.

Austrian Claims

Vienna, June 8—Official statement: "Considerable progress north of Mosciska, in Galicia, has been made by the attacks of the Central Austro-German forces. Gen. Linsingen's army has gained a firm footing on the northern bank of the Dniester after successfully storming a bridgehead at Zurawna. Over than 10,000 prisoners have been captured since June 1 in the battle around Przemysl."

Russians Choose Places

Petrograd, June 8—The official organ of the southern army says: "In Galicia we are continuing to move forward successfully in many directions." This means much, coming from such a taciturn man as Gen. Ivanoff. It is known that the General is entirely satisfied at successfully misleading the Germans at Gorlice and Przemysl, where neither a gun nor a prisoner was lost. The delays he secured there gave time for the dispersed redistribution of the Russian army, which has now engaged the enemy at many points chosen by the Russians.

Oust German Goods

Paris, Ont., June 8—The by-law to guarantee bonds to the value of $10,000 for Messrs. Charles Wheeler & Son, for the starting of a new latch needle manufactory here, was carried yesterday. Latch needles have hitherto been almost exclusively manufactured in Germany.

Canadian Smashed Zeppelin

Flight Sub-Lieutenant A. J. Warneford who destroyed a huge Zeppelin and killed its whole crew of 28 Germans in an aerial battle near Ghent is said to be a Canadian. One report says he was born in India and afterwards lived in Canada.

BIG NEWS IN BRIEF

Much damage by electrical storms is reported from Harrow, Goderich, and North Easthope township.

The Ontario Government has forwarded eight carloads of supplies valued at $10,000 to the Belgians.

Seventeen persons, including three women, have been shot at Liege as spies.

In another Zeppelin raid on England's east coast on Sunday five people were killed and forty wounded.

The work of the British submarines in the Sea of Marmora has demoralized the Turkish transport service.

The Buck Canal Company has taken steps to oust all German from the directorate.

Rev. Dr. G. J. Bishop, head of the Methodist Deaconess' Home, is dead at Toronto.

Canon Davidson of Peterboro, speaking at the Fourteenth Club, said that 55 per cent. of the first Canadian contingent were Anglicans.

Rev. J. H. Christie, Carleton Place, has temporarily retired from the ministry to enlist as a private in the Field Ambulance Corps.

In the Ypres fighting, recently a British soldier finding himself alone in a shell hole behind the German trenches hurled back bombs at the enemy until darkness allowed escape.

Toronto will seek a ruling from Ottawa as to whether the families of Italians who may go to join the Italian army are to receive the same privileges from the Canadian Patriotic Fund as the families of Canadian, French and Belgian soldiers.

PAISLEY RACE MEET

In Riverside Park, on

Thursday, June 24th

PRIZE LIST

Free-for-All—Purse $125.00 Divided—$60, $35, $20, $10

2.35 Class—Purse $100.00 Divided—$50, $25, $15, $10

3.00 Minute Class—Purse $100.00 Divided—$50, $25, $15, $10

Mile heats—Best three in five. Four to enter and three to start. National rules to govern. The Committee reserve the right to make any change in the programme that conditions may warrant.

LEAGUE LACROSSE MATCH
CHESLEY vs. PAISLEY

PAISLEY BRASS BAND
Will furnish Music in the afternoon and evening

GRAND CONCERT AT NIGHT
In the Town Hall

ADMISSION TO GROUNDS—Adults 25c. Children 15c. Additional charges for Autos and Carriages

THOS. MUIR, Treasurer — W. J. ELLIS, Secretary
Committee—S. Putnam, J. R. Craig, T. F. Pearce

and you have

AN INVESTMENT

WHETHER your painting is an investment or an expense depends on what paint you buy. Don't buy paint that has to be prepared by hand. In that case you pay extra for painter's time in mixing. Don't buy cheap paints, even though ready mixed. You get just what you pay for—an inferior paint and inferior results.

Lowe Brothers "High Standard" Liquid Paint

Gives Best Results. Costs a trifle more by the gallon but very much less for the job because it is thoroughly machine-made and has skill, experience and a reputation behind it, and therefore does more work.

PAINT INFORMATION on exterior painting—Interior decorating—floors—woodwork—etc.—at our store. Color Combinations Free.

For Sale at Sinclair's Hardware

COOK—REED

At high noon on Thursday, June 3rd, the home of Mr and Mrs H Reed was the scene of a very quiet but pretty wedding, when their youngest daughter, Lily Maye, was married to William Irwin Cook, the Rev Mr Facey officiating. The bride wore a travelling suit of sand colored silk poplin and carried pink roses. Only the bride's immediate family were present. After a dainty lunch had been served, Mr and Mrs Cook left on the 3 p.m. train for their future home in Toronto.

JOHNSTON—PACE

On Wednesday, June 2nd, a pretty wedding was celebrated at the home of Mr. Jas. A. Pace, 8th Bruce, when his sister, Miss Mary A. Pace, became the bride of Mr. John W. Johnston, of Underwood. The ceremony took place at six o'clock in the evening, and was performed by Rev. A. MacNab, B.A., in the presence of about 150 guests from Winnipeg, Owen Sound, Port Elgin, Paisley and surrounding county. As the wedding march was played by Mrs. MacNab the participants took their place beneath an evergreen arch trimmed with white ribbons and wedding bell. The bride's dress was of white voile, and she carried a bouquet of lillies of the valley. Her travelling dress was of navy blue serge, with white hat. Many gifts, beautiful and useful, were bestowed by friends, among these being a substantial cheque from the groom's father. The groom's gift to the bride was a gold watch and chain. The happy couple have the best wishes of a large circle of friends.

SCOTT—WAKEFIELD

One of the prettiest home weddings of the season was solemnized on Wednesday evening, May 26, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joshua Wakefield, 135 Seventh Avenue west, Vancouver, when their only daughter, Amelia (Millie) was united in marriage to Rev. Robert C. Scott, B.A. A company of about forty guests were present at the home to witness the ceremony, which was performed by Rev. Dr. Sipprell, pastor of the Mount Pleasant Methodist Church. Promptly at 8.30 o'clock the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march, played by Miss Veta Rowe, announced the arrival of the bride, who entered the drawing room with her father. She looked very girlish and pretty in a gown of ivory crepe charmeuse, made en traine, and trimmed with crepe ninon and seed pearls. She wore a bridal veil and orange blossoms sent as a gift from a friend in California, and she carried a beautiful shower bouquet of white roses. The ceremony was performed in an alcove formed of syringa and palms. During the signing of the register Mrs. Russell H. McDuffee sang "Love's Coronation." After the ceremony a reception was held and a buffet supper served. The table was attractively arranged with pink roses and smilax. A number of the bride's girl friends assisted in serving the guests. The evening was made most pleasant by vocal numbers rendered by Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Scott. Numerous pretty gifts were received by the bride from her large circle of friends. Among them were several cheques for substantial amounts. The happy couple left on the midnight boat for coast cities amid showers of rice and confetti. The bride was given away in a brown novelty suit with hat to match. On their return they will spend a few days with the bride's parents before leaving for their future home at Gibson Landing, where Mr. Scott is pastor of the Methodist Church.—Vancouver World.

This is the kind of Wall Paper Artist We Do NOT Employ—

No sloppy job like this done by our men. It costs you no more to employ clean, careful workmen than men like the above.

Our Wall Paper Stock

We have just put into stock the newest and

MOST ARTISTIC PATTERNS.

Complete range of all lines for parlor, hall, dining-room, bed-room or kitchen. Papers on hand, ready for delivery. We would like to show you our different sample books. Stock on hand of all samples shown.

H. GLOVER

PAPERHANGER AND DECORATOR

Under Weight of Orders

However much manufacturers would prefer to be contributing to the arts of peace, economic pressure has forced them to turn their attention to war munitions, with the result that the mills of the country are groaning under the weight of tremendous orders. Contracts running up to millions of dollars have already been placed at the behest of European belligerents. As yet only a fraction of what will be ultimately demanded if the conflict continues has been ordered. But with the business now in hand producers of steel, powder, automobiles and hundreds of allied commodities are riding the full tide of prosperity and making big plans for the future.

Astounded by the preparedness of Germany, and realizing the hopelessness of meeting the Teuton on anywhere near equal terms in the state they found themselves last August, the Allies were quickly impressed by the need of taking extraordinary measures to cope with the situation. Russia, with extremely limited facilities to equip her millions of soldiers; France, with factories none too large to keep her own men supplied, and England, face to face with the tremendous proposition of creating vast hosts of trained, fully equipped fighters out of raw recruits, perceived at once that the full output of all the available factories in the world was needed before the desired end was attained.

With control of the seas practically assured, the problem was simplified to a great degree. Only the obstacle of time for manufacture of implements and supplies stood in the way of the complete equipment of the allied armies. The trade routes of the ocean were open for the passage of ships bearing the needed munitions, so that no difficulty could be experienced in transportation once the commodities were ready.

Representatives of foreign countries swarmed to America, buying up all the supplies in sight and placing contracts for future delivery. The impetus which the steel industry received was marked, but other lines were quickly affected, such as the automobile makers, and manufacturers of barbed wire, submarines, powder, cartridges, shells and many other implements of war. The intense activity witnessed at the outbreak of the war has only increased as the months have passed, and many are confident that floodtide is by no means in sight.

Russia is probably the most helpless nation among the belligerents when it comes to manufacturing her own munitions of war. France could take care of herself in a case of dire necessity, while England is in a position to turn over her great manufacturing centres to the making of war materials. Russia, however, with her millions of fighting men, is so largely an agricultural nation that she cannot make in months the ammunition which her boats could use up in a few weeks.

Access to the Czar's realm has been difficult except across the Pacific and over Siberia. With Archangel frozen solid and the Dardanelles in the hands of the enemy, Russia has been well sealed up, and though a certain amount of material has filtered in by way of the Scandinavian peninsula, there has been by no means the freedom of communication desired. The fall of Constantinople, however, would double the opportunity to get munitions to the Czar's armies. The other nations will consume their quota as rapidly as it can be made, and the new millions that England is expected to be put into the field will require powder and shot in almost incomprehensible amounts.

No small feature of the renewed activity is the construction of many buildings to enlarge the facilities of the factories. Makers of structural steel have been much encouraged by the influx of orders, which indicate much building throughout the country.

Women as Railway Porters.

Since the Government instituted the Register of Women for War Service, with a view to filling up gaps in the ranks of labor for making war material, and also to releasing men of military age for the Army, large numbers of women have registered as willing to undertake work of various kinds, and some have already entered on their new duties.

Bonds and Their Yields

Railroad Bonds—There is a Splendid Market for Railroad Bonds Which are Quoted on Most Exchanges.

Few general classes of bonds offer such a wide range of choice as the railroad bond. This kind of investment offers a great variety of bonds, ranging from the strictly staid and sober prior lien or first mortgage bond to the third and fourth general debenture issue; and short-term notes ranking either pari passu with the one or the other of the mortgages, or as a secondary lien after all the others have been looked after. If the investor wants absolute security for his money together with a steady rate of interest, he can get this in a certain type of railway bond; or if the speculator wants to take a little flier in something which has a great many elements of safety lacking in shares, and yet has sufficient price variation to net a decent profit on the turn, he will find his desires fulfilled by yet another type of railroad bond. And so it is all the way down the line; practically every requirement of the average investor will be found to be fulfilled by some one of the numerous kinds of railway mortgage securities.

The Straight Mortgage.

Probably the best known representative of this large class, is the ordinary railroad mortgage bond. This is an obligation of a railroad company, which runs for a certain length of time at a certain definite rate of interest, and is usually secured by a mortgage upon railroad property. In the case of the first mortgage bonds, they are secured by a mortgage against all or the greater part of the company's property; while in the case of the other subsequent issues of bonds they may be secured by separate properties or as second or third mortgages on the same property. The short-term notes may be secured in either of these two ways, or a certain amount of treasury stock may be set aside as special security, in addition to the general deed of hypothec against the property itself.

There is still another type of railroad bonds known as equipment trust certificates, which are specially secured by the equipment they are issued to purchase. These are usually amortization bonds and are redeemable serially. They are different from the ordinary railroad mortgage bond in that their security is rolling stock and not fixed assets.

The Best Kind of Security.

Where absolute security is the paramount consideration, it would be difficult to find better bonds than the first mortgage and even the second mortgage bonds of the big railways of the United States and Canada. It has been the custom of most railway builders on this continent when building new lines to issue bonds for so much per mile of line, securing the bonds by a mortgage against the property on either side of the right-of-way, as well as upon the actual railway line itself. Usually a good deal more money has been needed to build the railway than is represented by the bond issue, and this additional money is often raised by the sale of stock and secondary bonds, all of which increase the security behind the first mortgage bonds. These latter are the safest kind of security, because in the first place they are a real estate mortgage against property which the very building of the railroad has made more valuable; and in the second place they are a mortgage against other corporate property which has a definite marketable value aside from the value of the land itself.

When is Security Sufficient?

There are various tests to apply to railroad bonds to ascertain the amount of security behind them, and as to whether they are or are not an absolutely safe investment. Examination of the trust deed will show the nature of a mortgage; but the investor need not bother much about this as the bond house will give him all the necessary information. The total market value of the road, its cost and replacement value are, however, important factors. These can be arrived at only by careful consideration of all the securities outstanding and their selling price in the open market. The bonds should be covered twice over.

Then there is the earnings feature of the case. It is essential that the railroad be operating at a good profit. Bond interest must be earned and well earned. Further, before profits are shown the property must be well maintained, sufficient allowance being set aside for replacements and renewals.

The issue of subsequent mortgages is a good thing for the prior lien holders. It shows that others have confidence in the property, and moreover it provides a buyer for the road should it fail to meet expenses; for the second and subsequent mortgagors must buy in the road at a sum equal to the first mortgage or lose their money.

Why They Are a Good Buy.

Many Canadian and American railroad bonds are an unusually good buy at the present time. The security behind the issues of the more prominent companies is of the best; and particularly in the case of Canadian railroads largely financed through sale of stock is the market value of the roads greatly in excess of the bonded indebtedness. For various reasons railroad bonds have kept down below normal values and appear cheap compared with some other investment securities. Their extremely wide range of offerings together with general stability of price make them an attractive buy. As some of these bonds are quite speculative in nature, however, the counsel of a thoroughly reliable bond dealer is advised where safe investment is the first consideration.

Seeing Europe.

An American who had been "seeing Europe" was describing his experience in the rush to get home when war was declared. The boat was crowded. The third day a man went up to the purser and said — "You will have to get me a place to sleep." "Where have you been sleeping?" asked the purser. "Well," the passenger answered, "I've been sleeping on a man who was sea-sick, but he's getting better now and says I'll have to move."

A Grave Topic.

An old Scotchman having a friend on a visit one day took him to see an ancient cemetery in the village—the only sight it could boast of. "What dae ye think o' that?" he inquired. "Hoots, man," said this friend, viewing the dilapidated condition of the graves, "before I'd be buried there I'd die first." "Aw, weel," said Sandy, "as far as I'm concerned I mean to be buried nae ither place if I'm spared."

The Ancient Lusitanians.

To the suggestion of the American Agriculturist that the word "lusitanian" be adopted into all languages to denote the "acme of human atrocity," the New York Herald replies that this would be "rather unfair to ancient Lusitania, the territory of which is now comprised in the new republic of Portugal." If the Herald had gone further into history, it would have found a parallel in the past that gives a certain kind of support to the freakish, but well-meant, suggestion. In the Encyclopedia Britannica, under the name Servius Sulpicius Galba, one reads that this Roman general and orator, who served as praetor in farther Spain in 151 B.C., "made himself infamous by the treacherous murder of a number of Lusitanians, with their wives and children." For this misdeed he was brought to trial in 149, but escaped punishment by holding up his own children before the people to gain their sympathy. The Lusitanians were subdued by P. B. Crassus when he was Governor of Spain some 60 years later. Eventually, under Augustus or Tiberius, when the Government of Spain was reorganized, Lusitania was set apart as a province. It was known as a fertile and peaceful country, and it did include that territory which in the Middle Ages became the kingdom of Portugal, though it is said that the inhabitants of Portugal are not descended from the ancient Lusitanians. All the Cunard steamships have been named after provinces or districts of the old Roman Empire, and melodious, rich-sounding Latin names they have been, ending, as the public is well aware, in "ia."

STILL LOSE THINGS IN PARIS.

War Brings No Relief to Lost Property Department.

The lost property department at the Prefecture of Police has not found its labors sensibly diminished by the war, although the population of Paris has been reduced by mobilization. Mr Dubois, the head of the service, says: "Of ten objects brought here as having been found in one day, nine have been lost by women, and as the female population of Paris has not been affected by the war, our work has been almost as great as usual. In September, when the great exodus occurred at the approach of the Germans, the number of articles brought in dropped from the average of 6,000 or 7,000 to 4,356, but since the victory of the Marne the normal average has been resumed."

NO ALUM

MADE IN CANADA

A Puzzle.

The lady of the house was explaining things to the new maid.

"An' what's this, miaum?" asked the girl, indicating a metal bottle.

"That is a bottle, which will keep things either hot or cold, whichever you desire," replied the mistress.

"Well, foh the land sake!" ejaculated the girl. "How is it gwine to know whether you want things hot or cold?"

Aunt Virginia Says

When we are told a disagreeable thing that has been said about us we are likely to share our dislike about equally between the person who said it and the person who repeated it. Tale-bearers would do well to remember this.

Dancing was originally a religious observance.

A High Grade

6%

Investment

CITY OF CALGARY

6% TREASURY BILLS.

Due 1918

Interest payable 15th March and September, in Toronto, Montreal, and New York.

Assessment $134,886,435
Population 80,000

PRICE: Par and Interest.
YIELDING 6%

JOHN STARK & CO.
24 ADELAIDE ST. E., Toronto.

LIFE IN THE LIGHTHOUSE

BEACON LIGHTS WHICH WARN OCEAN TRAVELLERS.

The First Lighthouse Was Built in the Eighteenth Century on the Eddystone Rock.

Directly man began to navigate the seas, he found it essential to provide lights at night as a warning of the nearness of rocks, or of any other danger to his maritime expeditions, says the London Answers.

Lighthouses are placed all round our coasts wherever there is the slightest danger to shipping; on land, to mark a headland, etc., near the shore where there are hidden rocks or sand; or right out at sea where other solitary rocks happen to be a danger to unsuspecting mariners.

Round the United Kingdom today there are 239 lighthouses and 60 lightships, the total number averaging out at about one light for every 10 miles of coast.

The first stone lighthouse was built by John Smeaton in the eighteenth century on the famous Eddystone Rock, outside Plymouth. This was

A Wonderful Success,

and withstood the elements for 123 years, when it was pulled down and re-erected on Plymouth Hoe, where it stands today. Since Smeaton's time stone lighthouses have been put up all over the world, and have proved themselves to be the very best means of protecting shipping from hidden dangers.

Lighthouses at sea generally have four men attached to them. Three are always on duty, while a fourth is on leave ashore. Lighthouse men spend alternately two months on duty and one on shore, although, of course, in case of very rough weather, when it is impossible for a boat to relieve them, they have to spend perhaps weeks working "overtime" as it were.

The interior of the modern Eddystone Lighthouse is a

Wonder of Compactness, containing, as it does, eleven separate compartments.

Lying fourteen miles off Plymouth, this lighthouse is fully exposed to the south-west gales, and is the fourth tower to be built on this reef.

The stone base is forty-four feet in diameter, and twenty-two in height. Above this the tower is solid, save for the water-tank, to a height of twenty-five feet six inches above the high-water mark. From this height upwards, the walls vary in thickness from eight feet six inches at the base to two feet three inches under the gallery.

Cost Thousands of Pounds.

The present Eddystone Lighthouse took about three years to build, being completed in 1882 at a cost of nearly £80,000. It contains 2,500 tons of granite.

As can be well understood, the building of a lighthouse is a very hazardous and costly undertaking. Some modern lighthouses cost as much as £150,000 to build and equip, and not, in all cases, is the erection unaccompanied with loss of life.

The Bell Rock Lighthouse, off the east coast of Scotland, and nearly opposite the mouth of the Tay, took four years to build, and cost nearly £60,000.

The Skerryvore Lighthouse, situated in the open Atlantic, also off the coast of Scotland, was as much as six years in building, and the expenditure was over £70,000. This is the highest lighthouse round the British Isles, towering nearly 130 feet above the sea level, or 20 feet higher than the Bell Rock Lighthouse.

Terrific weather has to be faced by lighthouse builders, and blocks of stone weighing as much as two tons, have been torn out and swept away by the rough seas. When the present lighthouse was being erected on the Bishop Rock, near the Scilly Isles, a blacksmith's anvil, weighing 1½ cwt., was placed for safety in a cavity 3ft 6in. deep and 2ft wide. This anvil was during a storm. Here is another example of the furious waves light houses have to withstand. During a storm round an American light house a year or so ago a rock, weighing 140lb., was lifted by the waves and dropped clean through the top of the lighthouse, over 130 feet above high-water level.

Washed Right Out of the Hole

The most wonderful portion of a lighthouse is the lantern. It is of enormous size, and consists of prisms, lenses, and reflectors that cost hundreds of pounds. The light thrown by one of the latest lanterns is equal to 60 million candles, and, in some cases, can be seen nearly forty miles away.

Besides acting as a warning, each lighthouse has its own system of signalling, by which seamen may tell their position. This is done by the number of times the light shows, and the arrangement of long and short flashes. In some cases, two colors are used—red and white.

In foggy weather, when the light is practically useless, fog signals are exploded to warn mariners.

What the railway signal is to the engine-driver, so is the lighthouse to the skipper of a boat, and the number of wrecks round our coasts annually would be appalling, were it not for these "guardians" and their keepers.

Small Kitchens.

In building a house, it is a great mistake to build a large kitchen, unless it must also be used as a dining room. A big kitchen means an enormous number of extra steps for the housewife in preparing her meals, and a wholly unnecessary amount of labor in sweeping and cleaning.

Have your kitchen made just large enough to contain comfortably your range, work table, cupboard, and a couple of chairs. If you need extra space for washing or work of that sort have a room partitioned off from the kitchen to be used for these purposes alone, and shut up during the ordinary routine of kitchen work.

Pure Ice Cream

in the Home

THE BRICK has greatly popularized City Dairy Ice Cream with the housewife. There is no other dessert that can compete with City Dairy Ice Cream in the summer.

Our Service makes it possible for your dealer to supply you with City Dairy Ice Cream in brick form so that you can serve it in your own home at Dinner, Afternoon Tea or Evening Party, just the same as your City Sister.

For Sale by discriminating shopkeepers

City Dairy

Look for the Sign.

TORONTO.

We want an agent in every town.

A COMPLETE WRECK

From the After Effects of Pneumonia Followed by Diptheria

Frequently the after effects of illness are more serious than the original trouble. This was the case with Mrs. James B. Moir, Mutana, Sask. Mrs. Moir says: "Some years ago, while we were still living in Nova Scotia, I was taken down with a severe attack of pneumonia. I had sufficiently recovered to be around, but had not been able to go out when I was attacked with diphtheria. In my weakened state it took a terrible hold on me, and neither my friends nor neighbors thought I would recover. I did, however, pull through, but was a physical wreck. The muscles of my throat were paralyzed, so that even a cup of water would flow back through my nostrils unless they were held closed. My voice was almost inaudible, and my eyes so badly effected that I feared I was going to loose my eyesight. I could only walk with assistance, and it looked as though I would be a helpless cripple. Medicine was used but did not help me. Then a neighbor advised Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I began taking them but had the utmost difficulty in swallowing them owing to the condition of my throat. However, after a couple of boxes had been used I found it easier to take them, which was a sign they were helping me, and I felt greatly cheered. I do not know how many boxes I took, but I continued their use until I was as well as ever, much to the surprise of all who knew me, as all thought I could not get better. Since then I have several times taken the Pills when run down, and have always been greatly benefitted by them.

For the after effects of fevers and all wasting diseases there is no medicine can equal Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They enrich the blood, build up the nerves, restore the appetite and bring back complete health and strength. Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

The Same Teeth.

Among some recruits waiting to be passed by the doctor for a Tyneside battalion was a miner from a local colliery, a fine strapping youth. After a good many had been examined it came to Georgie's turn, and everyone present thought him a likely recruit. The doctor, after looking at Georgie's teeth remarked sadly:

"I'm sorry, my lad, I cannot pass you; your teeth are too bad."

"Wey, if this isn't a licker," replied Georgie. "Ye passed th' same teeth yisterday wi' Bill Smith an' we both borrowed them."

Topsy Turvy.

"Automobiles are paradoxical machines."

"In what way?"

"You have to get under them to overlook them."

YOUR OWN DRUGGIST WILL TELL YOU Try Murine Eye Remedy for Red, Weak, Watery Eyes and Granulated Eyelids; for Smarting, Sore Eyes; Comfort. Write for Book of the Eye by mail Free. Murine Eye Remedy Co., Chicago.

Mabel: "How are you getting on at college, Percy?" Percy: "Oh, all right. I'm trying awfully hard to get ahead, you know." Mabel: "Well, goodness knows, you need one!"

Minard's Liniment Lumberman's Friend

Cleopatra's Needle weighs 180 tons.

The First of ALL "Home Remedies"

"VASELINE," in its many forms with their innumerable uses, is the foundation of the family medicine chest.

Vaseline

Trademark

It keeps the skin smooth and sound. Invaluable in the nursery for burns, cuts, insect bites, etc. Absolutely pure and safe.

AVOID SUBSTITUTES. Insist on "Vaseline" in original packages bearing the name, CHESEBROUGH MANUFACTURING CO., Consolidated. For sale at all Chemists and General Stores.

Illustrated booklet free on request

CHESEBROUGH MFG CO. (Consol'd)

1880 CHABOT AVE., MONTREAL

A Modern Hand Grenade.

The comparatively rudimentary form of hand grenade first made use of in the present war in the trenches in Flanders has developed in type and shape during the past four months. We see above a pair of the newest German pattern concussion projectiles, designed to explode by internal detonation on striking the object aimed at, and fitted with convenient handles for slinging.

BYRON'S FRUGAL DIET.

Post's Self Restraint to Keep From Getting Stout.

Byron was an exception to the rule that authorship and hearty feeding go together. For the poet had a morbid dread of getting stout, and Trelawny has recorded of him that he was the only human being he had known with self-restraint enough not to grow fat.

In 1813, in the exercise of this self-restraint, says the London Chronicle, he lived on six biscuits a day and no drink but tea, fasting on occasions for 48 hours. Three years later he tried one thin slice of bread for breakfast and a vegetable dinner and kept down his hunger in between by chewing tobacco.

And though this semi-starvation may have been bad in the long run, a visitor at the time could only observe that no man had brighter eyes or a clearer voice.

MOTHERS OF LITTLE ONES

No mother of young children should be without a box of Baby's Own Tablets. The Tablets are mother's best friend and are as good as a doctor in the house. Concerning them Mrs. F. Wurger, Ingersoll, Ont., writes: "I have used Baby's Own Tablets for the past eight years and would not be without them. I can highly recommend them to all mothers of young children." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

When and How to Eat.

Most people eat too frequently, taking four or five or even six meals in the day. Three are ample (writes Dr. A. B. Olsen in Good Health), and there is little doubt but that the vast majority of people would find two meals a day still more satisfactory from the standpoint of health and efficiency. There should be an interval of about five hours between meals so as to give the digestive organs ample opportunity to do their work, and have a brief rest between meals. This is particularly true of the stomach, which should not be kept in a state of constant activity and dilatation during all the waking hours and part of the time allotted to sleep. No food of any kind should be taken between meals. The common habit of taking sweets, cakes, pastries and fruit at any and all times is not conducive to good digestion and sooner or later brings trouble. Adults as well as children very often give way to this habit, but always suffer in consequence sooner or later. Nothing but water or lemonade or some similar drink should be taken between meals. Rapid eating is another common means of encouraging dyspepsia and would be impossible if people took pains to masticate their food as nature intended. To eat to repletion is a mistake.

The Idea.

Many are the changes that have been wrung on the stolen-umbrella joke, and a fresh one has been printed in the Tatler.

On the notice-board in an Ipswich reading room there recently appeared the following appeal: "Will the gentleman who took a horn-handled umbrella from the stand on Wednesday kindly return it to the librarian?" Some one wrote beneath in pencil, "Certainly not; weather still unsettled."

Dad Could Tell.

"Where," said the land agent, addressing an audience of possible purchasers, "where else on the face of the globe will you find in one place copper, tin, iron, cotton, hemp, grain, game——"

A voice replied: "In the pockets of my youngest son."

First Long Step Towards Recovery

IS TO FIND IF YOUR SYMPTOMS ARE OF KIDNEY DISEASE.

Kent County Lady Did This—Then She Used Dodd's Kidney Pills and Was Cured.

Upper Bouctouche, Kent Co., N. B., May 31st (Special).—Miss Genevieve Bastarache, an estimable lady living near there, is telling her friends of the benefit she has received from Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"I am indeed happy to be able to state that I have been cured of Kidney Disease by Dodd's Kidney Pills," Miss Bastarache says in an interview.

"I was often so feeble I could not work. My sleep was broken and unrefreshing. I had headaches and cramps in the muscles.

"I suffered from Rheumatism and Backache and was always tired and nervous.

"I was in this miserable condition when I decided to try Dodd's Kidney Pills, and I had not taken two boxes till I felt better, and three boxes cured me."

Miss Bastarache made a long step towards recovery when she discovered that her symptoms were of Kidney Disease. She then had only to use the old reliable Kidney remedy, Dodd's Kidney Pills, to find a cure. Are your symptoms those of Kidney Disease?

HORSES BOUGHT FOR WAR.

European Nations Now Drawing at the Rate of 420,000 a Year.

Though not a year has gone by since the shipment of horses to the European war zone set in, upward of 250,000 have already been purchased in America. They are now going out at the rate of about 35,000 a month, or 420,000 a year, with no sign of a let up until the war ends, as that anybody can readily see what may happen if the struggle goes on until one side or the other stops from exhaustion. The possibility that we may lose 1,000,000 horses as a result of the conflict is thus rapidly becoming a probability, for everybody seems to be agreed that England, France and Germany must buy a very large number of horses after the war ends to replace those taken from their own people for military purposes.

The record shows that more than 165,000 horses were exported during the first three months of 1915. Later exports are not yet ascertained, but are estimated at 35,000 head a month. The total exported a year were, in round numbers, 92,000 head, as compared with 29,000 head in 1913. Practically all of the horses shipped to Europe last year were purchased for military purposes.

France, England, Italy, Switzerland, Roumania and perhaps other countries, have been among the buyers. It is estimated that they have paid something like $80,000,000 for the horses purchased. That prices have advanced only a few dollars for certain classes of horses and not at all for others, is pretty good proof that we can keep on supplying horses for the greatest war in history as long as the European nations want to buy them. But all the market experts are predicting very much higher prices for all classes of horses as soon as the business of the country comes back in a normal condition.

CLEAR-HEADED

Head Bookkeeper Must Be Reliable

The chief bookkeeper in a large business house in one of the Western cities speaks of the harm tea and coffee did for him:

"My wife and I drank our first cup of Postum a little over two years ago, and we have used it ever since, to the entire exclusion of tea and coffee. It happened in this way:

"I had an attack of pneumonia, which left me with dyspepsia, or neuralgia of the stomach. My cup of coffee had always been tea or coffee, but I became convinced, after a time, that they aggravated my stomach trouble. I happened to mention the matter to my grocer one day and he suggested that I give Postum a trial.

"Next day it came and we liked it so much that we will never change back; for I am a well man to-day and have used no medicine.

"My work as chief bookkeeper in our Co.'s branch house here is of a very confining nature. During my tea and coffee drinking days I was subject to nervousness and the 'blues' in addition to my sick spells. These have left me since I began using Postum and I can conscientiously recommend it to those whose work confines them to long hours of severe mental exertion."

Name given by Canadian Postum Co., Windsor, Ont. Read "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

Postum comes in two forms:

Postum Cereal — the original form—must be well boiled, 15c and 25c packages.

Instant Postum—a soluble powder—dissolves quickly in a cup of hot water, and, with cream and sugar, makes a delicious beverage instantly. 30c and 50c tins.

Both kinds are equally delicious and cost about the same per cup.

"There's a Reason" for Postum.

—sold by Grocers.

YOUR SKIN NEEDS FOOD

Is your skin harsh and dry? Are there signs of approaching wrinkles? Are you getting worried about the possible loss of your youthful beauty? Cleopatra didn't worry about these things. You needn't if Ualt is applied.

Cleopatra and the noted beauties of the East knew perfectly well that the skin requires food just as does the rest of the body. They fed their skin with a preparation of Oriental oils, the secret of which has been so jealously guarded by succeeding generations that it has only recently come to light.

Ung, too, find Ualt a valuable friend. An occasional application to the face not only feeds the skin and keeps it in the healthiest condition, but it leaves the face much easier to shave. Experience alone proves how much easier.

Ualt is the trade mark name by which the preparation is known and sold by all druggists, wholesale and retail. Ualt Mfg. Co., Ltd., 478 Runnymeade Ave., Toronto, Ont.

Disobedient Children.

A systematically disobedient child must be a great trial to its mother; and no one can wonder if she loses patience with it. A child who will not obey is very difficult to train. It is either sullen and sulky, or it flatly refuses to do what it is told. In either case it is useless to try to reason with it—a young child cannot understand a word of the long stream of explanation that flows from its mother's lips. The best thing is to tell the little rebel to do what you wish, "because mother says so." As it grows older it may be reasoned with, and it will understand your words. No parent would tell its child to do impossible or even difficult things; this would be unreasonable and very wrong. Neither should mother or father nag at the child; this will do more harm than good, as the poor little martyr becomes bewildered, and then nervous and frightened. Make it happy while you gently enforce obedience. When you have overcome its obstinate fit a warm kiss and word of approval will not be out of place.

Few men are envied because of their wisdom; many because of their wealth.

Corns Cured Quick

Applied in 5 Seconds

Sore, blistering feet from corns pinched toes can be cured by Putnam's Extractor in 24 hours. "Putnam's" soothes away that drawing pain, eases instantly, makes the feet feel good at once. Get a 25c. bottle of "Putnam's to-day.

By the time a girl gets tired of the game there is seldom a man worth having that she can get.

Ask for Minard's and take no other.

Definition of Home.

The golden setting, in which the brightest jewel is "mother." A world of strife shut out, a world of love shut in. Home is the blossom of which heaven is the fruit. The only spot on earth where the faults and failings of fallen humanity are hidden under the mantle of charity. The place where the great are sometimes small and the small of ten great. The father's kingdom, the children's paradise, the mother's world. The jewel casket, containing the most precious of all jewels—domestic happiness. Home is the central telegraph office of human love into which run innumerable wires of affection, many of which, though extending thousands of miles, are never disconnected from the one great terminus.

Diplomatic.

"Darling," whispered the ardent suitor, "I lay my fortune at your feet." "Your fortune!" she replied in surprise; "I don't know you had one." "Well, it isn't much of a fortune, but it will look large beside those tiny feet."

A little learning is seldom as dangerous as a little ignorance.

Minard's Liniment Co., Limited.

Gentlemen,—I have used your Minard's Liniment in my family and also in my stables for years and consider it the best medicine obtainable.

Yours truly, ALFRED HOWDAY

Proprietor Horton Pond Hotel and Livery Stables.

Miss Passe: "Have you heard of my engagement?" Miss Cutting: "No—er—who's the plucky man?"

Minard's Liniment used by Physicians.

Husband and Wife Plan Together.

Yes indeed, I do read the woman's department in your paper, as well as the rest of it, advs. and all; writes a correspondent. Anything that can possibly help out in our particular problems is read with interest.

I consider the advs. as instructive as the rest of the paper in their way, and they have introduced me to some of the best articles I have ever used. I am always looking for improvements in everything, and my dependence on your advertising is absolute. My husband and I always go into the minutest details of whatever is to be bought inside and outside the house together. Personally, the articles on convenient kitchens, how to make them so, and better ways of doing work interest me most. As far as my acquaintance goes, the important need of the kitchens of farmers' wives of to-day is a little time and thought in rearranging them so as to do away with miles of steps. The convenient kitchen is the exception rather than the rule, even in many homes that are equipped with labor-saving devices and many luxuries.

Death Nearly Claimed New Brunswick Lady

Was Restored to Her Anxious Family When Hope Had Gone.

St. John, N.B., Dec. 15th.—At one time it was feared that Mrs. J. Grant, of 3 White St. would succumb to the deadly ravages of advanced kidney trouble. "My first attacks of backache and kidney trouble began years ago. For six years that dull gnawing pain has been present. When I exerted myself it was terribly intensified. If I caught cold the pain was unendurable. I used most everything, but nothing gave that certain grateful relief that came from Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butternut. Instead of being bent down with pain, to-day I am strong, enjoy splendid appetite, sleep soundly. Lost properties have been instilled into my blood—cheeks are rosy with color, and I thank that day that I heard of so grand a medicine as Dr. Hamilton's Pills."

Every woman should use these pills regularly because good health pays, and it's good vigorous health that comes to all who use Dr. Hamilton's Mandrake and Butternut Pills.

Monotonous.

"Black specks dance before my eyes, doctor," complained the success patient.

"That is very annoying and monotonous."

"Yes; they never have any new dances."

Keep Minard's Liniment in the house.

Knew Their Appetites.

Mrs Docherty: "Anything fresh about the war this mornin', Mrs. Malone?" "Nothing much," replied Mrs Malone. "The position is practically stalemate along the whole front." "Stale mate, is it," exclaimed Mrs Docherty. "Troth, just wait till me two lodgers and our Patrick get to the front, there won't be a bit of stale mate left. There are the bhoys to shift the grub."

ZAM-BUK AND OUTDOOR LIFE.

Every tennis or ball player, every swimmer, every canoeist, every man or woman who loves outdoor life and exercise, should keep a box of Zam-Buk handy.

Zam-Buk is a purely herbal preparation, which, as soon as applied to cuts, bruises, burns, sprains, blisters, etc., sets up highly beneficial operations. First, its antiseptic properties render the wound free from all danger from blood poisoning. Next, its soothing properties relieve and ease the pain. Then its rich, herbal balms penetrate the tissue, and set up the wonderful process of healing. Barbed wire scratches, insect stings, skin diseases, such as eczema, heat rashes, ring worm, babies' heat sores, chafed places, sore feet—are all quickly cured by Zam-Buk. It also eases and cures piles. All druggists and stores. Use Zam-Buk Soap also; 25c per tablet.

WEAR FLEET FOOT

SHOES FOR EVERY SPORT AND RECREATION

Sold by all good Shoe Dealers

"Worn by every member of the family"

One reason why most of us get angry in an argument is because the other chap is too ignorant to agree with us.

SEED POTATOES.

EARLY IRISH COBBLER POTATOES, especially selected and Government inspected for seed. Only limited quantity. Price, One Dollar per bushel f.o.b. Brampton. Also Canadiana's Pride and New Snow, two excellent new potatoes. Price, Two Dollars per bushel. Special prices for large quantity. Cash must accompany all orders. H. W. Dawson, Brampton.

SALESMEN WANTED.

SALESMEN WANTED FOR HIGH-CLASS specialties. Solid at sight. Write for particulars. Beaver Meadow Co., 409 Markham st., Toronto.

FEMALE HELP WANTED.

LADIES TO DO PLAIN AND LIGHT sewing at home, whole or spare time; good pay; work sent any distance, charges paid. Send stamp for particulars. National Manufacturing Co., Montreal.

PRESERVING EGGS.

RECIPE TO PRESERVE EGGS fresh during twelve months. If not required for personal use they may be sold at fifty and seventy-five cents per dozen. This means hundred per cent. profit in six months. Circular free. Octavien Heitland, Dept 21, 16 Notre Dame east, Montreal.

NEWSPAPERS FOR SALE.

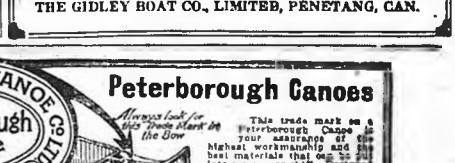
PROFIT-MAKING NEWS AND JOB OFfice for sale in good Ontario town. The most useful and interesting of all businesses. Full information on application to Wilson Publishing Company, 12 West Adelaide St., Toronto.

MISCELLANEOUS.

CANCER, TUMORS, LUMPS ETC., internal and external, cured without pain by our home treatment. Write us before too late. Dr. Bellman Medical Co., Limited, Collingwood, Ont.

KERMATH Marine Engines

KEELEY 1253 DUNDAS TORONTO CURE FOR ALCOHOLIC & DRUG ADDICTIONS



CUTTEN & FOSTER

AUTO AND BOAT TOPS

Ford owners write for our catalogue.

SEARS-CROSS

Speedometer Station. 179 Queen Street West. TORONTO, - ONT.

"Overstern" V Bottom Motor Boat $55.00

Freight Prepaid to any Railway Station in Ontario. Length 18 Ft., Beam 8 Ft. 9 In., Depth 1 Ft. 6 In. ANY MOTOR FITS.

Specification No. 12B giving engine prices on request. Get our quotations on—"The Penetang Lion" Commercial and Pleasure Launches, Row boats and Canoes.

THE GIDLEY BOAT CO., LIMITED, PENETANG, CAN.

Peterborough Canoes

Always look for this Trade Mark in the Bow

This trade mark on a Peterborough Canoe is your assurance of the highest workmanship and the best materials that can be put into a canoe or skiff. Especially for easy paddling, strength and safety.

In painted Basswood, Cedar Rib, Cedar Strip and Canvas Covered qualities. Write for Catalogue. The Peterborough Canoe Co., Limited, Peterborough, Canada.

SINCLAIR'S

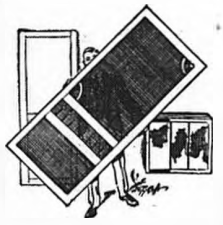
The Hardware Store of Better Values

Something new in Oil Cook Stoves. Come in and inspect this new stove.

This Stove Burns

Oil or Gasoline

TROUT VAPOR STOVES



"New Perfection" Oil Cook Stoves

2 Burner $8, 3-Burner $11
Ovens $2.50 and $3.00

The Fly he is naughty beast,
He ought to die to say the least.

Screen Doors and Windows

Price of DOORS
$1.25, $1.50, $1.90, $2.25, $2.50
Complete

WINDOWS at 15c, 25c, 30c, 35c, 40c and 60c

A Screen for every window

If you want to be healthy and wise
Don't forget to swat the flies.

Both Sinclair's Hardware Phones

EDEN GROVE

Three young ladies who were saying their enthusiastic parting respects to a bridal couple at Paisley station last Thursday, were not quick enough in getting off the train there and were carried through to Eden Grove, free of charge. Dropped here without money or means of locomotion except footing it, they were fortunate enough in picking up an autoist who kindly conveyed them to a point where they were met by a motor car from home. The trio will no doubt long remember the date of their unpremeditated visit to this lively and enchanting burg.

We regret to report that Mr A Catto is in a very low condition from a cancerous trouble. A specialist recently came up to operate upon him, but found after making an incision that nothing could be done to help the case.

The Red Cross garden party held at Mr Alexander's on Thursday evening under the auspices of the football club was a splendid success, $50 being realized for the cause. The proceeds amounted to over $70.

A bunch of boozers revived an old feud while in this village on Friday and made things vulgarly lively for a short time. Many villages and towns have become free from such rowdyism through the operations of local option, but this "free" corner of the earth must apparently remain under the domination of King Alcohol.

Children Cry
FOR FLETCHER'S
CASTORIA

GLAMIS

The delegates from Glamis who attended the Baptist Association at Mt. Forest last week were Misses Emma Howson, Laura Cunningham, Annie Currie, Messrs McCauley, Allen McKinnon, Hector McLean.

Mr Donald McLennan of Walkerton spent Saturday and Sunday with friends here.

Miss Jennie McDermaid, from London, is spending holidays at her home here.

Mr Dan McLean, of the 2nd, has purchased a new Ford touring car.

Mrs Russell and family have gone to Hamilton to visit friends there.

Miss Ena McKenzie is spending a few days at her home in Kincardine.

Mr and Mrs Kirkton have gone to Holland to attend the marriage of the latter's brother, Mr George McKinnet.

The Oddfellows purpose holding their annual service next Sunday in the Baptist church.

Mr and Mrs Roulston of Owen Sound and Mr and Mrs Jackson of Holland Centre motored over and spent Sunday at R J Nesbitt's.

A number of Glamis people drove down to Tiverton on Monday night to hear Chancellor McCrimmon of McMaster University lecture on the war.

Our football team won a great game at Pinkerton on Tuesday last when they beat the seemingly unbeatable Pinkerton team 1-0.

PINKERTON

Mr [illegible] Birrell is attending the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Kingston.

Senator Donnelly was in Toronto and Trout Creek last week.

Mrs Houston of Paisley is visiting at the home of her son, Mr Thos Houston, of the 14th con.

Mr Geo Scott was on the 12th con with his sawing outfit last week.

Quite a number from here spent the King's Birthday at a picnic near Riversdale. Many others attended the garden party at Eden Grove.

Anniversary services will be held in the Presbyterian church here on Sunday, June 13th. Rev G B McLennan, B.A., of Yorkton, Sask., will preach at the morning and evening services.

A garden party under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society will be held on the manse lawn on Monday, June 14th. The program committee were fortunate in being able to secure the services of Mrs. Agnes Bowes Hall, of Little Rock, Ark., noted elocutionist, and well known as the author of "Craigie." Supper will be served from six to eight o'clock. Admission 25c and 15c.

GRESHAM

Mr and Mrs Alex Wood attended the Thomas—Semple wedding at Tiverton.

We regret to learn that Mr Geo Fullerton is sick.

Our teacher, Miss Nixon, attended the funeral of a cousin at Lucknow this week.

Mr and Mrs J R Aitchison and family of Clifford motored up and Sundayed at Mr A Wood's.

Mr Alan Bell of the 10th has purchased a new Ford touring car. This is the first car on the 10th but they are an old song on the 6th and 8th.

We are pleased to learn that Mrs A Pace, who was ill, is able to be up and around again.

CARGILL

Mr and Mrs Bell, Mr and Mrs Saunders motored out to Inverhuron on Sunday and spent the day at the lake.

The Ladies' Welsh Choir gave an entertainment in the Foresters' Hall on Saturday night. The concert was well attended and highly appreciated.

Miss Marjorie Hood visited in Walkerton on Tuesday.

Mrs Hamilton, of Port Arthur, is visiting her sister, Mrs Matthews.

Born—To Mr and Mrs Karl Cliff, on June 6th, a son.

Born—To Mr and Mrs Wm Grainger, on June 1st, a son.

Children Cry
FOR FLETCHER'S
CASTORIA

PAISLEY MARKET

Fall wheat, per bushel	$1 25	$ 1 25
Spring wheat, per bush	1 00	1 00
Buckwheat	70	75
Peas, per bush
Oats, per bush	50	50
Barley, per bush	65	75
Potatoes, per bus	40	40
Butter, in pound prints	23	23
Eggs, fresh, per doz	20	20
Hay, per ton	15 00

WALKERTON

Having no family or friends who apparently want to keep him, Edward L. Facey, aged 72, a widower and farm laborer, came here from Eldersle the other day and decided to put up at the House of Refuge where he is paying $2 a week for his board. As the actual cost for each inmate at the Bruce shelter is about $1 60 per week, the county will realize a small profit from Facey's board bill.

A letter received on Monday by Mr Wm Barry of Dunkeld from his son William, who was with the 48th Highlanders of Toronto, states that he is in Dublin Castle Hospital, Ireland, recovering from five wounds received at the battle of Langemarck. The doctors are going to operate on him shortly, he says, for the removal of a bullet from his ankle. The 48th were chased out of their trenches by the poisonous gas, which killed many of their men. It was while retreating from the gas that Barry received his wounds.

While repairing shoes on Saturday night, Mike Schefter noticed that the lamp by his side was about to explode and grabbing it he rushed from his shop to the street and while casting it forth it blew up with a bang like a German bomb. Although the flew like shrapnel in all directions, Mike came through the ordeal unhurt, though all the cuss in used to have been taken out of his hair when it went up straight. It was a close call from a serious fire; and as Mike occupies an attached store, his neighbors are all glad that he had the courage to grab the lamp and not fiddle around like Nero while Rome burned.

John Gillen, Jr., and a chum entered the home of Mr Geo Eckenswiler of Carrick through the cellar window after midnight on Tuesday last and after imbibing freely of cider, made their way through the cellar into the house, where they broke a glass door in his desk and stole a small sum of money. Chief Ferguson was notified of the affair and succeeded in arresting the culprits near Dunkeld on Wednesday. On being hailed before Magistrate Tolton at Walkerton on Wednesday afternoon they pleaded guilty to a theft charge and were fined $1 on and costs or a total assessment of $6 15 for the offence.

Mr David Karges, proprietor of the moving picture show here was fined $10 and costs, amounting in all to $23.75, by Magistrate Tolton on Saturday last for employing an unlicensed operator to run his machine. Herbie Houch, the operator, was also up for engaging in such work without a license, and although he was liable for a similar fine, the court let him off with a warning. The magistrate in dismissing him, wised Herbie up to the fact that if he was again caught in the act that his past sins would be remembered against him and that no might next time expect a double dose from the court.—Herald and Times.

CAUGHT A LIVE PORCUPINE!

There were very few boys in school on Tuesday forenoon. The nine bell had no charms for them, for a porcupine had been discovered in Wm. Griffith's back yard and had to be caught. It was caught alright but some of the lads were stung by the quills upon the fretful animal. They paraded around town with the porcupine in a box on a small wagon all proud as Lucifer of the exploit. How the animal happened into this neighborhood is a mystery. No hunter would shoot a porcupine. It moves very slowly and if a man in the woods were starving and without a gun it is about the only animal he could kill. Consequently "Verboten" is the rule with respect to the shooting of the porcupine, so old hunters say.—Kincardine Review.

TORONTO LIVE STOCK MARKETS

TORONTO, Tuesday, June 1st, 1915

Butchers picked	$10 00	$ 10
do common	9 00	9
do cows	8 00	8
do bulls	7 00	7
Stockers, choice	7 75	7
do common	6 00	6
Heavy feeders	7 00	7
Short keep	7 50	7
Milch cows, choice	85 00	100
do common	40 00	60
Sheep, ewes	9 75	9
Bucks	8 00	8
Spring Lambs, each	7 00	9
Calves	8 00	9
Hogs, f & s	9 15	9
" fed and watered	9 00	9

HONORS FOR CANADIANS

War-time Services Recognized in Long Birthday List

London, June 5—King George's birthday honor list includes many naval and military decorations for war services. Lord Kitchener is made Knight of the Garter. The civil honor list includes two new peers—Sir Francis Bertie, the British ambassador at Paris, and Sir Kenneth Muir-Mackenzie. E. L. Fletcher, Jr., manager of the White Star Line, is knighted. Many honors go to Canadians. Sir Gilbert Parker is made baronet. Among those made knights commander of the order of St. Michael and St. George are: Sir John S. Hendrie, Principal Peterson, of McGill. The following are made companions of the order of St. Michael and St. George: Dr. D. M. Gordon, Principal of Queen's; Commander Stephens, chief of staff of the Canadian naval service. The following are made knights bachelor: Herbert Browne Ames, M.P.; Chairman H. L. Drayon, of the Railway Commission; J. C. Eaton, of Toronto; C. F. Fraser, supt. of school for the blind at Halifax.

BRYAN STANDS OUT

His Attitude Towards Britain Causes Cabinet Crisis Over Second Note

Washington, June 8—A Cabinet crisis has arisen over the note to Germany, Secretary of State Bryan desiring that the second note be more moderate in terms and that certain British acts be also protested. Mr. Bryan dislikes the doctrine of full accountability but would protest against the endangering of women and children. He will urge his views at Cabinet today when the final form of the second note will be decided. Other ministers are known to favor making even stronger representations to Germany, while President Wilson in his draft of the note steers a middle course, adhering to his original position and desiring to take up the British question independently.

Lloyd-George Confident

Getting Explosive Shells—Wants Power to Move Workers

London, June 8—"At last I believe things are going all right. I feel the machine beginning to move," said Lloyd-George yesterday at his new office. "Huge contracts already have been placed for high explosive shells, but tremendous work is yet to be accomplished. The State must have more direct control over labor, and more large bodies of skilled workmen where they are most required."

Baltic Naval Battle?

Rapid Violent Firing Heard Saturday For Six Hours

London, June 8—It is reported from Stockholm that a naval battle occured Saturday near Gothland. For six hours a violent cannonade was heard from a southeasterly direction, and for a long time from twenty to twenty-five shots were heard every minute. A Petrograd official despatch reports a naval encounter in the Baltic near Riga.

Tornado Killed Farmer

London, Ont., June 8—A tornado which swept Downie township, Perth county, late yesterday afternoon, during a severe rain and electrical storm, caused the death of David Dillabough, aged eighty, a retired farmer, and destroyed the houses and barns of John Reilly and James Corbett.

CANADIAN CASUALTIES

Ottawa, June 8—The night lists included: Killed in action, Ptes. Kennedy and Courtney, Toronto. Died of wounds: Ptes Hall, St. Davids; Middleton, Vancouver; Lance-Corpl. Naden, Toronto; and Lewis, Moose Jaw.

Heroes of Peace Honored

Niagara Falls, June 8—Murray simpson of this city and George Greenwood of Chippewa, were presented with medals from the Royal Humane Society last night for saving the lives of Neil McCormack and Miss Ruth Reichenach of Niagara Falls, N.Y., at Dufferin Island last September.

Want Startford Dry

Stratford, June 8— Last night the temperance workers of this city began circulating a petition to the City Council to submit a local option measure to the ratepayers at the January elections.

Greek King in Danger

Athens, June 8—The condition of King Constantine continues critical. The doctors attending him are alarmed. The King's temperature remains at 104.

Plenty of New Warships

London, June 8—At least six superDreadnoughts and eight very fast light armored cruisers will be added to the ships in commission within the next four months.

Huns Murdered Spaniards

Madrid, June 8—A special commission has reports d that the German troops, on the occupation of Liege, murdered five Spaniards in cold blood.

Pugilist Now Aviator

Paris, June 8—Georges Carpentier, the prize fighter, has obtained from the French Government a military aviation pilot's license.

Turkish losses in defending the Dardanelles are now estimated at 100,000.

The City Bakery

Is always ready to supply your needs. Why worry and melt over a hot fire? We are here to do your Baking for you. Let us try.

Other than baking we try to keep a fresh supply of Greens and Fruit on hand—as well as a full stock of Fresh Groceries.

We would appreciate it if the public would make their purchases early on Thursdays as it is impossible for us to maintain a strict observance of the Thursday half-holiday on account of our Ice Cream Parlor which will be open every Thursday evening.

We need your trade. Butter and Eggs for Cash or Trade. Dutch Set Onions for sale.

Bruce and Bell 'Phones

F. S. McLACHLAN

Travel where you will—in Canada or abroad—you find the

BELL PIANO

a leader in the realm of music.

If you would have the best, it must be a BELL.

Sewing Machines, Phonographs and Records

Records on sale at A. T. Bonathan's store

Full information for the asking from

PETER McKINNON, Agt., Paisley

Steele's for

Horse Collars, Sweat Pads, Rubber Lap Rugs, Whips, Auto Plush Rugs, Star Harness Soap, Bickmore's Gall Cure, Axle Grease

Our Harness includes quality, durability, appearance and high class workmanship found in no other make of Harness.

Baggage Trunks, Suit Cases, Club Bags, Zipper Grips. Good assortment and close prices.

Harness parts and Repairing our Specialty

J. H. STEELE

JAMES R. MARSHALL

On Monday of this week Mr James Robert Marshall died at his home on the 13th concession of Elderslie after a brief illness of about four months. It was not unexpected as he had been failing rapidly of late and his brother Duncan arrived home from Edmonton, to see him, on Saturday evening. James Marshall was born in Elderslie on the old Marshall farm on June 13th, 1855, and, consequently was just almost forty years of age. He was the third son of the late John Marshall, had spent his lifetime on the farm and at the time of his death owned and farmed the old Kingston homestead and part of the old Campbell farm across the road from the farm upon which he was born. The editor taught James when he was a lad in school and knew him to be a boy of rather extraordinary intellect. A mere lad in the second book it was always known that Jim Marshall could "beat the whole school" in a spelling match and his memory for historical dates and facts, and locations in geography was simply a marvel. The deceased was of a retiring disposition. He was a good farmer and his place was always kept in a very neat and orderly way. He inherited from his father a reputation for honest and fair dealing and he preserved the tradition well, as the world of his Marshall would testify, by all who knew him without question or hesitation. Mr Marshall was married in December of 1900 to Miss Sara Monkman, daughter of Mr and Mrs Gilbert Monkman of Arran Tp. He is survived by his wife and one baby girl about one and a half years old. His mother and three brothers are also living, John S of Oakville, Hon Duncan of Edmonton, and Alex, who resides with his mother on the old home farm. Deceased was a member of Salem Presbyterian church. He was regarded by those among whom he lived as one of the best neighbors in the community, and will be much missed by a great many friends in whose esteem he held a high place.—Enterprise.

TWO NERVOUS WOMEN

Made Well By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Philadelphia, Pa.—"I had a severe case of nervous prostration, with palpitation of the heart, constipation, headaches, dizziness, noise in my ears, timid, nervous, restless feelings and sleeplessness.

"I read in the paper where a young woman had been cured of the same troubles by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound so I threw away the medicines the doctor left me and began taking the Compound. Before I had taken half a bottle I was able to sit up and in a short time I was able to do all my work. Your medicine has proved itself able to do all you say it will and I have recommended it in every household I have visited."—Mrs. MARY JOHNSTON, 210 Siegel Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Another Had Case.

Ephrata, Pa.—"About a year ago I was down with nervous prostration. I was pale and weak and would have hysteric spells, sick headaches and a bad pain under my shoulder-blade. I was under the care of different doctors but did not improve. I was so weak I could hardly stand long enough to do my dishes.

"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has made me well and happy and I have begun to gain in weight and my face looks healthy now."—Mrs. J. W. HOHENSEMSER, R. No. 8, Ephrata, Pa.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

W. H. BAKER

Having opened a shop in Sinclair's old hardware building, Queen st. North, we are prepared to do all kinds of

Sign and Carriage Painting

HOUSE DECORATING AND PAPER-HANGING, as usual. Prices right.

ROBT. IRVING
PLASTERER

SEE Robt. Irving the Plasterer before letting any work in this line. Separate estimates for all kinds of plastering, or with Jas Dewar for whole contracts for erection of buildings.

R. T. ROBINSO
CARPENTER AND CONTRACTOR

ESTIMATES furnished for the erection of any class of building. Large or small contracts undertaken.
Address Chesley or Cargill P.O

PURDY'S LIVERY

Rates Reasonable, and every effort made to satisfy

F. PURDY

Bull for Sale

YOUNG Thoroughbred Shorthorn, 12 months old. Apply to J. D. McARTHUR, Port Elgin, R.R. No. 3.

A Dominion Company for the People of the Dominion

Now, if ever, is the time for true patriots to patronize home establishments.

THE
DOMINION LIFE
Assurance Co. of Canada

through 46 years, has fully earned the confidence of the Canadian public. It bears its claim to your consideration on

Its Unexcelled Results to Policyholders

Interest Rate 8.52% Mortality Savings 45%

Head Office - Waterloo, Ont.

Many Colleges Close for Vacation

at midsummer. Our College does not.

ELLIOTT Business College

TORONTO — ONT.

is strictly first-class. Needs better in Canada. Enter now, so as to take a position in the early fall for graduate write. My new position pays three times what I got at teaching school less than four years ago, but previous to entering your College. We placed this young man in a position after graduation, and have now placed him in a better one. Catalogue free.

W. J. ELLIOTT, Principal. Cor. Yonge and Charles streets.

The Paisley Advocate.

D. McKENZIE, Publisher
Vol. 47—No. 24

PAISLEY, ONTARIO, JUNE 17, 1915

$1.00 per Annum in Advance
$1.25 if not so paid

Men's and Boys' Clothing

A NEW line of Men's and Boys' Clothing of the newest designs and most up-to-date patterns on the market, suitable for fine wear and business, at prices that will suit any pocketbook. We ask you to come in and look through our lines. A FEW ODD SUITS AT HALF PRICE.

Gents' Furnishings at Popular Prices

Clearing out a line of
Ginghams and Muslins
15c to 25c values at 10c

WOOL WANTED

For which we will pay the Highest Price in Cash or Trade

Fresh Groceries Every Week

Highest Prices for Farm Produce

M. J. CAMPBELL
W. H. McFarlane's Old Stand : : Paisley

New Spring Suitings

See our goods and styles before buying. We have a large stock to choose from.

We Make a Specialty of . . .
Ladies' Tailoring

No trying on or worrying. Just leave your measure and we will attend to the rest. All the newest goods and latest styles from which to make your selection. Satisfaction guaranteed.

I. S. Cruickshank

Something New in Floor Covering

Congoleum

Cannot be injured by water and therefor can be scrubbed and cleaned frequently without effecting the gloss. Will lie flat on wooden or concrete floors without fastenge of any kind and not curl up or kick up. Made in Rug style in different designs and any size desired, or in imitation of wood flooring of any kind with borders to match. See samples of the goods and designs shown in catalogue. Prices lower than any other floor covering of anything like the same wearing quality.

By Buying Here You Save Money

We are also agent for the newest and best out door Clothes Reel, the "Clay" Lawn Dryer—the strongest and neatest device yet produced. Can be left out or taken in when not in use—just fold it up and carry away. 120 ft. of line guaranteed to carry the heaviest wash. Take it on 30 days trial, and if not satisfactory return at our expense. Here for inspection any time. Drop in and see it.

Fresh Groceries, Fruit and Vegetables always on hand. Highest Prices in Cash or Trade for Produce. Cite Dairy Ice Cream always on sale or served in our parlors.

City Dairy

Both Phones. Goods delivered to any part of the town.

A. T. BONATHAN
Hyde's Old Stand : : Successor to W. S. Mitchell

—Private funds to loan. D. FORRESTER.

—Wilkinson plows and repairs at F. Carter & Son's.

—Marriage licenses issued and money to loan. T. H. GEORGE.

—Top prices for wool. We can handle any quantity. Ballachey/Laidlaw & Co.

—Full lines of fine engagement and wedding rings at I. Shoemaker's jewellery store

—Highest prices paid for hides and sheepskins. H. E. McGregor, Butcher, Steele Block.

—Kiln of 9 inch Drain Tile ready for delivery on Thursday, June 17th, at Paisley Brick and Tile Yards.

—Summer hats for men, from 50c to $5, up-to-date, cool and comfortable. Ballachey, Laidlaw & Co.

—FOR SALE—Pure bred heavy draft mare, 5 yrs old, elegible for registration. J. MAURER, Paisley.

—Bring in that old buggy and have it repainted to look as good as new. W. JACK, Gibson's old store, Paisley.

—Highest price for beefhides, horsehides, calfskins, sheepskins, tallow, &c. P. OLTSHER, Paisley Meat Market.

—"Rough on Rats" clears out Rats, Mice, etc. Don't die in the house. 15c and 25c at drug and country stores.

—Repainting and retrimming of all kinds of vehicles at W. Jack's new paint shop, Gibson's old store, Paisley.

—It's only a dollar, but it means a good deal to THE ADVOCATE if hundreds are slow in paying that on their subscription.

—Milk for sale at 5c. quart, to those who send for it. Can supply 15 to 20 quarts a day. J. MAURER, Queen St. North.

—The Farmers' Central Mutual Fire Insurance Co. has appointed Mr. J. T. Richardson of Paisley their agent for this district.

—Our variety in men's suits is excellent, and all of them at prices much lower than we can now replace them. Ballachey, Laidlaw & Co.

—The party who took an unsharpened lawn mower from J. Elmes' shop in mistake for his own sharpened one is requested to return it and get his own.

—DWELLING WANTED—Furnished or unfurnished, in or adjacent to Paisley, for the months of July and August. Apply to John Sutherland, Guelph, or J. R. Laidlaw, Paisley.

—If you have a guest at your home, are going out of town for a visit, or know of any interesting news, kindly let us hear from you. We will always appreciate such favors.

—Just received at F. Stevenson's an assortment of pipes that will surely please. Come and select your choice. Tobaccos, stationery, also our wonderful wire that cures burns and sores, roofing for barns.

—HOMESEEKERS' EXCURSIONS every Tuesday up to and including October to the Canadian Northwest. For tickets, maps, etc., apply at the Canadian Pacific Railway ticket office, W. H. McFarlane's old stand, Paisley.

—Five Roses, Rainbow, Purity, Cream of the West, and Stark's high-grade flours, also Bran and Shorts. Blatchford's Sugar and Flax, Caldwell's Molasses Meal, and full line of Poultry Foods and Tonics. Always in the market for coarse grains. E. G. ECKEL.

—Mrs. C. H. Burns, of Toronto, will address an Institute meeting in Putnam's Hall, on Tuesday, June 29th, on a subject pertaining to the home. Ladies of the town and vicinity are cordially invited to attend.

—The Ladies' Aid of Geneva Presbyterian church, Chesley, will have a garden party at the residence of Mr. James E. Cass, lot 29, con 4, Elderslie, on Thursday, June 24th. Chesley brass band will be in attendance, and a first-class program given. An invitation is extended to all.

—Mount Hope Garden Party at T. W. Mookman's, lot 16, con. 3 Arran, Wednesday, June 23. A good programme, including vocal and instrumental music, recitations, speeches, and selections by Chesley brass band. Baseball match, Paisley vs. Deadlane, at 6.30. Tea from 6 to 8 o'clock. Admission 25c and 15c.

—John A. Kelly, Ventriloquist, Singer, Irish Story Teller and all-round Funny Man, is making a big name for himself with his Irish stories and monologues, as well as his comic songs, etc. Bet the most remarkable part of his entertainment, perhaps, is his presentation of some of the funniest characters in the shape of figures ever seen. Some of these characters walk around in perfect fashion, others sing, and still others say the funniest things imaginable. His work is clean, funny and wholesome. If you can't laugh, don't come. Town Hall, June 24th. 15c. and 25c.

—Paisley Races, June 24

—Miss Bessie Mitchell is home from Toronto.

—Misses Ella Teeple and Rose Bryce are home from Stratford Normal.

—Mr. Hugh Nicol has sold his 24-acre farm property on Elora road south to Mr. Paul Ottaher.

—Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Jacques, of Dobbinton, are visiting at the home of his brother in town.

—Mrs. W. A. Watson, of Niagara Falls, N.Y., is visiting at the home of Mr. A. Watson, con. A., Elderslie.

—The W.C.T.U. County convention will be held in Knox Church, Paisley, on Thursday and Friday of next week.

—Mr. Jas. Davison, of Flint, Mich., is visiting his relatives and friends here, making his home with his sister, Mrs. M. Daniel.

—Southampton lacrosse team scored 9 goals to 4 by Paisley in the district schedule game played at the lakeside town on Friday.

—Mr. and Mrs. Fred Helwig, Mr. Ezra Boettger, Miss E. Boettger and Mr. John Bickle of Neustadt, were visitors at Mr. H. Boettger's on Sunday.

—Mr. and Mrs. Harvey G. Clarke, of Greenock, announce the engagement of their daughter, Elsie Louise, to Mr. Earnest H. Webb, of Detroit.

—Lawn Social at Methodist Parsonage this Friday evening, June 18th. Paisley Band in attendance. Come and enjoy the evening. Admission 15c and 10c.

—The Canadian Order of Foresters will attend service in Knox church on Sunday morning next. Members will meet at the I.O.F hall at 10.30 a.m. and march to the church.

—A good musical program by the Young Peoples' Society will be given on Tuesday, June 22nd, in the Church of England. Everybody welcome. A collection will be taken up.

—Mr. and Mrs. Arch. Sinclair, both Bruce, announce the engagement of their youngest daughter, Jean, to Mr. Harry Wade, of Toronto, the marriage to take place in Toronto late in June.

—The baseball season was opened here on Thursday afternoon with a match between the Baptist Bible Class team and the Continuation School. The Baptists won out by the score of 15 to 11.

—Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Vaughan and daughter Phyllis returned to their home in Toronto on Monday after spending vacation at the home of her parents Mr. and Mrs. Wm Shoulders, Inniline Brant and Elderslie.

—The first League Toronto game of the season to be played in Paisley will be between Tara and the Sportsmen Thursday afternoon. Game to be called at 4 o'clock sharp, in Riverside Park. The brass band will be in attendance.

—Mr R. J. Chisholm, assistant in the Paisley Continuation School, has resigned to take the principalship of Ayr Continuation School. Mr Chisholm is able and energetic teacher who has given excellent service in his two years here.

—Miss Zeta Black, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Black, of Paisley, has won special mention by her singing as contralto soloist with the Durham Choral Society, which organization presented the operetta "A Nautical Knot" in their own and several other towns recently.

—While playing football at Mr. A. Bain's farm in Greenock one evening last week, Harvey Johnston, of con. A. Elderslie, had one of his legs broken just below the knee. He and another player kicked at the ball at the same time, their legs meeting forcibly, with the result stated.

—Mrs. (Rev.) Thompson is here for a few days on a visit to her father, Mr. Robt. Fleming. Mrs. Thompson and her husband were for several years in Jerusalem as missionaries from the Evangelical Alliance. Palestine being under Turkish rule, they left the country with their five children when the Turks joined the Germans for war and it is now their intention to make their home in Canada.

—Mr. J. D. McPhee, of Cromarton, Minn., remits his subscription and adds: "I always enjoy THE ADVOCATE and I would not be without it, for I want to keep in touch with all that transpires in the old town, although I have not been there for a long time. Crops are very good in the Red River valley this season, although we had frosts a couple of nights ago, but not enough to damage the crops to any extent."

—Salem garden party, June 22nd, at Mr. Hugh Dustin's, 10th con. Elderslie. Baseball match, Dunblane vs. Dobbinton, and a splendid programme. Wm. McDonald, M.P.P., Rev. Bandy, of Dobbinton, Prof. Denvell, of Chesley, Mr. Jas. Scott of Port Elgin, also talent expected from Paisley and Chesley. Admission 15c. and 25c.

More's Wall Papers for 1915

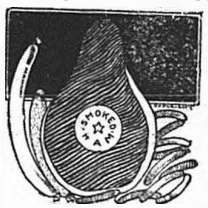
Be wise in time and see our excellent aggregation of new and artistic effects in room decorations before purchasing your supply.

We have never shown a better range of Wall Paper or at more reasonable prices.

P. B. MORE : : Druggist

Established over Forty-one Years

THE STANDARD BANK OF CANADA



ASSETS OVER $48,000,000

The A, B, C of Banking
Save Systematically
Take Care of the Cents and Ultimately Become Independent
We solicit your account in our SAVINGS DEPARTMENT

PAISLEY BRANCH
F. C. RYAN Manager

Branches also at Harriston and Tiverton.

Paisley Meat Market

Fresh Beef, Pork, Mutton, Cured Hams, Bacon, etc. Salt Pork, Corned Meats, Home-made Sausage (2 lbs. for 25c), Bologna and Headcheese. Kidney Suet. Poultry in season.

Cash for Hides, Bruce and Bell Pieces and Skins . . . P. Oltsher

J. S. DEWAR

PAISLEY

Builder, Contractor and Cement Worker

Brick or cement buildings erected, brick work, cement work and plastering contracts taken.

Cement Supplies Furnished

Building Blocks, Window and Door Sills, Culvert Tile, Well Curbing, Lawn Rollers, Lawn Vases, Verandah Columns, Balusters and other fancy Cement Products.

Building Material

Cement, Lime, Lath, Shingles, Glazed Sewar Pipe and Flue Lining, Mortar Color, etc.

Large supply of

Oilcloths and Linoleums

just to hand

Now is the time to get your new supply, before they are picked over.

We have also a good assortment of Squares, and our prices can't be beaten. Give us a call before buying.

For good Butter and Eggs we pay the highest price in either CASH or TRADE . . .

Both 'Phones PUTNAM & SON

—Grand Concert on Race Night, June 24th.

—Margie Munro, Fancy National Costume Dancer, Singer and Entertainer; John A. Kelly, Ventriloquist, Singer, Irish Story Teller and all-round Funny Man.

—The W.C.T.U. will meet in Putnam's hall on Friday evening next, June 18th, at 7.30. A full attendance is urgently requested to make final arrangements for county convention next Thursday and Friday.

—Ed. Crow, son of Mrs. John Crow, of Port Elgin, and formerly of Mount Hope, Arran Tp., was instantly killed on Friday while working on the new Welland Canal. He was employed as a craneman, and his death was caused by a piece of rock striking him on the chin, breaking his neck. The remains were brought to Port Elgin for interment.

—Prof. W. W. Howe, of St. Johnsville, N.Y. State, was the guest of Mr. A. B. J. Simons at the "Bungalow," last week. The professor is the originator of the Howe method of teaching reading. His system is based on the phonetic analysis of the English language. It comprises a full set of readers, both basal and supplementary, with word studies to correspond. Nothing is known of the system in Canada, as all books here are published under provincial authority, but it has been introduced and adopted very largely in the States.

June Specials

A Good-for-any-Time-of the-Year Suit Costs
$15.00

Special Summer Pants
$2.50

Shirts
Regular $1.50, $1.25, $1 for 75c.

Underwear
Balbriggan Mesh Cashmere Underwear, regular 50c at 40c; Cashmere 25c at 20c; Combinations accordingly.

Ties
All 50c Ties at 25c.

Hosiery
Silk and Cashmere—50c—75c at 35c
—$3.50 Auto Dusters at $2.50—

We would like you to call some day

G. B. IRWIN
Tailor and Furnisher . Paisley

The Darkest Hour;

Or, The Hope That Still Lived.

CHAPTER XXX.

"Was it conspiracy?" Lord Bernard Gauntlet repeated breathlessly, "or is it you who are cheating me into the belief that you are my living wife—or her who was my wife—when she is not living at all, but dead, as I have believed her to be all these years"

The stately woman before him slowly shook her head.

"I am the living woman," she assured him bitterly. "But it is not your fault that I am not dead. You joined with them in trying to secure my death. My God, how could you do it? I had never wronged you, and yet you joined with them—with your brother and Randolph Dare—in wrecking my life, and seeking my death. You believed the lies they told you. Conspiracy? Yes, there was indeed, a conspiracy; a conspiracy against me because your family considered that I, poor, and insignificant, and friendless, had not been worthy to become your wife. So they plotted how best they should undo what they considered to be your terrible mistake. They did not scruple to injure me. I was of no account in your eyes. Worse than all, I had found out some of the rascalities of your brother, Lord Yoxford, and he, therefore, had urgent cause to desire that I should be silenced for ever, either by death or by lifelong imprisonment within walls which could be safely trusted to keep in all sounds, whether of prayer and despairful weep, or of indignant protest against cruelty. So he told you lies, and you believed them; helped by Randolph Dare, he forged a paper embodying my written consent to be put away in a home for dipsomaniacs—the written consent that the law demands, and you accepted that too. And then, during your absence, they took me away, trusting and, in fact, arranging that I should never come forth from that misnamed home again except through the gates of death.

"Save on foreign service; you could not help me. A few months later they reported to you that the child was dead, safeguarding themselves from too close investigation by stating that he had died while travelling with your brother. That was a lie like the rest. They would have liked the child to be dead, no doubt, but they did not dare to do too much evil all at once, lest retribution should come. So they had only put him away in such a manner that his identity might be lost. So he is living still——"

The great general, who was yet a father, interrupted her with a sharp exclamation.

"He is living!" Can this be true?" he cried agitatedly. The woman confronting him nodded quickly.

"Yes, he is living. But before we speak further of him, let me tell you the rest. Your brother and Randolph Dare plotted my death in complicity with Salter, the keeper of the home. I have overwhelming evidence to prove this. There is one document which is enough in itself. I drew forth from somewhere among the folds of her glittering gown a paper, which she handed to the consternation-stricken man before her. "Be careful with it," she recommended. "There is a signet ring fastened to it. Look closely at that ring; it is your brother's. It is appended in attestation of the sincerity of the bargain written down in this document; and that bargain is an undertaking on the part of your brother to a pay a certain large sum of money to the man Salter as a reward for the news of my death, whenever that news should come. It was, of course, incredibly foolish on Lord Yoxford's part to attach the seal down in black and white of so terrible an undertaking; but the matter was made a little more safe by the circumstance that the other party to the infamous and criminal bargain gave to the earl a similar paper, with his own signet ring similarly appended to it. The arrangement made was that when the deed should have been accomplished, and I should be safely silenced for ever, then the two rings should be exchanged on payment of the reward to Salter, and both the incriminating papers should be burnt in presence of the parties. But Providence defeated that purpose. Amid the terrors of that night when the home was burnt down, I possessed myself of this document from among Salter's private papers. The fellow to it, with Salter's ring, is in the possession of your brother. I set one of my agents to steal it, and he almost succeeded in doing so, but was foiled at the last moment; still, he read it, and can swear to the contents of it, and that will go a long way. Yoxford would give his soul to get rid of it, but he dares not do it until he can get sure evidence that his own undertaking, given to Salter this paper that you hold now—has been destroyed. He does not, of course, suspect that I have it. At the time of the burning of the home there was a rumor that Salter was included among the victims, and if, in that case, of course, Yoxford will think that the dreaded document was destroyed also. But the rumor was never confirmed, and Salter's relatives believe him to be still living, that is my own belief. He is still living, but he dares not appear in this country because he has a conviction that I, Lady Bernard Gauntlet, am living too, though he does not know where, nor under what name. And Yoxford cannot destroy the black and white agreement until the counter agreement is in his hands, for the reason that if he should do so it would be in Salter's power—should Salter one day come back—to black mail him to the extent of every farthing he possesses. Now, will you give me back that paper?"

Lord Bernard surrendered it at once. Then he sank down upon a chair and buried his face in his hands.

"God forgive me!" he breathed. "God forgive us all."

The millionaire woman who once had been his wife, and who still bore his name, came a few steps nearer to him.

"There is more yet to tell," she said. And then, still standing like a sombre statue, she poured forth all the long story of her life since she had seen him last; of her life, of the change which had come over her heart, and character, and soul; of how, by sheer force of agonized resolution, she had hardened her whole nature into such iron pitilessness, as, perhaps, no woman and few men had ever sunk to before. She told how she had paused at nothing in the business of achieving her great vengeance against those who had wronged her; of how, in a crime, she had obtained the name and the wealth of a brother of her fellow-sufferer in the home, Sarah Crookenden; of how she had made and worked her plans, using the wonderful shadowy ability which had been latent in her, and, helped surely by the powers of evil, had multiplied this fortune so darkly and criminally gained until it had grown to proportions remarkable in the history of the world's finance. On and on flowed the magical tale until the man who heard her understood clearly at last how it was that this richest woman of the civilized globe, whose financial schemes had been admired by him for years past, was the wife who had been torn from him in the ripening bloom of her youth. Amazed, stricken at once with overwhelming wonder and with anguish, he watched and listened to her. Interrupting her only with a few mechanical faltering words of self-defence, or with sharp, shuddering exclamations when she told the story of her vengeance. The Dares had all been punished—every one; Yoxford was in her power, and his final ruin, as well as that of Sir Randolph Dare personally, would shortly follow. She would close no penny, even now, unless, perhaps, to cherish a Dare.

"Neither were you to be spared," she told her husband. "I had planned to leave you alone until your wedding day, when the truth about you was to be told in public in the church, and your mercilessness would have had to go home again unwedded. But now I believe that you did not conspire with them that sought my ruin, and so——"

"God knows I did not," Lord Bernard broke in agitatedly. "God knows I did not."

She fixed her heavy dark eyes upon his face.

"Bernard, tell me this: are you glad or sorry that I have risen up, as it were from the grave to stand between you and the new bride that was to have been yours?"

He rose and went towards her, holding out his hand.

"I am glad, Philippa—yes, a thousand times glad—as Heaven is my witness!"

"Philippa!" She repeated her own name with a little, odd laugh. She hardly heard that name spoken for a third of a lifetime, and it had sounded oddly strange to her.

The man who had approached her came closer still, and held out his arms to her.

"Yes, Philippa again—my Philippa again. Will you let me woo you a second time?"

She bent her head. "Only God knows how I have yearned for the clasp of your arms through all these years, Bernard," she said. "And now we can be happy again. But it will only be until to-morrow."

He looked at her in wonder. "Why only until to-morrow?"

She met his gaze unflinchingly.

"Because to-morrow will be the black day of my life. To-day I am telling what I have been now for three years—the richest and, in so far as lies in that, the most important human creature in the civilized world. But to-morrow I shall undo all this, to-morrow I shall with my own hand knock down the whole edifice of my success. To-day people are proud to be noticed by me, but to-morrow they will all turn from me. And this will be on account of our son. No, do not interrupt me. Listen. I have found my son and yours to-day—only to-day; and I have found him—God help me!—in the person of a young man whom I have led into evil. He is to be charged to-morrow with attempting to steal. He was acting as my secret agent, and under my instructions broke open Yoxford's private cabinet, and was caught in the act of taking the fellow to this paper, with the signet ring accompanying it. Under ordinary conditions this would not have mattered to me; he would not have mentioned my name, and I should have left him to take whatever punishment they may give him. But as I know that this young fellow is our son, I see what I must do. I must go down to the Court at Guildford—that is where he will be charged—and show myself up as having incited him to commit the theft. One thing will lead to another, and by the time I have said all that I shall have to say, my position in the eyes of the public will be lost for ever. You cannot prevent it, nor help me. No one can help me now."

CHAPTER XXXI.

"How did things end?" Timothy Noble said, repeating the question asked by the ex-French maid Louise, who had called at The Uplands to tell him that the police had raided her supposed fish shop in Carmen Town, and that, everything having gone wrong with her, she intended to look out for a situation as lady's maid again.

"How did things end? Well, they've all ended queerly—very queerly. I haven't got over the shock of all the queerness even yet, and I shouldn't be surprised if I never got over it. First, there was the business at the Petty Sessions, when Mrs. Crookenden, as we thought her to be, came into Court and dumfounded everybody by confessing all at once—or what seemed like all at once, though I shouldn't be much took aback if there was not a lot more behind. What a story she told! She was Lady Bernard Gauntlet, indeed, wife of the great general that was going to be married in a month's time to the Marchioness of Ightmoor. Oh, it was a fine show up. The Marchioness took to her bed that afternoon, and they say she haven't got up again since. Regular shock to the nerves, and I don't wonder; natrally it would up set a lady good deal to find that she'd been on the brink of marrying a man who was married already. A footman in the service of the Duchess of Sutcliffe told me as society was staggered by it. And then the real Lady Bernard, that was known to us all as Mrs. Crookenden, went off into a long account of the life of this young man—the prisoner in the dock—who had turned out to be her missing son. She said as Lord Yoxford had torn him away from her when he was five, and had given him over to be took care of under a different name by an old woman in the country who was given a lump of money with him, and told to bring him up as a laborer. I tell you, Louise, it was all as queer as a fairy tale. And you should 'ave seen the faces of all the people in the court while she was talking."

Depressed though she was, Louise laughed appreciatively.

"Yes; it must have been good to be there."

(To be continued.)

Sailing Through the Canal.

As vessels are few and freight rates high, the sailing ship has reappeared in the ocean trade. Can such a ship profitably use the Panama Canal? Twenty years ago, when the relative merits of the Panama and the Nicaragua routes were being sharply discussed, one of the stock arguments against the Panama route was that, on account of the prevailing calms on the Pacific side, it would be disadvantageous for sailing ships. The Canal Record now says that in spite of the calms sailing vessels will find using the canal cheaper than going round Cape Horn. Even figuring in the calms, a sailing vessel can go from New York to San Francisco in 60 days, including one day in the canal, through which it would be hauled by a canal tug. It can return in the winter in 57 days, and in the summer in 62. It would take the same ship 140 days to go from New York to San Francisco round Cape Horn, and from 110 to 115 days to return. To run a vessel of 2,000 tons net at sea costs $55 a day; the canal toll on such a vessel would be about $2,700. If using the canal shortened the voyage from New York to San Francisco by 30 days, the saving in expense would pay the tolls; but as a matter of fact, the vessel would shorten its voyage on the average by 80 days.

Why He is Disliked.

"I know why nobody loves a fat man."

"Why is it?"

"Because when anything goes wrong with the car he can't crawl under to fix it."

Heard on the Train.

"What book is that you are reading, Jim?"

"The Sorrows of Satan."

"Well, I'll say this for you, Jim; you always do take an interest in the troubles of your friends."

Skull Cap with Horse Hair Brushes—Latest from Paris.

A very chic-looking toque is this skull cap of straw by Cora Marsan of Paris. Shadow checked taffeta runs through vertical bands of straw, and surmounting the brim are two horse hair brushes set in ornate cups.

RED CROSS WORK.

What Our Boys at the Front Most Need.

Toronto, June 1. The following official announcement has been made by the National Service Committee:

Canadian soldiers at the front need comforts over and above the supplies provided for them by the Government. Letters from the front are full of appreciation of the soldiers in the Canadian Contingent for comforts sent to them through the Canadian War Contingent Association, of which the National Service Committee is a representative in Canada.

In this connection, an interesting letter has been received by Mrs. Plumptre, Secretary of the National Service Committee, from Mr. J. G. Colmer, Hon. Secretary of the C.W.C.A.

In the course of his letter Mr. Colmer says: "The arrangements of the War Office for the supply of clothing and food to the troops are excellent, and the men are able to get what they require as and when it is needed from the official stores. This information comes from the Government, and it is confirmed by our communications from the front, both by letter and in person. There is no doubt, however, that large and regular supplies of socks and colored handkerchiefs will be welcomed in addition to the Government supplies, for reasons that are obvious, and also other extra comforts which cannot be obtained from the Government stores, and it is just such articles that we are sending to them."

Mr. Colmer states that the following articles or money to provide them are specially needed: Tobacco, pipes, cigarettes, matches, soap, cocoa, cake, toilet paper, writing paper, boot laces, bachelor buttons, insect powder, games, boxing gloves, football, and baseball outfits, magazines, books, newspapers.

"While we shall no doubt receive regular supplies of socks from Canada through the good offices of the National Service Committee and others," continues Mr. Colmer, "money will also be very useful to me for the purchase of the other articles that have been specified and enable requirements of the kind to be supplied promptly and regularly.

"I may tell you that we are in daily communication with the officers commanding the different units. They let us know regularly what articles they would like to have, and we send out consignments several times a week, and will continue to do so as far as our resources will permit. Everything we send out to France is addressed to the officers commanding, and is distributed by the Quartermaster or some other officer to the men as the cases or bales are received.

"We are receiving," concludes Mr. Colmer, "the most cordial cooperation from the military forwarding officers, both on this side and in France, and considering everything, the transporation service is being performed splendidly. There is some delay of course in the conveyance and in the delivery of our consignments, but it is a marvel to all of us that it is done so well, and our shipments appear to be arriving with fair regularity at their destination."

A graphic description of the terrible conditions existing in Serbia at the present time is given by Captain E. N. Bennett, commissioner in Serbia for the British Red Cross Society and St. John's Ambulance Association. Those who read what Captain Bennett says about the terrible ravages of typhus and other diseases in the cities and towns of Serbia cannot fail to realize that urgent assistance must be given if the lives of the civilians as well as the soldiers are to be saved, and if the infection is not to spread all over the world.

The following is a description of an Austrian prisoners' camp, where 750 Austrians have been collected:

"Disease has fallen like a blight upon the camp. At an earlier date one doctor was in charge of the camp, but he is now struck down with typhus and various forms of infectious malady are raging unchecked. Typhus, dysentery, smallpox, diphtheria, have swept over the place with devastating effects. Last week only 20 men out of 250 could stand on their feet. The silence of the camp is broken only by sighs and groans, but when a stranger comes in sight the sick raise themselves if they can and cry pitifully, "For the love of God give us water, give us bread."

There they lie in utter wretchedness. Here and there one finds a mattress, here and there a little straw, but the bulk of the sick men are stretched out on the muddy ground. Their clothes are foul and alive with the vermin which spread the deadly typhus. The Serbs are kind to these prisoners, but when the grip of typhus or enteric has fastened upon him the Austrian takes his chance with the rest, and thus chance is sometimes a sorry one.

Since the commencement of the war 63 Serbian doctors have died in the course of their unequal struggle with disease. One young man of 24, a medical student died recently. Another Serbian doctor recently died of typhus, and as he was being buried his young wife died at home of the same dread malady.

The heart rending description of conditions existing in one of our allies' countries must fail to touch the generous hearts of the Canadian people. Surgical supplies and comforts of all kinds are sorely needed, and these may be sent to 77 King Street East, Toronto, whence they will be forwarded to Lady Boyle, who is in charge of the Serbian Red Cross Society in the absence of Madame Grouitch in the United States. Donations for the Serbian Relief Fund may be sent to Sir Edward Boyle, Bart., at Queen's Gate, London, S.W., England.

And many a man who is capable of giving good advice isn't capable of earning his salt.

More than half a Century of Quality is behind every package of

BENSON'S Corn Starch

Always order by the name BENSON'S in order to get what you want

Practically every grocer in Canada has BENSON'S.

Why Yeast is Needed.

Why is yeast used in bread? This question may sound foolish to most housewives, but let them try to answer it scientifically before passing judgment.

In the dough from which bread is made there is a bit of sugar, which contains carbon, hydrogen and oxygen. It is necessary to ferment this sugar to make bread edible, and yeast is used because it has the power to do this.

It is made from the plant having this quality. Fermenting sugar is equivalent to burning it, and there are two results. One is the formation of carbonic gas. A great deal of the gas is caught in the dough in the form of large or small bubbles, and some of it escapes into the air. The part that cannot escape causes the dough to rise and make bread light.

The holes in the bread are the little pockets which held the gas bome acid gas. The effect of the bubbles to lift the body of dough so that the heat can penetrate readily and bake it properly.

How Microbes Sour Milk.

If it were possible to keep milk from the air it would not turn sour. But the microbes in the air, say those who study such things, are numerous, in constant motion in the air, active, though microbic, and ready to drop into the milk when it can.

But how do microbes turn the milk sour, you ask. Well, they are very fond of sugar and delight in gratifying their liking by turning the sugar in milk into an acid which sours the milk.

What milk is, therefore, particularly inviting to the microbe and favorable to its operations. The microbe does not get along well under chilling conditions, and that is why the sweetness of the milk can be preserved if it is kept cold.

Boiling milk changes the sugar in such a way that the microbe cannot feed upon it.

PRESIDENT SUSPENDER
NONE-SO-EASY
MADE IN CANADA

FOR DISTEMPER PINK EYE, EPIZOOTIC, SHIPPING FEVER AND CATARRHAL FEVER.

SPOHN'S LIQUID DISTEMPER COMPOUND

Sure cure and positive preventive, no matter how horses get sick they are infected or "exposed." Liquid given on the tongue acts on the blood and glands expels the poisonous germs from the body. Cures Distemper in Dogs and Mules, and Cholera in Poultry. Largest selling live stock remedy in the world. Saves human lives and is a fine kidney remedy. Cut this out. Keep it. Show it to your druggist, who will get it for you. Free Booklet, "Distemper, Causes and Cures."

DISTRIBUTORS—ALL WHOLESALE DRUGGISTS.

SPOHN MEDICAL CO., Chemists and Bacteriologists, Goshen, Ind., U.S.A.

1854 Ye Old Sugar Loafe 1915

IF you want sugar that is absolutely pure, and as clean as when it left the refinery, you can depend on getting it in

Original Redpath Packages

2-lb. and 5-lb. Sealed Cartons.
10, 20, 50 and 100-lb. Cloth Bags.

"Canada's favorite Sugar for three Generations"

CANADA SUGAR REFINING CO., LIMITED. • MONTREAL.

The Housewife's Corner

Recipes.

Quick Cinnamon Bun.—Sift a quart of flour into four teaspoonfuls of baking powder and a half teaspoonful salt; rub in two tablespoonfuls shortening; add milk to just moisten. Mix, roll into a sheet, spread with butter, dust thickly with sugar, lightly with cinnamon, and sprinkle with dry, clean currants. Make into a roll, cut into two-inch lengths, stand these, cut-side up, in greased pan, and bake in moderate oven about 40 minutes. Serve hot or cold.

Prisoner of Onion.—After peeling the onions, stew them slowly in boiling salted water; when tender, add one-half pint of milk and a tablespoon of flour (level), which has been rubbed smooth in a little milk, and a heaping tablespoonful of butter. Cook five minutes and serve with mashed or boiled potatoes.

Ginger Cookies.—One-half cupful molasses, two cupfuls of flour, one-fourth cupful of butter, one tablespoonful ginger, one-half teaspoonful cinnamon, one-half teaspoonful of salt, one teaspoonful of baking soda. Roll out on a board, cut and bake.

Cabbage.—Cabbage will be more digestible if, when it is half cooked, the water is poured off and fresh boiling water added.

Substitute for Lemon Pie.—Smooth a tablespoonful of cornstarch in a little cold water, pour it in a cupful of boiling water, stirring constantly until it boils clear. Then add the grated rind and juice of one lemon, to which has been added a cupful of sugar and a well-beaten egg. Stir and cook one minute. Have ready six shredded wheat biscuits, split in two, pour the lemon cream over them, and serve hot or cold.

Sandwiches.—One pound seeded raisins, one pound walnuts, two spoons of sweet cream, whites of two eggs well beaten. Mix and spread on slices of bread well buttered.

Peanut Brittle.—Shell and remove the brown skins from two quarts of peanuts. Put a pound of sugar in a saucepan over the fire; stir until the sugar melts; take from fire and stir the peanuts in quickly. Turn the mixture out, and roll immediately into a thin sheet, mark into squares, and let cool. When it is cold break it into pieces.

Date Sandwiches.—These are delicious for the school lunch-box or the picnic-box. Stone dates and chop fine. To one cupful of pulp add one tablespoonful of orange juice. Mix well and sprinkle with a little cinnamon. Spread on thin slices of whole wheat bread.

Coffee Cake.—Three cupfuls of flour, one coffee cupful of granulated sugar, three-fourths of a cupful of butter, one heaping teaspoonful baking powder, one-half teaspoonful salt, one cupful of currants, two teaspoonfuls of flavorings, roll about one inch in thickness and bake in moderately hot oven.

Scalloped Eggs.—Six hard-cooked eggs, three-quarter cup chopped ham, three-quarter cup buttered cracker crumbs, half teaspoon salt, two tablespoons butter, one and a half tablespoon flour, one cup scalded milk, few grains pepper. Melt the butter, add the flour mixed with the seasonings, and when mixed smooth add gradually the scalded milk. Cook until smooth and glossy. Chop the hard-cooked eggs. Sprinkle the bottom of a buttered baking-dish with crumbs, cover with one-half the eggs, the eggs with sauce, and the sauce with meat; repeat. Cover with the remaining crumbs. Place in the oven and bake until the crumbs are brown. The meat may be omitted.

Bacon Dressing.—Cut the bacon in small bits, place it in a frying pan, fry out the fat and brown the bacon. To every fourth cup of dripping add two tablespoons vinegar, one teaspoon salt, two teaspoons sugar, and one-fourth teaspoon pepper. If the vinegar is very strong dilute it with water. The amount of seasoning used will depend largely upon the ingredients in the salad. The dressing is used while hot, and will wilt the dandelions, lettuce, and watercress, and other greens over which it is poured. A potato salad mixed with this dressing is delicious.

Home Hints.

It is a good idea when engaged upon delicate needlework to have a small bowl of white flour beside you and to dip the fingers in it occasionally. It assists in keeping the hands dry and the work clean.

The use of mustard in cleaning utensils in which fish has been kept will remove the fish taste and all the odor.

An old raincoat may be transformed into an apron for wash day. Soiled raincoats (mackintoshes) can be nicely cleaned at home thus: Spread the garment on a table and rub it with warm water and good white soap in which has been dissolved a lump of carbonate of ammonia the size of a pea; rinse in cold water; hang out in the air, and upon no account put it near the fire.

Put wet brushes to dry with bristles down; this lengthens their period of usefulness; otherwise the water soaks into the back, causing warping and cracking.

If eggs are placed in hot water for a few seconds before breaking, the whites will separate from the yolks very easily. They must be cooled before whipping up the whites.

Tomatoes filled with minced pineapples, celery and chopped nuts mixed with mayonnaise make a delicious salad.

Creamed cauliflower served in green shells makes a dish as tasty as it is satisfying to the eye.

The cook will find it a convenience to have a belt fastened around the waist. To each side front of the belt is fastened a strip that reaches to the knees. On the end of each strip is fastened a quilted holder.

When eggs are broken and cannot be used at once, they will keep much better if the shells are removed and a quarter of a teaspoonful of salt beaten in for each egg.

When cooking tart apples or other sour fruit, add a pinch of salt in the cooking process; this done, less sweetening will be required.

The heat of the oven should be a factor in determining what medium should be used for greasing pans. Butter burns much more quickly than lard.

No Cause to Interfere.

The following incident, which the Philadelphia Record relates, must have occurred before the outbreak of the present war, for landlubbers as well as waterside characters are by this time pretty familiar with the appearance of the submarine.

A steam launch that belonged to a British battleship recently sprang a leak while cruising from Portsmouth, and rapidly sank. Nearby an old "salt" was leisurely rowing a boat, but he made no attempt to come to the rescue. The launch's crew managed to swim to the boat, and as they scrambled in, one of them said to the boatman:

"Why on earth didn't you give us a hand? Didn't you see we were sinking?"

"Lor' bless yer," said the boatman stolidly, "I thought yer craft was one of those blessed submarines!"

Looking Backward

Forty years ago the women were wearing hoopskirts.

A quarter of a century ago the dandies affected spring bottom pants.

Thirty years ago bustles were all the rage.

Twenty-five years ago or thereabouts the whole country was dippy over the 15-13-11 puzzle.

Thirty years ago the baseball pitcher threw underhand.

At about the same period croquet tournaments were all to the awhah.

Two score years ago "Silver Threads Among the Gold" was the most popular song of the day, while twenty years ago it was "After the Ball."

Twenty-five years ago if a kid didn't behave in school he got licked by the teacher. (We happen to know).

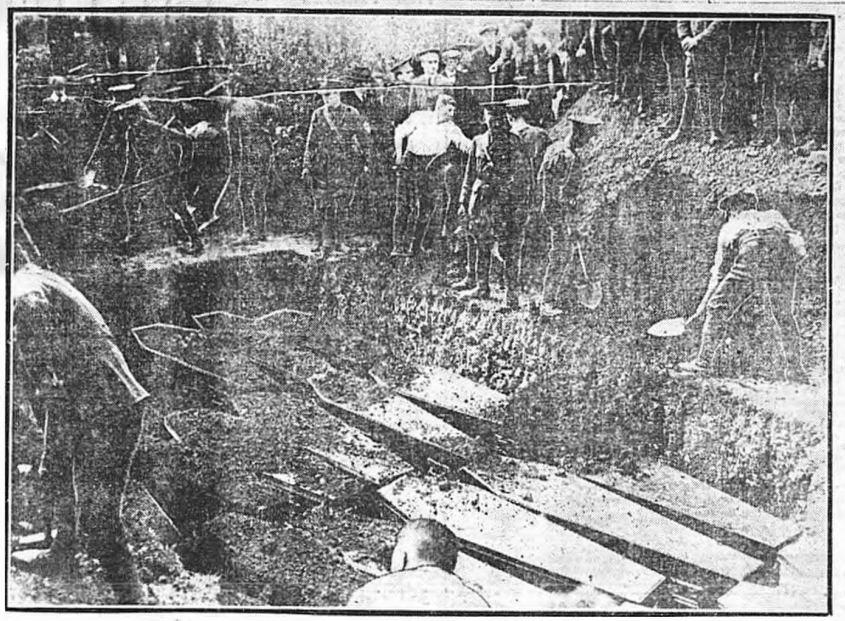
Twenty years ago all the young sports were riding safety bicycles every well regulated community had its bicycle club.

Thirty years ago they all laughed when Rugby football was introduced in the West.

Twenty years ago the young chap who owned a horse and buggy was the envy of every other lovelorn swain in the neighborhood and the admiration of every girl.

Five years ago the women wore all-over dresses.

Four years ago Sarah Bernhardt played her twentieth "positively the last farewell tour" in the United States.



A year ago now it was hotter than the hinges of the scorching below.

Yesterday the women were wearing hobble skirts.

To-morrow——!

We are up to now.

No fewer than 402 naval and military books dealing with warfare have been published in the past few months.

Funeral of Lusitania Victims Held at Queenstown.

Picture taken at the grave-side, showing grave in which sixty-six coffins were placed side by side.

The Farm Automobile

The cry is insistent for better roads in country districts. This has been brought about to some extent since the advent of automobiles, creating sentiment in that direction on the part of taxpayers. But men and women alike, practically everywhere, hold that one of the greatest services of public improvements is in the way of a systematic bettering of country roads. This was brought out, particularly from the standpoint of the home, in a recent investigation made by the department of agriculture, seeking particularly to determine the social and labor needs of farm women.

A brief abstract of the report shows the keen interest in better thoroughfares, and incidentally the increasing use of automobiles. Some go so far as to express the opinion that in road building the requirements of automobilists are considered before the business and social needs of the farm, this working to the harm of short stretches of side roads.

Some of the testimony shows that due to the lack of consideration of chauffeurs, who fail to stop their machines at proper times, the increase in automobiles has made it hazardous or dangerous for women to do much driving on many country roads. One writer suggests a federal law requiring the driver of an automobile to stop his machine on signal.

One contributor to the investigation says where the country roads have not been improved the women are practically shut in during the cold months, at a time when highways are so rough or mud so deep the popular priced automobiles so generally used by farmers and their wives, cannot be satisfactorily operated. Nothing would benefit the women on the farms as much as to improve the country roads. One woman advocates a system of country roads which will enable the farm woman to transport her produce to a market in the least possible time; also that they may drive a vehicle or automobile to and from church without overdoing themselves in accomplishing a long, tiresome journey that should be made in one quarter the time.

He Does Not.

Peter de Groot advertised for an office boy the other day. There weren't any replies that amounted to anything till a dirty-faced urchin presented himself just at the hour when he should not have applied.

"What do you want?" growled Peter.

The child answered: "I don't suppose you don't know about no man that don't want to hire no kid nur no feller to do no work for nothing do you? Or don't you?"

"Yes," answered Mr. De Groot, "I don't."

What Will Happen.

A good story comes from the home of a well-known Scottish divine, says "Reynold's Newspaper." Brooding over the wanton brutalities of the Germans one of the servants, while endeavoring to obtain the guidance of the head of the house in the matter, gravely remarked—"If ony o' thae Germans get to Heaven it'll pit a lot o' folk aff being guid."

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL STUDY

INTERNATIONAL LESSON, JUNE 20.

Lesson XII. A Prayer for the Temple. (Temperance Lesson). Psa. III. G.T. Psa. III.8.

I. The Cry to God (Verses 1-4).

Verse 1. "I have called upon thee." This is a frequent introduction to a psalm of complaint and desire for deliverance.

2. As incense before thee." As the evening sacrifice. These are expressions from the priestly ritual. The psalmist knew what worship meant. He wanted his prayer and the lifting up of his hands to have all the authority and force of an appointed religious service.

Incense was burnt every morning and evening (see Exod. 30:7, 8), and sacrifice was made both in the morning and evening (Exod. 29:39). The psalmist's prayer was to be continual, not an impulse to sporadic bursts of supplication. And it was to be a tribute of honor and praise. As the road over which the king was to pass, according to Oriental custom, was scented with sweet perfume, so the God of heaven was to be adored in the presence of pleasant odors.

3. Set a watch. However much one might determine to bridle (or muzzle, Psa. 39:1) the mouth, there was still danger of sinning with the tongue. Only as God is the keeper, and sets a sentry to guard the lips, is the mouth of a man safe.

4. Incline not my heart." So afraid is the psalmist of becoming affected with the disease of another's iniquity that it seems as though he thought God might unconsciously incline him to evil deeds. His prayer, however, is a positive declaration that he will not let the sin of another contaminate him.

II. Chastening by the Righteous (Verses 5-7).

5. Let the righteous smite me." The psalmist would rather be in the presence of the righteous, though they smite and chastise him, than in the presence of the wicked, though they pet and cajole him. There is the further thought that honest criticism of a just and pure man is a blessing to be coveted, a kindness and as oil upon the head. (See Psa. 23:5; 133:2.)

Even in their wickedness the psalmist unconsciously turns from the thought of the righteous smiting him to the buffeting of the wicked. This idea was so dominant in his mind that he does not speak specifically of the "unrighteous" in their wickedness, but simply assumes that whoever in wickedness could do anything would be essentially wicked. He does not mean that the righteous could be wicked; the pronoun "their" does not refer to "the righteous" mentioned in the first part of the verse; it refers to the "wicked" whom he supposes,—in contradistinction to the righteous, would attempt to make him cease praying.

6. Their judges are thrown down." This verse is very obscure. Perhaps the reference is to the leaders of Absalom's revolt, who are supposed to have thrown down the rocks by the people whom they misled. These latter, after having been deceived by the fake leaders, heard David's words as "sweet morsels."

7. Our bones are scattered." See Psa. 53:5. Similar expressions in the Psalter are used of the enemy, or of those who put themselves out of harmony with God. So here "our bones" evidently has reference to the wicked. Their punishment comes so swift and sure that they themselves cry out. "Our bones are scattered," etc. They are of no more consequence than the chips which a plower leaves behind him in the furrow.

III. The Eyes Fixed on Jehovah (Verses 8-10).

8-10. Verses five to seven are not as clear as verses one to four and eight to ten. The strain of verses five to seven has been foaming among rocks in a gorge, but in verses eight to ten it has emerged into sunlight and flows smoothly.

In thee do I take refuge. The honest soul takes refuge in the Almighty; it is confident that harm will remain far off.

The snares and gins which one sets for another are always sure to cause one's own undoing. The Psalms are full of such expressions, showing that the writers had discerned a never failing law of human life.

Is Your Family Safe?

wedding ring on the finger of his bride, he should slip into her hand a life insurance policy. He who is not willing to do so has no moral right to assume the responsibility of establishing a home."

These words were spoken by a noted evangelist. The assertion is ventured that among the 170,508 widows in Canada at the time of the last census, many thousands would be happier to-day had a substantial life insurance accompanied the wedding ring. We wonder just how many of these 170,508 widows have been left to actual want because of the failure of their husbands to provide for them in the surest and cheapest way—by an insurance policy substantial enough to guarantee independence for a few years at least. We hold no brief for the life insurance companies, but like the evangelist we have quoted, we see it as the plain duty of the husband to provide for his wife and little ones in the case of the untimely death of the breadwinner. In no case is life insurance more needed than by the farmer whose property is mortgaged or insufficient to support his family in comfort were he to be removed.

Worth It.

"Prisoner at the bar," said the Judge, "is there anything you wish to say before sentence is passed upon you?" "No, my lord, there is nothin' I care to say; but if you'll clear away the tables and chairs for me to thrash my lawyer you can give me a year or two extra."

Egyptians in the third century used to burn butter in their lamps instead of oil.

ORGANIZING THE NEIGHBORHOOD

Somebody has said that the addition of a bathroom to the farm home will do more in way of country life enrichment than any other single factor. This simply means that the farmer, in thinking about the comfort of his family, brings to the country home conveniences that have proved to be necessities in city homes. In the past too much attention has been paid to production. Country life needs organization to get a square deal.

Government officials have worked out a method whereby every rural community may get together looking toward practical co-operation in business and social affairs. It is suggested that five committees be appointed in every rural district to deal with the business interest of the community—these communities to consist of one on farm production, one on marketing, one on securing farm supplies, one on farm finance and accounting, and one on transportation. Similarly, there should be five committees to attend to the community's social interest. These committees to be on education, sanitation, recreation, beautification and household economics.

With these 10 committees every phase of rural life may be studied and looked after. It is not enough to increase the farmer's income. Rural life must be elevated and made so delightful that farm boys and girls will want to engage in its activities.

The idea is, that through co-operation, each rural community should be organized by having every individual articulating with the movement, serving on one of these committees. The work would include men, women and the young folks.

Has Worth Knowing.

I find the following a quick and easy way in which to clean and polish furniture and paintwork. Put a tablespoonful of vinegar in a basin of hot, not too hot, water. Well wipe the furniture with the liquid and leave to dry.

A brilliant polish results, without any of that hard rubbing usually necessary.

Add a little ammonia to the water in which you wash your silver and glass ware. It brightens both of them wonderfully.

And when you are laying away your silver in the drawer or case, don't forget to place therein a piece of gum camphor. It keeps the goods bright such a long time.

Do you want to fireproof your muslin or casement curtains? Then put an ounce of alum in the last rinsing water. This applies also to children's clothes.

It's tantalising to go into a room at night and not be able to lay your hand on the matches. In each room have matches attached to a bracket by slipping a yard of narrow ribbon—to match the wallpaper—through the cover of the match-box, and tying the ends neatly to the bracket.

Clean rusty irons by rubbing them, when hot, upon a piece of beeswax tied in a cloth, with a final rub on a cloth dipped in salt.

Put a handful of salt in the water with which you wipe over your carpet after sweeping. The salt brings up the colors.

The Paisley Advocate

PAISLEY, JUNE 17th, 1915

—Those who heard Rev. Dr. Herridge, ex-moderator of the Presbyterian Assembly, when he was in Paisley last August, will read with special interest this extract from his passionate, fighting speech at the Assembly in Kingston last week when a resolution was submitted by the new moderator, calling upon members of the Presbyterian church and all fellow-citizens to count no service too great that may be necessary to secure final victory to the arms of the Allies :

"If I had known this matter was coming up I'd have put on the khaki which I have a right to wear. I only have two sons and they are both in it, and if I had a dozen I would send them every one. We have a quarrel with Germany, and it is our own fault if we do not make it a holy war. It is no mere vulgar quarrel; upon its issue hangs the destinies of civilization. We have a right to be angry with the desecrators of the temple of humanity, against those who have turned Belgium into a Hager nation crying in the wilderness. We have a quarrel with the murderers of women and children on land and sea, against men who cannot fight without using the most damnable methods, that would be disowned even by the Barbarians. We have to fight that the lights of liberty may not go out all round the world."

The effect of Dr. Herridge's speech was electric. A thunder of applause burst from the Assembly, which rose in a body and sang "God Save the King."

VILLAGE COUNCIL

The Council held its regular monthly meeting on Wednesday, June 9th. Members all present. Minutes of last regular meeting were read and adopted.

Communications : From the Provincial Treasurer to the clerk, drawing attention to the "Provincial War Tax" passed at the last session of the Legislature, requiring the levy and collection of one mill on the dollar of assessment, to be remitted in December. Filed. From the Hydro-Electric Railway Association, of Guelph, inviting Council to the opening of the Lorlon & Port Stanley Electric Railway. From the Frick Coal & Coke Co., offering coal.

By-law No 640, prohibiting the riding of bicycles, tricycles and motor cycles on sidewalks, and By-law No 641, appointing Geo S Stewart night constable, were read a first time.

Grant—Moro—That By-laws Nos 640 and 641 be read a second and third time, passed and executed.—Carried.

George—Collins—That the clerk take such action as may be necessary for the appointment of Geo Stewart as a county constable.—Carried.

Messrs Muir, Carter and Jack, a deputation from the Library Board, requested a deed from this corporation of sufficient land on the market square on which to erect a public library, and asking the council to request the grant of $6000 from Mr Carnegie for such building.

Moro—Grant—That the clerk is hereby instructed to ask the Carnegie Trust for the sum of $500 in addition to the five thousand dollars already promised by Mr Carnegie, and that this council grant a deed of the ground required, provided said location is available.—Carried.

Moro—Grant—That $50 be expended towards filling in the gully on Balaclava St. between Albert and George Sts. Motion lost, two of the council voting in favor of and two against the motion, the reeve being personally interested, refused to vote.

George—Collins—That payments be made as follows :

Murdoch Leitch	$11 66
John R Godwin	5 48
Geo S Stewart	28 50
Paisley Electric Light Co	49 77
John H Maurer	33 00
John Worden	5 00
Weighmaster	10 35
John A Elves	5 40

In French Hospital

Mr and Mrs T H George have received the following letter, dated May 29th, from their son, who is in ward 12 of the 15th General Hospital, France : "I am at present on my back here with a little hole drilled through the calf of my left leg by a piece of shrapnel. It didn't hurt much at the time as it kind of numbed my leg. I walked out about two miles to the dressing station, and by that time it was pretty sore. After that I rode in the ambulance. On the night of the 21st we made a bayonet charge on the German line and captured eight hundred yards of trenches, and I got through that safely. But they shelled us the next day and it was then I got struck. I had a couple of German helmets with the death's head badge on them, but when I got hit I didn't bother bringing them, as my main object was to get out where I could be attended to. We get good attention here, but they won't tell me how long I'm in for. I guess it's a matter of three or four weeks anyway."

Offenders, Watch Out

Citizens are complaining that their peace and liberty are interfered with by certain boys, young men, and even married men, applying offensive names to them on the street, also by using language in connection with them in the hearing of others who might draw uncomplimentary conclusions therefrom ; also by improper use of flashlights around dwellings at night, window-peeping, street-following, etc. The names of the perpetrators of these low and obnoxious practices are well known, and if they do not take this warning and at once cease their unlawful conduct they will most assuredly have to walk the carpet in the limelight of the police court. Parents, look well to your children.—Com.

Threshermen's Association

A branch of the Ontario Brotherhood of Threshermen was organized at a meeting held at the Belmont hotel, Paisley, on Tuesday afternoon. The officers are : President, Alex McGillivray, Bruce Tp ; Vice-Pres, Jas Begg, Port Elgin ; Sec'y-Treas., N R Leeder, jr Saugeen ; Executive Com—John Kidd, H O Clark and W Begg. The objects of the Ontario Brotherhood are to have an organization to look after the interests of threshermen of the province—legislative, protective and progressive. There was a representative attendance of threshermen of this district at the meeting on Monday, and it is proposed to have another meeting within a few weeks. It is expected that the mutual aims sought will bring together all the machine owners and operators to discuss such matters as insurance on the co-operative plan, and other subjects of equal interest to all in the business.

Late Robert Lindsay

The late Robert Lindsay, whose death was briefly referred to in our last issue, passed away very suddenly at the home of his son Samuel at 3641 Union St, Vancouver, B.C., where he had been living for the past three years. He had been feeling somewhat weak at times for a couple of months, although his condition was not apparently at all serious. On the morning of June 7th, his daughter-in-law went to Mr. Lindsay's room about 7.30 o'clock to ask him what he would like for breakfast. She opened the door, and seeing him on his knees beside the bed, she closed the door again, thinking he was engaged in prayer. When she went again he was still in the same position. So she spoke to him and shook his arm but got no answer. Mrs Lindsay then called her husband, who had gone out on duty as a policeman. When the latter came home he found that his father had been dead for some time. He was in a natural kneeling position, and his flesh was still warm. The deceased was three days over 76 years of age.

Crop Prospects in the West

"The present crop is the most promising I have seen during the ten years I have been in the west, and it is three weeks earlier than last year," said the Hon. Duncan Marshall, Minister of Agriculture in Alberta, while in Toronto this week. Mr. Marshall was enthusiastic about the crop conditions in the west, and speaking more particularly of Alberta, said heavy spring rains and good weather now made ideal conditions for a big crop. Even in the dry portions of Alberta there has been a good rainfall. At Medicine Hat a two-and-a-half inch rainfall has done untold good to the wheat. Mr. Marshall gave as instances of the splendid growth. At the Claresholm Demonstration Farm on June 1st the spring wheat was from twelve to fourteen inches high. This farm is in the "dry section," but this year Nature has done enough without any artificial irrigation. Right through to the Peace River section the crop is splendid, said Mr Marshall who quite recently took a 200-mile auto drive through southern Alberta.

Rudolph vs Winch

Thirty-two witnesses or more were examined at the County Court in Walkerton last week in connection with the litigation over the identity of a "mooley" steer, or rather two of them. The trouble arose last summer, as most of our readers know, when Messrs H Rudolph and S Winch, who both live on the Elora road north, had herds of cattle grazing upon abutting farms on the 10th con of Bruce. In each of the herds was a young steer without horns, the two animals alike as two black hens. There was a mixup of the two, resulting from Winch's steer getting into Rudolph's field, the upshot of which was that both men claimed the same animal. Winch also disclaimed the steer that came on Rudolph's place, so the latter followed the legal procedure in the case of strays, advertising it and, no one appearing as owner, had it sold by auction. Brooding feelings and hot words soon brought out a big batch for the lawyers, in the form of a double suit which was held over from a previous court to the June sessions. Rudolph had an action against Winch for slander, which he lost, and is to pay the costs. Winch entered a counterclaim suit, which he also lost, and must pay the costs. No less than five vets gave expert evidence with regard to the growth of horns on cattle, and twenty-five other witnesses appeared in the box during two days proceedings, so that there will be a very heavy bill of costs to settle. This is another instance showing the folly of going to law when the dispute could have been settled amicably between the parties.

THE FAMILY PHYSICIAN

"Fruit-a-tives" Is the Standby In This Ontario Home

SCOTLAND, Ont., Aug. 26th, 1913.

"My wife was a martyr to Constipation. We tried everything on the calendar without satisfaction, and spent large sums of money, until we happened on 'Fruit-a-tives'. We have used it in the family for about two years, and we would not use anything else as long as we can get "Fruit-a-tives."

J. W. HAMMOND.

"FRUIT-A-TIVES" is made from fruit juices and tonics—is mild in action—and pleasant in taste.

50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size 25c. At dealers or sent on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

This is the kind of Wall Paper Artist We Do NOT Employ—

No sloppy job like this done by our men. It costs you no more to employ clean, careful workmen, than men like the above.

Our Wall Paper Stock

We have just put into stock the newest and

MOST ARTISTIC PATTERNS.

Complete range of all lines for parlor, hall, dining-room, bed-room or kitchen papers on hand, ready for delivery, and We would like to show you our different sample books. Stock on hand of all samples shown.

H. GLOVER

PAPERHANGER AND DECORATOR

—Paisley Race Meet, on Thursday, June 24th.

—Private Wm. P. Hanley, reported as among the wounded in France, is a son of Mr. Timothy Hanley of Chepstow, and a nephew of Mr. P. O'Hagan of Elderslie.

—Mr. H. H. Miller, ex-M.P.P., of Hanover has been chosen as candidate for the Commons by the Liberals of the new riding of South East Grey. Hon Geo. P. Graham was present at the convention which was held in Durham on Wednesday of last week.

—Norman J. Bell, alias Ryan, and John Williams, alias Turner, who were confined in Owen Sound jail, attempted to gain their liberty last week by sawing through the bars of their cell doors and a corridor window. Their scheme was discovered just before they had finished cutting through the bars, and the men were taken to another cell.

—The body of Willie Irving, whose drowning at Brandon was mentioned in last week's Advocate, was found by his father four days after. There were signs of bleeding from the poor lad's ear, and as there was no water came off the lungs it is thought that possibly the cause of his death in the water was not from drowning, but from the bursting of a blood vessel in his head. Many words of sympathy for the bereaved parents have been expressed by their former friends here.

—Margrie Munro, Fancy National Costume Dancer, Singer and Entertainer, is perhaps the cleverest dancer and singer in Canada. She appears in the costumes so dear to the heart of the various nationalities represented — Highland Fling, Highland Sword Dance, Sailor's Hornpipe, and the Irish jig. She also sings some of the latest patriotic and comic songs, and plays the accompaniments for Mr. Kelly. She has dozens of medals, won by her dancing at various tournaments, and also possesses a voice of marvellous strength and sweetness. Town Hall, Paisley, June 24th.

Killed in France

Mr. Hedley Johnson has been killed at the front in France. The deceased came to Canada from England three years ago and was employed by Delight Nottle, Arran, for over a year. He went to the west and spent a year, and when the war broke out he enlisted in the Canadian Light Horse and went with the first contingent. The news of his death will be received with sincere regret by many who became acquainted with him while in Arran.—Leader.

Hurled Bricks Through Windows

Shortly after midnight on Tuesday someone hurled a large brick through the front window of Cap. O. E. Klein's residence in Walkerton, shattering the glass and badly damaging the blind. Although Mr. Klein quickly arose and tried to locate the perpetrator, he could see or find no one about, and the act, which was a most malicious one, is still shrouded in mystery. The party later visited Mr. Chas. Fetherplace's home and threw a brick through his front window.—Herald and Times.

BALLACHEY, LAIDLAW & CO.

"The Store with the Quality"

Always Fresh

Our Grocery stock turns many times a year.

This means that at all times our supplies of eatables are fresh and good.

In the warm weather you know what that means so act accordingly.

BALLACHEY, LAIDLAW & CO.

Both 'Phones——:——All Produce

Tired Eyes

Sensations exist for our guidance. They are Nature's warnings. Over-worked eyes demand rest. Eyes that tire easily call for help. Properly adjusted glasses afford the only assistance possible. We make a specialty of relieving tired eyes and guarantee satisfaction.

A Stopped Watch

One that will not go AT ALL—doesn't cause as much bother as one that runs now fast, now slow, in an erratic fashion.

The first you don't pretend to depend upon—the other is a constant source of annoyance.

Most people can afford a watch, but no one can afford an uncertain fast and slow one.

And when our repair department is so close at hand there is really no excuse for carrying anything but an accurate time-piece, no matter what the first cost was.

Consult us about any watch troubles that may arise.

I. SHOEMAKER

JEWELER AND OPTICIAN

SHOES

Our new spring Shoes have just arrived and we have Shoes for all Ladies, Gents and Children at the old prices.

We have not raised our prices as we bought our supply before the advance in prices.

We have a full stock of Men's Women's and Children's heavy waterproof shoes on hand to keep the feet dry.

Call and have a look at our shoes.

Eggs Taken in Exchange

H. PFAFF & SON'S

SHOE STORE

Buggies

We ing the reliable McLachlan, Tudhope and Brantford makes, also attending to all kinds of repairs and renewal of parts on old vehicles. A number of second hand buggies to sell cheap.

Furniture

A large assortment always in and catalogue of best makers to select from. Any article, large or small, sets or single pieces for furnishing the home.

Single and Double Harness and Harness Supplies

We are agents for the Singer Sewing Machines and Capital Cream Separators

J. SEILER, Eden Grove

CANADIAN PACIFIC

GREAT LAKES Steamship Service

Steamers leave Port McNicoll Tuesdays, Wednesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays for SAULT STE. MARIE, PORT ARTHUR and PORT WILLIAM. The steamer "Manitoba" sailing from Port McNicoll on Wednesdays, will call at Owen Sound, leaving that point at 10.30 p m.

STEAMSHIP EXPRESS

leaves Toronto 12.45 p m. daily except Friday, making direct connection with steamers at Port McNicoll on sailing days.

Particulars from W. H. McFarlane, Agent, or write M. G. Murphy, D.P.A., Toronto.

Central Business College Stratford, Ont.

Ontario's Best Practical Training School

We have thorough courses and experienced instructors in each of our three departments, Commercial, Shorthand and Telegraphy. Our graduates succeed and you should get our large, free catalogue. Write for it at once.

D. A. McLACHLAN, Principal

Court Sangeen, C.O.F No. 88

MEETS in Oddfells Hall on the second Wednesday evening of each month. All visiting brethren are welcome.

A. E. ANDERSON, R.S.
W. ANDERSON, C.R.

Ahiram Lodge, No. 205, I.O.O.F

MEETS every Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock in the Hall Oddfellow Block. Visiting brothers always welcome.

J. F. HOUSTON, N.G.
R. B. GRANT, R.S.

PUMP REPAIRING

THE undersigned having purchased Mr W Rush's outfit, is prepared to do all kinds of pump repairing, also furnish repairs, such as cylinders, valves and other parts of wooden or iron pumps. A few Rock wooden pumps for sale. Wood turning done. Turned whiffle trees and neckyokes for sale.

Bruce 'Phone W. RAE

Estray Heifer

STRAYED from the premises of the undersigned, lot 13, con. 6, Bruce, on or about May 3rd, one yearling roan heifer. Any information concerning the animal will be gratefully received. GEO HANNEMAN, Paisley P.O. Bruce phone 57—16.

—The trotting horse "Comet," formerly owned by J. Acton, of Chesley, died at Kincardine last week from pneumonia. The horse was valued at $600, and was lately handled by H. Fields, of Hamilton.

—Clubbing rates with all the city dailies and weeklies.

T. H. GEORGE

Issuer of Marriage Licenses
Notary Public and Conveyancer

Land, Loan, Insurance and General Agent. Notes, Book Accounts and other Debts Collected. Conveyancing Neatly and Cheaply Executed.

—FARMS LOANS A SPECIALTY—

Office in Putnam Block, Queen St. S., Paisley

You Can Begin Any Day at the NORTHERN Business College

OWEN SOUND
Individual Instruction
Our own three story building and 34 successful years of experience. Expert instructors produce the very best results. Catalogue free.

C. A. FLEMING, F.C.A. Principal — G. D. FLEMING Secretary

Business Directory

JOHN SUTHERLAND & SONS LIMITED
INSURANCE—FIRE AND MARINE
GUELPH - ONT.

C. GIBSON
Issuer of Marriage Licenses
Paisley, Ont.

LEGAL

D. FORRESTER, B.A., L.L.B.
BARRISTER, SOLICITOR AND NOTARY PUBLIC
OFFICE—TOWN HALL, PAISLEY

MEDICAL

DR. M. C. BLACK,
M.D., C.M., F.T.M.C., M.C.P.S.
Graduate of Trinity University and Tolrdale, New York. Specialty—Diseases of the eye, ear nose and throat.

DR. H. E. GAGE, Physician, Surgeon and Accoucheur, Edinburgh and Glasgow, post graduate Toronto Eying in Hospital. Is also late assistant Edinburgh Eye Infirmary. Specialty—Diseases of the Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat.
Successor to Dr. Morrison.

DR. F. J. F. HOUSTON,
Honor Graduate of Toronto University Licentiate of the Royal Colleges of Physicians and Surgeons of Edinburgh and Glasgow, post graduate Toronto Eying in Hospital. Is also late assistant Edinburgh Eye Infirmary. Specialty—Diseases of the Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat.
Successor to Dr. Morrison.

DENTAL

DR. A. H ALLEN
DENTIST, formerly of Toronto.
Graduate of the Royal College of Dental Surgeons of Ontario. Honor Graduate of Toronto University Dental Department. Master of Dental Surgery. Graduate of the Dr. Mayer Post Graduate School of Prosthetic Dentistry, New York. Office over Mara's Drug Store, opposite the Post Office.

VETERINARY

R. B. GRANT, V. S., Graduate of Ontario Veterinary College, Toronto. Government Inspector of contagious diseases and apply Tuberculin test to cattle. Also to inspect export stock and issue certificates for same. Urgent case treatment for milk fever. Office and residence opposite the old Northern Hotel.

AUCTIONEERS

R. C. PEARCE, Licensed Auctioneer. Sales attended to in all parts of the County at reasonable terms. Orders left at the Advocate Office will receive prompt attention. Telephone at house.

R. J. NESBITT, Licensed Auctioneer for the County of Bruce, is prepared to conduct sales in any part of the county. Terms reasonable. Leave order at Advocate office or address Ormsby P.O.

Subscription Arrears to The Advocate

THERE is several hundred dollars still due us on arrears for subscription to The Advocate. We have quite regularly sent our accounts out in an endeavor to collect all. Some, however, have neglected to respond to our requests for payment. Subscribers who neglect the little matter of remitting regularly do not, perhaps, understand the position we are placed in because of not receiving from them what is due us. We do not believe there are more than only a few who would deliberately beat us out of our dues, and we do not propose to treat delinquents as rogues unless we actually find they are such. Nevertheless, we are obliged to make a special effort to collect all arrears, and we have handed over to The Publishers' Adjustive Association a list of behind-handers who will hear from them immediately. Prompt attention to the first notice of indebtedness will save additional expense.

We derive no particular pleasure from the pursuit of delinquents, but it seems that it is a necessary part of the business of managing a newspaper office, so we must, that's all.

Kindly avoid all unpleasantness by remitting the amount of your account at once.

Yours truly,

D. McKENZIE, Publisher

A Great many People Buy Shoes Here

Who are of the come again and again kind.

Now, that wouldn't be so if our Shoes didn't make it so, would it?

All this talk of ours is only intended to get you to be a tryer of our Shoes, that's all.

After that its up to the Shoes to hold you a steady customer.

They generally do it, but if they SHOULDN'T do it in your case, we want you to tell us about it, because there is a mistake somewhere. And we want to make it right.

It matters not what your present or future needs in Shoes may be, we GUARANTEE you a good service.

BUTTER AND EGGS WANTED
For which We Pay the Highest Price

F. Carter & Son

Goods Delivered — Both 'Phones

THE STORE WITH THE QUALITY

Use Royalite Coal Oil

"Where did you get your Oil Stove?"
"I got it at Davison's."
"What is the name of it."
"Quick Meal."
"Is it a good stove?"

Well I should say so. You find points of excellence in the Quick Meal Oil Stove that cannot be found in any other stove on the market. Don't buy your stove until you see the Quick Meal. It's the best. I never have any trouble with mine and I have had it for years. I think it would pay you to call at Davison's and see it. I know they will be pleased to show you all about it."

"Well, I'm glad you told me. I think I'll buy one to-morrow."

Use Royalite Coal Oil

They all buy the Quick Meal It's the Best!

W. H. DAVISON

BRUCE PHONE — BELL PHONE

CARRIAGE
PAINT SHOP

The undersigned has rented the Gibson store building on Queen St. South, where he is prepared to do Painting of all kinds, also repairing and refurnishing of all kinds of vehicles. Over 25 years' experience in the best carriage shops in Canada and U.S.

W. JACK.

Paint Test No. 3

Roof Garden Paint Tests

The above illustration shows how the wearing qualities of Lowe Brothers "High Standard" paint are tested before it is even sold to us.

These tests have proven that this paint wears longer than ordinary paints—and that it leaves the surface in better condition for repainting when that becomes necessary.

On houses—it has been found to wear years longer than ordinary paint—think what this saves when your painting cost is figured per years of wear.

Ask for COMPARING COST pamphlets; free at our store.

For Sale at Sinclair's Hardware

Bridge Contract to Let

SEALED tenders will be received by the undersigned up to 6 p.m. on Saturday, June 28th, 1913, for two large cement culvert bridges in Bruce Tp—one over the Willow Creek on con. 8, and one on Base Line, Con. 4. Contractor to furnish all material and labor and give satisfactory security. The lowest or any tender not necessarily accepted. For further particulars, plans and specifications apply to Reeve Joe Johnson, lot 2, con 7.

J. G. MACKAY, Clerk Bruce Tp.

A Rogue on the Peninsula

Edward Palmer, of Acton West, has spent more than a year here in duties taking cement contracts. He has dealt with several farmers and some went so far as to pay him for work yet to be performed. More than a week ago he decamped for parts unknown to us, leaving several accounts unpaid. On his way he called at the Union Bank, Wiarton, getting Mr. Ernie Parke to identify him and cashed a cheque for $83 on Wm. Baker of Eastnor, which Mr. Baker claims was never signed by him. Constable Ward, of Wiarton, has the case in his hands and expects shortly to round him up. As the Royal Bank honored the cheque not knowing it was a forgery, it is out the $83. As several farmers have contemplated erecting silos, one experienced in doing such work should be able to land several such contracts in Eastnor.—Lion's Head News.

—Kincardine races on June 3rd brought together a fine string of speedy horses, and the three events were witnessed by a large crowd. Many of the same horses are expected to enter for the money at Paisley. An incident at the Kincardine races is thus told by The Review: "In the last heat of the free for all, Hattie Kling came in third but got more applause than the winner. Almost in front of the grandstand on the second lap, her bike collided with another and her driver was thrown out. She kept on, however, and kept her place, amid thunders of applause as she came driverless under the wire. The judges had to declare her "distanced" under the rules, but the Association afterwards saw to it that she did not go unrewarded for her game finish under adverse circumstances. When she passed the wire she was going strong but eased off when Cliffe Anderson rang the starter's bell. Who can refuse admiration to an animal so ambitious and intelligent?"

THE LATE ROBERT LAST

The many friends of Robert Last will regret to hear of his death, which occurred at his late residence, 18 Brock St., Woodstock, on Monday, after a lingering illness of several years' duration. The late Mr Last was born in Ipswich, Suffolk County, England, on January 28th, 1848, and came to Canada with his parents when quite young. Mr Last lived on the homestead farm on the 11th line of Zorra till about five years ago, when failing health compelled him to give up his work, since which time he had resided on Brock St., this city. The late Mr. Last was married 21 years ago to Miss Jennie Montgomery, daughter of the late George Montgomery, who survives him.

Deceased was a member of the Episcopal church, and attended Old St. Paul's church since coming to the city. In politics he was a staunch Conservative, and his lodge connection was with the I.O.M., Hickson. To the widow the sympathy of a large number of friends will be extended. The funeral will take place on Wednesday at 1:30 o'clock from his late home to the Presbyterian cemetery.—Sentinel-Review.

SCHOOL REPORTS

S S No 7 SEANT

Sr IV—S Scott 88, W Brown 83, F Young 82, M Fordyce 77, G Kerry 76, H Reed 63, O Seller 62. Jr IV—G Scott, D McKeeman, T Desmond, G Kerry. Sr III — E Acton, O Gregg, L Scott, W O'Reilly, D Desmond. Jr III—J McKeeman, K Kauffman. Sr II—F Smith, M Young, V Bing, T Young, A Young, M Brown, A Hoffarth. Jr II—L Gregg, L Kerry, M Young, E Bing, F Desmond, T Desmond, H Scott, S Kauffman, N Kerry. J O'Reilly, M Kauffman. Sr I—P Gregg, M Pearson, C Hoffarth, R Houle. Sr Pr —M Napper, B Edgeworth, J Alexander, A Kauffman, W Zettler, J Kupperschmidt. Jr Pr—G Kerry, D O'Reilly, V Young, G Gregg, N Gregg, P Kauffman, L Zettler, A Zettler. No enrolled, 56; average attendance, 48. E S LOVELL, Teacher

S S No 3 & 8, SAUG & ELD

Report for April and May

IV—Honors — Velma Winch. Pass—Willie Tanner. Fail — Della Rudolph. Sr III—Pass—Willie Miller, Edgar Tanner, Alma Fraser, Harold Fraser*, Jr III — Pass—Aileen Tanner, Lillie Bryce, Jack Winch. Fail—Gregor Rudolph*, Clarence Hammond, Willie Rudolph. Sr II—Honors—Mary Winch, Katie Campbell, Harvey McGill*. Fail—Jack Miller, Gordon Fraser. Jr II—Honors—Clifford Tanner, Bessie Tanner, John Collins*, Edith McKinnon*. Pass—Isabel Rudolph, T V McKinnon, Archie McKinnon*. Sr Primary—Honors—Elisabeth Tanner, Walter McGill, Ina McKinnon*. Pass — May Harcourt*. Fail — Eldred Fraser. Jr Primary—Evelyn McMillan, Millie Collins, Alvin Harcourt*. *Absent for one or more examinations.

DONALD D CAMPBELL, Teacher

S S No 8, GREENOCK & ELDERSLIE

Sr IV—Winnie Megraw, John Acton, Douglas Cottrill, Chester Teeple. Jr IV—John McAngus, Grace McMorran. Sr II—Jack Nelson. Jr III—Alice Watson, Bessie Nelson, Edna Megraw, Lula Greaves, Howard Watson, Annie Ritchie. Sr II—Clara McMorran, Archie Thompson, Joe Rowley. Jr II—Mae Hay, Lewis Rowley, Roy Teeple, Christina McAngus, David Rowley. Pr II —Viola Megraw, Bertie Ritchie, Reta Cottrill, Louis Thompson. Sr I—Bessie Davison, Jim Cullum, Harry Greaves. Jr I—Lily McKeeman, Clarence McKeeman, Emma Cullum, Edna Greaves, Jack Cottrill, Jean Hay. Primary—Roy Daniels, Mary Thompson, John Thompson.

M D GALBRAITH, Teacher

S S No 1, ELDERSLIE & BRANT

Sr IV—Pass—Rodger Hood. Jr IV—Pass—Irene Bluhm, Florence Spone, Ted Cargill. Sr III—Honors—Dorothy Spong, Eupherain Elder. Pass—Walter Hopper. Jr III—Pass—Bowden Cargo. Sr II—Honors—Lillie Driscoll, Norman Rhody. Pass—Lloyd Hopper, Gordon Belbeck, Marjorie Hopper. Jr II—Honors—May Driscoll, Nettie Belchart, Mary Spong. Pass—Fred Bluhm. Sr I—Pass—Elvin Gregg, Gordon Hopper. Jr I —Honors—Hugh Driscoll, John Rhody. Pass —Pearl Alexander, Artie Alexander, Ruby Cargill. Jr I C—Pass—Isabella Elder. B—Margaret Bluhm. A—Florence Munro, Edith Hopper, Grace Gregg, Adolph Rhody, Hugh Munro.

M KARR, Teacher

S S No 9, BRUCE

V—J G Brown 70%. Sr IV—R Wightson 83, K H Mewhinney 52*. Jr IV — R Fullerton 77, E Brown 70, H Urquhart 68. Sr III—W Nelson 72, A Father 60, R Gless 68, F Wrightson 56, L H Brown 35, J H Smith 28. Jr III — I McKinnon 84, E Wrightson 59. Sr II—J Pace 73, C Fullerton 62, M Wrightson 61, A George 60, J Brown 48, A McDougall 34. Jr II—G Ruppell 47, C Parker 36, W Smith 34*, E Hyde 20*. Sr Pr II—H Wittig, L Smith, F Mewhinney, J Mewhinney, S Schwan. Jr Pr II —C McKinnon, Gordon McMann. Sr I—B McDonnell, H Smith, George McMann. Sr Class—G Mewhinney, C Smith. A Class—H Gottschalk, M Morrison, M Wood, E McKinnon, C Ruppel. No on roll 41; average attendance 39. Those marked * were absent for one examination.

M NIXON, Teacher

S S No 10, BRUCE & GREENOCK

Honors 75, pass 60. Those marked * missed one or more examination. Sr IV—Katie McGillivray 80. Jr IV — Violet Vance 71, Harold Nelson 70, Louisa Ross 65, John McGillivray 59. Sr III—John George McGregor 73, Kathleen Bruce 65, Lizzie Ross 45. Jr III—Sandy McGillivray 61, D J Metcalfe, Bessie McGillivray 60, Victor Kidd 25, Nellie Metcalfe 20. Sr II—Hazel Vance 88, Archie McGillivray 84, Willie McArthur 60, Willie McDougald 50*. Jr II—Harry Metcalf 74, Christina McGregor 73, Wilfred Dadgeon 68, Murray McGregor 30. Sr Pr II— Myrtle Vance 99, Edna Vance 82, Howard McGregor 80, Emma Ross 60, Wilfred McDougall 50. Jr Pr II—Greta McKay and Annie McGillivray. Jr I—Verna Dadgeon, Elvin Roppel, Sheldon Kidd, Roy McGregor, Reta Nelson. I—Sandy McGregor, Roy Metcalf, Mary Jane Waghtson.

A K RANKIN, Teacher

S S No 1, ELDERSLIE

Sr IV—Janie Luttrell, Maurice Gowanlock. Jr IV—Jean Reid, Anita Luttrell. Sr III—Mabel Clarke, Elma McPherson, Ian McPherson, John McIntyre, Viola McPherson. Jr III A—Annie Taylor, Jack Reid. B—Andrew McBeath. Sr II—Peter Reid Jr II—Norman Somerville, Austin McPherson. Sr I—Keith McIntyre. Jr I—Lillian Stoddart, Thelma Gowanlock. Primer—Alex McIntyre. Average attendance 18

TENA E OSWALD, Teacher

S S No 4, ELDEGSLIE

Sr IV—Pass—Hazel Burns. Jr IV—Pass Stanley Richards. Sr III — Pass — Leila Burns. Jr III—Pass—Eric Ingedson. Failure—Oliver Mauier, Edgar Mauier. Jr II— Honors—Jean Burns. Pass—Minnie Tueffer Failure—Philip Turner, Ethel Hammond. Jr I (c)—Honors—Gladys Pearce, Failure—Edna Hammond, (b)—Honors—Emily Burns, (a)—Laurence Tanner.

PRUDENCE KERR, Teacher

BORN

McMULLEN—At 506 Second Ave, E, Owen Sound, on June 12th, to Mr and Mrs W A McMullen (nee Minnie McFaul), a son.

MARRIED

THOMAS—SEMPLE—At the residence of the bride's parents, on June 2nd, by Rev. M. McArthur, Mr. Bert Sidney Thomas, to Mary Eugenie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Semple, base line, Kincardine Tp.

SHAW — CRAWFORD — In the Methodist church, Dobbinton, on May 26th, by Rev. O. A. King, B.A., of Kingsville, Mr. Norman L. Shaw to Edith, eldest daughter of Mrs. John Crawford.

VISIONS OF SOLDIERS

Ghost Led Serbian Troops Against Turks—Unstrung Nerves the Cause

That soldiers suffer from torturing nightmares as a result of the nerve strain of being continually under fire is well known, but few people are aware that troops in the field often have astonishing visions. The late Lord Roberts on several occasions stated in his despatches during the Afghanistan campaign that seasoned soldiers would at times declare that they could distinguish hordes of natives approaching. It often happened that a dozen recruits would swear that they could discern an army in the distance, whereas they were merely victims of nerves.

Experienced soldiers on occasions have extraordinary visions during the heat of battle, which are astonishing inasmuch as they affect whole battalions and not solitary individuals. During the Balkan War the Serbian army on one occasion won a spiritual victory which the men swore was given to them by a ghost who led them into battle. The Serbian infantry were stationed on the foot of the Mount of Pritip, on which stood the castle of the Royal Prince Marko, a fourteenth-century warrior, who was a national Serbian hero. The troops had to attack a Turkish force who held the castle, but they were continued against storming the fortress until artillery had broken down the defences. Before the order to charge was given, however, the Serbians, shouting wildly, dashed forward, and after a desperate struggle completely routed the Turks. When approached by their leader for disobeying orders, the victorious soldiers shouted in a body, "Kralyevitch Marko commanded us forward. Did you not see him on his Sharatz?" the latter being the great soldier's horse, famous in legend. "It was clear," said the officer who related the story, "that the tradition of Kralyevitch Marko was so deeply engraved on the hearts of these heroic men that in their vivid enthusiasm they had seen the incarnation of their hero."

General Sir Alfred Turner tells the following story: Whilst at a séance one evening a man the famous medium knew well suddenly rose from the table, saying, "I cannot stand more of this," and he left the room. Sir Alfred afterwards discovered that the man had seen a figure in khaki with a wound under his jaw standing beside him. The vision was that of a soldier who had been killed by his side in South Africa.

Napoleon, when languishing on Elba, is said to have been tortured by visions of his army retreating from the ruins of Moscow; whilst Dr. Brydon, the sole survivor of the Kabul massacre, was never wholly free from distressing nightmares, in which the frightful scenes he had witnessed were conjured up in his mind. There have been cases in which soldiers have been convinced that the ghost of a dead commander haunts their regiment. In the 'sixties a part leader of the London Rifle Brigade was said to haunt his old corps in spirit form

RT. HON. HERBERT L. SAMUEL

Who was formerly president of the Local Government Board and was appointed Postmaster-General when the Coalition Government was formed, a position he held for several years. The Postmaster-General does not hold a Cabinet portfolio under the changed order of things.

Clergyman "Doing His Bit"

"Deliver the goods," asked the British Government, and the request impressed itself so much on the mind of the Rev. J. Warwick Adams, vicar of Wall, near Lichfield, that he doffed his clerical garb, and in the overalls of an ordinary mechanic commenced work in a big ammunition factory at Birmingham.

Previous experience in his father's engineering works enabled Mr. Adams to take his place at the lathe, and he is now turning his knowledge of planing, machine drilling, boring, turning, filing and chipping to good account.

PAISLEY RACE MEET

In Riverside Park, on

Thursday, June 24th

PRIZE LIST

Free-for-All—Purse $125.00
Divided—$60, $35, $20, $10

2.35 Class—Purse $100.00
Divided—$50, $25, $15, $10

3.00 Minute Class—Purse $100.00
Divided—$50, $23, $15, $10

Mile heats—Best three in five. Four to enter and three to start. National rules to govern. The Committee reserve the right to make any change in the programme that conditions may warrant.

LEAGUE LACROSSE MATCH
CHESLEY vs. PAISLEY

PAISLEY BRASS BAND
Will furnish Music in the afternoon and evening

GRAND CONCERT AT NIGHT
In the Town Hall

ADMISSION TO GROUNDS—Adults 25c. Children 15c. Additional charges for Autos and Carriages

THOS. MUIR, Treasurer — W. J. ELLIS, Secretary

Committee—S. Putnam, J. R. Craig, T. F. Pearce

Columbia Hear the Music

A Magnificent New List of Columbia Patriotic Records

Just Out

Only 85c. Each

Two Selections on Each Record

Come and hear them. They are simply magnificent; Every one recorded in England

THEY WILL PLAY ON YOUR MACHINE

Hear Viola Loraine sing the rousing song "Three Cheers for Little Belgium"

Three Cheers for Little Belgium Come On, You Boys of London Town	P39 85c.
Our Empire. Part 1 Our Empire. Part 2	P35 85c.
British Army Bugle Calls. Part 1 British Army Bugle Calls. Part 2	P37 85c.
Engl..d's Battle Hymn There's Only One England	P38 85c.
Popular Patriotic Songs. Part 1 Popular Patriotic Songs. Part 2	P36 85c.
Here We Are, Here We Are, Here We Are Again Are We Downhearted? No!	P36 85c.
Marseillaise Lord God, Protect the Czar (Russian National Anthem)	A1733 85c.
It's a Long Way to Tipperary Old Comrades' March	A1608 85c.

Geo. Welsford
Paisley

—"Advertising is the education of the public as to what you are, where you are, and what you have to offer in the way of skill, talent and commodity. The only man who should not advertise is the man who has nothing to offer the world in the way of commodity or service." — Elbert Hubbard.

PAISLEY MARKET

Fall wheat, per bushel	$1 10	$ 1 10
Spring wheat, per bush	1 00	1 00
Buckwheat	70	75
Peas, per bush	1 35	1 35
Oats, per bush	50	50
Barley, per bush	65	75
Potatoes, per bag	40	40
Butter, in pound rolls	23	23
Eggs, fresh, per doz	20	20
Hay, per ton		15 00

TORONTO LIVE STOCK MARKETS

Toronto, Tuesday, June 17th, 1913.

Butchers' picked	$8 00	$8 25
do common	7 90	8 00
do fair	7 80	7 90
do choice	7 60	7 80
Steers, choice	6 75	7 85
do common	6 00	6 75
Heavy feeders	7 00	7 50
Short keep	7 00	7 50
Milch cows, choice	80	100
do common	40	60
Sheep, ewes	6 50	6 60
Bucks	5 00	6 00
Spring Lambs, each	8 00	9 00
Calves	8 00	9 00
Hogs, f.o.b	9 15	9 70
" fed and watered	9 00	9 00

A Representative Wanted

For the Old Reliable

Fonthill Nurseries

to sell in Paisley and district

A chance of a lifetime to do a big trade among farmers in fruit stock, as well as good ornamental business in town.

Exclusive territory. Handsome free outfit. Highest commissions paid. Write for terms.

STONE & WELLINGTON
Toronto

War Time Scenes in England.

Every little community in England has its own set of war organizations. These vary from societies giving the man at the front comforts and necessaries to social purity brigades.

Some of these organizations have been formed by women to assist in recruiting. One of the methods some of them have used was to present a white feather to each young fellow wearing civilian clothes, accompanied with the exhortation that he should strive to prove himself a man. Often they have got hold of the wrong men; for thousands of apparently fit men have been refused by the military authorities as not coming up to the standard. Partly to protect themselves many men who cannot join the army wear badges, such as "war service," denoting they are employed on Government work.

It has actually been the case that white feathers have been given to men returned from the front on short furlough because they wore private clothes. One man thus presented was a naval officer whose ship had been sunk by a torpedo, and who had lost his uniform. Public opinion in England is strongly against the white feather method applied to men the army does not want.

Many Belgian refugees in England are following King Albert's advice by working instead of relying on the hospitality of English folk; King Albert has told his people that he does not want them to live in idleness, as that would be bad for them. The unmarried girls mostly prefer to live in lodgings rather than in the established Belgian guest houses. So organizations have been formed to keep them in the straight and narrow path.

Unofficial daylight saving has come into being, for which many express indebtedness to the Zeppelin. The Home Office authorities laid down some precautions which had to be observed in case of aerial invasion. The military commands in various parts of the country added to these. The county authorities made still other additions and the local police and other bodies completed the work.

The days of partially restricted lighting are gone so far as most cities are concerned. In addition to green lights, the street cars are now shrouded in green blinds and the lights are shaded. Nearly all street lamps are unlighted, street after street being in pitch darkness. In one city a storekeeper was fined because a policeman found that by bending down he could look under the window blind and see a lamp; no light must show on the footpath.

The result is that when the sun sets one must either go home or run the risk of collision in seeking a place of amusement. All vehicles down to the common bicycle must be provided with a red lamp at the back which must not throw much light. People go to bed at a very early hour; in fact England is acquiring new habits, going back to the days of old when the curfew rang at 8 or 9 o'clock to tell the inhabitants that they must extinguish all lights and go to bed.

While most workers are benefiting to a remarkable degree as a result of plenty of work at higher wages, some are faced with increased cost of living and smaller remuneration. Among these are newspaper men and they have just taken to what to them is an astounding step. When the war began advertisers took fright and newspaper revenue dropped, wages were reduced and men were put on part time. The mechanical workers suffered no wage reductions as they belonged to a strong trade union.

One of the events that cause excitement is the arrival in a town of a batch of war prisoners. When prisoners are expected a crowd gathers along the streets which they must pass from railroad to camp. As the prisoners emerge from the railroad station, guarded by soldiers with fixed bayonets, there is almost complete silence. In one case the women in the crowd laughed at the curious pith helmets worn by prisoners from the tropical German colonies, but the only demonstration was when one prisoner stood on the top of a car and shook his fist at the crowd, and that was by children.

Indeed, many in the crowd expressed compassion. The working girls had a certain amount of chaff for the smiling men. "Where's your Iron Cross?" "Willy will send a Zeppelin for you!" "You'll get plenty of good food now." "It'll be better than the trenches, mate." "Aye, and better than our poor lads are getting!" and so on. There is, however, a growing resentment at what is termed the "palatial way" in which the prisoners are treated, especially as English prisoners in Germany are constantly writing home for treacle, bread and clothing.

Recruiting goes on apace, many men being released from industrial pursuits by economies and by the drafting in of men and women who need not work save to let young workers free. Public services are being restricted and amalgamated for the purpose.

One interesting feature of recruiting is the formation of special units such as the "Pals" Battalions. There are now 100,000 men serving as "Pals," each battalion consisting of men normally engaged in the same work or in the same walk of life. Thus some are composed of lawyers, others of store clerks, and so on, while big cities form their own battalions of men who are chums in private life. University graduates, clerical workers, miners and others thus are kept together in war as in peace.

The voluntary workers who made it their hobby to found hospitals for wounded soldiers now have their grievance. The War Office has come to the conclusion that the wounded in private establishments were getting more coddling than was good for them and that many ladies were treating them as pets rather than soldiers. So it has been decreed that the Government hospitals must be used in future and these are being established on a vast scale.

Quite a Simple Thing by the Map.
Clever cartoon of the German Crown Prince from the London Bystander.

TEUTON INTRIGUE FAILED

ENVOYS WERE ASSIDUOUS IN THEIR VISITS TO VATICAN.

Tried in Vain to Induce Pope Not to Permit Their Departure From Rome.

Since the outbreak of the war, Prince Schoenburg-Hartenstein, Austro-Hungarian Ambassador accredited to the Pope, paid a daily visit to the Vatican. Besides his frequent audiences with the Pope he invariably conferred either with Cardinal Garparri, the Secretary of State, or one of the other high officials.

Baron von Ritter zon Gruenstein, the Bavarian envoy, and Dr. von Mushlberg, the Prussian envoy were equally assiduous in their visits to the Vatican, and their activity was in a way rewarded, as many of the subordinate officials of the Vatican, lay and ecclesiastical, are pro-German.

The anti-clerics say that these Austrian and German diplomatists spent a great deal of money in converting Vatican understrappers, but no doubt there is exaggeration in these reports. It is a fact, however, that the Osservatore Romano, the official organ of the Holy See, although supposed to be impartial, published feature items of news from Berlin and Vienna, and often omitted official communications from the Allies, especially when German atrocities in Belgium were denounced or Austrian defeats were reported. German and Austrian denials to such communications were sure to appear in the Osservatore Romano.

The work of the Austro-German at the Vatican was greatly hampered lately by the British envoy, Sir Henry Howard, whom the British Government sent to Rome on a special mission since the war started. Sir Henry, with the Belgian envoy, M. Van der Hueval, and the Russian Minister, Count Nelidow, represent the allied Governments at the Vatican, and they have been kept busy recently neutralizing the work of their Teutonic colleagues.

The Austro-German diplomatic representatives accredited to the Vatican were until recently most optimistic and insisted that Italy's intervention was out of the question. Their optimism, however, disappeared when the news leaked out that negotiations were going on between the Italian Government and the Vatican about the position of the Diplomatic Corps in case of war. The Italian Government notified the Pope that the Austrian Ambassador and the Bavarian and Prussian envoys would have to leave Rome. A modus vivendi intended to save appearances and to avoid complications was suggested and the Pope was asked to propose a satisfactory solution of the ment was willing to accept question which the Italian Govern-

Austria Makes Suggestion.

Before making any suggestion the members of the Diplomatic Corps at the Vatican were consulted. The Austrian Ambassador, as dean of the corps, suggested that the Pope should first of all protest to the Powers against Italy's threatened violation of the law of guarantees and then refuse to allow the departure of the diplomatic representatives of the countries at war with Italy.

The suggestion of sheltering the Diplomatic Corps inside the Vatican appeared practical enough and it would have been communicated to the Italian Government and probably accepted had not the British, Belgian and Russian envoys vigorously opposed it. They informed the Pope that since the Italian Government had not requested their departure in case of war, evidently because Italy's war would not be against their Governments, they would not seek shelter inside the Vatican.

Meanwhile the Pope was studying the question in the hope of finding a satisfactory solution and the members of the Diplomatic Corps were again consulted. The representatives of the Central Empires urged on the Pope that their presence in Rome during a war would insure the independence of the Holy See. They pointed out that so long as they remained in Rome and diplomatic relations with their Governments were not severed the Pope in case of danger could protest against Italy's threatened violation of the law of guarantees with the certainty of obtaining redress after the war was over. Hints were dropped that the question of the Holy See, as well as that of temporal power, could be brought up at the peace conference and that the Pope's claims would be supported by Germany and Austria. These arguments, however, failed to impress the Pope.

The Vatican Proposal.

Finally the Italian Government was notified by the Vatican that in case of war the Pope would request the diplomatic representatives of all the Belligerent Powers, whether Italy's allies or enemies, to leave Rome, on that only the Spanish Ambassador and the South American Ministers would remain accredited to the Pope. The Austro-Germans were elated at the success of what they considered a diplomatic triumph. What they feared was that they should have to leave Rome, while their enemy colleagues remained.

Their elation was short lived, as the British, Belgian and Russian envoys opposed this solution also and addressed joint notes to the Secretary of State informing him that unless they received immediate assurances that the Pope would not request them to leave Rome in case of war between Italy and the Central Empires and that the Pope would not protest to the Powers against the departure from Rome of the Austro-German diplomatic representatives, they had been instructed by their respective Governments to leave Rome at once and sever diplomatic relations with the Holy See.

The assurances demanded by the allied representatives were given without delay and the second solution of the question was abandoned. Now the question is settled definitely.

The importance of this solution is considerable, owing to the fact that the Pope will not protest, and thus there will be no danger of future complications between the Vatican and Italy after the war. Besides it will be impossible for the so-called Roman question to be raised during the peace conference and the intrigues of Germany and Austria in this direction, intended to punish Italy for joining the Allies, will be useless.

Dartmoor Convict Prison was originally built to receive prisoners of war during the struggles with Napoleon.

General Joffre only became Generalissimo of the French Army in 1911, on the refusal of General Pau to accept that office.

REMARKABLY STRONG POSITION OF THE MERCHANTS BANK OF CANADA SHOWN BY ANNUAL REPORT

It is significant that after more than eight months of the severest financial strain Canada has ever experienced, the Merchants Bank of Canada comes forward with a report showing not only the greatest strength in its history comparing favorably with the strongest commercial bank throughout the world.

Perhaps the outstanding feature of the annual statement as at April 30th last, is the assets which are or can immediately be converted into cash. These amount to $32,681,571.51 exclusive of $1,000,000 deposited in the Central Gold Reserve, and $235,000 deposited with the Government for the purposes of the Circulation Fund. Altogether the immediately realisable assets amount to $33,121,571, or over 46% of the Bank's liability to the public. What this means will be appreciated when it is remembered that last year these items totalled over $8,000,000 less, or less than 37% of the liabilities to the public—and this was a very good showing for normal times.

The total assets of the Bank are $86,190,464.51, an increase of over three millions from last year. It is worthy of note that there are no mortgages, while overdue debts and real estate, other than Bank premises together amount to only $263,-538.40, or less than one-third of one per cent. of the total assets. The actual cash, coin and notes on hand were over $21,000,000, or twice what they were a year ago.

Thus the Merchants Bank of Canada is in a position of great strength, which enables it to face any possible development of the war situation with perfect confidence.

During the year the Bank's deposit business expanded very considerably. Its deposits bearing interest increased over four millions, to $60,037,101.80, and its total public liabilities grew three millions to $71,709,813.81. The capital paid up and the reserve fund stand at $7,000,000 each.

Profits were necessarily affected by the efforts to maintain so high a ratio of liquid reserve or assets that could be converted into cash immediately. Current commercial loans in Canada, the main source of a Canadian bank's profits, were reduced by $6,200,000, and the net profits for the year were $993,131, against $1,218,694 for 1914. These were still further reduced by appropriations for patriotic purposes, by the war taxes and by $250,000 written off for depreciation in the market value of securities. There is every probability that the latter amount will be in considerable part recovered in the future, when securities resume their normal value.

The appropriation for patriotic purposes indicate the sacrifices that the Bank is making for the general good in these exacting times, and the shareholders are amply compensated in the fact that the Bank's immense strength and constantly widening connections enable it to look forward to greatly enhanced prosperity as soon as business in Canada resumes its usual activity. Meanwhile a balance sheet such as this, after nearly nine months of war, is the best evidence of solidity and sound management that a bank could possibly have.

How Much!

English Guide (showing places of interest): "It was in this very room, sir, that Wellington received his first commission!"

American Tourist: "Indeed! And how much did he get?"

FROM ERIN'S GREEN ISLE

NEWS BY MAIL FROM IRELAND'S SHORES.

Happenings in the Emerald Isle of Interest to Irishmen.

Dr. John Edmonds, Nationalist M.P. for North Tipperary, has died at his residence, Drominagh, Borrisokane, after a short illness.

The Dublin Master Bakers' Association Committee have notified the public that the price of the 2-lb. loaf has now been raised to 7½ cents.

Owing to the attitude of a crowd of four hundred people the police were unable to effect the seizure of cattle lately near Longwatin.

A serious outbreak of fire occurred in Tyrone, resulting in the complete destruction of the saw and flax-scutching mills belonging to Mr. R. J. Bell.

Dr. J. J. Murray has been appointed certifying surgeon under the Factory and Workshop Acts for the Downpatrick district of County Down.

Mr. R. McN. Reid, son of Mr. Charles Reid of Dublin, the inventor of the Reid patent targets, has been gazetted as a second lieutenant to the Highland Light Infantry.

A ship's boat bearing the name SS Merse and the address Fleetwood, No. F D 62, was brought into Dublin by a patrol trawler, who found it drifting in the Irish Sea.

The efforts of thirty men were required to raise a tramcar from the body of an aged woman named Halloran who was run over and killed when crossing a street in Cork.

It is stated that there was an all-round increase in the trade of Dublin last year. Registered tonnage that entered the port was 2,427,207 or 651,374 tons more than the previous year.

Owing to the stringency of the money market, the Local Government Board have refused a loan of £20,000 to the Athlone Town Council for the repair and extension of the town waterworks.

The Harrison liner Wayfarer was brought to Queenstown after being torpedoed off the Scilly Islands by a German submarine. She had a large hole in the portside extending nearly forty feet in length.

The Right Hon. John Francis Moriarity, Lord Justice of Appeal in Ireland, has just died. Previous to his appointment as Lord Justice he had been Solicitor General and also Attorney General for Ireland.

The Dublin Corporation at a recent meeting adopted a resolution calling on the Local Government Board to hold an inquiry into the question of amalgamating the North and South Union Districts.

The death is announced of Captain Roger Hill, D.L., of Narrow Water, Warrenpoint. Deceased was one of the most extensive landowners in South Down, and also in the counties of Louth and Monaghan.

At a large and representative meeting of the Retail Purveyors' and Family Grocers' Association at Dublin, it was resolved that the price for Danish and Irish creamery butter be 24 cents per pound.

At a general meeting of the Dublin Committee for the Prevention and Relief of Distress, it was stated that the Local Government Board had sanctioned an increased scale of relief in connection with the National Relief Fund up to 15 per cent.

It requires no fewer than 1,550 miles of great embankments to preserve the Netherlands from the incursion of the sea.

The official inventory of the clocks at Windsor Castle fills two large volumes, and contains entries of 220 timepieces.

THE STANDARD ARTICLE SOLD EVERYWHERE REFUSE SUBSTITUTES

Pure Ice Cream

IT IS GENERALLY CONCEDED that Tuberculosis is transmitted by unpasteurized Ice Cream.

City Dairy Ice Cream is Pasteurized and therefore safe for even the youngest child.

The Purity and healthfulness of City Dairy Ice Cream is guarded in every way.

The matter of flavoring is an important one—City Dairy uses no imitations or synthetic flavors—we flavor our "Maple Walnut" with pure maple sugar—we use Pure Fruits in our "Fruit Ice Creams" and flavor our "Vanilla" with the Pure Mexican Vanilla Bean. The minute specks in City Dairy Vanilla Ice Cream are pieces of the ground bean—"the specks make the flavor." So far as we know we are the only manufacturers in Canada using the Pure vanilla bean, and no other make can compare with the delicate flavor of City Dairy Vanilla Ice Cream—the cost is about double but the selling price is the same.

Ask for the Ice Cream in which "the specks make the flavor"—City Dairy.

For Sale by discriminating shopkeepers everywhere.

City Dairy

Look for the Sign.

TORONTO.

We want an agent in every town.

A FINE COMPLEXION

May Be Had Through the Rich, Red Blood Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Actually Make.

A girl's complexion is something more than a matter to concern her vanity. It is an indication of the state of her health. Pallor in a growing girl means a thinning of the blood. Parents should be watchful of their daughters' complexions and should see to it that these danger signs are corrected. When a girl in her teens becomes pale and sallow, if she shows an inclination to tire easily, is listless and inattentive to her work or studies, she needs Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, a tonic which directly and specifically corrects the condition from which she is suffering. A chemical analysis of the blood of such a girl would show it to be deficient in just the elements that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills can supply, and which restore brightness to the eye and color to the cheeks. Miss Delina Arsenault, Urbainville, P.E.I., is one of the thousands of anaemic girls restored to health by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. She says: "I was attacked with anaemia, and was in such a miserable condition that I had to consult a doctor, and was under his care for several months, but without getting better. I was growing thinner every day, had dark circles around my eyes. I could hardly sleep at night, but tossed restlessly and got up in the morning with black anticipation of the day's miseries before me. I was always bothered with headaches and pains in the back and limbs. My appetite was poor and I frequently vomited what I did eat. My friends feared that I would not recover. I had often seen Dr. Williams' Pink Pills advertised, and finally decided to try them. I used altogether nine boxes, and they made me as well as ever I was in my life. All the pains and aches disappeared; my appetite returned. I could sleep soundly at night, and the color returned to my cheeks. I also gained seventeen pounds in weight. I am now always well, and for this happy condition I have to thank Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

You can get these Pills from any dealer in medicine or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

A Spring Poem.

'Twas in the gloomy Autumn when
I walked about the Zoo,
The creatures had the blues, except the leaping kangaroo
"How can you be so cheerful at this dismal time?" I cried,
"It's always Spring with me, my friend," the kangaroo replied.

Ask for Minard's and take no other.

Felt He Must Say Something.

Callers were at the door and Bobbie was told to show them into the parlor. He did so, and while his mother was fixing herself up he sat there rather embarrassed. Presently seeing the visitors glancing around the room, he said: "Well, what do you think of our stuff, anyway?"

Sore Eyes Granulated Eyelids, Eyes inflamed by exposure to Sun, Dust and Wind quickly relieved by Murine Eye Remedy. No Smarting, just Eye Comfort. At Your Druggist's 50c per Bottle. Murine Eye Salvain Tubes 25c. For Book of the Eye Free ask Druggists or Murine Eye Remedy Co., Chicago

Quite a lot of people work themselves nearly to death trying to find some way of making money without working.

HOME STUDY
Arts Courses only.
SUMMER SCHOOL
JULY and AUGUST
QUEEN'S UNIVERSITY
KINGSTON, ONTARIO
ARTS EDUCATION MEDICINE
SCHOOL OF MINING
MINING
CHEMICAL MECHANICAL
CIVIL ELECTRICAL ENGINEERING
GEO. Y. CHOWN, Registrar

Pays for Itself in Seven Days!

Mixing Concrete with this 1913 Model HAND MIXER saves you time, labor and money. You get a better mix with less cement. Write for catalogues.
WETTLAUFER BROS.,
Improved Concrete Machinery.
Dept. W. Spadina Ave., Toronto, Ontario.

A Lusitania Orphan.

Helen Smythe, rescued by Ernest Cowper, of Toronto, lost her father, mother, sister, brother, and aunt on ill-fated ship.

The Fastest Camera.

Capt. F. J. Rehr, of the United States Coast Artillery, has invented a camera that marks a great advance in the art of photographing swiftly-moving objects. It differs from the ordinary camera in size and in the mechanism of its shutter. It is almost four feet high. An electric motor that makes several thousand revolutions a second works the shutter; and since the speed of the motor can be accurately adjusted, the photographer can determine the length of exposure down to one five-thousandth of a second. The new camera has photographed mortar shells at the moment when they left the muzzle of the gun, and afterward, and has shown the curious "smoke ring" or "gas ring" that accompanies the projectile when it emerges from the gun. It may yet help to determine exactly what happens when a modern high-power shell ploughs its way through solid steel.

THE BEST MEDICINE FOR LITTLE ONES

Thousands of mothers say Baby's Own Tablets are the only medicine they would give their little ones. Among them is Mrs. Howard Hedgins, St. Catharines, Ont., who says: "I am a user of Baby's Own Tablets and think them the best medicine in the world for little ones." Once a mother has used the Tablets she will use no other medicine because she feels the Tablets are absolutely safe and knows they never fail to banish all the simple ailments of little ones. They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Trying on Bridges.

Does music weaken metallic or other bridges? This question recently asked of a well-known bridge builder brought this reply: "Measured vibration are more trying to any kind of bridges, and particularly to suspension bridges, than Irregular agitation. Music alone would not strain a bridge enough to injure it materially, but a regiment of troops keeping step to music when crossing a suspension bridge would subject it to a very severe strain. Consequently, it is customary to stop the music before troops reach the bridges, and let the men break step, and march more or less irregularly.

"The reason for all this is obvious. The structure naturally will suffer least strain when at rest. When in uniform motion the bridge acquires a momentum equal to its entire suspended weight multiplied by the velocity of the motion. It is manifest that, in the case of a heavy structure, a uniform downward vibration, be it ever so small, would develop a momentum of many tons in the direction of a breaking strain. The same disturbing forces acting irregularly, so as to counteract one another, would be far less trying to the structure.

The Electriquette.

More than four hundred diminutive electric vehicles are now in use on the exhibition grounds at San Francisco, where they are very popular. Their success probably means that they will displace the wheeled chairs of the seaside resorts. The new chair, which is known as the "electriquette," and which is propelled by a motor that derives its power from a small storage battery, is a comfortable and commodious vehicle seating two persons. It is controlled so easily that anybody can run one without previous experience.

Yes, Aimee, divorce prolongs life—for many a poor lawyer.

Charity begins at home—whether the home needs it or not.

He Meant Every Word He Spoke

JUST WHY J. A. HILL RECOMMENDS DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS.

He Had Sore Back and Other Symptoms of Kidney Disease and Got Real Benefit from Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Sixty-Nine Corners, Ont., June 7 (Special).—"I am recommending Dodd's Kidney Pills as the best of Medicines." The speaker was Mr. J. A. Hill, a well-known resident of this place, and he left no doubt in the minds of his hearers that he meant every word he said.

"Some time ago," Mr. Hill continued, "I had a very sore back. It started from a cold and I suffered for six months with it. I also had stiffness in my joints and cramps in my muscles and I felt heavy and sleepy after meals. My appetite was fitful and my limbs were heavy. Then I decided to try Dodd's Kidney Pills. I took four boxes and received great benefit from them. That's why I recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills."

Every one of Mr. Hill's symptoms showed that his trouble was of the Kidneys. That is why he got such benefit from Dodd's Kidney Pills. They are no cure all, but they do cure sick Kidneys, and the Kidneys are the keystone of health.

He Wanted Company.

Shortly after two o'clock one bitter cold morning a physician drove four miles in answer to a telephone call. On his arrival the man who had summoned him said:—

"Doctor, I ain't in any particular pain, but somehow or other I've got a feeling that death is nigh."

The doctor felt the man's pulse, and listened to his heart.

"Have you made your will?" he asked finally.

The man turned pale.

"Why, no, doctor. At my age—oh, doc, it ain't true——"

"Who's your lawyer?"

"Higginbotham, but——"

Then you had better send for him at once."

The patient, white and trembling, went to the phone.

"Who's your pastor?" continued the doctor.

"The Rev. Kellog M. Brown," mumbled the patient. "But, doctor, do you think——"

"Send for him immediately. Your father, too, should be summoned also, your——"

"Say, doctor, do you really think I'm going to die?" The man began to blubber.

The doctor looked at him hard.

"No, I don't," he replied grimly, "there's nothing at all the matter with you, but I'd hate to be the only man you've made a fool of on a night like this."

Red Sea Colored by Weeds.

The drowning of Pharoah and his host in the Red Sea had nothing to do with its name. It takes this from a peculiar reddish color remarked at certain seasons of the year in parts of this sea, due to marine plants, or to reddish animalculae, called by sailors "whale feed," which float on it like scum; or to the reefs of red coral which abound in many parts of it; or, possibly, to the fact that its upper course was one of the boundaries of Edom, "the red." No biblical scholar of any repute has ever asserted that the sea took its name from the overthrow of Pharoah.

GET POWER

The Supply Comes From Food.

If we get power from food, why not strive to get all the power we can. That is only possible by selecting food that exactly fits the requirements of the body.

"Not knowing how to select the right food to fit my needs, I suffered grievously for a long time from stomach trouble," writes a lady from a little Western town.

"It seemed as if I would never be able to find out the sort of food that was best for me. Hardly anything that I could eat would stay on my stomach. Every attempt gave me heart-burn and filled my stomach with gas. I got thinner and thinner until I literally became a living skeleton and in time was compelled to keep to my bed.

"A few months ago I was persuaded to try Grape-Nuts food, and it had such good effect from the very beginning that I kept up its use. I was surprised at the ease with which I digested it. It proved to be just what I needed.

"All my unpleasant symptoms, the heart-burn, the inflated feeling which gave me so much pain, disappeared. My weight gradually increased from 98 to 110 lbs., my figure rounded out, my strength came back, and I am now able to do my housework and enjoy it. Grape-Nuts did it."

A ten days trial will show anyone some facts about food.

Name given by Canadian Postum Co., Windsor, Ont. Read, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a Reason."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

24-HOUR SYSTEM.

Paper Dials Were Issued in 1886 By the C.P.R.

A souvenir of the early days of the C.P.R., in the shape of one of the original watch dials which the company put out when it introduced 24 o'clock time in the West, is in possession of one of the officials.

In 1886 the company determined to introduce the 24-hour system on the western divisions; and to give emphasis to the new departure, and, at the same time, help the memory of all concerned, it issued paper dials with the whole 24 hours completing the day, which were to be worn on the watches of the employees, to familiarize them with the new method. This setting up of the new time standard was deemed, at the time, a radical innovation, calculated to disturb the all conservative and timid creatures who dreaded change. A certain sensation was produced at the time; it passed; the business went on its way; the western employees became acquainted with the new time standard, and accepted it as a matter of course; but the sight of one of the old dial plates, which everybody was showing as a curiosity in 1886, as something which was going to revolutionize the common life of the people, recalls the eagerness of the company to arrest the attention, though, of course, the change was advantageous in itself.

How a Sick Woman Can Regain Health

READ THIS VERY CAREFULLY.

"For years I was thin and delicate. I lost color and was easily tired; a yellow pallor, pimples and blotches on my face were not only mortifying to my feelings, but because I thought my skin would never look nice again I grew despondent. Then my appetite failed. I grew very weak. Various remedies, pills, tonics and tablets I tried without permanent benefit. A visit to my sister put into my hands a box of Dr. Hamilton's Pills. She placed reliance upon them and now that they have made me a well woman I would not be without them whatever they might cost. I found Dr. Hamilton's Pills by their mild yet searching action very suitable to the delicate character of a woman's nature. They never once griped me, yet they established regularity. My appetite grew keen—my blood red and pure—heavy rings under my eyes disappeared and to-day my skin is as clear and unwrinkled as when I was a girl. Dr. Hamilton's Pills did it all."

The above straightforward letter from Mrs. J. Y. Todd, wife of a well-known miller in Rogersville, is proof sufficient that Dr. Hamilton's Pills are a wonderful woman's medicine. Use no other pill but Dr. Hamilton's, 25c per box. All dealers or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ontario.

Until the war Belgium, with a population of 7½ millions, was one of the most densely populated countries in the world.

At the Tamworth Y.M.C.A. Boys' Camp, held at Tooket Lake in August, I found MINARD'S LINIMENT most beneficial for sun burn, an immediate relief for colic and toothache.
ALFRED STOKES,
General Secy.

Mr. Hall Caine began life as an architect.

Minard's Liniment used by Physicians.

Income tax has been levied in France for the first time this year.

CUTTEN & FOSTER
AUTO AND BOAT TOPS
Ford owners write for our catalogue.
SEARS-CROSS
Speedometer Station.
179 Queen Street West,
TORONTO, - ONT.

JUST BEFORE BISMARK FELL.

Fourth Generation of Hohenzollern Dancing to His Music.

Bismark's dismissal from office, which many have regarded as one of the great mistakes of the Kaiser's life, seems to have taken the Iron Chancellor by surprise, but he might well have taken warning from a little incident, recorded by Grant Duff, which occurred just before his fall.

Going to see the emperor one morning, he was requested to wait, which he did in an antechamber where the little Crown Prince and his brothers were amusing themselves. They wished him to dance with them and on his declaring himself too old, insisted on his playing the piano while they danced. He sat down to the instrument and played till the Kaiser entered. "So," was the royal greeting, "here is the fourth generation of the Hohenzollern which has to dance to your playing!"

Sore Corns Go! Absolutely Painless
No cutting, no plasters or pads to press the sore spot. Putnam's Extractor makes the corn go without pain. Takes out the sting over-night. Never fails—leaves no scar. Get a 25c. bottle of Putnam's Corn Extractor to-day.

Occupiers of houses in London are liable to a penalty of twenty shillings a day if they allow a chimney to catch fire.

Minard's Liniment Lumberman's Friend

"Look here, you're the fellow who took my overcoat from the club the other day." "All a mistake, of course. Besides, I left a much better one." "I know you did—but it was too-small."

Keep Minard's Liniment in the house.

From 4,000 to 7,000 men form a brigade of infantry; with cavalry the number is from 1,000 to 2,000.

KERMATH Marine Engines
"America's Standard 4 Cycle Marine Motor"
(Cycle Engine Manufacturers' Association)
Write for Catalog 28 Desk Kermath Mfg. Co.

WEAR FLEET FOOT SHOES for Every Sport and Recreation
Sold by all good shoe dealers
Worn by every member of the family

More than 800,000 bushels of Tasmanian apples have been shipped to Great Britain in one year.

SEED POTATOES.

EARLY IRISH COBBLER POTATOES, specially selected and Government inspected for seed. Only limited quantity. Price, One Dollar per bushel f.o.b. Brampton. Also Commodore Pride and New Ideal, two excellent new potatoes. Price, Two Dollars per bushel. Special prices for large quantity. Cash must accompany all orders. H. W. Dawes, Brampton.

NEWSPAPERS FOR SALE.

PROFIT-MAKING NEWS AND JOB OFFICES for sale in good Ontario towns. The most useful and interesting of all businesses. Full information on application to Wilson Publishing Company, 73 West Adelaide St., Toronto.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING

WANTED—LADY OR GENTLEMAN OF good standing in every neighborhood of Ontario and Quebec Provinces, to obtain list of reliable people who are interested in saving money during these war times on purchases of staple merchandise selected from illustrated catalogue of established Montreal Departmental Store. To the right persons we offer attractive remuneration. Write immediately giving name, residence, occupation, with references. Character is of more importance than experience. Address P. O. Box 66, Montreal.

MISCELLANEOUS

IN SEALED VIOLET CREAM, MAGIC of beautifier Price 1c. Viodora Company, Orillia.

CANCER, TUMORS, LUPUS, ETC., internal and external, cured without pain by our home treatment. Write us before too late. Dr. Hoffman Medical Co., Limited, Collingwood, Ont.

"Overstern" V Bottom Motor Boat $55.00
Freight Prepaid to any Railway Station in Ontario. Length 15 Ft., Beam 3 Ft. 9 In., Depth 1 Ft. 6 In. ANY MOTOR FITS.
Specification No. 13B giving engine prices on request. Get our quotations on—The Petenang Line" Commercial and Pleasure Launches, Row boats and Canoes.
THE GIDLEY BOAT CO., LIMITED, PENETANG, CAN.

COOK IN A COOL KITCHEN
DON'T swelter over a hot range this summer. The NEW PERFECTION Oil Cookstove keeps your kitchen cool and clean and does away with all the ash-pan, coal-hod drudgery of the coal range.
THE NEW PERFECTION lights like gas, regulates like gas, and cooks like gas. It is gas stove comfort with kerosene oil.
NEW PERFECTIONS are sold in 1, 2, 3 and 4 burner sizes by dealers everywhere. If your dealer cannot supply you, write us direct.
ROYALITE OIL GIVES BEST RESULTS
NEW PERFECTION OIL COOK STOVES
"NOW SERVING 12,000 HOMES"
THE IMPERIAL OIL COMPANY
Limited

BRANCHES IN ALL CITIES
Made in Canada

PETERBOROUGH CANOE CO. LTD.
THE Peterborough Canoe
PETERBOROUGH, CANADA
Ask for boats with this Trade Mark.
Peterborough Canoes
Always look for the Trade Mark at the Bow
This trade mark on a Peterborough Canoe is your assurance of the highest workmanship and the most materials that money can buy. Whether it be a canoe or skiff. Designed by practical builders, strength and beauty.
Our painted Basswood, Cedar and Cedar Rib and Canvas Covered qualities. Write for Catalogue. The Peterborough Canoe Co., Limited, Peterborough, Canada.

SINCLAIR'S

The Hardware Store of Better Values

Something new in Oil Cook Stoves. Come in and inspect this new stove.

This Stove Burns

Oil or Gasoline

"New Perfection" Oil Cook Stoves

2 Burner $8, 3-Burner $11
Ovens $1.50 and $3.00

The Fly he is naughty beast,
He ought to die to say the least.

Screen Doors and Windows

Price of DOORS
$1 25, $1 50, $1 90, $2 25, $2 50
Complete

WINDOWS at 15c, 25c, 30c, 35c, 40c and 60c

A Screen for every window

If you want to be healthy and wise
Don't forget to swat the flies.

BOTH Sinclair's Hardware PHONES

The City Bakery

Is always ready to supply your needs. Why worry and melt over a hot fire? We are here to do your Baking for you. Let us try.

Other than baking we try to keep a fresh supply of Greens and Fruit on hand—as well as a full stock of Fresh Groceries.

We would appreciate it if the public would make their purchases early on Thursdays as it is impossible for us to maintain a strict observance of the Thursday half-holiday on account of our Ice Cream Parlor which will be open every Thursday evening.

We need your trade. Butter and Eggs for Cash or Trade. Dutch Set Onions for sale.

Bruce and Bell 'Phones

F. S. McLACHLAN

SECOND CON. ELDERSLIE

Statute labor is the order of the day.

Mr and Mrs A McGregor visited Paisley friends on Sunday week.

Miss Campbell who has been visiting Sullivan friends for a few days, has returned to her home on this con.

The recent rains have brightened the farmers' prospects, and the grain is growing nicely now.

Miss Turner of Elmwood visited at the home of her uncle Robt. Jefkins on Sunday.

The members of the P. School boards of No. 2 and 12 purpose holding a union picnic on June 30th in Alex. Comt ell's bush. A committee is to meet this Wednesday evening to make final arrangements. Particulars later.

Children's day on June 13th was observed in the 2nd con S.S. by the largest attendance that has been registered for a great many years, it reaching almost the 100 mark. A program of choruses and recitations was well rendered by the scholars. The Superintendent Mr C J Halliday delivered an able address on "Christ and Childhood. The collection amounting to about $7 is to be donated to the Bible Society fund for the purchasing of Khaki Bibles for Canadian soldiers. The school will close the term on June 27th by holding a "loyalty" service to which all the residents of this section are cordially invited.

Several residents of this community have received interesting letters from Jas Watt who is at present at Sandling camp, about 60 miles from London, England. Jim was very ill for some time after landing and was in Bristol Hospital. He expects they will soon be sent to the front. They are about 5 hours distant from the firing line and can hear the cannons and guns all the time. His well-wishers here hope that he may have a safe return home.

Children Cry
FOR FLETCHER'S
CASTORIA

WILLOW CREEK

Rev Mr Hope, of Roseville, conduced services at the U B church Sunday evening.

Miss Cassie Lewis, of the 10th con Elderslie, is visiting at the home of her sister, Mrs Wm Wrightson

Mr Albert Gibson and his sister Miss Alice, of the 7th Kincardine, visited at Mr Wm Downey's on Sunday.

We have two more recruits on our line to the autocrat club, Councillor Baker and Mr J W Hyde having purchased new Ford touring cars.

Mrs Wm Wrightson is visiting at Mr John Sparrow's, Port Elgin.

Road work is the order of the day, the road grader being very much in evidence. We are also glad to note that more attention is being paid to our sideroads. It is coming to them, as they have been badly neglected in the past, but big efforts are being made by our pathmasters to put them in better repair.

PINKERTON

Miss Lenora Clark returned to Harriston on Tuesday after a short visit at her home here.

A gloom was cast over the village and community by the sad and untimely death of Mrs Cecil Garland on Saturday morning after only a few days' illness. The funeral, which was held on Monday afternoon, was conducted by Rev Mr Reith assisted by Rev Mr Gale, and was very largely attended. The heartfelt sympathy of the community goes out to the bereaved husband and infant son and to the sorrowing father and mother.

Messrs Melville Reid and Petrie Moffat, of Stratford and North Bay Normals respectively, have finished their course and are holidaying at their homes here. We wish them every success.

The garden party which was advertised for Monday night was postponed until Tuesday night.

Anniversary services were held in the Presbyterian church here on Sunday last, both morning and evening services being largely attended. Rev Mr McLennan, of Yorkton, Sask, gave two eloquent addresses, and special music was rendered by the choir.

The football game which was held in Glamis on Thursday evening resulted in a tie, neither side being able to score.

Mr George Chick and Rev Mr Gale have both purchased new drivers.

Mrs Geo Johnston, Mrs Nokes and Mrs Robt McFadyen of Toronto, also Mrs J B Campbell and Mrs H S Sanderson of Chesley, attended the funeral of the late Mrs Cecil Garland.

Children Cry
FOR FLETCHER'S
CASTORIA

CARGILL

Mr C W Keeling spent the week end with Mrs Keeling in Listowel.

Mr and Mrs Thos Grice, Mr and Mrs Saunders and Mr Harvey Grice motored to Kincardine on Sunday.

A rink of our bowlers journeyed to Owen Sound last Thursday to play for the Bowman trophy, which they were successful in winning. The score was 23-19. We expect Wiarton to play here on Wednesday. C W Keeling was skip of the winning rink and the other players were John Clancy, Jas Garland, M L Zeigler.

Mr Wm Kyle of Chesley spent a few days last week at the home of Mr W D Cargill here.

Mrs Jas Donnelly of Chepstow spent last week at the home of Mr Jos Clancy.

Mr E A Ruttel spent the week end at his home in Kincardine.

Rev and Mrs W J Fiddes returned this week after attending conference and visiting friends in Cayuga.

Mr Jas Brown, foreman of the planing mill, spent a few days in Midland this week and returned on Monday with his car.

Mrs Robt Irving of Paisley is visiting at the home of Mr F L Martin.

—Clubbing rates with all the city dailies and weeklies.

CANTIRE

The recent heavy rains will not only have a beneficial effect on the growing crops but will be a check on the grasshoppers which promised an abundant crop. Despite the showery weather we are experiencing at the present time hay is going to be a light crop.

McTavish & Anderson have finished their cut of logs at the mill for this season.

Cantire Sunday School will co-operate with Salem, Williscroft and Paisley Baptist Churches in holding a picnic in John McDermid's bush on the 8th con on June 25th.

Mr and Mrs Robt Muir and son Norman spent a week visiting at Neil and Don Reid's.

Contractor McKinnon has been putting the finishing touches on the three bridges he erected last fall. By appearance of the work done Elderslie council made no mistake in introducing this contractor to the ratepayers of this township.

Robert Alexander had a valuable colt killed during last Monday's thunderstorm.

Mr Wm Alexander is having an artesian well drilled.

Jas Blue had the misfortune to lose a fine mare from lockjaw.

Cantire beef eaters have had their appetites satiated. The beef ring commenced the second week in June.

That Pte John Blackburn who was attached to the 10th Battalion, is among the missing was the substance of a telegram from Ottawa received by the Blackburn family. This brings the war very near, as John is a son of Mrs Blackburn of this line. He enlisted at Winnipeg.

TURNERS

Miss Mary Pollock of Aberdour passed away on June 1st. She was the eldest daughter of Mr Archibald Pollock, Sr., and was in her 59th year. Deceased had been ill for some time with dropsy and this trouble was the cause of her death. She was the companion and home maker for her aged father, and her demise will be greatly felt by him. She was a member in the U. B. church and was a woman greatly liked in the community. The funeral was held on June the 4th to Port Elgin cemetery, the service being conducted by the Rev. Mr Sawers.

Miss Janet Dier of Park Head is visiting her grand father Mr Henry Dier.

Hon Duncan Marshall was in this vicinity one day buying pure bred stock for Alberta.

Mr Jas Wallace lost a valuable mare last week.

Mr J Durward and daughter Hazel of Kincardine attended the funeral of the late Miss Mary Pollock.

Miss King of Detroit is spending a few days with friends here.

Messrs Jas Scott and Archie Pollock, Jr, were down at Walkerton last week on the Jury.

Quite a number from around here took in the picnic on Saturday. All report a good time.

Miss Geddes of Burgoyne was spending a few days with her cousin Miss Ethel Christie.

Mr Leeder was in this vicinity sawing wood.

GLAMIS

Mr and Mrs Jas Thompson and family have the sympathy of their many friends here in the death of their daughter, Mrs Cecil Garland of Pinkerton, who passed away at her residence on Saturday morning, June 12th, at the age of 24 years and 8 months. Her death came as a sudden blow to many as she was so well known and highly respected. The very large funeral held on Monday to Purdy's cemetery showed in what high esteem she was held by all.

Mr Mac McInnes, of Spokane, Wash, was visiting his mother and friends on the 2nd con Bruce lately.

Mrs Robert McFadyen and Mrs F Beaton of Toronto came up to attend the funeral of the late Mrs Garland.

Miss Conday of Enniskillen spent the week end with Mabel Kirktown at the latter's home.

Students from High School who spent Saturday and Sunday at their homes here were: Misses Nettie Gunn, Mary Webb and Alberta Kirktown.

Mr Earl Percy from Tiverton Sundayed at his home here.

Miss Pickard of Guelph is visiting her neice Mrs J K McLennan.

Captain Knox and wife of Owen Sound are visiting at Captain Peter McKinnon's.

Mrs Montgomery, of Holland, spent last week with her parents here, Mr and Mrs Kirkton.

Mr Duncan McLean, of Detroit, is renewing old acquaintances in Glamis.

We welcome an addition to the population of our burg in the person of W Hammond of Detroit, veterinary surgeon, who is coming to practice here, and will move his family soon to Mr Mal McLean's house on the hill.

Owing to the sudden and unexpected death of Mrs Garland, the Oddfellows of this place postponed their service which was announced to take place next Sunday in the Baptist church. The service will now be held some time in July.

CASTORIA

For Infants and Children
In Use For Over 30 Years
Always bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher

BRANT COUNCIL

The municipal council of the township of Brant met at the township hall on Tuesday the 25th day of May. Members all present. Minutes of last meeting read and adopted.

Rowand—Monto—That the members of this council do now go into a committee of the whole, with the reeve in the chair, as a Court of Revision, to determine the appeals against the assessment roll for the current year.—Carried.

Rowand—Findlay—That after considering the appeals against the assessment roll we authorize the clerk to make the following changes, with red ink, in the roll, and that in all the other appeals the assessment be sustained, as follows.—Carried.

John I. George, assessment reduced		$100 00
P McGarrity, assessment reduced		200 00
R H Fortune, "	"	50 00
G A Fortune, "	"	100 00
John F Stewart, "	"	100 00
Jas A Gregg, "	"	400 00
Jas Alexander, "	"	500 00
Gilbert Hettrick, "	"	700 00
John Monk, "	"	100 00
Wm Craig, "	"	200 00
John Routledge, "	"	300 00
August Pletsch, "	"	200 00
Michael Hauck, "	"	50 00
Oliver McConnell, "	"	200 00
Archie Weir, "	"	200 00

Willoughby—Rowand—That this council do now adjourn as a Court of Revision and consider general business.—Carried.

Findlay—Monto—That the assessment roll be accepted and that John Bierworth be paid his salary of $100.—Carried.

Rowand—Findlay—That the customary grant of $10 each be made to the Cargill and Elmwood public libraries.—Carried.

Monto—Willoughby—That the reeve and clerk issue orders on the treasurer for all accounts passed at this meeting of council, viz:

H J Ernest, wire fence, D R west of Hanover	$81 68
Geo Jacklin, placing culvert in lot 26, con 13	3 50
Chas Pegelo, grading	46 75
John Mortimer, putting in culvert lot 15, con 10	7 50
Peter McGarrity, filling washout lot 15, con 12	1 50
Sawyer-Massey Co, for new grader 223
Exeter Mfg Co, two road drags	45 00
Mrs Agnes Powers, interest on borrowed money	1 35
W G Hastie, trees Jenkinck, township line work	3 00
Archie Catto, gravel account in arrears	3 60
John Clancy, library grant, Cargill	100 00
Rev Alex Leslie, library grant, Elmwood	100 00
Edward Loscar, to order of John Bierworth	50 00
John Bierworth, salary as assessor	41 00
Martin Mock, disinfecting re B of Health	8 40
Wm Rowand, B of H meeting	2 30
Dr Murray, "	3 00
M A McCallum, "	2 35
R S Nesbitt, B of H and council meeting, freight on drugs	6 82
W A Rowand, council meeting and freight on grader	18 85
D Willoughby, council meeting	3 30
Mano Monto, "	2 85
J W Findlay, "	2 65

Rowand—Willoughby—That this council do now adjourn to meet on Monday, the 7th day of June, for the transaction of general business.—Carried.

The municipal council of the township of Brant met at the township hall on Monday, the 7th day of June. Members all present. Minutes of last meeting read and declared correct.

Rowand—Monto—That the sum of $1000 be expended on the roads during the current year under the supervision of the road commissioners in their respective divisions as follows: R S Nesbitt $300, David Willoughby $275, J W Findlay $225, Mano Monto $150, W A Rowand $300.—Carried.

Findlay—Willoughby—That this council hereby authorize the township treasurer to draw from the reserve fund in the Royal Bank at Cargill from time to time as required the sum of $3200.—Carried.

Findlay—Rowand—That lots 24, 25, 26 and 27 on con 3 north, and lots 15 and 16 on con 4, and lots 15, 16 and 17 on con 5 be changed from polling subdivision No 2, and that the Clerk include this additional change in By law authorized by this Council.—Carried

Findlay—Monto—That by-law No. 71, A D 1915, authorizing alterations in a number of Polling Sub-Divisions, be now read the usual number of times and finally passed.—Carried.

Monto—Rowand—That the half yearly report of the Treasurer of this Township as read be adopted.—Carried.

Rowand—Monto—That the Reeve and Clerk issue orders on the Treasurer for all accounts passed at this meeting of Council, viz: as follows.—Carried.

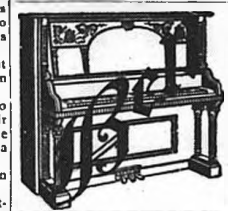
Chris Pegelo, grading	$38 40
Chesley Enterprise, advertising, 50c; J L Dobney, damage to motor cycle owing to broken culvert, $10; Anthony Ernest, opening ditch, part lot 65, con 4, south	55 55
W H Hastie, bal. for work on townline B and B	1 15
R S Nesbitt, council meeting, $2 30; D Willoughby, $3 30; W A Rowand, $2 85; J W Findlay, $2 65; Jas Coulter, half year's salary and postage, $103 18

Willoughby—Rowand—That this council do now adjourn to meet at the Township Hall on Tuesday, the 13th day of July, 1915, for the transaction of general business.—Carried.

M. A. McCALLUM, Clerk.

ONLY SIXTEEN, GIRL VERY SICK

Tells How She Was Made Well by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.



New Orleans, La.—"I take pleasure in writing these lines to express my gratitude to you. I am only 16 years old and work in a tobacco factory. I have been a very sick girl but I have improved wonderfully since taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and am now looking fine and feeling a thousand times better."—Miss AMELIA JAQUILLARD, 3361 Tchoupitoulas St., New Orleans, La.

St. Clair, Pa.—"My mother was alarmed because I was troubled with suppression and had pains in my back and side, and severe headaches. I had pimples on my face, my complexion was sallow, my sleep was disturbed, I had nervous spells, was very tired and had no ambition. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has worked like a charm in my case and has regulated me. I worked in a mill among hundreds of girls and have recommended your medicine to many of them."—Miss ESTELLA MAGUIRE, 110 Thwing St., St. Clair, Pa.

There is nothing that teaches more than experience. Therefore, such letters from girls who have suffered and were restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound should be a lesson to others. The same remedy is within reach of all.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

Travel where you will—in Canada or abroad—you find the

BELL PIANO

a leader in the realm of music

If you would have the best, it must be a BELL.

Sewing Machines, Phonographs and Records

Records on sale at A. T. Bonathan's store

Full information for the asking from

PETER McKINNON, Agt., Paisley

Steele's for

Horse Collars, Sweat Pads, Rubber Lap Rugs, Whips, Auto Plush Rugs, Star Harness Soap, Bickmore's Gall Cure. Axle Grease

Our Harness includes quality, durability, appearance and high class workmanship found in no other makes of Harness.

Baggage Trunks, Suit Cases, Club Bags, Grips. Good assortment and close prices.

Harness parts and Repairing our Specialty

J. H. STEELE

Fall Term Opens Sept. First

ELLIOTT Business College

TORONTO — ONT.

Best to day a stronger hold upon the public confidence than ever before. Thorough Training for choice positions in Business gets us given in all our Departments. This college does not ask for a better reputation than it has now. We place many students in positions each year. Write to day for large catalogues.

W. J. ELLIOTT, Principal. Cor. Yonge and Charles Streets.

W. H. BAKER

Having opened a shop in Sinclair's old hardware building, Queen St North, we are prepared to do all kinds of

Sign and Carriage Painting

HOUSE DECORATING AND PAPER-HANGING, as usual. Prices right.

ROBT. IRVING
PLASTERER

SEE Robt. Irving the Plasterer before letting any work in this line. Separate estimates for all kinds of plastering, or with Jas Dewar for whole contracts for erection of buildings.

R. T. ROBINSO
CARPENTER AND CONTRACTOR

ESTIMATES furnished for the erection of and any class of building. Large or small contracts undertaken.

Address Chesley or Cargill P.O

PURDY'S LIVERY

Rates Reasonable, and every effort made to satisfy

F. PURDY

"Only a Scrap of Paper"

Only a scrap of paper—A LIFE INSURANCE APPLICATION—but a Briton's signature was there, and his defenceless widow and children were saved from poverty and dependence by the resources of a staunch life insurance company.

THE BEST INSURANCE AT LOWEST NET COST is furnished by

of Waterloo, Ont.

Its profits to policy-holders are unexcelled. Its strength is impregnable. To ensure the safety of your wife and children PLACE INSURANCE PROTECTION ON YOUR LIFE.

Write for a sample "SCRAP OF PAPER"

—The Presbyterian General Assembly decided to submit the question of church union to the people of that denomination, the vote in favor of this step being a very large one, and the opposition of small numerical strength.

Treasurer 20 Years

Norman Robertson is completing his 20th year as treasurer of the County of Bruce. This means that he has been handling the county money for half the length of time this county has been in existence, for according to Norman Robertson's History of Bruce, the provisional County of Bruce was organized at a meeting in Southampton on March 19th, 1857.

The Paisley Advocate.

D. McKENZIE, Publisher
Vol. 47—No. *

PAISLEY, ONTARIO, JUNE 24, 1915

$1.00 per Annum in Advance
$1.25 If not so paid

Men's and Boys' Clothing

A NEW line of Men's and Boys' Clothing of the newest designs and most up-to-date patterns on the market, suitable for fine wear and business, at prices that will suit any pocketbook. We ask you to come in and look through our lines. A FEW ODD SUITS AT HALF PRICE.

Gents' Furnishings at Popular Prices

Clearing out a line of

Ginghams and Muslins

15c to 25c values at 10c

In Our Millinery Department

You will find $5, $6 and $7 shapes at 50c

Wool Wanted

For which we will pay the Highest Price in Cash or Trade

Fresh Groceries Every Week

Highest Prices for Farm Produce

M. J. CAMPBELL

W. H. McFarlane's Old Stand : : Paisley

New Spring Suitings

See our goods and styles before buying. We have a large stock to choose from.

We Make a Specialty of . . .

Ladies' Tailoring

No trying on or worrying. Just leave your measure and we will attend to the rest. All the newest goods and latest styles from which to make your selection. Satisfaction guaranteed.

I. S. Cruickshank

City Dairy

Ice Cream

Boot Bargains at Bonathan's

The last chance to buy Shoes at cost price. We have still a few pairs that have got to be sold. Also an assortment of New Shoes just in, in the latest summer styles, guaranteed to fit. We have bought these to fill out the vacant places in our stock, and are offering them at close prices, too, to help dispose of the whole stock. We don't intend to keep Shoes when this stock is sold out, and we want to do it quick, so offer attractive bargains to complete the clean-up.

Congoleum, the cheap but servicable Floor Covering

The Clay Lawn Dryer just the thing to do away with laborious clothes hanging.

Fresh Groceries, Vegetables & Fruits

A. T. BONATHAN

Hyde's Old Stand Successor to W. S. Mitchell

—Private funds to loan.
D. FORRESTER.

—Wilkinson plows and repairs at P. Carter & Son's.

—Grand Concert on Race Night, June 24th.

—Marriage licenses issued and money to loan. T. H. GEORGE.

—Men's work shirts, all sizes and colors at 48c. Ballachey, Laidlaw & Co.

—Full lines of fine engagement and wedding rings at I. Shoemaker's jewellery store.

—Summer dress goods in newest ideas, the nicest we can get. Ballachey, Laidlaw & Co.

—Highest prices paid for hides and sheepskins. H. E. McGregor, Butcher, Steele Block.

—Wool—We are paying 32c. for washed wool, or goods 31c. cash. Ballachey, Laidlaw & Co.

—Another car of Hanover cement on hand, which I am selling right off the car. Alex. McKeown, Elora Grove.

—FOR SALE—Pure bred heavy draft mare, 5 yrs old, eligible for registration. J. MAURER, Paisley.

—A few hats left yet in our millinery department. Clearing prices. Ballachey, Laidlaw & Co.

—Bring in that old buggy and have it repainted to look as good as new. W. JACK, Gibson's old store, Paisley.

—Highest price for beefhides, horsehides, calfskins, sheepskins, tallow, &c. P. OLTSHER, Paisley Meat Market.

—"Rough on Rats" clears out Rats, Mice, etc. Don't die in the house. 15c and 25c at drug and country stores.

—Repainting and retrimming of all kinds of vehicles at W. Jack's new paint shop, Gibson's old store, Paisley.

—Milk for sale at 5c. quart, to those who send for it. Can supply 15 to 20 quarts a day. J. MAURER, Queen St. north.

—The Farmers' Central Mutual Fire Insurance Co. of Walkerton has appointed Mr. J. T. Richardson of Paisley their agent for this district.

—If you have a guest at your home, are going out of town for a visit, or know of any interesting news, kindly let us hear from you. We will always appreciate such favors.

—Just received at E. Stevenson's an assortment of wipes that will surely please. Come and select your choice. Tobaccos, stationery, also our wonderful salve that cures hurts and sores, soothing for burns.

—HOMESEEKERS' EXCURSIONS every Tuesday up to and including October 26 to the Canadian Northwest. For tickets, rates, etc., apply at the Canadian Pacific Railway ticket office, W. H. McFarlane's old stand, Paisley.

—Five Roses, Purity or, Purity, Cream of the West, and Start's high-grade flours, also Bran and Shorts, Blatchford's Sugar and Flax, Caldwell's Molasses Meal, and full line of Poultry Foods and Tonics. Always in the market for coarse grains. E. G. ECKEL.

—The Continuation school got back at the Baptist baseball team on Monday, when they won the second match of the season by the score of 10 to 6.

—At a meeting of the Presbyterian Bible Class at Dr. Allen's on Monday evening, Mr. R. J. Chisholm, late assistant Continuation teacher, was presented with a tie-pin as a parting memento from his friends here. A complimentary address accompanied the presentation. Mr. Chisholm has been a citizen of Paisley as well as an efficient teacher.

—Messrs. Wm. and Sam Sergison, who were visiting their home here for some time, have purchased a bakery and confectionery business in St. Thomas. This stalwart and affable pair of Paisley boys have considerable experience in these lines, and there is no doubt but they will meet with success in their venture.

—Port Elgin Celebration Committee have, as usual, a big drawing card for Dominion Day. Their programme this year includes big purses for horse racing, men's relay race, also Highland dancing, day fireworks, and a great pyrotechnical display at night. For full particulars, railway time-table and rates, &c., see the large adv. in this issue of THE ADVOCATE.

—A real "Paisley body" gave THE ADVOCATE a call on Monday. Mr. John Loudon, now of Guelph, twelve years ago came to this country from Paisley, Scotland. Being up to Southampton on a fortnight's visit, he took a trip down to view the place named after his native city. He was pleased with the appearance of the new Paisley and found it to be a bigger toon than he expected to see.

Paisley Races Thursday

—Roddie McLennan is home from Toronto for holidays.

—Mr. W. B. Sain, of Detroit, visited home on Monday night.

—Miss Lucille Fraser is home from Packenham for the holidays.

—Mr. Robt Fullerton was visiting friends in Drayton over Sunday.

—Mr. and Mrs. George Last and family spent Sunday visiting Hanover friends.

—Mrs R Summerville and son, of Green Bay, Ont, were guestast Mr John Sharpe's last week.

—Messrs Chas Johnston and Geo Fullerton motored to Dundalk on Saturday, returning Monday.

—Miss Bessie Barrie has returned to Toronto after a month's vacation with her parents at Lovat

—Miss Claybourne, of Toronto, has been the guest of Miss Lemont, of Lovat, for the past three weeks.

—Mr. and Mrs Frank Gibson, of Berlin, are spending vacation at the home of his father, the town clerk.

—Mr. J. I. Patterson, of Guelph, was a visitor at the home of Mr. W. R. Johnson, 18th Greenock, over Sunday.

—Miss Munn, who has been visiting her parents on Goldie St. for some time, left for Wroxton, Sask., a few days ago.

—Mr. Norval Kyle, of the Standard Bank staff at Windsor, is holidaying in town, at the home of his mother, Mrs. P. Purdy.

—Mr. Norman Allen is home from Toronto University. In the recent exams Norman secured second class teacher's standing.

—Mr. John McBeath of Elderslie, Miss Isabel and Alex were visiting friends in Sydenham, Owen Sound and Parkhead last week

—The Presbyterian young men have organized a baseball club, and will play a match with the Regulars at the union picnic at Gillies Hill on Friday.

—Rev. W. H. Sterne, of Southampton, late of the Cargill circuit, has been granted a year's leave of absence by the conference, and will move to Perigus.

—Mrs Jacob Fletcher, of both Bruce, went to Campbellford last week to visit a sister there who is seriously ill. She is accompanied by her daughter, Mrs. R. Fullerton

—Mr. Hugh McKerracher leaves on Thursday morning for the Panama Exposition at San Francisco. He goes via Denver and Salt Lake City, and will return by Northern Pacific

—Next Sunday is Flower and Flag Sunday in the Church of the Ascension when a service will be held for the children at 11 a.m. A liberal offering is requested in behalf of the Sunday School.

—Mrs. C. H. Burns, of Toronto, will address an Institute meeting in Putnam's Hall, on Tuesday, June 29th, on a subject pertaining to the home. Ladies of the town and vicinity are cordially invited to attend.

—THE ADVOCATE last week announced the C.O.F. church service for the wrong date. The Order will attend Knox church on Sunday, June 27th. Members will meet at the I.O.O.F. hall at 10.30 and march to the church.

—Mr. McCuaig, of Toronto, is spending vacation visiting his brother at Mr. John Turner's in Elderslie. Mr. McCuaig is tenor soloist in a leading city choir, and on Sunday morning next will sing at the C.O.F. service in Knox Church.

—Rev. L. W. Diehl attended the Synod of Huron held in London last week and for the sixth year in succession he was elected a member of the executive committee. He was also elected a substitute delegate to the Provincial Synod.

—The Women's Patriotic League of Paisley has sent the sum of $63 to the Red Cross headquarters making a total cash donation of $366. In addition to this the fifth consignment of socks, shirts and bandages was sent to the Red Cross recently.

—Dr. Dugald McLean is another Paisley boy gone on medical service to the field of war. He went from Winnipeg with four other young doctors to take hospital work wherever they may be sent in Britain or France in connection with the British forces

—Rev. and Mrs. J. B. McLaren, of Shoal Lake, Man., are visiting their daughter in Paisley, Mrs. L. K. Putnam. The rev. gentleman was a delegate to the General Assembly. On Sunday evening he occupied the pulpit of Knox church, and on Sunday next will preach in the Methodist church at the evening service.

More's Wall Papers for 1915

Be wise in time and see our excellent aggregation of new and artistic effects in room decorations before purchasing your supply.

We have never shown a better range of Wall Paper or at more reasonable prices.

P. B. MORE : : Druggist

Established over Forty-one Years

THE STANDARD BANK OF CANADA

ASSETS OVER $48,000,000

The A, B, C of Banking

Value Your Money.
Waste and
Xtravagance Bring Disaster

We solicit your account in our SAVINGS DEPARTMENT

PAISLEY BRANCH

F. C. RYAN Manager

Branches also at Harriston and Tiverton.

Paisley Meat Market

Fresh Beef, Pork, Mutton, Cured Hams, Bacon, etc. Salt Pork, Cooked Meats, Home made Sausage (2 lbs. for 25c). Bologna and Headcheese. Kidney Suet. Poultry in season.

Cash for Hides Bones and Skins . . . Bell Phone

P. Oltsher

J. S. DEWAR

PAISLEY

Builder, Contractor and Cement Worker

Brick or cement buildings erected, brick work, cement work and plastering contracts taken

Cement Supplies Furnished

Building Blocks, Window and Door Sills, Culvert Tile, Well Curbing, Lawn Rollers, Lawn Vases, Verandah Columns, Balusters and other fancy Cement Products.

Building Material

Cement, Lime, Lath, Shingles, Glazed Sewar Pipe and Flue Lining, Mortar Color, etc.

Large supply of

Oilcloths and Linoleums

just to hand

Now is the time to get your new supply, before they are picked over.

We have also a good assortment of Squares, and our prices can't be beaten. Give us a call before buying.

For good Butter and Eggs we pay the highest price in either CASH or TRADE . . .

Both 'Phones PUTNAM & SON

—In our item last week referring to the Rudolph—Winch suit it was stated that the two steers were alike as two black hens. In this we were mistaken, as one had a white spot in forehead, while the other had not, and there were other points of difference, also.

W. C. T. U. Convention

Everybody is cordially invited to attend any or all sessions of the W C T U convention which will be held in Paisley this week, on Thursday in Knox church and Friday in the Methodist church.

Paisley 13, Tara 12

The league game on Thursday afternoon in which Tara opposed the local team, was a strenuous match most of the way, and a pretty fair exhibition of lacrosse. The visitors made a vigorous attempt to run up a score, and in the early part of the game it looked decidedly favorable for them. The home players got better into action, however, as the game proceeded, and in the last half were going hard, and deserved the win they made of it.

—BUTTER PAPER—real vegetable parchment, not a cheaper imitation—printed and sold at The Advocate Office at lowest possible prices. We can print 500 sheets or more with your name on, and for the convenience of those who do not require that quantity, we keep printed wrappers on hand without any name on and sell this in quantities of 100 sheets or over.

June Specials

A Good-for-any-Time of the-Year Suit Costs

$15.00

Special Summer Pants

$2.50

Shirts

Regular $1.50, $1.25, $1 for 75c.

Underwear

Balbriggan Mesh Cashmere Underwear, regular 50c at 40c; Cashmere 75c at 50c; Combinations accordingly.

Ties

All 50c Ties at 25c.

Hosiery

Silk and Cashmere—50c—75c at 35c

—$3.50 Auto Dusters at $2.50—

We would like you to call some day

G. B. IRWIN

Tailor and Furnisher Paisley

The Darkest Hour;

Or, The Hope That Still Lived.

CHAPTER XXXL.—(Cont'd.)

She spoke so nicely that Timothy Nobbs felt for about the fiftieth time since her arrival that adversity had made her almost charming.

"She wanted to take all the blame for the young man's unlawful doings upon 'erself," he proceeded with an important air. "She blackened 'er self from 'ead to foot, saying that the young man 'ad been one of 'er spies, and 'ad acted only under 'or direc tions; the things she let out was simply awful. She wanted to be punish ed instead of Lewisham. But the Bench didn't see the thing in the same light, and gave 'im three months imprisonment. And then she went away, and nobody's set eyes on 'er since; and next day they said, both in the Lombard Street office and at Grosvenor Square, that they'd no idea where she'd gone to. Of course, after she'd shown 'erself up like that nobody'd 'ave spoken to 'er, if they'd met 'er to speak to; the things she've done are like what people 'ad of some atrocities that 'appened somewhere or other years ago—that they was too much of it for words to tell. But it seems to me as this Lady Bernard, otherwise Mrs. Crookenden, 'ad a bit of excuse for what she did, for she'd ben cruelly wronged after she was married, and by people as ought to 'ave known better."

He hesitated for a moment, and then went on in a lower voice—

"When I came 'ome 'ere after the scene at the Sessions Court, Adolph, Sir Randolph's valet, told me as Sir Randolph 'ad ordered several things to be packed all of a hurry, for he was going away on a long journey that night. I wondered, and we all wonde and we wondered more than e when the news came about nine o that Lord Yoxford was runnin' on in exactly the same way. And my lady was weeping like a waterspout the whole evening. But when the next day's papers came we saw the reason of everything; for they'd got in them a long interview with the Money Queen, as they called 'er in the 'eadings, and the things she'd said in that interview made our 'air stand on end. You read it, didn't you? All about the wicked doings of the old lord and Sir Randolph, with copies supplied by documents in Mrs. Crookenden's possession, and by a fellow who's just now out in Sydney, but will be coming 'ome soon to add 'is testimony. People are saying that if Lord Yoxford and Sir Randolph can be found, they'll be arrested. Just think of the disgrace of it, for myself I couldn't bear the thought of eating such a master's bread any longer, and if my lady adn't died when she did I was going to give 'er notice. But now that this 'ere and estate belongs to my young lady, it's different."

The French maid gave him a sly glance. It seemed that his intentions were not matrimonial. She sighed.

"You must not forget, Mr. Nobbs," Louise interposed, "that Miss Christine is what you English call 'her father's daughter,' and a chip of the old block—yes, and her mother's daughter, too. Perhaps she, too, will do things of which——"

"None of that, please," the butler interrupted her sharply. "I won't 'ear a word against Miss Christine, nor no hints against my poor dead lady neither. It's plain to me and to most other people that my lady was more sinned against than sinning. There's many a young girl falls in love with 'er groom when she's still in her teens and 'e appens to be handsome, and bold. Mostly 'e doesn't find 'imself able to talk 'er over into marrying 'im; but sometimes 'e does, and that's 'ow it was in this case. My lady's mother knew of it after it was done, but nobody else; and when the news came that Jim Cannon—that was the bold fellow's name—had got killed in a carriage accident, they 'ad every reason to believe it was true, the more especially as after this 'e left off threatening to blackmail them. And it wasn't till this very year, after my lady 'ad been married to Sir Randolph 'alf a lifetime, that the wretched first one turned up again. 'E's gone to 'is last account now. It's a pity 'e didn't go a day or two sooner. For I'm sure my lady would have lived if she could only 'ave known that 'e was dead."

"How was it that she died so suddenly?" Louise inquired with curiosity.

Nobbs took a silver biscuit box down from his pantry shelf, and began to examine it critically.

"That's a sad tale," was his reply. "She'd been ill with worry for a long time, poor thing. It's dreadful to think what she must 'ave suffered since that man turned up. You know all about it, of course—why, you yourself 'ad the coolness to wring money out of 'er, too, in connexion with it. You know she'd 'ave paid out 'er very soul to keep the dreadful secret from Sir Randolph, and from 'er children, let alone the public at large. Well, she went up to town one day, and she called at the 'ouse of one of the family's doctors—a Dr. Kendal, living in Phillimore Gardens—to leave a little wedding present from Miss Christine, because the old doctor was actually going to commit 'imself by marrying a young woman who 'ad been my lady's sewing maid one year up in Scotland. And 'ere comes another tale that's like a fairy tale. My lady goes into the doctor's drawing-room, and sees some sort of embroidery shawl lyin' about there, and on askin' questions about it she was told that it belonged to the doctor's intended bride, who 'ad been a foundling, and when come upon as a baby all abandoned by the roadside, like Moses in the bulrushes, 'ad 'ad this piece of shawl wrapped round 'er. Then my lady looked closer at the shawl and at some marks on it, and called out that the girl, Maggie Maitland by name, must be 'er own child that she 'erself 'ad abandoned in 'er misery when she was Jim Cannon's wife. And then she fainted, and 'ad to be put to bed there in that strange 'ouse, and the girl was sent for just in time to soe 'er die. She'd been too weak to stand this last shock, and she died telling Miss Christine that the other girl, Maggie, who'd once been er sewing maid, was in truth er sister. They say that Miss Christine was dumfounded when she 'eard it, as well she might be. She'd brought news that might 'ave saved 'er mother's life if she'd told it in time—news that Jim Cannon was dead. He'd been missing for some days, and at last 'is body 'ad been found in that pond on the other side of the wood, three-quarters of a mile from this 'ouse. It turned out that 'e'd been walking 'ome drunk on a dark, rainy night, and 'ad fallen into the pool, what's what I call a good, suitable ending for a man of 'is sort."

He had taken out a bit of chamois leather from a drawer, and was giving a rub up to the biscuit-box. The French-woman, his former sweetheart, eyed him anxiously.

"So you're thinking of stopping here, after all, Timothy?"

"Why, yes. It'll be a pleasure to serve Miss Christine and Mr. 'Ardy. Of course, I'd rather she'd married Lord Southport," Timothy went on, with a man-servant's incradicable love for a title. "She seems too good to be called simple Mrs. 'Ardy. But the money'll be there, and in these days they means a lot. What do you say? 'Ow did she and Mr. 'Ardy make things up? Oh, that's a third fairy tale. Why, on the very morning of the Sessions Court business, a lawyer called Wimpole Sturgess came down 'ere, and asked to see Sir Randolph. I listened at the keyhole, and caught most of what they said. The old lawyer said to Sir Randolph that he knew money would be convenient to him just then, and he'd like to know what price would buy his consent to his daughter's marriage with Brian 'Ardy. At that Sir Randolph laughed irritably, and said the price would be a good deal more than Mr. 'Ardy or his friends could pay. He said that nothing less than a hundred thousand pounds paid down on the nail would do it. I believed that he was joking when he said it, but anyway, he did say it. And then—well, you could have knocked me down with a feather when I 'eard that old lawyer fellow answer him as cool as you please that Brian 'Ardy would be willing and able to give him double that sum — two hundred thousand pounds—down on the nail, on the sole condition that whatever was left of the money at his, Sir Randolph's death, should revert to Mr. 'Ardy."

"You don't mean to say so!" exclaimed Louise.

Timothy nodded. "Yes. It turned out that Mr. 'Ardy is the only son and heir of that millionaire, Colonel Stormont-Royce, who was murdered a year or two ago. Brian 'Ardy Royce is Mr. 'Ardy's true name. It seems that his father believed that a young fellow as knew himself to be a millionaire's son would never be any good in the world, so he directed that his son should be put away from 'ome early, and not know who he was until he'd grown up sensible, and had learned to work like other men. So Wimpole Sturgess was the trustee of all the money. Nobody guessed this secret except a rascally cousin who came of a branch of the family that had gone out to America. He knew that if Brian 'Ardy died and he could prove his identity, all the money would fall to him for lack of nearer heirs. So he came over 'ere, intending to manage the death of Mr. 'Ardy. He nearly did it once or twice, but now he's copped at last. And it's proved now that it was him that killed the old Colonel. It's pretty clear that he'll presently find his end in Newgate. He was pretty well known in town, too, as Mrs. Crookenden's right-hand man, Ferdinand Peacock. Oh, it's awful to think of the wickedness of the world. But, anyhow, Miss Christine and Mr. 'Ardy—Ardy Royce, I ought to say—are pretty sure to be 'appy. It's his money that has paid off the mortgage on this estate. I'm looking forward to the day when they'll come here to live."

The French maid leaned a little closer to him. "Don't you think we might be happy, too, if we tried, Timothy?" she asked sweetly.

Mr. Nobbs felt his heart touched. "Well, perhaps we might, Louise; that is, if you'll promise to behave decently in the future."

* * * *

And Christine Dare, with her beauty undimmed, but with her nature mellowed and sweetened yet more by her baptism of sorrow, did come with her heart's beloved to live in the splendid home of her childhood. And they were happy there, in spite of the fact that her father came home no more, but died abroad many years later with no one nearer and dearer than his fellow-exile, the Earl of Yoxford, to cheer his last lonely hours. One little comfort only he had; and that comfort came from three pictures of as many little grandchildren — Christine's children, the eldest of whom was to take the surname of Dare, and build up anew the family which a woman's vengeance had so nearly brought to ruin.

As for that woman herself—Lady Bernard Gauntlet, known before as Mrs. Crookenden—she disappeared from public observation in company with her newly restored husband. Whither they retired has never been made known, but it is certain that their son joined them on the expiration of his three months' term of imprisonment. Beyond this, all is silence; but many years will have to pass, and many millionaires must come and go before the name of her who was the mightiest of their kind dies out of the world's memory.

THE END.

Plowing the Sands; or, Hate's Labor Lost.

A clever cartoon by Walker in "The London Daily Graphic."

THOUGHTS FOR THE DAY.

If you have anything in the world to do, do it.—Carlyle.

Success in life often turns out the reverse of success in living. —Dean Inge.

There is one thing that can never turn into suffering, and that is the good we have done.—Maeterlinck.

A brave man strenuously fighting fails not of a little triumph now and then to keep him in heart. —Carlyle.

He that forgets his friend is ungrateful to him, but he who forgets his God is ungrateful to him self.—Bunyan.

The darkest shadows of life are those which a man himself makes when he stands in his own light.—Lord Avebury.

He knows not his own strength that hath not met adversity. Heaven prepares good men with crosses, but no ill can happen to a good man—Ben Johnson.

In those vernal seasons of the year, when the air is calm and pleasant, it were an injury and sullenness against Nature not to go out and see her riches and partake in her rejoicing with Heaven and earth.—Milton.

Our life is like the life of a tree, again and again stripped of every sign of life that it has put forth, and yet which still has gathered all those apparent failures into the success of one long, continuous growth.—Phillips Brooks.

GOLDEN SENTENCES.

The only way to live in this age and get any pleasure out of life is always to take more time than you need for every job you tackle.

You'll see strength enough in the people some day.

The trouble with all your big n at the top is that they're trying to do for the crowd what the crowd wants to do for itself.

The age we live in is changing so much faster than any age before it that a man, if he's to be vital at all, must give up the idea of any fixed creed, in his office, his church or his home. If he holds himself open to change, and nows that change is his very life, then he can get a serenity which is as much better than that of the monk as living is better than dying.

Were we sent by our rulers to die only in order that they in their scramble might take more of the earth for themselves?

+

Centipede as Watch Dog.

Ever thought of making a house hold pet of a centipede?

Probably not, but you might find it not only a valuable but a harmless one. Its value as a miniature watch dog is so great that any possible danger of poisonous bites are more than outbalanced.

The common house centipede is not a creature to be dreaded, although its bite is more or less poisonous, but there are so few cases on record of its biting human beings that the danger from this source may be said to be negligible. On the other hand, the centipede is a valuable destroyer of other and far more disagreeable vermin.

It feeds on house flies, cock roaches, moths, bedbugs and other such pests. It does not eat holes in blankets, curtains, carpets or furniture.

The centipede thrives in damp places, such as bathrooms, closets, cellars and conservatories; it loves hot water pipes and steam radiators. It is not an insect, but one of the order of myriapods.

If by chance a person be bitten by a centipede, bathing the spot with ammonia will speedily cure it.

+

As Good as His Word.

"One dollar, please," said the dentist.

"A dollar! But your sign reads: 'Painless extraction of teeth free.'"

"Just so! But as you hollered a bit, this does not apply in your case. I do my painless extracting free exactly as I claim. When it hurts, I charge for it. One dollar, please."

The head, like the stomach, is most easily affected by poison when it is empty.

Woolwich Arsenal possesses the largest steamhammer in the world. It is capable of striking a blow of nearly a thousand tons; and yet it is so carefully adjusted and accurately timed that it is possible to place a nut under the huge hammer and to crack the shell without injuring the kernel.

FRENCH INVENT A GRENADE

ALSO GOOD BOMB THROWERS AT SMALL EXPENSE.

Fumes From These Missles Which are Charged With Chemicals Have Overpowering Effect.

The wideapread use of trenches in the present war, writes a correspondent with the French army, has brought the opposing armies into closer proximity than ever had been considered possible since the development of firearms, and the result has been that new methods have had to be devised to deal with unexpected conditions.

"At first," says the correspondent, "the Germans were probably better prepared for this kind of warfare. Their minenwerfers are excellently made and well designed, as I have been able to assure myself by the examination of some of those captured on the Champagne front. There is no suggestion of improvisation about them. On the contrary, they are, if anything, over-complicated. Experience has shown that they are far too heavy. The largest of them, indeed, are cemented into the trenches, so that they cannot be removed, and none of them is nearly so effective as the simple weapon that the proverbial ingenuity of the French has invented under the pressure of circumstances.

"The Germans have been severing to a certain extent by the use of asphyxiating bombs in utter defiance of the obligations they had accepted under The Hague Convention. The French have not been long in finding a reply to these weapons. If the Germans mean to use poisonous gases in warfare, the French are ready to retaliate with a weapon that should prove very effective, though it in no way contravenes the regulations accepted by all civilized nations except Germany.

"This weapon consists of a hand grenade filled with certain chemicals which when released produce gas that has no deadly effects but is quite powerful enough to paralyze a man for several minutes. As an experiment two of these grenades were thrown into a narrow lane between two walls that might fairly be taken to represent a trench. When the gases had been released a company of infantry was ordered to advance up the lane, and I accompanied them.

"When the first ranks came with in the zone of the fumes they stopped suddenly and beat a hasty retreat, fighting their way through the men behind, absolutely blinded by the tears running down their cheeks. The smell of the fumes is not unpleasant, as a suggestive of pear drops, combined with very strong ammonia, and it produces such violent smarting of the eyes and nose that it would be hopeless to try and use a weapon while under its influence. These bombs have not yet been used, and will only be employed if the Germans make any further use of asphyxiating gas.

French Hand Grenades.

"Besides the newly invented gas bomb the French have various forms of bombs and bomb throwers for use in the trenches. The hand grenades are of two kinds. The larger kind, which looks like a rocket with a stick sawn off short and a very large head, contains more than a pound of explosives. These explosives are contained in a black steel case closed by a wooden cap, with a fuse at the bottom end. The man who is to throw the grenade breaks off the seal which covers this fuse and gets light to it with a match or cigarette. When the fuse begins to splutter he has five seconds before the explosion, and with a good swing can throw it twenty-five to thirty yards. Men of all arms are being trained to use this weapon, and the experiments which I have been permitted to witness were carried out by a number of infantrymen just back from the front. Its effects are very deadly, as it will sweep an area of fifteen yards, and though we were fifty yards away from the point where one of them exploded it was advisable to take cover behind a tree, as several splinters reached us.

"This large grenade is used for defensive purposes. It is thrown from the trenches when the enemy is attacking. For offensive work a lighter and more handy bomb is required. This grenade contains about half a pound of explosives, and a soldier can easily carry half a dozen of them in a bag when he leaves his trench for the charge.

"When the trenches are 250 to 300 yards apart the range is too great for hand grenades. For this work a bomb thrower called the 'crapouillot' has been devised. Its name is derived from the crapaud, a toad. It is a squat, toadlike thing, painted gray and consisting of a wooden stand mounted on it. The German shrapnel cases have only to be shortened and to have a touch hole bored in them. A charge of powder is placed in them, and above it a bomb containing three pounds of explosives.

Inexpensive Bomb Throwers.

"Two salvoes of six 'crapouillots' were fired in one hour. Six sausage-like bombs were thrown into the air and exploded with tremendous violence when they reached the ground 250 yards away, hurling mitrailles in every direction. A piece of mitraille, like a heavy, roughly made nail, came hurtling through the branches of the tree behind which I was sheltering and fell at my feet, while another piece was driven deep into the trunk of the same tree. One bomb fell into a stream and threw up a column of water some fifteen feet into the air. The Germans, when they capture a trench, have an ingenious way of describing these bomb-throwers, which cost about a dollar each, as guns, to impress the readers of their communiques.

"We also witnessed the test of some smoke bombs from these engines. They produced a curtain of smoke which was quite sufficient to mask an advance, and their success was the more remarkable as there was a strong wind blowing. The output of these bombs and bomb throwers is practically unlimited. The energy and method with which the men, who, of course, are mobilized under military law, were working was quite remarkable. The factory has been commandeered by the State, which pays a rent for its use to its proprietor."

+

MORE WARS TO FOLLOW.

Prophecy of Vast Series of Struggles For Existence.

Professor Ridgeway, speaking at a meeting of the Eugenic Society in London, said that the nation had been brought into the present struggle by a combination of millionaires who were frequently alien in origin, and their dupes, the masses, while the same forces were exercising a baneful influence on the prosecution of the war.

Far from this being the last war, the hard facts pointed rather to its being the first of a vast series of struggles different from those yet known. The earth's waste spaces were now getting filled up and the struggle for existance, not merely kingly ambitions, was the great stake for which Germans and British were now fighting. Henceforward each new struggle would be more desperate.

+

Most of us who attempt to wear the mantle of greatness are disappointed in the fit.

Silver Gloss
LAUNDRY STARCH

means perfect starching, whether used for sheer Laces, dainty Dimities, delicate fabrics, Lace Curtains or Table Linens.

"Silver Gloss" has been the favorite in the home for more than 50 years

AT GROCERS

The Canada Starch Co. Limited

55

WIT AND WISDOM.

Rankin: "Have you ever been to the Trossachs?" Phyle: "Yes; but I want to go again some day and see the scenery. The first time I went I was or, my honeymoon."

Hubby: "My dear, if all that I hear about you is true——" Wife: "I assure you it is. I started the scandal myself. You don't suppose I went into society to be buried alive, do you?"

Madge (reading letter from brother at the Front): "John says a bullet went right through his hat without touching him." Old Auntie: "What a blessing he had his hat on, dear."

A clumsy carver once sent a goose into a lady's lap. His apology was better than his carving. "Ah, madam, how potent your charms are; they attract not only the living but also the dead."

Mrs. Ryan: "They do be after sayin' that old man Kelly has got locomother ataxy." Mrs. Murphy: "Well, he's got the money to run wan av thim if he wants ter, but I'd raythe have a good horse any day."

Two Irishmen were philosophizing. Said Pat to Mike: 'Did you ever stop to think that wan half of the world don't know how the other half gets along?" "You're right," says Mike; "and neither does the other half."

"Many a damsel who is a kitter with men is a cat with women," says Mr. Gelett Burgess. "The custody of the child used to keep discordant married couples together, but now, says a cynic, 'it is the automobile.'"

Agent: "I came to deliver your book on 'How to Play the Piano.'" Lady: "But I didn't order any." Agent: "Haven't you a next door neighbor named Brown?" Lady: "Why, yes; is it for her?" Agent: "No, she ordered it for you."

"I don't think I'll go to school today, mother." "Why, Eddie! I thought you liked to go to school." "I do, mother; but, you see, some of the boys in my class are not so far advanced as I am, and I thought it would be kind of nice if I stayed away and gave them a chance to catch up."

COLT DISTEMPER

Can be handled very easily. The sick are cured and all others in same stable so matter how exposed, kept from contracting disease by using SPOHN'S LIQUID DISTEMPER COMPOUND. Give on the tongue or in feed Acts on the blood and expels germs of all forms of distemper. Best remedy ever known for mares in foal. Druggists and harness dealers. Our free booklet gives everything. Largest selling horse remedy in existence. 26 years' reputation. Also WHITE SCOUR. DIRECTIONS. SPOHN MEDICAL CO., Chemists and Bacteriologists, Goshen, Ind., U.S.A.

60 years ago Grandfather got an individual sugar package—"Ye Olde Sugar Loafe" made by John Redpath, in what was then Canada's only Sugar Refinery.

The Redpath Carton of Today

Now, at less than half the price, his granddaughter gets a much improved article, also "individual"—

Redpath

Extra Granulated Sugar in Sealed Cartons and Cloth Bags

2-lb. and 5-lb. 10, 20, 50 and 100 lb.

"Canada's Favorite Sugar for three Generations".

CANADA SUGAR REFINING CO., LIMITED, MONTREAL.

128

WORRY AND WEAKNESS

Often Indicate Overwork and a Run Down Nervous System.

Overwork and worry have an evil effect on the system and often give rise to nervousness and sleeplessness. Other signs include a weak back, headaches and indigestion. In time, if matters are neglected, a complete breakdown of the nervous system follows. On every hand one can observe victims of this state of nervous exhaustion who are at a loss to know what to do with themselves, their nervous, debilitated state having baffled all ordinary treatment.

If you are a victim of exhausted nerves, if your symptoms are as described above, you need Dr. Williams' Pink Pills because they are a powerful nerve tonic. Their strengthening action on weak nerves is due to the fact that they enrich and build up the blood through which the nerves are fed. Under the tonic influence of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills all traces of nervous weakness disappear together with the headaches, the insomnia, the feeling of intense weakness and depression of spirits that mark the victim of nervous ailments. Here is the proof. Mr. Henry Marr, Port Felix, N.S., says: "It gives me greatest pleasure to testify as to the value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. When I began their use I was a physical wreck; my nerves were all unstrung, I suffered from frequent headaches and backaches, and was almost wholly unfitted for work. I had tried several remedies without success, when I finally decided to give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a trial. I took six boxes and they made me a well man."

What these Pills did for Mr. Marr they will do for every other weak and nervous man if given a fair trial. Sold by all medicine dealers or sent by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 by writing the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

THE HUMAN BRAIN.

By Chas M. Bice, Denver, Colo.

The word "Brain," is of modern origin, and does not occur in the Bible. The reason is that during the centuries the Bible was being written no one suspected that this silent and secluded organ had anything to do with thought or feeling.

In those days it was considered sacrilegious to dissect the human body; nevertheless, it was subjected in rare instances, to the scalpel, and the existence of the brain, though they knew not its functions, was well known.

With the Hebrews, the heart was the chief seat of the soul, while the mind was supposed to be located in the kidneys, and all of the tender emotions were assigned to the bowels.

When Jeremiah denounced hypocrites, he said of them they had the Lord in their mouths, but not in their kidneys; and the Psalmist says that "His reins (kidneys) instruct him in the night seasons," and again, "The Lord trieth the heart and the kidneys."

Hence, we even find in English speech to-day the use of the expression "Two fellows of the same kidney."

All this sounds strange to modern ears, but it was the microscope that drove animal spirits out of the body. In 1833 it was applied by Ehrnberg, who was the first to discover the nerve cell in the spinal ganglion. But Dr. Paul Broca, in 1861, was the first to definitely locate in the brain, a particular locality on the cortex for articulate speech. This he located in the lower and posterior convolution called the Third Frontal, now known as "Broca's Convolution." This was no more unverified scientific theory, but the fact was actually demonstrated by injury in that part of the brain, and consequent loss of speech from paralysis. Verily, it would seem from this, that the Phrenologists had some foundation for their "bumpology," only they did not locate the speech faculty in Broca's territory, but inside the eyes. They were possibly correct in holding that the mind does not act as a unit, but is divided into various faculties.

Broca's discovery led to further investigations, until now the whole of the cortex surface of the brain is mapped out, corresponding to the different faculties of the mind.

We now know that two other elements of simple human speech have each their distinct and separate brain localities—one place devoted to receiving words through the ear, damage to which is called word-deafness, though not deaf otherwise; and also a distinct place in the brain for words received through the eye, as in reading, damage to which causes the unfortunate victim to become wholly illiterate, though he may see and recognise all other objects of sight as perfectly as ever.

It has been found that each of the five special senses has its anatomical seat in particular portions of the brain respectively, and centrally located are to be found the seats which control the voluntary movements of every muscle, etc. Of course, this is all in the outer layer of the brain, or cortex—gray matter.

But a still more astounding discovery has been made in Brainology. While the anatomical seats of the senses are found in both hemispheres of the brain, and their functions are congenital, that is from birth, the seats of the faculty of speech are found only in one of the two hemispheres.

Hence, if these are damaged after middle life, the loss is irremediable, and the unfortunate victim can never speak again, though the corresponding spot in the other hemisphere be left intact.

Another strange and remarkable feature has been discovered, viz.: that this endowment of the one hemisphere of the brain is not congenital, or because of its superiority over the other, but because it was the hemisphere that related to the most used hand of the child. In all right handed persons it is in the left brain that the speech centres are located, and vice versa with left handed persons.

This demonstrates that brain matter does not originate speech, for otherwise both hemispheres would have their respective speech centres. Either hemisphere is equally good for speech providing the hand dexterity, right or left, begins early enough in life to use it for that purpose.

It follows that self-education begins largely with the stretching forth of the hand, and is quite distinct from the elementary functions of sensation and motion, which are congenital.

Our ability to know and to recognize what particular objects mean, and what our senses report, is not congenital, but is acquired by us, in the same way as speech is acquired.

It has been discovered that in the visual space, or area, in a place which if damaged, renders the person unable to recognize members of his own family though he can plainly see them. The same is true if a certain spot be injured in the brain corresponding to hearing, the person is unable to distinguish between the report of a gun and the bark of a dog. He hears a noise only, and to him they are all alike.

THE EARLIEST GUIDE BOOK.

Instructions for Tour That Would Occupy 3 Years and 4 Months.

The earliest guide book written in the English language is "Instructions for Forraine Travell," a duodecimo published in 1642 by James Howell.

"As was natural in those days," says the London Chronicle, "Howell assumes that any one travelling on the Continent for pleasure was able to 'entertaine a Coache, a Lacquey and some young youth for his Page to parley wes and chide withall, whereof he shall have occasion enough, and to get some faire lodgings to keep house of himself; but sometimes he may frequent Ordinaries, for it will much breake and embolden him.'"

The instructions to provide for a tour through France, Italy, Spain, Germany, Belgium, and Holland, "all which may be done compleately in three years and four months, which four months I allow for itinary removals and journeys, and the years for residence in places." In those days "forraine travell" meant something more than a month's skip through Europe.

SHE QUIT

But It Was a Hard Pull.

It is hard to believe that tea or coffee will put a person in such a condition as it did this woman. She tells her own story:

"I did not believe coffee caused my trouble, and frequently said I liked it so well I would not, and could not, quit drinking it, but I was a miserable sufferer from heart trouble and nervous prostration for four years." (Tea is just as injurious as coffee, because it, too, contains the health-destroying drug, caffeine.)

"I was scarcely able to be around, had no energy, and did not care for anything. Was emaciated and had a constant pain around my heart until I thought I could not endure it.

"Frequently I had nervous chills and the least excitement would drive sleep away, any any little noise would upset me terribly. I was gradually getting worse until finally I asked myself what's the use of being sick all the time and buying medicine so that I could indulge myself in coffee?

"So I got some Postum to help me quit. I made it strictly according to directions, and I want to tell you that change was the greatest step in my life. It was easy to quit coffee because I now like Postum better than coffee.

"One by one of the old troubles left until now I am in splendid health, nerves steady, heart all right, and the pain all gone. Never have any more nervous chills, don't take any medicine, can do all my house work, and have done a great deal beside."

Name given by Canadian Postum Co., Windsor, Ont. Read "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

Postum comes in two forms:

Postum Cereal—the original form—must be well boiled. 15c and 25c packages.

Instant Postum—a soluble powder—dissolves quickly in a cup of hot water and, with cream and sugar, makes a delicious beverage instantly. 30c and 50c tins.

Both kinds are equally delicious and cost about the same per cup.

"There's a Reason" for Postum.

—sold by Grocers.

Will Quickly Cure any Sour Stomach

Relieves Fulness After Meals.

"When I was working around the farm last winter, I had an attack of inflammation," writes Mr. E. F. Dawkins, of Port Richmond. I was weak for a long time, but well enough to work until spring. But something went wrong with my bowels for I had to use salts or physic all the time. My stomach kept sour, and always after eating there was a pain and fulness, and all symptoms of intestinal indigestion. Nothing helped me until I used Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Instead of hurting, like other pills, they acted very mildly, and seemed to heal the bowels. I did not require large doses to get results with Dr. Hamilton's Pills, and feel so glad that I have found a mild yet certain remedy. To-day I am well—no pain, no sour stomach, a good appetite, able to digest anything. This is a whole lot of good for one medicine to do, and I can say Dr. Hamilton's Pills are the best pills, and my letter, I am sure, proves it.

Refuse a substitute for Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butternut, sold in yellow boxes, 25c. All dealers, or the Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

There's "Point" to The Point Gown

The "point gown" is what a designer of smart summer wear showed me the other day when I asked to see some of the new things, for summer—some of the models that may be accepted as correct for mid-summer days.

And the point of the fashion news she gave me is that the gowns we'll be wearing in the dog-days will be just as cool and bewitching as the Dolly Vardens worn by our grandmothers.

The sketch, made from a gown designed by Mme. Hillquist of the Fashion Art League, is made of novelty organdie, with sleeves of net, and side panels of net in the little coatee. The three-tier ruffle is pointed, the sleeves, the collar, the jabot effect at the neck, all give "point" to the general effect of points and angles.

Embroidered batiste is used as a foundation for the skirt, and salmon color chenille rosebuds ornament the upper ruffle of the tier. The girdle is crushed apple green silk knotted in the front and with a big bow at the back.

Fortunes of War.

Girl (reading letter from brother at the front)—"John says a bullet went right through his hat without touchin' him."

Old Lady—"What a blessing he had his hat on, dear."

Corns Drop Out

Instant Relief

Paint on Putnam's Corn Extractor tonight, and corns feel better in the morning. Magical the way "Putnam's" eases the pain, destroys the roots, kills a corn for all time. No pain. Cure guaranteed. Get a 25c. bottle of "Putnam's" Extractor to-day.

She Was Sure.

The Girl—"Fred—tell me, would you love me devotedly if my father had lost all his money?" Fred—(anxiously)—"But he hasn't lost it, has he?" The Girl—"No." Fred—"Of course I would, you silly child." The Girl—"Oh, Fred, I was sure you loved me for myself alone!"

A Thoughtful Old Soul.

"My dear, I've an idea," said old Mrs. Goodart to her ruler. "You know we frequently read of the soldiers making sorties. Now why not make up a lot of those sorties and send them to the poor fellows at the front?"

By means of the microscope, the very faintest sounds, such as the fall of a feather or a very delicate piece of tissue-paper, may be distinctly heard.

Minard's Liniment used by Physicians.

What is "Death Tick"?

Superstitious people, even in this enlightened age, regard the ticking sound of a certain kind of beetle with terror, believing that it "clicks the hour of death." The name "deadwatch" has been applied from time immemorial to the sound made by this small insect as it burrows in wood.

The beetle in question is an insect of the genus anobium, there being several varieties, to all of which the name deathwatch is popularly given, as well as to their peculiar sound. The body of this insect is firm, not more than one-fourth of an inch long, its head is rounded, the thorax arched. It is said to make its sounds generally in the night, but probably this idea has arisen from the fact that it is only in the silence of the night that the slight sound becomes audible.

Anyone who has watched through the night hours by the bed of one who is dangerously ill can readily understand how the faint tick, tick within the woodwork of the wall came to be regarded as a sound of evil omen. In order to make this peculiar noise the insect draws in the antenna and intermediate legs, and, resting principally upon the median legs, strikes its head against its support by a sort of rocking motion.

The deathwatch beetle has the invariable habit of feigning death when seized or disturbed. The simulation is so persistent that when immersed in water, or even in alcohol, the insect remains perfectly immovable, and will allow itself to be burned alive rather than betray itself. The tick made by the deathwatch resembles that made by tapping the finger nail upon the table—so much so that the insect may be led to recommence his sounds by doing this.

MINARD'S LINIMENT is the only Liniment asked for at my store and the only one we keep for sale.

All the people use it.

HARI IN FULTON.

Pleasant Bay, C.B.

Reminders.

"Cuttem, the tailor, reminds me of a clergyman."

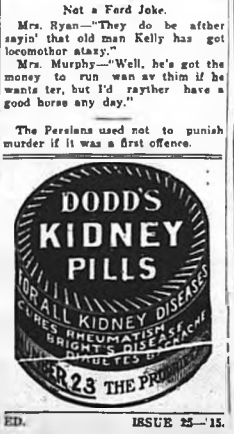
"He doesn't me; he reminds me of a bill I owe him."

LOW FARES TO THE CALIFORNIA EXPOSITIONS VIA CHICAGO & NORTH WESTERN R'Y.

Four splendid daily trains from the New Passenger Terminal, Chicago to San Francisco, Los Angeles and San Diego. Choice of Scenic and Direct Routes through the best of the West. Something to see all the way. Double track. Automatic electric safety signals all the way. Let me plan your trip and furnish folders and full particulars. E. H. Bennett, G.A., 46 Yonge St., Toronto, Ontario.

Expert In Silver Linings.

Hall—Blythe is a pretty optimistic character, I hear.



Wall—I should say so. If he failed in business, he'd thank Heaven he had his health; if he failed in health, he'd thank Heaven he had his business, and if he failed in both he'd say there was no use having one without the other.

Not a Ford Joke.

Mrs. Ryan—"They do be afther sayin' that old man Kelly has got locomothor ataxy."

Mrs. Murphy—"Well, he's got the money to run wan av thim if he wants ter, but I'd raythur have a good horse any day."

The Persians used not to punish murder if it was a first offence.

BRITAIN'S DEBT TO INDIA.

Speaking at a meeting of the Indian Section of the Royal Society of Arts, London, the Marquis of Crewe said it was impossible for us to reiterate too often our sense of the debt we owed to the people of India for the part they were taking in this stupendous world struggle. We could not expect the ordinary small trader or cultivator in India, whose affairs at ordinary times depended in their vicissitudes upon the caprices of season or market, to regard with complete indifference ever result which might be brought home to him personally through this remote and gigantic convulsion. It was, therefore, the Government's most serious duty to attempt as far as possible to temper to these people such results. It was the Government's hope that it might be possible throughout this long struggle to continue the policy so far pursued of not imposing any fresh taxation upon the people of India. It was exceedingly difficult in the circumstances of India to devise any system of raising fresh revenue by taxation which did not hit the very poor classes. His Lordship also pointed out that anybody in India with capital to invest, who would take a share, large or small, in a Government rupee loan was not merely assisting the development of the country, but was positively assisting in the prosecution of the war. The limitations imposed upon the issue of capital in our market here were founded on the fact the maintenance of British credit stood only second in its effect on the prosecution of the war to the continual supply of men and munitions. Therefore the investor in India who would come to the front in this way was doing a public service.

THE ONLY MEDICINE FOR LITTLE ONES

Baby's Own Tablets are the only medicine for little ones, being guaranteed by a government analyst to be absolutely free from injurious drugs. They are pleasant to take, act mildly but effectively, and always relieve constipation, indigestion, colds and simple fevers and regulate the stomach and bowels. Concerning them Mrs. Donald Ettinger, Georgefield, N. S., writes: "Baby's Own Tablets are the only medicine I can get that always do my little ones good, and I always keep them in the house." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

In Authority.

"Your boy said that when he got to town he was going to tell some of those city folks where they got off."

"Well," replied Farmer Cornstonel, "that's what he's doin'. He's conductor on a street car."

Keep Minard's Liniment in the house.

Law Takes Its Course.

"Prisoner, have you anything to say?"

"Only this, your honor. I'd be mighty sorry if th' young lawyer you assigned to me was ever called upon to defend an innocent man."

YOUR OWN DRUGGIST WILL TELL YOU Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills Cure Backache, Kidney Disease, Liver Ills, Week, Watery Eyes and Dragging Feelings. No Guessing. Each Pill contains the Receipt for Book of Dr. Chase by mail Price, Morse Bro's Remedy Co., Chicago.

Real News.

"I notice that you publish a verse from the Bible every day," said the caller to the editor of the newspaper. "Do your subscribers ever read it?"

"Should say they do," replied the editor. "Why, it is news to most of them."

Looney With Love.

"Miss Butey is not at home, sir. Will you leave your name?"

"Do you think she would take it?"

Zam-Buk

is the best remedy known for sunburn, heat rashes, eczema, sore feet, stings and blisters. A skin food!

All Druggists and Stores—50c.

What a Million Mothers Avoid

More than a million careful mothers have indelibly known the danger of poisonous fly destroyers. They have known that such preparations contain arsenic in deadly quantities. They have realized the peril to little children that accompanies the use of fly poisons.

But for those who have not learned of these dangers, we quote from a recent issue of the Child Betterment Magazine, which commenting upon thirty-five cases of children being poisoned last years

"The danger to children is great, and the danger to adults is by no means inconsiderable."

In the December issue of the Michigan State Medical Journal, an editorial on the same subject cites 47 cases and goes on to state:

"Arsenical fly poisons are as dangerous as the phosphorous match. They should be abolished. There are inefficient and more sanitary ways of catching or killing flies. And fly poisons, if used at all, should not be used in homes where there are children, or where children visit."

TANGLEFOOT

"The Sanitary Fly Destroyer" Non-Poisonous

Catches the Germs With the Fly

Made in Canada by THE O. & W. THUM CO. Dept. 213 Walkerville, Ont. American Address Grand Rapids, Mich.

Different Now.

"I used to think that she sang beautifully."

"Now?"

"Now with the warm weather here and all the windows open it's different."

Minard's Liniment Lumberman's Friend

Easily Achieved.

Mr. Jackson—De doctor dun tell me, Chloe, dat if Ah ain't careful Ah'll have to be addin' twenty-four hours a day in bed.

Mrs. Jackson—Huh! Dat would jest be addin' a couple ob hours a day to yo' regular occupation!

Ask for Minard's and take no other.

In the United States census of 1870 a record was obtained of the father of a family who had named his five children Imprimis, Finis, Appendix, Addendum, and Erratum.

FARMS FOR RENT.

IF LOOKING FOR A FARM, CONSULT me. I have over Two Hundred on my list, located in the best sections of Ontario. All sizes. H. W. Dawson, Kingston.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING

WANTED—LADY OR GENTLEMAN OF good standing in every neighborhood of Ontario and Quebec Provinces, to obtain list of reliable people who are interested in saving money during these war times on purchases of staple merchandise selected from illustrated catalogue of established Montreal Department Store. To the right persons we offer attractive remuneration. Write immediately giving name, residence, experience with references. Character is of more importance than experience. Address P. O. Box 643, Montreal.

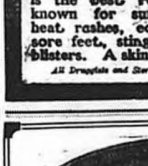
MISCELLANEOUS.

CANCER, TUMORS, LUMPS, ETC., internal and external cured without pain by our home treatment. Write us before too late. Dr. Bell Medical Co., Limited, Collingwood, Ont.

KERMATH Marine Engines

"America's Standard 4 Cycle Marine Motor"

Write for Catalog No. 21 describing 2 to 30 H.P. Highest quality, lowest price. Sold direct from factory. Ship immediately. Guaranteed for 5 years. Write today. KERMATH MFG. CO. Dept. Detroit, Mich.



CUTTEN & FOSTER

AUTO AND BOAT TOPS

Ford owners write for our catalogue.

SEARS-CROSS

Speedometer Station. 179 Queen Street West, TORONTO, - ONT.

"Overstern" V Bottom Motor Boat $55.00

Freight Prepaid to any Railway Station in Ontario. Length 18 Ft., Beam 5 Ft. 9 In., Depth 1 Ft. 6 In. ANY MOTOR FITS.

Specification No. 2B giving engine prices on request. Get our quotations on—"The Penetang Line" Commercial and Pleasure Launches, Row boats and Canoes.

THE GIDLEY BOAT CO., LIMITED, PENETANG, CAN.

The Paisley Advocate

PAISLEY, JUNE 24th, 1915

—What Russia has officially done with vodka, what France has officially done with absinthe, Toronto is doing by choice, says the Globe. Hard times and war times have meant economy, and economy seems to mean less booze to a lot of Queen City fellows. It is quoted as a fact that in some of the bars there the receipts are 70 per cent. less than before the war. There have been five hotels closed up lately within an area of four blocks of the down-town district. The movie picture shows are another line of business hard hit by the scarcity of ready money, and a number have closed up.

—There has been a great contrarity of opinion, ever since the war broke out, as to the effect it would have on immigration to America. Even the man whose fingers are on the pulse of the situation confesses that it is a mere conjecture. He says, "Europe will want men, not women. Europe will have a surplus of millions of women for whom no provision can be made in the industrial or social order. Many of these surplus women will probably find their way to the United States after the war. On the other hand, there will be greater need than ever for keeping the stalwart manhood at home. Britain, France, Austria and Russia will find it necessary to rebuild the state, to repair the ravages of war, to erect mills and factories, and regain the lost trade which the war has destroyed."

—Various comments have been made upon the decision of Bruce County not to undertake the insurance of the lives of soldiers going to the front from this county. THE ADVOCATE believes that every soldier's family or other dependents should be compensated for the sacrifice of his life in the defence of his country. If the insurance plan is to be adopted as the best method of providing compensation, then we say the insurance should be provided by the nation, instead of the municipality. Let Canada put a policy on every soldier who leaves her shores, the cost to be taken out of the Dominion treasury. The adoption of a general system of insurance as well as pensions would make it so much easier for a young man to take up arms in this great struggle. It is not the danger to a man's own life that deters many from doing so, but the uncertainty as to what will happen to those dependent upon him in case he is killed or disabled. Get the state behind an insurance policy broad enough to cover the risks, and the enlistments will be so readily obtained that conscription will never be necessary to fill the rank and file of an army sufficiently powerful to squelch the Kaiser or any other oppressor that may seek to possess the earth.

Auto Overturned

Mr. J. H. Wismer, of Port Elgin, had a rather thrilling experience while motoring through Paisley on Saturday morning. He was accompanied by Mrs. Wismer, their daughter and granddaughter. Ascending the first hill south of the station the auto left the road, following a furrow to the ditch, and turned turtle. But for Mr. Wismer's promptness in shutting off his power and applying the brake there would most probably be a very different story to tell of the fate of the occupants. As it was, they were all imprisoned beneath the car until released by Mr. Thele, also of Port Elgin, who with his family was going with the Wismers to Cayuga. The ladies made no outcry, and when they were all extricated from the wreck it was found that happily no one was injured. The car came through with only the top and wind shield broken, and was in good order again as soon as a team of horses could be procured to turn it right side up. The party all returned home again, the Wismer ladies going by train while Mr. Wismer drove the car himself.

From Sandling Camp

Mr. Wallace Megraw has received a panoramic letter card from Sergt. Andy Babcock, showing beautiful views of Folkestone. Andy writes as follows from Sandling Camp, under date of May 30th: "I have taken the notion to drop you a few lines to let you know that I am still in the land of the living. I have got two issues of THE ADVOCATE since I came across, but didn't get answers to any of the letters I wrote since I arrived here. Don't know what has happened to our mail. All the Paisley boys are keeping in good health, and are the same old sticks. Alex Blue has trained down about twenty pounds since he came across. Gordon Daniels and Jack McDougall are still in the transport section, and are with us here in camp. Sam Tooke and Jim Watt are just like spring colts. It is only 21 miles across the channel to the French coast. We can see it quite plainly on clear days. Sometimes we can hear the rumble of the heavier artillery when the wind is in the right direction. The views enclosed are of a town about five miles from camp. We often visit there in the evenings. It is on the sea coast and is a great bathing place. There is quite a striking contrast between the streets of this country and the streets in Winnipeg. They are very narrow with quaint, old-fashioned buildings. It is a hilly country around here, but green and pretty. Everything is so well cared for. We have just finished a two weeks' course in musketry, and the boys have improved wonderfully in that time. We have our whole Brigade here now—18th, 19th, 20th and 21st Regiments, and are all camped side by side."

Trophy Come and Gone

The Bowman trophy was captured at Cargill on Friday by a Paisley rink of bowlers composed of Messrs. T. Muir, Geo. Welsford, J. H. Glover and I. Shoemaker (skip). A Chatsworth rink skipped by A. Merriam came over on Monday, but found the silverware too heavy to lift. Then on Tuesday Southampton did the trick after a close game. The Southampton players were C. M. Bowman (donor of the cup), C. Bell, W. C. Cone and Brock McAuley (skip). Score—21-16.

Baptist Convention

The Baptist Association of Owen Sound district convened in Chesley on June 10. There was a large attendance of delegates, and the reports presented showed the various churches to be in a flourishing condition. Rev. H. B. Stillwell, B.A., returned missionary from India, was one of the speakers, and delivered a graphic address, describing the work that is going on in the mission fields. Rev. R. J. McKee, of Paisley, in a forceful address, showed the importance that should be attached to Evangelistic work in the church. His address had been carefully thought out and made a deep impression, says The Enterprise. The following resolutions were passed: Re Temperance—Resolved that in harmony with our past traditions we as an association desire to place on record our unceasing hostility to the liquor traffic. We note with interest the appointment of a license commission by the Ontario Legislature for the better regulation of the entrenched evil. The personnel of this committee gives us the hope of advancing temperance reform. There is matter for satisfaction, but as an association we are in favor of total prohibition at the earliest possible date. Re Publications—Resolved that we as an association feel the importance of The Canadian Baptist being in each Baptist home, and would recommend that every pastor or one of his deacons see to it that a good live member of their church is appointed as soon as possible to solicit subscriptions for same.

From Thos. H. George

Mr. and Mrs T. H. George received a letter from their son in England, he having been sent over there from France on account of the condition of his wounded leg. An abscess formed, and the doctor thinks there is a piece of shrapnel in the leg yet. He goes on to relate more of his experience in the field than could be given in his former letters: "We left England on a Monday night with just two hours' notice, and on Wednesday at noon the Germans were shelling us at Ypres, so we lost no time. We were dog tired. Thursday night we went into the trenches on the banks of the Ypr-Canal about one mile north-east of Ypres. We held that for six days before we were relieved. We had very little grub or water, but lots of excitement. We couldn't use the canal water or the water from the Ypres river on account of so many dead bodies. The canal is about 100 feet wide and 30 feet deep, and it was so filled with German bodies but fall that the German troops crossed on their own dead. So you can see why the water isn't very good. We left there the next Wednesday night and marched to about five miles south-west of Bailleul, just north of Neuve Chapelle. We stayed there as reserves for about a week, then marched south-west through Merville to Robeco, then to Lacon, and from there we went into the first line of German trenches in front of the Petit-bert, which some English regiment had taken. We were in the same trench as the Germans. The next night we charged them and took a hundred yards more of trench, and the next night we charged and took half a mile. We had only enough men to hold two hundred yards, so had to send for reinforcements. They got to us before the Germans, but we were afraid they wouldn't. The Germans started to shell us at daybreak and kept it up till noon at the rate of about a hundred shells a minute. The noise is awful; you can't imagine it. Hell can't be worse than holding that trench was. We lost over half our men, maybe more. I got hit towards the end of the engagement. The Germans won't wait for us when we charge. They keep machine guns on us till we get within about twenty feet yards, then they take it apart and run, and of course in the dark you can't see where they've gone. The Germans say that the Canadian is the best fighter on the continent to-day, even if he does lack discipline. After I was hit I had to go three miles on foot. The first mile and a half was good very heavy shell-fire and mostly across the open. It was about as dangerous to go out as to stay in, only one could get surgical treatment after he got to the dressing station, and get an injection of serum to protect against lockjaw which the shrapnel is very apt to cause. The weather in France was not too bad, but their soil is poor anywhere I was—very light top soil and then sand for subsoil. Well, I guess I must close as my arm is sore from this unaccustomed job. Don't worry about me, as I'm getting the best of care and food with lots to smoke and read. I have had three of the boys from Ogemas to see me since I got here, and I'm not too bad off for friends. None of your letters since May 1st ever reached me, as we were moving around constantly, and my regiment doesn't know where I am now. My present address is Ward 1, Wanstead House, Margate, Kent Co., England.

German Bombs to Wreck Canadian Factories

A factory in Walkerville, Ont., which has been working on a million-dollar order of uniforms for the British army, was partially destroyed on Monday morning by an explosion believed to be due to a bomb placed by German sympathizers from Detroit. The building was of steel and concrete, and the damage is estimated at $10,000.

The same morning a slight explosion at the armory building in Windsor led to the discovery of a grip containing 27 sticks of dynamite placed under the foundation of the armory. The fuse was attached to the dynamite had expired, but the main charge had failed to explode. To this fact several men stationed in the armory probably owe their lives, as the charge was heavy enough to wreck the whole building.

—Lucknow business men and clerks, including bankers, merchants, barbers, tailors, butchers, grocers, hotelmen, and even the editor, cleaned up the main street on Monday forenoon of last week. They turned out with grub hoe and shovel, and made the dirt, grass and weeds fly for a while, the result being a good piece of work, says the Sentinel, and it cost nobody anything but a little elbow grease. This is a helpful hint for the business men of other towns.

HE STRUCK IT RIGHT AT LAST

After Suffering Almost Two Years, "Fruit-a-tives" Brought Relief.

MR. WHITMAN

382 St. Valier St., Montreal.

"In 1912, I was taken suddenly ill with Acute Stomach Trouble and dropped in the street. I was treated by several physicians for nearly two years. I was in constant misery from my stomach and my weight dropped down from 225 pounds to 160 pounds. Several of my friends advised me to try 'Fruit-a-tives' and I did so. That was eight months ago. I began to improve almost with the first dose. No other medicine I ever used acted so pleasantly and quickly as 'Fruit-a-tives', and by using it I recovered from the distressing Stomach Trouble, and all pain and Constipation and misery were cured. I completely recovered by the use of 'Fruit-a-tives' and now I weigh 208 pounds. I cannot praise 'Fruit-a-tives' enough". H. WHITMAN.

50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size, 25c. At all dealers or sent postpaid by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

This is the kind of Wall Paper Artist We Do NOT Employ—

No sloppy job like this done by our men. It costs you no more to employ clean, careful workmen, than men like the above.

Our Wall Paper Stock

We have just put into stock the newest and

MOST ARTISTIC PATTERNS.

Complete range of all lines for parlor, hall, dining-room, bed-room or kitchen papers on hand, ready for delivery. We would like to show you our different sample books. Stock on hand of all samples shown.

H. GLOVER

PAPERHANGER AND DECORATOR

CONTINUATION SCHOOL PROMOTIONS

June, 1915

The following pupils have been promoted from Form I to Form II of the Lower School. The names are arranged in alphabetical order and not in order of merit: Meryl Bell, L. Black, Geo Brown, Gertie Brown, Lorne Cargill, Irwin Crawford, Isabel McAston, Isabel McKay, Lottie McKinnon, Berta Stark, Wallace Tanner, Edward Teasdale, Hugh Young.

GEO. H. BELL,
Pub. Con. School

BORN

DINSMORE—In Elderslie, on June 18th, to Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Dinsmore, a daughter.

MCSWEYN—In Bruce Tp., on June 22nd, to Mr and Mrs Alex McSweyn, a daughter.

MARRIED

SCARROW—BEATTY—At the residence of Mr. Robert Beatty, brother of the bride, on June 16th, Mr. Lawrence Webster Scarrow, of Keady, to Alice, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Beatty, of Arkwright.

MONKMAN—YOUNG—In St. Michael's and All Saints' (Episcopal) Church, Toronto, on May 22nd, by Rev. W. J. Bryan, M.A., Mr T. Prescott Monkman (youngest son of the late James M. Monkman, former clerk of Arran Tp.), to Miss Ethel May, youngest daughter of Mr and Mrs. Milton Young, of Brampton.

PAISLEY MARKET

Fall wheat, per bushel	$1 02	$ 10
Spring wheat, per bush	1 00	1 00
Buckwheat	70	75
Peas, per bush	1 25	1 25
Oats, per bush	45	50
Barley, per bush	65	75
Potatoes, per bus	40	40
Butter, in pound prints	23	23
Eggs, fresh, per doz	20	20
Hay, per ton		13 00

BALLACHEY, LAIDLAW & CO.

"The Store with the Quality"

Always Fresh

Our Grocery stock turns many times a year.

This means that at all times our supplies of eatables are fresh and good.

In the warm weather you know what that means so act accordingly.

BALLACHEY, LAIDLAW & CO.

Both 'Phones——All Produce

He who has lost his sight best knows its value.

Hundreds suffer loss of sight. Timely attention might have prevented it.

Examination free.

Satisfaction guaranteed.

A Stopped Watch

One that will not go AT ALL—doesn't cause as much bother as one that runs now fast, now slow, in an erratic fashion.

The first you don't pretend to depend upon—the other is a constant source of annoyance.

Most people can afford a watch, but no one can afford an uncertain fast and slow one.

And when our repair department is so close at hand there is really no excuse for carrying anything but an accurate time-piece, no matter what the first cost was.

Consult us about any watch troubles that may arise.

I. SHOEMAKER

JEWELER AND OPTICIAN

SHOES

Our new spring Shoes have just arrived and we have Shoes for all Ladies, Gents and Children at the old prices.

We have not raised our prices as we bought our supply before the advance in prices.

We have a full stock of Men's Women's and Children's heavy waterproof shoes on hand to keep the feet dry.

Call and have a look at our shoes.

Eggs Taken in Exchange

H. PFAFF & SON'S

SHOE STORE

Buggies—We are selling the reliable McLaughlin, Tudhope and Brantford makes, also attending to all kinds of repairs and renewal of parts on all vehicles. A number of second hand buggies to sell cheap.

Furniture A large assortment always in stock, and catalogues of best makers to select from. Any article, large or small, sets or single pieces for furnishing the house.

Single and Double Harness and Harness Supplies

We are agents for the Singer Sewing Machines and Capital Cream Separators

J. SEILER, Eden Grove

CANADIAN PACIFIC

GREAT LAKES Steamship Service

Steamers leave Port McNicoll Tuesdays, Wednesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays for SAULT STE. MARIE, PORT ARTHUR and PORT WILLIAM. The steamer "Manitoba" sailing from Port McNicoll on Wednesdays, will call at Owen Sound, leaving that point at 10.30 p.m.

STEAMSHIP EXPRESS

leaves Toronto 12.45 p.m. daily except Friday, making direct connection with steamers at Port McNicoll on sailing days.

Particulars from W. H. McFarlane, Agent, or write M. G. Murphy, D.P.A., Toronto.

Central Business College Stratford, Ont.

Ontario's Best Practical Training School

We have thorough courses and experienced instructors in each of our three departments—Commercial, Shorthand and Telegraphy. Our graduates succeed and you should get our large, free catalogue. Write for it at once.

D. A. McLACHLAN, Principal

Court Saugeen, C.O.F No. 88

Meets in Oddfellow Hall on the second Wednesday evening of each month, at 8 o'clock. Sojourning brethren are welcome.

A. E. ANDERS, R.S.
W. ANDERS, C.R.

Ahiram Lodge, No. 205, I.O.O.F

Meets every Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock in the Hall Oddfellow Block. Visiting brothers always welcome.

P. J. F. HOUSTON, N.G.
R. B. GRANT, R.S.

PUMP REPAIRING

THE undersigned having purchased Mr W. A. Hoak's plumbing business, will do all kinds of pump repairing, also furnish repairs, such as cylinders, valves and other parts of wooden or iron pumps. A few Hoak wooden pumps for sale. Wood turning done, Turned whiffletrees and neckyoke for sale

Bruce 'Phone W. RAE

TORONTO LIVE STOCK MARKETS

TORONTO, Tuesday, June 24th, 1915

Butchers picked	$8 60	$8 65
do common	7 90	7 35
do cows	7 00	7 25
do bulls	7 00	7 25
Stockers, choice	6 75	7 25
do common	6 00	6 40
Heavy feeders	7 00	7 50
Short keeps	7 00	7 25
Milkers, choice	65 00	100 00
do common	40 00	60 00
Sheep, ewes	8 00	8 00
Bucks	6 50	6 50
Spring Lambs, each	6 00	8 00
Calves	6 00	9 00
Hogs, fed and watered	9 00	9 00

T. H. GEORGE

Issuer of Marriage Licenses
Notary Public and Conveyancer

Land, Loan, Insurance and General Agent. Notes, Book Accounts and other Debts Collected. Conveyancing Neatly and Cheaply Executed.

—FARM LOANS A SPECIALTY—

Office in Postmaster's Block, Queen St. S., Paisley

You Can Begin Any Day at the NORTHERN Business College

OWEN SOUND
Individual Instruction

Our own three story building and 34 successful years of experience. Expert instructors produce the very best results. Catalogue free.

C. A. FLEMING, F.C.A. G. D. FLEMING
Principal Secretary

Business Directory

JOHN SUTHERLAND & SONS LIMITED
INSURANCE—FIRE AND MARINE
GUELPH - ONT.

J. C. GIBSON
Issuer of Marriage Licenses
Paisley, Ont.

LEGAL

D. FORRESTER, B.A., L.L.B.
BARRISTER, SOLICITOR AND NOTARY PUBLIC
OFFICE—TOWN HALL, PAISLEY

MEDICAL

DR. M. C. HAGE, M.D., C.M., F.T.M.C., M.S.R. Owner, Graduate of Trinity University and Carlsbad, New York. SPECIALTY—Diseases of the eye, ear, nose and throat.

DR. H. E. HAGE, Physician, Surgeon and Accoucheur. Specialties in Diseases of the Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat. Late House Surgeon Kingston General Hospital. Office hours—10 a.m., 1 to 4 p.m. Successor to Dr. O'Neill.

DR. F. J. F. HOUSTON, Honor Graduate of Toronto University, Licentiate of the Royal College of Physicians, and Surgeons of Edinburgh and Glasgow. Post graduate London Lying in Hospital. Ex-Visitant assistant Edinburgh Eye Infirmary. Specialty—Diseases of the Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat. Successor to Dr. Morrison.

DENTAL

DR. A. H ALLEN
DENTIST, formerly of Toronto.

Graduate of the Royal College of Dental Surgeons of Ontario. Honor Graduate of Toronto University Dental Department. Master of Dental Surgery. Graduate of the Mayo Post Graduate School of Prosthetic Dentistry, New York. Office over Moore's Drug store, opposite the Post Office.

VETERINARY

R. S. GILANT, V. S., Graduate of Ontario Veterinary College, Toronto. Government Inspector of contagious diseases and expy Tuberculin test is cattle. Also in specialty. Horses and cattle castrated by same. Oxygen gas treatment for milk fever. Office and residence opposite the old Northern Hotel.

AUCTIONEERS

R. G. PEARCE, Licensed Auctioner. Sales attended to in all parts of the County of Bruce on reasonable terms. Orders left at the ADVOCATE Office will receive prompt attention. Telephone at house.

R. J. NESBITT, Licensed Auctioneer for the County of Bruce, is prepared to conduct sales in any part of the county. Terms reasonable. Leave order at ADVOCATE office or address Ethel P.O.

A Great many People Buy Shoes Here

Who are of the come again and again kind.

Now, that wouldn't be so if our Shoes didn't make it so, would it?

All this talk of ours is only intended to get you to be a tryer of our Shoes, that's all.

After that its up to the Shoes to hold you a steady customer.

They generally do it, but if they SHOULDN'T do it in your case, we want you to tell us about it, because there is a mistake somewhere. And we want to make it right.

It matters not what your present or future needs in Shoes may be, we GUARANTEE you a good service.

BUTTER AND EGGS WANTED
For which We Pay the Highest Price

F. Carter & Son

Goods Delivered — Both 'Phones

THE STORE WITH THE QUALITY

Use Royalite Coal Oil

"Where did you get your Oil Stove?"
"I got it at Davison's."
"What is the name of it?"
"Quick Meal."
"Is it a good stove?"
"Well I should say so. You find points of excellence in the Quick Meal Oil Stove that cannot be found in any other stove on the market. Don't buy your stove until you see the Quick Meal. It's the best. I never have any trouble with mine and I have had it for years. I think it would pay you to call at Davison's and see it. I know they will be pleased to show you all about it."
"Well, I'm glad you told me. I think I'll buy one to-morrow."

They all buy the Quick Meal It's the Best!

Use Royalite Coal Oil

W. H. DAVISON

BRUCE PHONE — BELL PHONE

Subscription Arrears to The Advocate

THERE is several hundred dollars still due us on arrears for subscription to The Advocate. We have quite regularly sent our accounts out in an endeavor to collect all. Some, however, have neglected to respond to our requests for payment. Subscribers who neglect the little matter of remitting regularly do not, perhaps, understand the position we are placed in because of not receiving from them what is due us. We do not believe there are more than only a few who would deliberately beat us out of our dues, and we do not propose to treat delinquents as rogues unless we actually find they are such. Nevertheless, we are obliged to make a special effort to collect all arrears, and we have banded over to The Publishers' Adjusting Association a list of behind-handers who will hear from them immediately. Prompt attention to the first notice of indebtedness will save debt ional expense.

We derive no particular pleasure from the pursuit of delinquents, but it seems that it is a necessary part of the business of managing a newspaper office, so we must, that's all.

Kindly avoid all unpleasantness by remitting the amount of your account at once.

Yours truly,

D. McKENZIE, Publisher

GOING TO PAINT ?

There's no doubt about
LOWE BROTHERS
"High Standard" Paint
You know when the painter puts it on that it will give best results, because when properly put on a surface fit to receive it, it has never failed in all the quarter century of its history.
Satisfaction is what you want, and you cannot get it if you are in doubt. Let us supply colors and show how to be certain.

For Sale at Sinclair's Hardware

CARRIAGE PAINT SHOP

The undersigned has rented the Gibson stove building on Queen St. South, where he is prepared to do Painting of all kinds, also repairing and retrimming of all kinds of vehicles. Over 25 years' experience in the best carriage shops in Canada and U.S.

W. JACK

—Renew your subscription to the city dailies or weeklies before the term ends and save interruption in the year's reading. We can get you any paper you want and save you a little money.

Diagnosing a Look

A banker in central Kentucky was in the habit of wearing his hat a good deal during business hours, as in Summer the flies used his bald pate for a parade ground, and in Winter the cold breezes swept over its polished surface. A negro workman on the railroad each week presented a check and drew his wages, and one day, as he put his money in a greasy wallet, the banker said:

"Look here, Mose, why don't you let some of that money stay in the bank and keep an account with us?"

The darky leaned toward him, and, with a quizzical look at the derby the banker wore, answered, confidentially: "Boss, I'm feb' afeared. You look like you was always ready to start some where."

THE GERMANS' POISON GAS

Exactly what chemicals are used by the Germans to poison their adversaries is not quite clear. Sir James Dewar, President of the Royal Institution, is convinced, however, that the poisonous gas consists of liquid chlorine. Sir James points out that for some years Germany has been manufacturing chlorine in tremendous quantities—practically supplying it, in fact, to the rest of the world.

"If several tons of the liquid are allowed to evaporate into the atmosphere—when it immediately evaporates and forms the yellow gas referred to in the official report," says Sir James, "it is the easiest thing in the world for the Germans to inundate the country with the poison miles ahead, if the wind is blowing in the right direction."

Chlorine gas is especially suited to the purpose of poisoning troops owing to the fact that it is heavier than air and drifts like a thick fog along over the surface of the ground. It produces violent nausea and faint ness, followed by an utter collapse. Men arrayed in a dress resembling the harness of a diver and armed with retorts or generators about 3 feet high and connected with ordinary hose pipe are employed to turn the fumes loose.

Lord Fisher's Successor

Admiral Sir HENRY BRADWARDINE JACKSON F.R.S.

Named First Sea Lord of the Admiralty when Baron Fisher resigned. Jackson is known as "the cleverest man in the navy."

PLUCK THAT WON

First Dorsets Used Knapsacks in Place of Trenches in Turnip Field

The bravery with which the 1st Dorset Regiment fought against tremendous odds for three days and three nights at La Bassee is told by Private Cornelius O'Leary, who returned to his home at Reading, wounded. He said:

"We encountered the Germans when they were making one of their fiercest attacks in their efforts to get through to Calais. There were eight companies of us, numbering 130 officers and men abiece, and the fight took place in a very large turnip field. The German artillery was in front of us, and the Maxim fire was on the right and left. It was impossible to make trenches, so we had to place our packs in front of us and do the best we could. We were often outnumbered by ten to one, as the Germans were almost continually being reinforced. But we defeated them with heavy loss.

"General Ferguson, the commander of the division, spoke after the fighting of the splendid achievements of the battalion, and said how pleased General French was with everything they had done."

Ingenious Air Bombs

Bombs thrown from the air are usually exploded by contact. With the Martin Hale bomb, designed specially to be dropped from aeroplanes, there is a "safety pin" which renders the bomb harmless until it has been withdrawn and until a fall of about 200 feet through the air has caused the propeller to rotate and release the firing mechanism. All destructive explosives cause damage by the actual shock of the explosion—that is, by the disturbance in the air created by the expansion of the contents of the shell; by the fragments of the shell or the bullets which it contains flying in all directions; by the fumes which may be given off on explosion, and which may have a stupefying or fatal effect on people in the vicinity; and by the falling of bricks and mortar displaced by the bombs.

Nation Must Give Way to Empire

(By Sidney Low, in The London Standard)

We often hear of the shrinkage of the world. But there is also a shrinkage of Great Britain. The United Kingdom has grown relatively smaller. Thirty years ago, even without our overseas Dominions and dependencies, we might have claimed to be one of the greater nations. To day we are approaching the position of Holland at the close of the seventeenth century. All its wealth, its energy, its commerce, its sea-power could not keep the Dutch Republic abreast of countries like France and England and Austria, with territories and populations many times greater than its own. That threatens to be the case with ourselves. With our less than fifty millions of people we are faced by a German Empire more than seventy millions, and soon perhaps to acquire twenty or thirty millions more from Austria; with a Japan going on towards sixty millions, and rising fast; with the United States within sight of its hundred millions, and with perhaps a hundred and fifty millions in the Empire of the Czars. The better part of our island kingdom is already crowded; we have no room for internal expansion like some of our rivals, who possess vast areas of land still only half developed and sparsely inhabited.

As a nation we seem doomed to pass to the second class; as an Empire we may remain at the top of the first. Even if we leave out the subject millions of Asiatics and Africans, we have the potentiality of being the greatest of the world States. We have more territory suited to a white civilized race than the United States or Russia or China; we have single states beside which Germany and Japan look small. If we can utilize these regions to their full capacity in the economic, military and maritime sense, we shall still hold our place among the greatest of the great political aggregates of the future. It is no longer open to us to suggest that the Empire is an agreeable luxury with which we might possibly dispense. It is a necessity if we are to keep our big fleet and our big trade, if we are not to drop down to the position of Spain.

But if we are feeling a new need of the Oversea States, these for their part are awakening to a larger consciousness that they cannot do without us. The type of oversea publicist who derided the 'Imperial factor' and proclaimed indifference to Imperial politics is dying out. An Australian of the '80s might ask himself whether he might not be well rid of the connection with a distant island that was always threatening to drag him into a quarrel over something in which he had no sort of interest. But the Australian of the hour views the matter from a different aspect. Foreign politics are no longer the affair of a few European Chancelleries. The great game will be played all over the great oceans in the future, and the small Anglo-Saxon States, if they do not want to become mere pawns in it, must rely upon co-operation with the other peoples of their blood. An Australian, a South African, republic cut off from Imperial support, would not long remain a republic at all. It would run an imminent risk of being crushed by the overwhelming weight of European armaments. In the scramble for territory, for trading facilities, and for storage reservoirs of superfluous population, the little nations will stand a poor chance when they have something to offer which everybody wants, such, for instance, as many thousand square miles of undeveloped territory and a superb geographical and strategic situation.

Then again, the last twenty years have witnessed, all the world over, a change of political ideals. The individualistic theory, which was still fashionable in the '70s and the early '80s, has given way to a different conception of the functions of the State. Only a diminishing majority would accept the theory of the sphere of government and the purpose of political action which commended itself to Herbert Spencer and Mill and the Liberal thinkers of the last century. Everywhere there is a desire for national organization and concentration, for welding the structure more closely together, for limiting competition and directing individual effort by the authority of the state, which is conceived as an unresting agent for positive good rather than as performing the mainly negative function of leaving people to employ their own energies for their own benefit. The Oversea States have gone further in this direction than the Mother Country; they tend to be socialized if not socialistic communities. But if an organized nation why not an organized Empire? If the power of the State may be used for ethical, educational and economic purposes, why not also the much superior power of the entire realm?

The Socialistic Utopia requires for its realization the organization of the entire habitable globe as a single world state. That is a dream which may or may not come true. But in the meanwhile an organic unity, comprehending a fifth of the world's population, and some millions of square miles of its landsurface, might become the nearest approach to the Republic of Man that the world is likely to witness for many centuries.

—Clubbing rates with all the city dailies and weeklies.

HO! FOR LAKE HURON!

Come to Port Elgin

—on—

Dominion Day, July 1st Big Celebration

An Excursion train will be run by the G.T.R. from Palmerston and connection to Port Elgin as follows:

STATION	FARE	A.M.	STATION	FARE	A.M.
Palmerston	$1 70	10 30	Dunkeld	.70	11.32
Harriston	1 55	10 40	Cargill	.85	11.38
Fulton's	1 40	10.47	Pinkerton	.90	11 42
Clifford	1.35	10 53	Paisley	.90	11.55
Milldmay	1 00	11.09	Turner's	.25	12.00
Walkerton	.85	11.23	Port Elgin	...	12.25

Returning will Leave Port Elgin at 11.00 p.m.

Races! Races! Races!

$1,000.00 in Prizes — 2.50 Trot and Pace $250.00; 2.10 Pace and Trot $350.00; $2.30 Pace 2.24 Trot $300.00; Green Race $100.00

Great Half-mile Clay Track. Write for Entry Forms.

Indian Silver Cornet Band — Port Elgin Citizens' Band

Big Relay Race The third annual competition for that handsome trophy, the Port Elgin Dominion Cup, between runners from the High and Continuation Schools in the County of Bruce. The usual prizes for the individual winners will again be given. Chesley won last year.

The Argyle Dancers Will put on a splendid platform program, by four professional girl dancers and a piper—all the Scottish dances and many foreign numbers will be given in the most artistic manner. Bring all the children to see them.

Day Fireworks—An Innovation

A Few Special Aerial Numbers for the Afternoon

Great Display at Night Grander than last year. Hand & Co. have arranged for 50 superb numbers. Worth coming a long way to see. The way to the park will be electric lighted, also the grounds and grandstand.

Take a day off and enjoy the breezes of old Lake Huron. Beautiful grounds. Splendid grandstand accommodation. Our hotels are unsurpassed in the province. We welcome all. POPULAR PRICES WILL PREVAIL.

Admission, 25c; Children 15c; Carriages and Autos 25c extra

J. W. PATTISON, Pres. Dr. POWER, Vice-Pres. J. J. GEORGE, Chairman
R. C. CRAWFORD, Sec'y J. D. FALCONER, Treas.

The Bands will head the procession to the Park at 1.30 p.m.

The Superiority of Tone

In COLUMBIA DOUBLE DISC RECORDS is due to the PATENTED and EXCLUSIVE COLUMBIA PROCESS of Manufacture

Columbia Records are BUILT-UP. Instead of economising and using one mixture for the whole record, Columbia records are made in THREE LAYERS, using the cheaper material in the centre only where it doesn't count in the reproduction. The best and most expensive material the world can provide is used on the outer surfaces on which the sound wave or music is engraved.

THAT'S WHY COLUMBIA RECORDS SOUND BETTER and WEAR LONGER

—the same difference in value as there is between an ordinary pine and an expensive built up oak door.

All Columbia records are double, a different selection on each side.

And yet these records cost you less money than any others.

You are not getting the utmost value for your money or the best out of your machine—no matter of what make—unless you use Columbia records.

Of Course, Columbia Records are Made in Canada

If you have never tried Columbia records, ask to hear the following selections. We will gladly play them and any others for you.

A23	Arrival of the British Troops in France. Part 1. Descriptive / Arrival of the British Troops in France. Part 2. Descriptive	85c.
A 5670	Love's Old Sweet Song. Alice Neilsen / Bendemeer's Stream. Alice Neilsen	1.50
A 1754	The Little Ford Rambled right along / Si's Been Drinking Cider	85c.
A 5390	Lucia de Lamermoor. Sextette. Ellery Band / Ir Trovatore—El Miserere Ellery Band	1.25
A 1516	Cohen on the Telephone. Comic / Happy Tho' Married. Comic	85c.

There are over a Thousand Double Disc Record at 85c.

Geo. Welsford
Paisley

A Representative Wanted

For the Old Reliable

Fonthill Nurseries

to sell in Paisley and district

A chance of a lifetime to do a big trade among farmers in fruit stock, as well as good ornamental business in town.

Exclusive territory. Handsome free outfit. Highest commissions paid. Write for terms.

STONE & WELLINGTON
Toronto

The Housewife's Corner

Cherries Served a Dozen Ways.

A ripe, juicy cherry eaten from the stem is so good that it seems almost a shame to disguise or change its taste or texture by cooking and by the addition of other foods and flavors. But even ripe, juicy cherries might become monotonous eating if they were too often served. So in cherry season the clever cook will resort to some of the following ways of presenting this abundant and inexpensive fruit to the family to which she caters.

To begin with, always serve cherries fresh, whether they are served raw or cooked. If too many cherries are bought to be disposed of while they are fresh, can the superfluous ones while they are still firm and sweet. Nothing loses taste and quality more quickly by standing than does a cherry.

Cherry Pie.—Cherry pie cannot, in spite of the assertion of the old rhyme, be made "quick's a cat can wink its eyes." But it is so delicious that it is worth making, nevertheless. The kind made with stoned cherries is much pleasanter to eat. Stone the cherries carefully, with a sharp knife, and save all the juice that comes from them. Sweeten according to the sweetness of the cherry. The English method is to make the pie of unstoned cherries, without a lower crust. But a good pie results from a combination of two methods—a pie without a lower crust and with pitted cherries. Line the sides of a deep dish with cherries around an inverted cup—in which the juice will gather instead of boiling over with crust. Bake brown and serve cold.

Cherry Dumplings.—Here is a receipt for good cherry dumplings. It is possible to make these dumplings with a plain biscuit dough, but this suet dough is perhaps better. Allow one ounce of finely chopped suet to each cupful of flour. To each four cupfuls of flour add a teaspoonful each of salt and baking powder, sift, and then work in the suet with two silver knives. Mix with cold milk to a stiff dough and roll out on a board. Cut the dough in squares and in the centre of each put a pile of sweetened cherries. Pull up the edges of the dough and form each dumpling into a ball and steam for about an hour. Serve with cherry sauce, cream or hard sauce.

Cherry Tarts.—Cherry tarts are delicious, too. To make them, bake tart shells of pie crust, moderately rich. Stew sweetened, pitted cherries just enough to cook them through. Just before serving put the cherries in the tart shells and top each tart with a spoonful of whipped cream.

Cherry Sauce.—Cream a tablespoonful of butter with a tablespoonful of cornstarch and heat until slightly brown. Then add two cupfuls of stoned cherries, a cupful of sugar and a cupful of water. Simmer until the cherries are cooked soft. Rub through a fine sieve and serve. A little lemon juice may be added to give a tarter flavor.

Cherry Roly-poly.—This is an old favorite among cherry deserts. Make a rich biscuit dough or the suet dough already described and roll it out in a sheet half an inch thick. Spread it with stoned cherries, sweetened to taste, and a little butter. Put in a buttered dish or a mold and steam for two hours. This, because it is bigger, takes longer cooking than the individual dumplings described. Serve with sauce—either cherry or hard sauce.

With Ice Cream.—Put vanilla ice cream in dessert glasses and over each portion pour several tablespoonfuls of cherry sauce, made by pouring a cupful of granulated sugar melted in a double boiler, over two cupfuls of stoned cherries. Pour the sauce over the ice cream as soon as it is made, or else after it has been thoroughly chilled.

Cherry Tapioca and Rice.—Add stoned cherries to rice or tapioca pudding for a change. A tapioca pudding made without milk and eggs—just the sweetened tapioca cooked to transparency in water—is delicious when stoned cherries are lavishly added, and the pudding is thoroughly chilled before serving, and then eaten with whipped cream.

—Cherry Salad.—Diced fresh pineapple and pitted cherries, served on crisp white lettuce leaves with a dressing made of three parts of olive oil to one of lemon, flavored with salt and paprika, make a tempting salad in cherry season. Another good salad is made by stoning cherries and making each of them the nucleus of a small ball of cream cheese, which has been mixed with chopped nut meats. Serve three or four of these balls on each plate, with crisp lettuce and French dressing. Cherries and oranges can be combined in a very good sweet salad.

As an Appetizer.—Firm, ripe cherries sprinkled with lemon juice and sugar can be served on their stems as an appetizer. They should be thoroughly chilled.

A Fruit Dessert.—Cherries added to any fruit combination for dessert are good. With pineapple and orange, sweetened, and served in dessert glasses, with early peaches diced and served in the same way, or with grapefruit and bananas they are delicious.

Cherries to Drink.—Boil four cupfuls of sugar with two quarts of water for five minutes and then pour over two quarts of cherries that have been pitted and forced through vegetable press. Add the juice of two lemons and chill thoroughly. Serve with cracked ice for a refreshing beverage.

Cherry Whip.—Pit some ripe, red cherries and sweeten the juice. Add the cherries, cut in quarters, to stiffly beaten eggs, sweetened to taste. Put two or three tablespoonfuls of the juice in the bottom of each dessert glass and pile the whip on top.

RESORT TO DEADLY GASES.

Kaiser's Allies Amazed But Are Silent.

When the news of the use of asphyxiating gases by the Germans in the western theatre of war reached Budapest from Italy, in extracts from French and British newspapers, the Budapest journals reproduced these items in full, giving a technical description of the gases, although at the same time commenting upon the report as "an absurd and ridiculous slander." One of the morning newspapers characterized the news as one of the usual French and Italian libels on Germany. "To whose fairness in the war," it was added, "no suspicion can attach. They have tried to discredit German heroism by many such tricks already, but never with a slander of so grave and libellous a nature as this newly invented form of accusation."

It will thus be seen that the report obtained no credence, not because of any high conception of German fairness but because the resort to such unworthy devices appeared to argue military weakness on Germany's part. When the use of these gases was confirmed from Germany itself there was nothing else for the newspapers but to keep silence on the subject. The "slanders" were, after all, not slanders, but the popular disappointment and disillusion are so deep and thorough that it will take some time to recover from their effects.

In the parliamentary lobby surprise was expressed that Germany, which claims a military superefficiency, should resort to weapons with which neither Austrians nor Russians have soiled their hands. To Hungarians it is inconceivable why Germans with all her powers and resources, in a war against a foe which she persistently has proclaimed to be weaker and inferior, should have to resort to unscrupulous tactics. It is argued that Austria-Hungary, in fighting Russia, is contending against a powerful and determined enemy, but, while excesses may have to be admitted on either side, there have been no flagrant violations of international conventions or the unwritten laws of humanity.

When the history of this war comes to be written by an unbiased pen, though atrocities and breaking of conventions will have to be recorded, it will be recognized that the war of Austria-Hungary and Russia was in the main waged on humane and self-respecting lines.

Of the many chivalrous incidents supplied by the Austro-Russian campaign it is only necessary to take the case of three Serbian soldiers who found a wounded Austrian officer lying in a wood one night. As the Austrian line was the nearer, in order to save his life they brought him in there, and then asked for permission to return to their own lines. In return for their courtesy and humanity they were escorted halfway back. Compared with instances like these, German "kultur" and "humanity" take a very secondary place.

How Shoe Peg Was Invented.

To a Massachusetts man, Joseph Walker, is due the credit of inventing the shoe peg. Previous to the year 1818 its use had not been known, and its inventor gave a new start to the manufacture of boots and shoes.

Shortly after the introduction of this invention some unscrupulous parties are said to have tried to swindle the unsuspecting by endeavoring to sell shoe pegs as a new kind of oats.

Up to 1818 boots and shoes had been sewed, and the peg, first made by hand, came in to revolutionize the trade. It was, however, the custom of shoemakers who lived away from the manufacturing centres to make their own pegs by hand even as late as 1860, but the machine-manufactured peg has now superseded them.

On an average, a man consumes one ton of solid and liquid nourishment every year.

All Englishmen were compelled by law to practice archery in the reign of King Henry VIII.

FORGOT SUBMARINE SCARE

A. G. VANDERBILT MERELY LAUGHED AT MENACE.

Last Conversation With Millionaire Repeated by One of the Survivors.

George Kessler, a New York merchant, who since his arrival in England after being rescued from the Lusitania has been laid up at his Bourne End-on-Thames residence, gave to a reporter an account of the Cunarder's voyage.

"Soon after I boarded the ship I saw Mr. and Mrs. Vanderbilt taking leave of one another," Mr. Kessler said. "Presently a party of us came together—Vanderbilt, C. F. Williamson, a dealer in antiques, of Paris, and a friend of Vanderbilt; Edward Gorer, a London art dealer; Thomas Slidell, a newspaper correspondent, and a Miss Baker, of Paris. Vanderbilt produced a copy of a New York paper and pointed to the warning about submarines issued by the German Embassy.

"He said that at 8 o'clock that morning his mother telephoned his wife and called her attention to the warning. When it was mentioned to Vanderbilt he merely laughed, he said. I remember his words to us: 'Well, how ridiculous this thing is. The Germans would not dare to make any attempt to sink this ship.'

"During the afternoon I spoke to Mrs. A. Witherbee, one of the survivors, who was accompanied by her mother and little son, a charming child of four. Mrs. Witherbee was entirely wrapped up in her little boy, taking him into meals with her in the saloon, which, of course, is not generally permitted. Imagine the tragedy of this devoted mother. She has been saved and her darling boy and her mother have been drowned.

Allen Sisters Life of Ship.

"I particularly noticed Lady Allen and her two handsome young daughters; they were virtually the life and soul of the ship, and it did one good to see the smiling, joyous faces of these young girls. How terrible to think that the mother has to mourn their loss to-day.

"Vanderbilt kept mostly to his stateroom; there he had his meals served and there he saw his friends. He always was like that on a voyage—always enjoyed being quiet.

"We had long talks, chiefly on finance and on the Mercantile National League, of which Vanderbilt, Morgan and myself have been founders. This league, which has been organized by P. H. W. Ross, of Washington, seeks to establish an American mercantile marine.

"We talked about financial matters after the war and how closer business relations could be established between America and the Triple Entente.

Vanderbilt Denounced Germans.

"Vanderbilt was in favor of closer and more reciprocal relations than have hitherto prevailed. He was very emphatic in his denunciation of German methods of barbarism. 'They have disgraced themselves,' he said, 'and never in our time will they be looked upon by any human being valuing his honor, save with feelings of contempt. How can Germany, after what she has done, ever think of being classed as a country of sportsmen and men of honor on a par with America, England or France? She has made war without the least scruples as to employment of illicit means, and even barbarians would not condescend to the threats she has used.'

"Vanderbilt did not appear in the dining saloon before Wednesday, when he had dinner with a party. I saw him and Frohman the night before we were torpedoed, and we had a half hour's conversation. Vanderbilt was figuring out the advisability of coming back on the Lusitania or Adriatic and trying to fit in dates with his arrangement. His idea was to remain in London only about thirty days to straighten up his business affairs. 'There will be no coaching for me this year,' he said. 'I am sorry, but to drive a coach in these times is out of the question.' I could see by his manner how devoted he was to his favorite recreation.

Passengers Forget Warning.

"Mostly the passengers had forgotten all about the submarine scare, but one or two old ladies were very nervous. Curious rumors were afloat. There was some suggestion—with what foundation I cannot say—that an attempt had been made to fool with the Marconi installation. Two men who had kept to themselves were generally alluded to as Germans. How much truth there is in this I cannot say.

"On Friday I came on deck very late. I had passed a very sleepless night, and the fog sirens, which were situated near my berth, did not tend to make sleep any easier. It was about five minutes past two when I turned out. I leaned over the side of the ship, and to my astonishment I saw a torpedo cleaving the water. I pulled out my watch and saw it was just a quarter past two. Three seconds later the vessel had been hit about amidships. The rest of the story you know."

Kessler also said that on the trawler Bluebell he met Captain Turner. "I asked him where he lived, and he said in Liverpool. I said, 'Your wife will be glad to hear you were saved.' 'Yes,' he replied, 'and so will my little niece.'"

He gathered from his conversation that neither he nor the lookouts had seen the submarine."

The Canadian Eye-Witness.

This photograph of Sir Max Aitken (in the centre), the Canadian Eye-witness, was taken in Hyde Park, London, and shows him talking with Major F. E. Smith, K.C., M.P., the new British Solicitor-General, and Mr. John Redmond, the Irish Leader.

GERMANS BARBAROUS AND CRUEL

Extracts from Caesar, Seneca and other Latin Classics, Shows That Spirit of the Race Has Not Changed in Twenty Centuries.

An extract from a newspaper which has just come to hand the following quotations summarize a famous and curious study depicting the present war.

"The possession of our territory offering a special attraction to the Germans, after having invaded all the eastern part, they established themselves as if it ought to belong to them always, the General Staff exercising its power with insolence and cruelty, demanding hostages, even children, and delivering the inhabitants to every kind of torture if, at the least sign of their chief, his orders were not carried out immediately. These ferocious and barbarous men sought to invade all the country and became a menace to Italy."

What is the date of this extract and what is its title? It is not of yesterday or the day before. It dates from fifty years before our era. It is, in fact, from the Commentaries of Caesar. This great conqueror, who was, nevertheless, not remarkable for his tenderness, had been struck by the savagery of the warriors from beyond the Rhine who were the terror of peaceful populations. Two thousand years ago these arrogant and cruel invaders were the same as today. Going over the pages of the famous Roman general, one would think he was reading the newspapers of to-day.

And his judgment is not isolated. Let us consult the best Latin classics. There is unanimity. The same words, the same opinion about the Germans.

"They are born for deceit," writes the historian Vellejus Paterculus, a contemporary of Jesus Christ, "joining rare to such a point that one cannot comprehend until after having experienced it. They thus lulled Varus, deceiving his improvidence by a perfidious ingenuity, seeing that the man most easily surprised is he who does not suspect anything."—Roman History, II., 118.

Elsewhere Seneca declares:—"The Rhine flows between the Roman world and its enemies; it separates us from the German race, always insatiable for war."—Quaestiones Naturae, VI.

Tacitus, on his side, notes:—"The Germans call themselves men of warfare and that name has been invented by them to inspire frightfulness. They like best to seek an enemy and wounds rather than to till the soil and await the harvest and to acquire by the sweat of one's body what they can gain by fighting."

Another portrait, outlined by Strabo:—"The Germans," he says, "differ from the Gauls in being taller, more blond and more ferocious."

Suppressing the names of the authors, do not those documents characterize the present situation? Could they not be called extracts from tales we receive every day of the most formidable of wars?

Twenty centuries have almost entirely passed since the epoch when the Germanic race was stigmatized by the Latin writers. Its mental attitude has not been changed since those times, only its barbarity has become scientific. It has enriched itself with all the scientific refinements which seemed destined only to raise humanity toward a better future of progress and justice.

Very unfortunately the Germanic barbarity is going to be extinguished in blood and infamy and civilization is about to triumph after the most frightful of struggles.

THOUGHTS FOR THE DAY.

The Valley of Humiliation is of itself as fruitful a place as any the eye does over.—Bunyan.

The greatest object in education is to accustom a young man gradually to be his own master.—Sydney Smith.

A pigmy standing on the outward crest of this small planet, man's far-reaching spirit stretches outward to the infinite and there alone finds rest.—Carlyle.

Your first-rate men never get on in the world; they always have some absurd quirk or crochet of their own that nobody else can understand.—Charlotte Yonge.

A man should never be ashamed to own that he has been in the wrong, which is but saying, in other words, that he is wiser to-day than he was yesterday.—Swift.

The most triumphant death is that of the martyr; the most awful that of the martyred patriot; the most splendid that of the hero in the hour of victory.—Dr. Southey.

Every rightly-constituted mind ought to rejoice not so much in knowing anything clearly, as in feeling that there is infinitely more which it cannot know.—Ruskin.

Life is made up, not of great sacrifices or duties, but of little things in which smiles and kindness, and small obligations given habitually, are what win the hearts and secure comfort.—Sir Humphrey Davy.

Seven Mistakes of Life.

Here is an editor's enumeration of the seven mistakes of life:

1—The delusion that individual advancement is made by crushing others down.

2—The tendency to worry about things that cannot be changed or corrected.

3—Insisting that a thing is impossible because we ourselves cannot accomplish it.

4—Attempting to compel other men to believe and live as we do.

5—Failure to refine the mind by acquiring the habit of reading good literature.

6—Refusing to set aside trivial preferences in order that important things may be accomplished.

7—The failure to establish the habit of saving money.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL STUDY

INTERNATIONAL LESSON, JUNE 27.

Lesson 13.—David, the Shepherd of Israel—Review. Golden Text—Ezek. 34.15.

The Holy Scriptures are concerned primarily with sin and salvation. All other subjects are secondary to these. Many events are passed over without mention by the inspired writers, and the history given by them is penetrated in every part by a spiritual purpose. Our lessons during the past quarter, taken in the main from the lives of Saul and David, the first and the second kings of Israel, illustrate this truth. The psalms which we have studied belong also to this period of David's life, and our Easter lesson concerning the resurrection of our Lord, was the record of the fulfilment in him of "the sure mercies of David" (Acts 13.34), even the everlasting establishment of David's throne. The leading truths which are contained in our lessons stand out clear to view.

1 The risen Lord is the Saviour of hearts, dispelling sorrow and giving hope and joy to despairing souls. Thus he came to the grief-stricken women at the sepulcher, and thus he continues the revelation of his grace and truth to all who yearn for his presence. To them who most lament his absence he appears most surely and quickly. They who miss him most find him first.

2. Character is a matter of inward condition of the heart, and not of outward appearance. This was the lesson which the venerable and holy Samuel needed to learn when in his old age God sent him to anoint David. The aged prophet was made to see that the fairest to the eye is not always the fittest in the soul.

3. The Lord guides, and guards, and provides for his people. This is the lovely lesson of the Shepherd Psalm. Out of the heart of the shepherd king the Lord sent forth this song of solace to his flock in every age and clime.

4. No foe is formidable enough to fear if one goes forth with God by his side. Goliath fell before David's faith, and by the mere force of the shepherd boy. The son of Jesse went armed by an invisible power which no spear or sword or shield could withstand. "The weapons of our warfare are not carnal," even as his were not; but they are mighty, nevertheless.

5. The righteous walk ever under the protecting care of God, who delivers them from the subtlest enemies and raises up for them friends and defenders in most unexpected quarters. Thus David was saved from the murderous wrath of Saul and given his noble friend, Jonathan, where he might naturally have looked to find a foe.

6. A true friend is the gift of God, and genuine friendship rests upon a foundation of love between them who share a like precious faith. God gave David and Jonathan to one another; and no distrust ever sprang up between them because both trusted God. Fidenity in friendship is not possible to to the faithless.

7. Magnanity and mercifulness are the fruits of faith in God. David could safely spare Saul, since he knew God would care for him. Revenge is born of distrust in God quite as much as it springs from bitterness toward men. If we believe God when he says, "Vengeance is mine; I will repay, saith the Lord," we shall be ready to feed our enemies when they hunger and to give them drink when they thirst. He who takes his case into his own hands has lost confidence in the Lord's care for the moral order of the universe.

8. He who believes will not make haste. David hastened not to enforce his rule over all Israel, knowing surely that God would fulfill his promises to him. Thus civil war was averted and his throne more firmly established at last. A man who hurries to seize his own assumes that God will come too late to keep His word; but the Lord is never belated in the fulfillment of his purposes. The heavenly King never hurries and is never tardily.

9. The presence of God in worship stirs the hearts of the worshippers with joy. The ark was the symbol of the divine presence; and when David brought it to Jerusalem, he confessed by his act his conscious need of God and his desire for worship. God met him in his pious deed and filled his soul with inexpressible gladness. Ours is a glad God, who delights to give joy and peace to them who adore Him.

10. The holiest, if unwatchful, may fall; and sin by men whose previous history has been most blameless cannot escape the condemnation of God or the consequences of wrongdoing. The rebuke of David by Nathan, the prophet, at the command of God shows how no sin, however secret, can be hidden from the divine eye or be shielded from the divine judgment.

11. There is forgiveness with God to all sinners who in hearty repentance and true faith return to him. This is the saving truth which David out of personal experience, sings in notes almost divine in Psa. 32—the eleventh lesson of the quarter. And he also reminds us that if a man cover his own sin, God will not cover it.

12. By prayer the tempted prevail over temptation.

Satan trembles when he sees
The weakest saint upon his knees

What Good Roads Mean to Canada

The attendances to the rural meeting place is diminishing; the attendance to the schoolhouse is dwindling; friendship is being severed with the neighbor living a short distance away, as well as with the person to whom you regularly send a letter, and the village preacher is being discouraged. What is the reason for this? Impassable roads, and nothing else. Country communities are not going to wade through mud to post a letter, to go to school, to go to church or to visit a friend, neither will they suffer their horses to attempt it. They will not be pestered with doctor's bills because the road is transformed into a quagmire. Rural inhabitants are being degraded educationally, socially and morally. Country folk are not migrating to cities because they don't like rural life, but because the roads, if they may be so called, are impassable. These people are intelligent enough to see that all the discomfort and prevention of social enjoyment is due to the lack of good roads. You cannot estimate in dollars and cents the national loss entailed by the constant withdrawal of labor from farms, and by the fading away of the influence of the character-building institutions of the country.

A great thinker says: "If new ideas are abroad, new hopes arising, you will see it by the roads that are building." Simultaneously with the movement for the need of good roads arises one far-reaching idea, even more profound than the enhancing of land values. It is the social betterment of the world. Canada is playing a distinguished part in the uplift of the world.

Now turn to the meaning of roads in the economic sphere. It is a good business policy. Canada's manufacturers, men of commerce and business, admit that Canada needs such a policy, but because they cannot see any solid, unrestricted and available gain that would accrue, they don't care. The cost of a breakfast roll would be trifling did it not cost the farmer eighteen cents a bushel more to transport wheat nine miles to a railway station than it did from New York to Liverpool, a distance of three thousand one hundred miles.

LONDON'S WOMEN VOLUNTEER RESERVES.

The picture shows Colonel Charlesworth (mounted) riding along the lines of her "Khaki Girls," as the members of the Women's Volunteer Reserves, are called, at Ealing, England. The volunteer movement is gaining in strength, and numbers daily, and their drills are as strenuous as those of the recruits of Kitchener's army.

ROYAL YEAST CAKES

The best yeast in the world. Makes perfect bread.

MADE IN CANADA

E.W.GILLETT COMPANY LIMITED
TORONTO, ONT.
WINNIPEG MONTREAL

THE RETURN OF PROSPERITY

REPRESENTATIVE BUSINESS MEN EXPRESS THEIR VIEWS.

If the 1915 Harvest Is Up to Expectations Domestic Business Will Be Satisfactory in All Provinces.

Trade in Canada has passed the period of greatest depression, and already exhibits signs of a sound revival in many lines, is the opinion of the majority of representative business men throughout the Dominion who have contributed their views to a comprehensive survey of conditions which has just been completed by the Canadian Northern Railway. Less than ten per cent. of those responding, confess to a gloomy outlook; more than ninety per cent., numbering more than two thousand, report themselves as optimistic as far as the immediate future is concerned. Practically all are agreed that trade conditions will rapidly return to normal after the restoration of peace. A large number are convinced that if the harvest of 1915 is up to expectation, domestic business will be satisfactory in all the provinces.

In the survey, all classes of enterprise as defined by the last Dominion Census are reported upon. The provinces have furnished the latest information regarding the 1915 production of the agricultural, mining, fishing and lumbering industries. Country towns and villages as well as the large commercial and industrial centres have been covered, and officials of the C.N.R. are inclined to accept the views reported as frank statements of present trade and its future prospects.

The reports indicate that business in the Dominion, as a whole, is from 15 to 20 per cent. below the normal of one year ago. Exactly two-thirds of the informants report a volume of trade as good, or better, than it was last autumn, while 12.03 per cent. state they can not compare present business and last autumn business because trade is always brisker with them at one season than during the other. Apparently trade in the Maritime Provinces is affected least. In the Prairie Provinces it is not nearly as brisk as it was last year, but optimism is reviving under the influence of excellent crop prospects. Business in Quebec is slow, but apparently improving, and in Ontario it is gradually returning to normal. Broadly considered, the reports show that business in the towns and villages located in well-settled, fertile agricultural districts is practically normal. Dealers in all lines report that collections in such centres are generally normal, and that activities have not been curtailed to any extent. The chief falling off has been in the large industrial centres. When reductions in staff were made by manufacturers and by business houses last autumn, retailers were forced to curtail credits to customers thrown out of work, and in turn wholesalers were obliged to scrutinize carefully all credits extended to retailers. The people generally continued to purchase necessary lines of food-stuffs and essentials in other branches of trade as well, but dealers discovered that goods not falling within that classification were in danger of becoming dead-stock upon their shelves; however, as Canadians arrived at a better understanding of actual conditions, a certain amount of confidence returned, and retail sales were gradually extended to take in the usual lines of goods. The distribution of orders for war materials also exerted a favorable influence where it brought about a renewal of employment in several of the industries in the large cities, and trade credits relaxed to a proportionate extent. Collections, despite the altered conditions, appear to have continued fairly good in the large centres, and seem to be steadily improving.

The strong position in which the farmers of the Dominion were placed, with the exception of those in the drought-stricken areas in the southern portions of the Prairie Provinces, as a result of the marketing at excellent prices of their farm produce—particularly grains and cheese — has worked out apparently to the advantage of the groups of manufacturers whose products are distributed, wholly or in part, in the agricultural districts. It is clearly shown that purchases by the farmers have contributed very largely to the maintenance of output in many lines. They have continued buying their regular supplies and necessary farm implements; and they have also been devoting a portion of their surplus fund to the improvement of their farm properties. When the call came to extend, wherever possible, the acreage of important cereals, they, apparently, exhibited no hesitation in making the necessary outlays for additional facilities. Meanwhile they seem to have proceeded with building plans, and dealers in cement, paints, building materials of various descriptions, do not hesitate to pay tribute to the manner in which the farmer has stimulated their marketings and helped to take up the shrinkage in business. The farmer seems to have been in the market for automobiles of a popular price on a scale greater than ever before.

Keener perception by all classes of the important role which agriculture occupies in the business life of Canada is also noted. There is evidence of a disposition to lean upon the crops of 1915, and to qualify optimism regarding the future with the remark that "the crop is the determining factor." Special reports sent in by the various Departments of Agriculture, forecast a good yield on a largely increased acreage throughout the Dominion. With the incentive of high prices, farmers have devoted more time and care to cultivation, and have used seed of higher germinating quality than ever before; it seems safe to assume that if only an average crop per acre is harvested, the total output will be larger than in any year since the growing of grain was commenced in the Western Provinces. The acreage in British Columbia is said to have been more than doubled, and in the Prairie Provinces it averages twenty-two per cent. In Ontario the acreage is reported to have been increased materially. A similar condition obtains in the Maritime Provinces. In Quebec the normal acreage is indicated.

The collapse of the building trades has been the cause of a substantial reduction in sales of Canadian lumber, and the belief is expressed that the domestic market cannot permanently improve until construction becomes general again in the principal centres. The export trade, however, appears to be standing the strain splendidly, the chief worry being in connection with the availability of ships to carry the forest products of British Columbia, the Maritime Provinces and Quebec. Ontario exports chiefly to the United States.

Practically all of the wood-working plants which are large users of lumber in Canada are operating at reduced speed. Furniture and piano manufacturers report a trade as below normal, although it seems to be improving. Makers of woodenware are in much the same position. Sash and door firms, and manufacturers of building material confess to a depressed state of trade in accordance with the districts in which they are placed. Business with these is away off where dependence is largely upon building operations in the large centres; in the country conditions are much better. The shipping of munitions of war manufactured in this country is stimulating the business of makers of packing cases. On the whole, however, there appears to be scant hope of a revival in the wood-working industry until after the crop is harvested and a revival in earnest until the war is over. When that time comes all the wood-working plants expect to regain quickly their former position of activity.

The value of the mineral production in Canada this year will not likely be as great as in 1914, when it totalled $128,475,495, a decrease of $17,159,313 or 11.8 per cent. from that of 1913, the record year. The world-wide depression in trade during 1914 would probably have been the means of reducing the output of minerals in Canada even if war had not been declared. Hostilities have had the effect of stimulating the production of nickel however, and it is expected that the mines of Sudbury district will show greater activity this year than ever before. They have also accelerated the production of lead. Coal mining appears to be almost as usual, although the large companies report a shortage of ships to carry the products. Even while operating under that handicap, shipments from Nova Scotia, the largest producer of coal of any of the provinces to points on the St. Lawrence River, notably Montreal, show a considerable improvement in March over that month in 1914.

It is evident from the reports submitted to the C. N. R. that the large manufacturing plants which in normal times produced machinery, locomotives, engines, boilers, structural steel, and so on, were adversely affected when war was declared and that they have been called away from regular work and are now engaged in manufacturing munitions of war for the armies of Great Britain and her allies. In some cases the entire plant has been turned over to this new work, while in others the equipment is installed in part. Orders for munitions of war from Great Britain alone amounting in value to $150,000,000 have already been given in Canada. Although the effects are not yet fully felt, because the output is but 10,000 shells a day, there is scarcely any doubt that in a month it will be 50,000 a day, and that employment will be normal or abnormal in the plants engaged upon these Government contracts. Orders have been distributed throughout the entire country, and their influence ought to be felt in all provinces of the Dominion.

Wholesale hardware men, manufacturers of plumbers' supplies, and retailers handling hardware, appear to be agreed that their decrease in business from last year may be accounted for by the collapse in the building trades. But they add also, that manufacturers with businesses not specially active, are not inclined to purchase supplies of hardware in quantities in excess of immediate requirements. It is expected that good crops throughout the country will partially revive the building trades and to a proportionate extent will increase the sales of their goods, and their outlook accordingly is not at all gloomy.

In automobiles there appears to be an undiminished domestic demand for machines of a popular price, but in the case of the more expensive makes that condition does not prevail. Foreign goods appear to be out of favor, and makers of Canadian cars, accordingly, are generally optimistic regarding the future. The farmer as a class seems to have been in the market since last autumn to a greater extent than was formerly the case, and war orders have been a considerable factor.

In the fisheries industry, the catch promises to be quite up to the average of other years. The closing of the German markets has adversely affected some of the exporters on the Atlantic coast, but it seems that the defect from that cause is expected to be offset by larger shipments to the Old Country, whose North Sea fishing fleets have been reduced by the Admiralty requisitioning a large number of trawlers to facilitate naval operations. With the possible exception of the canned lobster trade, the markets upon which the east coast fishermen chiefly rely: the United States, Latin countries of Europe, South America and the West Indies, have not been seriously affected. Preparations are for a larger pack than last year of canned salmon in British Columbia and a home and foreign demand sufficiently strong as to absorb the supplies is reported from the west coast dealers. The catch and the markettings of the inland fisheries are apparently almost normal. — A total of 71,776 were employed in the fishing operations and 26,803 were engaged in the canneries, freezers, fish-houses, etc., on shore. Of course these workers were employed only during the fishing season.

The distribution of food products throughout the country appears to have proceeded in normal volume with the possible exception of luxuries and canned goods; however, dealers say that the decrease in the latter which followed the closing down of railway construction camps and the slackening in the demands from the Western Provinces, has been offset to a certain extent by a demand for military requirements. It is apparent that while purchases of sugar y the people throughout Canada have been somewhat erratic, the total business is about equal to that of last year, and production is proceeding steadily. Sales in the ordinary staples give no signs of curtailment, although prices have advanced in many lines.

Manufacturers of drugs, chemicals, and patent medicines unanimously report a decrease in profits in their business. The volume of trade is standing up fairly well, but they state that the increase in cost of raw material and the impossibility of securing further supplies from Germany, have increased their manufacturing costs and their difficulties generally.

The leather goods business is also somewhat abnormal in character. Tanners and those manufacturing leather into supplies for the armies of Great Britain and her allies report a larger business than they have hitherto enjoyed. Costs of stock have advanced materially. Boot and shoe manufacturers are inclined to the opinion that the total business is less than it was a year ago, although the demand appears to be improving. Prices have advanced materially in nearly all lines, and the increase is attributed to scarcity of raw material induced by the demands of the military upon the available supplies. Makers of travelling bags and trunks generally report a decreased business.

In the textile industry, where military requirements are being filled, manufacturers report a trade considerably above normal, but where the reverse is the case, the trade appears to be somewhat less than it was a year ago. The supplies of raw materials from Great Britain have become difficult to secure even at higher prices, and although there appears to be a movement in the Old Country to allow of a certain number of mills devoting their output for civilian purposes, there is an expectation that a scarcity will prevail during the coming autumn and winter, and where possible, retail dealers seem to be putting in their stocks for the trade now.

In cotton goods, conditions are described generally as almost normal, indeed, the prices which are now being quoted by salesmen throughout the Maritime Provinces are back to the scale which prevailed before the outbreak of war, at which time a decline was recorded. As a matter of fact the distribution of cotton goods is said to have astonished even those prominent in the industry, that statement, of course, refers to the general trade, and there are some lines which appear to be waiting upon the crop for a revival of activity. No doubt the activity in local mills is due to the closing off of supplies from foreign countries which have been affected by the war.

Fine Cut.

"I certainly like the way our new cook prepares spaghetti."

"How's that?"

"She runs it through the meat chopper first."

Napoleon's handwriting was so bad that often he could not decipher it himself.

The War and the Cattle Trade

Mr. Randolph Bruce, a well-known rancher in Western Canada, has just returned from Europe with many interesting opinions as to the effect that the war will have on the Canadian farmer. The immense slaughter of cattle for the armies in the field will, he thinks, cause a great increase in the price of beef, and those farmers who are raising cattle will make more money even than those who are raising wheat at a dollar-fifty per bushel. Every effort should be made to raise cattle for the market in as large quantities and as quickly as possible. Mr. Bruce is a great believer in alfalfa as the most satisfactory food for the rapid raising of cattle for beef.

In this connection it is interesting to note that fattening young stock is becoming very popular in the United States, where the market for beef is increasing so rapidly that more study has been paid to methods of increasing production.

In the early days cattle were kept on the ranges from three to five years. Experience, however, has shown that the use of thoroughbred bulls and the consequent improvement in the quality and maturing ability of market cattle, together with heavier grain feeding, has made it possible to put just as much beef on the market at from 13 to 20 months old. Experts are of the opinion that with the continued improvement of breed stock it will be possible to market at an even earlier date. Among the advantages of earlier finishing of cattle, the following are mentioned by some of the leading cattle men: Firstly, younger cattle make heavier gains of beef on a similar amount of feed than old cattle; secondly, the money invested is turned faster, being turned over in eighteen months, where formerly it took from three to five years; thirdly, heifers under two years old sell as readily as steers and finish more rapidly.

As the census statistics prove without shadow of doubt, the value of beef cattle in Canada is steadily increasing. In 1901 there were 3,167,744 valued at $54,197,341, or an average of $17.12, taking the good with the bad. In 1911 there were 3,939,257, valued at $86,270,490, or an average of $21.90, an increase of $4.78 per head. Mr. H. S. Arkell, Assistant Live Stock Commissioner for the Dominion Government, says that never in our statistical history have prices attained so high a figure either for cattle on the hoof or for meat in the butcher shop as to-day. What it will be next year when the full effect of the war is felt no one can tell.

Pure Ice Cream for the Children

Include plenty of City Dairy Ice Cream in the children's diet. In the summer time there is nothing that can take its place—it's cooling—it's a food and the child craves its sweetness.. Give them all the Ice Cream they can eat but be sure it's made by City Dairy because "If it's City Dairy, it's Pure, that's Sure".

For sale by discriminating shopkeepers everywhere.

City Dairy

Look for the Sign.

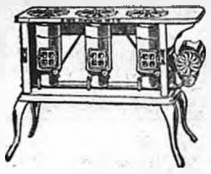
TORONTO.

We want an agent in every town.

SINCLAIR'S

The Hardware Store of Better Values

Something new in Oil Cook Stoves. Come in and inspect this new stove.



This Stove Burns

Oil or Gasoline

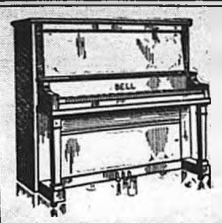
DETROIT VAPOR STOVES

"New" Perfection" Oil Cook Stoves

2 Burner $8, 3-Burner $11
Ovens $2.50 and $3.00

The Fly he is naughty beast,
He ought to die to say the least.

Screen Doors and Windows



Price of DOORS
$1.25, $1.50, $1.90, $2.25, $2.50
Complete

WINDOWS at 15c, 25c, 30c, 35c, 40c and 60c

A Screen for every window

If you want to be healthy and wise
Don't forget to swat the flies.

BOTH Sinclair's Hardware PHONES

Complete the Home Furnishings by buying a Piano.

BELL PIANOS

Known in musical circles as the highest type of musical instruments will satisfy your every need in music.
To buy a BELL stamps you as a judge of good things.

A Number of Second-hand Organs for Sale
A good time to buy is right now.

PETER McKINNON, Agt., Paisley
can tell you all about them

The City Bakery

Is always ready to supply your needs. Why worry and melt over a hot fire? We are here to do your Baking for you. Let us try.

Other than baking we try to keep a fresh supply of Greens and Fruit on hand—as well as a full stock of Fresh Groceries.

We would appreciate it if the public would make their purchases early on Thursdays as it is impossible for us to maintain a strict observance of the Thursday half-holiday on account of our Ice Cream Parlor which will be open every Thursday evening.

We need your trade. Butter and Eggs for Cash or Trade. Dutch Set Onions for sale.

Bruce and Bell 'Phones

F. S. McLACHLAN

WALKERTON

A rumor has been in circulation during the past few days to the effect that a battalion of Canada's new army of 35,000 men were to be recruited and trained in Walkerton. The local military authorities are very reticent with regard to the matter, and in answer to the query merely stated that nothing definite had yet been arranged.

As we stated last week the suit between Mr Geo D McKay and Registrar McFarlane has been postponed until the fall. If not settled in the intervening months the case will come up for hearing at the fall assizes in November 9th along with the libel suits entered by Mr McFarlane against The Telescope and The Herald and Times.

Peter Hawley was arrested near Paisley on Monday morning by Constable Briggs under a bench warrant issued by Judge Klein at the general session last week. Hawley purchased a watch last March from Robt Gibson besides borrowing $1 from him and giving him a cheque for which there were no funds in the bank. He was given time to pay for the watch and costs, failing in which he was arrested. Hawley had $20 which the judge ordered to be applied to the payment of his indebtedness and he was released for another month to make up the balance.—Telescope.

Mr James Halliday, of near Riversdale, laid an information on Monday morning last against his granddaughter, Miss Ethel Halliday, whom he raised from a child but who, it seems, left him a short time ago and went out to work, and which resulted in him laying a charge against her for vagrancy. Chief Ferguson arrested the girl on Monday afternoon in the home of a friend in Riversdale. On being brought before Magistrate Robert Richardson in Walkerton the girl was honorably acquitted, she claiming that she had merely gone out to work, and as she had considerable money on her there was nothing to substantiate a vagrancy charge. As a result of this finding her grandfather was mulcted for the full costs of the action, amounting to about $10.—Herald and Times.

Complicated Cattle Case

The Walkerton Herald and Times gives the following report of the Paisley case as heard at the County Court: Rudolph vs Winch was an action for slander in which Wm. Henry Rudolph of Elderslie alleged that his neighbor, Stephen Winch, had accused him of stealing a steer, and stating he was a rogue and a thief. Winch denied using these words and counterclaimed for the value of the steer. The action then resolved itself into a fight as to whom this steer belonged. It seems that last summer their cattle got mixed in a field, and on parting them each claimed a particular large steer; a smaller one neither claimed. In the meantime, Rudolph advertised the smaller steer as a stray steer and it was sold by public auction to Mr. Andrew Cormack for $72.00. The big steer, which both claimed, was estimated to be worth about $104. Thirty-eight witnesses, including four veterinary surgeons, testified at the trial in an effort to identify and fix the ownership of the animal. Nearly three days were consumed in taking evidence on the matter. Judge Widdifield, of Owen Sound, who presided at the trial, made a long and brilliant address to the jury in which he strongly favored Rudolph's version of the affair. The jury, after being out about two hours, brought in a verdict dismissing the slander action with costs, and awarding the larger steer to Rudolph with costs. Thus each party won and lost a case. The expenses entailed in these actions will probably run considerable over $500, with Winch, it seems, bearing the greater part of the burden. The strange part appears to be that Winch lost the steer he claimed, and the other, having been sold as a stray steer, the municipality will get the proceeds. Winch thereby gets neither steer. O. H. Klein acted for Winch and D. Robertson for Rudolph.

Death of Wm. F. Sithes

The unexpected death of Mr. Wm. F. Sithes, of Arkwright, took place on Saturday evening last. Mr. Sithes retired the previous evening in his usual health and in the morning he was found lying on the floor and unconscious. His face was bruised and bleeding. Medical aid was summoned but he never regained consciousness and passed away about seven o'clock that evening. Deceased was aged 80 years and was married three times. He went to Arkwright 43 years ago and was postmaster and also conducted a general store business. For seventeen years he held the position of treasurer of Arran Township and during his long term of office conducted the financial affairs of the township in a careful manner. Mr. Sithes was a man of upright character and was trusted and respected by all who knew him. In politics he was a staunch Conservative and was a member of the Methodist Church. The funeral was held on Tuesday to Tara Cemetery and was largely attended.—Leader.

—Two Southampton soldiers have lost their lives in the war this month. Sergt. W. V. Tranter was wounded on May 24th and died June 11th. Lieut. J. Lionel Tranter (formerly captain of Southampton Co) was killed in action on June 15th.

PERSIAN LAMB FUR GROWN IN AMERICA

Out on a big Kansas ranch some interesting agricultural history is being made. Mr L M Crowford, a man who, according to the general opinion of his neighbors, "turned crazy" three years ago, when he invested $35,000 in queer looking sheep, is now receiving the congratulations of scientific men for introducing a valuable fur industry into the United States.

Mr Crawford has proved, on his 1,900-acre sheep ranch near Cottonwood Falls in Kansas, that Persian lamb, astrakhan and krimmer furs, for which Americans have been paying to Russian farmers $14,000,000 every year, can be grown perfectly well in this country. Karakul sheep from Bokhara, crossed on ewes of American long-wool breeds bear lambs that have these curly, lustrous pelts.

Nearly six hundred lambs, valued at from $3 to $15 apiece, were born on the Kansas fur farm last year. Only the fur of the lambs that died however, were sold. The other lambs will be sold for breeding purposes. Pure-bred karakul rams are worth from $1,000 to $1,200 apiece, and the half-bloods sell for about $150.

Mr Crawford's herd of thirty-four karakuls came from the original herd imported by Dr C C Young of Texas in 1909. Those were the first sheep of this strain to enter the country. Mr Crawford believes that American farmers would do well to introduce some karakul blood into their breeds if for no other reason than for the hardiness of the breed and the superior mutton it produces. The extremes of heat and cold that characterize their native country have made these sheep able to withstand any sort of weather. They do equally well in Texas and in northern Michigan. The karakuls and the half-bloods on Mr Crawford's farm are more hardy than the native sheep. The cross-breed is also considerably heavier than the native sheep. The cross-breed is also considerably heavier than the native sheep—sometimes fifty per cent. heavier.

IRISH RETORT

A pompous physician who was inclined to criticize others was watching a stone-mason build a fence for his neighbor, and thought the mason was using too much mortar.

He said: "Tim, mortar covers up a good many mistakes, does it not?"

"Yes, doctor," replied the mason, "and so does the spade."

SUFFERED EVERYTHING

For Years, Restored To Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Canadian women are continually writing us such letters as the two following, which are heartfelt expressions of gratitude for restored health:

Glanford Station, Ont.—"I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and never found any medicine to compare with it. I had ulcers and falling of womb and doctors did me no good. I suffered dreadfully for years until I began taking your medicine. I also recommend it for nervousness and indigestion." — Mrs. HENRY CLARK, Glanford Station, Ont.

Chesterville, Ont. — "I heard your medicines highly praised, and a year ago I began taking them for falling of womb and ovarian trouble.

"My left side pained me all the time and just before my periods which were irregular and painful it would be worse. To sit down caused me pain and suffering and I would be so nervous sometimes that I could not bear to see any one or hear any one speak. Little specks would float before my eyes and I was always constipated.

"I cannot say too much for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Liver Pills, for there are no medicines like them. I have taken them and I recommend them to all women. You may publish this testimonial." — Mrs. STEPHEN J. MARTIN, Chesterville, Ontario, Canada.

Steele's for

Horse Collars, Sweat Pads, Rubber Lap Rugs, Whips, Auto Plush Rugs, Star Harness Soap, Bickmore's Gall Cure, Axle Grease

Our Harness includes quality, durability, appearance and high-class workmanship found in no other make of Harness.

Baggage Trunks, Suit Cases, Club Bags, Grips. Good assortment and close prices.

Harness parts and Repairing our Specialty

J. H. STEELE

Fall Term Opens Sept. First

ELLIOTT Business College

TORONTO — ONT.

Has to-day a stronger hold upon the public confidence than ever before. Thorough Training for choice positions in Business Life is given in all our Departments. The college does not ask for a better reputation than it has now. We place many students in positions each year. Write to-day for large catalogue.

W. J. ELLIOTT, Principal. Cor. Yonge and Charles Streets.

W. H. BAKER

Having opened a shop in Sinclair's old hardware building, Queen St. North, we are prepared to do all kinds of

Sign and Carriage Painting

HOUSE DECORATING AND PAPER-HANGING, as usual. Prices right.

ROBT. IRVING PLASTERER

SEE Robt. Irving the Plasterer before letting any work in this line. Separate estimates for all kinds of plastering; or with Jas Dewar for whole contracts for erection of buildings.

R. T. ROBINSON CARPENTER AND CONTRACTOR

ESTIMATES furnished for the erection of any class of building. Large or small contracts undertaken.

Address Chesley or Cargill P.O

PURDY'S LIVERY

Rates Reasonable, and every effort made to satisfy

F. PURDY

When a man gives his fiancee a diamond ring and later fails to give his wife a Life Insurance policy, he needs a guardian, not a wife.

Be Wise and Insure Your Life in

THE DOMINION LIFE

Highest earnings of any Canadian company—8.22 per cent.

Low Death Loss
Economical Management

Head Office - Waterloo, Ont

Bridge Contract to Let

SEALED tenders will be received by the undersigned up to 4 p.m. on Saturday, June 26th, 1915, for two large cement concrete bridges to across Tee-one over the Willow Creek on con. 8, and one on Bear Line, Con. 6. Contractor to furnish all material and labor and give satisfactory security. The lowest or any tender not necessarily accepted. For further particulars, plans and specifications apply to Steven Jas Johnson, lot 8, con 7.

J. D. MACKAY, Clerk Bruce Tp.

TENTH CON. BRUCE

Miss Maggie Mills is home at present for a couple of weeks, after which she intends taking a position at the Guelph model farm.

Miss Lily Brown was in Walkerton last week undergoing a slight operation for throat trouble. We hope to hear of a quick return to her usual good health.

Mr Alan Bell now sports a fine automobile.

We noticed in The Advocate of last week that a branch of the Ontario Brotherhood of Threshermen had been organized in Paisley. As threshermen's organizations are not a new thing in some parts of the township, perhaps a little comment on the differences of the old-time threshers' clubs and the present up-to-date organizations would not be out of place. The meeting in Paisley was represented by two men from the Geo White & Sons, one from the McDonalds of Stratford, and one from the Sawyer-Massey Co of Hamilton. Those present at the meeting were Wm Begg and A Kirconnel, Tiverton; Harvey Clark, Pinkerton; Jas Begg, Lovat; John Kidd, Willow Creek; A McDonald, 10th Bruce; A McGillivray, 12th Bruce, and N E Leeder, Port Elgin. The speakers went on to show the great benefit that merchants and manufacturers and such like concerns derived from their different organizations. The protection of threshers' employees and outfits while on the public highway was thoroughly gone into. The present law of all municipalties compels the thresher and all who are in the habit of using the highway for transportation purposes for any class of outfit weighing over a certain amount, to carry planks to lay down on bridges and culverts for the protection of the latter. By forming a thorough organization of all men who use the highway for heavy transportation they hope to be able to place an amendment to the present act that will compel all councils to have planks spiked down, or at least laid up at each end every bridge for their sole convenience and use in crossing such bridges. No doubt a good many are suspicious that the object of the thing is to force the farmer to pay more for their work, but such is not the case for every thresher positively fixes his own prices, no combine holding them in that line whatever. Their sole object is for protection along other lines and not for the object of gulling the farmer.

Children Cry
FOR FLETCHER'S
CASTORIA

UNDERWOOD

Mrs Jas Johnson visited friends in Kincardine last week.

The recent heavy rains have improved the crops greatly. Although the clover and wheat are too far on to grow much more the spring crops will be improved.

Mr Julius Koch of North Bruce, moved a house for William Schnittker from the 4th to the latters' place on the 6th last week.

Mrs Schmidt who was operated on a week or so ago for cancer is recovering nicely.

EBENEZER

The garden party which was held at Wm Grant's on the 17th was a grand success. The weather man gave the best he had for this occasion and a large crowd gathered on the grounds. A splendid programme was given including a very appropriate address by Warden McCannel. The base ball match between Aberdour and Dunblane resulted in a win for the latter. Although the score was largely in favor of Dunblane it does not indicate that Aberdour is a weak team as they are an aggressive bunch of players and are well managed by Mel Dier a former Dunblane star. The proceeds of the evening amounted to $125.00.

Miss Ida and Miss Lina Grant and Miss Agnes Kirkland are visiting friends in Peterboro.

Mr and Mrs Maxwell of Desboro visited Mr Robt Quigley's on Friday.

Miss Jean Matheson and Miss McGillivray of Cluny visited at Mr Geo Grant's the latter end of the week.

Our base ball team went to Dobbinton on the 15th and played a thrilling game with a combination of Dobbinton and Chesley players. Our boys were on the small end of the score till the last innings when with two men gone they tied the score. Dobbinton then refused to play the extra innings to break the score.

Martin Bros. have purchased a new threshing outfit.

Children Cry
FOR FLETCHER'S
CASTORIA

SECOND CON. ELDERSLIE

What about weed-cutting on the highway this season? It should be attended to before the seed shakes.

Miss Mary Robertson has returned from Stratford Normal.

Mrs D Allen is visiting Bruce and Saugeen friends for a few days.

Five pupils from S S No 2 and two from S S No 12 are writing on the entrance exams in Chesley this week.

Mrs Neil McGregor, a former resident of this line, is the guest of her sister-in-law, Mrs W Hope.

Sam Patterson has a horse laid up with blood-poisoning in its foot. At time of writing it is on the mend.

Blain Fortune has installed a windmill on his new well and connected waterpipes to the house and barn. Blain likes to keep up with the times.

GLAMIS

Miss Coombes, Mrs McKenzie and Miss Lily McKenzie motored from Kincardine to Mr Neil Currie's on Friday.

Miss Jennie McKeeman is visiting her sister, Mrs Tufford, at Beamsville.

Flower Sunday will be observed in the Baptist Church next Sunday.

Miss McDougall and brother, of Underwood, spent Sunday with their aunt, Mrs McLean on the boundary.

GRESHAM

Miss Edith Rose returned home last week after attending the wedding of a friend at Owen Sound and visiting other points.

The union Sunday School picnic of the Centre Bruce Presbyterian Church and North Bruce Baptist Church will be held on Wednesday, July 7th, at the lake shore beach down the 10th con. Bruce. Every person in the two congregations is given a special invitation to attend. Arrangements have been made for a real good day at the lake.

Mr and Mrs Neil McKinnon and daughter sundayed at Port Elgin last week.

Mr Robt Parker visited friends down in Brant Tp. lately.

The Rev Mr Reith of Glamis preached at preparatory service in in our church here last week very acceptably.

Mr Angus Annes is at present on the telephone line in Kincardine Tp. Angus will soon be an expert at this job.

Misses Mabel Nelson and Olive Foster were visiting friends in Elderslie and other points last week.

Miss Dewar of Paisley was a guest lately at the home of Miss Curry, 6th con.

WILLOW CREEK

Mrs Frank Russell, of Toledo, Ohio, is on an extended visit to her home on the 4th con.

Mrs W Wrightson is under the weather.

Mr John Kidd lost a valuable yearling colt on Sunday morning.

The U B Sunday School and Christian Endeavour picnic took place on Wednesday, June 16th, to Inverhuron, it being a great success. The day was all that could be wished for, except towards evening, when a thunder storm came up and dampened the spirits of the assembly, a great number being present.

Miss Woods, 18th con. Greenock, is spending a few days at Mr John Wrightson's.

CASTORIA
For Infants and Children
In Use For Over 30 Years
Always bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher

OBITUARY

The late Mrs James Bolton, who passed away at her home on the 2nd of Saugeen, was born in 1832, shortly after her father and mother, Mr and Mrs Alexander Bauserman, had completed a long and tedious journey by ship from Sutherlandshire, Scotland. Their first place of residence was in King township, but later removed to West Gwillimsbury. Mrs Bolton was first married to John Benton, moving to Bruce township. By this marriage there were born four children, Alexander, Catherine, Janet and Johanna. After Mr Benton's death the widow and family moved back to West Gwillimsbury, where they lived for several years, finally moving back to Bruce Township, where she married Mr James Bolton, about 43 years ago. About thirty years ago they took up residence on the 2nd of Saugeen. To them was born one son, Charles of Calgary. The late Mrs Bolton was well-known throughout the community, and greatly respected. She was only ill a few days, and her demise was a great shock to her husband and to the community generally.—Times.

D. McKenzie, Publisher
Paisley, P.O. Ont

The Paisley Advocate.

D. McKENZIE, Publisher

PAISLEY, ONTARIO, JULY 1, 1915

$1.00 per Annum in Advance
$1.25 if not so paid

Two Weeks' Clearing SALE

Before Stock-Taking

From July 2nd to 15th we will slash prices on all Summer Goods.

Crepes

15c values for..... 11c | 25c values for..... 12½c

Pique

15c value for..... 10c | 18c value for..... 12½c

Muslin

15c values for..... 10c | 18c values for..... 12½c

Dress Goods

Regular 60c values for..... 39c

Whitewear

Underskirt,	regular $2.25 for	$1.69
"	" 2.00 "	1.49
"	" 1.25 "	.98
"	" .75 "	.59
Nightdresses,	" 2.25 "	1.69
Corset Covers, 50c values for.....		.39
Lisle Gloves, 25c and 35c values.....		.19
Colored Hosiery, 40c values for.....		.19
Boys' Stockings, all sizes, at.....		9c pr.
Millinery, all shapes, reduced to		.50
One Ladies' Raincoat, reg. $11.00, for...		3.00

Men's Suits

$16.50 value for.....	$8.85
15.50 " "	9.95
14.00 " "	9.98
13.50 " "	8.98
8.50 " "	4.49

Boys' Suits

$8.50 values for.....	$4.98
7.75 "	4.49
6.75 "	4.19
6.50 "	3.98
5.00 "	3.49
3.50 "	1.98

Men's Underwear

Combination Balbriggan, $1.00 values, for..... .69
Mesh Underwear, 50c values for..... .30
Balbriggan, odd pieces, 50c values for..... .29
Men's Shirts, in odd sizes, to clear at..... .49

Shoes

Men's Oxfords, regular $4.50 value, for..... $3.19
Ladies' Oxfords, colored tops, $4.00 value, for..... 2.98
Ladies' Patent Pumps, regular $4.00, for..... 2.98
Ladies' Dull Leather Pump, regular $4.00 values, for..... 2.98
Ladies' Pumps and Oxfords, broken sizes, to clear at 98c and 49c
Children's Patent, Kid and Tan Slippers, as high as $1.50 to clear at..... .25

A full line of Women's and Children's White Canvas Pumps and Slippers to choose from at reasonable prices.

Ask to see the new idea in a Slipper or Shoe Tree, the only way to keep your shoes in shape. We sell it for the small sum of 25c.

Wool Wanted!

The highest price will be paid for Wool — Cash or Trade. ¶ Bring your Farm Produce, for which the top price will be paid.

M. J. CAMPBELL

W. H. McFarlane's Old Stand : : Paisley

City Dairy

Ice Cream

Boot Bargains at Bonathan's

The last chance to buy Shoes at cost price. We have still a few pairs that have got to be sold. ¶ Also an assortment of New Shoes just in, in the latest summer styles, guaranteed to fit. We have bought these to fill out the vacant places in our stock, and are offering them at close prices, too, to help dispose of the whole stock. We don't intend to keep Shoes when this stock is sold out, and we want to do it quick, so offer attractive bargains to complete the clean-up.

Congoleum, the cheap but servicable Floor Covering

The Clay Lawn Dryer Just the thing to do away with laborious clothes hanging.

Fresh Groceries, Vegetables & Fruits

A. T. BONATHAN

Hyde's Old Stand : : Successor to W. S. Mitchell

—Private funds to loan.
D. FORRESTER.

—Wilkinson plows and repairs at F. Carter & Son's.

—Marriage licenses issued and money to loan. T. H. GEORGE.

—Wash Skirts from $1 to $3. Cool and cheap. Ballachey, Laidlaw & Co.

—Full lines of fine engagement and wedding rings at I. Shoemaker's jewellery store.

—Highest prices paid for hides and sheepskins. H. E. McGregor, Butcher, Steele Block.

—Leave your order for home-grown Strawberries. We will have them fresh daily. Ballachey, Laidlaw & Co.

—FOR SALE—Pure bred heavy draft mare, 5 yrs old, eligible for registration. J. MAGUIRE, Paisley.

—Bring in that old buggy and have it repainted to look as good as new. W. JACK, Gibson's old store, Paisley.

—Highest price for beefhides, horsehides, calfskins, sheepskins, tallow, &c. P. OLTSHER, Paisley Meat Market.

—"Rough on Rats" clears out Rats, Mice, etc. Don't die in the house. 15c and 25c at drug and country stores.

—Repainting and retrimming of hoods of vehicles at W. Jack's new paint shop, Gibson's old store, Paisley.

—Some Women's Crowsette Coats to clear at $2.50. Just right for summer driving. Ballachey, Laidlaw & Co.

—Milk for sale at 5c. quart, to those who send for it. Can supply 15 to 20 quarts a day. J. MAGUIRE, Queen St., north.

—Centre Bruce Garden Party at Mr. Geo. Brown's, 8th Bruce, on Aug. 5th. Kincardine Highlanders band has been engaged. Further announcements later.

—If you have a guest at your home, are going out of town for a visit, or know of any interesting news, kindly let us hear from you. We will always appreciate such favors.

—Just received at P. Stevenson's an assortment of pipes that will surely please. Come and select your choice. Tobaccos, stationery, also our wonderful salve that cures burns and sores, soothing for burns.

—Willsicroft Baptist Garden Party on Thursday, July 8th, at Mrs. Johnston's, 12th con. Elderslie. Good programme and a general good time. Everybody invited.

—HOMESEEKERS' EXCURSIONS every Tuesday up to and including October to the Canadian Northwest. For tickets, maps, etc., apply at the Canadian Pacific Railway ticket office, W. H. McFarlane's old stand, Paisley.

—Five Roses, Rainbow, Purity, Cream of the West, and Stark's high-grade flours, also Bran and Shorts, Blatchford's Sugar and Flax, Caldwell's Molasses Meal, and full line of Poultry Foods and Tonics. Always in the market for coarse grains. P. C. EGERT.

—Tort Elgin Celebration Committee have, as usual, a big drawing card for Dominion Day. Their programme this year includes big purses for horse racing, men's relay race, also Highland dancing, day fireworks, and a great pyrotechnical display at night.

—BUTTER PAPER—real vegetable parchment, not a cheaper imitation—printed and sold at The Advocate Office at lowest possible prices. We can print 500 sheets or more with your name on, and for the convenience of those who do not require that quantity, we keep printed wrappers on hand without any name on and sell this in quantities of 100 sheets or over.

—Mrs. Agnes Bowes Hall of Little Rock, Arkansas, author of that interesting Bruce County novel, "Ceasgie," is over on a visit to her friends in Ontario, and was in Paisley on Friday.

—Mr. Roland Northgrave, of Port Elgin, suddenly collapsed while talking to his old Paisley friends on the grounds at the races here on Thursday, and was under the doctor's care for part of the afternoon.

—Mrs. Joseph Culham, of Toronto, announces the engagement of her daughter, Olive Culham Harris, to John MacNeil, minister of Walmer Road Baptist Church, Toronto. The marriage will take place quietly in July.

—A charge of exceeding the speed limit for autos on our streets was laid against one of the local car owners, who pleaded guilty and paid the fine imposed. Others might save trouble in court by taking notice of this.

—Teachers home for vacation: Miss Jennie McLennan from Mildmay; Misses Annie Sergison, Mildred Johnston, Meta Allen and Cessie Cormack, from Toronto; Miss Zeta Black from Durham, accompanied by Miss G. A. McGregor, B.A. of the continuation school staff there.

No Paper Next Week

We had not intented taking our week off so early in the summer, but owing to Dominion Day and Civic Holiday coming in the same publication week, we concluded to drop the issue of July 8th.

The office will be open as usual every working day, and we will have plenty of time to write out receipts for subscriptions that come in by mail or personal call.

—Mrs. W. C. Amsted is visiting her daughter in Hamilton over the rst.

—Miss Jean Hamilton is home from Ottawa for holidays.

—Wilfrid McGill is home from Galt Collegiate for vacation.

—Miss McArthur, of Walkerton, was a guest at Mr John Sharpe's over Sunday.

—Mr. and Mrs Robert J. Caldwell have moved onto their new home on the 10th of Bruce.

—Miss McArthur, of Chicago, is here visiting at the home of her grandmother, Mrs R. M. Hay.

—Mrs. McAllister, of Owen Sound, is a visitor at the home of her grandmother, Mrs. W. McBeath.

—A business meeting of the W.C.T.U. will be held in Putnam's Hall on Friday evening at 8 o'clock.

—Ross Laidlaw is home from Miller Lake for vacation, accompanied by his friend, Fred Butchart.

—Mr. D. H. McGill, M.A., and Mrs. McGill, of Orillia, are spending part of the vacation with his father here.

—Mr. and Mrs. Jas Bowes were over from Chatsworth for a few days last week, visiting their relatives and friends here.

—Mr. and Mrs John Caldwell, 12th avnue, spent the week end visiting their daughter, Mrs Bert Atkinson, Kincardine.

—Mr. and Mrs. Colin McGillivray, of 9th Bruce, were visiting friends in Durham and vicinity from Saturday to Monday.

—Mrs. Jas. Davison and Mrs. M. Daniel visited friends in Owen Sound for a few days, and their sister Mrs Carson returned to Paisley with them.

—Mr. Ed. Hay, who came home last week for vacation, has completed his law course and will be admitted to the bar this year. Congratulations.

—Mr. David Hopper, of Cookstown, motored over with members of his family last week, making their annual call upon old friends and relatives in Paisley and vicinity.

—Mr. Norman Allen has decided to accept a position offered him as a teacher on the staff of St. Andrew's College, Toronto, and will assume the duties after vacation.

—Miss McBride, who has been a resident of Paisley for some time and was secretary of the Womens' Institute, is spending the summer with friends at Caledon East.

June Specials

A Good-for-any-Time-of-the-Year Suit Costs
$15.00

Special Summer Pants
$2.50

Shirts
Regular $1.50, $1.25, $1 for 75c.

Underwear
Balbriggan Mesh Cashmere Underwear, regular 50c at 40c; Cashmere 75c at 50c; Combinations accordingly.

Ties
All 50c Ties at 25c.

Hosiery
Silk and Cashmere—50c-75c at 35c
—$3.50 Auto Dusters at $2.50—

We would like you to call some day

G. B. IRWIN

Tailor and Furnisher : Paisley

Bug Destroyers

Look us up for Paris Green, Bug Death (a bug destroyer and also a fertilizer for the plant), Insect Powder, Bluestone, Quassia Chips, Hellebore, Instant Louse Killer, Royal Purple Louse Killer, International Louse Killer, Hess Dip and Disinfectant, Pheus, Chloral, Royal Purple Disinfectant, Zenoleum, Little's Sheep Dip, McDougall's Sheep Dip, Larkspur Lotion (for head lice), King's Bed-Bug Poison.

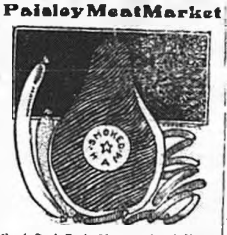
P. B. MORE, Druggist

Established over Forty-one Years

THE STANDARD BANK OF CANADA

ASSETS OVER $48,000,000

The A, B, C of Banking
You Will Find Us
Zealous
& Efficient.



We solicit your account in our SAVINGS DEPARTMENT

PAISLEY BRANCH

F. C. RYAN Manager

Branches also at Drayton and Tiverton.

Paisley Meat Market

Fresh Beef, Pork, Mutton, Cured Hams, Bacon, etc. Salt Pork, Cooked Meats, Home-made Sausage (2 lbs. for 25c), Bologna and Headcheese. Kidney Suet. Poultry in season.

Cash for Hides. Bruce and Rhine . . . Bell Phone

P. Oltsher

J. S. DEWAR

PAISLEY

Builder, Contractor and Cement Worker

Brick or cement buildings erected, brick work, cement work and plastering contracts taken.

Cement Supplies Furnished

Building Blocks, Window and Door Sills, Culvert Tile, Well Curbing, Lawn Rollers, Lawn Vases, Verandah Columns, Balusters and other fancy Cement Products.

Building Material

Cement, Lime, Lath, Shingles, Glazed Sewer Pipe and Flue Lining, Mortar Color, etc.

Large supply of

Oilcloths and Linoleums

just to hand

Now is the time to get your new supply, before they are picked over.

We have also a good assortment of Squares, and our prices can't be beaten. Give us a call before buying.

For good Butter and Eggs we pay the highest price in either CASH or TRADE . . .

Both 'Phones PUTNAM & SON

New Spring Suitings

See our goods and styles before buying. We have a large stock to choose from.

We Make a Specialty of . . .
Ladies' Tailoring

No trying on or worrying. Just leave your measure and we will attend to the rest. All the newest goods and latest styles from which to make your selection. Satisfaction guaranteed.

I. S. Cruickshank

—North Bruce Conservative Association met at Wiarton on June 16th, and elected the following officers:—President, C. E. Start, Tara; Vice President, C. Hill, Wiarton; Treasurer, Dr Laird, Southampton; Secretary, Jas A McDonald, Tara.

FEATS OF WAR AIRCRAFT

AIDS COMMANDERS TO SEE AS WELLINGTON WANTED TO.

They Have Made Raids on Ammunition and Supply Depots with Great Effect.

One of the things demonstrated by the present war is the military value of aircraft. The scouting aeroplane has enabled commanders to see, as Wellington longed to see, what is "on the other side of the hill." Several times its work has been of supreme importance. The co-operation of aeroplanes with artillery in directing he fire of long range guns has proved highly effective. Aeroplanes have made raids on airship stations and ammunition and supply depots which have had a definite Effect on Military Operations.

On the other hand, large airships like the Zeppelins have proved disappointing. The seaplane has an achievement to its credit in the British raid on Cuxhaven.

The first test of the scouting aeroplane came soon after the arrival of the British expeditionary force in France, and in the words of Sir John French, the British commander, it rendered services of incalculable value, helping to save the army from annihilation. It was on the evening of August 23 that quite unexpectedly Sir John French learned by telegram from Gen. Joffre that the Germans—having battered Namur into submission at amazing speed—had thrust their way across the Sambre and were forcing the French to retire. The two British corps were, it said, threatened by three German army corps on their front and by a fourth which was stealing round them for a flank attack.

The Position Was Critical.

The French, falling back, left the English army exposed; on neither flank had it protection. And the Germans, pressing forward irresistibly, were on the eve of a crushing attack. But before he could retreat it was necessary for Gen. French to have definite information concerning the positions of the enemy.

Here, made for them by circumstance, was just the opportunity our flying men required. Not only was scouting needed, but it was needed in haste—in such haste ,indeed, that no craft, save the aeroplane itself, could have brought back the news in time. In a flash there went a message to the aircraft base, and out upon their errands flew the fastest scouts.

At twice the pace of an express train, rushing smoothly through the air, went these high-speed craft; and their pilots, peering down on the land below, had a view as from a mountain top. And in an hour, thanks to their tremendous speed, they had gleaned news that could have been procured only in a day by any other means. They found the hostile forces that were destined for marked their positions on their maps, made estimates of their strength; they located also, with accuracy, the flanking movement that was so grave a menace. And this work was done, as it needed to be done, at lightning speed.

A Main Attack.

The aircraft had leaped upward and disappeared; then, in a space of time that seemed incredibly short, they were swooping earthward again, their mission done. Sir John French, given the news he sought, and by an instrument of which he, of the great commanders in war, was the first to make striking use, was able to frame his plans that night with swiftness and precision; and next day at dawn our little army began its retreat.

The strategy of this war, owing largely to the use of aeroplanes, and as it has been studied in Belgium or France, may be illustrated perhaps as follows. The Germans move up troops, say, to their right wing, but this is observed by British air scouts, and so the latter strengthen the point menaced. Then the French, perhaps at a point to the eastward, assemble two army corps for a flanking movement; but this, too, is detected by German aviators; and so, again, it is a question of move and countermove.

There is only one result to such constant checkmating: the opposing battle fronts, stretching mile after mile until it becomes from wing to wing, are bound in places to grow weak. The problem is one of men, of endurance, and of staunchness in resisting attack.

A Journey of Days

So far gunfire has not been effective against aeroplanes. A high-speed scout, travelling at 120 miles an hour, covers in each second a distance of more than 170 feet, while a projectile from the ground, fired at such a craft when it is 6,000 feet high, takes several seconds to reach this altitude. To aim directly at the machine, therefore, is hopeless. The gunner must point his weapon, at the moment of firing, at a point some distance in advance of the aeroplane; and this precise point, unless he knows the speed of the craft, can be found only by trial and error.

Sometimes aeroplanes are disabled by the enemy's fire; again engines balk or other mishaps occur while aviators are over hostile territory; in either case it is necessary to descend, and lively adventures have come about in this way.

Aeroplanes of the allies have repeatedly tried to drop bombs on the headquarters of the German General Staff. They have been more successful in attempts to interrupt German Lines of Communication.

One such feat is described to illustrate this phase of the aviator's work: By using large bombs and sending out several armed craft to co-operate with each other the French obtained more than once surprising results in their air attacks on railways. In one instance, during that stage of the war which followed the deadlock on the Aisne, a French pilot in a single seated machine, returning to headquarters after a flight above the enemy's flank, observed two German trains which, bringing up stores and ammunition, were moving along a branch line.

He alighted at his base and gave the news, and the commandant saw the chance for an aeroplane attack. He ordered out three of the bomb dropping biplanes. They flew one behind the other toward the point where the German trains were passing slowly along a single line of metals.

Disdaining a splutter of machine gun and rifle fire directed against it by the soldiers travelling with the first train, the leading biplane dived swiftly, discharging a bomb at the engine. The range was short and the bomb fell true; the engine was hit. With a rent torn in its side and the sound of a shattering report, it rolled sideways, and crashed from the metals, dragging several trucks with it, and spreading a scene of ruin all around.

Meanwhile the second biplane, also flying low, had dropped its two bombs on the permanent way, which was uprooted and flung in all directions. The third bomb dropper, flying toward the second train, missed with his first bomb, but placed the other in the middle of a row of trucks, with the result that the train was set on fire. In five minutes, appearing without warning out of the sky, the six machines had brought about a complete disaster, both trains being damaged, one of them on fire, and the permanent way broken.

WOMEN AND THE WAR.

They Are Working to the Verge of Breaking Down.

The society women are active in benevolence and nursing up to the very verge of breaking down, says a writer in the Liverpool Post. Doctors will tell you that they have a greater number of genuine nerve cases than ever before, but that the malade imaginaire has ceased to exist in this time of stress. No one has leisure or patience to listen to the recital of her trifling ailments, and so she has risen up and taken to good works as an alternative recreation to fostering her own symptoms.

Many of our fully qualified nurses who have been on the Continent have returned for spells of essential repose; their emotions have in some cases been so overwrought that they will not trust themselves to allude to the scenes they have witnessed. Some of the horrors of the French typhuld hospitals in the early months of the war need a Russian novelist to describe them adequately; it is good to know that practically all the errors have by now been rectified.

Other women seem to find nothing to lay their hands to, and irritably resent the impotence due to their lack of previous training. One girl, at least, has made a vigorous effort to enlist. She has many friends, and is highly connected. Donning her brothers' clothes and cutting her hair, she drilled regularly with one of the unrecognized volunteer corps, in which her efficiency was particularly noted. She hoped thence to be transferred to the regular service, but the medical examination proved unavoidable, and so the patriotic intention of this ardent anti-suffragette was frustrated.

In the Russian Army quite a number of women are said to be serving in a male capacity, it being not uncommon for an officer to have his wife or sweetheart as his efficient orderly. No such case has yet become known in France, though the novelist of the future is likely to utilize the theme.

Meaning of the Barber Pole.

In former times the barber served his customers in the capacity of surgeon, and when the operation of bleeding was extensively practiced he was in the habit of performing in that line. The spiral red stripe so frequently seen on the barber's pole is said to symbolize the winding of a ribbon or bandage round the arm when the blood-letting operation was resorted to.

To make night on earth as bright as day, there would have to be over 800,000 moons in the sky.

First Double V.C.

Lieutenant Arthur Martin Leake, of the Royal Army Medical Corps, is the first man to be granted a clasp to his Victoria Cross since the order "For Valor" was instituted in 1856. He gained the coveted distinction during the South African War, through which he served as surgeon-captain in the South African Constabulary. The Cross was awarded for ministering to a wounded man, and also an officer, under heavy fire at Vlakfontein; while engaged in this humane task, he himself was shot three times. The clasp, which is equivalent to a second Cross, was awarded for conspicuous bravery and devotion to duty during the present campaign especially near Zonnebeke, through the trying period, October 29th to November 8th, 1914, when, although exposed to a constant fire, he succeeded in rescuing a number of men who had been badly wounded.

ANTI-GERMAN PROGRAMME.

Can Their Treachery and Awful Crimes Be Forgotten.

The following letter, referring to such an extremely important matter, which appeared recently in the Toronto Daily World, is given in full:

Editor World: Your article "Never Again Must Germany Come Back," is most opportune. The notorious Dernburg is already talking peace and says their hate is only artificial, and thinks that mutual interests will make us forget their treachery, their abominable crimes, cutting off the hands of women and children, murdering the wounded, roasting captives alive, crucifying Canadians, and committing outrages too horrible to print.

Germany must be so dismembered that she and her kultur shall never again menace civilization. Her great prosperity and resources are largely the result of England's trade policy. England has permitted Germany to buy at the same price as English consumers 12,000,000 tons of coal (1913) annually, which supplied her factories, warships, and forged Krupp guns England also sold her (1913) £15,000,000 worth of raw wool and yarns. Germany prospered by selling finished goods to England for twice the amount of her imports from Britain.

If we give her another chance to recuperate and make other alliances, in a few years she would repeat the Belgian atrocities in England and burn London as they have always threatened to do.

John Bull, an influential London weekly, with a circulation of nearly a million, has sounded the tocsin: After the war the Vendetta. We must have a Solomon League and Covenant, to which every British subject should subscribe for the protection of himself and descendants:—

Never to have any intercourse with a German, either social or commercial.

Never to buy from or sell to a German.

Never permit a German article in his house.

Never to deal with a merchant who keeps a single article of German manufacture in his store.

Never to travel in Germany nor permit any of his family to visit there.

Permit no Germans to enter Canada except on higher terms than Chinese—a head tax of $1,000.

The British Empire can do without German trade; the loss to Germany of the British Empire's trade will be worse than the loss of her whole fleet annually.

For 43 years the French refused to list German securities on their markets, have abstained from visiting or trading with Germany, and we can do the same.

Let us follow the example of our gallant allies. "Delenda Est Germania."

J. ENOCH THOMPSON.

Toronto, 14th June, 1915.

Doubtful.

"When do you expect to see Mr. Green again?"

"I don't know."

"But don't you usually see him once or twice a week?"

"Yes. But yesterday I loaned him five that he was surely to pay back tomorrow, and it is doubtful now that I shall see him for a month or two."

Admiral Beatty's flagship, the Lion, which is an eighth of a mile long, and is half as heavy again as the Dreadnought, was the first British warship to cost over two millions sterling. In five minutes' continuous firing she can discharge 100,000lb. of metal, and her shells leave the muzzles of her guns at a rate equal to 1,811 miles an hour.

WHAT BRITAIN IS HOLDING

HOW IT COMPARES WITH OTHER POWERS.

30,500 Miles of Sea Frontier and 31 Miles of Battle Line.

Britain's participation in the war by land means much more to the allies than the number of miles she is holding at the front would indicate. The various land fronts of the belligerents in the great war make a total mileage of 1,807 miles, of which the British army occupies a front of 31 miles. The Germans have the longest land front, of which part is opposed to the Russian and the remainder to the French, British and Belgian armies. The Russians, who come next to the Germans in point of mileage, maintain contact with the enemy for 1,056 miles, and are opposed to all three nations in combination against the allies.

Things to Consider.

In considering the 31 miles held by the British force, the nature of the country held and the character of the fighting must be considered. Along certain parts of the French line, as around Belfort and Epinal, strongly-fortified areas render the passage of the Germans almost impossible, and the task of the French is correspondingly easier. At other points, as in the Vosges and the Argonne, French and Germans oppose one another only at certain strategic points, and in such places there is no connected fighting line, but only a discontinuous line of small detached bodies of troops struggling for points of vantage.

British Face Great Odds.

With the British force, however, this is not so. Every inch of the ground is held only by the severest attack and counter-attack. The ground is quite open and exposed, and is constantly swept by artillery and machine-gun fire. Also, a short time ago the German attempt to break the opposing line was made and repulsed along the British front at Ypres, and before that the British had held, in the face of overwhelming numbers, the positions along the Aisne, where the Germans were expecting to retrieve partly the ruin back from Paris. So that it will readily be conceded that the holding of this 31 miles means the holding of a storm-beaten bastion which meets the full force of the gale.

Land Fighting Lines.

The following table shows the extent of the land fighting lines of the warring powers:

	Miles.
Germans.
Western front	592
Polish front	500
	1,092
Austrians.
Austro-Russian front	218
Servian front	356
	574
Russians.
Polish and Austrian front	856
French
Western front	543
Servian and Montenegrin.
Austrian front	218
Turks.
Black Sea territory near Erzerum	200
British
Western front	31
Belgian
Western front	17

Britain's Value on Sea.

The great value of Britain's participation in the war is more readily appreciated when the extent of the sea fronts defended by the allies are considered. The British fleets alone protect a sea frontier of over 30,000 miles. France, which comes next, has a total—with her colonies—of some 5,400 miles.

Keeps Open the Oceans.

In order properly to visualise the great part the British Empire is playing in the present war, however, it is necessary to bear in mind that not only does the British navy protect our own sea frontiers, but it also keeps open the great ocean trade routes by which the ships of all the friendly and neutral nations can bring the supplies necessary for their well-being.

Have Small Sea Fronts.

Germany and Austria have relatively very small sea fronts to protect—700 and 390 miles respectively. The Austrian sea front is, of course, confined to the Adriatic Sea, whilst the German colonies having, since the beginning of the war, been abandoned by the German naval authorities, the sea front to be protected is correspondingly reduced.

Sea Fronts of the Powers.

The following figures represent the sea fronts of the belligerents:

	Miles.
British Empire.
British Isles	2,500
Australia	7,250
Canada	6,000
India and Ceylon	3,700
New Zealand and Tasmania	2,800
South Africa	1,500
Egypt and British East Africa	1,000
New Guinea	800
North Borneo	900
Aden and Somaliland	900
Straits Settlements	600
Solomon Islands	500
Fiji	400
Gold Coast and other territories	1,900
	30,800
France.
South-east France	800
Morocco, Tunis and Algiers	1,800
Madagascar	2,100
Annam and Tongking	1,200
	5,400
Russia.
Russian Coasts in the Baltic and Black Seas	2,000
Germany.
German Coasts in North Sea and Baltic	700
Austria.
Austrian Adriatic Coast	390

PURE ICE CREAM

Your Doctor

WILL tell you is a very nutritious and highly digestible food—but it must be pure—Ice Cream to be safe must be made in a perfectly sanitary Dairy. When you eat City Dairy Ice Cream you get the benefit of the inspection of Toronto's Health Department.

The more Ice Cream you eat in summer, the better health you will have, if it is City Dairy Ice Cream, because, "If it's City Dairy It's Pure that's Sure."

For Sale by discriminating shopkeepers everywhere.

City Dairy

Look for the Sign.

TORONTO.

We want an Agent in every town.

MAGIC BAKING POWDER

Look To The Future

Canada can benefit by hearkening to the recommendation recently made by the British Board of Agriculture, in a notice issued to farmers. It strongly urged them to raise as much stock as possible during the war, and gives the following advice:

Do not send breeding and immature stock to the butcher simply because prices are attractive now.

Do not market unfinished animals; it is wasteful of the country's resources and is against your own interests.

Do not kill calves—rear them; it is well worth it.

Do not reduce your stock; when you cannot buy stores, buy calves.

Maintain your flocks and breed your sows; it will pay you to do so.

The board adds that the above recommendations are made not only in the national welfare, but because it believes them to be for the ultimate benefit of British agriculturists.

$200,000,000 Missed by Germany.

The Prager Tageblatt of recent date says it has information that the government of the United States soon will refuse to issue any passports to Americans desiring to go abroad, in order to guard against any possibility of foreign entanglements. In this connection it quotes an article in the Berlin Confectioner, which says:

"Every spring the floating hotel palaces brought thousands of Americans to our shores. The destination of most of these Americans was the health resorts in Germany and Austria, but they spent a great deal of their time also in seeing the cities and especially Berlin. The money these Americans spent for hotel bills and in amusing themselves has amounted as high as 800,000,000 marks ($200,000,000) in a season. These very welcome sojourners whom we have seen in such large numbers in Berlin streets and in the corridors of our hotels we certainly will miss very much this year."

Where Fish Climb Trees.

Fish that climb trees are not an unusual sight in India, as mud skippers or jumping fish are numerous in the large rivers and along the sea coast of that country. The fish literally climb the trees, they do not jump into them. At ebb tide these little fish leave the trees to hunt for tiny crabs, flies, etc., and their strong pectoral and ventral fins, aided by their tail, enable them to move about easily and to climb upon trees, grass and leaves.

There are three million officials in Germany—one-twentieth of the total population.

Buy Safe Securities While the Market is Low.

Our Approved

PARTIAL PAYMENT PLAN

enables you to buy safe dividend-paying bonds in denominations five, ten, twelve, sixteen, thirty, by making a small first payment and balance in monthly instalments as you can afford—4% 5% 6% 8% 10% receive all dividends while making payments, and may sell securities at any time. Many securities are selling at below their normal level and at present prices yield a most attractive income.

COPY OF FREE BOOKLET MAILED ON REQUEST.

It contains valuable information, which will appeal to thrifty people desiring to accumulate investment securities.

BRYANT, DUNN & CO

64 St. Francois Xavier Street, Montreal.

MEMBERS

CONSOLIDATED STOCK EXCHANGE OF NEW YORK

The Housewife's Corner

Seasonable Dishes.

Asparagus Bundles.—Scrape the asparagus carefully, wash and tie it in small bundles. Put into boiling water with salt and cook until tender. Serve in bundles on a hot dish. Make a drawn butter sauce by melting some good table butter with a little salt. Serve it apart.

Sugar Drops.—Stir to a cream three ounces of butter and six ounces of powdered sugar; add three beaten eggs, one-half of a pound of sifted flour, and one-half of a nutmeg. Drop this mixture on buttered tins by large spoonfuls, several inches apart, and bake the cakes at once.

Summer Salad.—Take the young shoots of mustard, tender lettuce, and the tender tops of green onions; shred them fine, and pour over them hot bacon fat with bits of the cooked bacon. Season the dish well with pepper and salt, and add a tablespoonful of vinegar. Toss it with a fork to mix it, and serve it garnished with slices of hardboiled egg.

A Southern Way of Cooking Ham.—Simmer the ham gently until it is thoroughly done. Remove the skin, and cover the ham with an envelope of dough made of flour and water. Bake for an hour. Remove the envelope, stick the ham with cloves, put it back in the baking pan, sprinkle it with sugar, baste it occasionally with sweetened vinegar, and bake it until it is brown.

Mock Bone Marrow Toast.—Wash the roots of several bunches of celery and cut them into small pieces. Boil them in salted water and mash them very fine; add a bit of butter, a pinch of pepper and a little flour to give smoothness. Turn all into a pan, and heat it to take the raw taste from the flour. Prepare toast, and heap the mixture upon it. It makes a delicious entree.

Olycooka.—Cream together two beaten eggs and one cupful of granulated sugar. Add two cupfuls of milk and six tablespoonfuls of hot lard. Add two cupfuls of sifted flour, to which has been added six teaspoonfuls of baking powder and one-half of a teaspoonful of salt. Roll the mixture into balls the size of an English walnut, with a raisin in the centre of each. Fry them in deep fat, and roll them in powdered sugar.

Cheese Pudding.—To one teacupful of grated cheese take one teacupful of bread crumbs. Season with cayenne, dry mustard and salt. Place one teaspoonful of milk in a saucepan, heat in it all the ingredients and cook for a few minutes until it is soft. Let cool, and add the yolk of one egg, well beaten. Grease a pie dish and fill it with the mixture. Put a little butter on top and bake for twenty minutes.

Praline Cream.—Whip two cupfuls of cream with two tablespoonfuls of sifted sugar and about one-half a stick of scraped vanilla bean, one teaspoonful of vanilla flavoring. Crush one-fourth pound of burnt sugar almonds and six crumbled macaroons. Mix all together. Dissolve one-eighth box of gelatin in a small quantity of warm water and beat it in. Wash out a china mold and decorate with glace cherries. Pour in the mixture and stand on ice.

Walnut Cone Creams.—Thoroughly beat two eggs, and add gradually one cupful of light brown sugar, while you continue the beating. Next add three tablespoonfuls of sifted flour, to which has been added one-quarter of a spoonful of baking powder, and a pinch of salt, and one cupful of English walnut meats that have been broken into small pieces. Drop the mixture from a teaspoon on a buttered pan, having the cakes far enough apart to prevent their running together. As soon as they are baked, loosen them carefully from the pan and roll them into cones. When the cones are cold, fill them with whipped cream, and decorate each one with a candied cherry.

Crystal Sandwiches.—Not only do these "sandwiches" keep well, but they are crisp even on a damp day—a quality that recommends them for use at summer homes at the shore. Place oyster crackers together two by two, with a filling of peanut butter or marmalade between them. Let the "sandwiches" stand until they are firm; dip them into crystal syrup made by boiling one cupful of sugar and one-third of a cupful of water to 225 degrees. Dry them on a wire rack. The syrup adds a desirable sweetness, and at the same time a covering that preserves the crispness of the crackers. Store them in a tin box.

Household Hints.

Steep sage in boiling water before using it and it will not taste bitter.

No fish is cooked enough unless the flesh separates easily from the bones.

Powdered starch if applied immediately to fruit stains will remove them.

To bleach handkerchiefs add a slice of lemon to the water they are boiled in.

Brass, if rubbed with sweet oil after it has been polished will not tarnish so quickly.

Always put the scrubbing brush to dry with the bristles down. This will save the brush.

Aluminum kitchen utensils should never be washed with soda. Use simple soap and water.

If the head aches from heat, put a cold compress on the back of the neck and on the wrists.

Gas ovens should be cleaned with warm soapy water to which a little ammonia has been added.

Apply glycerine to a scald directly after accident occurs and cover it with rags saturated with glycerine.

The clothes wringer will last twice as long if the pressure screws at the top are loosened after using.

New potatoes if soaked in water that has a little soda dissolved in it will scrape and clean beautifully.

Tomatoes can be skinned quickly if they are first dropped momentarily into a basin of boiling water.

You will find if you crush ordinary block salt and mix a little flour with it it keeps quite free from lumps.

Milk or milk foods will not scorch if the stewpan is rinsed in cold water and rubbed with a little fresh butter or lard.

If you would prevent vegetables from boiling over, drop a piece of dripping the size of a walnut in the centre of them.

When a window is difficult to raise pour melted lard between the frame and the casing and put a little also on the cord.

When boiling a ham leave it in the water in which it has been cooked until it is cool. This will make it tender and juicy.

Stale loaves should be wrapped in a wet cloth for a minute, then the cloth removed, and the loaf baked in a slow oven for half an hour.

Directly tea is split on a tablecloth cover the stain with common salt. Leave it for a while, and when the cloth is washed all stains will have disappeared.

When boiled and unboiled eggs get mixed spin them, and the boiled ones will spin around quite fast, while those which have not been cooked will hardly spin around once.

Milk may be heated without burning if the saucepan is rinsed in clean, cold water before pouring the milk into it. The saucepan is also easily cleaned if it is thus rinsed before using.

To prevent new shoes from pinching lay a cloth moistened in hot water across the place where the pressure is most felt, changing the cloth as soon as it becomes cool. This will make the leather shape itself to the foot.

Hair brushes should be washed once a week, and are soon spoiled unless properly cleansed. Put a tablespoonful of ammonia in a quart of water hot as can be borne by the hand, and, after freeing the brushes from hair, dip the bristles in and out of the water until clean. Rinse in cold water in the same way, shake well, wipe the back and handle carefully, and put on a window-sill to dry in the open air. Soap should not be used as it makes the bristles soft.

NO DIE FOR VICTORIA CROSS.

Made Separately of Bronze From Guns Captured in Crimea.

When an ordinary medal is made a steel die is used, and the article can be turned out complete with one blow of the press. Thousands can thus be made in a very short space of time.

But for the Victoria Cross there is no die in existence. Each cross is made separately, and this is as it should be, for the cross ranks far higher than any other military decoration which it is in the power of the country to bestow.

The bronze, as is known to most people, is a part of some of the Russian guns captured in the Crimea. It is of very hard quality, and it is weighted out to the workmen as carefully as if it were so much gold.

The first Cross was modelled in hard wax, and after the design had been approved a model pattern was cast. This is preserved with the greatest care, and from it are made the moulds from which every other Cross is cast.

The moulds, as is usual in all casting, are made in two parts, and the surfaces prepared with blackleaf, so as to make them smooth.

Rosebery's Wit.

Quite in the foremost rank of celebrities who are aiding recruiting is Lord Rosebery, whose popular speeches have induced many young men to join the colors. Lord Rosebery is a very great lover of animals, and the story goes that on one occasion he went so far as to risk his life for a favorite dog. His lordship was on board a steamer when suddenly his dog fell overboard. Much distressed, Lord Rosebery asked the captain to stop the boat, a request which was refused. "If it was a man overboard," said the captain, "why, then, of course——" "Oh," said Lord Rosebery, "that can be easily managed," and, to the captain's astonishment, he leapt overboard after the dog himself. Naturally the boat was promptly stopped, a boat was lowered with all speed, and both dog and master were rescued, none the worse for their experience.

A REMARKABLE DOG.

How A Faithful Canine Recovered Some Hidden Money.

Monsieur Dumont, a tradesma of the Rue St. Denis, Paris, says Owen Jones in the Badminton Magazine, offered to lay a wager with a friend, with whom he was walking on the Boulevard St. Antoine that if he were to hide a six-livre piece in the dust, his dog would discover it and bring it to him. The wager was accepted, and the piece of money secreted, after being carefully marked. When they were some distance from the spot, Monsieur Dumont called to his dog that he had lost something, and ordered him to seek it. The dog, by name Caniche, immediately turned back, while his master and his companion continued their walk.

Meanwhile a traveller, who happened to be just then returning in a chaise from Vincennes, perceived the piece of money, which his horse had kicked from its hiding place. The traveller alighted, picked up the money, and was driving off to his inn, in the Rue Pont-Aux-Choux, just as Caniche reached the spot where the money had been hidden. Caniche at once followed the chaise, entered the inn, and stuck close to the traveller, leaping up incessantly about him. The traveller, supposing him to be some dog that had been lost or left behind by his master, thought the dog was trying to make friends with him, and as the animal was handsome, determined to keep him. He gave him a good supper, and on retiring to bed, took him with him to his chamber.

But no sooner had the traveller removed his breeches than the dog seized them. The owner, of course, took them away. Then Caniche began to bark at the door, which the kindly traveller opened, thinking that the dog wished to go out. Caniche instantly snatched up the breeches, and away he flew. The traveller posted after him in his nightcap, anxious for his purse, which was full of double napoleons of forty francs each. Caniche ran full speed to his master's house, which he reached a moment before his pursuer, who was naturally out of breath and furiously enraged.

"Sir," said Caniche's master, "my dog is a faithful creature, and if he has run away with your breeches, it is because you have in them money that does not belong to you."

The traveller became still more infuriated.

"Compose yourself, sir!" rejoined the other, smiling. "Without doubt there is in your purse a six-livre piece with such and such marks, which you picked up in the Boulevard St. Antoine, and which I threw down there with a firm conviction that my dog would bring it back again."

The stranger had to admit that that was the case, and when he had returned the coin to Caniche's master, the dog permitted him to take up his breeches and go back in them to the inn.

Bukowina.

Although geography is in the melting pot, most of us have been learning a good deal of it since the war began, says a contributor to the London Times. Many have had this year their first introduction to the Bukowina.

It is a duchy and crownland of Austria, sandwiched between the province of Galicia and the northwestern frontier of Roumania. Bukowina means the country of the beech trees, and a great portion of it is forest clad, for it lies among the southern spurs of the wooded Carpathians. Czernowitz, its capital, has about 90,000 inhabitants, and the population of the duchy is some three-quarters of a million. Of these, about 40 per cent. are Ruthenians, and nearly another 40 per cent. are Roumanians, and the balance is made up of the usual Balks-Hungarian mixture—Magyars, Germans, Poles, Jews, and Gypsies. The Ruthenians and the Roumanians belong to the Orthodox Church, and therefore the great majority of the inhabitants hold with Roumania and with Russia in the matter of religion.

The Roumanian peoples in the Bukowina and in Transylvania are not settlers who have overflowed across the Roumanian frontier. They have their roots deep in history. Roumania herself is a geographical necessity, and it is very curious to find a Latin people in eastern Europe surrounded on all sides by Slavs and Hungarians—for not only do Roumanians speak a Latin tongue closely resembling Italian, but in spite of all admixture with Slavs, Turks, and Constantinople Greeks, they retain to this day strong signs of their Italian blood.

Roumania is the modern descendant of Trajan's roman colony in Dacia, and the explanation of the Roumanians in the Bukowina and Transylvania lies in the fact that Trajan's province included both these districts, and was much larger in extent than the modern kingdom of Roumania. When Catherine II. was at war with Turkey the Russians occupied the Bukowina in 179, but they restored it to the Turks when peace was made in 1774. Austria had been much perturbed by this occupation, and made great show of her anxiety for its restitution to Turkey. But this friendliness was by no means disinterested, for she promptly set up an intrigue to secure it for herself, and in 1777 the Porte ceded it to her. Since then it has remained in Austrian hands.

Meant All Right.

Hub (at breakfast)—I've got a bad head this morning.

Wife—I'm sorry, dear. I do hope you'll be able to shake it off.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL STUDY

INTERNATIONAL LESSON, JULY 4.

Lesson I.—Absalom's Failure—2 Sam. 18, 1-5. Golden Text—Eph. 6. 1.

I. The Battle Array (Verses 1-4).

Verse 1. Numbered the people—The word for "number" here is different from the word "number" in 2 Sam. 24. 2. There the word means merely "to count." Here the primary meaning is "to muster," "to inspect," "to review." David did not want numbers only." Like Gideon, he wanted picked men.

Captains of thousands and captains of hundreds—The usual disposition of the army (see Num. 31. 14; 1 Sam. 8. 12; 22. 7). This military division corresponded to the civil division instituted by Moses (Exod. 18. 25.)

2. A third part—As noted in previous lessons this is the way in which the Hebrew commanders divided their armies (Judg. 7. 16; 9 43; 1 Sam. 11. 11; 2 Kings 11. 5, 6). The Philistines, at least on one occasion, followed the practice of the Hebrews (1 Sam. 13. 17). The King intended to take the field as chief commander over these divisions. He realized what his influence would be down in the fighting line with his men.

3. Thou art worth ten thousand of us—The Hebrew literally reads, "There are ten thousand like us." The implication is, "But there is not one like you." Doubtless David was quite ready to stay in the camp, as he did not want to go personally against his son.

Succor us out of the city—To send reinforcements or to command the retreat if retreat were necessary.

4. The king stood—To encourage the soldiers by this personal interest as they moved out to battle.

II. The Fight in the Forest of Ephraim (Verses 5-8).

5. The king commanded—David did not merely request his generals not to hurt Absalom, he "commanded" them. "And all the people heard when the king gave all the captains charge concerning Absalom."

6. The forest of Ephraim—As the battle was fought east of the Jordan, this forest could not have been in the central part of Palestine where the tribe of Ephraim settled. It must have been in some part of the great forest of Gilead, east of the Jordan, which, in fact, is a continuation of the great forest of Ephraim in the west side of the Jordan.

8. The forest devoured—The retreat of Absalom's army through the forest was necessarily hampered by the trees and undergrowth. More men were slain in the retreat through the forest, therefore, than in the actual battle.

III. The Fate of Absalom (Verses 9-16).

9. Absalom chanced to meet—In the rout Absalom found himself in the midst of David's men. So he took to the densest forest, hoping, of course, to escape.

His Mule—The mule was the mark of royalty (see 1 Kings 1. 33, 38). Doubtless it was David's own mule.

A Great oak—The Hebrew reads, "The great terebinth." The definite article indicates that the tree was well known. The terebinth is a turpentine tree, something like the oak. In the forest on the east of Jordan there were far more oaks than terebinths, hence a terebinth would be more easily marked, especially if, as in this case, it was unusually large.

His head caught hold—Doubtless in the low forks of the tree. He was stunned by the impact, as his mule was galloping in wild fear. Although his hair also became entangled, he did not hang by his hair alone.

10. A certain man—One of God's unnamed and unsung noblemen.

12. Silver in my hand—Joab was well known. This man would not have taken a promise from him. Had he dealt with him at all, it would not have been on the basis of actual cash.

13. Thou thyself wouldest have set thyself against me—In no sense was Joab to be trusted. He was a great general. On this account David spared him. As politics makes strange bedfellows, so does war break down personal ethical standards.

14. Took three darts—Absalom was not killed outright. Joab brutally struck at him with "rods" or "staves" (as the Hebrew word indicates)—that is, anything that first came to hand. His armorbearers actually killed the unfortunate youth (verse 15).

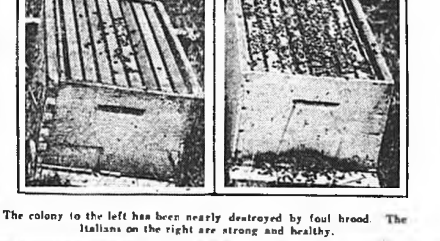
15. Slew him — Joab doubtless thought the quickest way to end the rebellion was to kill the rebel.

Too Good to Germans.

A large part of Leeds (England) Workhouse has been requisitioned by the British War Office for wounded soldiers. The displaced inmates are being accommodated in a school. German prisoners are lodged in floating palaces that cost the nation $5,000,000 a year, and $75,000 has been spent in fitting the old world Donington Hall in Leicestershire for others.

It has been estimated that a salmon can swim at the rate of twenty-five miles an hour.

The Beekeeper's Worst Enemy



European Foul Brood Has Destroyed Hundreds Of Colonies In Ontario.

Physicians tell us that among the human race there are some nationalities more resistant to certain diseases than others. Experiments with different races of honey bees have proved conclusively that purely mated Italian stock is on the whole, strongly resistant to the ravages of European foul brood. This resistance is so well marked in some colonies that they are apparently almost immune from its effects.

Writing in The Canadian Countryman, F. Eric Miller, B.S.A., State Inspector of Apiaries, Michigan, says:

Among beekeepers who have kept the German or Black bees, European foul brood has proved to be the most dreaded of all the bee diseases in North America. In the affected districts of Ontario and certain of the States, many thousands of dollars' worth of damage has already been done. Where Black bees were kept exclusively the disease cleaned out all before it. Whole apiaries of more than a hundred colonies have been rendered worthless in one season, and have been entirely destroyed in less than two years. Those beekeepers who heeded the warnings sent out by Government authorities and requeened with purely mated Italian queens are still keeping bees, while those who neglected these warnings are no longer beekeepers.

A colony of Black bees suffering from European foul brood will dwindle and die out very quickly. To the uninitiated it does not seem possible that the disease can work so rapidly, but when we understand its nature it is no longer a mystery. In a normal, healthy colony of bees, from spring till fall, the hatching bees replace those which are constantly dying from old age, so that the colony keeps up in numbers and with a vigorous queen is most thickly populated in early summer. When European foul brood attacks a colony, we find that from 50 to 95 per cent. of the young bees in the larval or worm stage die. The fully developed bees naturally live but a short while during a heavy honey flow, and as these are not replaced by the younger generations, except in small numbers, the colony soon dies out.

The colony to the left has been nearly destroyed by foul brood. The Italians on the right are strong and healthy.

Italian Bees Resistant.

There is no race of honey bees on this continent that has been given the same amount of attention that the Italian variety has received. For many years queens have been imported from Italy, and with these queens as a nucleus the North American Queen Breeders have practised selective breeding. While it may not be due entirely to the efforts of these men to improve the Italian stock, the general opinion is that colony for colony the Italian surpasses any other variety.

Apart from the ability of most strains of Italians to resist European foul brood, these bees have been found to be excellent workers, gentle to handle, and generally adapted to the climate of this country.

During the early days of European foul brood in this country, when beekeepers were told to fight the disease by requeening with pure Italian queens, it was believed that this one treatment was all that was necessary to dispose of the disease. Since that time beekeepers have found that because a queen is pure Italian it does not always necessarily follow that she is certain to resist European foul brood every time. A Holstein cattle breeder knows that it is not every pure-bred calf that will turn out a winner; the same holds true with bees, and it is this fact that beekeepers often lose sight of. To fight European foul brood successfully one must be prepared to requeen each colony more than once if this is necessary. Whenever a colony shows the symptoms of the disease after having been treated, and is losing ground, that is, fewer bees are hatching than are dying, then it is high time to kill the queen and introduce another.

Many of the beekeepers who have fought European foul brood most successfully are those who requeened each colony affected as often as was needed. Only those colonies that are headed by vigorous prolific queens will resist European foul brood.

Some may not be able to determine what qualities make up a good queen. The appearance of the queen herself, that is, her size, shape and color will not always guide us. We can tell a good queen's qualities by results, and these results show in the power to resist the disease, the ability to store a good surplus of honey, and the strength of the colony. When we examine a hive we can judge the quality of the queen by the compactness of the brood and the absence of drone eggs until the colony is strong in worker bees, or near the point of swarming.

The Time to Requeen.

The best time to requeen a colony of bees is when there is a good flow of nectar coming in. The bees are more easily handled at such a time, and they will not be liable to kill the new queen. If one follows the directions of the breeder from whom the queens are purchased there will be no difficulty in getting the queen in. One point should be remembered, however, and that is, not to disturb the colony at all for a week or ten days after putting in the queen. If your bees are Blacks or dark hybrids you will be sorely tempted to take a peep at the new queen to see how she is doing. This will often cause the bees to kill the queen: wait and all will be well.

Do not wait until European foul brood visits your neighborhood before you requeen every colony with Italian stock. A good colony of pure Italians are more profitable than the common bees in any case, and by keeping only the best you will carry the safest kind of insurance against a raid of European foul brood. "One ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure."

If you have not received a bulletin from the Provincial Apiarist, Guelph, Ontario, on "Bee Diseases," you should write for one. When you have carefully studied the symptoms of European foul brood you should act as your own inspector and keep your apiary free from this disease.

In conclusion: Keep your queens young and your colonies strong, and if your bees are pure Italians, European foul brood will be robbed of all its terrors.

Special Steamers.

To the landsman who lives far from a port one steamer is much like another; but, as a matter of fact, great numbers of vessels are now built for one special branch of trade, and are fitted for that purpose and no other.

The oil-tank steamer most of us know, but the refrigerating vessel is less often heard of. There are regular lines of steamers sailing to the Antipodes and South America which consist of one vast refrigerating chamber, in which meat and farm produce are carried. When the holds are full they are hermetically sealed, and the temperature is kept as nearly level as possible all through the voyage.

Then there are the cattle-ships, the colliers, and ore carriers with a number of derricks, instead of masts, for quick discharge of cargo, and the fruit steamers which ply regularly to and from the West Indies.

A special class of vessel is also built for the coolie trade between India and the West Indies, chiefly British Guiana. Formerly sailing vessels were engaged in the traffic, but now the native has, for him, truly comfortable and well-found steamers for the voyage.

Not dissimilar are the ships engaged in the pilgrim traffic to Mecca—an interesting trade, about which very little is known.

Why He Growled.

"The Browns have a new automobile."

"Taut so?"

"Yes, aren't you glad?"

"I can't say that I am particularly."

"You should rejoice in the success of others. I don't see why men act so gloomy when other people are getting on."

"You don't. Well, I'm Brown's tailor, and he still owes me for two suits."

The Paisley Advocate

PAISLEY, JULY 1st, 1915

W. C. T. U. County Convention

The twenty-seventh annual convention of Bruce County Woman's Christian Temperance Union met in Knox church, Paisley, on Thursday, June 24th. There were delegates from Teeswater, Walkerton, Port Elgin, Chesley, Wiarton and Lion's Head. After devotional exercises conducted by the president, the business session commenced by the appointment of committees, with Mrs Moore of Teeswater as convener of resolutions, and Mrs Vanalyke of Port Elgin convener of plan of work. Reports of the different departments of work were then proceeded with and the discussions on departmental work proved interesting and helpful, taking up the morning session.

The sacredote hour of prayer was observed, Mrs Moore leading audibly.

In the afternoon devotional exercises were conducted by Mrs Busby of Port Elgin, after which two little girls, Helen McArthur and Mary Fletcher, were introduced to the convention by Mrs D McKenzie of Paisley to act as pages. Letters of greeting were read from Mrs Bryan of Vancouver, a former county president, and from Mrs Stauffer of Walkerton, one of our old Bruce county workers. Addresses of welcome were given by Mrs H B Putnam, president of the Paisley W C T U, Mrs Shoemaker of the Patriotic League, Mrs Conn of the Woman's Institute, Mrs (Rev.) Facey and others, to which response was made by Mrs Hallidday of Chesley. A solo very sweetly sung by Miss McInnis was much appreciated. Convention was then resolved into a school of methods and the following read by Mrs Kanke of Port Elgin, sec'y of resolutions committee:

1 Resolved, that we hereby heartily commend the newspapers in our county that have refused liquor advertising and given space to temperance items.

2 That though we disapprove of the methods employed by the militant suffragettes we will persevere with faith and effort in claiming our God-given right to the ballot for the protection of the home.

3 Whereas we believe that the legalized liquor traffic is one of the national sins which incurs the just displeasure of Almighty God, and more especially as when during this world-wide war the foodstuffs used in the manufacture of the liquor that materially unfits our soldier boys for service, are needed both to feed the army and for home consumption, and whereas Canadian mothers consented to the boys going overseas to fight for the liberty and honor of the Motherland and her colonies with the distinct understanding that no license be allowed them and are now withholding their consent because of the wet canteen, therefore resolved: the Bruce County Woman's Christian Temperance Union in convention assembled do deplore the persistent forcible fixing of the wet canteen overseas to our Canadian soldiers and the rum rations served on the firing line, and hereby vigorously and emphatically protest against the same, and that a copy of this resolution be sent to Premier Borden.

4 That we stand opposed to the legalized liquor traffic. That the lapse of years has but more strongly confirmed us in the wisdom of our watchword and battle cry—"Total abstinence for the individual and legal prohibition for the state."

5 That we place on record a vigorous protest against the light sentences for immoral conduct and urge much heavier sentences and the lash.

6 That aliens coming into the country be required to pass certain test examinations and that the time of residence previous to taking out naturalization papers be extended from three to five years.

7 We deeply deplore the exceedingly rapid development of the white slave traffic and urge upon those in authority to punish with a strong hand those engaged in the same, and we further urge that all railways employ train matrons for the protection of girls travelling alone.

8 Viewing with alarm the growing prevalence in the use of cigarettes by the youth of our land, we, Bruce County Woman's Christian Temperance Union, desire to place ourselves on record as strongly favoring federal legislation along this line and earnestly hope our lawmakers will at the next session of the federal Parliament introduce legislation whereby the importation, manufacture and sale of the cigarette will be prohibited.

The dainty lunch and tea provided by the ladies of the churches was another token of the hospitality for which Paisley is noted. The churches were tastefully decorated with flowers, and a marked thoughtfulness for the comfort of the guests was everywhere in evidence.

Rev Mr Little presided at the Thursday evening meeting and gave an encouraging introductory address, after which the Dominion Rally Song was rendered most enthusiastically by sixteen little boys trained by Mrs Jos B Fleming. Reeve Ballachey kindly welcomed the delegates and accorded them the freedom of the town during their stay. Miss Sproule of Chesley then gave a solo which was enjoyed by all. Mrs Ashcroft, county president of Wiarton, gave a resume of the year's work in a stirring and most impressive address, touching on some of the main issues of the day in a way which showed a live and intelligent grasp of the situation. Rev W J Fidler, of Cargill, gave with marked ability the thrilling and pathetic reading of "David Garrick." The beautiful and appropriate song, "Let us have peace," was most acceptably rendered by Miss Helen Carter, Paisley. Rev Mr McLaren, of Shoal Lake, Man, spoke briefly on the temperance situation in the western provinces and earnestly urged that Ontario rise to her many privileges. The old favorite song, "The Holy City," was well rendered by Mr I. R Putnam. Rev Mr Diehl of the Anglican church in a few encouraging words showed his interest and sympathy with the cause and kindly expressed his desire to see the ballot in the hands of women. A pleasing feature was the presentation of the prize banner to the Paisley union for their increase in membership by the county president, Mrs Ashcroft, and received by Mrs H B Putnam on behalf of Paisley union. A collection of cordial thanks was tendered the entertaining union and all who had contributed in any way to the success and pleasure of the convention.

On Friday session was opened by a much enjoyed devotional exercise conducted by Mrs (Rev) Fear of Teeswater, Little Miss Hazel Bird and Helen McArthur acted as pages. Report of plan of work committee was given and helpful discussions followed.

The newly elected officers for the county are as follows: President, Mrs Ashcroft, Wiarton; 1st Vice-pres, Mrs Putnam, Paisley; and Vice-pres, Mrs Halliday, Chesley; Cor Sec'y, Mrs Simpson, Wiarton; Rec Sec'y, Miss Gamelin, Chesley; Treasurer, Mrs Moore, Teeswater; Y Sec'y, Mrs J S Smith, Port Elgin; L T L, Mrs Busby, Port Elgin.

Miss Jean Fullerton, Paisley, sang the temperance rally song very sweetly and proved that Bruce county is not lacking in musical talent. A most successful convention was closed by singing "God be with you till we meet again."

The Races

Speedy Horses and Close Contests on the Track

Riverside Park race track assumed some of its old-time holiday appearance and activity on Thursday afternoon last, when some of the best trotting and pacing horses competed for the prize money hung up in the open and 3-minute classes. There has many times been larger crowds at the races here, as the attendance was really small on Thursday, and this was the only weak feature of the meet. Very seldom has there been as interesting and clean a programme of sport presented as that afforded by the track contests and lacrosse match on Thursday.

The first heat in the 3-minute class was a veritable two-in-one event as a pair of horses in the lead had a neck-and-neck race for first and second places and the two that came in for third and fourth had an equally close and spectacular go for the wire. Succeeding heats proved fully as interesting to the spectators, although the places were considerably changed.

In the free-for-all there was fast time made, and a fine contest from start to finish in each heat.

3 Minute Class—1st Rosie Mac, owned by J W Joynt, Lucknow; 2nd Helen B, owned by F. Mabon, Southampton; 3rd Roy Hunter, owned by J Collins; 4th Paddy R, owned by S Trench; 5th King John; 6th Harold H, owned by W Stanley.

Free-for-all—1st Berlin Belle, owned by J W Davey; 2nd Birdie Mac, owned by I B Millson, Lucknow; 3rd Darkie D, owned by Mr Minogan.

The concert on the night of the races was not as well patronized as the merits of the programme warranted. John A. Kelly is a great ventriloquist, also a funny comedian, according to those who attended. Morjorie Munro is also a pleasing singer and Scottish dancer. The Paisley Orchestra furnished several good selections.

Civic Holiday, Tuesday Next

The union Sunday School picnic will be held to Southampton on Tuesday next, and Civic Holiday has been proclaimed for that day. Cheap return excursion rates have been secured—adults 55c, and children 30c. Special train leaves Paisley at 10 a.m., returning at 8 p.m.

Now Are M.D's.

Messrs. Fred and George Petrie, graduates of Paisley Continuation School who went west a few years ago, have passed their final exams in the medical course at Winnipeg, and are added to the long list of young men of Bruce who have entered the professions.

Injured in Runaway

Mr. Andrew Munro is forced to take a holiday because of an accident he met with on Saturday afternoon. He started to drive from his home at Pilkingowan, when a ring in the bridle broke and his horse ran away. Mr. Munro was thrown out on his shoulder and one of his legs was bruised by being caught in the spokes of a wheel. No bones were broken, but it will take some time to mend up his body.

Successful Paisley Girl

Alberta's first lady lawyer is a native of Paisley, Miss Lillian Ruby Clements, B A., of Vegreville. In the final law examinations in Alberta this young lady was among the list of those who passed and qualified for the bar. When these graduates are formally admitted to the Bar as practitioners in September next Miss Clements will also receive the degree of LL B. from the University of Alberta, having taken the extra course entitling her to that honor. This clever young lady is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Clements, formerly of Paisley. She graduated in 1913 from McMaster University, and studied law in Vegreville.

Should It Be a County Bridge?

Warden McCannel, Reeves Cain of Hillsville, Johnson of Bruce, and Phelan of Greenock, who comprise a committee of the County Council appointed to investigate as to the length of the Willow Creek bridge on Queen St., Paisley, met here on Thursday for that purpose. The question as to whether this should be a County bridge was brought up in the County Council by Reeve Ballachey, who advanced the claim that it should be, if measurement of approaches be considered as in other cases where bridges on leading roads have been assumed by the County. The Road and Bridge Committee reported against assuming the bridge, but Reeve Ballachey succeeded in having this committee appointed to investigate, and their report will be handed in for consideration at the December session.

Auto Crushed Motorcycle

The most exciting episode of race day occurred up town about 7 p.m., when the crowd that had been in was beginning to disperse homewards. Mr. Leslie Winch rode out from the Central Hotel yards on his motorcycle and started north. On the middle of the Teeswater bridge he was overtaken and thrown from his machine by an automobile driven by Mr. S. Bricker, of Listowel. Those who saw the accident expected there would be nothing left of the cycle rider except his lifeless body, but he pulled out of the mix-up with nothing worse than a bruised leg. The motorcycle was caught under the auto and ground along until the car came to a stop. A good deal of repairing will be required to again make it a reliable travelling outfit. Mr. Bricker we understand, offered to settle for the damages.

VIOLENT ATTACKS OF DYSPEPSIA

Suffered Tortures Until She Tried "Fruit-a-tives"

ST. JEAN DE MATHA, Jan. 27th, 1914.

"After suffering for a long time with Dyspepsia, I have been made well by "Fruit-a-tives." I suffered so much that at last I would not dare to eat for I was afraid of dying. Five years ago, I received samples of "Fruit-a-tives" and after taking them I felt relief. Then I sent for three boxes and I kept improving until I was well. I quickly regained my lost weight—and now I eat, sleep and digest well—in a word, I am fully recovered, thanks to 'Fruit-a-tives.'

MME. CHARBONNEAU.

50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size 25c. At dealers or sent postpaid on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

This is the kind of Wall Paper Artist We Do NOT Employ—

No sloppy job like this done by our men. It costs you no more to employ clean, careful workmen than men like the above.

Our Wall Paper Stock

We have just put into stock the newest and

MOST ARTISTIC PATTERNS.

Complete range of all lines for parlor, hall, dining-room, bed-room or kitchen papers on hand, ready for delivery. We would like to show you our different sample books. Stock on hand of all samples shown.

H. GLOVER

PAPERHANGER AND DECORATOR

—There was a large representation of the C.O.F. members this at the special service in Knox Church on Sunday morning. Rev. Mr. Little delivered an appropriate and trenchant sermon. The song service included a solo by Mr. McCuaig of Toronto, who is a vocalist of the same rank as the well-known Ruthven McDonald, and has the high faculty of making a sacred song as impressive as a sermon.

—We notice that one young townsman, George C. McIntyre, who received the other day the degree of M.D. with honors, from the University of Toronto, is named among those chosen for medical services at the front. Dr. McIntyre will be a success anywhere. Dr. McIntyre has also qualified for a commission as lieutenant in the Army Medical Corps, and is prepared to do his bit in helping to carry on the war.

Batcheller Beaten Twice

A rink of Owen Sound bowlers, with A. E. Batcheller and H. Moffat, skip and vice skip, came over on Friday for the afternoon. They were up against two rinks skipped by I. Shoemaker and J. H. Glover, the locals winning out in both.

P.S. Promotions

From Jr. IV to Entrance—Names in order of merit—Willie Sheepy, Reta Cormack, Inez Bell, Arthur Kincaid, Mary Laidlaw, Irene Sage, Jean Fullerton, Irene Marshall, Grace Brown, Jean Shaw, Fred Shoemaker, Anabel Blue; recommended—Mabel Beaton.

CORA R I. FISHER, Teacher

Best Lacrosse in Years

Chesley lacrosse team opened the match with Paisley on Thursday in a sort of walk-away style, shooting in three goals to quick succession before the locals could locate their opponents' net. Then Paisley got in a shot that counted, and thereafter they quickly took their place in the sun and were down the lead to a tie before time was up. Reeve Doyle gave ten minutes overtime to play off the tie, and upon the expiration of that period the score was again even. A second ten minutes overtime extension resulted in a similar deadlock, and it was not until the third period was given that the deciding goal was put in, making the score to goes for Paisley and 9 for Chesley. Specific combination was shown by the players of each team and after the early part of the game the checking was very close and effective in producing play that kept the spectators in a thrill of excitement. There was plenty of play at close quarters, but no rough work exhibited as sometimes is under such conditions. A really good brand of lacrosse it was, and with such admirable exhibitions repeated the national game will soon become popular again here.

DIED

JAMIESON—In Arran, on June 20th, Mary Croome, relict of the late Thomas Jamieson, aged 84 years.

KRUG—In Chesley, on June 22nd, Peter Krug, aged 78 years and 11 months.

BALLACHEY, LAIDLAW & CO.

"The Store with the Quality"

Sweaters—

in the finest of Wools for summer wear. We have just received some beauties in checks and plaids, in many combinations of colors. These are handsome garments and are particularly suitable for driving or motoring.

The prices are $5.00 and $5.50 and they are worth every cent of it.

Top Prices for Produce

BALLACHEY, LAIDLAW & CO

Both 'Phones——All Produce

Eye Comfort

is obtainable through the aid of perfect fitting glasses.

Our spectacles and lenses are guaranteed perfect in fit and focus.

A Stopped Watch

One that will not go AT ALL—doesn't cause as much bother as one that runs now fast, now slow, in an erratic fashion.

The first you don't pretend to depend upon—the other is a constant source of annoyance.

Most people can afford a watch, but no one can afford an uncertain fast and slow one.

And when our repair department is so close at hand there is really no excuse for carrying anything but an accurate time-piece, no matter what the first cost was.

Consult us about any watch troubles that may arise.

I. SHOEMAKER

JEWELER AND OPTICIAN

Shoes and Groceries

Call in and see our large stock of Gents', Ladies' and Children's Fine Shoes of the best quality and latest style at very reasonable prices.

We have a full stock of White Leather and Canvas Shoes.

We can supply you with all kinds of fresh Groceries bought from the best grocery firms. Try them.

Eggs taken in exchange

H. PFAFF & SON'S

SHOE STORE

CANADIAN PACIFIC

GREAT LAKES Steamship Service

Steamers leave Port McNicoll Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays for SAULT STE MARIE, PORT ARTHUR and FORT WILLIAM. The steamer "Manitoba" sailing from Port McNicoll on Wednesdays, will call at Owen Sound, leaving that point at 10.30 p.m.

STEAMSHIP EXPRESS

leaves Toronto 12.45 p.m. daily except Friday, making direct connection with Steamer at Port McNicoll on sailing days.

Particulars from W. H. McFarlane, Agent, or write M. G. Murphy, D.P.A., Toronto.

Central Business College Stratford, Ont.

Ontario's Best Practical Training School

We have thorough courses and experienced instructors in each of our three departments. Commercial, Shorthand and Telegraphy. Our graduates succeed and you should get our large, free catalogue. Write for it at once.

D. A. McLACHLAN, Principal

Court Saugeen, C.O.F No. 88

MEETS in Oddfellow Hall on the second Monday evening of each month, at 8 o'clock. Sojourning brethren are welcome.

A. E. ARCHER, R.S. W. ARCHER, C.R.

Ahiram Lodge, No. 205, I.O.O.F

MEETS every Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock in the Hall, Oddfellow Block. Visiting brothers always welcome.

J. J. T. HOUSTON, N.G. H. B. GRANT, R.S.

PUMP REPAIRING

THE undersigned having purchased Mr W Laidlaw's business, is prepared to handle all kinds of pump repairing, also furnish repairs, such as cylinders, valves and other parts of wooden or iron pumps. A few 6-inch wooden pumps for sale. Wood turning done. Turned whiffle trees and neckyoke for sale.

Bruce 'Phone W. RAE

TORONTO LIVE STOCK MARKETS

Toronto, Tuesday, June 29th, 1915

Butchers nickel	$8 75	$8 85
do common	7 00	7 25
do cows	7 00	7 25
do bulls	7 00	7 50
Stockers, choice	6 75	7 50
do common	6 00	6 50
Heavy feeders	7 60	7 50
Short keep	7 40	7 60
Milch cows, choice	85 00	100 00
do common	60 00	80 00
Sheep, ewes	8 50	9 50
Bucks	6 00	6 50
Spring Lambs, each	8 00	9 00
do	6 00	8 00
Hogs, f.o.b	9 00	9 00
fed and watered	9 00	9 00

PAISLEY MARKET

Fall wheat, per bushel	$1 00	$ 10
Spring wheat, per bush	1 00	1 00
Buckwheat	70	75
Peas, per bush	1 25	1 25
Oats, per bush	45	50
Barley, per bush	65	75
Potatoes, per bus	40	40
Butter, in pound prints	23	23
Eggs, fresh, per doz	20	20
Hay, per ton		15 00

—Renew your subscription to the city dailies or weeklies before the term ends and save interruption in the year's reading. We can get you any paper you want and save you a little money.

T. H. GEORGE

Issuer of Marriage Licenses
Notary Public and Conveyancer

Land, Loan, Insurance and General Agent. Notes, Book Accounts and other Debts Collected. Conveyancing Neatly and Cheaply Executed.

—FARMS LOANS A SPECIALTY—

Office in Putnam Block, Queen St., S., Paisley

NEW TERM OPENS SEPT. 1st at the

NORTHERN Business College

OWEN SOUND

Catalogue on Request

C. A. FLEMING, Principal. G. D. FLEMING, Secretary.

Business Directory

JOHN SUTHERLAND & SONS
LIMITED
INSURANCE—FIRE AND MARINE
GUELPH - ONT.

J. C. GIBSON
Issuer of Marriage Licenses
Paisley, Ont.

LEGAL

D. FORRESTER, B.A., L.L.B.
BARRISTER, SOLICITOR AND NOTARY PUBLIC
OFFICE—TOWN HALL, PAISLEY

MEDICAL

DR. M. C. BLACK,
M. D., C. M., F. T. M. C., M. C. P. S.,
Honor Graduate of Trinity University and Physician, New York. Specialty—Diseases of the eye, ear, nose and throat.

DR. H. E. GAGE, Physician, Surgeon and Accoucheur. Specialist in Diseases of the Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat. Late house surgeon Kingston General Hospital. Office hours—10 to 11 a.m., 1 to 4 p.m. Successor to Dr. O'Neill

DR. F. J. F. HOUSTON,
Honor Graduate of Toronto University, Member of the Royal Colleges of Physicians, and Surgeons of Edinburgh and Glasgow, post graduate Coombe Lying-in Hospital, Dublin, late assistant Edinburgh Royal Infirmary. Specialty—Diseases of the Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat. Successor to Dr. Morrison.

DENTAL

DR. A. H ALLEN
DENTIST, formerly of Toronto.

Graduate of the Royal College of Dental Surgeons of Ontario. Honor Graduate of Toronto University Dental Department. Master of Dental Surgery. Graduate of the Detroit College of Dental Surgery. Member of Provincial Dental Society. New York Office over Moore's Drug Store, opposite the Post Office.

VETERINARY

R. H. GRANT, V. S., Graduate of Ontario Veterinary College, Toronto. Government Inspector of contagious diseases and Supply Tuberculin test to cattle. Also inspect export stock and issue certificates for same. Urgent gas treatment for milk fever. Office and residence opposite the old Northern Hotel.

AUCTIONEERS

R. G. PEARCE, Licensed Auctioneer. Sales attended to in all parts of the County of Bruce on reasonable terms. Orders left at the Advocate Office will receive prompt attention. Telephone at house.

R. J. NESBITT, Licensed Auctioneer for the County of Bruce, is prepared to conduct sales in any part of the county. Terms reasonable. Leave order at ADVOCATE office or address Lucknow P.O.

A Great many People Buy Shoes Here

Who are of the come again and again kind.
Now, that wouldn't be so if our Shoes didn't make it so, would it?
All this talk of ours is only intended to get you to be a tryer of our Shoes, that's all.
After that its up to the Shoes to hold you a steady customer.
They generally do it, but if they SHOULDN'T do it in your case, we want you to tell us about it, because there is a mistake somewhere. And we want to make it right.
It matters not what your present or future needs in Shoes may be, we GUARANTEE you a good service.

BUTTER AND EGGS WANTED
For which We Pay the Highest Price

F. Carter & Son

Goods Delivered — Both 'Phones

THE STORE WITH THE QUALITY

Use Royalite Coal Oil

"Where did you get your Oil Stove?"
"I got it at Davison's."
"What is the name of it."
"Quick Meal."
"Is it a good stove?"
"Well I should say so. You find points of excellence in the Quick Meal Oil Stove that cannot be found in any other stove on the market. Don't buy your stove until you see the Quick Meal. It's the best. I never have any trouble with mine and I have had it for years. I think it would pay you to call at Davison's and see it. I know they will be pleased to show you all about it."
"Well, I'm glad you told me. I think I'll buy one to-morrow."

They all buy the Quick Meal
It's the Best!

Use Royalite Coal Oil

W. H. DAVISON

BRUCE PHONE — BELL PHONE

WESTERN FAIR

London Canada — Sept. 10th-18th 1915

$30,000 in Prizes and Attractions

Prizes increased this year by $3,000.00
Excellent Program of Attractions Twice Daily
Two Speed Events Daily
New Steel Grandstand
Fireworks Every Night
Midway Better Than Ever

Music by the Best Available Bands

SINGLE FARE OVER ALL RAILWAYS West of Toronto, and Fare and One-Third from outside points

Prize Lists, Entry Forms and all information from the Secretary

W. J. REID, President — A. M. HUNT, Secretary

Subscription Arrears to The Advocate

THERE is several hundred dollars still due us on arrears for subscription to The Advocate. We have quite regularly sent our accounts out in an endeavor to collect all. Some, however, have neglected to respond to our requests for payment. Subscribers who neglect the little matter of remitting regularly do not, perhaps, understand the position we are placed in because of not receiving from them what is due us. We do not believe there are more than only a few who would deliberately beat us out of our dues, and we do not propose to treat delinquents as rogues unless we actually find they are such. Nevertheless, we are obliged to make a special effort to collect all arrears, and we have handed over to The Publishers' Adjusting Association a list of behind-handers who will hear from them immediately. Prompt attention to the first notice of indebtedness will save additional expense.

We derive no particular pleasure from the pursuit of delinquents, but it seems that it is a necessary part of the business of managing a newspaper office, so we must, that's all.

Kindly avoid all unpleasantness by remitting the amount of your account at once.

Yours truly,

D. McKENZIE, Publisher

Oil for Streets

The application of oil to keep down the dust on the streets in summer was strongly recommended at the recent convention of Good Roads Association. The Reeve of Onondaga writing in regard to their experience with oil says: "We have been using oil for five years and find it practically dust proof. We use 60 barrels on 1¼ miles of street in the season. No. 1 asphalten oil gives us best satisfaction. We scraped off the dust the first year but not since, as it seems to leave a better and smoother road with it on. We paid 9 cents a gallon for oil and empty the barrels off the car into the waggon and reload the empties as emptied." This is something worth thinking about. Oil can be applied with a sprinkler in the same manner as water and only requires to be done about twice in a season; so that according to those figures we could have a mile or more of streets oiled for a very small sum.

Blazing the Trail

Mr. Balfour in addressing a meeting a year ago, confessed that representative government, as interpreted by the party system, had proved something of a disappointment; he said it was pathetic to recall the high hopes which attended the inauguration. The underlying principle is sound, but we must admit that in Canada representative government has not achieved the highest efficiency. The breakdown in Manitoba, for example, calls for surgery.

Might not that province experiment along the lines of the commission plan, which worked so well in the case of many cities that a strong demand has arisen for its adoption by the state governments.

The commission plan, as we understand it, puts all the executive and much of the legislative power in the hands of three or five men to be elected by the people. The ideal commission would be composed of high-class experts whose aim in life would be to develop the resources and manage the affairs of the province with the greatest possible efficiency. Politics could certainly be kept out of the elections were the people of Manitoba just now to be called upon to elect commissioners and that would be a great initial advantage.

With the initiative and referendum which the Norris government is bound to establish the people could enact any important measure they desired by direct legislation. Private bills, including the incorporating of companies, and many other matters now dealt with by the provincial parliament, could well be confided to the commission.

In trying to work out the commission plan for states, the Progressives deal with the legislature in a somewhat summary manner. The would abolish the bi-cameral legislature, with its membership of two or three hundred, and substitute one small body of highly paid members sitting the year round. It is proposed in Kansas to elect one member of the legislature for each congressional district, i.e., each member would represent 160,000 people.

Possibly some progressive reforms might also improve our federal system. We might do away with the preposterous senate; might we not get better results from a smaller house of commons? If we gave Quebec 25, instead of 65 members, our unit of representation would be raised from about 32,000 to 80,000, and the house of commons would then consist of 90 members.

Just now we have this difficulty: the house is so unwieldy that all the business is practically predigested for it by the cabinet. But the cabinet sits in secret; the discussions of the house, therefore, are perfunctory, because the decision of the government has already been arrived at, and the decision of the government goes. With the senate abolished and the house reduced in numbers we could afford to pay our parliamentarians better and have them work every day. Moreover, we could then make the cabinet in fact what it is now in theory, a committee of the house, and much of the secrecy which now envelops, as with a mist, the administration of public affairs could be done away with.—Toronto World.

WADE—SINCLAIR

A pretty church wedding took place at the North Broadview Presbyterian Church on Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock, when Miss Jean Sinclair, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arch. Sinclair, Bruce Tp., Ont., became the bride of Mr. Harry Wade, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Wade, of Toronto. Rev. Dr. Kawannin performed the ceremony. Mr. E. J. James presided at the organ, also during the signing of the register. The bride, who was given away by Mr. H. Tyndall, wore a beautiful gown of ivory satin, with an overdress of embroidered Muline, with very becoming veil of tulle, arranged in mob cap with orange blossoms; she also wore an exquisite pearl necklace, the gift of the groom, and carried a shower bouquet of bridal roses and lily of the valley. The bridesmaid, Miss Mary McDelmund, was charmingly gowned in white silk mulle and white hat with satin streamers. She carried a shower of pink roses. The gift of the groom to the bridesmaid was a pearl ring, and to Mr. H. Tyndall a pearl tie pin. After the ceremony Mrs. W. Prettie held a reception at her home, Logan Avenue, which was very prettily decorated with pennits, snap draggons, and ferns. The bride's table was decorated with silver tulle and bridal roses. Mrs. Prettie wore white embroidered voile, with black picture hat and corsage bouget of lily of the valley and orchids. Later on the happy couple left for a short motor trip to the bride's home and Georgian Bay, the bride traveling in Belgian blue corded silk suit, with hat to match. On their return they will reside at their new home on Browning Avenue.

—THE ADVOCATE office has a splendid stock of wedding stationery and calling cards on hand, also the most beautiful styles of type, so we are able to turn out the finest lines of wedding invitations, announcements, cards, etc. We can do work fit to invite the best of people to a wedding, so why pay two or three times as much to city printers or engravers for something that isn't a whit better for the purpose? See our samples.

—Clubbing rates with all the city dailies and weeklies.

Soldier Life at Sandling Camp in England

Mr. Sam. Babcock received the following interesting letter a few days ago, dated June 6th:

DEAR BROTHER—Received yours today. It took just twelve days coming across—that is pretty fair travelling the way the roads are. Well, we are in the same old camp yet. Don't know when we will be pulling out of here. We are going some now, putting in eight hours per day, and that means steady going for that length of time. We have to get up at 5.30 a.m. Then we do squad drill from 6.30 to 7. At 7 we have breakfast. On parade at 8 for physical training (40 minutes) which consists of doubling, marching on the toes, hopping on alternate feet, knees bending and stretching, arms bending, leap frog, running and jumping, and a lot of other stunts. That would probably make you Paisley people laugh if you were looking on. They would look rather silly to an onlooker, but the boys train much better at games of that kind than they would if it were drill—they like to be on their toes, as it were. Well, to proceed with the daily routine, we go on parade again at 9 and are out until 12 noon. The course of training for those three hours consists of bayonet fighting, extended order drill, rapid firing practice, visual training, outpost duty, etc., enlivened by sudden bursts of physical exercises, such as footraces, jumping, and other violent stunts.

The bayonet fighting is one of the most necessary parts of our training. If a man can't use a bayonet in this war he isn't in it. Nearly all the positions taken are taken by the sharp, cold steel. We hear this every day from the boys who return from the front. Cavalry is a thing of the past in the mode of warfare. They are very seldom used, as they would be too large a target for the artillery. The cavalry are almost all being converted into infantry over here. The afternoon is spent in the same manner, from 1 to 5 p.m.

We almost had a riot last night at a place called Folkestone, about five miles from our camp. It happened in this way: A couple of Canadian boys, of one of the many regiments stationed here, got chewing over some differece of opinion and finally began to mix it up in a way that was not slow. Well, it would have ended at that, only a couple of red caps interfered, and were going to put the pugilistic youths under arrest, but the backers of both sides wouldn't stand for it—so there you are. Talk about mixing it up! The firemen of the town turned the hose on the combatants, but it was of no use. They cut the hose in places with their bayonets. Finally they had to call out a regiment of cavalry which lined the streets, and everything came down to zero. There was no serious damage done, but there were a good many tired boys this morning as the busses and trains had stopped running and they had to walk back to camp about five or six miles.

I get The Advocate quite regularly, which the Paisley boys enjoy very much, myself included. Our boys (from Paisley I mean) are all holding their own (in the way of drill, of course). I think they could hold their own much better if they were in Paisley, though.

We are having lovely weather here, couldn't be better. It is quite warm in the daytime but nice and cool at night. We haven't had much rain since we came here.

Any strong healthy man not wearing a uniform here hasn't what you call a pleasant time. Everyone who meets him gives him the cold shoulder. Even the girls go back on him. Oh, they take things much more seriously over here. Well, you can't wonder at it, when you realize that it is only about 21 miles across the channel to France.

This is a beautiful country around here, everything is so nice and green. Nearly all the fields are fenced off with pretty green hedges, and the grass is like a soft carpet under your feet. Both Hythe and Folkstone are great bathing places. They have a swell coast along here.

I expected to see Tom here before this. I heard the 33th was sending a detachment over quite a time ago, but they have not come as yet. Well, bye-bye old chap. Love to all, from

ANDREW.

Address—
No. 53989,
Sergt. A. E. Babcock,
Base Co., 18th Batt., C.E.F.,
G.P.O., London, Eng.

Golden Wedding Celebrates

The Advocate joins in the congratulations from their host of old friends in this locality to the couple of old pioneers mentioned in the following from the High River, Alta., Times:

One of those interesting events that occur only once in a great while in this new land took place at the home of Mr and Mrs David Elves, Cayley, on Tuesday May 25th, when their twelve children, now grown to maturity, assembled at the home of their parents and celebrated the anniversary of their golden wedding. Mr and Mrs Elves were married in Bruce County in 1865 where they resided until a few years ago, when the west attracted them and they came out to be near their sons and daughters who had settled in Alberta and had become influential and prosperous in their respective spheres of life. It was indeed a happy event for Mr and Mrs Elves, and as they looked back to their pioneering days in Bruce, they were indeed grateful that providence had been so generous to them in maintaining, without a break, their family of stalwart boys and girls and permitting them to once more gather under the parental roof to celebrate such an occasion in this new land.

Although Mr and Mrs Elves have approached the allotted span of life they are both enjoying excellent health and entered heartily into the joyous event of the gathering.

Several beautiful floral gifts, a substantial purse of gold and many congratulatory telegrams were presented to Mr and Mrs Elves.

The following are the names and places of abode of the Elves family:

Mrs J C Young, Port Elgin, Ont; P W, J S and R S Elves, Cayley; David, Sasles, N D; James C, Winnipeg; Herbert, Brod, Reuben and Miss Laura Elves, Vulcan; Mrs G B Cameron, Whitetail, Montana; Mrs John McCaw, Lampton, Sask. Mrs J H Wescott, Victoria, B C, a neice of Mr and Mrs Elves was also present.

In honor of the event the members of the Cayley brass brand and Sandy Dersham with his bag pipes serenaded the happy family, when they were all invited within and served delicious refreshments.

—Clubbing rates with all the city dailies and weeklies.

Made in Canada — Made in Canada

The Columbia Trademark
on a
Columbia Record

Is as true a mark of quality as the Sterling mark on silver.

The making of a Columbia Record is an artistic triumph.

Every shade of a vocal expression and every variation in tone is faithfully recorded and reproduced.

The same holds true in reproducing instrumental music.

In the records of such famous selections as Tschaikowsky's Overture 1812, one can distinguish the notes of every instrument at any moment, even in the most tremendous passage.

Get This Demonstration Disc 30c.

In order that you may become better acquainted with the qualities of Columbia Records, we have issued a Demonstration Record at 30c. This record is typical of the thousands of records in our general catalogues and demonstrates to what a degree of perfection the Columbia Graphophone Co. has brought the art of reproducing vocal and instrumental music.

We will gladly play this and any other Columbia record for you.

Geo. Welsford
Paisley

A NEW ISSUE
of the
Telephone Directory

is now being prepared, and additions and changes for it should be reported to our Local Manager at once.

Have you a telephone? Those who have will tell you that it is the most precious of modern conveniences.

Why not order to-day and have your name in the new directory?

The Bell Telephone Co. of Canada

A THOUGHTFUL GIFT

Send THE ADVOCATE to the absent member of the family or to the distant friend. It is as good as a letter from home and is a weekly visitor. You can better imagine how the home paper is appreciated when you are absent yourself and a copy is forwarded to you.

A Representative Wanted

For the Old Reliable
Fonthill Nurseries
to sell in Paisley and district

A chance of a lifetime to do a big trade among farmers in fruit stock, as well as good ornamental business in town.

Exclusive territory. Handsome free outfit. Highest commissions paid. Write for terms.

STONE & WELLINGTON
Toronto

CARRIAGE PAINT SHOP

The undersigned has rented the Gibson store building on Queen St. South, where he is prepared to do Painting of all kinds, also repairing and retrimming of all kinds of vehicles. Over 25 years' experience in the best carriage shops in Canada and U.S.

W. JACK

—It's only a dollar, but it means a good deal to THE ADVOCATE if hundreds are slow to paying that on their subscription.

Harmony in Home Decoration

Probably does more to make the surroundings cheerful and comfortable than anything else—in addition to harmony—the decoration should be sanitary.

These qualities are found most satisfactorily in "Mellotone" flat wall finish.

"Mellotone Your Walls"

It gives that soft, dull effect—(all tints—soft as the rainbow), so restful to the eye. It is more sanitary than wall paper or kalsomine because it produces a solid surface which can be cleaned with soap and water. It will not fade, crack, peel or easily mar.

Read our booklet—and ask us to tell you of some prominent buildings in our city decorated with "Mellotone."

For Sale by
Sinclair's Hardware

SUCCESSFUL CANNING AT HOME

Requires Fruit perfect in shape and quality and a clear well made Syrup.

The Syrup must be made with pure good sugar, as organic matter in sugar acts like over-ripe fruit and causes fermentation. To avoid such disappointment and loss, it's worth while insisting on being supplied by your dealer with the old reliable more than 99.99 per cent pure St. Lawrence Standard Granulated Sugar.

Made exclusively from pure cane sugar in a perfectly equipped and right up-to-date refinery ST. LAWRENCE EXTRA GRANULATED SUGAR HAS THE REPUTATION WITH HOME JAM AND PRESERVE MAKERS OF BEING LUCKY, and it's even, steady excellence and purity are the secrets of its success.

To avoid mistakes buy St. Lawrence Extra Granulated in Refinery sealed packages, 2 lb. and 5 lb. cartons, 10, 20, 25 and 100 lb. bags, which assures absolute cleanliness and correct weights. Take your choice of the three sizes of grain: fine, medium and coarse. Any good dealer can fill your order.

ST. LAWRENCE SUGAR REFINERIES, LIMITED, MONTREAL.

The Planter's Daughter ;

Or, The Queen of Belle River.

CHAPTER I.

"India!" exclaimed Mark Sutherland, rising at the head of his table, and waving high the brimming glass, while his fine dark countenance lighted up with enthusiasm. A young Ajax in athletic beauty and strength, stood the Mississippian, until——

"India!" responded his friend Lauderdale, from the foot of the table.

"India!" echoed the young men around the board as they all arose, and, standing, honored the toast. Then the glasses jingled merrily down upon the table, and then——

"Now that in blind faith we have worshipped your goddess—who is India? Is it a woman or a quarter of the globe—your idolatry?"

"India!" ejaculated the young Southerner with fervor. "India!

'Oh! a woman! friend, a woman!
Why, a beast had scarce been duller' than to have harbored such a question. Fill high your glasses again, and

'Twixt the red wine and the chalice'

let me breathe her beauty's name. Gentlemen, are you ready?—The Queen of Belle River'"

"The Queen of Belle River!" responded Lauderdale.

"The Queen of Belle River!" reechoed all those gay youths, as this toast was also quaffed standing, and the empty glasses rattled down upon the table.

This was the parting toast, and the company broke up to separate. The young guests all crowded around their youthful host with adieus, regrets, congratulations, and kind wishes; for all these opposite phrases were equally appropriate, as will be seen.

Mark Sutherland was the son and nephew of the celebrated Belle River planters—the three brothers Sutherland. He was the prospective possessor of three immense estates—being the heir of the first, betrothed to the heiress of the second, and co-heir with her to the third extensive plantation. He had just concluded a brilliant collegiate course with distinguished honor; he was soon to return South, to enter upon his patrimony, and claim the hand of his affianced bride, before he set forth upon his European travels. And this was his valedictory entertainment, given to his classmates. For him, indeed—

"Filled was life's goblet to the brim"!

No wonder those fine strong eyes danced with anticipation as he shook hands right and left. He was, up to this time, a frank, thoughtless, joyous, extravagant fellow—selfish because he knew nothing of sorrow, and wasteful because he knew nothing of want. Affluent in youth, health, and love—affluent in wealth, honor, and homage. He, "the heir of all the ages" past of thought and toil had entered upon his intellectual inheritance with great eclat; but as yet not one mite had he added to the stores not one thought had he bestowed upon the great subject that now engross all earnest minds. He stood upon the threshold of the past, indeed, and his face was set forward toward the future. Why should he trouble himself? The bounteous future was advancing to him, smiling, and laden with all the riches of life and time.

But he stood, receiving the adieus of his young friends. At last, they were all gone, except Lauderdale, his chum, who was passing some days with him, as his guest, at the Minerva House.

"You are an enviable dog, Sutherland," exclaimed the latter, clapping him sharply upon the shoulder. "By Jove, it is enough to make a poor man like me dissatisfied with his lot, or the present arrangements of society. Just contrast our positions! Here are you, at one-and-twenty years of age, entirely free from all toil and care for the remainder of your life. You will now return to a sumptuous Southern home, on a magnificent estate, where troops of friends wait to welcome you, and troops of slaves attend to serve you, and where your bride, the very pearl of beauty, dreams of and languishes for your presence; and, above all—where, lying perdue at your service, is a plenty of the root of all evil. While I—well, I shall just plod on in the old way, teaching school one half the year to pay my college expenses for the other, until I find myself in some lawyer's shop, with no more comfort or convenience in my life than can be enjoyed between my little back-chamber, up four pair of stairs in a cheap boarding-house, and the straight-backed chair and high-topped desk of the law shop; perhaps I shall get private tutor, and find myself teaching the names of the keys of knowledge to young Mark and his brothers. Oh!——"

"Ha! ha! ha! ha!" laughed Sutherland.

"Oh, you'll patronize me, rather! You'll be kind to me; for you'll say to yourself and friends, 'He was a college friend of mine, poor fellow.' I fancy I hear and see you saying it now, with that careless, cordial, jolly condescension of yours."

"Your trouble is all before you!"

"Trouble? Oh, my dear boy, that is a word without a meaning! Trouble? What is trouble? If this world in itself is not 'good,' as the Creator pronounced it to be in the beginning, by all the rules of comparison, how can any other world be said to be better?"

"Well, I believe in the better world as much as they do; but, look you, the pleasantest notion I have of heaven is in being—being——"

"Oh, don't let it go any further—as good as this world, and only better as far as it endures longer. Don't force your nature in an opposite direction to which it tends, therefore! Enter life, and take possession!"

"Humph! thank you! This is to say, 'follow my attractions,' and if they 'attract' me to lead an idle life, and live upon other people, why, so much the better—they are my attractions and if they 'attract' me to pick my host's pocket, or run away with his daughter, it is the same thing by the same law."

"Ha! ha! ha! Oh, certainly remembering that your host might experience an attraction to blow your brains out."

"Ha! ha! ha! even I! Well, that is a stretch of possibility, indeed. Even I, humph! Mais a nos moutons. Will you come home with me? Do come and be my guest a eternite—at until you win some rich Mississippi beauty. Woo beauty, not Blackstone, for a fortune. You have so much more genius for the first than for the last, my fine fellow."

"I do not see it at all. There are several links wanting in that chain of reasoning. But, apropos of beauty, love and marriage. Tell me something more of Miss Sutherland, your bell fiances."

"India! listen, you." And he took Lauderdale's arm, and turned to walk up and down the room for a confidential chat. "Listen, you! I named her last now over the wine. I regret to have done so. Would it were undone! But so it is; in some moment of excitement a word passes our lips, and it is unrecallable forever. She is so sacred to my heart, so divine to my soul! I often wonder if Helen of Argos were half as beautiful as she—my India."

"What a strange, charming name that is for a woman!"

"Is it not? But, rich, luxurious, and gorgeous, in its associations, too—(and that is why it was given to her) it suits her. She is India. Her mother was like her—a beautiful, passionate Havanienne, rich in genius, poetry, song—luxuriating in the beautiful creations of others, yet far too indolent to create. More than all, she lost herself amid the oriental elysiums of Moore, and thence she named her only daughter Hinda. And as the maiden budded and bloomed into womanhood—well, yes, I believe, after all, it was I who softened down the name to India. It has the same derivation, it is the same name, in fact. Oh! and it suits her."

"Describe your nonpareil to me."

"I cannot. By my soul's idolatry, I cannot. The best of beauty — the charm, the soul, the divine of beauty — can never be described or painted."

"Humph! is she fair?"

"No—yet radiant."

"Dark?"

"No—yet shadowy."

"Is she tall?"

"No."

"Short?"

"No, no; nonsense!"

"What, neither tall nor short? Perhaps she is of medium height?"

"I do not know. I cannot tell, indeed. But oh! she is beautiful—she is glorious!"

"What is the color of her eyes?"

"Oh! what is the color of love, or joy, or heaven? for as soon could I tell you the color of these as of her witching eyes. I only know they have light, softly thrilling all the chords of life, like music; and shadows, calming my spirit, like silence."

"Well, I admit the hue of beautiful eyes to be a mysterious point; but hair, now, is a little more certain in that respect. Tell me the hue of your lady's tresses."

"I cannot. I only know they are rich, warm, and lustrous."

"Oh! here is Flamingo. Come, Flame, and tell me what is the color of your young master' hair."

Flamingo was a character in his way; a handsome, bright mulatto, with quite a "wealth" of bushy black silky hair and whiskers. Flamingo stood for a moment in a quandry.

"Oh, come now. Can't you tell us the color of the lady's hair?"

"De color o' Miss India's hair, sir—yes, sir—it's—it's—'bout de color o' 'lasses taffy, when you're 'bout half done pullin' of it, an' it's shining."

"Molasses taffy! Out, you wretch! It is auburn-hued, Lauderdale—amber-hued, you dog; the rich, warm lustrous hue of amber. To think I could not find a comparison in all nature precious enough for those precious tresses, and he should compare them to molasses taffy!" exclaimed Sutherland, in disgust, while Lauderdale laughed aloud, and Flamingo vanished into the adjoining chamber, where he turned on the gas, and busied himself in making the apartment comfortable for the night.

Both young men were about to retire, when Sutherland again clasped the hand of his friend and said: "But you have not yet told me whether you will accompany me home; you know how happy I should be to have you."

"And you know what I have told you before, my dear Sutherland, that I must go to New York for the anniversary week. And by the way, my dear Damon, why cannot you stop a few days before you go South, and attend some of these meetings?"

"Me! Heavens! You shock me! You deprive me of words—of breath! I a Mississippian! Why, look you; if I were to attend one of those meetings, and it should be known in my neighborhood, my friends would turn me off, my uncles disinherit me, and my father rise from his grave to reproach me. Sir, my friends and relatives are 'of the most straitest sect of the Pharisees!'"

"And do you share their opinions?"

"Opinions? Opinions, my dear fellow! I have no opinions."

"Levity! Oh, Mark, how you sin against your own fine mind!"

"Oh! come, come, come, no more of this. Sir, praise is very flat, except from the fair sex."

"Ah! I see you are hopelessly flighty to-night. Good-night."

"Good-night. Stay; you will go with me?"

"No; unless you first accompany me to New York, and remain through the anniversary week, and attend the meetings."

"And hear myself traduced, slandered, abused, cursed! A pleasant invitation—thank you."

"And get yourself disabused of many things. See here, Mark, my proposition is perfectly fair and reasonable, and has a meaning in it. You invite me to the South, and laughingly promise that an actual acquaintance with the patriarchal system shall cool what you call my fever; and that a Southern bride with two hundred negroes shall completely cure it. I am open to conviction. I am willing to try it—to examine the 'peculiar institution' with the utmost impartiality. Both of us, it seems, have heard but one side of this great question. I therefore consent to go with you to the South, and spend weeks on a cotton plantation, only on condition that you accompany me to New York, and attend the anniversary meetings. In a word, I will see your side of the question if you will hear ours."

"I'll do it," exclaimed Sutherland, laughing. "I'll go, nor have I any doubt or fear as to the result."

CHAPTER II.

The sun shines on no more beautiful and entrancing region than the vale of the Belle River. It is the Elysium of the Sunny South, reposing between the rich alluvial lands of the Mississippi and the fragrant pine forests of the Pascagoula. Between the swelling hills, or rather waves of verdure, flow crystal streams towards the bosom of the Belle. These lovely hills are rapped with groves of the most beautiful and odoriferous of the Southern flowering trees. These charming streams are shaded with the most fragrant and delightful of the flowering shrubs and vines. Birds of the most brilliant plumage and enchanting melody fill all the summer groves, at early morn and eve, with their perfect music. Flowers of countless varieties, and most beautiful forms and hues, laden all the air with their ambrosial perfume.

If in this garden—this conservatory of Nature—there is one spot more favored than all the rest, it is "Cashmere," the beautiful seat of Clement Sutherland.

The brothers Sutherland emigrated from the Old Dominion, and settled on the Belle River, in those palmy days of cotton planting, when every planter seemed a very Midas, turning all he touched to gold. They had heard that the common annual profits of the cotton crops were from ten to eighty thousand dollars, and they had sold their tobacco plantation on the Potomac, and emigrated to the valley of the Belle. The spot selected by the brothers was that Eden of the valley where the Belle River turns with a serpentine bend in the form of an S, with an additional curve, shaping the land into two round points to the west and one—the largest and loveliest—the east. The east point had been taken up by Clement Sutherland, the eldest of the brothers, and the west points by the two others

(To be continued.)

Exhausting For Everyone.

A case in which Sir Edward Clarke, the eminent barrister, was employed came up for a hearing late in the afternoon, says the Tatler, and Sir Edward asked the judge to allow it to stand over until the following day.

"I have been speaking all day in another court," he said, "and I am rather exhausted."

His request was granted.

The clerk called the next case, and immediately a young barrister rose who, for some reason of his own, did not want the case to be tried at that time. He also requested that his case might be postponed.

"Why?" asked the judge coldly.

"May it please your lordship," the barrister replied, "I, too, am in a state of exhaustion, for I have been listening the whole day to Sir Edward Clarke."

A Horse Story.

One of the British horses is a candidate for the Victoria Cross, writes a lance-corporal at the front to his schoolmaster at Leicester. "It is a true story of animal devotion," he adds. "The troops were charging at the time, and as one rider fell from his horse wounded the animal picked him up with his mouth by his clothing and carried him away to safety."

The three greatest beer-drinking countries are the United Kingdom, Germany, and Denmark, in the order named.

Corporals in the Life Guards used to be commissioned officers, ranking with the senior lieutenant of other regiments.

Great Britain, Russia and France are, in the order named, the three countries with the greatest area of provinces and dependencies.

Here is the entire list of wedding anniversaries: 1st anniversary, iron; 5th, wooden; 10th, tin; 15th, crystal; 20th, china; 25th, silver; 30th, cotton; 35th, linen; 40th, woollen, 45th, silk; 50th, golden; 75th, diamond.

The Farm

Types of Farm Wells.

The farm well, especially a shallow dug well, should be located somewhat above the barns, buildings yards and stock pens, or at least in such a position that the surface drainage from all possible sources of animal and vegetable contamination is away from the well. The location should also be as far removed from these sources as convenience will permit, writes Mr. R. W. Trullinger.

"Properly to safeguard wells against outside contamination, first, all sources of contamination should be removed as far as possible. If local conditions and prices will permit, it is a good idea to provide impervious floors with watertight drains for farm buildings and stock pens. Under the same conditions concrete manure pits might well be provided not only to prevent the liquid manure from polluting the neighboring soil, but to save the manure. No garbage, manure or rubbish should be dumped into sinks or basins in the immediate neighborhood and these should be fenced off and kept free from polluting matter. The house should be provided with some method of sewage disposal, while slops and garbage from the kitchen should be put into tightly covered garbage cans and disposed of by burying in the fields, burning or feeding to pigs. The use of privy vaults and leaching or overflowing cesspools should be absolutely avoided, since they are likely to be sources of the worst contamination. Every farmer should become acquainted with the various types of wells and the best methods of protection, and the well should be so protected as to exclude filth from all those sources of contamination which it has been impossible to remove or have been overlooked.

In the selection, location and sinking of a well, it is always a good idea to consider permanence in addition to safety. This will depend on the kind of well used, and one should be acquainted with all types and methods of sinking. The well should penetrate to levels below that of the ground-water surface in the dryest seasons.

Dug wells are generally circular excavations three to six feet in diameter. They are adapted to localities where the water is near the surface especially where it occurs in clayey material and requires extensive space for its conservation.

Bored wells are wells bored with various types of augurs from two inches to three feet in diameter, rotated or lifted by hand or horsepower. They are usually lined with cement or tile sections with cemented joints, and often with iron tubing. They are adapted to localities where the water is at medium depths and to materials similar to those in which open wells are sunk. Punched wells are small hole usually less than six inches in di er sunk by hand or horsepower by dropping a steel cylinder slit at the side so as to haul and, lift material by its spring. They are adapted to soils in which water occurs within 50 feet of the surface, but not at much greater depths. These wells should be lined with tile, iron tubing or sheetiron casing. Driven wells are sunk by driving downward small iron tubes, usually 1¼ to 4 inches in diameter and provided with point and screen. They are especially adapted for use in sand and similar porous materials carrying considerable water at slight depths and are particularly desirable where the upper soil is likely to be polluted.

Police licences are issued to women cab-drivers in Paris.

More than half a Century of Quality is behind every package of

BENSON'S Corn Starch

Always order by the name BENSON'S in order to get what you want

Practically every grocer in Canada has BENSON'S.

EPIDEMIC OF TYPHOID.

Fever is Raging Among Troops and Civilians in Asia Minor.

An epidemic of typhoid fever is raging among the troops and civilian population of Asia Minor, according to reports from Constantinople. Seventy-five physicians already have succumbed to the disease.

There is imminent danger that the Constantinople water works system will be compelled to suspend operations because of a shortage of coal and the output of flour mills has been restricted for the same reason, with the result that there is an insufficient supply of bread. The situation is said to be so serious that many German families are leaving the Turkish capital.

Honest Confession.

Marjorie—Everybody seems to notice whether you go to church.

Madge—Yes, dear, that's the only reason I go.

Soft-looking and delicate clouds foretell fine weather, with moderate breezes; hard-edged clouds foretell wind; rulled or ragged clouds, strong wind. A bright yellow sky at sunset also presages wind, while a pale yellow sky forecasts wet weather.

The UNIVERSAL
Price Delivered Anywhere in Canada
$23.75

This Bicycle is positively Guaranteed. It is absolutely the best value on the Canadian market, fitted with powerful coaster brake, wood rims, beautifully enamelled, strong mudguards, tool bag and tools, guaranteed — interchangable tires. Write for our handsome FREE Catalogue. Our low prices will stagger the most sceptical purchasers. Get our agents' proposition. Remember we pay everything. Our goods are delivered to your door for the same price you see in the Catalogue.

THE DOMINION MAIL CO.,
(Dept. 30)
1440 St. Lawrence Blvd., Montreal Que.

TRAINING DISTEMPER

Ever hear of this? Yes, of course you did, but under a different name. You have seen it in cases where the horse was "overtrained," worked a little too fast and regular. The nervous system gets the shock after the voluntary muscular system has been taxed too heavily. The trouble starts in the mucous surfaces, and the digestive apparatus, and it must then be impaired. He begins to cough when the glands are materially affected.

"SPOHN'S"

Is your true salvation. It restores the appetite and normal functions of the whole system. The cure in such cases is remarkably rapid and sure for recovery when you use this remedy according to instructions with each bottle. All Wholesale Drug Houses. Sold by all druggists, horse goods houses, or express prepaid by manufacturers.

SPOHN MEDICAL CO., Chemists and Bacteriologists, Goshen, Ind., U.S.A.

ST. VITUS DANCE IN YOUNG CHILDREN

Can Only Be Cured by Enriching the Blood and Toning Up the Blood.

One of the commonest forms of nervous trouble that afflicts young children is St. Vitus dance. This is because of the great demand made on the body by growth and development, together with the added strain caused by study. It is when these demands become so great that they impoverish the blood, and the nerves fail to receive their full supply of nourishment that St. Vitus dance develops. The remarkable success of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in curing St. Vitus dance should lead parents to give this great blood-building medicine to their children at the first signs of the approach of the trouble. Pallor, listlessness, inattention, restlessness and irritability are all symptoms which early show that the blood and the nerves are failing to meet the demand upon them. Here is proof of the great value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in cases of this kind. Mrs. Alfred Sochner, R.R. No. 8, Dunnville, Ont., says: "Our ten-year-old daughter, Violet, suffered very severely from St. Vitus dance. The trouble came on so gradually that we were not alarmed until it affected her legs and arms, which would twitch and jerk to such an extent that she could scarcely walk and could not hold anything in her hands steadily. She suffered for about five months before we began giving her Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, but she had not taken these long before we found that they were the right medicine, and after she had taken six boxes she had fully recovered her former health and strength. I can strongly recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to every parent having a child suffering from St. Vitus dance or any form of nervousness."

In troubles of this kind no other medicine has met with such success as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. You can get these Pills through any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

AUSTRALIAN GOLD MINES.

Yield Has Been Gradually Declining For Twelve Years.

The Australian gold mines, for a time among the most productive in the world, appear to be giving out. The yield has been gradually declining for twelve years, and that of 1914, according to reports to the comptroller of the currency, was the lowest since 1896, amounting to only 42,300,000, as against $79,300,000 in 1903. The yield in the state of Victoria in 1914 was the smallest since 1851.

The Australian gold yield, in fine ounces, has been as follows in the last three years: 2,068,910 in 1914, 2,205,061 in 1913, 2,321,343 in 1912. The highwater mark was in 1903—3,827,064 ounces.

The state of Victoria has given the world, since her mines were opened in 1851, more than 1,455,618,000 of gold. Her largest production in a year was in 1856—3,053,744 ounces.

The state of Western Australia has been the premier Australian gold-bearer since the beginning of the present century, having supplied in the last fifteen years 23,000,000 ounces, as against 9,000,000 by Victoria. The third largest gold-producing state in Australia is Queensland.

Where He Was Going.

A sergeant standing at a window in the barracks saw a private pass in full-dress uniform, with a bucket in his hand in the act of fetching water from the pump.

Sergeant: "Where are you going?"

Private: "To fetch some water, sir."

Sergeant: "Not in those trousers, surely?"

Private: "No, sir; in the bucket."

A GOOD THING

When It Comes Along Don't Let It Get Away From You.

"I really feel that it is hardly possible to say too much in favor of Grape-Nuts as a health food," writes a lady.

"For 9 or 10 years I had suffered from indigestion and chronic constipation, caused by the continued use of coffee and rich, heavy foods. My ailments made my life so wretched that I was eager to try anything that held out a promise of help. And that is how I happened to buy a package of Grape-Nuts food last spring.

"That ended my experiments. For in Grape-Nuts I found exactly what I wanted and needed. From the day I began to use it I noticed an improvement, and in a very few weeks I found my health was being restored.

"My digestive apparatus now works perfectly, and chronic constipation has been entirely relieved. I have gained in weight materially, and life is a very pleasant thing to me so long as I use Grape-Nuts once or twice a day. I have found by experiment that if I leave it off for a few days my health suffers.

"A physician in our town has great success in treating stomach troubles, and the secret of it is that he puts his patient on Grape-Nuts food—it always brings back the power of digestion."

Name given by Canadian Postum Co., Windsor, Ont. Read, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a Reason."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

Col. S. L. Barry, D.S.O.

Though the name of Colonel Barry is not one with which the public are very familiar, he occupies a position of peculiar importance at headquarters. He is the Prince of Wales' Equerry at the front, to which position he was appointed lately by General French. An old and intimate friend of the British Commander-in-Chief, Colonel Barry served with the 10th Hussars in the Boer War, when he gained his D.S.O. He stands in high favor with the King, is very well off, is as good a sportsman as he is a soldier, and is personally one of the most popular members of the general staff. The Prince has the greatest regard for his Equerry, and the friendship that exists between them is of the peculiar kind that is probably never found except between men who have been soldiering together on active service.

Rifles of the Armies.

Each army now fighting in Europe uses a rifle different from that used by each of the others. The Russians have the longest rifle, the French the longest bayonet, while the Austrians use the heaviest bullet. The rifles with the largest calibres are those of the French and the Austrians. The German rifle attains the greatest muzzle velocity. The British have the shortest rifle, but with the bayonet added the weapon is longer than the rifle and bayonet of the Belgians and Austrians.

WHEN BABY IS ILL

When he is troubled with constipation, indigestion, vomiting or worms, give him Baby's Own Tablets. They sweeten the stomach, regulate the bowels and cure all these troubles simply because they banish the cause. Concerning them Mrs. Philias Duval, St. Leonard, Que., writes: "We are well satisfied with Baby's Own Tablets, which we have used for our baby when suffering from constipation and vomiting." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

The Same Thing.

"Say, ma, have you noticed how fat the rat has grown lately."

"No; but I've noticed how scarce the mice are."

I was cured of Bronchitis and Asthma by MINARD'S LINIMENT.
MRS. A. LIVINGSTON.
Lot 5, P.E.I.

I was cured of a severe attack of Rheumatism by MINARD'S LINIMENT.
JOHN MADER.
Mahone Bay.

I was cured of a severely sprained leg by MINARD'S LINIMENT.
JOSHUA A. WYNACHT.
Bridgewater.

FREIGHT SERVICE TO RUSSIA

C.P.R. Will Represent the Russian Government.

The traffic arrangement by which the C.P.R. will represent the Russian Government in providing for through freight services from the Dominion to Russia by the Trans-Siberian Railway and the Russian Volunteer Fleet, which is an auxiliary of the railway, is an amplification of the connection which the company has sustained with the Trans-Siberian Railway, which is a state-owned system. The Company has offices in Moscow and Petrograd in which it does business, the only railway on this continent to have such offices in Russia. If it would seem strange that the Company should do business in either city, it need only be mentioned that the C.P.R. is the only railway in America which is a member of the Round the World Conference of which the executive of the Trans-Siberian Railway is a chief element. The Canadian Pacific, in its round-the-world tours, uses, of course, the Trans-Siberian Railway line, which the average Russian always calls the "Transcontinental" line—this being the notion the system conveys to his mind. On this line there are three types of engine the wood, oil and coal using engine. The wood engine is a special type, which is not built at all on this continent, but it serves the purpose in the physical circumstances on the system, which is differentiated in several ways from those on this continent.

DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS
FOR ALL KIDNEY DISEASES
CURES RHEUMATISM BRIGHT'S DISEASE BACKACHE DIABETES
NUMBER 23 THE PRESCRIPTION

Turkey's Chain of Spies.

Turkey boasts of more spies to the square mile than any other country, as anyone who has been to Turkey will agree. The peculiar thing about these spies is that they themselves cannot be trusted, so that a regular chain of spies is the result. There are spies, as spy upon the spies. The Government officials have their own spies to watch other people; but even the great authorities themselves are already being spied upon.

What is more, the method of spying is quite open, for the spies will stand by wherever two or three foreigners are gathered together, and listen to the conversation. Visitors to Turkey naturally get worried over such attentions, especially when it might be their bad luck to be followed about for weeks or months.

It is the "uninitiated" visitor who usually receives the most attention, since he or she will carry on conversation in a quiet undertone. The person who knows Turkey converses in a loud tone for all and sundry—the spies especially—to hear that he is only engaged in pleasure or legitimate business. Politics are naturally given a back seat to avoid unnecessary trouble.

No More Corns
Cure Guaranteed
Never known to fail; acts without pain in 24 hours. Is soothing, healing; takes the sting right out. No remedy so quick, safe and sure as Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor. Sold everywhere—25c. per bottle.

When a Woman Suffers With Chronic Backache

There is Trouble Ahead.

Constantly on their feet, attending to the wants of a large and exacting family, women often break down with nervous exhaustion.

In the stores, factories, and on a farm are weak, ailing women, dragged down with torturing backache and bearing down pains.

Such suffering isn't natural, but it's dangerous, because due to diseased kidneys.

The dizziness, insomnia, deranged menses and other symptoms of kidney complaint can't cure themselves, they require the assistance of Dr. Hamilton's Pills which go direct to the seat of the trouble.

To give vitality and power to the kidneys, to lend aid to the bladder and liver, to free the blood of poisons, probably there is no remedy so successful as Dr. Hamilton's Pills. For all womanly irregularities their merit is well known.

Because of their mild, soothing, and healing effect, Dr. Hamilton's Pills are safe, and are recommended for girls and women of all ages 25 cents per box at all dealers. Refuse any substitute for Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butternut.

Tired of Him.

He—I always pay as I go.

She — (yawning) — I don't think you'll ever become bankrupt.

Ask for Minard's and take no other.

Just That.

Johnny—What is an expert, pa?

Pa—A fellow who tells others how to do the things he can't do himself.

Sore Eyes
Granulated Eyelids, Eyes inflamed by exposure to Sun, Dust and Wind quickly relieved by Murine Eye Remedy. No Smarting, just Eye Comfort. At Your Druggist's 50c per Bottle. Murine Eye Salve in Tubes 25c. For Book of the Eye free ask Druggists or Murine Eye Remedy Co., Chicago

The Only Way.

Crawford—Do you think it right to quarrel with one's wife over the telephone?

Crabshaw—That's the only time to do it. You can shut her off before she can get in the last word.

Minard's Liniment used by Physicians.

36TH ANNUAL MEETING OF THE HIGH COURT CANADIAN ORDER OF FORESTERS

Over Five Hundred Delegates in Attendance.

The 36th Annual Meeting of the Canadian Order of Foresters convened on Tuesday afternoon, the 15th of June, in the City of St. Catharines, at 2 p.m. Delegates were in attendance from all parts of the Dominion, every province being represented. The High Court meets in this city for the first time since its inception.

The following officers of High Court were present at the opening session: J. A. Stewart, High Chief Ranger, Perth, Ont.; J. A. A. Brodeur, High Vice-Chief Ranger, Montreal, Que.; Alf. P. van Someren, High Secretary, Brantford, Ont.; Robert Elliott, High Treasurer, Brantford, Ont.; Dr. U. M. Stanley, Chairman of the Medical Board, Brantford, Ont.; W. G. Strong, Superintendent of Organization, Brantford, Ont.; W. L. Roberts, First High Auditor, Brantford, Ont., and A. Shultis, Second High Auditor, Brantford, Ont., and E. J. Stevenson, Toronto, Ont.; R. T. Kemp, Listowel, Ont.; A. R. Galpin, London, Ont.; F. H. Davidson, Winnipeg, Man.; A. R. Coffin, Truro, N.S., members of the Executive Committee.

In addition to the above, A. L. Jones, Dist. H. C. R., Brandon, Man.; A. K. Berry, Past Dist. H. C. R., Holland, Man., and D. E. McKinnon, Dist. High Secretary, Winnipeg, Man., representatives from the District High Court for Manitoba, were present.

The Annual Reports of the various officers of this Order are again of a very satisfactory nature, showing that the steady progress which has been its experience since its inception in 1879, was continued in the year 1914, which is the period covered by these reports.

This Order confines its business entirely to the Dominion of Canada. In all its departments, in spite of the adverse general conditions which have been experienced in Canada, uniform progress is demonstrated.

The increase in the insurance funds during the year amounted to $376,-206.94, this increase being the second largest in the Order's experience, and only some $5,000.00 less than the largest increase in any one year, which occurred in 1912. The standing of this fund at the end of the year, after the payment of 599 death claims, amounting to $213,890.12, showed funds on hand of $4,740,368.01; the amount at the present time being $4,884,441.13. The yearly revenue derived from the investments of the Order now constitute a very substantial amount of the annual income. Interest earned on investments of insurance funds during 1914 amounted to $223,761.64, and paid 26.44 per cent. of the total death claims on the Order.

In respect to the matter of investments, it is interesting to know that the Order confines the investment of its funds to the purchasing of municipal and school debentures of the Dominion of Canada. During the last two years, with an exceptional market in such direction, from the investor's point of view, the Executive Committee has been able to take very extensive advantage of the situation.

The Sick and Funeral Benefit Fund shows a larger net increase than that experienced in any previous year in the Order's history, the increase for the year being $55,071.58. Interest earned on investments of Sick and Funeral Benefit Funds (these investments being of a similar nature to those made of the Insurance Funds), amounted to $18,723.10, and after the payment of 7,319 sick and funeral benefit claims, amounting to $188,-430.35, the amount standing at the credit of this fund was $403,284.77, the same fund at the present time standing at $469,485.63.

The General Fund is also in a satisfactory condition. Many special charges, incident to the year, including donations to National and Patriotic Funds, and the arrangement for carrying members on overseas service, hereafter referred to, have been arranged as anticipated without any inconvenience to this fund.

In respect to membership also substantial progress was made, the membership at the end of the year 1914 standing at 21,557.

Besides the ordinary benefits from its Life Insurance and Sick and Funeral Benefit Departments, special provision is made, under the constitution of the Order, for assistance to those of its members enlisting from tubercular trouble of any kind. A special grant is made extending over a period of six months, with a view to assisting to defray the cost of treatment in any of a number of sanitaria in Canada, making a specialty of such cases, and the membership is urged to take advantage of such treatment in the incipient stages of the malady.

It is gratifying to note after a perusal of the reports of all the officers, the far-reaching benefits that are being derived by the membership in the various directions in which this Society endeavors to be of assistance to the individuals composing same. Since 1879, about ten and a half millions of dollars have been paid out in benefits by this Society, and, in fact, the whole record of the Order, as submitted in these reports, is well worth the perusal of those who perhaps have been skeptical regarding the permanency and stability of fraternal insurance concerns. These reports furnish evidence of careful management in the conduct of the Society's affairs, and reflect credit on its administration.

A point of general interest, as indicating proper selection of risks, is the death rate. This for 1914 was 6.84 in the thousand, and the average death rate since the inception of the Order, over a period of nearly 36 years, is 10.11 per thousand.

In looking into the report of the Superintendent of Organization, we find he has been able to report the institution of forty-two (42) new Courts demonstrating that the Order continues to establish agencies as new fields for the prosecution of its business open up. Particular attention is evidently being paid to establishment of Subordinate Courts only in such places as offer a reasonable prospect of permanency.

The Order has pursued a very liberal policy in respect to those in the membership who have volunteered, or enlisted, for overseas service. Not only is the insurance in such cases kept in force at the ordinary rates, of those who were in membership at the date of declaration of war by England but the Insurance and Sick and Funeral Benefit Assessments for all such members are being paid by High Court out of the General or Expense Fund of the Order. New business involving war risks has of necessity to be declined, and is the only safe course for the Order, but the arrangement as made relieves the members of older standing from the necessity of payment by them of their ordinary assessments, and yet provides for the proper premium being collected and credited to the Insurance, and Sick and Funeral Benefit Funds of the Order, in the usual way.

As usual on such occasions, a very considerable amount of business awaits the attention of the delegates and it is expected that the sessions will probably occupy their attention till the 18th instant.

FIRST TORPEDOES USED.

Whitehead Adopted Idea of Austrian, and Then Navy Used It.

The first navy to use torpedoes was the Austrian. Although the actual inventor of the modern weapon, Robert Whitehead, was an Englishman, he originally got the idea from an officer in the Austrian navy. The Austrian's idea was to construct an ordinary sort of clockwork boat, and render it dangerous by loading the front of the vessel with a charge of some explosive. He mentioned the idea to Whitehead, who was then living in Austria, and he, seeing the vast possibilities of the idea, at once set to work to improve it. At the end of two years or so he had produced a rough sort of torpedo, on the lines of the modern one. This first weapon did not work properly, and after running a little distance, sank. At last, however, workable ones were produced, and Whitehead sold them to the Austrian navy. Since then, of course, other navies have adopted the torpedo, and his name has become famous.

In Russia the standard as regards height for military service begins at 5ft. for infantry and 5ft. 3in. for cavalry.

Minard's Liniment Lumberman's Friend

Pays for Itself In Seven Days!

Mixing Concrete with this 1915 Model HAND MIXER saves you time, labor and money. You get a better mix with less cement. Write for catalogues.
WETTLAUFER BROS.,
Improved Concrete Machinery.
Dept. W. Spadina Ave., Toronto, Ontario

HOME STUDY
Arts Courses only.
SUMMER SCHOOL
JULY and AUGUST
QUEEN'S UNIVERSITY
KINGSTON, ONTARIO
ARTS EDUCATION MEDICINE
SCHOOL OF MINING
MINING
CHEMICAL MECHANICAL
CIVIL ELECTRICAL ENGINEERING
GEO. Y. CHOWN, Registrar

"Overstern" V Bottom Motor Boat $55.00
Freight Prepaid to any Railway Station in Ontario. Length 18 Ft., Beam 3 Ft. 9 In., Depth 1 Ft. 6 In. ANY MOTOR FITS.
Specification No 28 giving engine prices on request. Get our quotations on—"The Penetang Line" Commercial and Pleasure Launches, Row boats and Canoes.
THE GIDLEY BOAT CO., LIMITED, PENETANG, CAN.

THE STOVE THAT HELPS YOU HURRY
WITH a NEW PERFECTION Oil Cookstove you don't have to wait for the fire to come up. Just scratch a match—the NEW PERFECTION lights instantly, like a gas stove. Your meal is prepared and on the table in no time.
A NEW PERFECTION in your kitchen means cool, comfortable cooking all summer. Made in 1, 2, 3 and 4 burner sizes. At hardware and department stores everywhere. If your dealer cannot supply you, write us direct.
ROYALITE OIL GIVES BEST RESULTS
NEW PERFECTION OIL COOK STOVES
"NOW SERVING 2,000,000 HOMES"
THE IMPERIAL OIL COMPANY Limited
BRANCHES IN ALL CITIES
Made in Canada

WEAR FLEET FOOT SHOES for every SPORT and RECREATION
Worn by every member of the family
SOLD BY ALL GOOD SHOE DEALERS

It is claimed that there are seven of Shakespeare's autographs in existence.

Keep Minard's Liniment in the house.

King George sees his physician every day.

FARMS FOR RENT.

IF LOOKING FOR A FARM, CONSULT me. I have over Two Hundred on my list, located in the best sections of Ontario. All sizes. D. W. Dawson, Brampton.

NEWSPAPERS FOR SALE.

PROFIT-MAKING NEWS AND JOB Offices for sale in good Ontario towns. The most useful and interesting of all businesses. Full information on application to Wilson Publishing Company, Limited, Toronto.

MISCELLANEOUS.

CANCER, TUMORS, LUMPS ETC. Internal and external, cured without pain by our home treatment. Write us before too late. Dr. Belliveau Medical Co., Limited, Collingwood, Ont.

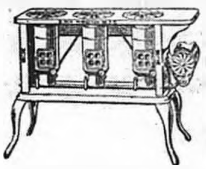
KERMATH Marine Engines
"America's Standard 4 Cycle Marine Motor"
Sizes 2 to 60 H.P. Write for Catalog
KERMATH MFG. CO. 4700 STENTON AVE. PHILADELPHIA, PA.

CUTTEN & FOSTER
AUTO AND BOAT TOPS
Ford owners write for our catalogue.
SEARS-CROSS
Speedometer Station.
179 Queen Street West,
TORONTO, - ONT.

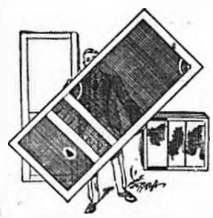
SINCLAIR'S

The Hardware Store of Better Values

Something new in Oil Cook Stoves. Come in and inspect this new stove.



This Stove Burns



Oil or Gasoline

"New Perfection" Oil Cook Stoves

2 Burner $8, 3-Burner $11
Ovens $2.50 and $3.00

The Fly he is naughty beast,
He ought to die to any the least.

Screen Doors and Windows

Price of DOORS
$1.25, $1.50, $1.90, $2.25, $2.50
Complete

WINDOWS at 15c, 25c, 30c, 35c, 40c and 60c

A Screen for every window

If you want to be healthy and wise
Don't forget to swat the flies.

Both Sinclair's Hardware Phones

Complete the Home Furnishings by buying a Piano.

BELL PIANOS

Known in musical circles as the highest type of musical instruments will satisfy your every need in music.

To buy a BELL stamps you as a judge of good things.

A Number of Second-hand Organs for Sale
A good time to buy is right now.

PETER McKINNON, Agt., Paisley
can tell you all about them

The City Bakery

Is always ready to supply your needs. Why worry and melt over a hot fire? We are here to do your Baking for you. Let us try.

Other than baking we try to keep a fresh supply of Greens and Fruit on hand—as well as a full stock of Fresh Groceries.

We would appreciate it if the public would make their purchases early on Thursdays as it is impossible for us to maintain a strict observance of the Thursday half-holiday on account of our Ice Cream Parlor which will be open every Thursday evening.

We need your trade. Butter and Eggs for Cash or Trade. Dutch Set Onions for sale.

Bruce and Bell 'Phones

F. S. McLACHLAN

CANTIRE

Alfalfa cutting has commenced.

A D McKay and J B McPherson have been cutting wood for Cantire farmers the last week.

Our popular teacher, Miss Oswald, has been engaged by the school board for another term.

Miss Marjory Pickard of Chesley is the guest of her friend, Miss Marguerite McMillan.

Mr and Mrs Angus Taylor motored to Kilsyth and Owen Sound and visited friends on Saturday last.

Miss Mary Wilson, of Chesley, was a visitor at the home of her aunt, Mrs W H Blue.

The bonus of 10 cents a rod given by the Council for all wire fences erected along the public road has given a stimulus to building. Blackburn Bros have nearly two miles under construction. No doubt there will be some kickers on nomination day, but like as not some of them would be last to go out and open a blocked road in the winter time. With wire fence the road will have a chance of being at least passable.

Statute labor has been completed for another year. The pathmaster sees still a lot that should have been done. With automobile traffic all the time increasing and the supply of gravel diminishing it is soon going to be a problem how to keep up the 4th con.

GLAMIS

Mrs Charles McKinnon is leaving Wednesday morning for Saskatchewan, where she expects to spend some months with her daughter Mrs Maber and her son Mr Peter McKinnon.

Miss Bertha Moulton left on Monday night for her home in Port Elgin.

Mrs Kirkton has returned from Holland, where she was spending some weeks.

Mr Wm Grear of Toronto is up visiting his parents here.

Miss Ena McKenzie, teacher on the 2nd, has left for her home in Kincardine.

The Oddfellows will hold their service in the Baptist church on Sunday morning, July 4th, at 11 o'clock.

Mr Jas Hendry has returned from Stoney Creek, and St Marys, where he was visiting his friends.

WILLOW CREEK

Mr Jack Wrightson successfully raised his new barn last Tuesday week under the guidance of framer Joe Wrightson. A good crowd of willing workers were early on the scene, and the work was completed in good time. Geo Snowden and Albert Wrightson called hands. The race was a close one, with the finish slightly in favor of the former. After the work was completed the young people erected a platform in the basement and tripped the light fantastic toe to the strains of the violin until the early hours of the morning.

The Rev Mr Holmes, of the U B College, Huntington, Indiana, conducted services in our church on Sunday night.

Mrs Shewfelt, of the 5th Kincardine, Sundayed at the home of her daughter, Mrs Frank Wright-son.

GILLIES HILL

Friday afternoon was ideal weather for a picnic, and John McDermid's bush was the Mecca to which all Elderslie roads seemed to converge. Coalition government has been adopted by Premier Asquith as a means to bringing the war to a successful issue, and we believe in like manner coalition was a big factor in making this picnic the grand success it was. The spot chosen for the gathering was a very suitable one and as you drove in from the road the view obtained from that high ridge was grand. The eye swept east to the hills of Sullivan, west to the Greenock swamp, while at the edge of the woods as in a cradle between the hills the crowd gathered together. All ages were present from the crowing baby in the carriage, who had come to celebrate his first picnic, to the gray haired grandma and grandpa, who came to renew old acquaintances and rejoice with the young hopefuls who ere many years must take up the responsibilities of life. Well might these old pioneers as they looked upon the throng of new faces that surrounded them and of the changes wrought in their own day, say within themselves "These trembling limbs and this wrinkled brow have indeed seen years and many serious and solemn changes in Elderslie." The young folk enjoyed the swinging to the full, and after an excellent lunch had been partaken of a number of races were run off which were eagerly contested. Baseball and football were going continually throughout the afternoon. All went home in the evening feeling they had had a good afternoon. A number of the workers in the different Sunday schools got their heads together and thought it was advisable to make this an annual event, and accordingly appointed Duncan McKinnon as convener of a committee that will be composed of two representatives from each school who will manage affairs next year.

COMMENTS

All kinds of conveyances were there - bicycles, top buggies, automobiles and the old reliable lumber wagon with the board seat cushioned with a quilt.

The old guard of pioneer men and women who came to the wilds of Elderslie in the early fifties were represented by the patriarch John McDermid, Hugh Mitchell who like King Saul of old is from the shoulder and upward higher than most men and is always a striking figure in a crowd. Patrick O'Hagan although still young who knows more of Skibbereen than any other man. Mrs Hugh McDougald (who came on a visit from Owen Sound), Mrs Peter Reid, Mrs Mal McConachie and Mrs Harris, 12th con.

Some thought a spicy little program would have been enjoyed and in this matter the committee appointed for next year will no doubt report progress.

Goldsmith wrote of the hawthorne bush with seats beneath its shade for talking age and whispering lovers made. Well these may not have been there but for Canadians the broad leafed maple serves just as well and if this was too conspicuous for the latter there were plenty of top buggies near which not a few soon took advantage of.

Rev McEwen of Paisley and Howat of Salem were right in the fun and with councillor Lewis and Sandy Mitchell know just how to manage a marathon.

Children Cry
FOR FLETCHER'S
CASTORIA

PINKERTON

Mr John Thompson of Glamis is working at Garland Bros.'

Mr Ernest Reid attended a picnic at Port Elgin on Monday.

The local branch of the Canadian Order of Foresters marched to the Presbyterian church here on Sunday evening and attended divine service. A large audience listened to a most appropriate and instructive address by Rev Mr Gale.

A new cement sidewalk is being constructed on our street which will connect the western part of the city to the eastern part. This will be a great convenience to the eastern residents, as they formerly had a muddy passage to the business part of the town. Few places of its size can boast of so much pavement.

Preparatory services were held in the Presbyterian church on Friday, conducted by Rev Mr Leslie of Malcolm. Communion services were held in the same church on Sunday morning.

The picnic to Silver Lake was postponed owing to the fact that the grounds were engaged for that day.

Pte Andy Culham, of London Camp, spent Sunday in the vicinity.

Miss Ina Alexander returned home from Guelph on Saturday.

Children Cry
FOR FLETCHER'S
CASTORIA

CARGILL

Mrs and Mrs Mark Cronin of Woodstock, accompanied by Miss Ponsam and Miss Florence Keelan of Mildmay, renewed acquaintances here on Thursday.

Miss Bella Gowanlock from near Walkerton is visiting at the home of Mr Robt Loughleen.

Miss Seiling, who has been milliner in W M Cameron's store for the past season, returned to her home in Mildmay on Saturday.

Mrs John Clancy went to Stratford on Saturday to visit relatives there.

Messrs Loughleen, Hood, Kernan, Balsdon and Brown motored to Deemerton on Sunday to attend the camp meeting there.

Mr Jos Clancy made a business trip to Toronto on Saturday.

Miss Gladys Keeling is spending vacation with her mother in Listowel.

Mr and Mrs Wells of Port Elgin autoed here on Sunday and spent the day with friends here.

A number of our young people attended a garden party in aid of the Bruce County Hospital held at Thos Chisholm's on Tuesday evening.

A number of the members of the Masonic lodge autoed to Kincardine on Sunday to attend special service there.

WALKERTON

Some ten young lads of the town have been summoned to appear in the police court on Tuesday afternoon and explain where they got a keg of beer, around which they are said to have gathered and refreshed themselves near the boat houses on the afternoon of Sunday, June 13th. Altogether too much drinking around town by young boys is said to be going on, and License Inspector White is making an effort to discover where this crowd get their supply, with a view to going after some body higher up.

Confirmation of the death of Private Austin Gransden, who enlisted at Walkerton with the first contingent for the war was received here on Monday in a letter from France from W J (Biscuit) Knowles of Southampton, who states that Gransden belonged to his section, and took ill at the front with pleurisy and died just before the great battle of Ypres. Knowles, who was a personal friend of Gransden states that though Gransden did not fall fighting the foe, yet he died a hero's death with the King's uniform on. Prior to enlisting, Gransden worked at the blacksmithing trade here. He was about 20 years of age and unmarried.

Investigating $2 00 in a marriage license, Thos Kriebart, a local youth, called on Rev Thos Wilson on Tuesday afternoon and brought him to join him in the bonds of matrimony. But the reverend gentleman assuming that Tom had been drinking, declined to undertake the job. Not to be outdone, however, Reinhart hired a horse and decided, it seems, to have the ceremony pulled off in Hanover. Driving up to the house where the girl, whom he intended to make his wife, worked, he was flabbergasted to find she wouldn't at all consider entering the matrimonial field with him. He appears to have hung around so long coaxing her to become his wife that the head of the house phoned for Chief Ferguson to come and take him away. The officer set out for the scene and was making strides towards the house when he met the would-be bridegroom coming down for him. On meeting the chief Tom wanted to know what steps he could take towards compelling the mistress of the house let her mind go and marry him. After persuading Tom to get out of the rig and remain there, the chief decided to drive up and see the girl himself. On arriving on the scene and interviewing her the officer learned that she wouldn't hear of becoming Tom's wife at all, he having apparently got out the license and seen the preacher on the presumption that she loved him and would go on a real honeymoon with him. When the chief notified Tom of the result of his mission the local Lothario is said to have become almost blinded by tears. Although advised by the chief not to return to the house, Tom appears to have found his way back to the place, for about 9 o'clock that evening the officer was again called to the scene and placed the petulant lover under arrest. He was remanded to jail until Saturday morning next at 10 o'clock, when he will be tried on a trespass and disorderly conduct charge, thus causing Tom to appear before a magistrate instead of a preacher as he had intended.—Herald and Times.

CASTORIA

For Infants and Children
In Use For Over 30 Years
Always bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher

COSBEAN—GOWANLOCK

A pretty wedding was celebrated at the home of Mr and Mrs Walter Gowanlock on Wednesday, June 16, when their daughter Jean B., was united in wedlock to Lewis Cobean. The young couple were unattended, the bride being given away by her father. Rev Mr Watt performed the ceremony, while the wedding march was played by Miss Edna Hamilton. The bride was very prettily gowned in embroidered voile and carried a bouquet of white roses. After the congratulations the bridal party, numbering about forty guests, partook of a wedding dinner, after which the evening was spent in games and dancing. There were many splendid presents, which gave evidence of the popularity of the young couple. Mr and Mrs Cobean will take up residence on the groom's farm, Elora road. Best wishes for a happy and prosperous future are being extended them.—Times.

VERY GREAT MISTAKE

A travelling agent who visited Ripley one day lately, got very much alarmed when she visited a certain house and discovered a number of persons talking in a foreign language, says the Express. She immediately reported at the neighboring house that she suspected that German spies were in our midst. Upon investigation it was learned that there was no reason for suspicion. It was a Gaelic prayer meeting that was being conducted and all those present were true British citizens, who all spoke the Gaelic. The neighbors had a hearty laugh when they learned that those who were attending the meeting were mistaken for German spies.

GREENOCK COUNCIL

Mossack's Hotel, Riversdale
June 21st, 1915

Council met as per adjournment, all the members present, the reeve in the chair. The minutes of last meeting were read and adopted.

The following accounts were presented for payment: A McKee, 5 days' roadwork paid in taxes in 1914, $7 50; T O'Hagan, 1 day 6ll and 11 yds gravel at 30c per yd at Thompson's bridge, $7; J Clancy, grant on townline $80, freight on tile $1 40—$81 40; J Drehan, 13½ yds gravel and repair culvert on townline, Kincardine to pay half, $1 50; T Austin, repairs to waggon, $3; R Cassidy, 2 days on 6ll at Thompson's bridge, $3; R Charlton, inspecting Herd's sheep worried by dogs, $3 80; Wm Commans, 5 days, 1 hour with grader on div 17, 33, 48, 56 and 71, $25 50; J J Cassidy, 1 day at 6ll at Thompson's bridge, $1 50; J Huffman, rep bridge and road, $2 25; J Cassidy, damages to sheep by dogs less 6 yds gravel taken from roadway 90c, and 1 yd from J Dirkin's pit 25c—$3 85; W H Moffatt, postage for clerk, $5; T O'Hagan, breaking and plowing 1 line 15, con 6, $1 50; J J Cassidy, taking stump jitter to Chepstow, $1; D Phelan, council meetings $14 50, committee work $39 22—$53 72; T Hay, council meetings $14 50, com work $4—$18 50; N McKinnon, council meetings $19 40, com work $5—$24 40; J Colliton, council meetings $33 60, com work $7—$40 60; J D Campbell, council meetings $16 75, com work $12 90—$29 65; M M Schuster, bolts 25c, repair to ft of lnd $2, half year's salary as treas, $45, postage $3 40—$50 65; T H Purdy, expenses $1, half year's salary $75—$76; H Mossack, room for council meeting, $1.

Hay—Campbell—That the foregoing accounts being found correct be paid, and that the reeve issue his order for same.—Carried.

Hay—Campbell—That re boundary of Culross and Greenock this council agrees to meet Culross in paying their share of the cost in finding the original road allowance from the Egypt road east to the 20th sideroad of Greenock, also if they desire to open up the road west from the 25th sideroad to the Egypt road this council will supplement Culross in the cost of doing the work. We think it is the duty of Culross to look after the interests of these repairs.—Carried.

A copy of the above motion was sent to Culross council meeting at Teeswater this day.

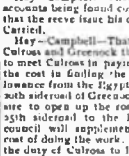
A reply from Culross council re opening of boundary was received asking Greenock council to appoint a committee to confer with Culross council.

McKinnon—Campbell—That the reeve and Jas Colliton be appointed a committee to meet Culross council re opening of Culross boundary.—Carried.

Campbell—Hay—That this council grant the sum of $30 to widen approaches to Wynne's bridge, con 16.—Carried.

Hay—McKinnon—That this council grant the sum of $50 on deviation road, con 23, Greenock, providing pathmasters grade said road and Pat Bruce and Sargent councils supplement this grant with $50 each.—Carried.

McKinnon—Campbell—That this council grant the sum of $30 to gravel con 2 west of Simpson's bridge, this work to be let by contract.—Carried.



Hay—McKinnon—That this council do now adjourn to meet at Glamis on Monday, the 19th day of July, for the transaction of general business.—Carried.

THOS H. PURDY, Clerk

AILING WOMEN OF MIDDLE AGE

Mrs. Doucette Tells of her Distressing Symptoms During Change of Life and How She Found Relief.

Belleville, Nova Scotia, Can.—"Three years ago I was suffering badly with what the doctors called Change of Life. I was so bad that I had to stay in bed. Some friends told me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it helped me from the first. It is the only medicine I took that did help me and I recommend it. You don't know how thankful and grateful I am. I give you permission to publish what your good medicine has done for me."—Mrs. SIMON DOUCETTE, Belleville, Yarmouth Co., Nova Scotia, Canada.

Such warning symptoms as sense of suffocation, hot flashes, headaches, backaches, dread of impending evil, timidity, sounds in the ears, palpitation of the heart, sparks before the eyes, irregularities, constipation, variable appetite, weakness and inquietude, and dizziness, are promptly heeded by intelligent women who are approaching the period in life when woman's great change may be expected.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound invigorates and strengthens the female organism and builds up the weakened nervous system. It has carried many women safely through this crisis.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

Steele's for

Horse Collars, Sweat Pads, Rubber Lap Rugs, Whips, Auto Plush Rugs, Star Harness Soap, Bickmore's Gall Cure, Axle Grease

Our Harness includes quality, durability, appearance and high class workmanship found in no other makes of Harness.

Baggage Trunks, Suit Cases, Club Bags, Grips. Good assortment and close prices.

Harness parts and Repairing our Specialty

J. H. STEELE

Fall Term Opens Sept. First

ELLIOTT Business College

TORONTO — ONT.

Has to-day a stronger hold upon the public confidence than ever before. Thorough Training ensures positions in Business life in all our Departments. This college does not ask for a better reputation than it has now. We place many students in positions each year. Write to-day for large catalogue.

W. J. ELLIOTT, Principal. Cor. Yonge and Charles Streets.

W. H. BAKER

Having opened a shop in Sinclair's old hardware building, Queen St. North, we are prepared to do all kinds of

Sign and Carriage Painting

House Decorating and Paper-Hanging, as usual. Prices right.

ROBT. IRVING PLASTERER

See Robt. Irving the Plasterer before letting any work in this line. Separate estimates for all kinds of plastering, or with Jas Dewar for whole contracts for erection of buildings.

R. T. ROBINSO

CARPENTER AND CONTRACTOR

ESTIMATES furnished for the erection of any class of building. Large or small contracts undertaken.

Address Chesley or Cargill P.O

PURDY'S LIVERY

Rates Reasonable, and every effort made to satisfy

F. PURDY

WISE OLD BEN

Benjamin Franklin once said: "It is strange anomaly that men should be careful to insure their houses, their furniture, their ship, their merchandise, and yet neglect to insure their lives—surely the most important of all to their families, and far more subject to loss."

THE DOMINION LIFE

Highest earnings of any Canadian company—3.22 per cent.

Low Death Loss
Economical Management

Head Office - Waterloo, Ont

Bridge Contract to Let

SEALED tenders will be received by the undersigned up to 4 p.m. on Saturday, the 10th inst., for two large cement culverts to be built on Bruce Township line over the Willow Creek on con. 8, and one on Bone Line, Con. 4. Contractor to furnish all material and labor and give satisfactory security. The lowest or any tender not necessarily accepted. For further particulars, plans and specifications, apply to Reeve Jas Johnson, Tel. & Post P.

J. G. MACKAY, Clerk Bruce Tp.

The Paisley Advocate.

D. McKENZIE, Pub'lisher
Vol. 47—No. 28

PAISLEY, ONTARIO, JULY 15, 1915

$1.00 per Annum in Advance
$1.25 if not so paid

Big Reductions
IN ALL
Summer Goods

Ladies' Waists to clear at	$ .19
Hosiery reduced to	.09
Ladies' Gloves at	.19
Ginghams to clear at, per yd	.8½
Boys' Underwear cut to	.19
Odd sizes in Men's Underwear	.19
Men's Summer Socks, 2 pair for	.25
A few Men's Straw Hats at half-price

Men's Suits

$16.50 value for	$8.85
15.50 " "	9.95
14.00 " "	9.98
13.50 " "	8.98
8.50 " "	4.49

Boys' Suits

$8.50 values for	$4.98
7.75 "	4.49
6.75 "	4.19
6.50 "	3.98
5.00 "	3.49
3.50 "	1.98

In Our Shoe Department

Ladies' Pumps, $4 for	$2.98
A few Oxfords to clear at	.69
High Shoes at	.98
Men's Oxfords, reg. $4.50 for	2.49

Wool Wanted!

The highest price will be paid for Wool — Cash or Trade. ¶ Bring your Farm Produce, for which the top price will be paid.

M. J. CAMPBELL

W. H. McFarlane's Old Stand : : Paisley

New Spring Suitings

See our goods and styles before buying. We have a large stock to choose from.

We Make a Specialty of . . .

Ladies' Tailoring

No trying on or worrying. Just leave your measure and we will attend to the rest. All the newest goods and latest styles from which to make your selection. Satisfaction guaranteed.

I. S. Cruickshank

City Dairy

Ice Cream

Boot Bargains at Bonathan's

The last chance to buy Shoes at cost price. We have still a few pairs that have got to be sold. ¶ Also an assortment of New Shoes just in, in the latest summer styles, guaranteed to fit. We have bought these to fill out the vacant places in our stock, and are offering them at close prices, too, to help dispose of the whole stock. We don't intend to keep Shoes when this stock is sold out, and we want to do it quick, so offer attractive bargains to complete the clean-up.

Congoleum, the cheap but servicable Floor Covering

The Clay Lawn Dryer Just the thing to do away with laborious clothes hanging.

Sheet Music—We have added another department to our business for the convenience of music lovers. We can procure any selection in Sheet Music, vocal or instrumental, at a price that is right. Also Polish.

A. T. BONATHAN

Hyde's Old Stand : : Successor to W. S. Mitchell

—Private funds to loan.
D. FORRESTER.

—Wilkinson plows and repairs at F. Carter & Son's.

—Marriage licenses issued and money to loan. T. H. GEORGE.

—300 Brooms, pretty fair stock, special price at 25c. Ballachey, Laidlaw & Co.

—FOR SALE—McLaughlin bugger, nearly new. Apply at Paisley Marble Works.

—Full lines of fine engagement and wedding rings at I. Shoemaker's Jewellery store.

—Flannelette Blankets, white or grey, good weight, size 66x80. Per pair $1.30.

—Highest prices paid for hides and sheepskins. H. E. McGregor, Butcher, Steele Block.

—Mrs. Evans, dressmaker, has moved from upstairs over Hyde's old stand to the cottage next door.

—FOR SALE—Pure bred heavy draft mare, 5 yrs old, eligible for registration. J. MAURER, Paisley.

—See our window full of Women's Wash Dresses. All sizes at $1. Ballachey, Laidlaw & Co.

—Bring in that old buggy and have it repainted to look as good as new. W. JACK, Gibson's old store, Paisley.

—Highest price for beefhides, horsehides, calfskins, tallow, &c. T. OLTSHER, Paisley Meat Market.

—"Rough on Rats" clears out Rats, Mice, etc. Don't die in the house. 15c and 25c at drug and country stores.

—Repainting and retrimming of all kinds of vehicles at W. Jack's new paint shop, Gibson's old store, Paisley.

—Auction sale of hay crop on lot 9, con. 9, Elderslie, on Friday, July 16th. E. W. Elwes, prop; R. C. Pearce, auct.

—Milk for sale at 5c. quart, to those who send for it. Can supply 15 to 20 quarts a day. J. MAURER, Queen St. South.

—Centre Bruce Garden Party at Mr. Geo. Brown's, 8th line, on Aug. 5th. Kincardine Highlanders band has been engaged. Further announcements later.

—A garden party will be held at Donald Cameron's, 4th Saugreen, on the evening of Thursday, July 15th. Kincardine pipe band in attendance. Usual admission.

—If you have a guest at your home, are going out of town for a visit, or know of any interesting news, kindly us hear from you. We will always appreciate such favors.

—Just received at R Stevenston's an assortment of pipes that will surely please. Come and select your choice. Tobaccos, stationery, also our wonderful salve that cures burns and sores, soothing for burns.

—Waterbury heating stove for sale in good condition, suitable for heating school or other large building. Can be seen at U. S. S. No. 10, Bruce and Greenock. R. COLWELL, Sec'y.

—An auction sale of milch cows, calves and young cattle will be held at the yards of the McDonald Home, Chesley, on Saturday, July 17th, at 2 o'clock p.m. Jas. E. Cass, prop; R. C. Pearce, auct.

—HOMESEEKERS' EXCURSIONS every Tuesday up to and including October to the Canadian Northwest. For tickets, rates, etc., apply at the Canadian Pacific Railway ticket office, W. H. McFarlane's old stand, Paisley.

—Anniversary entertainment on the grounds at St. Paul's church, Glamis, on Monday, July 26th. Excellent program by Mrs. Comte Bain, Scottish vocalist and elocutionist, Piper McLeod of Paisley, and other good talent. Don't miss it.

—Five Roses, Rainbow, Purity, Cream of the West, and Stark's high-grade flours, also Bran and Shorts, Batchford's Sugar and Flax, Caldwell's Molasses Meal, and full line of Poultry Foods and Tonics. Always in the market for coarse grains. E. G. ECKEL.

—The ladies of the Church of the Ascension will hold their annual garden party at the home of Mr. John Collins (The Old Orchard Homestead) adjoining Paisley, on Friday evening, July 30. Mr. Robert Clark of Toronto, the noted Ventriloquist and Comedian, has been engaged, also the Paisley Brass Band. Look out for bills for fuller notice. Don't forget Friday, July 30. Put the date in your hat.

—Gillies Hill Presbyterians will hold their annual garden party on Thursday, July 22nd, on the grounds of Mr. John Eason, lot 16, con. 7, Ellice. Tea served from 6 to 8. Good programme of vocal and instrumental music, speeches and recitations, also a baseball game. Piper Sutherland, a Boer war veteran, will be on hand with his pipes. Admission—25c and 15c.

—Clubbing rates with all the city dailies and weeklies.

—Mrs. W. Mitchell is visiting at Arkwright.

—Miss Myrtle Watson is home from Detroit.

—Mrs. Buchanan is visiting her daughter in Detroit.

—Kirk Hyde and Ora Irving are here from Toronto.

—Miss Jane Pattle, of Manistee, Mich., is visiting friends here.

—Misses Ina and Donalda Galbraith are visiting at Caledonia.

—Mr. Lindsay Dryden of the Royal Bank, Sudbury, is home for vacation.

—Mrs. Jas. Stark was down to Mount Forest visiting friends for a few days.

—Mrs. McArton is visiting her daughters, Mrs. Shoemaker and Mrs. Forrester.

—Miss Belle McKinnon, of Toronto, is visiting at the home of her father, Ross St.

—Wilfred and Edna Thompson of Lockerby are visiting friends in Owen Sound.

—Mrs. P. B. More and children were visiting friends in Guelph for a few days.

—Mr. and Mrs. D. Lyon had a trip to Toronto, Niagara and Buffalo this month.

—Mr. Thos. Switzer, of Saugeen, was visiting friends in Teeswater for a few days.

—Miss Annie McLennan, of the Fort William P. S. staff is spending vacation at home.

—Mr. and Mrs. F. Spieran, of Walkerton, are guests at Mr. J. A. McNeill's, Lockerby.

—Mrs. Walter Shroadter and daughters spent a few days at Mr. Geo. Last's, Lockerby.

—Miss Alice Brown, of Owen Sound, is visiting relatives and friends in Paisley and vicinity.

—Mr. and Mrs. J. A. McArthur and children are spending a few weeks at Southampton beach.

—Mr. Wm. Johnston, of the Standard Bank, Newcastle, is holidaying at his home, con. A, Elderslie.

—Mr. and Mrs. Henry Osthoff, of Hanover, spent Sunday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs Maurer at Lockerby.

—Mrs. S. A. St. Geo. Simons and daughter Miss Jean are up from Toronto, guests at the Sutherland cottage.

—Mr. E. J. Mitchell and daughter were up from Fergus last week visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Mitchell.

—Mr. Bert Bradley, of the Standard Bank staff in Hamilton, spent holidays here at the home of his sister, Mrs. Eckel.

—Mrs. Lane (a niece of Mr. S. Pollachey) and little daughter, of Sioux City, Iowa, are staying at "The Maples."

—Miss F. M. Diehl has been re-engaged at Gillies Hill school for another year at the salary of $600, being an increase of $50.

—Mrs. Jas. McGillivray, Queen St. north, is recovering nicely from an operation she underwent a couple of weeks ago.

—Mrs. Geo. MacKay and daughter of Thornbury, also Miss Gray of Meaford, are visitors at the home of Mr. Geo. Grant.

—On Sunday evening a union meeting of the four congregations was held in Knox church in the interests of the Bible Society.

—Mr. Longfield, of Toronto, joined his family here in spending vacation at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. Munn.

—Mr. and Mrs. John Ryan, of Walkerton, have been visiting the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Collins, Paisley.

—Mr. and Mrs. Alexander, of Guelph, were up visiting at the home of her father, Mr. Wm. Watson, Albert St. and other friends.

—Mrs. John Hughes and daughter, of Shallow Lake, have been visiting at the home of her sister, Mrs. A. McRae, North St.

—Mr. C. E. Machon, of Vancouver, paid a flying visit to his sister, Mrs. Wm. Walker, while on a business trip to Ontario last week.

—Dr. Alex. Hopper, of Palermo, and Miss Belle Hopper of Toronto, are spending a two weeks' vacation with his brothers at Kilengowan.

—Mr. and Mrs. M. D. Stauffer and children, of Collingwood, and Mrs. Stauffer, of Walkerton, motored to Mr. F. Potter's, 2nd con. Elderslie, last week.

—R. W. Tanner, of Dunblane, had his nose broken and lip badly cut as the result of a collision with another player in a game of baseball one day last week.

—It's only a dollar, but it means a good deal to THE ADVOCATE if hundreds are slow in paying that on their subscription.

Bug Destroyers

Look us up for Paris Green, Bug Death (a bug destroyer and also a fertilizer for the plant), Insect Powder, Bluestone, Quassia Chips, Hellebore, Instant Louse Killer, Royal Purple Louse Killer, International Louse Killer, Hess Dip and Disinfectant, Pheus, Chloral, Royal Purple Disinfectant, Zenoleum, Little's Sheep Dip, McDougall's Sheep Dip, Larkspur Lotion (for head lice), King's Bed-Bug Poison.

P. B. MORE, Druggist

Established over Forty-one Years

THE STANDARD BANK OF CANADA

ASSETS OVER $48,000,000

The A, B, C of Banking

Deposit Your Savings Regularly

Every Dollar Earns Interest

From Date of Deposit

We solicit your account in our SAVINGS DEPARTMENT

PAISLEY BRANCH

F. C. RYAN, Manager

Branches also at Hanover and Thornbury

Paisley Meat Market

Fresh Beef, Pork, Mutton, Cured Hams, Bacon, etc. Salt Pork, Cooked Meats, Home-made Sausage (2 lbs. for 25c), Bologna and Headcheese. Kidney Suet. Poultry in season.

Cash for Hides and Skins . . . Bruce and Bell Phones P. Oltsher

J. S. DEWAR

PAISLEY

Builder, Contractor and Cement Worker

Brick or cement buildings erected, brick work, cement work and plastering contracts taken.

Cement Supplies Furnished

Building Blocks, Window and Door Sills, Culvert Tile, Well Curbing, Lawn Rollers, Lawn Vases, Verandah Columns, Balusters and other fancy Cement Products.

Building Material

Cement, Lime, Lath, Shingles, Glazed Sewer Pipe and Flue Lining, Mortar Color, etc.

Large supply of

Oilcloths and Linoleums

just to hand

Now is the time to get your new supply, before they are picked over.

We have also a good assortment of Squares, and our prices can't be beaten. Give us a call before buying.

For good Butter and Eggs we pay the highest price in, either CASH or TRADE . . .

Both 'Phones PUTNAM & SON

—Rev. Jesse A. Monkman, Mrs. Monkman and children were over from Fallow, Iowa, visiting their friends in Ontario, and called upon Paisley friends on Saturday week.

—Mrs. McEwen, of Brucefield, is visiting her sister, Mrs. D. Walker, 2nd Elderslie. Mrs. Drummond and Miss Drummond, of Ottawa, are also guests at the same home.

—Mr. Colin McIntyre drove over from Dunnoch on Saturday and spent a couple of days with his friends in Bruce. He was accompanied by his father-in-law, Mr. Arch. Beaton.

—Miss Nellie Grant is home from Cromwell, Conn., on vacation, accompanied by Miss Emma McNeill, also a former Paisleyite. Both ladies are on a hospital staff at Cromwell.

—Inspector John McCool, of Walkerton, occupied the pulpit of the Methodist church on Sunday week, in the absence of the pastor, who has been away on vacation for a couple of weeks.

—Mr. John Sutherland and family are up from Guelph again for the summer, comfortably encamped in the house on the Giles farm, Elora road north. For city residents in search of recreation and rest, Mr. Sutherland puts cottage or camp life at Paisley ahead of living at a lakeside or summer resort where there is too much society "doings" to allow of real rest or recreation.

June Specials

A Good-for-any-Time-of-the-Year Suit Costs

$15.00

Special Summer Pants

$2.50

Shirts

Regular $1.50, $1.25, $1 for 75c.

Underwear

Balbriggan Mesh Cashmere Underwear, regular 50c at 40c, Cashmere 75c at 50c; Combinations accordingly.

Ties

All 50c Ties at 25c.

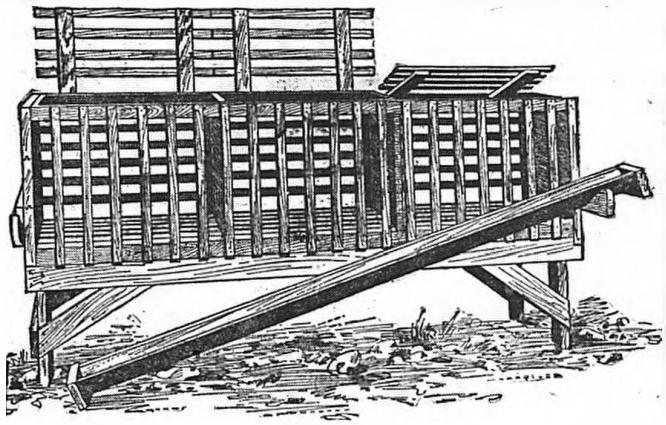
Hosiery

Silk and Cashmere—50c—75c at 35c —$3.50 Auto Dusters at $2.50—

We would like you to call some day

G. B. IRWIN

Tailor and Furnisher · Paisley



CRATE FATTENING OF POULTRY

Practical experience has shown that crate feeding is not only the most satisfactory, but also the most economical method of fattening poultry. The saving in the amount of feed required to produce one pound of gain is quite marked, and the feeder is enabled to observe to greater advantage the progress being made by individual birds. He can also, if necessary, curtail the duration of the feeding period in the case of birds which have attained their maximum weight and are ready to be placed in the finishing crate.

The following article, by T. A. Benson, issued by the Live Stock Branch, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, will be of much interest to many of oufr readers:

The Construction of a Fattening Crate.

The fattening crate commonly used is six feet long, twenty inches high, and from sixteen to eighteen inches wide. It is divided into three equal compartments by means of two tight wooden partitions.

The Fattening Crate.

The material used in the frame should be two inches wide, and seven-eighths inches thick. The frame is covered with slats which run lengthwise on the top, back and bottom, and vertical on the front, and are made of material seven-eighths inches wide and five-eighths inches thick.

The slats are placed two inches apart on the top and front, one and a half inches on the back, and from one-half to three-quarters of an inch on the bottom. Care should be taken to have the outer slats on the bottom at least half an inch from the frame in order to provide for ease in cleaning. The top slats are cut through at each partition and connected by two-inch strips, nailed under them. By hinging these strips to the rear frame piece, three doors are formed. A light "V" shaped trough 2¼ inches wide is placed in front of each crate, and is placed in front of each crate, and is carried on two brackets nailed to the ends of the crate. The bottom of the trough should be four inches above the bottom of the crate and the upper inside edge two inches from the front of the crate.

The measurements given for construction of this crate are the best, but need not necessarily be strictly adhered to, and where only a small number of birds is to be fattened, packing boxes of suitable dimensions may be used.

The open top of the box should become the bottom of the crate, and one side should be removed for the front. Laths should be nailed vertically on the front, and lengthwise on the bottom, the same distance apart as is recommended above. A board should be loosened in the top of the crate to facilitate the removing of the chickens and a feed trough should be arranged in front as already described.

In the early autumn the crates may be set up in any place affording protection from the rain and wind, but if operations are continued later in the season, more protection is necessary. The crates should be placed on stands of convenient height or suspended by wire attached to the rafters. The ground should at all times be kept covered with sand or other absorbent material.

The Best Breeds for the Purpose.

The best results can be secured only from the use of strong, healthy, vigorous stock, of the general purpose breeds, and the greatest gains are obtained on birds that weigh from 3½ to 4½ lbs. when they are ready to be placed in the crates. They should have attained this weight in from four to five months. Leghorns, Hamburgs and other light weight stock do not make suitable stock to fatten. All birds should be thoroughly dusted with insect powder, or common yellow sulphur before being placed in the crates, and again at the end of the first week.

Feeding.

The object in crate feeding is not only to increase the amount of fat and lean meat on the body, but also to soften the tissues and muscles that have hardened through constant exercise on free range. The duration of the feeding period varies from fourteen to twenty-one days, depending entirely upon the thriftiness of the birds. Some birds, given judicious feeding and good care continue to make satisfactory gains for even longer periods than three weeks.

Birds placed in the crates with crops full should not be fed for the first twelve or eighteen hours in order that they may become more quickly accustomed to the change in diet.

Many feeders practice giving three light feeds a day for the first three days, then two feeds a day for the remainder of the period. The birds should not be given more feed at one time than they will eat up clean in twenty minutes. After this the troughs should be taken away or turned upside down in the supports, so that nothing is left to be picked at between meals.

Rations.

The following five meal mixtures which are numbered in order of merit have been carefully selected with a view to efficiency and to convenience in obtaining the material. It should be borne in mind that ground corn fed in excess will produce yellow flesh of inferior quality, and that ground peas impart a hardness to the flesh.

1. Two parts finely ground oats, one part ground buckwheat, one part cornmeal.
2. Equal parts finely ground oats, buckwheat and barley.
3. Equal parts finely ground oats, barley and shorts.
4. Two parts finely ground oats, one part cornmeal, one part shorts.
5. Two parts barley, two parts low grade flour or shorts, one part wheat bran.

The proportions given above should be measured, preferably, by weight, and mixed to a thin porridge with thick sour milk, or buttermilk. On the average 10 lbs. of meal requires from 15 to 17 lbs. of milk.

If the birds appear dull and constipated at any time carefully dissolve and mix a small quantity of epsom salts in one feed; if bowels are loose, add a little charcoal to one feed. Give grit and green food twice a week.

If milk cannot be obtained in sufficient quantities animal food of some kind should be supplied, but the best results can be obtained by the use of milk or buttermilk.

All food should be mixed at least twelve hours before feeding and a very small quantity of fine table salt added, not more than one quarter of one per cent. Before being killed the birds should be starved for 24 hours, but no longer, water only being given to them during this time.

It is good practice to feed clean tallow to the birds at noon, during the last week. The tallow should be shaved into the trough with a knife, and is fed at the rate of about a pound to each fifty birds.

QUEEN MARY DOING HER BIT.

Works With Unflagging Interest in Wartime Activities.

Never before, perhaps, have her subjects felt themselves so surely and so closely in sympathy with Queen Mary as they do to-day. Not only do they know that she shares with them the common burden of the war; their hearts go out to her the more warmly because she has her own personal anxieties and sorrows. She has given two sons to the service of the country. The Prince of Wales at the front and Prince Albert on his ship, and she has lost her cousin, the late Prince Maurice of Battenberg, who was killed in action. They know too that she has never spared herself the hardest work, and has taken a lead in every good cause. How great and how varied have been the Queen's activities no one can fully realize till he deliberately sets out to enumerate them. If she had shown but a formal interest in the many enterprises begotten of the war, if she had merely lent them the distinction of her presence on one occasion, she would not only have helped to launch them on a prosperous career; she would have taken up almost every available moment of her time. But the Queen has made time to do very much more. She has not merely assented; she has originated and suggested and shown in half a hundred ways the qualities of initiative and enthusiasm.

She has visited the wounded in many hospitals, including the American Women's Hospital and the Indian hospitals at Brighton and in the New Forest, and said a few sympathetic and friendly words to the men. It was the Queen, moreover, who made the thoughtful suggestion that wounded soldiers and sailors should be sent to the convalescent homes nearest to their own neighborhood, and this suggestion has been as far as possible carried out.

The Queen has worked incessantly for the alleviation of distress. She realized in the early days of the war that many hard cases of unemployment were inevitable, and has done her best to minimize them. Both Queen Mary's Needlework Guild and the Queen's Work for Women Fund have done and are still doing much good, and many distressed women and girls owe her Majesty a very real debt.

Presents and newspapers for the troops, parcels for the men of the Naval Brigade interned in Holland, belts and socks, books and Bovril, matinees and concerts—these are many other things to make up a jumble of gratitude, if we may so call it, which the country owes to the Queen, not accurately to be measured, but very deeply felt.

It is clear that the fatigue involved by so much and so varied work must have been great, and that no one could have supported it who was not inspired by the most genuine and unflagging enthusiasm.

The Scribe's Blunder.

In an account of a social gathering a reporter described one of the lady guests, who was of exceptional stature, as possessing a form "that Juno might envy." The next morning, however, he read in the paper that the lady possessed a form "that Jumbo might envy!"

Water For an Army.

One of the numberless tasks of the general staff of a great army is to provide water for the soldiers and the horses. The Scientific American describes some of the methods employed. Only running water is used. In the German army the upstream water is used for drinking, and the downstream water for watering the horses and for bathing. Suitable signs notify the men which water they may safely drink and which they may use only for bathing. In shallow or narrow streams basins are dug or small dams built, in order to form reservoirs of sufficient size. Stepping-stones are put down so that no one need walk through the water, and the banks are shored up with boards to keep them from crumbling into the water. Basins are dug at which to water the horses; when troughs have to be used, they are supported on posts and filled by means of pumps. If water lies at a reasonable depth from the surface,—that is, not more than twenty feet,—pipes are driven that, according to their size, deliver from four to twenty-two gallons of water a minute. If the water lies very near the surface, a hole is dug, and a cask, the bottom of which has been knocked out, is put into the hole to hold the sides in place and protect the water from dirt. If the water lies at a greater depth, box sections are driven in, one on top of another, to the required depth.

If the fish eat all the bait off your hooks don't be discouraged. They'll be all the bigger when you do catch them.

Lieut.-Col. A. W. Currie.

Mentioned by Sir John French for his conduct on the battlefield. He has received a Companionship of the Order of the Bath.

WHAT TO DO WITH SOUR CREAM

By Nellie Maxwell, University of Wisconsin.

The question is often asked by women living in dairy districts, "What can be done with sour cream, we often have more than we know how to use?"

It almost seems like asking what can be done with money, for cream is such a valuable food and may be used in so many appetizing ways that it should never be wasted.

The idea with most women is not "What can we do with it," but instead, "Tell us some new ways of using it profitably." Many of us have used sour cream for griddle cakes, biscuits of various kinds, cakes, cookies, shortcakes, puddings, salad dressings, meat sauces, fish sauces and freezing it with fruit juices have made most delightful ice cream. And did you ever use sour cream in place of milk in preparing a white sauce for cod-fish? If not you have a treat in store. Do not cook the cream too long to allow it to curdle the mixture.

But you ask for recipes, and here are just a few:

Sour Cream Cookies.—Add a cup of sugar and a cup of molasses to two cups of rich sour cream, add two well beaten eggs, a teaspoonful of soda and one of baking powder, a tablespoonful of ginger, a dash of cinnamon and cloves and enough flour to roll. Let stand on ice to chill before rolling out.

Chocolate Cake.—Take a cupful of brown sugar, add a half cup of sour cream, a half teaspoonful of soda, one egg well beaten, a cup and a half of flour sifted with a teaspoonful of baking powder. Dissolve two squares of chocolate in half a cup of boiling water, and add to the cake the last thing. Flavor with vanilla and bake in two layers.

Cabbage Salad. — Shred cabbage very fine and plunge into cold water to crisp. Drain and dress with sour cream, sugar, salt and if not quite sour enough a very little vinegar may be added. This is a salad which can be enjoyed at any meal with almost any combination of foods.

Sour cream when mixed with fruit juices and sweetened will freeze smooth and velvety. Orange juice with sour cream and sugar to sweeten is a combination especially tasty and delightful. Mix and freeze as an ice cream. Raspberry, grape juice or peach juice are others. Lemon is such an acid with the sour cream also an acid, that the result is not so good, unless a sour frozen dish is desired.

High Life in Peru.

Prof. Ailsworth Ross, in an article in the Century Magazine entitled, "Peru, the Roof of the Continent," tells of the difficulty of merely sustaining life in the higher altitudes among the Andes. He says:

Life at Cerro de Pasco, nearly a league up, is as trying as life under a diving bell at the bottom of the ocean. The newcomer gasps for air like a stranded fish, and wakes up at night gulping mouthfuls out of the thin atmosphere. Three quick steps put you out of breath, and after climbing a flight of stairs you must sit down for a rest. "I know," panted a "tenderfoot," "how I'll feel when I'm eighty."

No employee is sent up by the company unless he has passed a physician's examination, but occasionally one gets blue in the face and has to be sent down forthwith. Thus the Inca Chronicle often has such items as "Jake L., who returned here last April, has been sent home with his heart machinery in bad shape."

The young fellows play tennis and ball, and even indulge in track athletics; but the pace must be very slow. Singing is not popular, for you cannot get the breath to hold a note. Pneumonia is sure death here within forty-eight hours, so that the sufferer must be rushed down to the sea level in a special train that costs the company $500. The typhoid patient, too, must flee, and the northern women must descend to Lima to bear their babies.

The mining company's Americans are usually big, athletic, deep-chested men, strong of jaw, sinewy of grip, and masterful of manner. They are well paid and looked after, but too many of them squander money and vitality in fighting off the demon of loneliness.

From Erin's Green Isle

NEWS BY MAIL FROM IRELAND'S SHORES.

Happenings In the Emerald Isle of Interest to Irishmen.

The order recently made by the military authorities in Dublin closing all public houses to soldiers has been cancelled.

The County Clare tuberculosis sanatorium at Ballyalla, about two miles from Ennis, has been completely destroyed by fire.

Enthusiastic scenes were seen at Omagh railway station, when several postmen and post office officials left to join the Post Office Rifles.

An old woman named Fuller, who died in Castlebar last week, had the distinction of having five grandsons at present serving at the front.

It has been reported to Lisburn Board of Guardians that during the week another case of spotted fever has been admitted to the hospital.

Dr. S. Agnew, in presenting his annual report to Lurgan Urban Council, stated that during the year there were 309 births and 218 deaths registered.

It is stated that there is a deficit in the past year's working of the Meath Hospital of about $5,000, and appeal has been made by the governors for help.

The Ulster division of Lord Kitchener's army was inspected at Malone, Belfast, by Major-General Sir Hugh McCalmont, when 17,000 troops paraded.

Joseph Donnelly, in the employment of J. Stevenson & Co., Coalisland, was seriously injured when he was run over by a large motor truck with a 3 ton weight on.

The late Mrs. Birrell, wife of the Chief Secretary for Ireland, and formerly the widow of the Hon. Lionel Tennyson, has left various Tennyson MSS., now the property of her husband.

Belfast still occupies the position of having the least amount of pauperism among the large cities. The Board of Trade monthly return shows that it is 94 per 10,000 of the population.

The Assistant Postmaster-General, Capt. Norton, M.P., has stated that a telephone exchange will be provided at Kilkeel, with a junction line to Warrenpoint, and a call office at Annalong.

The Ven. J. M. Goold-Adams, Archdeacon of Derry, has been notified that his only son, Captain John Goold-Adams, of the 1st Leinster Regiment, has been killed in action near Ypres.

Mrs. G. K. Gilliland, of Brookhall, Londonderry, has received intimation from the War Office that her younger son, Captain Valentine Gilliland, of the 3rd Battalion, R.I.R., has been killed in action.

The death is reported from Ipswich of Farrier-Sergeant Robert McDonald, D Battery, 56th Brigade, R.F.A., as the result of a kick from a mule. His wife and four children live at Belfast.

The Registrar-General's report for 1914 shows a decline in the number of emigrants from Ireland. The total is 20,314, as compared with 30,907 for 1913 and an average of 31,732 for the ten years, 1904-13.

The annual report of work of Belfast Fire Brigade for the year ending 31st March showed that the brigade had responded to 210 calls. The total losses amounted to $178,026, and the value at risk was $3,651,760.

At a meeting of the Public Health Committee of Derry Corporation it was stated that there is no sheep-dipping station in the city, and the result is, dealers are taking their sheep elsewhere. It was decided to provide a dipping station.

A Message Strangely Delivered.

Dr. Norman Macleod, the famous Scottish divine, before visiting India, called on an old Highland woman in Glasgow, says a writer in the Scottish American. "When ye gang tae India," she said, "you'll be seein' ma Donal' that went awa tae India ten years ago, an' never sent the scrape of a pen tae his mither since."

"But, Katie," said the doctor, "India is a very big place, and how can I expect to find him?"

"Oh, but you'll just be askin' for Donal'. What for no?"

So, to please the old woman, he promised to ask for Donald, and he conscientiously kept his word. At various ports he made inquiry among British ships, although it seemed very much like looking for a needle in a bale of hay. But it is the unexpected that happens. As Doctor Macleod's steamer went up the Hooghly River an outward-bound vessel passed close by. A sailor was leaning over her bulwarks, and, moved by a sudden impulse, the doctor shouted out:

"Are eyou Donald Mactavish?"

To his intense surprise the man answered, "Yes."

Doctor Macleod had only time to shout, "You're to write to your mother!" as the vessels drew apart. The result of this amazing meeting was that the old lady received a penitent letter from her long-neglectful son.

If we man had her way man wouldn't have his.

Great thoughts seldom come in very big packages.

ICE CREAM
IS A FOOD

A VALUABLE food if it's pure. City Dairy Ice Cream is made of the purest ingredients, in a new sanitary building. We ship thousands of gallons to all parts of Ontario. The size of our business enables us to employ experts and the most up-to-date methods and equipment.

Keen business men reduce their meat diet during the summer and consume more foods such as Ice Cream. Everybody can do so with benefit to their health.

For sale by discriminating shopkeepers everywhere.

City Dairy

Look for the Sign.

TORONTO.

We want an Agent in every town.

THE DAWN OF YOUNG WOMANHOOD

Girls upon the threshold of womanhood often drift into a decline in spite of all care and attention. Even strong and lively girls become weak, depressed, irritable and listless. It is the dawn of womanhood—a crisis in the life of every girl—and prompt measures should be taken to keep the blood pure and rich with the red tint of health. If the body is not in a healthy condition at this critical stage, grave disorders may result, and future life become a burden. Deadly consumption often follows this crisis in the lives of young women. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have saved thousands of young girls from what might have been life-long invalidism or early death. They are a blood-builder of unequalled merit, strengthening weak nerves and producing a liberal supply of rich, red blood, which every girl needs to sustain her strength.

Over and over again Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have proved their value to women and girls whose health was failing. Miss Jennie Gereau, St. Jerome, Que., says: "At the age of eighteen my health was completely shattered; I was suffering from anaemia with all its attendant evils. The trouble forced me to leave school. I suffered from headaches, was tired and breathless at the least exertion. I had no appetite, and my face and lips were literally bloodless. A good friend advised the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and thanks to this great medicine I am again enjoying good health, with a good appetite, good color and a spirit of energy."

Every anaemic girl can be made well and strong through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

SWISS GREAT AID TO KAISER.

Factories Furnishing Material Destined for German Use.

That the Germans are utilizing to the fullest every available neutral source for supplies of war equipment is made evident by reports that the leading machinery and electrical houses in eastern Switzerland are working to full capacity in furnishing material destined for German use.

The German-Swiss shops have enjoyed up to the time that Italy entered the war free communication with the outside world, and raw material of all descriptions has freely entered Switzerland by Genoa, and thence reached Zurich over the St. Gothard route. Italy has now blocked exit by way of the St. Gothard and Simplon of all trains carrying equipment which might in any way be of service to the German forces. Furthermore, Italy is commandeering such shipments which might enter into projectile or engine parts. It is understood that for some time the Swiss plants were receiving ore shipments from Spain via Genoa and that much of the ore came from mines in Spain controlled by Krupp steel works on the Rhine are largely fed by ore shipments which come from Spain and navigate the Rhine.

This supply by way of the Rhine has been shut off, and Germany is now dependent upon ore received largely from Austrian sources. The shipments of Swedish ore into Germany is still maintained, it is said, to some extent, and since the occupation of Northern France by German troops, the Germans have been able to obtain additional ore shipments from Doual district. The Rhenish coal mines are supplying the German steel works with sufficient coal, and no trouble is being experienced as yet in that direction. The Swiss shops are practically independent of coal, since they have recourse to electric current developed by the water power of the Alps.

Every available machine shop in Germany is being worked, and has been worked for months to full capacity. The majority of the skilled men at the machine tool and locomotive works have not been called into active service with their regiments, but are performing service, instead, at the benches. All these men so detailed in the shops wear their uniforms, and are rated as working for the State.

GUARD BABY'S HEALTH IN THE SUMMER

The summer months are the most dangerous to children. The complaints of that season, which are cholera infantum, colic, diarrhoea and dysentry, come on so quickly that often a little one is beyond aid before the mother realizes he is ill. The mother must be on her guard to prevent these troubles, or if they do come on suddenly, to cure them. No other medicine is of such aid to mothers during hot weather as is Baby's Own Tablets. They regulate the stomach and bowels and are absolutely safe. Sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Black Hand Business.

Mrs. Eze—"My husband got a letter to-day saying something dreadful would happen if he didn't send the writer a sum of money."

Mrs. Wye—"My husband gets dunned for his bills, too."

Canals in the United Kingdom if put end to end would reach 4,000 miles.

HOLLAND WILL ENTER WAR

BRITISH ARMY WILL HELP HER INVADE GERMANY.

Since the Invasion of Belgium Holland Has Made Steady Preparation for War.

In Paris I met an American friend of many years' residence in Holland. He had just come from The Hague. He said: "Dutch anger is red hot. Politicians won't be able to keep the lid on much longer."

An Englishman who had just come with important despatches from London, said: "Watch the Dutch!"

The positiveness of this laconic method of giving no information was getting on my nerves. I devised all sorts of excuses to talk again and again with the Dutch Minister, writes John Martin, an American journalist. In one conversation he incidentally remarked: "Yes, we are stating officially that we have but 250,000 men mobilized, but in reality we now have 400,000 on the frontier."

That was enough. I determined to leave for Rotterdam on "personal business" as soon as I could get the forty different types of passports necessary to leave Paris, to cross the Channel, to get into and out of London and to run over to Rotterdam. It was a long and tedious journey, but it was worth it.

Everywhere in Rotterdam I found an air of suppressed feeling and of intense activity. The Bourse Station was packed. The Grotte Barket was crowded with people and produce.

At Utrecht the old Rhine and the Vecht (the two rivers by means of which the Rhine empties into the sea) and the two great canals were all crowded with commerce boats sunk to the waterline.

I met Von Hoorn, who simply remarked: "We are ready."

Holland is a beehive. All the ports, Amsterdam, Rotterdam, The Hague, Leiden, Schieden, Delft, and Hoorn show an activity never before seen in Dutch cities.

All western Holland is one gigantic storehouse filled with everything necessary for the support of the Dutch people; with a surplus sufficient to meet the needs of an army during a nine months' campaign.

All eastern and southern Holland is one great armed camp from the most north-eastern boundaries, opposite Emden in Germany to Bergen-op-Zoom, north of Antwerp.

Ready for War.

Holland has imported during the last eight months many times the amount and manufactured materials she usually imports during a similar length of time. It has been supposed in Norway, in Sweden, and in America that this surplus of materials was being secretly sent to Germany.

While it is true that a large quantity of copper, cotton, wheat and medical supplies have found their way down the Scheldt and down the Rhine, yet the portion which has crossed the border into Germany is indeed small compared with the amount that has been placed in storage within Holland itself.

Not only has Holland prepared as far as supplies are concerned, but earthworks and trench fortifications have been constructed along the west bank of the Meuse from Mook to Roermond a distance of fifty miles, and on the east bank of the Meuse from Roermond to Maestricht, a distance of twenty-five miles.

But even Germany is realising that Holland is conserving within her own limits much of the produce which Germany expected to have passed on to her. It is for this reason that the German Admiralty gave instructions in December to the German-American friends in America to ship supplies to Bremen rather than to Rotterdam and Amsterdam. It is for this same reason that the German Admiralty Office gave orders to its submarines to sink neutral supply ships coming to Holland either from Norway or Sweden or from America.

Germany finally realized that if those products of Norway and Sweden were specially intended for herself they would have been shipped from the various ports in southern Sweden directly to ports in northern Germany, under the convoy of German cruisers controlling the Baltic Sea.

Holland has arranged four great centres of supplies, one for a northern army, one for an eastern army, one for a central army, and one for a southern army. Then there are great general supply centres at Amsterdam, Leiden, Delft, Schieden and Rotterdam.

And what can Holland do?

Can Pierce Germany.

The northern army can move east from Groningen along the railway line toward Oldenburg, Bremen and Hamburg. In this way, any German forces at Emden and Wilhelmshaven will be kept engaged so that they cannot be sent south to interfere with the intended activities of the eastern and central armies.

The southern army can remain intrenched all the way from Bergen-op-Zoon to Endhaven, while the left wing of this army can move from behind the trenches at Maestricht and descend upon Liege, both by railway and along the Meuse, thus preventing Germany from sending her troops from Belgium to interfere with the action of the central army. In this way the southern army would menace all railway communications between Liege and Germany.

The eastern army, of which a very large division is stationed at Feldon, with great supply quarters at Zwolle, can move along three railway lines into Germany and also by water down the Rhine in the direction of Munsted and Wesel and on toward the great Krupp Works at Essen, only a few miles further south and east. The Krupp Works are strongly fortified but it is not necessary to take them. If the lines of communication between Essen and the western army are severed, that is sufficient.

Meanwhile the central army divisions are stationed at Arnhem, at the junction of two railway lines, and on the bank of the Rhine, at Nijmengen and at Venloo, and Roermond. These divisions can move east and south by river and railway, and sever the railway communications between Essen and Aix-la-Chapelle.

British Army Ready.

While Holland is a small country, it is long and narrow; the eastern frontier bordering Germany is two hundred and thirty-six miles long. The frontier from which an advance can be made into Belgium is over sixty miles long.

The central army can move in two sections, one down the Rhine, past Wesel and Ruhrort, and the other from Arnhem to Crefeld by railroad. Both the Rhine and the railway intersect the German railway between Essen and Aix-la-Chapelle. To the movement of this central army there could be but little opposition. There is but a single German fort along the entire Dutch frontier.

If the Germans attemnted to withdraw any portion of their army fighting in Belgium and France, the French, Belgians, and English would have the opportunity they have long been waiting for; and if the German armies were not withdrawn to prevent the Dutch invasion, the Dutch army, in two days, even without forced marches, could cut the four railway lines running from Essen, Cologne and Coblenz to Belgium and Luxemburg and two million German soldiers, all of those in the western army, with the exception of those in Alsace-Lorraine, would be cut off from their source of supplies.

The western Germany army would then find itself with the English, French, and Belgians in front of it and the Dutch behind it. And not only the Dutch behind it, but 700,000 English also. The massing of great numbers of English troops in the east of England during the last few months has not been for the protection of the English coast, but to be ready to aid the Dutch should Holland decide to move. From the east coast quick transportation to Holland is possible, and then—a rapid campaign from Holland's eastern border into Germany and toward Bremen, Hanover, and Berlin.

FRENCH FOREIGN LEGION.

Have Lost a Great Number of Men in the War.

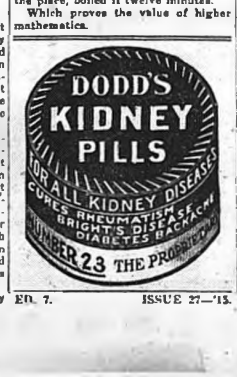
A London despatch says the French Foreign Legion has been doing brilliant work in the fighting north of Arras. The casualties in the legion have been very heavy, and a letter received in London from a wounded member states that in his company of 250 men only 60 are left. The letter says:

"The legion had the honor of being chosen to be the first out of the trenches and to the German lines with the bayonet. This was at a point between Souches and Carency. Previous to the attack, there was a terrible bombardment of the German position.

"French guns of all calibres were firing together for two hours without interruption. It was like an earthquake. Suddenly, punctually at ten o'clock in the morning, the firing ceased, and the 'Charge' was sounded.

"We were out of the trenches like lightning. It was wonderful. We were like a storm. In ten minutes we had won the first line of German trenches. But there was no stopping us. We kept it up hammer and tongs for an hour and a half, taking three lines of the enemy's trenches and driving the enemy in front of us.

"By this time all the officers of our company were either killed or wounded, so a sergeant took command, and we entrenched ourselves as best we could, but finally had to retire about a hundred yards.



"Here I got two wounds. Four in every five of our men were either killed or wounded in that fierce charge."

Four Times Three.

"Waiter," he suggested mildly, "I want three eggs, and boil them four minutes."

But the cook, having only one in the place, boiled it twelve minutes.

Which proves the value of higher mathematics.

A Nova Scotia Case of Interest to All Women

Halifax Sends Out a Message of Help to Many People.

Halifax, N.S., December 16.—When interviewed at her home at 194 Argyle St., Mrs. Haverstock was quite willing to talk of her peculiarly unfortunate case. "I was always 'blue' and depressed, felt weak, languid and utterly unfit for any work. My stomach was so disordered that I had no appetite. What I did eat disagreed. I suffered greatly from dizziness and sick headache and feared a nervous breakdown. Upon my druggist's recommendation I used Dr. Hamilton's Pills.

"I felt better at once. Every day I improved. In six weeks I was a well woman, cured completely after different physicians had failed to help me. It is for this reason that I strongly urge sufferers with stomach or digestive troubles to use Dr. Hamilton's Pills."

Dr. Hamilton's Pills strengthen the stomach, improve digestion, strengthen the nerves and restore debilitated systems to health. By cleansing the blood of long-standing impurities, by bringing the system to a high point of vigor, they effectually chase away weariness, depression and disease. Good for young or old, for men, for women, for children. All dealers sell Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butternut.

WHERE EVERYBODY HELPS.

By Prof. Creelman, Ontario Agricultural College.

Statistics go to prove that the most successful farmers are those who keep their sons and daughters at home and interested in some phase of the work.

One's own folks, of course, take a greator interest in the building up of the farm and the farm home than can be expected of mere hired help. Also a man or woman can plan work and carry it out better where home folk only are engaged in the transaction.

Then why not make a special effort this year to interest everyone in the old homestead? It may not be the glamor of the city that steals our young people, but rather the desire to earn wages and save money of their very own—wages or a life partnership might do.

Times are very bad in cities now. Perhaps your boy or girl would come back if you offered a partnership in your business. Perhaps a good farmer in your locality has been spoiled by trying to run a street car or shovel snow in some large town. Perhaps your girl is tired, so tired, of trying to make an honest living, working for people who have no personal interest in her welfare. Offer her a ten-dollar a month-and-board chance to live with those she loves best, and then plan a poultry or dairy bee campaign to get the money back.

I have not much confidence in the cry "Back to the land" when it applies to men and women without rural experience. I have every confidence however, in farm boys and girls coming home to familiar work.

If you have no boy or girl to bring back, just stop to think of some neighbor's child whose parents are perhaps dead. Write to such a one, and I am greatly mistaken if you will not find such a response as you never anticipated.

Young Canadians are proud and independent. They will suffer in silence and pretty nearly starve before asking help—but many a one writes me now that he or she would gladly return to the country if some definite arrangement could be entered into of a business sort, whereby the business could be run as a partnership and where hard work would be rewarded with adequate remuneration.

Oh, if we could keep our young people on the farm and bring back all who would come we should soon solve the problem of increased production.

INVESTMENT OPPORTUNITY

Wanted capital to develop one of the most valuable natural resources in the Dominion, unlimited quantity of raw material to be manufactured into a commodity for which there is an almost unlimited demand. If you have one hundred to five hundred dollars or more to invest where your investment will be well secured, then write for particulars and prospectus which will convince you of the absolutely sure and large returns. Address P.O. Box 102, Hamilton, Ont.

Monkeys That Roar Like Lions.

There are few countries where there are as many interesting and unusual animals as in the jungles and forests of Panama. The strangest of these are "the black howlers." These are monkeys, and they resemble other monkeys but they roar like lions. They frighten hunters away as much as do genuine lions. When there are a half dozen of them or more together the noises they make are almost deafening.

It is they who frequently make a queer, booming and roaring howl that resounds from one end of the jungle to the other. Rivals of these are the noisy parrots that shout in the morning until the jungle fairly rings with their tumult. There are also the grotesque toucans which at times vie with the parrots, the calling of the parrakeets and the peculiar chorus-like call of the chachalaca or wild turkey. At night mysterious noises are heard everywhere from unknown sources, but the strangest of these are the strange monkeys.

Minard's Liniment Cures Diphtheria.

Always Harvest-time.

Not all of us, probably, understood a statement that Britain might soon be expecting cargoes of wheat from the Argentine because we are so accustomed to our own August harvest-time.

But the harvests of the world are spread practically over every month in the year, and that is why the supply of wheat is continuous. The harvest in Australia, New Zealand, and the Argentine, is reaped in January. Eastern India and Upper Egypt reap theirs in February and March. The German harvest is also ahead of ours being, in favorable conditions, reaped in July.

Not all have realized that part of the far-reaching war plans of the Germans was to declare war when everything had been "safely gathered in," and the laborers free to be called up for another "harvest."

Turkey, Italy, Spain, Portugal, Southern France, and the vast wheat-growing tracts of the United States (Georgia, Louisiana, Alabama, Virginia, Kentucky, Kansas) gather their harvests in June. Other parts are ripe in July. Canada has two harvest months—July in Upper Canada, August in Lower Canada.

Northern Russia's harvest is ready in September, or even as late as October, as is Scotland, Norway, and Sweden. The Burmah harvest is in December; that of South Africa in November. Texas and Florida have May harvests.

Belgium, Holland, Denmark, and important Manitoba, are, like ourselves, August reapers.

Corns Cured Quick

Applied in 5 Seconds

Sore, blistering feet from corn-pinched toes can be cured by Putnam's Extractor in 24 hours. "Putnam's" soothes away that drawing pain, cures instantly, makes the feet feel good at once. Get a 25c. bottle of "Putnam's" to-day.

Unexpected Chicken.

A stranger arriving in a small town hailed a passing resident and inquired, "Can you direct me to a place where they take boarders?"

"Hemmandhaws keeps 'em," the man replied.

"Is that a pretty good place?"

"Fair to middlin'."

"Have chicken very often for dinner?"

"Reg'lar and unexpected."

"What do you mean by regular and unexpected?"

"They have chicken reg'lar every Sunday——

"I see——

"And they also have it when an automobile unexpectedly kills one in the road."

Minard's Liniment Co., Limited.

Dear Sirs,—This fall I got thrown on a fence and hurt my chest very bad, so I could not work and it hurt me to breathe. I tried all kinds of Liniments and they did me no good. One bottle of MINARD'S LINIMENT, warmed on flannels and applied on my breast, cured me completely.

C. H. COSSABOOM.

Rossway, Digby Co., N.S.

Best Hour for Work.

It is a curious fact in psychology that nobody can stay at the same mental and physical level for twenty-four hours together. In the morning you are more matter-of-fact, for instance, than later in the day. It is in the morning that the best brain work is done—brain work of the sort that requires industry and clear thinking. And it is about eleven in the morning that our body reaches its highest point of energy. In other words, you are stronger, though almost imperceptibly, at eleven in the morning than at three in the afternoon. You reach that highest point twice in the day, for about five in the afternoon the muscular energy has risen again. But from five onward it declines steadily all through the evening, and on till between two and three o'clock in the morning.

Minard's Liniment Cures Garget in Cows

Forests sometimes take fire through the branches of trees being rubbed together by the violence of the wind, and thus producing the friction necessary to ignite them.

"La Marseillaise" obtained its name from the fact that it was first sung in Paris by a band of revolutionaries hailing from Marseilles.

WEAR FLEET FOOT SHOES

FOR EVERY SPORT AND RECREATION

SOLD BY ALL GOOD SHOE DEALERS
WORN BY EVERY MEMBER OF THE FAMILY

No Terror.

"Have you thought of the expense of living if you marry my daughter? Have you considered the bills?

"Bills have no terror for me, sir." "They haven't? Why not?"

"Nobody will trust me, sir."

Minard's Liniment Cures Colds, Etc.

The Usual Fate.

"I suppose the seeds you planted are coming up fast?"

"Yes, indeed. Almost as fast as our neighbor's chickens can work."

LOW FARES TO THE CALIFORNIA EXPOSITIONS VIA CHICAGO & NORTH-WESTERN RY

Four splendid daily trains from the New Passenger Terminal, Chicago, to San Francisco, Los Angeles and San Diego. Choice of Scenic and Direct Routes through the best of the West. Something to see all the way. Double track. Automatic electric safety signals all the way. Let us plan your trip and furnish folders and full particulars. E. H. Bennett, G.A., 44 Yonge St., Toronto, Ontario.

Sewed Up.

"How did you get that stitch in your side?"

"Oh, I got hemmed in a crowd."

YOUR OWN DRUGGIST WILL TELL YOU Try Murine Eye Remedy for Red, Weak, Watery Eyes and Granulated Lyelids. No Smarting—Just Soothing Comfort. Write for Book of the Eye, Free. Murine Eye Remedy Co., Chicago.

In the sixteenth century dictionaries were chained in the schoolhouses as Bibles were in the churches, by reason of their costliness and rarity.

Minard's Liniment Cures Distemper.

The ten countries with the largest populations are, in the order named, China, India, Russia, the United States, Germany, Japan, the United Kingdom, France, Italy and Austria.

FARMS FOR RENT.

IF LOOKING FOR A FARM, CONSULT me. I have over two hundred on my list, located in the best sections of Ontario. All sizes. H. W. Dawson, Brampton.

NEWSPAPERS FOR SALE.

PRINT-MAKING NEWS AND JOB offices for sale in good Ontario towns. The most useful and interesting of all businesses. Full information on application to Wilson Publishing Company, Limited, Toronto.

WOOL.

WOOL, WOOL, WOOL, SELL DIRECT and get the top prices. 35 cents for fine washed wool. 25 cents unwashed. Large or small lots bought. Check sent same day shipment received. Tumbis & Sons, 92 Wellington, Montreal.

RECORDS.

A LL BRITISH GRAMOPHONE RECORDS 10in. double side, 65c. each. Send 2c for special introductory offer of two records (four selections), including H.M. Irish Guards Band. Catalogue free. Guardsman Record Agency, 230 Board of Trade, Montreal.

MISCELLANEOUS.

CANCER, TUMORS, LUMPS, ETC., internal and external, cured without pain by our home treatment. Write us before too late. Dr. Bellman Medical Co., Limited, Collingwood, Ont.

KERMATH Marine Engines

"America's Standard 4 Cycle Marine Motor" 4 Cycle, 2 Cylinder, 12 to 30 H.P. Engine with Reverse Gear. Write for Catalogue. Kermath Manufacturing Co., 1853 Jefferson Ave., Detroit, Mich.

Paddles, Cushions, Oars, Seats, Rugs, and all Canoe and Skiff Furnishings.

The Peterborough Canoe Co. Limited. PETERBOROUGH, ONT.

"Overstern" V Bottom Motor Boat $55.00

Freight Prepaid to any Railway Station in Ontario. Length 15 Ft., Beam 3 Ft. 9 In., Depth 1 Ft. 6 In. ANY MOTOR FITS.

Specification No. 28 giving engine prices on request. Get our quotations on "The Penetang Line" Commercial and Pleasure Launches, Row boats and Canoes.

THE GIDLEY BOAT CO., LIMITED, PENETANG, CAN.

The Paisley Advocate

PAISLEY, JULY 15th, 1915

VILLAGE COUNCIL

Council met on 7th July. Members all present. Minutes of last meeting read and adopted.

The Paisley agricultural society per W R Barnett requested a continuation of their annual grant of $50 from the council.

Mr J R McArthur addressed the council urging the extermination of the pest of weeds.

Dr Houston, Messrs McBride and Barnett from the school board requested a permanent supply of water at the school buildings.

The clerk reported that Judge Klein would hear Paisley on Thursday, July 22, at 10 a m, to hear appeals from the Paisley court of Revision, and that the clerk of the County Judge and that the amount required to be raised and levied by this municipality for county purposes for the current year is: Provincial War Tax $350.97; General County Rate, $836.58; Municipal Equivalent, $18.40; Total $1205.95.

A communication from the secretary of the local board of health was read re requirements of the district office of health to the way of sanitary conveniences.—Referred to property committee.

Communication from the clerk of the peace stating that in answer to request of council, George Stewart had been appointed a county constable.

Motion Messrs More and Grant.—That this council grant the sum of $50.00 to the Paisley Agricultural Society.—Carried.

Motion Messrs George and Collins.—That the clerk notify the night constable that the duties of his office must be performed by himself only, and not by a substitute unless by permission of the reeve or some member of council.—Carried.

The school board asked for and got permission to tap the water main at the corner of Queen and Inkerman streets, the school board to bear the expense and the work to be done under the supervision of the village authorities.

The following payments were ordered to be made, on motion of Messrs George and Collins, viz: Murdoch Lesteh, fuel salary, $41.66; Geo S Stewart, June salary, $33.33; John H Maurer, June scavenging, $24.00; Weighmaster, one half months receipts, $9.50; Paisley Electric Light Co., $66.37, less not; Paisley Electric Light Co., for hand stand, $6.30; J H Maurer, gravel, $10.20; J J Turner & Son, Dominion Ensign, $9.35; Mundevloh & Co., Dials, $2.35; Firemen's pay list, $35.50; Ballachey, Laidlaw & Co., $4.05; The Cen. postage and sundries, $7.39.

Grant—Moss—That whereas the Paisley school board has asked permission to tap the water main at the corner of Queen and Inkerman streets for the purpose of supplying the school with water, such permission is hereby granted provided that such tapping shall be done under the supervision of the chairman of the fire and light committee, and that all expenses shall be borne by the school board and further that the school board shall pay regular rates for the water.—Carried.

Normalites Passed

Six Paisley school graduates who have been attending Normal School were awarded teachers' certificates at the close of the term, viz: Ella Treple, Jean Hamilton, Thos Porter, Melville Reid and Petrie Moffat secured second class, and Rose Eryce, third class.

Young Pastor Appreciated

Rev. Jos W. Stewart, who has been filling the pulpit of New Toronto Methodist Church for the past two years, has been appointed pastor of the Drew congregation, and began work in his new field this month. Before leaving New Toronto he was presented with a beautiful clock, accompanied by an address from the Ladies' Aid. Mr. Stewart is a son of Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Stewart of Greenock.

Autos Collide

On the evening of Dominion Day two cars met on the road at Kay's bridge, with the result that both were in such cases—injury to property and danger to life. Mr. Dixon, of Cargill, was the only person hurt, his back being strained so that he was laid up for several days. He was driving his own car at the time. The other was a Paisley machine, which stood the racking better, but both were subjects for treatment in the repair shop.

Decline to Pay Damage Claim

Elderslie Council has been presented with a bill of damages from Mr. J. H Wismer, of Port Elgin, who had his auto overturned on the Elora road, south of Paisley, about three weeks ago. The council do not propose to pay the bill. According to the information they can gather, they do not consider the municipality is liable, the driver of the auto having taken the side of the road, instead of keeping to the centre.

Shooting Accident

Mr. Angus McInnes, of 10th con. Bruce, had his arm punctured by a small bullet on Friday evening of last week while in Paisley. He had been doing some carpenter work for Mr. John Stoddart, and met with the mishap while coming out of the latter's house from supper. The bullet was discharged from a 22 cal. rifle in the hands of Mr. P. C. Kennedy, who was sniping at sparrows from the back window of his harness shop. Mr. Kennedy is very much distressed as a result of the accident.

More Soldiers from Bruce Co.

A recruiting office was opened in Paisley armories between July 6th and 13th, to receive enlistments for the 34th Batt. C.E.F. Sixteen young men came to enroll, of whom ten were accepted, and these left for the London training camp on Wednesday morning. Below are the names, with the address from which they came:

J S Hasek McNeill, Tiverton
Gordon Church, "
E Reichenbach, Walkerton
Gabriel Haas, "
A M Ballantyne "
Arthur Farrer "
F O Summers, Hepworth
Percy H Ruff, Tara
James Lowthian, Paisley
J Smith, Allenford

The boys were all in town for a day or two, and on Tuesday evening arrangements were made by which they spent a few hours together in a sociable gathering, with music and lunch provided, also a brief, kindly address delivered by Rev. Mr. Diehl.

S.S. Excursion

About 450 tickets were sold for the S S excursion to Southampton on July 6. The weather was superfine, and the day at the beach was enjoyed by all, but particularly by the younger excursionists.

Bowling on the Green

Messrs A. T. Bonathan, J B Fleming, J. R. Simons, Geo. Wickford (ck), R. McKenzie, A. Shoemaker, Dr. Allen, and I Shoemaker (ps.), compris d two rinks of bowlers who competed at Owen Sound tournament. Two rinks went over to Cargill one afternoon and had a series of games with the club there. Thirty two clubs are playing at Port Elgin tournament this week including two from Paisley club, viz: Messrs Muir, Fleming, Dr Black, F C Ryan (skip), Dr Allen, Alex Fraser, G B Bell, I Shoemaker (skip).

Red Cross Benefit

Tomorrow (Thursday) afternoon, 15th inst., Mr and Mrs. S. Ballachey will give a tea in the grove, the gross proceeds of which will be given to the Red Cross Society. Admission—20c; exhibition under ten years 15 cents; children in arms free. The entrance to the grove is on the back street. The Paisley Brass Band is expected on hand to attend. Everybody welcome. Be early and remain as long as you please. Everybody help the Red Cross and spend a pleasant evening in the grove. If the weather is unfavorable it will be postponed to Friday.

Special Prizes for the Fair

A handsome list of special prizes has been contributed by local business men and some generous outsiders to be awarded to exhibitors and competitors at Paisley Fair on Sept. 28th and 29th. The full list will appear in the Prize List, which is now being printed. This has been the one and only feature lacking in the Paisley Fair prize list and programme for some time past, and now that the managers have been so well supported in their canvass for specials it may safely anticipate a greater interest than ever to be taken in the fair by many people, and the solid success of the show will be of surpassing substantiality. Get a copy of the Prize List as soon as it is ready, and begin your preparation for boosting our own big fair.

Fordyce—Overand

A quiet and very pretty wedding took place at the Methodist Parsonage, Cargill, on Wednesday, June 30th, when Wesley Overand of Eden Grove, and Mary Marie Fordyce, also of Eden Grove and lately teacher at Tottenham, were united in bonds of holy matrimony by Rev W. J. Fiddes, Ph B. The groom's gift to the bride was a gold brooch set with pearls, while the bride's present to the groom was a gold watch fob with the signets of the lodges of which he is a member. On the Monday evening following the wedding a large company of friends gathered at the home of the young couple and showered them with a goodly number of kitchen utensils as a mark of their mutual good will and esteem. After the presentation of the gifts a very pleasant and sociable evening was spent in games and chat, and before leaving a splendid supper was served to the guests. The good will of the community goes with the young couple as they start out on their journey of life together.

Paisley 10, Southampton 9

The Paisley lacrosse team sprung an other surprise when they defeated Southampton here on Thursday afternoon last in an intermediate O.A.L.A. game by the score of 10-9. Some very good lacrosse was witnessed during the contest, which went twenty minutes overtime before a decision was reached. Most of the goals scored on both sides were the direct result of good combination and team play—something which has been lacking in the locals' games during the past few years until this season. In the first quarter Paisley got the jump on the visitors by scoring three times to their opponents once. The second period was exactly the reverse, and although the locals netted one in quick order Southampton ran in three in succession, making the score at half time 4-4. Each team scored two in the third quarter, leaving it still a tie. The fourth quarter opened with some very fast work on both sides and after five minutes of play Southampton took a one goal lead. Not to be outdone the locals came back with two more in five and two minutes respectively, and just when it seemed all over but the shouting the visitors evened it up by intercepting a pass near the Paisley goal with scarcely a minute of play to go, during which time neither team could get the deciding counter. The first ten minutes of overtime began with a good for Southampton in the first minute, but two minutes later Paisley again evened it up after some good combination play. After six minutes of the second period of overtime Earl, passed the locals scored again, and though both goals had some narrow escapes during the remaining minutes of play there was no more scoring, and the game ended with the home boys on the long end of a 10-9 score. This win made Paisley a tie with Chesley for the leadership of this district, both these teams having won three games and lost one. The locals play in Tara this Thursday. The Paisley line-up was: F. Blue, L. Rankin, G. Purdy, W. Archer, A. Archer, E. Rolman, I. Ellis, J. Hamilton, C. Rolston and J. Forrester.

Following is the standing of the teams in O.A.L.A. district No. 3:

	Won	Lost
Paisley	3	1
Chesley	3	1
Southampton	3	3
Tara	0	4

Children Cry
FOR FLETCHER'S
CASTORIA

THE IDEAL VACATION ROUTE

The Canadian Pacific conveniently reaches Pelut Au Baril, French and Pickerel Rivers, Severn River, Muskoka Lakes, Kawartha Lakes, Rideau Lakes, Lake Ontario resorts, etc. If you contemplate a trip of any nature consult Canadian Pacific ticket agents or write M G Murphy, District Passenger Agent, Toronto.

BORN

MEWBINNEY—In Bruce Tp., on July 9th, the wife of Mr. Alex Mewbinney, a daughter.

DOBSON—In Paisley, on July 6th to Mr and Mrs John Dobson, a son.

DIED

FISHER—At Paisley, on June 30th, Archibald Fisher, aged 79 years.

KIDNEY DISEASE WAS KILLING HIM

Until He Used "Fruit-a-tives" The Great Kidney Remedy

HAGERSVILLE, ONT., Aug. 26th, 1913.

"About two years ago, I found my health in a very bad state. My Kidneys were not doing their work and I was all run down in condition. Having seen 'Fruit-a-tives' advertised, I decided to try them. Their action was mild, and the result all that could be expected.

My Kidneys resumed their normal action after I had taken upwards of a dozen boxes and I regard fruit-a-tives as a splendid remedy. Today, I am as well as ever."

B. A. KELLY.

50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size 25c. At dealers or sent on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

This is the kind of Wall Paper Artist We Do NOT Employ—

No sloppy job like this done by our men. It costs you no more to employ clean, careful workmen, than men like the above.

Our Wall Paper Stock

We have just put into stock the new est and

MOST ARTISTIC PATTERNS.

Complete range of all lines for parlor, hall, dining-room, bed-room or kitchen papers on hand, ready for delivery. We would like to show you our different sample books. Stock on hand of all samples shown.

H. GLOVER
PAPERHANGER AND DECORATOR

Entrance Results

CHESLEY
71 candidates—43 successful

Names not in order of merit

Beulah Ankenman	Wilfrid Hetherington
Mabel Armstrong	Ida
Lamona Bell	Cordelia Hoehn (honors)
May Brown	Pearl Buckley (honors)
Stewart Jackson	Clayton Lackie
Samuel Lang	Clifford Calhoun
Andrew Mair	John Calhoun
Janet MacKay	Jean Cameron
Margaret MacCaw	Elsie Clements
Harold McCullough	Margaret Crawford
Irene McKelvey	Margaret M Dash
Clara Miller	Clarence Davison (honors)
Ruby Moore	Ada B Eby
Edith Ross (honors)	Kathleen Elliott
Beulah Ruthven	Ottie Elliott (honors)
Alfred Sachs	Armand Ferguson (honors)
Viola Schneider	Mary Floyd
Allen Waterman	Ruby Hannore
Helen Wieck	Bobbie Hethering-ton
Marjorie Wilkins	Jessie Young
Pearl Wilson	Ella Lockeat
Jessie Young	Otto Malloskie
Ella Lockeat
Otto Malloskie

CARGILL
25 candidates—23 successful

Frank Donnelly	Joseph Clancy
Florence Young	Stella Scott
Ethel Ashton	Aileen Gilchrist
Lorna Elder	Edward McNab
Wilfred Brown	Louis Phillippi
Leander Reneweu	Edith Jordan
Martha Fordyce	Greta Kerry

Children Cry
FOR FLETCHER'S
CASTORIA

TORONTO LIVE STOCK MARKETS

Toronto, Tuesday, July 13th, 1915

Butchers' picked	$8 20	$8 35
do common	8 00	7 60
do cows	7 25	7 00
do bulls	6 75	7 75
Stockers, choice	6 60	7 00
do	5 60	6 00
Heavy feeders	7 00	7 50
Short keep	7 10	7 30
Milch cows, choice	80 00	100 00
do common	40 00	60 00
Sheep, ewes	6 00	6 50
Bucks	4 00	5 00
Spring Lambs, each	10 00	12 00
Calves	7 00	9 00
Hogs, f.o.b	9 00
do fed and watered	9 25

PAISLEY MARKET

Fall wheat, per bushel	$1 00	1 10
Spring wheat, per bush	1 00	1 00
Buckwheat	70	75
Peas, per bush	1 25	1 25
Oats, per bush	45	50
Barley, per bush	65	75
Potatoes, per bag	40	60
Butter, in pound prints	30	30
Eggs, fresh, per doz	23	25
Hay, per ton		15 00

Janitor Wanted

APPLICATIONS for the position of caretaker of Paisley school will be received by the undersigned up to July 31st, at 8 p.m. W. R. BARNETT, Sec'y School Board.

BALLACHEY, LAIDLAW & CO.

"The Store with the Quality"

Seven Years of Progress!

IT is just seven years since the present firm started business. These years have shown continuous progess and growth, and at this anniversary we wish to thank our many friends and customers who have made this progress possible.

We think we have the good will of most of the people around Paisley, and we also think that our policy of absolute satisfaction, coupled with impartial treatment of all our customers, has had a great deal to do with this feeling.

We shall greatly appreciate any business you favor us with in future, and we feel sure you will find it to your advantage as much as to ours.

BALLACHEY, LAIDLAW & CO.

Both 'Phones——All Produce

Perfect Sight
a matter of Foresight.

Many cases of eye trouble are averted by early application of proper lenses. Present neglect means future trouble.

A Stopped Watch

One that will not go AT ALL—doesn't cause as much bother as one that runs now fast, now slow, in an erratic fashion.

The first you don't pretend to depend upon—the other is a constant source of annoyance.

Most people can afford a watch, but no one can afford an uncertain fast and slow one.

And when our repair department is so close at hand there is really no excuse for carrying anything but an accurate time-piece, no matter what the first cost was.

Consult us about any watch troubles that may arise.

I. SHOEMAKER
JEWELER AND OPTICIAN

Shoes and Groceries

Call in and see our large stock of Gents', Ladies' and Children's Blue Shoes of the best quality and latest style at very reasonable prices.

We have a full stock of White Leather and Canvas Shoes.

We can supply you with all kinds of fresh Groceries bought from the best grocery firms. Try them.

Eggs taken in exchange

H. PFAFF & SON'S
SHOE STORE

CANADIAN PACIFIC

The World's Finest Fresh Water Trip

Steamers leave Port McNicoll Tuesdays, Wednesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays, for Sault Ste Marie, Port Arthur and Fort William.

The steamer "Manitoba," sailing from Port McNicoll on Wednesdays, will call at Owen Sound, leaving that point 10.30 p.m.

STEAMSHIP EXPRESS

leaves Toronto 12.45 p.m. daily except Friday, making direct connection with steamers at Port McNicoll on sailing days.

PACIFIC COAST TOURS
AT LOW FARES
INCLUDING
"CALIFORNIA EXPOSITIONS"

Particulars from W. H. McFarlane, Agent, or write M. G. Murphy, D.P.A., Toronto.

Central Business College Stratford, Ont.

Ontario's most successful practical training school. Teachers are competent, courses are thorough and graduates succeed. We received more applications this month than we had students graduate during the past six months. The three applications received most recently were for lady stenographer at $7.50 a week per at $1000 and commercial teacher at $1400 per annum. Business men want our graduates. Get our free catalogue at once.

D. A. McLACHLAN, Principal

Court Saugeen, C.O.F. No. 66

MEETS in Oddfellows Hall on the second and fourth Wednesday evening of each month, at which time all business members are welcome.

J. E. ARCHER, R.S.
W. ARCHER, C.R.

Ahiram Lodge, No. 205, I.O.O.F

MEETS every Tuesday evening at Oddfellows Hall. Visiting brothers always welcome.

P. J. F. HOUSTON, N.G.
R. B. GRANT, R.S.

PUMP REPAIRING

THE undersigned having purchased Mr. W. Hasketh's outfit, is prepared to do all kinds of pump repairing, also furnish repairs, such as cylinders, valves and other parts of wooden or iron pumps. A few Disk wooden pumps for sale. Wood turning done. Turned whiffletrees and neckyokes for sale.

House Phone W. RAE

A Representative Wanted

For the Old Reliable

Fonthill Nurseries

to sell in Paisley and district

A chance of a lifetime to do a big trade among farmers in fruit stock, as well as good ornamental business in town.

Exclusive territory. Handsome free outfit. Highest commissions paid. Write for terms.

STONE & WELLINGTON
Toronto

—Clubbing rates with all the city dailies and weeklies.

T. H. GEORGE

Issuer of Marriage Licenses
Notary Public and Conveyancer

Land, Loan, Insurance and General Agent. Notes, Book Accounts and other Debts Collected. Conveyancing Neatly and Cheaply Executed.

—PARMS LOANS A SPECIALTY—

Offices in Putnam Block, Queen St. S., Paisley

NEW TERM OPENS SEPT. 1st at the

NORTHERN Business College

OWEN SOUND

Catalogue on Request

C. A. FLEMING, Principal. G. D. FLEMING, Secretary.

Business Directory

JOHN SUTHERLAND & SONS
LIMITED
INSURANCE—FIRE AND MARINE
GUELPH - ONT.

J. C. GIBSON
Issuer of Marriage Licenses
Paisley, Ont.

LEGAL

D. FORRESTER, B.A., L.L.B.
BARRISTER, SOLICITOR AND NOTARY PUBLIC
OFFICE—TOWN HALL, PAISLEY

MEDICAL

DR. M. C. BLACK,
M.D., C.M., F.T.M.C.S.E.
Former Graduate of Trinity University and Polyclinic, New York. SPECIALTY—Diseases of the eye, ear nose and throat.

DR. H. E. GAGE, Physician, Surgeon and Accoucheur. Specialist in Diseases of the Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat. Late house surgeon Kingston General Hospital. Office hours 9 to 10 a.m., 1 to 3 p.m.
Successor to Dr. O'Neill

DR. P. J. F. HOUSTON,
Honor Graduate of Toronto University and Licentiate of the Royal Colleges of Physicians and Surgeons of Edinburgh and Glasgow, post graduate Coombe Lying in Hospital, Dublin, late assistant Edinburgh Eye Infirmary, Specialty—Diseases of the Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat.
Successor to Dr. Morrison.

DENTAL

DR. A. H ALLEN
DENTIST, formerly of Toronto.
Graduate of the Royal Colleges of Dental Surgeries of Ontario. Honor Graduate of Toronto University Dental Department. Master of Dental Surgery, Graduate of the Mayo Post Graduate School of Prosthetic Dentistry, New York. Office over Morse's Drug store, opposite the Post Office.

VETERINARY

R. B. GRANT, V. S., Graduate of Ontario Veterinary College, Toronto. Government Inspector of contagious diseases and apply Tuberculin test in cattle. Also inspect export stock and issue certificates for same. Oxygen gas treatment for milk fever. Office and residence opposite the old Northern Hotel.

AUCTIONEERS

R. C. PEARCE, Licensed Auctioneer. Sales attended in all parts of the County on reasonable terms. Orders left at the Advocate Office will receive prompt attention. Telephone at house.

R. J. NESBITT, Licensed Auctioneer for the County of Bruce, is prepared to conduct sales in any part of the county. Terms reasonable. Leave order at ADVOCATE office or address Ginale P.O.

A Great many People Buy Shoes Here

Who are of the come again and again kind.

Now, that wouldn't be so if our Shoes didn't make it so, would it?

All this talk of ours is only intended to get you to be a tryer of our Shoes, that's all.

After that its up to the Shoes to hold you a steady customer.

They generally do it, but if they SHOULDN'T do it in your case, we want you to tell us about it, because there is a mistake somewhere. And we want to make it right.

It matters not what your present or future needs in Shoes may be, we GUARANTEE you a good service.

BUTTER AND EGGS WANTED
For which We Pay the Highest Price

F. Carter & Son

Goods Delivered — Both 'Phones

THE STORE WITH THE QUALITY

Use Plymouth Binder Twine. We sell it.

Headquarters for

PLYMOUTH
Binder Twine

"Good morning, Tom, I see you are having some trouble with your Binder."

"Yes, I am having a lot of trouble with it, and I have tried ever so many kinds of Binder Twine, but it's no use. It simply won't work."

"Well, I don't wonder at it not working for you. Why, you are using twine of inferior quality. No binder would work satisfactorily with that Twine."

"All Twine is the same, is it not?"

"That's what I thought, until I used Plymouth Twine. I had the same trouble with my binder as you are having now. I was advised to use Plymouth Twine. I did so, and now I never have any trouble. One ball of Plymouth Twine will convince you that it is the best Twine on the market."

"I hear a lot of talking about Plymouth Twine, but always thought all Twine was the same. I believe you're right, Bob, the next Twine I buy will be Plymouth."

Use Plymouth Binder Twine. We sell it.

W. H. DAVISON

BRUCE PHONE — BELL PHONE

Subscription Arrears to The Advocate

THERE is several hundred dollars still due us on arrears for subscription to The Advocate. We have quite regularly sent our accounts out in an endeavor to collect all. Some, however, have neglected to respond to our request with payment. Subscribers who neglect the little matter of remitting regularly do not, perhaps, understand the position we are placed in because of not receiving from them what is due us. We do not believe there are more than only a few who would deliberately beat us out of our dues, and we do not propose to treat delinquents as rogues unless we actually find they are such. Nevertheless, we are obliged to make a special effort to collect all arrears, and we have handed over to The Publishers' Adjusting Association a list of behind-handers who will hear from them immediately. Prompt attention to the first notice of indebtedness will save additional expense.

We derive no particular pleasure from the pursuit of delinquents, but it seems that it is a necessary part of the business of managing a newspaper office, so we must, that's all.

Kindly avoid all unpleasantness by remitting the amount of your account at once.

Yours truly,

D. McKENZIE, Publisher

SCHOOL REPORTS

PAISLEY PUBLIC SCHOOL

ROOM III

Sr III — Honors — Farewell Fletcher. Pass — Marguerite Hopper, Robert Irving, Rena Wakefield, Velma Pfaff, Rose Woodcock, Gertrude Irving. Recommended — Grant McArthur.

Jr III — Honors — Annie McKinnon, Earl Brown, Victor Godwin, Bessie Pacey, Daisy Vance. Pass — Mary Parker, Malcolm McKinnon, Scotfield Russel, Charles Rae, Gilbert Little, Belle Stark, Lillian Pfaff. MAY F. BOYLE, Teacher

ROOM II

Sr II to Jr III — Honors — Ross McKenzie, Eva McMahon, Viola Evans, Maude Hepburn, Catherine Pearce. Pass — John Scott, Fred Petrie, Howard Blue, Ella Brown, Howard Pearce.

Intermediate II to Sr II — Honors — Florence Bell, Ella Halsall, Hettie Godwin, Marjorie Bird and Jack Shoemaker, (equal), Helen McArthur. Pass — Reta Leeson, Oscar Hopper, Rosella Clayton, Sherwood Collins, Wilfred Hoy. Recommended — John Sutherland.

Jr II to Intermediate II — Honors — Nellie Watson, Hazel Hay, Hugh D McArthur, Angus McKinnon, Willie Mitchell. Pass — Crogan Irving, Verna Rae and Paul Oliver (equal), Phoebe Moorland, Russel Grant, J D Babcock, Charlotte Sutherland. INA C GALBRAITH, Teacher

PRIMARY ROOM

Promoted to Form II — Honors — Edna Brown, Mary Fletcher, Rea Godwin, Oreta Fleming, Berton Irving, Mary Sutherland, Elroy Hunt, David Leitch. Pass — Melville Brown, Jack Pearce. Absent from tests — Dora Nicholson.

Class I — Teddy Muir, Jean Grant, Gordon Bailey, George Fleming, Gervais Heath. Absent from tests — Douglas Pacey.

Class C — Bruce McKenzie, Sadie McKinnon, Jack McArthur, Rhea Irving, Leeta Hepburn, Alvin Blue, Viola Fleming. Absent from tests — Wilfred Shoemaker, Isobel Pearce, Glen Sinclair, Geo Clayton.

Class D — Gladys Bird, Alma Tooke, Arthur Murcar, Mabel Nicholson, Velma Rae, Stanley Hills, Lena Maxwell, Elmer McLeod, Willie Sutherland, Mabel Pearce, Bessie Murcar.

Class E — Wallace Brown, Phoebe Heath, Ivy Godwin, Annie Oliviher, Vera Gallinger, Rennie Bell, Ross McArthur, Mary Little, Grace Stark, Albert Brown, Rita Brigham, Howard Davison, Mary Plaw, Wilmer Irving, Helen Fleming, Willie Tooke, Gillies Parker.

ELIZABETH MILLER, Teacher

CARRIAGE PAINT SHOP

The undersigned has rented the Gibson store building on Queen St. South, where he is prepared to do Painting of all kinds, also repairing and retrimming of all kinds of vehicles. Over 25 years' experience in the best carriage shops in Canada and U.S.

W. JACK

Municipality of Village of Paisley

TAKE Notice: That His Honor the Judge will sit at the council chamber on Thursday, 22nd of July, 1915, at 10 a.m. to hear appeals from Paisley Court of Revision re assessments, 1915. J. C. GIBSON, Clerk.

THE "RAVENING WOLFE" IS CHIEF OF STAFF

Descendant of Man in Whose Arms the Great General Wolfe Died at Quebec

Chief of the Imperial staff of the British army is the proud title of Lt.-General Sir James Wolfe Murray, a man in whom Canadians should be interested because of the fact that he is a lineal descendant of Col. Murray of the Black Watch, in whose arms General James Wolfe died upon the Plains of Abraham before Quebec in 1760. Col. Murray named his son James Wolfe, and the two names of England's great hero have been handed down from generation to generation. The present James Wolfe was born on March 18, 1853.

This boy in due time went to the aristocratic Glenalmond school in Perthshire. From there he went to Harrow, thence to the Royal Military Academy at Woolwich, getting a commission in the Gunners in 1873. At the "shop" no one supposed that the young Scot would have a particularly brilliant career but it was recognized that he could work for ten hours at a stretch and was extremely long headed. It is told of Wolfe Murray that on seeing the Pyramids for the first time he was observed to be pondering deeply over the spectacle. Everyone believed him to be vastly impressed by their antiquity and grandeur until he solemnly delivered himself as follows: "Only to think of these things standing here all these thousands years. Give me a couple of batteries and I would guarantee to knock the rubbish to bits in a week."

The "Ravening Wolfe"

Why he should ever have been called the "Ravening Wolfe" is not clear. There is no record to any mass of his ever having attacked a sheep-fold; on the contrary, he has always been known as a most staid and respectable member of society who has been twice married, and brought up two sons and three daughters in the way they should go. In the bad old days when Wolfe Murray first entered the service, subalterns considered that it was the proper thing to play hard and work not at all. But Wolfe Murray was a hard hitter. Play he did not greatly care about, but he worked all day, studied Russian, and passed for the Staff College. It was probably there he learned that a rifle is a more or less serviceable arm for the destruction of one's enemies. In his early youth he, like most gunners, had a fine contempt for that weapon, and on an inspecting officer questioning him about his battery's musketry progress looked vague and astonished. On being pressed for an answer he admitted to knowing that his men had some hand-guns, but added that "he did not know what they used them for."

His Chance Came

On leaving the Staff College he went to the Intelligence Department at the War Office, and then off to Aldershot. At last a chance came. Britain had trouble with a dusky potentate. A small British garrison was shut up in Cognasi, and Sir James Willcocks was despatched with a force to relieve it. Major Wolfe Murray was appointed as commandant of the lines of communication. Detail and hard work suited him excellently; he got a decoration and a brevet. His job in Ashanti had done him so well that when the South African War came along he got a similar one in Natal, and was mentioned in despatches both by Sir George White and Sir Redvers Buller. By this time he was a major-general, and went out to India as Quartermaster-General. His superiors looked on what he had done and found that it was good, so they revived an ancient billet, by name Master-General of the Ordnance, and this they gave to Wolfe Murray. The chief duty of the person holding this job was to give tips to those in authority over him and let them know when guns, rifles, and ammunition were reaching vanishing point in the arsenals—in other words, to get accident economists out of scrapes. Murray could do this more than well because detail and organization were as the breath of his nostrils in gratitude for all he had saved everybody he was made a divisional general in India and later succeeded the late Sir Charles Douglas as Chief of the Imperial Staff.

The Scottish Football Association announces that 1,500 Scottish football players have enlisted, as well as 2,000 non-playing members.

France is to have a new war medal, a cross with the inscription "1914-15," suspended by a green ribbon with a red border.

Malaya is presenting to the British Army Council a gift of fifteen aircraft. was fired from a twelve-inch gun it Killed Classical Quotations.

In tracing the decline of the use of classical quotations in legislative bodies the Boston Herald cites the case of Edward Everett, who once concluded a stately speech in congress with a long, sonorous and superbly modulated citation of a passage from Tacitus and then took his seat. No sooner was he through than up sprang a burly member from what was then a frontier state of the west. He had once been an Indian agent, and no sooner was he on his legs than he began to pour out a vehement harangue in Choctaw. After awhile the speaker called him to order.

"I don't see why my freedom of speech should be abridged!" he cried. "You let the gentleman from Massachusetts run on, and I didn't understand the first word of his lingo any better than he does mine."

The scene was described as very comical, but it struck the deathknell of further classical quotations in a congress that had not the ray of an idea what the unintelligible lingo of Cicero and Tacitus was driving at.

Going to Bed in India.

Going to bed in India is a very different process from going to bed at home. To begin with, it is a far less formal process. There is no shutting the door, no cutting yourself off from the outer world, no going up stairs and finally no getting into bed. You merely lie down on your bed, which, with its bedding, is as simple as to be worth describing. The bed is a wooden frame with webbing laced across it, and each bed has a thin cotton mattress. Over this one sheet is spread, and two pillows go to each bed. That's all!—Scottish American.

No Tip For Him.

Tipping is at least an ancient custom. In the eighteenth century an Italian visitor to England remarked that "it is polite to dine with the nobility, where you pay the servants for ten times as much as you eat." And an Irish peer replied to the Duke of Ormonde's invitation to dine: "If your grace will give me a guinea to pay your servants, I will. I am too poor, else!" An American actor who once took an English home for the summer had a schedule of the tips his servants expected printed for the guidance of his American friends and put them on the bedroom mantelpieces. He had taken a particular dislike to a very British side whiskered butler he had taken over with the house, and the list, after enumerating the sums to be paid to the chauffeur, the housemaid, and so on, finished with, "The guy with the black whiskers you will most in the front hall—not a cent."—Argonaut.

The Hotel's Curse.

A curious story is being told of a big London hotel which is now beating records for prosperity. When it was building all manner of mischances piled up the bill of costs, and things continued to go wrong.

One of the directors, with some belief in the occult, inquired into the history of the land on which the building stood, and found that it had once belonged to a monastic community whose abbot, on being expelled, had solemnly cursed the ground and declared that no enterprise connected with it should prosper.

Ascertaining that a monastery of the same order existed in Devonshire, the director went thither and prevailed on the abbot to go through the form of removing the curse. His fellow-directors laughed when he told them the story, but the hotel has prospered ever since.

More cabbages to relieve the sauerkraut famine should be available ere long, as there is soon to be a law compelling the adequate labeling of all cigars.

It is now proposed to install "movies" on the farm to keep the son and daughter from going away. A mechanical milker and a suction cleaner might be more efficacious.

A careful consideration of the new tariff law shows that the tax on chewing gum has been increased, which goes to show that girls cannot expect fair treatment until they get the ballot.

George Bernard Shaw makes the announcement that Christianity has been a failure. There are indications, however, that a large number of good people are disposed to give it another trial.

Children Study Too Much.

The cramming system and its accompanying evils are characterized as "A National Crime" at the Feet of American Parents" by Edward Bok in the Ladies' Home Journal. "No child under 15 years of age," he contends, should be given any home study whatever by his teachers. He should have not more than from one hour to four of schooling each day, the hours intervening with his years. Outside of school hours he should have at least three hours of play. After 15 the brain has another period of rapid development, with special increase of the higher faculties. Four hours of schooling then is not too much, provided the child's physical being is capable of it, and in time an hour of isolated study may be added. But that is enough.

"The hours of brain work a day is the most that we should ask of our children, and the child should pass at least two hours a day in the open air. Our boys and girls do not get enough fresh air and sunshine into their bodies and natures. The higher institutions of learning understand the need of physical development for brain growth a little better than do our lesser schools and our homes—and so it is to admit

Made in Canada — Made in Canada

The

Columbia Trademark

on a

Columbia Record

Is as true a mark of quality as the Sterling mark on silver.

The making of a Columbia Record is an artistic triumph.

Every shade of a vocal expression and every variation in tone is faithfully recorded and reproduced.

The same holds true in reproducing instrumental music.

In the records of such famous selections as Tschaikowsky's Overture 1812, one can distinguish the notes of every instrument at any moment, even in the most tremendous passage.

Get This Demonstration Disc 30c.

In order that you may become better acquainted with the qualities of Columbia Records, we have issued a Demonstration Record at 30c. This record is typical of the thousands of records in our general catalogues and demonstrates to what a degree of perfection the Columbia Graphophone Co. has brought the art of reproducing vocal and instrumental music.

We will gladly play this and any other Columbia record for you.

Geo. Welsford
Paisley

A NEW ISSUE
of the
Telephone Directory

Is now being prepared, and additions and changes for it should be reported to our Local Manager at once.

Have you a telephone? Those who have will tell you that it is the most precious of modern conveniences.

Why not order to-day and have your name in the new directory?

The Bell Telephone Co. of Canada

Actual Results the True Test

Evidence from the Front

"Your cheque for $2594.97 received. I find that this means a return to me of $231.69 for every $100.00 invested with your Company. To receive my premium back with compound interest at the rate of 4½ per cent., and insurance protection in addition, is certainly exceptionally gratifying." POLICY NO. 6

The best insurance at lowest net cost is furnished by

THE DOMINION LIFE

HIGH INTEREST RATES — LOW DEATH LOSS

Head Office: Waterloo, Ont.

Satisfaction to Policyholders

This does all—

From Army Hospital in England

Tent Hospital
Shorncliffe, Eng'nd

DEAR PEOPLE—It is high time I was writing again to you, but have been so busy and the facilities for writing are poor. So to-night I came down to the recreation tent of the Salvation Army in order that I might write. I looked for a letter from Canada to-day but none came, so will have to possess my soul in patience. It is over a month since I had word of any kind from you and I am greatly looking forward for letters from home.

We are now doing hospital work but of a disagreeable sort. We are all in tents, hospital and all. I have four tents to look after and it keeps one busy getting the work done and the men looked after. We have smaller tents for our own use. There are five of us in ours. We have a pretty good time when off work, which isn't long, except at night, when we are glad to go to sleep. I believe it is healthy—at least I feel fine. You would laugh to see us run for the cook-house when the bugle blows. "Come to the cook-house door." We have a tin pail in which we get our rations. We only expect to be at this work a few weeks. Then we go to France where we will have the wounded to care for. In the meantime the officers are busy getting supplies for our hospital. Sometimes we hear that we final year men are to return to Canada to the fall, in order that we might finish our course. Then if the war still goes on we will return in the spring, and get commissions as doctors. This arrangement would suit us wonderfully well. I hope it may prove to be so. Some of our boys who had finished their work at Queen's left us last week. They got commissions and go wherever they are sent in the capacity of doctors.

Last week, before we had started this hospital work, twenty of us were given passes and we availed ourselves of the opportunity and went up to "Mighty London." It certainly is a wonderful city. One day we took a motor bus and went about twenty miles and still we had not come to the outskirts. We had a guide that day. In the morning we went to Buckingham Palace where the King was staying and watched them change the guard. We also heard the famous Canada Band. We also saw where many of the great people of England had their homes. Then we went to Westminster Cathedral (Catholic) which is a magnificent place. From there we motored to Stafford House, where the old kings and queens of England lived. The grounds were beautiful. On the way home we saw where "Tom Brown" went to school when he was a kiddie, and where his old schoolmaster lived. At Kew Park we saw Queen Mary and Princess and little son walking around.

They think a great deal of the Canadians over here. The Germans say the Canadians are the best troops in the world—and that they come second. I was talking to some Queen's men the other night, who have been rushed over to take the Princess Pats' place. They told me they never expected to return. Their colonel told them that when they had a hard job to tackle they gave it to the Canadians, and when it was extra hard the 2nd was Pats got it. There are few of the original regiment left.

A few of us were lucky in being at the opening of Parliament when the new coalition government formed. But I'll have to tell you all the rest when I see you.

PTE. R. J. TUCKER.

—THE ADVOCATE office has a splendid stock of wedding stationery and calling cards on hand, also the most beautiful styles of type, so we are able to turn out the finest lines of wedding invitations, announcements, cards, etc. We can do work fit to invite the best of people to a wedding, so why pay two or three times as much to city printers or engravers for something that isn't a whit better for the purpose? See our samples.

The Planter's Daughter;

Or, The Queen of Belle River.

CHAPTER II.—(Cont'd).

Very early in life, and some years previous to their emigration, Mark Sutherland had been united in marriage to a lady of St. Mary's—one of the noblest of Maryland's noble daughters. From her, their only son, Mark Sutherland, the younger, inherited a strong mind, warm heart, and high spirit; from his father he took the stalwart form, athletic strength, and dark and sometimes terrible beauty, that marked the race of Sutherland.

Clement Sutherland had remained unmarried until long after his settlement upon the Belle. But one autumn, while on a visit to New Orleans, to negotiate the sale of his cotton, he chanced to meet a beautiful West Indian girl, whom he afterwards wooed and won for his bride. Whether the sweet Havanienne, or the large fortune of which she was the sole heiress, was the object of his worship, was a mooted point by those who knew him best. Certainly no slightest or whim of the lovely Creole remained unattended. It was she who gave the charming scene of his home the appropriate name of Cashmere. She it was who persuaded him to build and adorn an elegant villa upon the site of the temporary framed house to which he had brought the beautiful epicurienne. Her rare artistic taste presided over the architecture and embellishment of the mansion, and the laying out and ornamenting of the ground. She was, at last, but in lovely and fragile spring flower, that faded and fell ere the summer of her life had come. She left a child of perfect beauty—a little girl—who inherited her mother's graceful harmony of form and complexion, and her father's strength and vigor of constitution.

Immediately after the death of her mother, the orphaned infant had been taken home by her aunt, Mrs. Mark Sutherland. The lady gave herself up to the rearing and education of these children. And not the noble mother of the Gracchi was prouder of her "jewels" than Mrs. Sutherland of hers. Thus the infancy and childhood of Mark and Hinda were passed together—the same mother's heart, the same nursery, the same school-room, nay, the same book, with their heads together, and their black and golden locks mingled, were shared by the children.

It was a woful day when they were first separated—Mark to enter college, and Hinda to be placed at a fashionable boarding-school. Young Mark, when laughed at for his girlish tears, angrily rejoined that it was no shame to weep; that the renowned hero, Achilles, had wept when they took Briseis away from him; and when his friend Patroclus was slain.

Paul Sutherland, the third brother, had remained up to the present time unmarried. He bestowed his affections with paternal pride and fondness upon his niece and nephew, resolving to make them his joint heirs. Just two years previous to the opening of our story, the Belle River trio had been broken by the death of Mark Sutherland, the elder. Young Sutherland had hastened home to console his widowed mother, but not long did the widow permit him to remain.

But it is time to describe more particularly Cashmere, the charming seat of Clement Sutherland, and the principal scene of our drama. The estate itself was a very extensive one, comprising several hundred acres of the richest land in the vale. That part of the plantation on which the villa had been erected lay in a bend of the Belle River, surrounded on three sides—north, east, and south—by its pellucid waters. The whole of this area is occupied by the mansion and ornamental grounds.

The villa itself is a very elegant edifice of white freestone, fronting the river. The building is long and broad, in proportion to its height. But the mansion is relieved from all appearance of heaviness, by a light and elegant Ionic colonade, sustaining an open veranda running around three sides of the building. On the fourth side, looking to the south, the aspect is diversified by a large bay window projecting from the lower story, and an elegant Venetian balcony from the upper one.

The villa is also shaded on three sides by a grove of the most beautiful and fragrant of the Southern trees—the splendid tulip-poplar, lifting to the skies its slender shaft, crested with elegantly-shaped leaves of the most brilliant and intense verdure, and crowned with its bell-shaped flowers of the most vivid and gorgeous flame color; the beautiful cotton-wood tree, softly powdered over with its formless snowy blooms; the queenly magnolia-grandiflora, with its glittering green foliage and dazzling white flowers and rich oppressive aroma; the pretty red-bud, with its umbrella-shaped top, its crumpled, heart-shaped leaves, and scarlet tufts; the bois-d'arc, in full bloom, the most splendid and magnificent of ornamental trees, uniting the rarest qualities of the orange tree and the catalpa; the chinienne, with its vivid green foliage, and brilliant purple flowers, dropping delicious but heavy narcotic odors, weighing down the nerves and brain into luxurious repose, and stupefying the very birds that shelter in its aromatic shades, so that they may be taken captive with the bare hand; the imperial catalpa, sovereign of the grove by virtue of the grandeur and elegance of its form, the grace and beauty of its foliage, and the ambrosial perfume of its flowers, filling all the air around with its delightful fragrance. Birds of the most splendid plumage and the most exquisite song—the goldfinch, the oriole, the cardinal, the parroquet, the nightingale, the lark, and innumerable others, [illegible], and their songs fill the [illegible] air. No artificial walk [illegible] the sward. The green and velvety turf affords the softest, coolest footing. Rustic seats of twisted bow-wood are under the trees. Its shades are the delightful resort of the Sutherlands and their friends, to enjoy the freshness and brilliancy of the morning, to find shelter from the burning rays of the sun at noon, or to luxuriate in the delicious breeze of the evening. The Arcadian grove, as has been said, surrounded the house on three sides—north, west, and south.

The east is the front of the house towards the river. The view here is open, and the most beautiful, charming, and variegated to be imagined.

From the colonnaded veranda a flight of broad marble steps leads to a terrace carpeted with grass, and planted with rose-bushes—everywhere roses. The rose terrace is divided from the lawn by a trellage of the most delicate and elaborate trellis-work; and this also is wreathed and festooned by running rose vines.

Below this spreads the lawn on every side, not level, but gently waving, and covered with grass as soft, as smooth, and as downy as velvet. The arbors, of delicate trellis-work and elegant form, are shaded and adorned with running vines of rich Armenian and Cape jessamine, honeysuckles, and woodbine. The recesses contain goldfish, and other ornamental specimens of the piscatorial kingdom.

This extensive and beautiful lawn is surrounded by an iron open-work fence, very light and elegant in appearance, yet very strong and impassable. Three ornamented gates relieve the uniformity of this iron trellis; one on the north side leads through to the orange groves, always inviting and delightful. The gate on the north admitted into the vineyard, where every variety of the finest and rarest grapes flourished in luxuriant abundance. The one on the east leads from the lawn down to the white and pebbly beach of the Belle, where pretty boats are always moored for the convenience of the rambler who might desire to cross the river.

Across the soft water lie hills, and groves, and cottonfields—the latter, one of the gayest features in Southern scenery. They are sometimes a mile square. They are planted in straight rows, six feet apart; and the earth between them, of a rich Spanish-red color, is kept entirely clean from weeds. The plants grow to the height of seven feet, and spread in full-leaved branches, bearing brilliant white and gold-hued flowers. When in full bloom, a cotton-field by itself is a gorgeous landscape.

Back of the grove there are gardens, and orchards, and out-houses, and offices, and the negro village called "The Quarters."

CHAPTER III.

The summer sun had just sunk below the horizon. An evening breeze is rising from the distant pine woods, that will soon tempt the inmates forth to enjoy its exhilarating and salubrious freshness and fragrance. But as yet all is quiet about the mansion.

In the innermost sanctuary of that house repuses Miss Sutherland. It is the most elegant in a suite of apartments, upon which Mr. Sutherland had spared no amount of care or expense.

The suite consists of a boudoir, two drawing-rooms, a hall or picture gallery, a music-room, a double parlor, a library and dining and breakfast rooms, and, by the machinery of grooved doors, all these splendid apartments may be thrown into one magnificent saloon.

But the most finished and perfect of the suite is the luxurious boudoir of India. It is a very bower of beauty and love, a chef d'oeuvre of artistic genius, a casket worthy to enshrine the Queen of the Belle River.

There she reposes in the recess of the bay window, "silk-curtained from the sun." This bay window is hardly deep and lofty, and in a small room in itself. It is curtained off from the main apartment by drapery of purple damask satin, lined with gold-colored silk, and festooned by gold cords and tassels. The interior of the recess is draped with thin gold-colored silk alone; and the evening light, glowing through it, throws a warm, rich, lustrous atmosphere around the form of Oriental beauty, reposing on the silken couch in the recess.

It is a rare type of beauty, not easy to realize, blending the highest charms of the spiritual with the intellectual, and the sensual, in seeming perfect harmony; it is a costly type of beauty, possessed often only at a fearful discount of happiness; it is a dangerous organization, full of fatality to its possessor and all connected with her. It is a richly and highly gifted nature, but one that, more than all others, requires in early youth the firm and steady guidance of the wise and good, and that in after life needs the constant controlling influence of Christian principle.

India Sutherland has never known another guide than her own pleasure. "Queen o'er herself" she is not, but queen instead over father and lover, friends, relatives and servants. In truth hers is a gentle and graceful reign. She is, indeed, the fairest as well as the most beautiful young leopardess that ever sheathed claws and teeth in the softest down. She is so hyperkritic; she is perfectly sincere; but her deepest nature is unawakened, undeveloped. There she lay, as unconscious of the seeds of selfishness and tyranny as Nero was, when, at seventeen years of age, he burst into tears at signing the first death warrant. She reclines upon a crimson silken couch, her face slightly turned downwards, her head supported by her hand, and her eyes fixed upon a book that lies open upon the downy pillow; a profusion of smooth, shining, amber-hued ringlets droop around her graceful Grecian head; her eyebrows are much darker, and are delicately pencilled; her eyelashes are also dark and long, and shade large eyes of the deepest blue, her complexion is very rich, of a clear warm brown, deepening into a crimson blush upon cheeks and lips the brighter and warmer now that the book beneath her eyes absorbs her quite. The light through the golden-hued drapery of the window pours a warm, subdued effulgence over the whole picture. On a cushion below her couch sits a little quadroon girl, of perfect beauty, fanning her mistress with a fan of ostrich plumes; and while she sways the graceful feathers to and fro, her dark eyes, full of affection and innocent admiration, are fixed upon the beautiful epicurienne.

When the rising of the evening breeze began to swell the gold-hued curtains, Oriole dropped her fan, but continued to sit and watch low-lingly the features of her lady. When the purple shades of evening began to fall around, Oriole arose softly, and drew back the curtains on their golden wires, to let in more light and air, revealing the terrace of roses, the lawn and its groves and reservoirs, and the lovely rose and amber-clouded river, rolling on between its banks of undulating light and shade; and giving to view, besides, the figure of a lady standing upon the terrace of roses, and who immediately advanced smiling, and threw in a shower of rose leaves on the recumbent reader, exclaiming—

"Will that wake you? Mon Dieu! What is it you are idling over? the birds are about to break forth in their evening song. Will you come out?"

The speaker was a lady of about twenty-five years of age, of petite form, delicate features, dark and brilliant complexion, and sprightly countenance, which owed its fascination to dazzling little teeth, and ripe lips bowed with archness, great sparkling black eyes, full of mischief, and jetty ringlets in whose very intricacies seemed to lurk a thousand innocent conspiracies. Mrs. Vivian, of New Orleans—Annette Valerie Vivian—the widow of a wealthy merchant, a distant relative of Mrs. Sutherland by her mother's side, and now with her step-daughter on a visit of some weeks here at "Cashmere."

"Ciel! then do you hear me? What volume of birds or flowers do you prefer to the living birds and flowers out here?"

Miss Sutherland, languid and smiling, rose from her recumbent position, and handed her the volume.

"Pope! by all that is solemnly in earnest! Pope's 'Essay on Man,' by all that is grave, serious and awful! Why, I thought at the very worst it was some Flora's Annual, or Gems of the Aviary."

"Oh, hush, you tease! And tell me what these lines mean. I have been studying them for the last half hour, and can't make them out."

"Hand me the book, Nan! Here, here are the lines—now make out a meaning for them, if you can:

'And binding nature fast in fate,
Left free the human will.'"

"Well," said Mrs. Vivian, laughing, "it sounds very like—

'And tying Adam hand and foot,
Bid him get up and walk.'

And it looks as if it might have been written by Uncle Billy Bothsides! Ah, here he comes. Talk of the evil one, and—you know the rest. Ah, I shall be amused to hear his opinion of the sentiment in question."

(To be continued.)

Retreat in Order.

Even an extremely aggressive enemy can be conquered by strategy; it is only a question of employing the strategem fitted to the case.

An open-air preacher of East London understood this, and his strategem fitted to a charm. He was addressing a crowd when a soldier who had been drinking came up and ridiculed the service. Finding it was useless to ignore the man, the preacher said:

"Ah! my friend, you're no soldier. No servant of the King would get drunk and interrupt a peaceful service."

The man said he was a soldier, and asked the preacher to test him.

"Very well," was the reply. "I will. Now, then. Attention!"

The soldier did as well as his condition would allow.

"About—turn!"

This order was also obeyed, though with some trouble.

"Quick march!"

And off went the valiant soldier, marching down the road at a quick pace, while the preacher resumed his address.

Laws Made in Germany.

Most of us have felt sorry for the hardly-used Belgians, who are imprisoned for failing to salute or for laughing at a soldier, but it is only what the Germans themselves have to put up with.

A worthy citizen of Berlin was once imprisoned for a week because he laughed at the sight of a fat policeman chasing a student who had dined not wisely but too well; while a woman was fined twenty shillings because she told a clumsy man, who trod on her foot in a 'bus, that he walked like a hen.

Of course, one of the most heinous offences is to laugh at an official; but the unhappy citizen is fined for doing something, and another day for not doing it. A motorist went slowly through a little town in the evening without sounding his bell, as no one was about; fined. A week later he sounded it well; fined for doing it too vigorously.

If you hang your bedclothes out of window; fine. If they drop out as well; double fine—two offences. If you run for a train, and board it in motion; more money goes to the police exchequer. So much is forbidden, it is surprising that it does not extend to fining.

Choice Fruit Deserves

Redpath

EXTRA GRANULATED Sugar

to preserve its luscious flavor for the winter days to come. For over half a century Redpath has been the favorite sugar in Canada for preserving and jelly-making—and with good reason. Because it is absolutely pure and always the same, you can use it according to your recipes, year after year, with full confidence in the results.

Fruit put up right, with Redpath Extra Granulated Sugar, will keep as long as you wish, and when opened a month or a year hence will delight you with its freshness and flavor. "Let Redpath sweeten it."

Get your supply of sugar in Original REDPATH Packages, and thus be sure of the genuine—Canada's favorite sugar, at its best.

Put up in 2 and 5 lb. Sealed Cartons and in 10, 20, 50 and 100 lb. Bags. 140

CANADA SUGAR REFINING CO., LIMITED, MONTREAL.

Starting a Dairy Herd.

With the average farmer the cheapest and most satisfactory way of starting a dairy herd is to select as foundation stock good grade cows and a pure bred bull of one of the strictly dairy breeds. The grading up will be most rapid when the predominant blood in the grades corresponds with the blood of the sire, writes Mr. John Michels.

A foundation of this kind, of course, does not produce stock that can be registered, but by continuing the use of good, pure-bred bulls of the same blood, stock is soon obtained which, so far as milk and butter production are concerned, very closely approaches in value that of pure breeding.

To start with a pure-bred herd is practically beyond the means of the majority of farmers. Furthermore, there is an objection to placing well-cared-for, pure-bred cows under average conditions as to feed, care and management, because under any such change the attainment of satisfactory results would be practically impossible. Where there is a gradual infusion of pure blood, as in the case of grading up a herd with pure-bred sires, the new blood is gradually accustomed to the change of environment, the herdsman is given the necessary time to change his methods to meet the requirements of pure-bred cattle.

Where the dairyman understands the management of the pure-bred stock and has the means with which to buy the right kind, a pure-bred herd may be started to good advantage.

One of the chief dangers in starting with a pure-bred herd is the lack of funds to procure the right sort of animals. Instead of buying a pure-bred bull and a number of pure-bred cows of common merit, it is better policy to buy relatively cheap grade cows, and to add the money thus saved to that originally set aside for the bull. This extra money is likely to be the means of securing a bull of outstanding merit.

Whether the cows be grades or pure-breds, it is of the highest importance in building up a dairy herd to secure a pure-bred bull of real merit. Unless the bull is descended from good milkers, it is folly to expect him to produce good milkers, no matter how fine or ideal he may be as an individual.

It is, furthermore, of importance to remember that a herd cannot be successfully built up unless the bulls that are successively used belong to the same breed. If the grading up is begun with a Jersey bull the process must be continued uninterruptedly by the use of Jersey blood.

The importance of the dairy sire is recognized in the expression: "The bull is half the herd." Usually, however, the bull is more than half the herd, either for good or bad. In the case of common or grade cows, for example, the pure-bred bull may count for three quarters or more, of the herd by reason of his greater prepotency. To so great an extent does the bull determine the improvement or deterioration of the herd as to call for the utmost caution in his selection.

In the case of a dairy bull, especially a young bull, his chief value is determined by the performances of his ancestry. The points of greatest importance to consider in his pedigree are the following: (1) The merit of his mother and his sire's mother; (2) The merit of the daughters of his sire and grandsire; (3) The value of the daughters of his dam and his grandam; (4) The value of his sisters, if he has any; and (5) the value of his own progeny, if he has any. The farther back consecutively good records can be traced the more valuable the animal. It should always be remembered, however, that near ancestors count for a good deal more than those more remotely related.

With a first-class bull at the head of the herd, rapid improvement is effected by selecting and retaining calves from only the best milkers, at the same time culling out those cows whose records have not been satisfactory. This word cannot be done to best advantage unless records are kept of the quantity and quality of milk from each cow for a whole lactation period.

Where all of the cows in the foundation stock are grades, none of the calves, of course, can be registered. It is desirable, therefore, to add to the herd from time to time, as means permit, some good pure-bred cows of the same blood as the bulls that have been used. This has the advantage of enabling the owner to dispose of his calves to better advantage.

The purchase of cows, however, is always attended with the danger of introducing contagious diseases into the herd. For this reason, the buying of the cows should be carried on in a limited way only. It is, of course, always in order to buy cows when the object is to add to the herd pure-bred individuals of exceptional dairy merit. But the practice of buying cows should never be carried to the point of making it the principal means of replenishing the herd, especially since the latter can be accomplished much more satisfactorily by raising the calves from the best cows.

A Seasonable Hint.

The wise man moves next door to a family whose income is less than his.

SPOHN'S DISTEMPER COMPOUND

INFLUENZA Catarrhal Fever, Pinkeye, Shipping Fever, Epizootic.

And all diseases of the horse affecting his throat, especially nurses, colts and horses in same stable kept from having them by using SPOHN'S DISTEMPER COMPOUND. A few doses often cure. One bottle guaranteed to cure one case. Safe for brood mares, baby colts, stallions—all ages and conditions. Most skillful scientific compound. Any druggist.

SPOHN MEDICAL CO., Goshen, Ind., U.S.A.

RIGHTS OF WAR PRISONERS.

Crime Against Nations to Ill-Treat Those Captured.

According to reliable reports, Germany is violating the rules formed by the leading nations at The Hague convention, and shamefully ill-treating British prisoners of war. This is a crime against the law of nations, which emphatically states that warring forces treat their prisoners in a humane fashion.

The object of internment is solely to prevent prisoners from further participation in the war, and unnecessary limitation of liberty, unjustifiable severity, ill-treatment and indignities are forbidden. The rooms in which prisoners of war are accommodated must be as healthy and clean as possible, and they should not be situated in prisons or convict establishments. Captives must be given the same scale and quality of rations, quarters and clothing as the troops of the government which captures them, and prisoners must be paid wages for any work they may do. The latter must have no connection with the operations of war, but may be carried out for municipal authorities or for private persons at a reasonable rate of pay.

In no way must a prisoner of war be used for the purposes of aiding the military activities of the nation which captures him. A prisoner is not bound to reply to any questions except those which concern his name and rank, and he is not expected to betray military secrets. He cannot be punished for giving false information about his own army. All personal belongings of prisoners of war, except arms, horses and military papers, remain their property.

To safeguard prisoners of war from being ill-treated, The Hague rules decided some years ago that a bureau of information relative to captives must be formed at the commencement of hostilities in each of the warring states. Each nation engaged in the European struggle has such an institution, whose purpose is to reply to all official inquiries concerning war prisoners, in addition to keeping a careful record of what happens to every captive. Each prisoner has a history sheet, which gives his name, age, place of origin, rank, wounds and place and date of capture. When peace is signed, such records will be exchanged among the belligerent nations. While hostilities are in progress it is not obligatory for a nation to furnish particulars of the number of prisoners captured. It must, however, keep the enemy informed as to the sick and wounded who have been taken captive.

Never in Funds.

"Blivins reminds me of the letter 'c'."

"Why so?"

"Because he's always out of 'cash' and invariably in 'debt.'"

The Housewife's Corner

Taking Care of Grocery Stock.

With the advent of warmer weather, when foodstuffs are likely to spoil quickly unless they receive proper attention, many housekeepers will be interested in hints for the care of grocery stock recently issued by a wholesale grocers' exchange to retail patrons; because much of the advice is quite as applicable to the home as to the store.

All housekeepers understand the perishable character of eggs, butter, meat, fruit, etc., and the care necessary for their prevention; but many do not realize that groceries generally can deteriorate greatly through so simple an error as storage in the wrong place.

Canned goods are the least perishable of groceries. All that is necessary is to place them where they will be free from dampness and where the air will circulate among the cans.

Housewives are advised to buy cereals in package form and never more than a month's supply at a time. Two weeks' supply is better. All cereals should be kept in a cool, dry place. They should not be placed near stoves or steam pipes—if these are in use. Dampness, too, must be avoided.

As roasted coffee loses much of its flavor after being exposed to the air, the use of an air-tight receptacle is as necessary as in the case of ground coffee.

Raisins and currants as well as all dried fruits—lose much of their moisture when exposed to the air, becoming dry and hard. It is recommended that these fruits, as well as figs, dates, candied fruit, cocoa and chocolate, be kept in a cool place and away from strong sunlight.

Nuts in the shell demand a cool spot. Shelled nuts are extremely perishable. If exposed directly to the sun, the heat will draw out the oil and the nuts will become rancid. They must be kept almost air-tight.

Olives need coolness, and olive oil must be protected against strong light and heat. Peanut butter should be kept away from the sun. When left on a shelf for some time the oil often separates from the mass of butter. When this occurs the jar should be turned upside down, and the butter then will absorb the oil again.

Pickles should be covered to keep out a tiny insect called the vinegar fly. This fly will deposit its eggs amongst pickles, causing a noticeable worminess in a few days.

Tea deteriorates in either a heated or a damp place, through evaporation or absorption of moisture; therefore a cool place of even temperature should be selected for the tea caddy.

Spices, having a tendency to weaken with age, should be purchased in small quantities.

Sugar will keep well in a dry place. It absorbs moisture quickly, and when this is dried out the sugar becomes very hard and lumpy—which is inconvenient and troublesome.

Hints for the Housekeeper.

Salt in whitewash makes it stick.

Don't buy cheap bedding or your money will be wasted.

Lemon juice is a powerful germicide, and rich in organic salts.

Many vegetables can be canned as easily as fruits for winter use.

The good housewife plans to lessen her work during the summer time.

The heavy heads of cabbage are always the more solid and of finer texture.

Peas, beans and lentils are the most nutritious of all vegetable substances.

Little bits of left-over rice added to the griddle cakes will make them delicious.

If the aluminum cooking utensils turn black, try boiling tomato parings in them and they will brighten.

Always choose a thin fish for broiling. The best are mackerel, bluefish, bass, trout, and fresh herring.

Add a teaspoon of lard to the batter before frying the cakes, and it will not be necessary to grease the griddle.

In packing clothes it is most satisfactory to put the hats in big hat-boxes or a hat trunk, and send them by themselves.

Before stoning raisins pour hot water on them for two or three minutes; a simple squeeze will then eject the stones.

Old hair brushes which have become soft can be made quite hard and firm by dipping them in a strong solution of alum.

Always take time to open properly the paper boxes in which crackers, etc., come. Otherwise moisture will get in and injure the food.

If you find the luncheon you have provided meagre, add to it a glass of milk for each person, and you have provided much more nutriment.

Fruit or vegetables which have a short season should be served simply; corn and tomatoes should be prepared in as many forms as possible.

Bead work can be done much more quickly if the needle is dipped in water constantly. If the needle is dry the beads slip off, and much time is wasted.

If mahogany furniture looks cloudy put a little olive oil on a soft cloth and rub it vigorously. This will give the furniture a beautiful soft polish.

Try coring large, solid apples and filling the cavities with bits of figs, stoned dates or any other fruit and see how delightfully flavored the apples will be.

The lower step of the back stairs may be made into a handy tool box, having the top of the step put on a hinge like a lid. Everyone who uses the stairs, however, must be careful.

To make a syrup for fruit, beverages add three-quarters cup of sugar to three-quarters cup of boiling water, stir till dissolved, then boil 12 minutes without stirring, cool and bottle.

LORD ROBERTS'S LETTER.

Had Family Prayers Every Day for Fifty-nine Years.

When Lord Roberts, field marshal of the British army, died suddenly in France during his visit to the allied forces there, all England felt the shock of a great loss. Lord Roberts was an old man,—he was long since beyond the age for active service,—but he was of those who make the great moral bulwark of a country; the whole empire missed him.

At the session of the House of Lords when his fellow peers made public recognition of Lord Roberts's services to his country, many fine tributes were paid to his memory, but one of the most significant was actually in his own words—it was a part of the last letter that he himself had written to Lord Curzon of Kedleston. What do you suppose was the theme of the letter? Military policies? Matters of state? The progress of the terrible world struggle? The proper terms on which peace might be made?

Here is the extract that Lord Curzon read in the House of Lords:

"We have had family prayers for fifty-five years. Our chief reason is that they bring the household together as nothing else can. It ensures servants and others who may be in the house joining in prayers, which, for one reason or another, they may have omitted to say by themselves. Since the war began we usually read a prayer like the inclosed, and when anything important has occurred, I tell those present about it. In this way I have found that the servants take a great interest in what is going on in France. We have never given any orders about prayers. Attendance is quite optional, but as a rule, all the servants, men and women, come regularly on hearing the bell ring."

We hear it said constantly in these days that there is no time for family prayers, yet this man, whose time was at least as fully occupied as that of anyone who could be named, and who carried all his life burdens and responsibilities much greater than those of an ordinary man, found the time for family prayers regularly every day for fifty-five years. We may be very sure that there are other reasons than lack of time for our prayerless homes.

BIGGEST HOSPITAL.

Accommodation Provided for at Least 1,650 Patients.

In ordinary times the opening of London's biggest hospital would have been attended by some flourish of trumpets, says the London Chronicle, but in these days of war the new King George Hospital at Waterloo, which has more beds under one roof than any similar institution in the United Kingdom, takes up its work without any fuss whatever.

Yesterday (June 10) it received its first batch of wounded from the front, and by the end of the week 200 men will be under treatment there; but in its modesty the hospital shuns any notice, and "The Daily Chronicle" was told yesterday that by War Office instructions no information whatever was available for press or public.

But as appeals are being made through the press to the public for gifts for the furnishing of the hospital and the welfare of the inmates, some little interest may be permitted. The hospital occupies the building in Stamford street which was being erected for the Government Stationery Office, and its six floors when fully equipped will accommodate 1,650 patients. At present only the fourth and fifth floors are in use, but the completion of the other is being pushed forward with all speed.

Two operating theatres are to be provided on each floor; there are to be recreation rooms and a roof garden, and some idea of the size of the building can be realized by the fact, which has leaked out, that 305 tons of asbestos sheeting have been used in partitions, together with over 46,000 square feet of glass, and that the 3,360 electric lamps have utilized 55 miles of wire.

FROM SUNSET COAST

WHAT THE WESTERN PEOPLE ARE DOING.

Progress of the Great West Told In a Few Pointed Paragraphs.

Dairymen of Creston have started an export business of some promise.

Reports are arriving of a new gold find near Klaskino Sound on the coast.

Eight men of the Daily News, Nelson are in the Canadian war contingents.

Lee Git, Chinaman, was given two years at Vancouver for burglary in a drug store.

Kamloops has become a centre in the horse industry; many army remounts go from there.

The second unit of the North Arm jetty at New Westminster has been started, it will cost $400,000.

The tide of visitors going to San Francisco Exposition is flowing steadily through Vancouver.

Ah Foot, Chinese, went to jail at Victoria for three months for supplying an Indian with drink.

Owners of electric sign advertisements in Vancouver must keep them lighted from dusk till 10 o'clock.

Three hundred interned Germans and Austrians at Vernon will be sent to do roadwork near Arrow Lakes.

Vancouver City has an overdraft of $1,500,000 and the bankers want better satisfaction on expenditures.

Fire which threatened to wipe out Hope destroyed many newer frame built stores and did $35,000 damage.

Steamboat traffic on the Yukon opened at the end of May with the promise of greater business this year.

Long Yue, one of the victims of the defunct Bank of Vancouver, who was saving to get back to China, suicided.

Through tickets to Europe are now sold on the Pacific coast for all-water trips, via the Panama Canal.

The B.C. Consumers' League says $50,000 are sent out of the province daily that could be spent within its borders.

The provincial government is trying to replace all enemy-alien miners interned from Nanaimo, with British unemployed.

Victoria Board of Trade wants the Dominion to order the marking of each egg imported, with the country of its origin.

Richmond has an organization called "Sister Suzies" that will provide departing soldiers with shirts and necessities.

Mayor Mitchell of New York visited Victoria and Vancouver, Banff and Lake Louise on his way back home from San Francisco.

The Trades and Labor Council of Victoria has established a register of mechanics ready to go to Britain to make war munitions.

The British Columbia Government will employ relay gangs of unemployed on a roadway in Burnaby; married men only will be aided.

Prince George city council endorsed a site for the railway depot at the foot of George Street, the first action of the first council.

When the Canadian-Australian liner Niagara came into Victoria on her last trip she brought dozens of honeymooners from the Antipodes.

The B.C. Government is trying to get the people to buy Victoria Island strawberries in preference to those imported from the United States.

Soldiers of Fernie sought a lost child at Coal Creek and after hours he was found asleep at the head of a mine; he was the two-year-old son of William Corlett.

S. Lyon knocked down a woman with his auto on a Vancouver street. She was unhurt and when picked up apologized to the autoist, saying it was her own fault.

Origin of the Victoria Cross.

It was the fifth Duke of Newcastle, Secretary of State for War, with whom the idea of the Victoria Cross originated. The Duke referred to the matter in a letter to the Prince Consort in January, 1855, but before the decoration had been instituted by Royal Warrant popular clamor had driven the Duke from office, and it was Lord Panmure who submitted the first specimens of the Cross for approval by Queen Victoria. Her Majesty noted that the words of the original motto, "For the Brave," might lead people to infer that only those soldiers and sailors were brave who received the Cross, and she suggested the present words, 'For Valour," instead. The Queen also thought that the wearers of the Victoria Cross might be allowed to bear some distinctive mark after their names, "V.C." Her Majesty thought would not do. "K.G." meant a Knight of the Garter, and "M.P." a member of Parliament, a person being designated, but one could not be called "a Victoria Cross." "D.V.C." ("decorated with Victoria Cross"), or B.V.C." ("bearer of Victoria Cross") might do. "The Queen thinks the last best." Posterity has thought V.C. better still.

Romantic Guest.

"Delightfully sylvan scene," gushed the artist. "And yon fair nymph —is she hunting for arbutus or the anemone?"

"For potato bugs," explained the farmer briefly.

QUEER MARRIAGE CUSTOMS.

In Many Lands Ceremonial of Wedding Seems a Little Odd.

In Siam all the guests must bring presents.

Presents are exchanged between the bride and bridegroom on the evening before an Armenian wedding.

Swedish brides used to receive from their friends a pig, sheep or cow, and from the bridegroom a colt, dog, cat or goose.

The custom of sticking coins on the bridegroom's forehead is common to several Eastern races, among others to the Turcomans and Moors of West Barbary.

Among the early Germans money was given to the bride's relatives on the wedding day, but this usage was not followed if the marriage happened to be an unequal one.

Every guest at a Norwegian wedding used to bring the bride a present. In many parts a keg of butter was the usual gift, and if the marriage took place in winter, salted or frozen meat was offered.

With modern Arabians the bridegroom makes the bride presents, which are sent a day or two before the nuptials. As soon as the bride reaches the bridegroom's house she makes him presents of household furniture, a spear and a tent.

In Persia the bridegroom is obliged to give a certain sum of money in addition to other presents. If he is in moderate circumstances he gives his bride two complete dresses, a ring and a mirror. He also supplies the furniture, carpets, mats, culinary utensils and other necessaries for their home.

With the Celestials the family of the bridegroom makes presents to the family of the bride of various articles a few days before the day fixed for the marriage. The presents generally consist of food, a cock and hen, the leg and foot of a pig, the leg of a goat, eight small cakes of bread, eight torches, three pairs of large red candles, a quantity of vermicelli and several bunches of firecrackers.

The King's Adviser.

King Charles XII. of Sweden, who came to the throne at the early age of fifteen, went out riding one time in company with his cousin, the Duke of Holstein, and a few other gentlemen of the court. On the way they came upon a pile of timber standing by the roadside. The Duke of Holstein suggested to the King that the company try their skill by riding over the pile on their horses. Charles assented, and insisted on being the first to go over. But just as he was about to dig his spurs into his horse, tells Das Buch fur Alle, Count Wachtmeister seized the bridle and said to the King, "Don't you try to ride over that!"

The Duke of Holstein became angry. "How dare you cross the wish of the King!" he exclaimed.

Calmly Wachtmeister answered, "Say what you will, my King shall not do it."

Holstein the reined up to him and replied wrathfully, "You do not seem to know with whom you are speaking."

"Oh, yes," said the other, laughing scornfully, "I am speaking with the Duke of Holstein. But will you kindly recall that you are addressing Count Wachtmeister, the Royal Adviser. And as I said before, my King shall not break his neck by such a wild and dangerous jump. Perhaps you were thinking of becoming the King of Sweden in that event. But you won't so long as Hans Wachemeister lives."

Just then the young King, who was standing by listening to the discussion, rode up to his adviser, and tapping him on the shoulder approvingly, said to the company, "No, gentlemen, I guess we won't jump that pile. It is a bit dangerous." And with that they continued on their way in silence.

Care of Milk Bottles and Utensils.

Milk bottles are made for milk, and not to hold sundry other foods. As soon as the milk bottle is empty it should be rinsed with lukewarm water until it is clean, and then set bottom-side-up to drain. Bottles should never be returned in a dirty or filthy condition. All utensils with which milk comes in contact should be rinsed, washed, and scalded every time they are used. When cleaning these utensils do not wash them in dish water or wipe with ordinary dish towels. First, rinse them and then boil in clear water and set away unwiped. If the receptacles are hot, they will soon become dry without wiping.

When a baby is bottle-fed, every time the feeding bottle and nipple are used they should be rinsed in lukewarm water, washed in hot water to which a small amount of washing soda has been added, and then scalded. Never use a rubber tube between the bottle and nipple.

If a case of typhoid fever, scarlet fever or diphtheria breaks out in the family, do not return any bottles to the milkman except with the knowledge of the attending physician, and under the conditions prescribed by him.

Music in the Barn.

They claim that animals like mirth,
And likewise merriment,
That melody has lots of worth
In keeping them content.

They say that music cheers a cow.
We promptly took the cue,
Put in a gramophone, and now
Our milk is never blue.

BRIG.-GENERAL H. E. BURSTALL, C. B.,

of the Canadian Divisional Staff in France, has been made a Companion of the Order of the Bath in recognition of his services. General Burstall was commander of the Royal Canadian Artillery at Quebec before the war, and was recently given the temporary rank of Brigadier-General.

ANTI-GERMAN RIOTS.

Did Untold Injury Not to the Germans, But the British People.

Prof. A. V. Dicey, K.C., the great authority on Constitutional Law, in a letter to the London Spectator, rebukes the recent outbreak of mob law against Germans in Great Britain.

"The recent menace to the lives, and more often the destruction of the property, of Germans, or of persons who happen to bear German names, read as one lesson," he says. "We must tolerate no more mob law. The authors of the recent riots are all of them fools. A few of them are thieves. Allow me to recapitulate the untold injury which these men have already inflicted upon the country:

"(1) The rioters have comforted Germany. They have deprived England of that visible calmness which is the source of half her strength. Every German will now believe that England is panic-struck.

"(2) The rioters have made it appear, false though the impression be, that the Government, in guarding against the real danger to the country which may arise from the acts of German criminals and traitors, is acting in obedience to the commands of the mob.

"(3) The rioters, as the very stupidest of them must now perceive, keep at home for the preservation of order British soldiers who long to be employed in driving the enemies of humanity from France and Belgium.

"(4) The rioters, or the best of them, dream that in wrecking the property and menacing the lives of Germans, they are doing a work of justice. No delusion is subtler or leads to more odious wrongdoing. A mob can never perform the duties of a judge; it ought never to be allowed to play the part of an executioner.

"(5) The rioters will in their sober moments maintain that they have hurried on just legislation. This allegation is essentially futile. Hurry is never the companion or the servant of justice. The very argument, on which some apologists for popular violence may rely, throws a groundless slur upon the Parliament of England."

THOUGHTS FOR THE DAY.

The first duty of a man is still that of subduing fear.—Carlyle.

Some people seem to think that Death is the only reality in life.—Hare.

To strive with difficulties and to conquer them is the highest human felicity.—Johnson.

A man may live in dreams and yet be unprepared for their realization.—R. L. Stevenson.

When it comes to the point really bad men are just as rare as really good men.—Bernard Shaw.

It is a great step in the interpretation of life when we have discovered that all events are ultimately spiritual.—Brierly.

Getting money is not all a man's business. To cultivate kindness is a valuable part of the business of life. —Dr. Johnston.

Life never seems so clear and easy as when the heart is beating faster at the sight of some generous, self-risking deed.—Geo. Eliot.

I do not say we ought to be happier as we grow older, but we ought to be calmer, knowing better what life is, and looking forward to another, which we believe to be a reality, though we cannot tell what it means. —Jowett.

Definition of a Term.

"What is meant by the lap of luxury?" asked a teacher of a class of little girls.

"Please, ma'am, I know," exclaimed the smallest of the lot, holding up her hand.

"Well, what is it, dear?" enquired the teacher, kindly.

"It's when the cat steals into the larder and licks the cream off the milk," responded the little one.

And the teacher, on reflection, wasn't quite sure that her pupil was wrong.

How He Got the Job.

"Why did you leave the last place you had?"

"I didn't leave it. I was fired."

"That so? Then I'll hire you. I think it would be a joy to have a man as honest as you around here."

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL

INTERNATIONAL LESSON, JULY 11.

Lesson II.—Solomon Anointed King. 1 Kings 1. 1 to 2. 12. Golden Text: 1 Chron. 28. 9.

I. Solomon Chosen to Be King (Verses 28-37).

Verse 28. Call to me Bath-sheba—Bath-sheba, on the advice of Nathan, had gone in to David to tell him that he, David, had promised her that Solomon should be king (verses 11-14, 16-21; see also 1 Chron. 22. 9-13).

29. As Jehovah liveth—The common form of oath among the Israelites (Judg. 8. 19; Ruth 3. 13; 1 Sam. 14. 39; 19. 6; 28. 10). The prophets looked upon it as the established form of oath (Jer. 4. 2; 5. 2; Hos. 4. 15).

30. As I sware unto thee—Whether David had actually made such an oath is not clear. In verse 13, Nathan tells Bath-sheba to say to David that he had so promised her, and in verse 17 Bath-sheba makes such a statement to David. But nowhere do we find David (except here in verse 30) making such a statement to Bath-sheba. At any rate, David, although stricken in years, was sufficiently self-possessed to see that the only thing to do was to crown Solomon king.

31. With her face to the earth—In verse 16 she bowed to David, as was usual in approaching the king; here she makes a deeper obeisance in recognition of the favor shown her by the king. In the tablets from Babylonia and Assyria the ambassadors before a king are represented with their faces actually touching the ground.

Live Forever—Oriental exaggeration (see Dan. 2. 4; 3. 9; 5. 10; 6. 21; Neh. 2. 3). Bath-sheba, however, implied that in Solomon and his succession David would live forever.

32. Call to me—The priest, the prophet, and the captain of the bodyguard were called to show the people that the proceeding had the king's sanction, and that Solomon, not Adonijah, was the chosen successor.

33. The servants of your lord—Benaiah, the son of Jehoiada, was captain of the Cherethites and Pelethites (2 Sam. 8. 18; see also 1 Kings 1. 38), who formed the royal bodyguard (see also 2 Sam. 15. 18; 20. 6, 7). A large body of armed men, evidently, was to accompany the priest, the prophet, and Solomon.

Mine own mule—Mules and horses seem to have been used by the Israelites for the first time in the reign of David. Mules were used especially by the king's household (see 2 Sam. 13. 29; 18. 9). To ride on the king's mule was a special mark of distinction. For a similar Oriental custom see en. 41. 43; also 2 Kings 10. 16.

Bring Him Down to Gihon—Gihon was probably in the valley of Jehoshaphat, on the southeast of Jerusalem (see Chron. 32. 30; 33. 14). The pool of Siloam was near by. In verse 9 we read that Adonijah chose En-Rogel (a pool of water) as his place of mustering. Each party could see the other from their respective meeting places. That a pool of water was chosen by each leads to the thought of purification as a part of the anointing.

34. Anoint him there—For other instances of kingly anointing see 1 Sam. 10. 1; 16. 13; 1 Kings 19. 16; 2 Kings 9. 3, 6; 2 Chron. 23.11; see also Jotham's parable, Judg. 9. 9.

Blow ye the trumpet—To attract Adonijah's party at En-Rogel so that they should understand what had been done. This also would draw the faithful followers of David to the support of Solomon and cut short any show of armed rebellion by Adonijah. Absalom had used the trumpets when he was made king (2 Sam. 15. 10). They are mentioned again at the proclamation of Jehu (2 Kings 9. 13) and of Joash (2 Kings 11. 14).

35. Prince over Israel — A title given by Jehovah to those who were to lead his people (1 Sam. 9. 16; 10. 1; 2.S 30; 2 Kings 20. 5; 2 Chron. 11. 22). The greatest of all Jehovah's leaders was to be "Messiah," the Prince (Dan. 9. 25), or "the Anointed One."

36. Amen—That is, "so let it be," but only as Jehovah should say so too (see Jer. 28. 6). However David's servants might wish David's desire to be fulfilled, it could come to pass only as Jehovah willed.

37. Make his throne greater—This would please David, rather than displease him. (See verse 47; 1 Chron. 17. 11-27. For the fulfillment of this desire, 1 Kings 10; 2 Chron. 9.)

II. The Anointing (Verses 38-40).

39. Horn of oil—For the composition of the holy oil see Exod. 30. 23-25. This was part of the regular equipment of the tabernacle (Exod. 31. 11; 39. 38).

Out of the tent — Or tabernacle, made by David for the ark of the covenant on Mount Zion (2 Sam. 6. 17).

40. Piped with pipes—Instruments used on one occasion by a company of prophets (1 Sam. 10. 5). The music of the prophets was especially appropriate to usher in the reign of Solomon.

Very Peculiar.

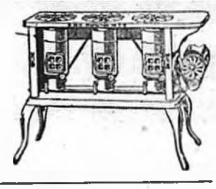
"Anything peculiar about the accident?"

"Yes, indeed. Each auto driver admits that he was to blame."

SINCLAIR'S

The Hardware Store of Better Values

Something new in Oil Cook Stoves. Come in and inspect this new stove.



This Stove Burns

Oil or Gasoline

DETROIT VAPOR STOVES

"New Perfection" Oil Cook Stoves

2 Burner $8. 3-Burner $12
Ovens $2.50 and $3.00

The Fly he is naughty beast,
He ought to die to say the least.

Screen Doors and Windows

Price of DOORS
$1.25, $1.50, $1.90, $2.25, $2.50 Complete

WINDOWS at 15c, 25c, 30c, 35c, 40c and 60c

A Screen for every window

If you want to be healthy and wise
Don't forget to swat the flies.

BOTH Sinclair's Hardware PHONES

Complete the Home Furnishings by buying a Piano.

BELL PIANOS

Known in musical circles as the highest type of musical instruments will satisfy your every need in music.

To buy a BELL stamps you as a judge of good things.

A Number of Second-hand Organs for Sale
A good time to buy is right now.

PETER McKINNON, Agt., Paisley
can tell you all about them

The City Bakery

Is always ready to supply your needs. Why worry and melt over a hot fire? We are here to do your Baking for you. Let us try.

Other than baking we try to keep a fresh supply of Greens and Fruit on hand—as well as a full stock of Fresh Groceries.

We would appreciate it if the public would make their purchases early on Thursdays as it is impossible for us to maintain a strict observance of the Thursday half-holiday on account of our Ice Cream Parlor which will be open every Thursday evening.

We need your trade. Butter and Eggs for Cash or Trade. Dutch Set Onions for sale.

Bruce and Bell 'Phones

F. S. McLACHLAN

Eye-Glasses!

H. ANDREW

OPTICIAN, OF TORONTO,

is in Paisley and vicinity calling on his customers through the country, as usual. He wishes his patrons to be prepared. Eyes tested and glasses fitted.

J. GODWIN

Bricklayer

I am prepared to take work in any line of bricklaying or cement work on contracts or repairs.

Residence: Ross St. North

PURDY'S LIVERY

Rates Reasonable, and every effort made to satisfy

F. PURDY

Steele's for

Horse Collars, Sweat Pads, Rubber Lap Rugs, Whips, Auto Plush Rugs, Star Harness Soap, Bickmore's Gall Cure, Axle Grease

Our Harness includes quality, durability, appearance and high-class workmanship found in no other makes of Harness.

Baggage Trunks, Suit Cases, Club Bags, Grips. Good assortment and close prices.

Harness parts and Repairing our Specialty

J. H. STEELE

Fall Term Opens Sept. First

ELLIOTT Business College

TORONTO — ONT.

Has to-day a stronger hold upon the public confidence than ever before. Thorough Training for choice positions is the basic idea given in all our Departments. This college alone but ask for a better one. More than it has now. We place many students to positions each year. Write to-day for large catalogue.

W. J. ELLIOTT, Principal. Cor. Yonge and Charles streets.

W. H. BAKER

Having opened a shop in Sinclair's old hardware building, Queen St. North, we are prepared to do all kinds of

Sign and Carriage Painting

HOUSE DECORATING AND PAPER-HANGING, as usual. Prices tight.

ROBT. IRVING
PLASTERER

SEE Robt. Irving the Plasterer before letting any work in this line. Separate estimates for all kinds of plastering, or with Jas Dewar for whole contracts for erection of buildings.

R. T. ROBINSO
CARPENTER AND CONTRACTOR

ESTIMATES furnished for the erection of any class of building. Large or small contracts undertaken.

Address Chesley or Cargill P.O

CASTORIA

For Infants and Children

In Use For Over 30 Years

Always bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher

PINKERTON

(Intended for last week)

Messrs Elmer Gregg and Edgar Garland are spending a few days at Inverhuron.

Mr Cecil Garland returned from Toronto on Friday of last week.

Several members of the Oddfellows attended the church parade of the Order in Glamis on Sunday morning last.

A number from here spent Dominion Day in Port Elgin, while others attended the picnic at Chepstowe.

Mr Lowes, of Alma, is visiting at the manse.

Messrs Petrie Moffat and Melville Reid are to be congratulated on their success in passing the Normal examinations entitling them to second-class professional certificates

Mr and Mrs H D Pitcher, of Toronto, and Miss Jean McMillan, of Paisley, visited at Mr Adam Reed's last week.

Mr Wilmer Donnelly, of the G T R mail service, is spending his holidays at his home here.

A very painful accident befell Mr William Desmond at the Chepstowe picnic on July 1st. A game of baseball was in progress and while Bill was standing a little distance behind the catcher a foul tip struck him on the nose causing a painful break.

At the closing exercises held at the school on Tuesday of last week Mr A E Reid was the recipient of a fine shaving set and address presented by the pupils of the school. The following is the address:

DEAR TEACHER:—We, the pupils of this school desire to express to you how much we have loved and respected you as our teacher during the two years spent together. You have made our school days pleasant and study a delight. We feel very sorry that you are leaving and as a token of our love to you we ask you to accept this little gift, trusting that it may not only be useful but also a constant reminder of the boys and girls of School Section No. 5, Pinkerton. Wishing you every good thing and success in life wherever God may see fit to lead you. Signed on behalf of the scholars: Gladys Gale, Tom Garland, Clara Campbell.

GLAMIS

The union picnic for the three Sunday schools—Presbyterian and Baptist of Glamis and the 10th of Kincardine, took place at Inverhuron on Friday and was a success. A large crowd attended and all report a good time.

Misses Mabel, Emma and Alberta Kirktown are home for the holidays.

Mr McAuley, Misses Howson and McIntyre are spending a few weeks at Inverhuron in the McIntyre cottage.

Mr Kirkwood and Mr McAuley exchanged pulpits on Sunday last, Mr McAuley taking the services in Tiverton and Mr Kirkwood in Glamis.

SECOND CON. ELDERSLIE

Hoeing roots and haying is the order of the day for farmers in this section. The hay is a heavier crop than was expected a few weeks ago.

Miss Jessie McDonald of Chesley, is spending a couple of weeks with her aunt, Mrs W Hope.

Mr A Lillico, of Brantford, spent a few days under the parental roof.

Miss Pearl and Mr Jas Allen, of Gore Bay, who have been visiting friends here for over two weeks, returned to their home on Saturday.

Mr and Mrs Jas Vancise entertained a goodly number of their friends on Friday evening last when an enjoyable time was spent in games and dancing.

Miss Myrtle Wright, of Chesley, is spending a week with friends here.

Misses Amy Norwood and Mary Fraser of Toronto are spending a couple of months at Mrs D Allen's.

Messrs Jas Vancise, Thos Nicoll and Henry Priebe of this line, have joined the ranks of the Orangemen this year and they with a number of others from here took in the celebration at Owen Sound.

Miss Etta Tully, nurse-in-training at Hamilton Hospital, spent a couple of weeks with her mother in Chesley and was renewing acquaintances on the 2nd con for a few days.

Mr and Mrs J McCullough and family of Queen Hill spent Sunday at Mrs D Allen's.

The provident housewives of this con have been laying in a supply of strawberries. Some journeyed over to McKinnon's and others searched the woods and fence corners for the luscious fruit which has been very plentiful this season.

Mr Thos Pepper, who was under the weather for a few days, is able to attend to his work again.

Miss Vina Jackson spent a few days last week with her friend, Miss Etta Tully.

GRESHAM

The Misses Aitchison, of Clifford, spent part of their vacation here at the home of her aunt, Mrs Wood.

Mr Tom Currie received a telegram last week telling him of the serious condition of his brother Frank, of Moose Jaw. Tom left on Monday for the west. The many friends of Frank hope to hear of his speedy recovery.

Mr Melville Snowdon of the Royal Bank, Toronto, is spending vacation at his home on the 6th con.

Quite a number of friends and neighbors attended the funeral of the late Thomas Watt formerly of this line on July 1st.

We congratulate Mr Thomas Foster who is now a full fledged normalite teacher. His many friends wish him all kinds of success.

Mrs E Shipley, accompanied by her daughter Miss Isabel, left on Thursday for a two months' visit to the west.

The union picnic which was held at the lake shore last week was a grand success.

Mrs Geo Fullerton, accompanied by her two sons, are spending holidays at Southampton beech.

UNDERWOOD

Mr Gillis McKay, of Orono, is holidaying at his home here.

Mr Ezekiel Abbs is laid up with blood-poisoning in the arm, caused from a needle prick in one of his fingers.

Miss Winnie Struthers, who was operated on for appendicitis last week, is recovering nicely.

Mr Howard McLean returned to Toronto last week.

Mrs Don McKay visited at Mr Jas Matheson's on the 12th last week.

Miss Bessie McNaughton is up from Kincardine for a few holidays at her home on the 6th.

Mr Jas McKinnon is building the new bridge at the foot of the mountain, down the 6th.

The Orangemen held their annual picnic on July 12th down the 10th at the lake. As usual, on the 12th, there was a heavy shower of rain, but it did not discourage the followers of King William, who were out for a good time.

SCHOOL REPORTS

S S No 1, ELDERSLIE & BRANT

Jr IV to Sr IV—Ted Cargill, Irene Bluhm Sr III to Jr IV—Dorothy Spong, Euphemia Elder—Walter Hopper. Jr III to Sr III—Recommended—Basden Gregg. Sr II to Jr III — Honors — Gordon Bellhouse, Norman Rhody, Lillie Driscoll. Pass—Marjorie Hopper. Recommended—Lloyd Hopper. Jr II to Sr II—Mary Spong, May Driscoll, Nettie Butchart. Recommended—Fred Bluhm. Sr I to Jr II—Elvin Gregg, Gordon Hopper. Jr I to Sr I—Honors—John Rhody, Hugh Driscoll, Artie Alexander. Pass—Ruby Cargill, Pearl Alexander. Sr Pr to Jr I—Isabella Elder. Jr Pr to Sr—Margaret Bluhm. Pr A to B—Addah Rhody, Florence Munro, Edith Hopper, Hugh Munro, Grace Gregg.

M KERR, Teacher

S S No 10, BRUCE & GREENOCK

Honors 75, pass 60. Jr IV to Sr IV—Harold Nelson 65. John McGillivray 60. Recommended—Violet Vance, Louisa Ross. Sr III to Jr IV—John George McGregor 81, Rec—Lizzie Ross, Kathleen Bruce. Jr III to Sr III—Sandy McGillivray 75. D J Metcalf 68. Fail—Bessie McGillivray. Sr II to Jr III—Hazel Vance 82, Archie McGillivray 81. Rec—Willie McArthur. Jr II to Sr II—Christina McGregor 78, Harry Metcalf 70. Rec—Wilfred Hodgens. Sr Pr II to Jr II—Myrtle Vance, Edna Vance, Howard McGregor, Emma Ross, Murray McGregor, Wilfred McDougall. Jr Pr II to Sr Pr II—Signa Metcalf, Jessie McGillivray. Jr I to Sr I—Verna Hodgens, Elvin Roppel, Roy McGregor, Sheldon Kidd, Reta Nelson. I to Jr I—Sandy McGregor, Roy Metcalf. I—Mary Jane Weightman.

A E RANKIN, Teacher

S S No 7 BRANT

Sr IV—Honors—G Scott. Pass—D McKeeman, T Desmond. Recommended—G Kerry. Jr IV—Honors—G Gregg. Pass—L Scott, E Acton. Recommended—W O'Reilly, D Desmond. Sr III—Pass—J McKeeman. Jr III—Honors—E Kaufman, F Smith, M Young. Pass—V Blue, T Young, A Young. Sr II—M Brown, L Kerry. Pass—T Desmond, L Gregg, M Young, E Blue, H Scott, S Kaufman, N Kerry, M Kauffman, P Desmond. Jr II—J O'Reilly. Sr I—M Pearson, P Gregg, M Napper, B Edmunds, R Houle, C Hofferth, J Alexander. Sr Pr—A Kauffman, W Zettler, J Kappenschmidt. Jr Pr—B—D O'Reilly, G Kerry. A—V Young, P Kauffman, N Gregg, G Gregg, L Zettler, A Zettler, W Napper.

No enrolled, 49; average attendance, 45.

R S LOVELL, Teacher

S S No 8, GREENOCK & ELDERSLIE

Jr IV to Sr IV—Grace McMorran, John McAngus, Jack Nelson. Jr III to Jr IV—Alice Watson, Lula Greaves, Edna Megaus, Bessie Nelson. Jr III to Sr III—Annie Ritchie, Howard Watson. Sr II to Jr III—Clara McMorran, Archie Thompson; recommended—Joe Rowley. Jr II to Sr II—Muir Hay, Christina McAngus, Lewis Rowley, Roy Temple, David Rowley. Pr I to Jr II—Viola Megraw, Bessie Ritchie, Reta Cottrill, Louis Thompson. Sr I to Pr II—Bessie Davison, Jim Culham, Harry Greaves. Jr I to Sr I—Clarence McKeeman, Lily McKeeman, Emma Culham, Jean Hay, Edna Greaves, Jack Cottrill, Primary — Roy Daniels, Mary Thompson, John Thompson.

M D GALBRAITH, Teacher

S S No 7 & 8, SAUG & ELD

Sr IV—Entrance tests—Honors—Velma Winch. Pass—Willie Tanner. Fail—Della Rudolph. Sr III to Jr IV—Pass—Willie Miller, Edgar Tanner, Alma Fraser, Harold Fraser. Jr III—Pass—Aileen Tanner, Lillie Bryce, Jack Winch. Fail—Gregor Rudolph, Clarence Hammond, Willis Rudolph. Sr II—Honors—Hervey McGill, Mary Winch. Pass—Jack Miller, Katie Campbell. Fail—Gordon Fraser". Pr II to Jr II — Honors—Bessie Tanner, (John Collins and Clifford Tanner, equal) Edith McKinnon. Pass—T V McKinnon, Isabel Rudolph, Archie McKinnon. Sr Primary — Honors — Elizabeth Tanner, Walter McGill. Pass — Ina McKinnon, May Harcourt, Eldon Fraser (recommended). Jr Primary—Millie Collins, Evelyn McMillan. "Absent for one or more examinations. †Failed on one subject.

DONALD D CAMPBELL, Teacher

S S No 5 ELDERSLIE

Jr III to Sr III—Pass—Bert Ruthven, Jennie Bradshaw, Harold Sloan. Recommended—Margaret Penton, Maggie Bradshaw. Jr II to Sr II—Pass—Myrtle Henderson, Mossie McDonald, Muriel Bowie. Sr I—Pass—Willie Penton, Vera Ruthven, Emerson Sloan, Leslie Thompson, Harry Bradshaw, Vernon Ruthven. Primary - Class A—Jane Thompson, Wallace Ruthven. Class B—Frances Bradshaw, Margaret Walpole, Earl Sloan, George Dougherty. Class C — Rufus Thompson.

FLORENCE DIEHL, Teacher

S S No 4, ELDERSLIE

Jr IV to Sr IV—Stanley Richards. Sr III to Jr IV—Lella Burns. Jr III to Sr III—Eric Ingelsoe, Edgar Munro; recommended—Oliver Meyer. Jr II to Sr II—Phinie Turner, Jean Burns, Ethel Hammond, Minnie Turner. Primary to I—Gladys Peace, Edna Hammond. B to C—Emily Burns. A to B—Laurence Tanner.

FLORENCE KERR, Teacher.

FIVE SAILINGS WEEKLY

Port McNicoll to Sault Ste. Marie and Fort William

Canadian Pacific Palatial Great Lakes Steamships leave Port McNicoll Mondays, Tuesdays, Wednesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays for Sault Ste. Marie, Port Arthur and Fort William. Steamship express making direct connection leaves Toronto 12.45 p.m.

Particulars from Canadian Pacific ticket agents, or write M. G. Murphy, District Passenger Agent, Toronto.

WOMAN SUFFERED TEN YEARS

From Female Ills—Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Belleville, N.S., Canada.—"I doctored for ten years for female troubles and did not get well. I read in the paper about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and decided to try it. I write now to tell you that I am cured. You can publish my letter as a testimonial."—Mrs. SUVRINE BABINE, Belleville, Nova Scotia, Canada.

Another Woman Recovers.

Auburn, N. Y.—"I suffered from nervousness for ten years, and had such organic pains that sometimes I would lie in bed four days at a time, could not eat or sleep and did not want anyone to talk to me or bother me at all. Sometimes I would suffer for seven hours at a time. Different doctors did the best they could for me until four months ago I began giving Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial and now I am in good health."—Mrs. WILLIAM H. GILL, No. 15 Pleasant Street, Auburn, New York.

The above are only two of the thousands of grateful letters which are constantly being received by the Pinkham Medicine Company of Lynn, Mass., which show clearly what great things Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound does for those who suffer from woman's ills.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

ELDERSLIE COUNCIL

Gillies Hill, July 5th, 1915

Council met on above date, members all present. Minutes of last meeting read and adopted.

A communication was received from Mr J H Witmer re damages to auto on Elora road south. No action taken.

A communication was received from the Co Clerk showing that the amount to be raised for county purposes in 1915 was as follows:

Provincial war tax	$456 00
General Co rates	6320 00
Municipal equivalent	139 22
Total	$6355 22

Fraser—Lewis—That the following accounts be paid and that the receive and clerk issue orders on treas for same.—Carried. Rud Grant, 49 yds gravel per P C Gibson, pathmaster, $4 90; W J Allen, 80 yds per John Allen, $8; Chas Parker, 70 yds per Wm Pender, $7; J McCurdy, 80 yds per Henry Bogle, $8; Gilbert McLaughlin, 78 yds per Jas Marr, $7 80; Thos Collins, 32 yds per John McBeath, $3 20; Geo Addison, 84 yds per Alex Campbell, $8 40; Thos Duff, 130 yds per Wm Herron, $13; J T Buchanan, 40 yds per J T Buchanan, $4; Duncan McKinnon, 30 yds per Wm Collard, $3; Wm Collard, performing arrears of statute labor, $7 50; H Nichol, 32 yds gravel per J B McBride, $3 20; D A McKinnon, 83 yds per P O'Hagan, $8 30; A Watson, 52 yds per E Mattery, $5 20; J T Buchanan, 54 yds per J H Turner, $5 40; Thos Collins, 46 yds per J J Thompson, $4 60; Guy Rathven, 107 yds per Guy Ruthven, $10 70; Peter Porter, 48 yds per D McBeath, $4 80; D McBeath, building culvert, 3 sideroad, $1 50; J J Thompson, performing arrears of statute labor, $1 50; D Sparrow, 70 yds gravel per J Dodgeon, $7; Thos Dinsmore, 95 yds per Jas Hammond, $9 50; J T Buchanan, 100 yds per John Davis, $10; W J Allen, 93 3 yds per W S Patterson, $9 30; Thos Duff, 100 yds per Arthur Clements, $10; Jas Hammond, performing arrears statute labor, $4 50; John Davis, do, $4 50; Arthur Clements, do, $5 15; Arthur Clements, grant gravelling, $18; Geo Addison, 72 yds gravel per Geo Kubl, $7 20; Geo Addison, 71 yds per Jas Bliss, $7 10; S K Ewart, 87 yds, per A McCannel, $8 70; J B McBride, performing arrears statute labor, $5 75; Andrew Munro, building culvert, Wellington Mcgee, John Stoddart, gravelling Elora road south, $25; J B McBride, inspecting gravel contract Elora road south, $4; Thos Duff, 80 yds gravel per Wm Elder, $3; C W Henry, 80 yds per Sinclair Legge, $7; T Duff, 180 yds per W F Cruickshank, $18 90; S Legge, performing arrears statute labor, $1 50; Sawyer Massey Co, repairs for grader, $9 73; Jas Rushton, gravelling to sideroad, con 13, $25; Joseph Stoddart, gravelling road div No 18, $10; Thos Nichol, rebuilding two abutments, bridge 20 w e, con 1, 68, W T Cruickshanks, performing arrears statute labor, $16 50; S Ruthven, do, $2 25; W E Patterson, gravelling road div No 13, $35; Geo Kubl, gravelling 30 sideroad, con 4, $40; R C Pearce, half year's salary as clerk, $85; Duncan Graham half year's salary as auditor of hall, $6; Chas Parker, 60 yds gravel per Geo Hopper, $6; S K Ewart, operating grader and repairs, $254 20; A Thomson, 78 yds gravel per S Ruthven, $7 80; W J Fortune, 60 yds per W J Fortune, $6; Arthur Slomski, 115 yds per Alex Graham, $11 50; J A McKinnon, bal contract bridges con 4, $96 50; W J Fortune, gravel and grant, con 1, $77 75; Wm McDonald, part payment printing contract, $15; Alex Graham, gravelling 20 sideroad, con 12, $15; S M Ewart, express charges on grader supplies, 75c.

Allen—Thomson—That this board do now adjourn to meet again on Monday, Aug 2nd, at 1 o'clock p m for general business. School boards are requested to have their requisitions in the hands of the clerk on or before this date.—Carried.

R C PEARCE, Clerk

Clerk's Notice of First Posting of Voters' List

Voters' List of 1915 Municipality of the Township of Elderslie, County of Bruce.

NOTICE is hereby given that I have transmitted or delivered to the persons mentioned in sections 8 and 9 of the Voters' Act, the copies required by said sections to be so delivered or transmitted of the List, made pursuant to said Act of 1915, and bearing date the 1st revised day of July, 1915, and that the said List was first posted up in my office on the 1st day of July 1915 and remains there for inspection. Electors are called upon to examine the list and if any omissions or errors are discovered therein, to take immediate proceedings to have the same corrected according to law.

Dated this 8th day of July, A.D., 1915

R. C. PEARCE, Clerk of Elderslie.

Clerk's Notice of First Posting of Voters' List

Voters' Lists, 1915. Municipality of the Village of Paisley, County of Bruce

NOTICE is hereby given, that I have transmitted or delivered to the persons mentioned in section 8 of The Ontario Voters' Lists Act the copies required by said section to be so transmitted or delivered of the list, made pursuant to said act, of all persons appearing by the last revised assessment roll to be entitled to vote at municipal elections in the municipality at elections for members of the Legislative Assembly and at Municipal Elections; and that the said list was first posted up at my office at Paisley on the 15th day of July 1915 and remains there for inspection.

And I hereby call upon all voters to take immediate proceedings to have any errors or omissions corrected according to law.

Dated this 12th day of July 1915.

J. C. GIBSON, Clerk.

Tenders for School Seating and Heating Equipment

SEALED tenders will be received by the undersigned up to Friday, July 30th, for the seats required for new school in U. S. S. No. 10 Bruce & Greenock also for furnishing and putting in a hot air furnace. The lowest or any tender not necessarily accepted. For further particulars apply to ROBT. CULWELL, Sec. 7, Paisley, R. R. No. 1.

The Paisley Advocate.

D. McKENZIE, Publisher
Vol. 47—No. 29

PAISLEY, ONTARIO, JULY 22, 1915

$1.00 per Annum in Advance
$1.25 if not so paid

Big Reductions
IN ALL
Summer Goods

Ladies' Waists to clear at	$ .19
Hosiery reduced to	.09
Ladies' Gloves at	.19
Ginghams to clear at, per yd	.8½
Boys' Underwear cut to	.19
Odd sizes in Men's Underwear	.19
Men's Summer Socks, 2 pair for	.25
A few Men's Straw Hats at half-price

Men's Suits

$16.50 value for	$8.85
15.50 " "	9.95
14.00 " "	9.98
13.50 " "	8.98
8.50 " "	4.49

Boys' Suits

$8.50 values for	$4.98
7.75 "	4.49
6.75 "	4.19
6.50 "	3.98
5.00 "	3.49
3.50 "	1.98

In Our Shoe Department

Ladies' Pumps, $4 for	$2.98
A few Oxfords to clear at	.69
High Shoes at	.98
Men's Oxfords, reg. $4.50 for	2.49

Wool Wanted!

The highest price will be paid for Wool — Cash or Trade. ¶ Bring your Farm Produce, for which the top price will be paid.

M. J. CAMPBELL

W. H. McFarlane's Old Stand : : Paisley

New Spring Suitings

See our goods and styles before buying. We have a large stock to choose from.

We Make a Specialty of . . .

Ladies' Tailoring

No trying on or worrying. Just leave your measure and we will attend to the rest. All the newest goods and latest styles from which to make your selection. Satisfaction guaranteed.

I. S. Cruickshank

City Dairy
Ice Cream

Boot Bargains at Bonathan's

The last chance to buy Shoes at cost price. We have still a few pairs that have got to be sold. ¶ Also an assortment of New Shoes just in, in the latest summer styles, guaranteed to fit. We have bought these to fill out the vacant places in our stock, and are offering them at cost prices, too, to help dispose of the whole stock. We don't intend to keep Shoes when this stock is sold out, and we want to do it quick, so offer attractive bargains to complete the clean-up.

Congoleum, the cheap but servicable Floor Covering

The Clay Lawn Dryer Just the thing to do away with laborious clothes hanging.

Sheet Music—We have added another department to our business for the convenience of music lovers. We can preserve any selection in Sheet Music, vocal or instrumental, at a price that is right. Also Follos.

A. T. BONATHAN

Hyde's Old Stand : : Successor to W. S. Mitchell

—Private funds to loan.
D. FORRESTER.

—Wilkinson plows and repairs at F. Carter & Son's.

—FOR SALE—A five months old heifer calf. J C GIBSON.

—All kinds of Ladies' Dainty Neckwear. Ballachey, Laidlaw & Co.

—Marriage licenses issued and money to loan. T. H. GEORGE.

—300 Brooms, pretty fair stock, special price at 25c. Ballachey, Laidlaw & Co.

—FOR SALE—McLaughlin buggy, nearly new. Apply at Paisley Marble Works.

—Full lines of fine engagement and wedding rings at I. Shoemaker's Jeweller's store.

—Rivers' auction sale of hay crop postponed to next Friday, July 23rd, at 2 o'clock p.m.

—Highest prices paid for hides and sheepskins. H. E. McIlregor, Butcher, Steele Block.

—A full line of Ladies' House Dresses in all sizes. Your choice for $1. Ballachey, Laidlaw & Co.

—Highest price for beefhides, horsehides, calfskins, sheepskins, tallow, &c. P. OLTSHER, Paisley Meat Market.

—"Rough on Rats" clears out Rats, Mice, etc. Don't die in the house. 15c and 25c at drug and country stores.

—Just received a beautiful assortment of Hand Painted Nippon Chinaware. Call and look it over, splendid values. Ballachey, Laidlaw & Co.

—Centre Bruce Garden Party at Mr. Geo. Brown's, 8th Bruce, on Aug. 5th. Kincardine Highlanders band has been engaged. Further announcements later.

—Have you tried Lythes' Sterling Pickles, sweet or sour, or Heinz Bulk Sweet Pickles or Tomato Chutney. We have them always fresh. Ballachey, Laidlaw & Co.

—Auction sale of 10 fresh cows, 10 calves and 5 springers, at Central hotel yards, Paisley, on Saturday, July 31st, at 2 p.m. J E CASE, prop.: R C PEARCE, auc.

—If you have a guest at your home, are going out of town for a visit, or know of any interesting news, kindly let us hear from you. We will always appreciate such favors.

—Just received at E Stevenson's an assortment of pipes that will surely please. Come and select your choice. Tobaccos, stationery, also our wonderful salve that cures burns and sores, soothing for burns.

—Waterloo heating stove for sale in good condition, suitable for heating school or other large building. Can be seen at C. S. S. No. 10, Bruce and Greenock. R. COLWELL, Sec'y.

—HOMESEEKERS' Excursions every Tuesday up to and including October to the Canadian Northwest. For tickets, rates, etc., apply at the Canadian Pacific Railway ticket office, W. H. McFarlane's old stand, Paisley.

—Anniversary entertainment on the grounds at St. Paul's church, Glamis, on Monday, July 26th. Excellent program by Mrs. Coutts-Irvin, Scottish vocalist and elocutionist, Piper McLeod of Paisley, and other good talent. Don't miss it.

—Five Roses, Rainbow, Purity, Cream of the West, and Stark's high-grade flours, also Bran and Shorts. Blatchford's Sugar and Flax, Caldwell's Molasses Meal, and full line of Poultry Foods and Tonics. Always in the market for coarse grains. E. C. ECKEL.

—The ladies of the Church of the Ascension will hold their annual garden party at the home of Mr. John Collins (the Old Orchard Homestead) adjoining Paisley, on Friday evening, July 30. Mr. Robert Clark of Toronto, the noted Ventriloquest and Comedian has been engaged, also the Paisley Brass Band. Look out for bills for further notice. Don't forget Friday, July 30. Put the date in your list.

—Gillies Hill Presbyterians will hold their annual garden party on Thursday, July 22nd, on the grounds of Mr. John Evans, lot 16, con. 7, E.H. Tea served from 6 to 8. Good programme of vocal and instrumental music, speeches and recitations, also a baseball game. Piper Sutherland, a Soudan war veteran, will be on hand with his pipes. Admission—25c and 15c.

—Mr. Martin, of Carnegie, Pa., made a trip to Paisley this week to meet an old schoolmate Mr. Frank Carter. These two were boys together in their birthplace, Paulton, Somersetshire, England, and this is the first time they have met since parting in the Old Country.

—Mr John McAfee, son of Mrs H McAfee of 14th con Greenock, is another Bruce boy who is answering his country's call. Last March he enlisted with the 57th Batt., C E F, and was training for several months at New Westminster, but is now at Vernon camp, playing in the battalion band.

—Miss Myrtle Watson returned to Teeswater last week.

—Miss Lottie Walker is home from Kemptville on vacation.

—Mrs C. Briggs is visiting at Listowel, Bluffton and other points.

—Mrs. Trafford, of Toronto, is a guest at Mr. John Trafford's.

—Mrs J. A. McNeil and son Elwood are visiting friends in Owen Sound.

—Rev. D. McIntosh, of Nairn, will preach in Knox church on Sunday next.

—Mr Dan Eckel, from Kansas, is here on a visit to his brother, Mr. E. G. Eckel.

—Mr. P. C. Ryan is attending the Masonic Grand Lodge in Hamilton this week.

—Mr. Mitchell and daughter Rae II, of Hanover, are visiting at W. R. Barnett's

—Miss Birdie Watson is home from Saskatoon to wait on her mother, Mrs. J. Watson.

—Miss Campbell, of Guelph, is visiting her cousin, Miss Stewart, at Mr H F Boyle's.

—Miss Margaret Sewell, of Meaford, is a visitor at the home of her uncle, Mr. H. G. Glover.

—Mr Ewald, of Brooklyn, N.Y., is here on a visit to his sister, Mrs. E. Mawhinney.

—Misses Marjory and Margaret Fisher are here from Wingham, visiting their cousin, Miss Cora Fisher.

—Mrs. Jos. McLachlan, of South St. Marie, is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Don. Munn, Goldie St.

—Miss Mary Mooney is up from Toronto visiting her old friends here, a guest at Mrs. Fletcher's while in town.

—Mr. and Mrs. Thos. H. Carson, of Owen Sound, are visiting friends here, guests at Mr F. S. McLachlan's.

—Mrs. J. Miller is up from London, attending her aged mother, Mrs. Irwin, Queen St. north, who is seriously ill.

—Mrs. McDonald and daughter, Miss Mary McDonald of Detroit, were visitors at the home of Miss Ross, Albert St., last week.

—Mr. and Mrs F. S. Ballachey are spending vacation at Oliphant summer resort on the Lake Huron shore in the Peninsula.

—Messrs. D. McClure of Lucknow, and W. J. McClure of Somerset, were visitors at Mr. R. R. Grant's last week. They are uncles of Mrs. Grant.

—Mrs. Campbell, of New Westminster, B.C., is visiting friends in this part of Ontario, a guest at the home of her niece, Mrs. Geo Fullerton, S.h. Bruce.

—Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Dickson of Little, daughter, of Toronto, are visiting friends in town and vicinity, guests of the home of his sister, Mrs. Gordon, Albert St.

—Mrs. Hopper and Mrs. Geo. Grant of Victoria St., left on Tuesday to visit friends in the west. The former goes to Regina, and the latter to Vernon, B.C.

—Mr. Geo. Spence, land registrar at Moosejaw, Sask., is spending a vacation visiting his mother at Southampton and was in Paisley and vicinity for a few days.

—Mr T. J. Kelly, who has been on the Cargill concrete camp crew, is the latest addition to the soldier recruit list. He came to town on Friday and after enrolling left for London camp.

—Mr. Hugh Little, a former employee in the City Flour Mills, was calling on Mr. Stark on Saturday. Mr. Little is now living in Michigan, but is over on a visit to his friends at Teeswater.

—Mr. Robt. Snell, formerly of 12th Elderslie, now of Yorkton, Sask., is visiting friends in this district. Mr Snell was a resident of Elderslie for 17 years, and will be remembered by all old-timers as the man who operated a threshing outfit in the palmy days of grain growing in Bruce—when this was the western wheat belt. Crop prospects in the prairie provinces are now the best in fifteen years, he says, and in his travels through Ontario from Ottawa to here he never saw such a fine-looking general crop covering the ground.

Slay the Weeds

Must the law be invoked to compel nearly every man in this country to do his duty in killing the noxious weeds with which the streets, lanes and unoccupied lots in villages as well as the township roads and unworked farms are most luxuriously infested. Is the system unworkable by which the municipality of Paisley might have a man cutting all the weeds in sight at the expense of the weed growing taxpayers? The weed growth is something enormous this season, but should not be allowed to flourish through seed time.

Bug Destroyers

Look us up for Paris Green, Bug Death (a bug destroyer and also a fertilizer for the plant), Insect Powder, Bluestone, Quassia Chips, Hellebore, Instant Louse Killer, Royal Purple Louse Killer, International Louse Killer, Hess Dip and Disinfectant, Pheus, Chloral, Royal Purple Disinfectant, Zenoleum, Little's Sheep Dip, McDougall's Sheep Dip, Larkspur Lotion (for head lice), King's Bed-Bug Poison.

P. B. MORE, Druggist

Established over Forty-one Years

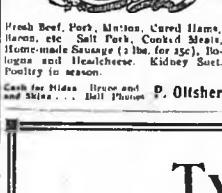
THE STANDARD BANK OF CANADA

ASSETS OVER $48,000,000

The A, B, C of Banking

Get the Savings Habit.

Highest Current Rates Allowed, and Interest Compounded Half-Yearly on Deposits.



We solicit your account in our SAVINGS DEPARTMENT

PAISLEY BRANCH

F. C. RYAN Manager

Branches also at Harriston and Trenton.

Paisley Meat Market

Fresh Beef, Pork, Mutton, Cured Hams, Bacon, etc. Salt Pork, Cooked Meats, Home-made Sausage (2 lbs. for 25c), Bologna and Headcheese. Kidney Suet. Poultry in season.

Cash for Hides Bruce and Skins . . . Bell Phone

P. Oltsher

J. S. DEWAR

PAISLEY

Builder, Contractor and Cement Worker

Brick or cement buildings erected, brick work, cement work and plastering contracts taken.

Cement Supplies Furnished

Building Blocks, Window and Door Sills, Culvert Tile, Well Curbing, Lawn Rollers, Lawn Vases, Verandah Columns, Balusters and other fancy Cement Products.

Building Material

Cement, Lime, Lath, Shingles, Glazed Sewar Pipe and Flue Lining, Mortar Color, etc.

Two Extra Specials

For next two weeks we will sell all Ready Made Dresses at cost or less. We can give you Dresses for little girls at 3 years to the largest of women at from 25c. up. Come and we will do our best to please you.

Ribbons

We are making a special of Ribbons. Large reductions will be given and in many cases only half price.

Our Groceries are the Best that can be Bought

Both Phones PUTNAM & SON

—It's only a dollar, but it means a good deal to THE ADVOCATE if hundreds are slow in paying that on their subscription.

Hound Shot

Caught in the act of chasing Mr. John Collins' sheep in the pasture field, the career of a spotted hound belonging to Mr W. J. Ellis was brought to a sudden end by a rifle bullet. Another dog was participating in the sport of rushing the mutton, but made a getaway leaving nothing but its dog behind.

At Southampton Beach

The everchanging sands that are always being driven about by the restless waves and wavelets seem to be more of an attraction to Paisley holiday-seekers this year than heretofore. Mr Geo Fullerton and family have just returned from a short term of cottage life there. Mr J A McArthur and family went last week, and Rev Mr Little and family this week. Mr Robt Fullerton and daughter Jean spent holidays there. This week a bevy of seventeen Paisley matrons and maids are at the summer hotel, viz: Mesdames Black, Johnston, McKerracher and McCallum, Misses Nettie Trelford, Annetta and Mildred Johnston, Prudence and Mary Kerr, Connie Cormack, Gladys McCallum, Jean McKerracher, Zeta Black, Florence Diehl, Lottie McGregor, Meta Allen, May Warren.

—Clubbing rates with all the city dailies and weeklies.

June Specials

A Good-for-any-Time-of-the-Year Suit Costs

$15.00

Special Summer Pants

$2.50

Shirts

Regular $1.50, $1.25, $1 for 75c.

Underwear

Balbriggan Mesh Cashmere Underwear, regular 50c at 40c; Cashmere 75c at 50c; Combinations accordingly.

Ties

All 50c Ties at 25c.

Hosiery

Silk and Cashmere—50c—75c at 35c

—$3.50 Auto Dusters at $2.50—

We would like you to call some day

G. B. IRWIN

Tailor and Furnisher - Paisley

TRENCHES ARE NOT ALWAYS BLOODY

The Health of the Troops Is as Good as That in the Barracks at Home.

One might have gone miles along the British front this week without hearing the sound of a gun. It seemed as if both sides were taking a holiday from war out of respect for the beautiful summer weather, or else the silence was significant of preparation and accumulation of shells by one side or the other for some great effort, writes Mr. Frederick Palmer from the British headquarters in France.

Beyond the occasional explosion of a mine and routine shelling to harass the enemy's guns, to destroy new fortification work, or to keep the enemy from taking life too easily, there has been no action. The soldiers in reserve have been swimming in the canal, resting under shaded trees, playing cricket and football and tending their flower gardens about their quarters, which have been made to look like those one sees in front of rows of cottages at this season in England.

Summer Transforms Flanders.

The flat and gently rolling country of Flanders and northern France, which was a forbidding, gray, leafless mire under chilling winter mists, has become a pleasant land of rich crops dotted with groves, while long lines of motor trucks of the transport pass along stately avenues between poplars which line the roads.

All fears of an epidemic of sickness in the hot months for the immense army billeted in the thickly populated lowlands are groundless. Thanks to anti-typhoid inoculation, the habitual personal cleanliness of the Englishmen and the strict enforcement of sanitary precautions by the Royal Army Medical Corps in the minutest details, the health of the troops is as good as that in the barracks at home.

Flies are being kept down to a minimum. There are few even around the camps of the cavalry and artillery horses. The paths, roadsides and yards where the men are billeted are kept as clear of litter as a first class golf course or the lawn of a fastidious suburbanite.

Tommy Helps Peasants.

Tommy Atkins frequently lends a hand to the French peasant, all of whom, from boys and girls of 6 or 7 to bent old men and women, are engaged in the harvest, and by the way Tommy uses his scythe or fork one knows whether he is city or country bred.

The correspondent has walked through the long communication trenches safely in broad daylight to the firing trenches which if approached in winter except over open ground and stumbling through mud under cover of darkness would have been worth one's life.

Siege warfare has been made comfortable. Some trenches even have become a sort of Sylvian paradise where meals and tea are taken al fresco, and flowers even have been planted on the parapets which support the trenches.

Trenches Comfortable Now.

Where in winter men stood freezing in water up to their knees, mud oozed from sand bags and only continual pumping and bailing kept them from complete immersion and walls continually falling in, now the only complaint of the trench housekeepers is the want of water for washing, for the spongy subsoil is as dry as a bone and as hard as cement.

The toll of casualties where there are only sniping and infrequent shelling has been much reduced owing not only to the increased adaptability of the men in self-protection—the result of experience in trench warfare—but to an immense improvement in the protective character of the work.

Though a trench may be on exactly the same line as it was in December, spade work in the spring and summer has completely transformed it, affording small chance for either shrapnel shell bullets or bullets fired by snipers from trees or buildings to hit the defenders.

Days Without Casualty.

You can move only a few feet in a straight line in this maze of human warrens. The zigzag traverses localize damage. On dull days in the stalemate part of the line there have been instances of not a single casualty for a distance of a mile in twenty-four hours.

It is when the artillery fire is concentrated and an effort is made to get through the barbed wire and take a trench by either side that the casualty list leaps like a thermometer thrust from an icebox into an oven.

So used have they become to trench life that some soldiers prefer life in an average trench on an average day to that in billets, because sniping has the elements of sport and excitement.

The confidence and patriotism of the fighting men at the front are shown in both officers and soldiers, even if they have only a few shillings put by, in subscribing to the war loan.

Officers Not Discouraged.

The professional opinion of officers at the front is that they are not discouraged by the German offensive in the east. They say the war must be won by the killing of Germans and that the further the Germans are drawn into the Russian quicksand the more wastage for them.

This period of the war for the entente allies is compared to that for the North in 1863, at the time of Lee's and Jackson's success in Virginia and the confederate advance in Pennsylvania, before Gettysburg was won.

Riding about the British front even an expert observer is unable to guess how many troops the British have in France, so easy of concealment is the thickly settled country. He passes bodies of infantry changing station or moving to the front without being any the wiser.

Only a Few Know.

Only Sir John French, commander in chief of the British expeditionary force, and a few staff officers really know. The average officer never asks, but attends strictly to his business.

In the hard fighting in the Festubert and La Bassee region and the French offensive in the Arras region, though the changes show so little on the map, gains of a very positive tactical value for the future were made, if the opinion of a lay observer counts for anything the British army is far from making anything like a maximum effort yet.

The anger of officers and men at gas attacks of the Germans has not yet passed. Tommy Atkins always is seen in new trenches with a respirator in a bag slung at his side.

In the trenches, these days at least, one hears no talk of any peace which is not gained by forcing Germany to her knees.

No. 8906-9020. No. 8978-8895.

Quaker Collars Are Fashionable.

The season has witnessed a great many changes—or revivals—which have been instrumental in affecting the methods of making up clothes, the materials used, and the styles themselves.

The separate skirts and waists that have returned to favor have practically superseded the one-piece gown, which, of course, is right in keeping with the revival of the fuller dresses; and they are, indeed, a pleasant relief from the tight skirts of a year ago.

More interesting, however, is the return of certain fabrics to popular favor. Although it is the season for cotton goods, one finds organdie, dotted swiss, voile, lace, net, and even mull, everywhere one turns. Many are the possibilities of choice in the popular materials of the season.

The return of separate waists and skirts will be particularly welcomed by the home dressmaker, who can readily make a shirt waist in a day's time. A simple and practical model is Ladies' Home Journal Pattern No. 8978, cut with a yoke, to which the waist is plaited in the back and gathered in the front. The pattern cuts in sizes 32 to 46 inches bust measure, requiring for size 36 3¾ yards of 27-inch material. Skirt No. 8895 is a three-piece circular model, opening in the front, and cutting in sizes 22 to 32 inches waist measure, requiring for size 24 3¾ yards of 36-inch material.

The wide popularity now enjoyed by Quaker dresses is quite satisfying, for one cannot help but admire their simplicity and grace. The Quaker dress illustrated by Ladies' Home Journal Patterns Nos. 8996 and 9020 is an excellent and comfortable smart summer dress. The blouse, No. 8996, has three tucks running around the waist just below the bust line, and the back of the waist extends over the shoulders to form a shallow yoke, to which the front of the waist is gathered. The sleeves may be full length or short, as desired, and the one-piece plaited skirt is finished with a hem and two tucks. Pattern No. 8996 cuts in sizes 32 to 42 inches bust measure and the skirt in sizes 22 to 32, waist measure; a dress in medium size requiring 3¾ yards of 36-inch material with ⅛ yard 36-inch contrasting goods for collar and cuffs.

The patterns, 15c. each, may be obtained from your local Ladies' Home Journal pattern dealer, or from the Home Pattern Company, 183a George Street, Toronto, Ontario.

SETTLERS' SLASH.

A Prime Cause for This Year's Forest Fires.

While forest fires since the beginning of May have been kept down by the fire ranging systems to a fraction of last year's destruction, enough public and private-owned timber in this province has been given to the flames to compel a close investigation of the causes.

It is asserted by expert forest engineers that while railway and lumber companies can greatly reduce the risk to the forests from locomotive sparks and the debris that follows cutting operations, immediate steps must be taken by the Provincial Governments to curb the evil of settlers' fires.

Every wooded province attributes much of its great annual loss to the burning of brush by farmers. It is absolutely necessary, of course, that farmers should clear up their lands and burning is usually the one cheap method. The only restriction asked by those concerned in forest protection is that permits shall be issued to those intending to burn the brush on the edge of the forests and that inspectors shall establish the safest method of doing it. Scores of cases could be cited where a settler, often innocent of any harmful intention, started a fire in his property to provide for a hundred dollar crop and ended up with destroying scores of thousands(and in one case three millions) of dollars worth of timber.

In the area covered by the St. Maurice Forest Protective Association in Quebec Province, 231 fires were encountered and fought last year and of this number no less than 80 were due to careless and unthinking settlers. In 1913, out of 306 fires, 151 were traced to the same cause. Had it not been for the highly-efficient system of fire-ranging, the timber burned through the attempt to clean off a few agricultural acres last year would have more than equalled the cost of the entire 80 farms. Every province shows annually just such unreasonable records of waste by settlers who take brush burning into their own hands.

In Ontario there is practically no restriction upon settlers' brush-burning operations and the province has paid up in charred and useless strips of woodland. The Quebec authorities have a good law and make a serious effort to regulate the setting out of fires by establishing a closed season during which no fire shall be set unless by permit issued by a fire ranger. The enforcement of such a law is obviously difficult and a large staff will be required to give it the success which the situation demands.

British Columbia supplies a first-rate example of an act covering the permit system for settlers' slash. No forest engineer in that or any province attempts to hamper the farmer unnecessarily in clearing his land. At the same time it is established that no haphazard citizen, in a hurry to burn his waste stuff, shall have the right to lose the province half a million dollars of good timber and menace the safety of towns and villages. From May 1st to October 1st is the "closed season." Wherever possible the area to be burned is examined by a forest guard. The duration of the permit averaged last last year from seven to fifteen days. In certain districts, owing to dangerous weather, high winds and numerous fires, the permits of the district had to be cancelled altogether. Of 11,523 permits issued to settlers in 1914, only 128 fires escaped beyond control, which is about one per cent. This is a remarkably small proportion of damage to the credit of settlers, for in some districts of Canada the settlers are responsible for thirty to forty per cent. of all forest destruction. Even of this one per cent. in British Columbia, under the permit system, quite a number were due to extraordinary accidents; in several cases sudden high winds lifted the burning material into the forest and started a serious blaze. "Nothing is more certain," remarked Chief Forester MacMillan, "than that had there been no permit regulation the results would have been disastrous in the extreme."

NO ALUM MAGIC BAKING POWDER READ THE LABEL

NEW NERVOUS DISEASE.

Sir William Osler Tells of Types Developed by War.

Sir William Osler, regius professor of medicine at Oxford, gives another interesting sidelight on England as seen from the medical v' ipoint. His letter is published in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

Types of nervous disorders seen very rarely in this country or in Europe have manifested themselves as a result of the extraordinary stress and strain of trench fighting. One of these disorders is a temporary paralysis without actual injury due to close proximity of an explosion. This is known to military surgeons as "Shell shock paralysis."

Another is the "Psychic knockout," in which the victim remains in a stuporous state, with loss of memory and complete speechlessness or stammering. Recovery follows in a few days as a rule, but extreme nervous irritability may persist for weeks. In many cases the walking gait is changed in all sorts of curious ways. One remarkable case is described in detail by the patient himself. Here the effort at balancing the body when walking resembled a tight rope walker's efforts.

Gas poisoning is spoken of also. The high explosive shells, the hand grenades and shrapnel all do great damage, but none of them is quite so frightful as the deadly gasses used by the Germans. Victims of gas poisoning do not always die at once, but drag out a lingering and painful death, caused by a suffocative swelling in the lungs.

Recently about six miles from Ashcroft, B.C., J. G. Collins and his son Bert found a nest of rattlesnakes and killed 96 of them.

AN INCIDENT OF THE WAR.

Starving Russians Receive Aid From the Austrians.

A touching story of one of those paradoxical friendships that occasionally spring up between two opposing forces in spite of the adverse conditions of modern warfare is told by Mr. Fritz Kreisler, in his book "Four Weeks in the Trenches."

Intermittent truces, sometimes accompanied by actual intercourse between the opposing forces, were quite common all along the battle line. That very night I was hurriedly summoned to the trenches of the 13th Company, about half a mile east of us, in order to act as an interpreter between the major commanding that battalion and two singular guests he had just received, a Russian officer and his orderly. The pair carrying a white flag, had hailed one of the numerous Austrian outposts placed during the night in front of the trenches, and had been sent blindfolded back to the major. The Russian officer spoke only broken French. He commanded one of the opposing trenches, and from his narrative it appeared that his men had not received any food supplies for some days, and were actually on the point of starvation. Not being able to stand their misery any longer, he had taken the bull by the horns and, with the utter confidence and straightforwardness of a fearless nature, had simply come over to us, the enemy, for help, offering a little barrel of water, and a little tobacco in exchange for some provisions.

The major seemed at first, perhaps, a little perplexed and undecided about this singular request, but his generous nature and chivalry soon asserted themselves. One single look at the emaciated and worn face of our guests sufficiently substantiated the truth of their story, for both men were utterly exhausted and on the verge of collapse. The next minute messengers were flying to the different trenches of the battalion to solicit and collect contributions, and the officers scrambled over each in their noble contest to deplete their own last and cherished reserves for the supper of the guests. Soon the latter were seated as comfortably as circumstances permitted before a feast of canned beef, cheese, biscuits, and a slice of salame, my own proud contribution, consisting of two tablets of chocolate, part of a precious reserve for extreme cases. It was a strange sight to see these two Russians in an Austrian trench, surrounded by cordiality and tender solicitude. The big brotherhood of humanity and for the time enveloped friend and foe, stamping out all hatred and racial differences. It is wonderful how the most tender flowers of civilization can go hand in hand with the most brutal atrocities of grim modern warfare.

In the meanwhile the messengers returned almost staggering under the weight of a sack filled with the gifts of our soldiers to the enemy—piece of bread and biscuits, with here and there a slice of bacon or a lump of cheese, all thrown pell-mell together. Many a man must have parted with his last piece of bread in order not to be outdone by the others in generosity, for our own provisions were running very low. It is true that the bread and biscuits were moldewed, the cheese stale, and the bacon as hard as stone, but the boys gave the best they could, the very poverty and bumbleness of the gifts attesting their own desperate plight, bearing proud witness to the extent of their sacrifice. With tears in their eyes and reiterated protestations of thanks, our guests staggered back through the night to their lines, undoubtedly carrying with them tender memories of Austrian generosity and hospitality.

LAMPS THAT LIGHT THEMSELVES.

The Panama Canal Is Now Illuminated by Them.

The Panama Canal from end to end is illuminated by a string of brilliant lamps, which light themselves at sunset and put themselves out when the sun rises again. This marvelous fairy tale of modern science is due to the efforts of Swedish engineers to find some economical means of lighting their long, sparsely populated coast. The reefs and narrow inlets are a menace to skippers and fishermen, but the expense of engaging lighthouse keepers and providing them with the means of livelihood was so great that many dangerous points must neccessarily be left unguarded, according to the American-Scandinavian Review.

The discovery that acetone dissolves great quantities of acetylene formed the basis of the invention by which Gustaf Dalen created his boon to mariners, the self-tending lamp. It afforded a practical and economical means of transporting large amounts of this highly illuminant gas; the Aga gas accumulator, which was finally evolved, contains 100 times its own volume of gas and is at the same time safe and nonexplosive. Instead of needing constant attention, it can be fixed to burn for a year or even a longer time without being touched. The Aga flashlight apparatus makes it possible to give the marine lights a distinctive character by producing flashes of any desired duration or combination. As the flash character now generally adopted requires the flame to burn for only one-tenth of the time, this means great economy. Most marvelous of all to the layman is the sun valve, which extinguishes the light during the day, thus further diminishing gas consumption.

The lighthouse of Gasfeten on a little reef at the entrance to Ronneby in Sweden was the first in which the Aga light was installed. This was in 1904, and the experiment proved so satisfactory that it has since been adopted practically all over the world. Lighthouses and buoys have been placed where it was impossible for even the most hardy keeper to live. Difficult passages like the Straits of Magellan, where dangers known and unknown lurked in the way of the sailor, have had their haunting terrors dispelled by light. The most brilliant triumph of the Aga lamp, however, came when it was chosen in competion with all known lighting systems to guide the ships of the world through the new Atlantic-Pacific highway.

KAISER'S GIFT TO LONDON.

Statue Near Kensington Palace Was Sent From Germany.

It is not generally known that the statute of King William which stands outside Kensington Palace was presented to England by the Kaiser. It bears the following inscription:—"William III. of Orange, King of Great Britain and Ireland, 1689-1702. Presented by William II., German Emperor and King of Prussia, to King Edward VII., for the British nation, 1907."

A very short time ago the Kaiser presented a colossal statute to Norway. This is a statute of Frithjof, the great Norse hero, who is the subject of an Icelandic saga assigned to the fourteenth century, and relating his adventures. It is designated to commemorate the Kaiser's twenty-fifth cruise to the Land of the Midnight Sun. The figure of the mythical hero is forty feet high—about ten feet shorter than the Kaiser thinks himself— and stands on a pedestal thirty feet high. A dozen men lunched in the chest cavity of this colossal statute whilst it was in course of erection.

WHEN IN DOUBT
Serve Ice Cream

CITY DAIRY Service makes this possible. We have developed a method of shipping Ice Cream put up in attractive boxes—Enough in a box to serve five or six persons. We ship thousands of these boxes to discriminating shop keepers everywhere.

You get it in the original package just as it is put up in our sanitary Dairy.

City Dairy

Look for the Sign.

TORONTO.

We want an Agent in every town.

BABY'S GREAT DANGER DURING HOT WEATHER

More little ones die during the hot weather than at any other time of the year. Diarrhoea, dysentry, cholera infantum and stomach troubles come without warning, and when a medicine is not at hand to give promptly the short delay too frequently means that the child has passed beyond aid. Baby's Own Tablets should always be kept in homes where there are young children. An occasional dose of the Tablets will prevent stomach and bowel troubles, or if the trouble comes suddenly the prompt use of the Tablets will cure the baby. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

First Krupp Was Blacksmith.

From a little blacksmith's shop at Essen in 1812, the mighty firm of Krupps, the home of German guns, has grown into the largest armament factory in the world. Friedrich Krupp originated the emithy, and for fourteen years struggled against poverty. He died a poor man, and on his deathbed confided the secrets he had discovered during his lifetime to his son Alfred. It was more than twenty years before Alfred Krupp gained recognition, but after obtaining fame through exhibiting a forty-five ton cast ingot of Krupp steel at the Crystal Palace Exhibition in 1851, he never looked back. When he died, in 1887, 60,000 people followed him to the grave. To-day Krupps' works cover 1,000 acres of ground. Even before the war had commenced the firm were employing 60,000 men at their main works at Essen and thousands of others in their collieries, shipbuilding yards, and private testing grounds. It is estimated that over 300,000 people depend on Krupps for their livelihood.

At the Krupps' works 40,000 cannon are turned out every week.

Work at Krupps is conducted in great secrecy. Each worker is forbidden to enter any office or workshop not connected with his own department. He has a passport for his special job, and he must not take any interest in any other. Krupps' private army will march him off to the private barracks if he disobeys. Hundreds of watchmen, heavily armed, guard the secrets of the Krupps' works both day and night, and the grounds are a mass of electric traps which immediately signal the approach of any intruder.

Nothing in Goodness.

Willie came home from school crying bitterly. "Mother," he sobbed, "I'm not going to try and be good any more." "Why, Willie, whatever is the matter?" asked his mother. "Boohoo!" sobbed Willie. "I was in school to-day, and I saw Teddy Smith put a bent pin on the teacher's chair, and because I did not want him to sit on it I pulled his chair away ,and he sat on the floor. He gave me a thrashing for pulling his chair away when he got up, and when I got outside the school Teddy Smith hit me for pulling the pin away, and not minding my own business."

His Stamping Ground.

Jolly Man (whose appetite is the envy of all his fellow boarders)—Well, I never! I've lost two buttons off my vest.

Lady of the House (who has been wanting to give him a hint)—You will more likely find them in the dining-room, sir.

DAINTY FOOD

Turns Pale Cheeks to Pink.

Our best physicians of the present day seek to cure patients by the use of food and right living, rather than heavy drugs, and this is the true method, for only from food can the body be rebuilt.

Many people after living on poorly selected or badly cooked food for a long time, and when their ailments become chronic, expect the doctor, with some magic potency, to instantly rebuild them.

This is not possible. The only true method is to run as quickly as can be, from poor food to good. A young lady says:

"I was variously treated for my nerves, stomach, lungs, etc., but none of the treatments gave me relief.

"About a year ago when my appetite failed completely and I began to have sinking spells similar to fainting. I took all manner of tonic and stimulants, but they were of no effect. It had been brought to quit drinking coffee and taking Postum in its place and gradually began to get a little better.

"Someone suggested that if I found Postum so beneficial I had better use Grape-Nuts food, as they were both the children of one brain. I commenced on Grape-Nuts food for breakfast, having Postum with it. I found the food so dainty, delicious, and appetizing that I always looked forward to breakfast with pleasure.

"Shortly after commencing this diet, the wretched pain in my side was greatly relieved, and now, a year later, it has gone entirely, also the sinking spells; in fact, my pale cheeks have changed to pink, I have gained back more than the twenty pounds I lost, and am thoroughly well in every way."

Name given by Canadian Postum Co., Windsor, Ont. Read, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a Reason."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

This Man Bears A Charmed Life

This man, named Turner, came safely through three of the greatest steamship disasters in the rolls of history. He was one of the survivors of the Titanic wreck; two years later was saved when the Empress of Ireland sank, and more recently was rescued when the Lusitania was sunk by a German torpedo.

FIRST BRITISH NAVY WAS ROMAN

ESTABLISHED BY CAESAR AFTER HE HAD INVADED ENGLAND.

Henry VIII. Called Father of the Navy of More Modern Times.

The first British navy was a Roman one, if the Hibernianism may be permitted, and it was due to the hosts whom great Caesar led to conquest. For the protection of their colony (Ernest Protheroe tells us, in a new book just published), the Romans established a fleet known as the Classis Britannica, manned by Roman soldiers, but with the oars of the galleys worked by Britons who were pressed into service. In 288 A.D., Carausius, with the aid of some pirates, got possession of the fleet and defied the Roman authority, calling himself Emperor of Britain. He was succeeded by Allectus, who was overthrown and slain by the Emperor Constantine. The revolted soldiers, who had been assisting Allectus, fled to London, where they were attacked and killed in the streets by the Roman forces.

But after occupying Britain for more than three centuries and a half the Romans evacuated the country in 410 A.D., in order to assist in defending the very heart of Rome, which was being assailed by hordes of barbarians from Central Europe. During the latter part of their occupation they had practically abolished the Classis Britannica; and upon the departure of the legions Britain was again without a fleet.

Alfred the Great was the creator of the first really British navy. In 875 Alfred defeated seven Danish ships off Swanage, capturing one and putting the others to flight; in 894 he destroyed a Danish fleet off Appledore and gained another great victory near the Isle of Wight three years later.

The weakness of Ethelred II., who gave bribes to the Danes instead of a fight, opened the way to disastrous raids, and it was not until after the death of Canute and the restoration of the English line of Kings, that the semblance of a fleet was again established.

King Harold's Fleet.

To King Harold, succeeding Edward in 1066, fell the task of averting, if possible, the impending invasion of Normans.

But Duke William delayed setting out.

Meanwhile, their period of annual service being at an end, food aboard being scarce, and the men being required ashore to work in the harvest, the English ships returned to their various ports. Three weeks later Duke William crossed over with about 900 ships and 15,000 men, and effected an easy landing at Pevensey, near Hastings.

Henry II. had larger fighting ships specially constructed for the service of the Crown, in addition to the usual forced levies. During this regin it was enacted that no vessel should be sold to leave England. Portsmouth was rising into importance as a naval port and London and Bristol were doing an increasing trade with the Continent.

Richard I., "Coeur de Lion," sixth of the Norman Kings, gave the navy a great impetus, and in the third crusade undertook a record trip to the Mediterranean with troops for the Holy Land.

It was in the time of John that the naval rivalry between the English and the French first commenced.

In 1213 Philip Augustus of France, attacked the Earl of Flanders, who was an old ally of John's. An English fleet of 500 ships, under the Earl of Salisbury, was despatched against Philip, whose fleet was attacked in the harbor of Damma. As a great portion of the French crews was ashore at the time, the English easily captured 300 sail and destroyed 100 others. The remaining French vessels were then so closely blockaded that their crews burnt them to prevent them from being captured.

After this signal naval victory King John took to himself the title 'Governor of the Seas,' and he caused it to be proclaimed that all foreign vessels should lower their topsails in salutation of the English flag in the Channel.

English Seamanship.

A curious battle royal at sea marked the reign of Edward I.:

There was a direct challenge and acceptance to settle all differences by a pitched battle in midchannel on April 14, 1295. There was no limit to the number of vessels on each side and consequently the rivals enlisted their friends or those who merely desired a fight for the love of it. A number of Irish and Dutch vessels joined the hardy Cinque Ports men, while some Genoese came to the aid of the French.

Although the English ships were outnumbered by about two to one, by their seamanship and desperate fighting their crews nobly atoned for their lack of sail. They captured no less than 240 of the hostile ships and sank a great number.

Meantime the French had been building new warships armed with cannon, and Edward III. had been dead only a few days when De Vienne, a noted French admiral, appeared off our southern coast to give us a taste of the quality of the new French fleet. De Vienne's drastic operations resulted in the sacking of Rye and Folkestone, and the destruction of Portsmouth, Plymouth, and Dartmouth, and then he sailed back to France with his ships filled with booty.

French ships in 1380 even sailed up the Thames and burnt Gravesend. For the time being England had not only ceased to be "Mistress of the Seas," she was no longer mistress of her own waters, and the weakness and unpreparedness of Richard II. to withstand these foreign ravages led to rebellion in some parts of England.

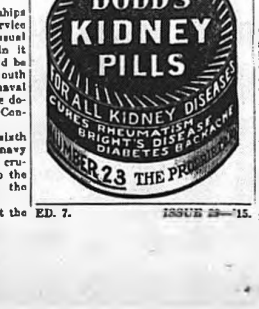
It had required a calamity to prove to the English that it was suicidal policy to allow the navy to decline in strength, or to fail to seize upon new aids to warfare. Forthwith measures were taken to bring the fleet up to date.

Father of Navy.

Henry VIII. earned the title "Father of the English Navy," for from the commencement of his reign in 1509 he followed a definite naval policy, which consisted in steadily building ships until he possessed the largest navy in the world.

"The most glorious period in the history of our wooden walls," writes Mr. Protheroe, "was that between 1702 and 1805, a stressful century of almost continual war with powerful enemies, that put out ships and men to most searching tests, from which both emerged triumphantly."

And in those days—



"'Hearts of Oak,' indeed, were our wooden walls, for to build even a 74-gun ship, the third rate, of which our navy contained so many, from 1,500 to 2,000 oak trees were needed.

"The French ships, as a rule, were bigger and faster than our own; they possessed larger batteries, and their lowest tier of guns was higher, in order to fight them in rough weather; whereas in most English ships the lower deck ports could not be opened in a rough sea without danger of swamping the ship. Fortunately for us, the French did not pay equal attention to the effectiveness of their guns, or many of our battles with them would have ended far differently."

In this brief review most attention has been paid to the earlier and less familiar history of Britain's navy. In his book, Mr. Protheroe brings his story down to the latest thing in submarines.

The reason there are so many failures is because so many men spend all their time looking for the easy ways to success.

German prisoners of war in England are allowed daily 1lb. bread, or 3-4 lb. biscuit; 3-4 lb. fresh meat, or 1lb (nominal) preserved meat; 3 oz. cheese; 5-8 oz. tea; 1-4 lb. jam; 3 oz. sugar; 1-2 oz. salt; 1-20 oz. mustard; 1-36 oz. pepper; 1-2 lb. fresh vegetables, or, instead, 2 oz. peas, or beans, or dried potatoes; with 2 oz. tobacco a week, for smokers.

How a Sick Woman Can Regain Health

READ THIS VERY CAREFULLY.

"For years I was thin and delicate. I lost color and was easily tired; a yellow pallor, pimples and blotches on my face were not only mortifying to my feelings, but because I thought my skin would never look nice again I grew despondent. Then my appetite failed. I grew very weak. Various remedies, pills, tonics and tablets I tried without permanent benefit. A visit to my sister put into my hands a box of Dr. Hamilton's Pills. She placed reliance upon them and now that they have made me a well woman I would not be without them whatever they might cost. I found Dr. Hamilton's Pills by their mild yet searching action very suitable to the delicate character of a woman's nature. They never once griped me, yet they established regularity. My appetite grew keen—my blood red and pure—heavy rings under my eyes disappeared and to-day my skin is as clear and unwrinkled as when I was a girl. Dr. Hamilton's Pills did it all."

The above straightforward letter from Mrs. J. Y. Todd, wife of a well-known miller of Rogersville, is proof sufficient that Dr. Hamilton's Pills are a wonderful woman's medicine. Use no other Pills but Dr. Hamilton's, 25c. per box. All dealers or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ontario.

The Ontario Agricultural College.

The fortieth annual report of the Ontario Agricultural College, and Macdonald Institute, Guelph, has just been issued. The President, Dr. G. C. Creelman, gives an interesting account of his trip abroad, when he investigated agricultural conditions in Hawaii, New Zealand, Australia, China, Japan, and the Philippine Islands, and came to the conclusion that Ontario is still the most attractive farming place that it is his pleasure to know. Considerable emphasis is placed upon the educational work of the District Representatives in the public and high schools, and the cooperation of the Department of Education in assisting to train rural public school teachers for agricultural effort. A synopsis of the reports of the various heads of the departments to the President is also presented. These deal chiefly with the army worm, weeds, orchard work, drainage, lightning rods, field crops, and animal husbandry. This renders the report less bulky, but those who desire more complete information regarding the special work of the several departments will find it issued in bulletin form from time to time. An analysis of the College Roll is given, together with a list of graduates of the year, and the names of those who won diplomas and certificates in the lesser courses. A financial statement of the institution is appended.

New Record in Tea Prices.

Over eight million pounds of tea have been sunk in merchant ships during the war. This immense quantity could ill be spared at a time when the demand for tea throughout the world has reached a greater volume than ever. Anyway the cost of tea has risen to a higher level than history records for many years.

Highland Piper Plays His Last Tune.

No musician is more devoted to the instrument on which he plays than the Highland piper. A touching story of a piper's last moments on the battlefield is told by Private L. L. Spalding, of the 90th Winnipeg Rifles (the "Little Black Devils"), who was one of the Canadian soldiers gassed at Ypres. While up in the firing line a piper of the 79th Highlanders (Canadian Scottish) was mortally wounded in the chest, he says.—The man sat down on a bank, hugging his beloved pipes, and refused to be carried away. "I want to stay here and—and play a last tune," he gasped. But a little pathetic wheezing noise was all the music he could get from his pipes. A few minutes later he fell back dead.

Expanding His Property.

"Jones should possess a considerable lot of real estate."

"Why so?"

"He is always making mountains out of molehills."

INVESTMENT OPPORTUNITY

Wanted capital to develop one of the most valuable natural resources in the Dominion, unlimited quantity of raw material to be manufactured into a commodity for which there is an almost unlimited demand. If you have one hundred to five hundred dollars or more to invest where your investment will be well secured, then write for particulars and prospectus which will convince you of the absolutely sure and large returns. Address P.O. Box 102, Hamilton, Ont.

Anxious About Him.

Baby was not well, and as he was the first, his parents were anxious about him, and the doctor was paying his second visit. As he was leaving the tiny patient mother said, "Oh, doctor, that medicine you sent for baby last night is done." "Impossible!" replid the doctor in astonishment. "I told you to give him a teaspoonful before bedtime and one this morning." "Yes, I know," replied th young mother, with flushed cheeks. "But then, you see mother, John, and nurse, and I had all to take a teaspoonful each, too, to get him to take his."

Minard's Liniment Cures Garget in Cows

Women's Institutes of Ontario.

Nearly 26,000 women, in 843 branches, make up the membership of the Women's Institutes of Ontario, the annual report of which for 1914 has just been issued. Articles in this report cover nearly every line of feminine endeavor. The efforts described or proposed relate to activities in Institutes, the Church, and community life; to Red Cross and other forms of patriotic helpfulness; and to agriculture, more especially to fruit growing, poultry raising, and beekeeping for women. The report gives very full consideration to the home, nearly every range of domestic economy receiving attention. The study of child life is given a large place, and two addresses deal with "Children's Rights" and "Education for the Backward." "Electricity as it Relates to Women on the Farm" is the title of a practical talk by Sir Adam Beck. Considerable space is given to health topics, both of a public and an individual nature. The report reflects much credit upon the heads of women who are helping along Institute work in his Province.

Sign of Sapience.

"Pa, why do people call the owl the bird of wisdom?"

"Because he's got sense enough not to come out and fly around until all boys of your age are in bed."

Corns Drop Out

Instant Relief

Paint on Putnam's Corn Extractor to-night, and corns feel better in the morning. Magical the way "Putnam's" eases the pain, destroys the roots, kills a corn for all time. No pain. Cure guaranteed. Get a 25c. bottle of "Putnam's" Extractor to-day.

A Supporter.

"There ought to be only one head to any family," shouted an orater.

"That's true," replied a married-looking man in the audience.

"You agree with me?" shouted the speaker.

"I do," replied the married-looking man. "I've just paid for hats for nine daughters."

LOW FARES TO THE CALIFORNIA EXPOSITIONS VIA CHICAGO & NORTH-WESTERN RY.

Four splendid daily trains from the New Passenger Terminal, Chicago to San Francisco, Los Angeles and San Diego. Choice of Scenic and Direct Routes through the best of the West. Something to see all the way. Double track. Automatic electric safety signals all the way. Let us plan your trip and furnish folders and full particulars. H. H. Bennett, G.A., 46 Yonge St., Toronto, Ontario.

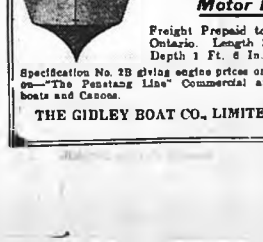
Sorry For Her.

It is not only on the field of battle that the British soldier shows his bravery. A civilian who was seeing off a young soldier friend heard for the front was introduced by him to his wife, a rather severe-looking woman old enough to be his mother. The civilian had difficulty in concealing his surprise, and when occasion offered he whispered to the young man —"I didn't know you were married."

"Well, you see," said the soldier, hesitatingly, "she was my landlady, and her man was killed at the front a few months ago, an' she wis gey hard pit to it, ye see, an' I wis kind o' sorry for her. And as I've naebody dependent on me, I just merrit her so's she wid get my allowance."

Longevity is most frequent in countries of low berth.

I fell from a building and received what the doctor called a very bad sprained ankle, and told me I must not walk on it for three weeks. I got MINARD'S LINIMENT and in six days I was out to work again. I think it the bet Liniment made.



ARCHIE E. LAUNDRY.

Edmonton.

Together with the 12th Lancers, the Scots Greys were the first regiment to be specially mentiond in dispatches during the present war by Sir John French.

Minard's Liniment Cures Diphtheria.

English submarines fly from their periscopes a flag on which is a skull and crossbones when they succeed in destroying a vessel belonging to the enemy.

"Overstern" V Bottom Motor Boat $55.00

Freight Prepaid to any Railway Station in Ontario. Length 16 Ft., Beam 3 Ft. 9 In., Depth 1 Ft. 6 In. ANY MOTOR FITS.

Specification No. 2B giving engine prices on request. Get our quotations on "The Penetang Line" Commercial and Pleasure Launches, Row boats and Canoes.

THE GIDLEY BOAT CO., LIMITED, PENETANG, CAN.

WEAR FLEET FOOT

SHOES FOR EVERY SPORT AND RECREATION

Sold by all good Shoe Dealers

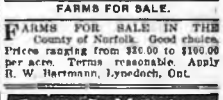
Worn by every member of the family

FARMS FOR RENT.

IF LOOKING FOR A FARM, CONSULT me. I have over Two Hundred on my list, located in the best sections of Ontario. All sizes. H. W. Dawson, Brampton.

NEWSPAPERS FOR SALE.

PROFIT-MAKING NEWS AND JOB Offices for sale in good Ontario towns. The most useful and interesting of all business. Full information on application to Wilson Publishing Company, Limited, Toronto.



MISCELLANEOUS.

CANCER, TUMORS, LUMPS, ETC., internal and external, cured without pain by our home treatment. Write us before too late. Dr. Bellman Medical Co., Limited, Collingwood, Ont.

FARMS FOR SALE.

FARMS FOR SALE IN THE County of Norfolk. Good choice. Prices ranging from $30.00 to $100.00 per acre. Terms reasonable. Apply R. W. Hartmann, Lynedoch, Ont.

KERMATH Marine Engines

"America's Standard 4 Cycle Marine Motor"

Fully guaranteed. Write for Catalog. Kermath Mfg. Co., 1361 Jefferson Ave., Detroit, Mich.

Fair Play.

Two young men in a crowded seaside resort had great difficulty in finding sleeping accommodation, and were at length offered a bed which the landlady assured them was a feather bed. They turned in, and one of the pair was soon fast asleep; the other was not. He could not manage to dodge the lumps, and heard hour after hour strike until 3 a.m., when he also struck. He did this by violently shaking his sleeping friend. "What's the matter?" growled the other. 'It can't be time to get up yet?" "No, it isn't," retorted his friend, continuing to shake him; "but it's my turn to sleep on the feathers!"

SUMMER SKIN TROUBLES.

Sunburn, blistering and irritation are the commonest form of summer skin troubles, and Zam-Buk ends these very quickly. It works in two ways. As soon as applied, its antiseptic powers get to work and kill all the poison in a wound, a sting or a sore. This generally ends the smarting and the pain. Then Zam-Buk begins the healing process, and fresh healthy tissue is built up. For sores, blistered feet, sore hands, heat rashes, baby's heat spots, sore places due to perspiration, etc., you can't equal Zam-Buk. It also cures cuts, ulcers, abscesses, piles, and all inflamed and diseased conditions of skin and subjacent tissue. Druggists and stores everywhere sell Zam-Buk, 50c. box. Use Zam-Buk Soap also, 25c. per tablet. All stores, or Zam-Buk Co., Toronto.

As a general rule, two productive acres are required for the support of each inhabitant of a country, and where this ratio does not exist food must be imported.

Minard's Liniment Cures Colds, Etc.

A British Army Corps is, approximately, 38,000 men; an Austrian is about 53,000 men; while the strength of French, Russian, and German Army Corps varies from 40,000 to 55,000 men.

YOUR OWN DRUGGIST WILL TELL YOU Try Murine Eye Remedy for Red, Weak, Watery Eyes and Granulated Eyelids; No Smarting—just Eye Comfort. Write for Book of the Eye, by mail Free. Murine Eye Remedy Co., Chicago.

Soldiers have orders never to look up at an aeroplane which is flying above them, as nothing is more conspicuous to airmen than men's faces.

Minard's Liniment Cures Distemper.

Mary is the commonest name for women in England, William the commonest name for men.

The Paisley Advocate

PAISLEY, JULY 22nd, 1915

Lake Captain Drowned

Captain John Munro, a veteran sailor on the Great Lakes, was drowned at Southampton on Thursday evening. He had been in the habit of going out a short distance in the lake in a small boat trolling for trout, and was seen twenty minutes before a big run across the empty boat. The body has not yet been recovered. Captain Munro sailed forty years, quitting some thirteen years ago. The last boat he commanded was the Asow of Sarnia, and before that the Niagara and the Tolmie. He had two brothers and a son drowned. He was seventy-three years of age and is survived by his wife, one son and five daughters.

Fined for Practising Medicine

W H Crowel, an Indian herb doctor, was fined $30 and costs by Magistrate Montgomery on Tuesday for practising medicine without a license. The charge was laid by the Ontario Medical Council. The big medicine man of the Chippewas has a certificate of registration from the Inland Revenue Department which permits him to manufacture and dispose of proprietary medicines. He was convicted on the charge of diagnosing the complaint of Wm Ivey and prescribing for him. Several witnesses, nearly all Elmwood people, gave evidence. O F Klein of Walkerton was solicitor for Crowel and he gave notice that he would appeal the case. Mr Mickle acted for the prosecution.—Enterprise.

Won Consolation Prizes

The Paisley rink composed of F. C. Ryan, Dr. Black, J. B. Fleming and Thos. Muir brought home four steamer rugs from the Port Elgin bowling tournament, which they sure earned after playing nine games, winning seven and defeating their opponents in the final consolation match. The competitions for the consolation prizes are the most strenuous at a tournament, necessitating almost continuous play by those who stay in the evening, and the sporting propensities as well as the staying powers are put to a severe test. In the course of the tournament if they are placed against a number of the very best rinks there, and can't possible win out on sheer luck, as some other fellows are liable to be carrying a bigger string of horseshoes or bad luckies things cross their pathway to the tourney. The Paisley fellows played a consistently strong game throughout, and are justly proud of their win.

Lost Game to Tar

The local intermediates lost to Tara in the lacrosse game played in that town on Thursday last under unfavorable weather conditions, the grounds being very wet and slippery as the result of rain. The score by quarters: 1-1, 2-1, 3-1 and 6-2, with the winners always in the lead after the first quarter. Play was even all through, with the exception of the last few minutes. The local defence played a strong game, but the home, unfi some of their games, failed to go a the nets when a pass over the goal would have meant a score. This loss again ties up Southampton, Chesley and Paisley, with 3 wins and 3 losses each. To stay in the running Paisley must win in Chesley (to-morrow) Thursday afternoon, and they think they have a fair chance of turning the trick. As Thursday afternoon is the weekly half-holiday here, quite a number of supporters will likely accompany the team.

Red Cross Tea

Old Jupiter Pluvius put a damper on the Red Cross Benefit arranged for by Mr and Mrs S Ballachey for Thursday evening last. Rain prevented the tea being given on that date, but an announced it was postponed to Friday. The weather clearing up by that afternoon, everything looked most propitious. The event gave every promise of being the biggest kind of a success as a sociable occasion and as a means of adding to the Red Cross funds. In fact it was well underway, with a few scores of people dining in outdoor picnic fashion in Ballachey's grove when the thunder-clouds came up and poured torrents of rainwater down upon the place altering the scene in a few moments from one of idyllic summer enjoyment to one of scurrying confusion ending in all taking shelter in the summer house. The abrupt end of the proceedings was no fault of the host and hostess, however, as they had rendered every preparation to cater to the hundreds who would undoubtedly have been present had the weather continued favorable. The band was also there and had rendered some selections. Over $40 was raised, which included the amount taken in at the gate and that contributed by some intending to go but who were prevented on account of the rain. It was a disappointment to Mr and Mrs Ballachey and their helpers to be denied the pleasure of entertaining the people, as well as to hundreds of citizens of town and country who had anticipated a pleasant time at the grove.

Rev. John MacNeill's Wedding

Toronto Star: A wedding which was full of interest to the people of Toronto was that of the Rev. John MacNeill, B.A., the popular pastor of Walmer Road Baptist Church, to Mrs. Olive Harris on the first day of July. It was held in New York city, where Rev. Mr. MacNeill went to meet his bride, who has recently returned from a year's stay in Europe. The invitations were limited to the members of the family and to a few close friends of the bride and groom. Among those present were Miss Elizabeth MacNeill and Miss Annie MacNeill, sisters of the groom, and Principal MacNeill of Woodstock, his brother. Other guests from Toronto were Mrs. C. J. Holman, a friend of the bride, and Professor and Mrs. Franklin Johnson, Jr., of the University of Toronto. Among the others in the audience were Mrs. C. A. Eaton and the Misses Eaton of New York, Professor MacIntosh of Yale University, Mrs. Culham, Miss Culham, Miss Copp and Mrs. Slater of Hamilton, Dr. Culham of Viceroy, Sask., and Miss Watson of South Nyack, N.Y. The ceremony was solemnized in the beautiful Madison Avenue Baptist church of New York city, the chancel of which was decorated with annunciation lilies and ferns. The officiating clergyman was Rev. Charles Aubry Eaton, D.D., a warm personal friend of the groom, and well known in Toronto where he was for some time pastor of Bloor Street Baptist church. After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. MacNeill left for the Adirondacks, where they will spend the summer.

THE LATE ARCHIBALD FISHER

In the death of Archibald Fisher at his home on Monday, July 5th, Paisley lost one of its most prominent and progressive citizens. He was the son of the late John Fisher of Wingham. He was born in Martintown, Glengarry county, but spent his early years in Osgoode township and St. Marys. There he married Julia Peaslee, (who predeceased him some years ago), shortly after removing to Wingham, where, with his brother Peter he laid the foundation of its industries. He remained there 23 years, during which time he was one of the pioneers of the west, having built the planing mill and grist mill in Brandon. In 1885 he came to Paisley and with his son John as junior member of the firm became proprietors of the grist and saw mill. He always took an active interest in municipal affairs, having served as school trustee, councillor and reeve of the village. Many of the improvements of the village can be traced to his foresight and business acumen. In politics he was a life long Libera', never swerving from the principles of the party through its successes and reverses. He was a member of the Baptist Church since the early days in Wingham where he served as deacon and superintendent of the Sunday School. He was always ready to serve his Master and his energies were spent freely in the cause of Christianity. He bore his protracted illness with Christian fortitude and leaves behind to mourn his loss a family of three sons and five daughters. His remains were taken to Wingham for interment, the pall-bearers being: Prin. A. T. McNeill of Woodstock College, John McLean, Harry Davis, William Holmes, A. H. Musgrove, M.P.P., A. Cosen and J T Currie of Wingham.

Entrance Results

Marks necessary to pass 390, for honors 487, possible 650.

PAISLEY CENTRE

31 candidates wrote, 24 passed

Honors

Velma Winch	565
Annie McArthur	515
Winnie Megraw	509

Pass

Names in alphabetical order

John Acton	Willie Minto
Wilmer Barnett	Marguerite McLeod
Lauchens Blue	Katie McGillivray
Horace Clerc	David McGregor
Donald Clark	John Nicholls
Hilda Carter	Eliza Porter
Douglass Cottrill	Alan Shoemaker
George Groves	Fred Stafford
Mina McKinnon	Chester Teeple
Alma McGillivray	Wm Tanner
Olive McGillivray

Soldiers' Socks

In acknowledging the latest shipment of socks from the Women's Patriotic League the convener of the Red Cross sock fund writes: "Please thank all the kind knitters for the really beautiful socks sent from Paisley, and tell them how badly more are needed." Wool for knitting may be obtained from Mrs. Shoemaker, President W.P.L.

Won the Gold Medal

In the Entrance results for West Bruce Inspectorate, Velma Winch stands at the head of a list of 320 candidates who wrote at the different centres this year, and is awarded the gold medal given by Inspector Ball to that candidate obtaining the highest of all those trying this test in the inspectorate. Velma took 565 marks out of a possible 650. She is 13 years of age, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. Winch, Blonk-road north, and a pupil in U.S.S. No. 7 Elderslie and S Saugeen, where Mr. D. D. Campbell, of Paisley, is teaching.

SAUGEEN COUNCIL

The Saugeen council met on July 17th. Members all present.

Wm Gowanlock reported that grader had earned $18 37, the charge being 25c per hour.

Accounts amounting to $368 were passed, the largest being Wm Gowanlock for grading, $96; clerk and treas. $55; for printing acct, $39 60; Ingot Iron culvert, $33 75.

A resolution of regret and sympathy for the death of Capt Lloyd Traster was unanimously passed.

The treasurer's report showed balance on hand of $1369 28.

Council will meet again on Aug 14th, when levies for current year will be made.

F W ELLIOTT, Clerk

The Jews in Frankfurt.

George Brandes thus describes the position of the Jews in Frankfurt, Germany, at the beginning of the nineteenth century: "All Jews were forced to live in the narrow, miserable, overcrowded Judengasse (Jew street), their sole abode since the year 1462. At the beginning of night all the inhabitants of the ghetto were locked in. They were not allowed to use the sidewalk while walking in the street in the day time, but had to take the middle of the street. They had to remove their hats before every passerby, who would call out, 'Jew, make your bow!'

"To prevent too large an increase not more than 14 couples were permitted to marry in any one year. On every festive occasion they were driven into the ghetto. On Sunday the gates were locked regularly at 4 o'clock, and no one was allowed to pass by the guard at the gate except when on an errand with a prescription to the drug store or for the purpose of mailing a letter. Our general rule was 'No Jew allowed on a green spot.'" Napoleon abolished this state of affairs in 1810, but it was restored after his downfall.

THE JOY OF BEING ALIVE AND WELL

Restored To Health By "Fruit-a-tives" The Famous Fruit Medicine

MDE. ROCHON

Rochon, P.Q. March 2nd, 1915.

"I have received the most wonderful benefit from taking 'Fruit-a-tives'. I suffered for years from Rheumatism and change of life, and I took every remedy obtainable, without any good results. I heard of 'Fruit-a-tives' and gave it a trial and it was the only medicine that really did me good. Now I am entirely well; the Rheumatism has disappeared and the terrible pains in my body are all gone. I am exceedingly grateful to 'Fruit-a-tives' for such relief, and I hope that others who suffer from such distressing diseases will try 'Fruit-a-tives' and get well".

MADAME ISAIE ROCHON.

The marvellous work that 'Fruit-a-tives' is doing, in overcoming disease and healing the sick, is winning the admiration of thousands and thousands.

50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size, 25c. At all dealers or sent postpaid by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

This is the kind of Wall Paper Artist We Do NOT Employ—

No sloppy job like this done by our men. It costs you no more to employ clean, careful workmen than men like the above.

Our Wall Paper Stock

We have just put into stock the newest and

MOST ARTISTIC PATTERNS.

Complete range of all lines for parlor, hall, dining room, bed-room or kitchen papers on hand, ready for delivery. We would like to show you our different sample books. Stock on hand of all samples shown.

H. GLOVER

PAPERHANGER AND DECORATOR

'Twould Be Unavailing

An Englishman inquired of a Scotchman why the Germans say "God punish England" instead of "God punish Britain," and the Scotty replied: "The Germans are nae fules. They ken weel the prayer wad no be answered because Scotland is a part of Britain."

The Logic of It

A liquor man in West Virginia offered to pay off the state debt of $17,000,000 in ten years if he were given the sole right to sell liquor in the state. That offer set the West Virginians thinking that by cutting off the traffic they might themselves clear off the state debt and stay sober into the bargain.

—Horseshoers from nearly every county in Western Ontario met in Woodstock on Dominion Day and organized The Ontario Mutual Horseshoers' Association whose object is to encourage co-operation among horseshoers in Western Ontario and to secure legislation that will require those who learn the trade hereafter to take a course of study in the Ontario Veterinary College and thus acquire a technical as well as a practical knowledge that will fit them to shoe horses scientifically.

DIED

CATTO—In Brant, on July 13th, Andrew Catto, aged 60 years.

MCLEAN—In Kincardine Tp., on July 11th, Christina McLean, beloved wife of John McKinnon, aged 68 years.

BORN

KNAPP—An Underwood, on July 8th, to Mr and Mrs W Knapp, a daughter.

MCKINNON—On July 10th, to Mr and Mrs John McKinnon, Boundary East Bruce and Kincardine, a daughter.

BRUCE—In Langham, Sask., on Friday, July 16th, to Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Bruce, a son.

BALLACHEY, LAIDLAW & CO.

"The Store with the Quality"

Fleet Foot Tennis Shoes

Men's High Cut Blucher Black or White at	$1.00
Boy's Tan Scouting Bal. for Boy Scouts at	$1.00
Boy's High Cut Blucher Tan or Black	$1.00
Women's White Tennis Boot White Sale	$1.25

Good assortment of sizes left

All sizes Barefoot Sandals for the kiddies.

BALLACHEY, LAIDLAW & CO.

Both 'Phones — All Produce

EXAMINATION FREE

EYE

Defects scarcely noticeable in children assume gigantic proportions with advancing years.

A proper correction now will prevent serious complications later.

A Stopped Watch

One that will not go AT ALL—doesn't cause as much bother as one that runs now fast, now slow, in an erratic fashion.

The first you don't pretend to depend upon—the other is a constant source of annoyance.

Most people can afford a watch, but no one can afford an uncertain fast and slow one.

And when our repair department is so close at hand there is really no excuse for carrying anything but an accurate time-piece, no matter what the first cost was.

Consult us about any watch troubles that may arise.

I. SHOEMAKER

JEWELER AND OPTICIAN

Shoes and Groceries

Call in and see our large stock of Gents', Ladies' and Children's Fine Shoes of the best quality and latest style at very reasonable prices.

We have a full stock of White Leather and Canvas Shoes.

We can supply you with all kinds of fresh Groceries bought from the best grocery firms. Try them.

Eggs taken in exchange

H. PFAFF & SON'S

SHOE STORE

Central Business College Stratford, Ont.

Ontario's most successful practical training school. Teachers are competent, courses are thorough and graduates succeed. We received more applications this month than we had students graduate during the past six months. The three applications received most recently were for lady stenographer at P. S., bookkeeper at $1000 and commercial teacher at $1200 per annum. Business men want our graduates. Get our free catalogue at once

D. A. McLACHLAN, Principal

Court Saugeen, C.O.F. No. 88

MEETS in Oddfellow Hall on the second Wednesday evening of each month, at 8 o'clock. Neighboring brethern are welcome.

A. E. ASCHER, R.S.
W. ARTHERS, C.R.

Ahiram Lodge, No. 205, I.O.O.F

MEETS every Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock in the Hall Oddfellow Block. Visiting brethren always welcome.

F. J. F. HOUSTON, N.G
E. H. GRANT, R.S.

PUMP REPAIRING

THE undersigned having purchased Mr W [illegible]'s outfit, is prepared to do all kinds of pump repairing, also to make repairs, such as cylinders, tailes and other parts of wooden or iron pumps. A few block wooden pumps for sale. Wood turning done. Turned whiffletrees and neckyokes for sale.

House Phone W. RAE

A Representative Wanted

For the Old Reliable

Fonthill Nurseries

to sell in Paisley and district

A chance of a lifetime to do a big trade among farmers in fruit stock, as well as good ornamental business in town.

Exclusive territory. Handsome free outfit. Highest commissions paid. Write for terms.

STONE & WELLINGTON

Toronto

TORONTO LIVE STOCK MARKETS

Toronto, Tuesday, July 20th, 1915

Butchers, picked	$8 50	$ 10
do common	6 50	7 00
do cows	7 25	7 50
do bulls	6 75	7 75
Stockers, choice	6 00	6 50
do common	5 00	7 00
Heavy feeders	7 00	7 50
Short keep	7 10	7 20
Milch cows, choice	60 00	100 00
do common	30 00	50 00
Sheep, ewes	5 00	6 50
Bucks	5 00	5 00
Spring Lambs, each	10 00	12 00
Calves	7 50	9 50
Hogs, f.o.b.	9 10
" fed and watered	8 15

PAISLEY MARKET

Fall wheat, per bushel	$1 00	$ 1 00
Spring wheat, per bush	1 00	1 00
Buckwheat	70	75
Peas, per bush	1 25	1 25
Oats, per bush	45	50
Barley, per bush	65	75
Potatoes, per bus	40	40
Butter, in pound prints	23	23
Eggs, fresh, per doz	20	20
Hay, per ton		15 00

Janitor Wanted

APPLICATIONS for the position of caretaker of Paisley school will be received by the undersigned up to July 31st, at 8 p.m. W. E. HARVEY, Sec'y School Board.

T. H. GEORGE

Issuer of Marriage Licenses
Notary Public and Conveyancer

Land, Loan, Insurance and General Agent. Notes, Book Accounts and other Debts Collected. Conveyancing Neatly and Cheaply Executed.

—FARMS LOANS A SPECIALTY—

Office in Putnam Block, Queen St. S., Paisley

NEW TERM OPENS SEPT. 1st at the

NORTHERN Business College

OWEN SOUND

Catalogue on Request

C. A. FLEMING, Principal. G. O. FLEMING, Secretary.

Business Directory

JOHN SUTHERLAND & SONS LIMITED

INSURANCE—FIRE AND MARINE

GUELPH - ONT.

C. GIBSON

Issuer of Marriage Licenses

Paisley, Ont.

LEGAL

D. FORRESTER, B.A., L.L.B.

BARRISTER, SOLICITOR AND NOTARY PUBLIC

OFFICE—TOWN HALL, PAISLEY

MEDICAL

DR. M. G. BLACK, M.D., C.M., F.T.M.C., M.C.P.S. Assoc. Graduate of Trinity University and Carleton, New York. Specialty—Diseases of the eye, ear nose and throat.

DR. H. E. GAGE, Physician, Surgeon and Accoucheur, Specialist in Diseases of the Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat. Late house surgeon Kingston General Hospital. Office hours—8 to 9 a.m., 1 to 3 p.m. Successor to Dr. O'Neill.

DR. F. J. F. HOUSTON, Honor Graduate of Toronto University and Licentiate of the Royal Colleges of Physicians and Surgeons of Edinburgh and Glasgow. Late graduate Coombe Lying in Hospital, Dublin, late assistant Edinburgh Eye Infirmary. Specialty—Diseases of the Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat.

Successor to Dr. Morrison.

DENTAL

DR. A. H. ALLEN

DENTIST, formerly of Toronto.

VETERINARY

B. GRANT, V. S., Graduate of Ontario Veterinary College, Toronto. Government Inspector of contagious diseases and apply Tuberculin test in cattle. Also in stock expert stock and horse certificates for same. Oxygen gas treatment for milk fever. Office and residence opposite the old Northern Hotel.

AUCTIONEERS

C. PEARCE, Licensed Auctioneer. Sales [illegible] attended to in all parts of the County of Bruce on reasonable terms. Orders left at the Advocate Office will receive prompt attention. Telephone at house.

J. NESBITT, Licensed Auctioneer for the County of Bruce, is prepared to conduct sales in any part of the county. Terms reasonable. Leave order at ADVOCATE office or address Gramie P.O.

A Great many People Buy Shoes Here

Who are of the come again and again kind.

Now, that wouldn't be so if our Shoes didn't make it so, would it?

All this talk of ours is only intended to get you to be a tryer of our Shoes, that's all.

After that its up to the Shoes to hold you a steady customer.

They generally do it, but if they SHOULDN'T do it in your case, we want you to tell us about it, because there is a mistake somewhere. And we want to make it right.

It matters not what your present or future needs in Shoes may be, we GUARANTEE you a good service.

BUTTER AND EGGS WANTED
For which We Pay the Highest Price

F. Carter & Son

Goods Delivered — Both 'Phones

THE STORE WITH THE QUALITY

Use Plymouth Binder Twine. We sell it.

Headquarters for

PLYMOUTH
Binder Twine

"Good morning, Tom, I see you are having some trouble with your Binder."

"Yes, I am having a lot of trouble with it, and I have tried ever so many kinds of Binder Twine, but it's no use. It simply won't work."

"Well, I don't wonder at it not working for you. Why, you are using twine of inferior quality. No binder would work satisfactorily with that Twine."

"All Twine is the same, is it not?"

"That's what I thought, until I used Plymouth Twine. I had the same trouble with my binder as you are having now. I was advised to use Plymouth Twine. I did so, and now I never have any trouble. One ball of Plymouth Twine will convince you that it is the best Twine on the market."

"I hear a lot of talking about Plymouth Twine, but always thought all Twine was the same. I believe you're right, Bob, the next Twine I buy will be Plymouth."

Use Plymouth Binder Twine. We sell it.

W. H. DAVISON

BRUCE PHONE — BELL PHONE

Subscription Arrears to The Advocate

THERE is several hundred dollars still due us on arrears for subscription to The Advocate. We have quite regularly sent our accounts out in an endeavor to collect all. Some, however, have neglected to respond to our requests for payment. Subscribers who neglect the little matter of remitting regularly do not, perhaps, understand the position we are placed in because of not receiving from them what is due us. We do not believe there are more than only a few who would deliberately beat us out of our dues, and we do not propose to treat delinquents as rogues unless we actually find they are such. Nevertheless, we are obliged to make a special effort to collect all arrears, and we have handed over to The Publishers' Advisting Association a list of behind-handers who will hear from them in no medialely. Prompt attention to the first notice of indebtedness will save d ditional expense.

We desire no particular pleasure from the pursuit of delinquents, but it seems that it is a necessary part of the business of managing a newspaper office, so we must, that's all.

Kindly avoid all unpleasantness by remitting the amount of your account at once.

Yours truly,

D. McKENZIE, Publisher

Peculiar Case at Gorrie

With enough money buried in the cellar of their home to buy square meals for a year, the wife and little child of Fred Hodge, of Gorrie, were found on Saturday to be starving to death, and on Monday Hodge was arrested by Officer Phippen and lodged in Wingham jail on the charge of negligence and cruelty. Neighbors say that for a long time they have been carrying in provisions to the Hodge family, and it is claimed that of the food provided the husband ate the greater part. On Saturday authorities at Goderich informed Officer Phippen of the circumstances as far as they were known, and he made a trip at once to Gorrie. He found Mrs. Hodge and youngest child in a state of collapse, which Dr. Wildfang, who accompanied him, said was due to starvation. Hodge, when confronted by the officer with the charge of neglecting his family, took Phippen down to the cellar where he dug up a considerable sum of money in bills. This, Mrs. Hodge explained, had been her husband's way of keeping money for years. Whenever he got paid for his work as a laborer, she never saw any of it, and they had to depend on the charity of the neighbors.

Children Cry
FOR FLETCHER'S
CASTORIA

—THE ADVOCATE office has a splendid stock of wedding stationery and calling cards on hand, also the most beautiful styles of type, so we are able to turn out the finest lines of wedding invitations, announcements, cards, etc. We can do work fit to invite the best of people to a wedding, so why pay two or three times as much to city printers or engravers for something that isn't a whit better for the purpose? See our samples.

Municipality of Village of Paisley

TAKE Notice: That His Honor the Judge will sit at the council chamber on Thursday, 21st of July, 1915, at 10 a.m. to hear appeals from Paisley Court of Revision re assessments, etc. J. C. GIBSON, Clerk.

THE WESTERN FAIR
London, Ontario

The Western Fair, London's popular Agricultural Exhibition will be held this year from September 10th to 18th. It is considered by the management that this year, above all others, should be the one when extra efforts must be put forth to make the Exhibition a great success; therefore with assistance given by the Government the Board of Directors have decided to make a cash addition to the prize list of $3,000. Good as it was before, this will certainly make London's prize list very attractive. The list is now in the hands of the printer and will soon be ready for distribution. Thousands of advertising maps and baggers have been sent throughout the country during the past week announcing the dates, and arrangements are being made as quickly as possible to assure Exhibitors and visitors alike, that this year's Exhibition will be the best ever held at London. Any information regarding the Exhibition will be gladly given on application to the Secretary, A. M. Hunt, London, Ont.

THE IDEAL VACATION ROUTE

The Canadian Pacific conveniently reaches Point Au Baril, French and Pickerel Rivers, Severn River, Muskoka Lakes, Kawartha Lakes, Rideau Lakes, Lake Ontario resorts, etc. If you contemplate a trip of any nature consult Canadian Pacific ticket agents or write M. G. Murphy, District Passenger Agent, Toronto.

TRAINING DEFECTIVES

Ontario Recognizes Necessity of Helping Feeble Minded Children

When medical inspection was introduced into the schools of leading Ontario cities it was intended to provide for an examination of the physical condition of the children, and to overcome the consequences of parental ignorance or neglect. But the medical inspectors and school nurses engaged in the work found themselves noting not only physical defects in the children, but also mental conditions. Though the lot of Ontario in respect of a mentally defective population is happier by far than that of most older countries, yet we have a considerable proportion of persons whose mentality is so far below normal that they can be designated as feeble-minded. It is not to be wondered at that where we have many adults who are mental defectives there should be in the schools a liberal sprinkling of children inheriting that mental feebleness. Not long ago the chief school teacher of Toronto reported that there were 250 or 300 mentally defective boys and girls in Toronto schools. In Ottawa, Hamilton, London and other cities the same condition holds true. As nearly three-fourths of such mental feebleness is hereditary, and cannot be "cured," but only carefully trained, the presence of children who, in street parlance, are only "half there" is a challenge to the school authorities.

The problem was recognized as needing legislative attention, and the Ontario Government passed several Acts on the subject, one being the Auxiliary Classes Act of 1914. This gives local school authorities wide powers in the organizing and maintenance of special schools or classes for backward or defective children not being idiots—idiots being fit subjects for institutional training. Some larger municipalities have, under former legislation, undertaken special classes and schools, but the larger part of the province is yet without facilities for giving special aid to the unfortunate boys and girls.

If the boys and girls whose mental feebleness is congenital are not taken in their youth and trained to do some simple work that can make them at least partially self-supporting, what happens? They leave school without any real educational benefit, and drift about, until sooner or later they either have to be maintained by relatives or in public institutions. The jails, asylums, refuges, reformatories and charitable institutions get a large proportion of them in due course. They cannot help it. They are not able to guide or rule themselves as normal persons can. The first census of the feeble-minded in Ontario was taken in September, 1906, and 1,508 persons were enumerated. Of these 1,094 were adults and 411 were children. Of the adults over 1,000 were supported by public charity, and all except a few of the children were born of parents who were unable to pay for their care and education. Is it not better to weed them out in the schools and give them special training that would suffice, perhaps, to make them at least partially self-sustaining? The auxiliary classes may have boys and girls of very low-grade mentality, whose case is almost hopeless, but there may be others easily improvable by special care.—From The Mail and Empire.

An Expert on Statistics

MR. R. H. COATS

Chief Dominion Statistician and Controller of the Census. Before being appointed to this position which became vacant by the death of Mr. Archibald Blue, he was editor of the Labor Gazette and Chief Statistical Officer of the Labor Department.

Progress in the Church Union Movement

W. L. Edmonds in The Courier

When the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Canada recently adopted, by an overwhelming majority, the report of the Committee on Church Union, another stage in the movement for the confederation of the Presbyterian, Methodist and Congregational denominations in this country was revealed. The concurring vote was 367 to 74, and not only gave the advocates of union the largest majority since the Assembly five years ago passed upon the subject, but shows that on a percentage basis the opponents of the innovation are gradually decreasing in relative strength as far as it is represented in the highest court of the church.

In 1910, when the basis of union was first under consideration, the recorded vote of the opponents of union was 28 per cent. of the total case; in 1914 it was 27 per cent., and at the recent meeting of the General Assembly, 16 per cent.

As the Methodist and Congregational denominations are both ready for union, its consummation only awaits the final decision of the Presbyterian Church.

This final decision cannot be given for a year or two at the least. In the first place the question has to be submitted to the individual congregations composing the church in Canada. Of these there are over 2,325, not including home missions to the number of about 2,000, while of members entitled to vote upon the question there are about 315,000.

After the questions which are now being prepared have been submitted to and voted upon by the people, the subject of union will again come before the General Assembly, which does not meet until June, 1916. If the vote of the people is favorable to union by a substantial majority, there can be little or no doubt in regard to the action of the highest court in the church. But even after the people and the General Assembly have concurred in favor of Church Union its consumation cannot be accomplished until Federal and Provincial legislation has been obtained. The House of Commons will have to pass upon incorporation, and in each of the Provincial Legislatures an act will be necessary permitting the transfer to the united church of the property now held in the name of each of the three churches uniting.

There can be little doubt what the result of the vote will be when it is again submitted to the people. When submitted in 1912 the vote was in favor of union, but unfortunately only about 37 per cent. of the members of the church cast their ballots. As in 1905 the General Assembly had laid down the principle "that a union of the churches to be real and lasting, must carry the consent of the entire membership," the vote was naturally not considered satisfactory, and proceedings towards union were for the time being, stayed.

At the meeting of the General Assembly in 1914 an attempt was made to have further negotiations with the Methodist and Congregational churches suspended until such time as a stronger spirit in favor of union was manifested. This attempt was negatived by 289 to 109.

Negotiations were then resumed, with the result that a few months ago the joint committee of the three denominations concerned reached an agreement regarding the name, doctrine and polity of the proposed Union Church.

The name agreed upon was the United Church of Canada. The doctrine, while largely based on that obtaining in the three negotiating churches, does not differ in essentials from that of either. If anything, it shows a desire to impart to doctrine a little more elasticity and a broader spirit. In regard to polity it was agreed that the highest court of the United Church should be known as the General Council. Next in order are the Conference and the Presbytery. The first-named court will meet every second year and will be Dominion-wide in its representation. The Conference will meet annually, and the Presbytery will correspond in its functions to the court of that name now operating within the Presbyterian church. Local churches are to have a session to superintend their spiritual affairs, a committee of stewards to manage their business affairs, and these two combined are to form the official board, whose office will be to oversee the general affairs of its own particular congregation. This basis of union has been formally accepted by the three denominations concerned.

But one of the most significant features in regard to the basis of union for the proposed United Church is its democratic character. Each individual congregation will practically be able to employ what ever form of worship its people may deem best suited to its requirements. Each of the three denominations, for example, may continue to use its own hymn-book. In fact, the umbrella that is being raised is expansive enough to take in Anglican and Baptist denominations should they at any time be disposed to participate in the union.

Nine years ago the Anglican church offered to confer upon the subject of union, provided the joint committee of the three negotiating churches was willing to treat along the lines laid down by the Lambeth Conference. As this implied the acceptance of Episcopacy, negotiations with the Anglican church were discontinued. The Baptist church, considering it "necessary to maintain a separate organized existence," refused to participate in the movement for union.

Consummation of the present movement for the union of the Presbyterian, Methodist and Congregational churches, in its final analysis, merely means the union of the higher courts of each. And that means a great deal, for in its train will come greater efficiency, greater economy, and an absence of the overlapping which is now so common in the work of the three denominations.

The total membership of the three denominations which are negotiating for union was, in 1914, 697,744, of which 368,992 were Methodists, 314,832 Presbyterians, 13,616 Congregationalists. Counting adherents, the number of people is much larger. For example, according to the last census, there are in Canada 1,115,324 Presbyterians, 1,079,892 Methodists, and 34,054 Congregationalists, a total of 2,220,270, or 30.93 per cent of the total religious population of Canada. By way of comparison it may be pointed out that the Roman Catholic population is 2,833,041, or 39.41 per cent of the total. As there are 203 sects or denominations in Canada, the number would still stand at over 200 should the Methodists, Presbyterians and Congregationalists sink their identity, as far as name is concerned, in the proposed United Church.

The Superiority of Tone

In Columbia Double Disc Records

is due to the PATENTED and EXCLUSIVE PROCESS of Manufacture

Columbia Records are BUILT-UP. Instead of economising and using one mixture for the whole record, Columbia records are made in THREE LAYERS, using the cheaper material in the centre only where it doesn't count in the reproduction. The best and most expensive material the world can provide is used on the outer surfaces on which the sound wave or music is engraved. THAT'S WHY COLUMBIA RECORDS SOUND BETTER and WEAR LONGER —the same difference in value as there is between an ordinary pine and an expensive built-up oak door.

All Columbia records are double, a different selection on each side.

And yet these records cost you less money than any others.

You are not getting the utmost value for your money or the best out of your machine—no matter of what make—unless you use Columbia records.

Of Course, Columbia Records are Made in Canada

If you have never tried Columbia records, ask to hear the following selections. We will gladly play them and any others for you.

Superb 'Cello Solo by Pablo Casals

A 5679 — Traumeri (Schumann) / Salut D'Amour (Elgar) — $1.50

Two well known Ballards by the famous Taylor, Hackel, Berge Trio.

A 1735 — Because (D'Hardelot) / Mother Machree (Olcott & Ball) — $1.00

Two Novelty (Marimba) Recordings

A 1728 — Italian Echoes. Two Step. / Senorita. Two Step. — 85c.

Two Patriotic Songs

P 32 — Three Cheers for Little Belgium / Come on, You Boys of London Town — 85c.

There are over a thousand Double Disc Records at 85c.

Geo. Welsford
Paisley

Canadian Pacific

Great Lakes Service
Five Sailings Weekly

Steamers leave Port McNicoll Tuesdays, Wednesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays for Sault Ste. Marie, Port Arthur and Fort William.

The steamer "Manitoba," sailing from Port McNicoll on Wednesdays, will call at Owen Sound, leaving that point at 10.30 p.m.

STEAMSHIP EXPRESS

leaves Toronto 12.45 p.m. daily except Friday, making direct connection with steamers at Port McNicoll on sailing days.

Summer Tours to Pacific Coast

including
"CALIFORNIA EXPOSITIONS"
also to
Atlantic Coast Resorts
Lake Muskoka (Bala Echo)
Point au Baril
Muskoka Lakes
French and Pickerel Rivers
Severn River
Kawartha Lakes
Rideau Lakes, Etc.
SUMMER TOURIST FARES NOW IN EFFECT

Fast Time, Convenient Train Service, Modern Equipment between Montreal, Ottawa, Toronto, Detroit, Chicago

CANADIAN PACIFIC ALL THE WAY TO WINNIPEG AND VANCOUVER NO CHANGE OF CARS OR DEPOTS

Particulars from Canadian Pacific Agents, or write M. G. MURPHY, District Passenger Agent, Toronto. W. H. McFarlane's Old Stand Paisley.

A Dominion Company for the People of the Dominion

Now, if ever, is the time for true patriots to patronize home establishments.

THE
DOMINION LIFE
Assurance Co. of Canada

through 26 years, has fully earned the confidence of the Canadian public. It bases its claim to your consideration on

Its Unexcelled Results to Policyholders

Interest Rate 5.22% Mortality Savings 45%

Head Office - Waterloo, Ont

CARRIAGE PAINT SHOP

The undersigned has rented the Gibson store building on Queen St. South, where he is prepared to do Painting of all kinds, also repairing and retrimming of all kinds of vehicles. Over 25 years' experience in the best carriage shops in Canada and U.S.

W. JACK

FIVE SAILINGS WEEKLY

Port McNicoll to Sault Ste. Marie and Fort William

Canadian Pacific Palatial Great Lake Steamships leave Port McNicoll Mondays, Tuesdays, Wednesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays for Sault Ste. Marie, Port Arthur and Fort William. Steamship express making direct connection leave Toronto 12.45 p.m.

Particulars from Canadian Pacific ticket agents, or write M. G. Murphy, District Passenger Agent, Toronto.

The Planter's Daughter;

Or, The Queen of Belle River.

CHAPTER III.—(Cont'd).

I am sure that I shall never be able to do justice to the gentleman—Mr. William I. Bolling, as he called himself; Billy Bolling, as he was called by his brother-in-law. He was a short, fat, little gentleman, of about fifty years of age, and clothed in an immaculate suit of white linen, with a fresh broad-brimmed straw hat, which as he walked he carried in one hand, while in the other he flourished out a perfumed linen handkerchief, with which he wiped his face and rubbed his head. His round, rosy, good-natured face, full of cheerfulness, candor, and conceit. The damper, or the warmer the weather, or the more excited state of Uncle Billy's feelings, then the redder grew his face and the tighter curled off his flaxen hair.

Mr. Bolling was one of those social and domestic ne'er-do-wells of which every large family connection may rue its specimen. He was a brother of Mrs. Mark Sutherland, but no credit to his sister or their mutual family; though, to use his own qualifying style, neither was he any dishonor to them. He was a bachelor. He valued himself mostly upon what he called his cool blood, clear head, and perfect impartiality of judgment. And as there are two sides to most questions under the sun, and as Mr. Bolling would look impartially upon positive and negative at once, so Billy

"Won himself an everlasting name."

He now came up to the bay window, wiping his face, and fanning himself, and saying—

"Good—evening, ladies! It is a perfectly delightful evening—though, to be sure, it is terribly warm."

Mrs. Vivian immediately challenged him with: "Mr. Bolling, we are anxious to know your opinion upon these lines of Pope;" and she read to him, and put the book in his hands. He took it, his face grew very red and his flaxen hair crisped tightly as he gazed upon the page and said: "Eh, yes, that's all right—certainly!"

"We belive it right, but what does it mean?"

'Mean! Why, this is what it means: 'Binding nature fast in fate,
Left free the human will;'
certainly—yes.'

"Please to explain yourself, Mr. Bolling."

Uncle Billy wiped his forehead, and said: "Why, I don't think ladies understand these grave theological matters."

"No, but you can enlighten us, Mr. Bolling."

"You see these lines comprise the profoundest problems of philosophy —so profound as to perplex the understandings of the greatest scholars and philosophers that have ever lived; so profound, in fact, as to be quite unintelligible even to me—yet so simple as to be easily comprehended by the narrowest intellect—so simple as to be clear, even to you, or to Fly here."

This was said by a small boy who at that instant appeard with a basket of oranges.

"Fly, do you know what your Master William is talking about?"

"Yes, ma'am; politics."

"Exactly," smiled Valeria; 'go on, Mr. Bolling.'

"Hem! Observe, Mrs. Vivian, that there is an analogy all through nature—physical, mental, moral, spiritual."

"Yes, Fly, listen—what is he talking about now?"

"Physic and sparrits, ma'am."

"That is right. Pray go on, Mr. Bolling."

"Yes; permit me to seat myself."

Uncle Billy let himself cautiously down upon the green turf. Valeria gave her hand to India, who stepped out upon the terrace and seated herself. Mrs. Vivian sank down near her. Oriole placed herself by her mistress, with the plume fan. Fly stood a short distance off, with his basket of oranges.

"Now, then, Mr. Boling!"

"Now, then, Mrs. Vivian! I said that there was an analogy running through the universe of nature; thus, the centripetal and centrifugal forces, that modify each other's power, and regulate the motions of the planetary systems, correspond exactly to predestination and free will——"

"Do you understand him now, Fly?"

"No, ma'ars; Marse Billy's too deep for me now."

'And for me, too, Fly; put down your basket now, and go, Fly."

"Yes, go! you sickly little wretch, you; and I'm astonished at the gardener for presuming to send you here. Be off with you, and never show your face again," said Master Billy, growing very red in the face with zeal and gallantry.

Little Fly looked first surprised and grieved, and then penitent on the score of his sickness and deformity, and set down his basket and turned to go.

"Please don't scold him, Mr. Bolling; it's not his fault, poor little fellow! It was I who asked Mr. Sutherland to take him from the field and place him in the garden, because it is shadier there, and the work is lighter. Everybody cannot be strong and handsome—can they, Fly?" And the gentle speaker turned and laid her hand kindly upon the boy's head. The child looked up in grateful affection; and the eyes of all were raised to welcome the orphan step-daughter of Mrs. Vivian. She was a fair, pale girl, of a gentle, thoughtful, pensive cast of countenance and style of beauty, with which her plain dress of deep mourning perfectly harmonized.

"Come and sit by me, Rosalie, love," said the widow, making room for the half-embracing her with one girl put an orange in the boy's hand, and, smiling, motioned him away.

"Rosalie, dove, Mr. Bolling is explaining to us the two great motive powers of the universe; the centripetal, which he says means the law of the Lord, and the centrifugal, which he says means the temptation of the demon. And we, my love, are the planetary bodies, kept from extremes of good and evil by the opposite action of these two forces. Is not this it, Mr. Bolling?"

"No, madam; no! no! Thus it is to expose one's theories, especially to Mrs. Vivian there, who would wrest the plainest text of Scripture to her own perdition. No, ma'am; I was about to say that the overruling will of Providence and the free agency of man were the two great motive powers of the moral universe—the human free will being the great inward and impulsive force, is the centrifugal or flying-off power, and the government of God the centripetal or constraining power; that in the moral world these two great forces modify each other's action, just as their prototype do in the material world —keeping all in healthful action. Do you understand me?"

"Do you understand yourself, Mr. Bolling?"

"Ah, I see you don't—women seldom do!" said Uncle Billy, wiping his forehead. "Now, then, were man without free will—without the power of working out his own salvation, or the privilege of sending himself to perdition, if he desired it—he would no longer be a mortal agent, and, were he never so sinless, he would be at the best only a sinless puppet, an automaton, and God's creation would be a dumb show. And, on the other hand, were human free will left without restraint of the Lord's overruling government, why, man would rush into all sorts of extravagances, become a maniac, and convert God's order into chaos again. But, both these evil extremes being avoided, the Scylla of inert, passive obedience is left upon the right, and the Charybdis of unbridled license on the left, and all goes on well and harmoniously. And now I hope you understand how it is that in 'binding nature fast in fate,' God still left free the human will."

"No, I do not; it sems to me that we are free agents, or we are not free agents—one or the other."

"We're both, I assure you—both. Truth generally lies between extremes. We are free agents, and we are not—that is to say, we are free agents within a certain limit, and no farther. And observe, my dear Mrs. Vivian, and my dear girls! within that limit we have still room enough to save or to lose ourselves."

This speech was concluded with so much solemnity of manner, that it imposed a silence on the little circle, that might have lasted much longer than it did, had Mr. Bolling been disposed to repose on his laurels. He was not.

"Now, are you satisfied, madam?" he inquired of Mrs. Vivian.

The little lady shook her pretty ringlets, and slowly picked her marabout fan to pieces.

"I think mamma wishes to know why these things need be so,' said Rosalie.

"My sweet Miss Vivian, little maidens should be seen, and not heard."

"Don't tempt Mr. Bolling beyond his depth, Rosalie," smiled the widow; and not suiting the action to the word, she handed Uncle Billy an orange she had just peeled.

The little gentleman received the attention with a deprecating, humble bow, and, to prevent inconvenient questioning, turned to Miss Sutherland, and inquired when she had heard from her cousin Mark, winking what he supposed to be a killing leer.

The beauty slightly raised her lip and arched her brows, but deigned no other answer.

"Oh, she has not heard from Mr. Sutherland for three whole days, and his last letter was but twelve pages long. I am afraid he is fickle, like the rest. Men are so uncertain," said Valeria.

Uncle Billy again asked Miss Sutherland if she had lately heard from her cousin.

"I have not heard from him for two weeks," replied the young lady, in a low voice, and without raising her eyes.

"Nan, what would you give me for a letter?" inquired Mr. Boilling, rolling his little blue eys merrily, as he drew one from his pocket and laid it before her.

"Oh, Mr. Bolling! have you had this letter all this time, and detained it from me?" said the beauty, reproachfully, as she took it, and, excusing herself, withdrew into the house to peruse it.

"Come, Rosalie, this night air is deadly to you, my child."

"Oh, mamma, see! the full moon is just rising over those purple hills."

"Are you moon-struck, then, Rosalie? Come in; you can safely view the scene from the house. Besides, coffee is about to be served."

And the lady gave her hand to her step-daughter and assisted her to arise, and then tenderly drawing the girl's arm within her own, turned to lead her into the house. And Mr. Bolling lifted himself up and, picking up his straw hat, said:

"And I must go down to the cotton-mills, and make Clement Sutherland come down to his supper. He is growing to be monomanic on the subject of money-getting. He is as thin as a whipping-post, and about as unlivening to look upon. He looks like a weasel in the winter time, all shin and hair, and cunning and care. He looks as if he felt poor in the midst of all his possessions, and I suppose he really does; while here am I, without a sou, cent, markee, happy as a king, and much more at leisure. Well, here's to bring him home to his supper. And a pot time I shall have of it, between him and the infernal machinery! I shall not get the thunder of the mills out of my ears, or the shower of cotton-lint out of my eyes, nose and throat, the whole night!"

And, having eased his mind by this fit of grumbling, Uncle Billy waddled off on his benevolent errand to the mills.

In the meantime Mrs. Vivian conducted her step-daughter into the drawing-room communicating with Miss Sutherland's boudoir. The room was now brilliantly lighted up, but vacant of the family. The broad doors wer alidden back into the walls, revealing the boudoir in its rich-toned gloom and gleam of purple and gold; and India herself, standing in the midst, quite lost in thought, with one jeweled hand pressing back the amber ringlets from her forehead, and the other hanging down by her side, clasping the letter of Mr. Sutherland. So deeply troubled and perplexed was her look, that Valeria impulsively sprang to her side, exclaiming, "What grieves you, my dearest India? No evil news, I trust?"

Miss Sutherland burst into tears, and silently handed her the letter. But before Valeria had turned it about and found the commencement, India recovered her voice, and said in broken accents: "You know how closely I have kept his correspondence for the last few weeks. Alas! I have had reason for it, Valeria. Little do his uncles imagine what detains him at the North. But he conceals nothing from me, and he lays the heavy reason-lility of his confidence upon me. For a month past it has been an enerous burden to my conscience."

"My love! what has he been doing there? Has he killed his man in a duel, and got himself in trouble?"

"Woe to my lips that they should utter the charge. But read his letter, Valeria, and advise me, for I am deeply distressed," said Miss Sutherland; and she threw herself back into a cushioned chair, and bowed her face upon her hands, until all the amber ringlets drooped and veiled them.

(To be Continued.)

RUMORS OF AMATEUR ARMY.

How Lord Kitchener's Raw Recruits Were Made Into Fighting Men.

Rifleman Patrick MacGill, of the Irish Rifles, author of "Children of the Dead End," has written a jolly little book about "The Amateur Army," giving glimpses of every stage in the training, from raw "rooky" to finished fighter, based on his own experiences. One day, out of curiosity, he asked some of his mates why they enlisted. "Well, matey," said his pal, the good-natured cockney, grinning sheepishly, "I done it to get away from my old gal's jore —now you've got it!" Another type in the most democratic army in history was a pale, intelligent youth who knew Nietzsche by heart. "He glanced at me coldly as he answered, 'I enlisted because I am an Englishman.'"

Here is a comic incident of the last general inspection. While standing easy, the men compared their razors, to find that 30 per cent. of them had been made in Germany.

There are a few good stories illustrating the humors of billeting, a process which at first proved rather a strain upon the patriotism of the aloof, reclusive middle-classes. One day an officer asked a hostile elderly citizen, full of paunch and English dignity, how many soldiers he could keep in his house.

"Well, it's like this——," the man began.

"Have you any room to spare here?" demanded the officer.

"None, except on the mat," was the caustic answer.

"Two on the mat, then," snapped the officer, and a pair of tittering Tommies were left at the door.

To the adventure of the billet he soldier finds the working classes the most sympathetic. They understand him, and make him welcome. In the houses of the well-to-do he feels out of it. As one Tommy put it: "There's nothing we can talk about with the swells, and 'arf the time they bo askin' us about things that's no concern of theirs at all."

The young officer in the new armies, who is perfectly amazing in his intelligence, adaptability, and thorough grasp of detail, is the butt of perpetual pokes and biting sarcasm during his training. "Shout!" yelled the adjutant to "Eyeglass," the platoon sergeant, whose voice was so low that his men could not hear the command. "Don't mumble like a flapper who has just got her first kiss. It's not allowed on parade." Another man who gave a platoon the wrong direction in dressing was told "to be careful, and not shove the regiment over." A fiery Welshman's insh for getting unreasonably angry with two of his men for a slight mistake was conveyed in the remark that "he had only got them an appro'."

FRENCH WOMAN AVIATOR WAS CHASED BY A TAUBE AIRSHIP

Helene Dutrieu is probably the only woman aviator who has participated in the present war. Her aeroplane was chased in mid-air by a German Taube. This woman took part in the aerial defenses of Paris, but she is now in the United States.

WHAT PRUNING DOES.

Tree Trimmers Must Avoid Peeling Off Bark, Says Expert.

In practice summer pruning on a considerable scale is not advisable. It is difficult to see, when the leaves are on, just which branches should be removed, except in the case of dead branches. One must be on his guard, also, to avoid peeling off the bark when it peels readily. Prunning is less expeditiously done in summer than when the trees are dormant.

There are occasions, however, when one desires to complete work of pruning begun early in the season. There need be no fear of injuring the trees by taking off a moderate number of branches when the leaves are on, in spite of the fact that the removal of leaves debilitates a tree. If done early in the summer the injury is less than after the summer growth is nearly completed.

The removal of dead branches can not affect the vitality of the tree, no matter when done. Nor can there be any serious effect if here and there branches, which are too close or which cross, are removed. The thinning out of small, twiggy branches for the purpose of thinning the fruit is not a harmful process in early summer. The drain on the tree is less than it would be to bear an abnormally heavy crop of fruit. There are a great many trees which might be relieved of a surplus of fruit during May and early June to good advantage.

The Coldstream Guards were first raised in 1650.

IF you want sugar that is absolutely pure, and as clean as when it left the refinery, you can depend on getting it in

Original Redpath Packages

2-lb. and 5-lb. Sealed Cartons.
10, 20, 50 and 100-lb. Cloth Bags.
"Canada's favorite Sugar for three Generations"

CANADA SUGAR REFINING CO., LIMITED, - MONTREAL.

On the Farm

Drag the Roads.

When the smiles of spring appear
Drag the roads;
When the summer time is here,
Drag the roads;
When the corn is in the ear,
In the winter cold and drear,
Every season of the year,
Drag the roads.

When you've nothing else to do,
Drag the roads;
If but for an hour or two,
Drag the roads;
It will keep them good as new;
With a purpose firm and true,
Fall in line; it's up to you—
Drag the roads.

Caring for the Little Calves.

Everybody has a way of doing things and this is my way of taking care of the calves.

I have ten good cows which I raised myself, and I found out that to raise good cows you must begin at the beginning. No good results will come from a half-starved, stunted calf.

I let the calf suck the cow the first two days. It is better for him and the mother, too, and the calf is more apt to get all the milk than I would be, thus getting it out of the cow's bag and into the calf's stomach where it should be, with less trouble and better results.

At the end of this time I milk the cow and feed the calf; tie the calf where it cannot see its mother, and if the weather is cold I wrap something round her when the barn doors are open. Never allow a calf to shiver if you want it to keep well.

For the first two weeks I feed new milk as soon as milked, and then I begin to mix in separated milk by degrees, adding at first a third, then a half and when a month old I give all separated and take care to have it warm.

Buckwheat shorts and bran are good, but never put them in the milk. Have a small box nailed in a convenient place on the manger or side of the wall and fill with dry feed. The calf will soon learn to help itself.

When six weeks old put clover hay within reach; this will aid the digestion and increase growth.

If eggs are plenty break one or two in the milk, and you will be surprised at its sleekness.

Flies are the worst things to stunt the growth of calves as they take so much blood, and the young animals should be protected from the pests.

I tried spraying last summer with fair results, but I did not depend entirely upon this. I put my calves in the barn every afternoon during the warmest weather and gave them hay.

Another thing that stunts the growing heifer is dehorning. I avoid this by rubbing on caustic potash when the horns first start, first clipping away the hair. It will smart for a while but that is all and no horn will ever grow.

My heifers usually come in when 2¼ or three years old and make excellent cows, and this is how I raise them.—N.A.B.

Stop and Think First.

Before buying new machinery, it is well to consider the following questions:

Will the use of the new machine give me a larger net return from the crops on which it is used?

Will the new machine reduce the demand for man labor?

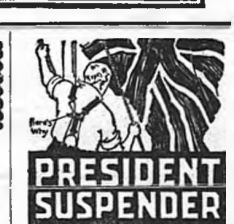
Where a machine is required only a few days each year, can it not be rented more cheaply than purchased?

Will the money to be invested return more in some other way?

Has the machine been thoroughly tried by others and found satisfactory.

Her Mistake.

The small girl walked thoughtfully into the house from the vegetable garden.



"Mother," said she, "have green gooseberries legs?"

Mother laughed.

"Of course they haven't, darling. What made you think so?"

The child looked more solemn than ever as she replied:

"Well, then, I've been eating caterpillars!"

He Struck at That.

Mike was employed as handyman at a big ship-building yard in the North of England. On him fell most of the disagreeable jobs, and he was much in request for lifting the heaviest weights.

On the eve of a recent launch, when the huge vessel was standing ready on the stocks for the morrow's great event, Mike went to the foreman and demanded his pay.

"What for?" asked his foreman, in astonishment. "Surely you're not thinking of leaving us?"

"'Deed, and I am," replied Mike sourly. "Since I've been here I've done some heavy lifting, but"—and he pointed first to the finished ship, and then to the barricade on the bank of the river—"I'm hanged if I'm going to lift that thing over the fence to-morrow."

Only one Englishman has ever been elected Pope of Rome.

The Housewife's Corner

Seasonable Dishes.

Codfish Cutlets—Prepare shredded codfish as for codfish balls, shape in flat cutlets, dip in egg and crumbs, and fry in deep fat.

Date Jelly—Stew dates until tender, remove the stones, put in a mold and pour over them liquid lemon jelly. Chill and serve with whipped cream.

Halibut Rabbit—Sprinkle two slices of fresh halibut with salt and pepper and melted butter, and broil until brown on both sides. Pour over it hot welsh rabbit.

Eggplant—Peel eggplant, cut in slices and lay in well salted water for an hour. Wipe dry. Dip in flour or meal and fry on both sides. Allow 15 minutes for cooking. The slices can be egged and crumbed before frying and are nicer than when they are merely floured.

Waffles—Put two cupfuls of flour, one teaspoonful baking powder and half teaspoonful salt into a mixing bowl. Add three eggs and butter the size of an egg. After you have sifted the flour make in small cakes and bake slowly on a griddle. Brown well on one side and then on the other.

Chicken, Southern Style—Clean and soak chicken in cold water. Cut in halves. Dredge in flour and lay in pan greased well with cooking butter. While the chicken is cooking make some corn fritters, using canned corn. Season with salt and pepper and cover with flour, enough to hold the corn together. Fry in the same pan with chicken. Put in thin strips of bacon; this will give a delicious flavor to the meat. Serve the chicken on individual meat plates, allowing half chicken to a person. Garnish the plate with a fritter and a slice of bacon.

Spinach—Pick a peck of spinach carefully and let it stand in cold water for an hour or two. Put in boiling salted water and let boil until tender. Take up in a colander that it may drain perfectly. Put in a hot dish with a piece of butter the size of an egg. Add half teaspoonful salt and a little vinegar. Stir well. Chop the spinach fine and add the dressing. You can add a small cupful of cream if you like.

Cucumbers in Brown Gravy—Prepare half a dozen medium size cucumbers. Cut in thick slices and put in ice water. Let stand half hour and drain. Simmer in unseasoned beef stock until tender. Scoop out the cucumbers and lay in a vegetable dish. Cook one tablespoonful flour in a tablespoonful butter. Add the stock and stir until thick and smooth. Season with salt and pour the sauce over the cucumbers.

Useful Hints.

A roast of veal will be greatly improved if it is larded; this prevents it being dry and tasteless when cooked.

The secret of making popovers that really "pop" is to have the pans sizzling hot when the batter is poured into them.

One who has noted it carefully says that the meat from a seven-pound fowl will make a quart, cut up, for salad.

To brighten brass curtain rings which have become dull, soak them in paraffin oil for twenty-four hours. Then polish with a chamois leather.

In place of a tape loop at the end of a kitchen towel work a large eyelet hole. This will be found stronger and more lasting, as it cannot come off like the loop.

The best iron stand is a brick. It is a non-conductor of heat, and far preferable on that account to the most elaborate open stand.

Ink stains can be removed from oak furniture by rubbing a little spirits of wine into them, allowing it to remain on for a little time, and then polishing.

Gingerbread is made doubly good by the addition of a few spoonfuls of grated chocolate before baking. This makes it riche and does not affect the flavor.

Soap is very apt to turn white paint yellow. For cleaning, use warm water to which a little kerosene has been added; this will remove most persistent stains.

If, before putting the loaf of graham bread into the oven, you dip a spoon in water and pat the top of the bread with it, the bread will not have a hard and ragged crust.

Reduce labor by simplifying duties, not by abridging them. Furnish houses with objects of beauty, but let them be few in number. Curtail the elaboration of meals without decreasing either perfection of service or food value.

It ought to be more generally known that wheat flour is probably the best possible article to throw over a fire caused by the spilling or igniting of kerosene oil. Flour is nearly always within convenient reach.

Perspiration stains may be removed from the arms of white woolen or silk dresses by sponging with warm water, to which ammonia has been added, and then with clear water. Finally, press the sponged parts before they are quite dry.

If the opening on the porch where a drop screen is needed is very wide it is often more practical to use two narrow screens, rather than one full size—more practical because they are not so heavy to draw up and down.

When the bottom crust of a loaf is so overbaked as to be unestable remove the hard part of it, cut into thin narrow strips, and these throw into soup a moment or so before serving. However brown they are really a palatable addition.

GERMANY AND HER HATREDS.

The Italians Out of Favor Now, Especially Among the Bavarians.

Germany today has so many hatreds to cater for, so many enemies to damn, that she is no longer equal to the task, and there are many signs that would tend to indicate a more sober spirit is taking the place of the "Gott strafe" fever, says the London Times. German public opinion is at the present moment the most inarticulate in Europe, the people have never been permitted to think politically, and international politics are for the great majority a closed book. But each day reveals more outspoken criticism of Germany's foreign policy, and the man in the street is faintly beginning to realize that there must be a wide gulf between German "right" and that of other peoples.

I must be acknowledged that there seems to be a well-defined cleavage in the sentiment and opinion of the German people on the Italian question. The Prussians in general feel that this new war is no concern of theirs. In Berlin I heard it said in January that by her geographical position, if not for ulterior motives, Italy was destined sooner or later to break away from her former allies; and, though the public is fed with all manner of arguments, from those of the Imperial Chancellor down to those of the variety artist, to prove Italian "Machiavellianism" and disloyalty, it has had little effect in arousing enthusiasm or interest.

On the other hand, in Bavaria there appears to be marked enthusiasm for this new war. It must be remembered that the Bavarians claim an overlordship at least over the public opinion of Tyrol. It is the Bavarians who in the past have stoutly vindicated the rights of the German party in this Austrian province, and it is from Munich that the Germanizing efforts in the Trentino were directed. In fact, I heard many advocated the advisability, nay, who even spoke with conviction of the necessity of Bavaria's acquiring the northern portion of Tyrol in case Italy should secure the southern part, "the Trentino," in return for neutrality. Now that there is war the Bavarians would appear to have thrown themselves wholeheartedly into the struggle and made the conflict their own. In fact, the "easy-going" Bavarian seems to have retained more belligerent ardor, more of a war-like spirit, than other members of the empire. It is beyond question that Bavarian losses have been very great. The smaller towns and villages are swept clean of men capable of bearing arms. I saw fewer men in Bavaria than in any other section of the country, yet I found there a more war-like enthusiasm than elsewhere. That Italy's attitude has been an important contributory cause cannot be doubted.

Needles Old as Civilization.

Needles were no doubt contemporaneous with the very beginning of civilization, as they were necessary for the fashioning of even the rudest skin garments. In their earliest form they were probably only strong thorns or splinters of wood, bone or stone, for puncturing holes through which to draw the thread. The next step was to make an eye in the splinter, that it might carry the thread at the same time that it pierced the skin, and some very finely finished and polished needles have been found in prehistoric remains.

Bronze needles have been found in Egyptian tombs that must have been made several thousand years before the Christian era, and similar implements are known to have been in use by the Chinese, Hindus, Chaldeans, Assyrians and other ancient nations at very early periods in their history. The steel needle is believed to have been first made in Europe as early as the fourteenth century.

Pins are also of very ancient manufacture. They were made at first of ivory, bone or wood splints, but bronze pins are found in Egyptian tombs, and also those of silver and gold. The ancient Romans had metal pins, also, and so had other nations. They were made with ornamented heads, and from one to eight inches long. The small pin as we know it was a more modern invention.

Slowest of Living Creatures.

Of all living creatures the turtle is among the slowest in its movement and exercise of brain power. Yet a well-known American naturalist has succeeded in training three of those creatures to do a number of little tricks. He places them, one above the other, on spools. If a piece of cabbage or other green stuff is held out in front of them they will make a complete circuit, all moving in unison, keeping their balance and not tumbling off. The bigger turtle will also ring a bell. This it grasps in one of its forefeet, jerks off the ground and then gives a shake.

A Fairyland Dress Design

Child's dress of white batiste with hem and there a small embroidered figure. The dress is long-waisted with two small ruffles forming the skirt. A sash, which is brought around from each side, is tied in the back. The sleeves, which are short and slightly puffed, are trimmed with small messaline cuffs. A small turnover collar is of the same material as the cuffs. Very narrow rows of Irish lace used as a trimming complete the costume. Designed by Fairyland of Paris.

The Greatest Cake Ever Built.

Housewives, how would you like to bake a cake of the following dimensions and ingredients: Eighteen yards long, eight yards broad and more than one-half yard thick, containing thirty-six bushels of flour, 200 gallons of milk, one ton of butter, a huge quantity of yeast and 6,000 eggs? Such a cake, probably the largest ever made, was served in June, 1730, by Frederick William I., King of Prussia, to his army following a huge repast. The 30,000 soldiers, already glutted could not eat the entire cake, and remnants of it were distributed among the inhabitants of neighboring towns and villages.

The Cat and Bag Joke

Though many people frequently use the expression, "Let the cat out of the bag," its origin is not generally known. It is said to have once been a favorite trick among country folk in England to substitute a cat for one of the young pigs when the latter were taken in bags to market. These bags in old phraseology, were known as pokes. If any greenhorn was foolish enough to buy "a pig in a poke"—that is, to purchase the animal without seeing it—the trick was successful, but if he opened the sack to satisfy himself concerning the value of his desired purchase puss would be sure to jump out. The "cat was let out of the bag" and the trick was disclosed.

A Pretty Episode of War.

Pierre Loti, the French author, gives in L'Illustration a picturesque account of his experiences in "going to the front." The Boston Transcript has a translation of the article. This incident is taken from it: "There were also villagers who journeyed with he soldiers along this crowded highway. I remember one very pretty peasant woman who, in the midst of the English commissary wagons, was dragging, by means of a cord, a little wagon that contained two sleeping babies. She was toiling, for the ascent was steep at that point. A handsome Scotch sergeant, who was smoking a cigarette, seated the while with his legs hanging from the rear seat wagon, said to her in the sign language, 'Pass me your end of the cord.' She understood, and accepted with a gentle, confused smile.

"The Scotsman wound the frail cable about his left arm, keeping his right hand free for smoking, and it was he who guided the two babes of France, whose little carriage the truck dragged like a feather."

1,000 PIES AN HOUR.

The fastest machine devised for making pies is operatd by a foreman and six assistants and will turn out 1,800 pies an hour, says World's Work. The machine is provided with eighteen revolving pie holders, which move around an oblong table or platform; two crust rollers, one for the lower and the other for the upper crust; a set of four automatic moistening brushes, and a pie-trimming wheel. The six operators of the machine place the crusts, fill the pies and remove them from the table when the operation of moistening and trimming has been automatically completed.

WHY COST OF LIVING IS HIGHER.

The Cheapest Foods Are as Valuable as the Dearest.

People who imagine that food is getting dearer might well ponder a recent editorial in the British Medical Journal, in which it is pointed out that what most people are paying higher prices for is absolutely unnecessary and that much of it is sheer waste.

This being true of England, "what would he say if he were familiar with conditions in this country?" asks the Literary Digest.

"The very cheapest foods, wisely chosen, have all the physiological value of the dearest," says the editorial. "The cheapest Canadian cheese is as nutritive as Stilton or Roquefort, the herring is as nourishing as salmon, the flank or shin of beef as sirloin, margarine as butter, starch as arrowroot, cabbage as asparagus. Moreover, by good cooking cheap food can be made as tasty and appetizing as the dearest, and no less good a stimulant of the digestive juices."

The British Medical Journal extols as a "magnificent basis of diet" the oatmeal and milk with green stuff from the kale yard that used to be the food of the Scots, and mentions as "a most tasty, nutritious and excellent meal" the old-fashioned Scotch "white pudding," which was made of oatmeal and dripping, flavored with herbs and onion, stuffed into a sausage skin.

The editorial denounces white bread—that is, bread made from bleached flour. "Flour," it says, "is bleached wholesale to make it white. The bleaching enables low grades of flour to be sold as white and enhances the profits of the miller. It is of no value; if anything, it tends to deteriorate the flour. Economically it is a wholly unsound proceeding."

As for canned foods it says: "In the canning of foodstuffs heating to 120 degrees destroys the vitamines.

"The pig," it continues, "flourishes and waxes fat on the contents of the waste pail. Children could flourish no less well on the discarded material."

Villages Grow About Trades.

A peculiar form of Russian life is the occurrence of villages devoted to a particular branch of trade. Each village, each district, each province has some special occupation. Thus one province is noted for the manufacture of axes, in another the inhabitants are all engaged in cutting wood for fuel, in another they are all market gardeners and fruit growers.

In some parts of the empire the people all live in villages or towns, there being no solitary dwellings. Among the people of wealth and the nobility there is, of course, much leisure time and much of it is spent in card playing, attending balls and banquets. Card playing seems to be the most fashionable amusement.

As in many of the countries of Europe, much of the buying and selling is done at fairs where the people for miles around assemble to buy and to sell in the order of the day. These occasions relieve the monotony of the life of the lower classes. Not many years ago the peasants were all serfs. Though they were not slaves, they belonged to the land on which they lived. They could only be sold as the land exchanged proprietors. Since the emperor gave them their freedom a laborer gets 40 cents a day for his work, and a mechanic 80 cents. They pay from 8 to 12 cents a pound for beef and other articles in proportion. Cabbage soup with black bread generally mad of rye and a limited amount of meat constitutes the principal food of the lower classes.

IN BLISSFUL IGNORANCE.

Tristan da Cunha Has Not Yet Heard of the War.

Incredible though it may sound, there still are places which have not yet heard a syllable about the war. Tristan da Cunha, the lonely South Atlantic island, says the secretary to the British postmaster general, has not received a mail since the outbreak of war. Tristan da Cunha is entirely dependent on chance communications from the Cape, 4,500 miles away. Sometimes it is a year or more without its people hearing from the outside world. It is a British possession, and its people, numbering about eighty, all Church of England, are mainly descendants of shipwrecked sailors. They are of mixed origin—English, Scotch, Irish, American, Dutch, Italian, Asiatic and negro. There is not one "enemy alien." Another place that has probably not yet heard of the war is Yquitos, in eastern Peru. Yquitos has perhaps the most romantic mail service in the world. Its letters are taken by British mail steamer up the Amazon to Manaos, and thence right across South America up the mighty river in a river steamer. It is only a few hundred miles from Lima, the Pacific capital of Peru, but the wall of the Andes is an almost impassable barrier. The "quirk" route, therefore, from Yquitos to Lima is all the thousands of miles down the Amazon and across the Atlantic and then "via Liverpool."

No fewer than 210 soldiers belonging to the Lochee district have laid down their lives for King and Empire.

ACROSS THE BORDER

WHAT IS GOING ON OVER IN THE STATES.

Latest Happenings in Big Republic Condensed for Busy Readers.

Homeopaths will build a million dollar hospital and school in Kansas City.

In the past ten years American railroads distributed $11,000,000,000 in wages.

Pre-breakfast parties are an innovation among society circles of Pasadena, Cal.

Two puppy dogs were sent by parcel post from Middlburg, Pa., to Lewistown.

New York city June marriages showed a decrease of 516 licenses over last year.

Two convicts of Leavenworth, Kan., escaped by climbing an 800-foot air-shaft at a coal mine.

Rev. John Fryer Mesick, D.D., the oldest college graduate in the U.S., died at York, Pa., aged 102.

The Rockefeller Institute says human carriers can spread pneumonia by disseminating germs.

Because she was slow in her studies, Irma Chesser, aged 17, committed suicide at Shelbyville, Ind.

Mildred Meister, 18, domestic, of Orono, Me., has just awakened from a sleep of 84 hours and will recover.

Theodore Barnas, 5-year-old Chicago boy, died after swallowing kerosene, probably from suffocation.

Frank Walkawicy, of Bartlesville, Ok., is suing two men for $200 for forcibly removing a flowing moustache.

Hit in the eye by a golf ball, Dr. Max L. Stein, of Philadelphia, was rendered unconscious and may lose an eye.

Every passenger steamer going through the Panama canal must be equipped for wireless for 100 miles radius.

Every blue-blooded cow in the U.S. that produces milk to be certified will be taxed $2 for a publicity campaign for purity.

The expenses of the U.S. Government have grown 54 per cent. from 1903 to 1913; the net public debt was $4,850,461,000.

James d' Amerva Kerr, of Brooklyn, was caught between two autos, and the force ruptured his heart, causing death.

An ironworker of Harrison, N.J., Joseph Bich, buried under two tons of steel, directed his rescue and came out unhurt.

NEW WORK OF SPIES.

Overrun Italy as Calamity Howlers With War Reports.

A leading Italian police official, who has been engaged in repressing espionage, has made the following statement:

"All nations at war with Germany have had to realize that their countries are covered with a network of spies. No country has been so open to such attentions as Italy, which for so many generations has been overrun by travellers of every description and nationality. The lower classes have a rooted conviction that all travellers do odd things, and therefore it causes no surprise when tourists spend days in sketching landscapes and architecture which to the native are entirely uninteresting, but which may have their strategical value.

"Even since the war broke out travellers of German or Austrian nationality have been caught photographing railway lines and fortifications, and one was shot at Augusta, Sicily, by a sentinel the other night as he was engaged in laying dynamite cartridges under an important bridge.

"Another more insidious form of injury is the mysterious starting, all over the kingdom, of depressing and discouraging reports regarding the war and its prospects and the diminution of war news always more or less unfavorable to Italy. Women who have relations at the front are told that the Government is hiding their losses from them, that the number of men killed from their particular district is enormous."

Thackeray's Appetite.

Starving Belgium would have a special appeal for Thackeray since it was at Antwerp that the novelist, who loved his food as well as any man, enjoyed one of the best dinners of his life, says a writer in the London Chronicle.

It consisted, he wrote, "of green-pea soup, boiled salmon, mussels, crimpled skate, roast meat patties, melon, carp stewed with mushrooms and onions, roast turkey, cauliflower, fillets of venison, stewed calf's ear, roast veal, roast lamb, stewed cherries, Gruyere cheese, and about twenty-four cakes of different kinds. Except five, thirteen and fourteen, I ate all, with three rolls of bread and a score of potatoes."

Those twenty potatoes that Thackeray enjoyed at Antwerp to maintain his six-foot-three of bulk remind the reader of the dreadful disillusion of Charlotte Bronte when she came to London and sat opposite her literary idol at dinner. "O Mr. Thackeray!" she cried in shocked surprise as she watched him eat. She had never imagined a hero who ate potatoes by the score.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL

INTERNATIONAL LESSON, JULY 25.

Lesson IV.—Solomon Dedicates the Temple. I Kings 8. 1-53

Golden Text: Isa. 56. 7.

Solomon's Prayer (Verses 22-30).

Verse 22. Solomon stood before the altar—In 2 Chron. 6. 12-42 we find another version of Solomon's prayer. Verse 13 of chapter 6 says that Solomon had constructed "a brazen scaffold," or platform, before the altar, about five feet above the level of the floor, upon which he knelt when he prayed in public. Although in verse 22 (of to-day's lesson) we read that "Solomon stood before the altar," in verse 54 (of chapter 8) we learn that Solomon was in a kneeling posture during the prayer, that "he arose from before the altar of Jehovah, from kneeling on his knees with his hands spread forth toward heaven." As he threw himself more and more into the passion of his prayer, he naturally went from standing to kneeling.

23. Who keepest covenant and loving-kindness with thy servants, that walk before thee with al their heart—God always, in the mind of the Hebrew, kept covenant and showed loving-kindness; the seeming violation of the rule of the divine character grows out of transgression on man's part.

With thy Servants—Solomon wants for himself and the house of David the same promise which Jehovah made to all Israel. He assumes that the promise in general will have a fulfillment in particular. He is doubtless familiar with the expectation expressed in 2 Sam. 7. 12 and 1 Kings 2. 4.

25 There shall not fail the a man—See 1 Kings 2. 4.

26. Let thy word, I pray thee, be verified—All of Jehovah's promises to David, but particularly the one concerning the building of the temple. In Psa. 132, 8, 14, David speaks of the ark in the sanctuary as the resting place of God on earth.

27. Will God in very deed dwell on the earth?—This question has always come to the mind of man. The intellect cannot visualize the presence of the Almighty upon the earth. But the heart sees him everywhere. "Whither shall I go from thy spirit?" (Psa. 139. 7-10); "Heaven is my throne, the earth is my footstool" (Isa. 66. 1). See also Jer. 23, 24; Acts 7.49.

Behold, heaven and the heaven of heavens cannot contain thee—These words indicate the widest conceivable compass of heaven. The same thought is found in Deut. 10. 14. God is not a local or finite deity. He is the God of all lands, all people, and all times.

28. Yet have thou respect—The Hebrew reads, "Yet thou wilt have respect." Solomon does not doubt the answer to his prayer.

29. Toward the place whereof thou hast said—In Deuteronomy there are many indications that God would choose a place where his name should be (Deut. 12. 5, 11, 18; 14. 23; 15. 20; 16. 2, etc.). The choice of Jerusalem seems to have been especially revealed to David (Psa. 78. 68; 132. 13; also 1 Chron. 22. 1.)

Shall pray toward this place?—That is, toward the temple. Only the priests were allowed to enter the temple. All other worshipers had to worship "toward" the temple. Hence in foreign lands the devout Hebrew turned his face toward Jerusalem (Dan. 6. 10; Jonah 2. 4; Psa. 5. 7; 28. 2; 138. 2.)

Just a Jokelet.

During the lessons one afternoon in a public school a thunderstorm arose, and, seeking to lessen the fright of the children, the teacher began an entertaining discourse on the wonder of the elements.

"Jimmy," said she, finally turning to a bright little youngster, "can you tell me what lightning is?"

"Yes, ma'am," was the ready rejoinder of little Jimmy, "lightning is streaks of electricity."

"That's right," smiled the teacher, encouragingly. "Now tell me why it is that lightning never strikes twice in the same place."

"Because," answered Jimmy, quite easily, "after it hits once the same place ain't there any more."

Too much to Ask.

Mabel—I don't know whether to marry Jack or simply be a sister to him. Is he every way eligible?

Edith—O, yes, as a husband, but imagine having such a boob for a brother!

Summer Plans.

"Planned your vacation yet?"

"Well, we've located a neighbor who'll take care of the canary, another to look after the dog, a third to keep the garden watered, and weeded during our absence, some one to go into the house two or three times a week and air it, and now all we have to do is to decide where we are going and when."

His Choice.

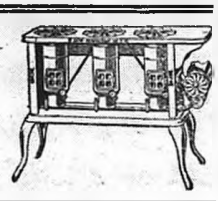
"Whiskey, my friend, has killed more men than bullets."

"That may be, sir; but, bujabers, I'd rather be full of whiskey than bullets."

SINCLAIR'S

The Hardware Store of Better Values

Something new in Oil Cook Stoves. Come in and inspect this now stove.



This Stove Burns

Oil or Gasoline

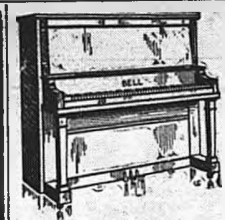
DETROIT VAPOR STOVES

"New Perfection" Oil Cook Stoves

2-Burner $8. 3-Burner $11
Oven $2.50 and $3.00

The Fly he is naughty beast,
He ought to die to say the least.

Screen Doors and Windows



Price of DOORS
$1.25, $1.50, $1.90, $2.25, $2.50
Complete

WINDOWS at 15c, 25c, 30c, 35c, 40c and 60c

A Screen for every window

If you want to be healthy and wise
Don't forget to swat the flies.

BOTH Sinclair's Hardware PHONES

Complete the Home Furnishings by buying a Piano.

BELL PIANOS

Known in musical circles as the highest type of musical instruments will satisfy your every need in music.
To buy a BELL stamps you as a judge of good things.

A Number of Second-hand Organs for Sale
A good time to buy is right now.

PETER McKINNON, Agt., Paisley
can tell you all about them

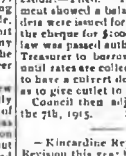
Mr Schwan, sworn that he had been getting orders for this floating joint for the past three summers. The trial lasted nearly all day, a strenuous legal battle being waged between Lawyer Klein for the prosecution and Barrister Tucker of Owen Sound for the defendants. At the conclusion, the court imposed the minimum fine of $300 and costs on each of the three defendants. The verdict is, we believe, a popular one, and should do much towards stamping out these Sunday drinking stunts. Herald and Times.

ARRAN COUNCIL

Council met July 10th, 1915. All present. Communication from the clerk of Tara enclosed a statement or recommendation by Judge Klein re cost of place to hold court. The amounts to pay by each part interested was based on population and was approved by the Council to commence with January 1st, 1915.

A deputation appealed to the Council for improvement of part of road through Spence's marsh. The Reeve and Councillor Scarrow were appointed to look after it. Neil McDougald wished to purchase the old timber of Pound's bridge. The Reeve will dispose of it.

Communication from Indian Department re improvement of N. G. road. Action deferred. Councillor Johnston stated that he had some improvement made to the road at the rear of Lot 20, con. 13, at a cost of $45. Instructions were given to the Reeve and Treasurer to sign cheque in favor of Contractor Cole for $1000 as the bridge is almost completed. The contractor was instructed to plaster and block the cement work which was not provided for by engineer in specifications. The committee was ordered to settle with Mr Cole when all was finished. Henry Ball and D C McKinnon asked for a grant to complete a piece of gravelling which had been done by Statute Labor. Councillor Morrow will attend to the matter. Communication from Robertson and McNab re Albermarle appeal against equalization.—Filed. The Treasurer's statement showed a balance of $1939.39. Orders were issued for about $1450 including the cheque for $1000 to Mr Cole. A By-law was passed authorizing the Reeve and Treasurer to borrow any money needed until rates are collected. Jas Plant asked to have a culvert deepened on Con. 10 so as to give outlet to tile drain. No action.



Council then adjourned until August the 7th, 1915. H. T. POTTS, Clerk.

—Kincardine Reporter:—The Court of Revision this year had an easy job of it. The appeals were not many or of a serious matter. The hotels were allowed to go without being charged a business tax. The tax as it now reads says that "licensed" hotels shall pay a business tax. If the town had refused to allow the appeal the case would have come before Judge Klein and he has already given a decision that hotels as the law now stands do not have to pay a business tax.

WOMEN WHO ARE ALWAYS TIRED

May Find Help in This Letter.

Swan Creek, Mich.—"I cannot speak too highly of your medicine. When through neglect or overwork I get run down and my appetite is poor and I have that weak, languid, always tired feeling, I get a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it builds me up, gives me strength, and restores me to perfect health again. It is truly a great blessing to women, and I cannot speak too highly of it. I take pleasure in recommending it to others."—Mrs. ANSEL CAMERON, R.F.D., No. 1, Swan Creek, Michigan.

Another Sufferer Relieved.

Hebron, Me.—"Before taking your remedies I was all run down, discouraged and had female weakness. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and used the Sanative Wash, and find today that I am an entirely new woman, ready and willing to do my housework now, where before taking your medicine it was a dread. I try to impress upon the minds of all ailing women I meet the benefits they can derive from your medicines."—Mrs. CHARLES BOWEN, R.F.D., No. 1, Hebron, Maine.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

The City Bakery

Is always ready to supply your needs. Why worry and melt over a hot fire? We are here to do your Baking for you. Let us try.

Other than baking we try to keep a fresh supply of Greens and Fruit on hand—as well as a full stock of Fresh Groceries.

We would appreciate it if the public would make their purchases early on Thursdays as it is impossible for us to maintain a strict observance of the Thursday half-holiday on account of our Ice Cream Parlor which will be open every Thursday evening.

We need your trade. Butter and Eggs for Cash or Trade. Dutch Set Onions for sale.

Bruce and Bell 'Phones

F. S. McLACHLAN

Eye-Glasses!

H. ANDREW

OPTICIAN, OF TORONTO,

is in Paisley and vicinity calling on his customers through the country, as usual. He wishes his patrons to be prepared. Eyes tested and glasses fitted.

J. GODWIN

Bricklayer

I am prepared to take work in any line of bricklaying or cement work on contracts or repairs.

Residence: Ross St. North

PURDY'S LIVERY

Rates Reasonable, and every effort made to satisfy

F. PURDY

BRANT COUNCIL

The Brant council met at the Township Hall on July 13th. Members all present.

Rowand—Findlay—That Mr Jas Warren be appointed engineer to make award, under The Ditches and Watercourses Act, re requisition presented to the council, signed by J T Lamb and others, and that the Clerk prepare a by-law confirming this appointment.—Carried.

By-law No. 72, confirming this appointment, was read, passed and finally signed and sealed.

On motion of Councillors Willoughby and Nonto the reeve and clerk were authorized to issue orders on the treasurer for all accounts passed at this meeting.

The council adjourned to meet on Monday, August, for the purpose of levying township rates and for general business.

FELL FROM SCAFFOLD

A serious accident occurred on Saturday morning at the new building being erected by Wain Bros on Young street, Tara, when Mr John Philpot who was working on the building tripped and fell off the scaffold to the floor, a distance of ten feet. His head struck a cement block and there was a deep gash in his forehead, besides the bruises on his body. He was taken home on a stretcher and two doctors summoned. On examination, it was found that no bones were broken. Mr Philpot is an elderly man and it may be a long time before he recovers from the shock.—Leader.

GERMAN OPINION VARIES

Articles Contradict One Another With Regard to the Submarine Warfare

London (via Berlin), July 13—There is a growing difference of opinion in Germany regarding the utility and possibilities of submarine war. Count Reventlow, chief headsman of the Von Tirpitz party always demands its continuance on the most ruthless lines. Von Bethmann-Hollweg considers that the naval loss outweighs the gain. In the Berliner Tageblatt Captain Persius writes an important article. While taking the middle course he emphasizes his argument by the remarkable admission of England's sea power. "Without doubt the shipbuilding industry will be able to replace the loss in the fighting units in a very short time. No error was made when it was asserted that the strength of British sea power is much higher now than a year ago. Therefore our expectations in respect of trade war for the present must not be screwed up too much. Our submarines have sunk with the exception of the dreadnought type, every kind of warship; and in trading ships the quick steamer has proved itself as little immune against torpedoes as the slow fishing boat. But those who hope to read of higher numbers in the lists of destroyed ships have not taken into sufficient consideration the quantity of our submarine weapons and they have also forgotten the difficulties which accompany successful attack by submarine."

Frank Chanter, aged 6, has died as a result of injuries received in the Queenston wreck.

The Czar has granted permission for Russian reservists to enlist in Canadian regiments.

The strike at Joplin, Mo., of 5,000 lead and zinc workers is over.

The question of munitions for Servia is now satisfactorily answered.

Berlin denies the Hamburg-American line is in bankruptcy.

It is reported Russia is sending troops to the Dardanelles.

Steele's for

Horse Collars, Sweat Pads, Rubber Lap Rugs, Whips, Auto Plush Rugs, Star Harness Soap, Hickmore's Gall Cure, Axle Grease

Our Harness includes quality, durability, appearance and high class workmanship found in no other makes of Harness.

Baggage Trunks, Suit Cases, Club Bags, Grips. Good assortment and low prices.

Harness parts and Repairing our Specialty

J. H. STEELE

Fall Term Opens Sept. First

ELLIOTT Business College

TORONTO — ONT.

Has to-day a stronger hold upon the public confidence than ever before. Thorough Training for choice positions in Business Life is given in all our Departments. This college does not ask for a better reputation than it has now. We place many students in positions each month. Write to-day for large catalogue.

W. J. ELLIOTT, Principal. Cor. Yonge and Charles Streets.

W. H. BAKER

Having opened a shop in Sinclair's old hardware building, Queen St. North, we are prepared to do all kinds of

Sign and Carriage Painting

HOUSE DECORATING AND PAPER-HANGING, as usual. Prices right.

ROBT. IRVING

PLASTERER

SEE Robt. Irving the Plasterer before letting any work in this line. Separate estimates for all kinds of plastering, or with Jas Dewar for whole contracts for erection of buildings.

R. T. ROBINSO

CARPENTER AND CONTRACTOR

ESTIMATES furnished for the erection of any class of building. Large or small contracts undertaken.

Address Chesley or Cargill P.O

Clerk's Notice of First Posting of Voters' List

Voters' List of 1915 Municipality of the Township of Holmesdale, County of Bruce.

NOTICE is hereby given that I have transmitted or delivered to the persons mentioned in sections 8 and 9 of the Voters' Lists Act, the certified copy required by said Act to be delivered or transmitted of the List made pursuant to said Act of all persons appearing by the last revised Assessment Roll of the said municipality to be entitled to vote in the said municipality at elections for members to the Legislative Assembly and at municipal elections and that the said list was first posted up at my office on the 8th day of July, 1915 and remains there for inspection.

Electors are called upon to examine the list and if any omissions or other errors are perceived therein, to take immediate proceedings to have the same corrected according to law.

Dated this 8th day of July, A.D. 1915.

R. G. HAMILTON, Clerk of Elderslie

Clerk's Notice of First Posting of Voters' List

Voters' Lists, 1915, Municipality of the Village of Paisley, County of Bruce

NOTICE is hereby given, that I have transmitted or delivered to the persons mentioned in section 8 of The Voters' Lists Act, the certified copy required by said Act to be transmitted or delivered of the list, made pursuant to said Act, of all persons appearing by the last revised Assessment Roll of the said municipality to be entitled to vote in the said municipality at elections for members of the Legislative Assembly and at Municipal Elections; and that the said list was first posted up at my office at Paisley, on the 12th day of July 1915 and remains there for inspection.

And I hereby call upon all voters to take immediate proceedings to have any errors or omissions corrected according to law.

Dated this 12th day of July 1915.

J. G. GIBSON, Clerk.

Tenders for School Seating and Heating Equipment

SEALED tenders will be received by the undersigned up to Friday, July 30th, for the supplying and erection complete of seats in No. 16 Bruce & Greenock, also for furnishing and putting in a hot air furnace. The lowest or any tender not necessarily accepted. Plans for the seats can be seen at the residence of the secretary-treasurer, JOHN T. COLWELL, Sec'y, Paisley, R. R. No. 2.

31.AMES

Anniversary services will be held in St Paul's Presbyterian church on Sunday, Aug 1st, when Rev D T L McKerroll, of West Toronto, will preach both morning and evening. Carpenters and masons have been changing the front of the church building by making an inside entrance, and special collections will be asked for to defray the expenses of the work.

Mr T A Pickard, of Toronto, was visiting friends here for a few days, leaving for Toronto last week.

Mrs M E Peacock and daughters, of Toronto, have been visiting her parents, Mr and Mrs N C Mc. Farlane.

Mr and Mrs R J Nesbitt made a visiting tour to Chesley and Markdale, leaving Miss Jean McDermid in charge of the store in there absence. The latter has since gone to London to accept a position.

Miss Kate McLean, sister of Mr Dan McLean, 2nd con., is up from Toronto on a visit to her old home and friends

Miss Annie Hendry, of Weston, sister of Mrs W J McKeeman, and Mrs P Truax, of Toronto, sister of Mr McKeeman, are visitors at the home of that couple.

Mr and Mrs W Jevons, of Toronto, were guests at the home of his sister, Mrs (Rev) P Reith.

Mrs Geo Webb and daughter Elsie have been visiting at Allenford.

Mr Duncan McLean has been away on a business trip to Detroit.

CASTORIA

For Infants and Children

In Use For Over 30 Years

Always bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher

EDEN GROVE

The remains of the late Mr Andrew Catto were interred here in Douglass Hill cemetery on Friday, July 16th. A large number turned out as Mr Catto was well known and will be missed here.

Mr Chas Reed returned from Owen Sound after spending a few days there on business last week.

Mr Neil McDonald, of Walkerton, was in the burg last week on business.

An interesting game of baseball was played here last Tuesday evening between the cradle hoppers of Solway and the Eden Grove boys, the home team winning out by a score of 15-8.

The Sunday school held their picnic last week at the Grove, and a good time was enjoyed by all present.

Mr Ben Stansal is under the weather these days. We hope for his speedy recovery.

Roy and Gordon Brown are visiting friends in Wiarton this week.

The Misses Bush, of Walkerton, are visiting at Mrs J Taylor's.

Mr Chas Reid, the Rawleigh man, has taken a new position for a month or more, now soliciting for the Rawleigh Co, and left here on Monday for Toronto. Charles has secured Mr Neil McDonald of Walkerton, formerly a tailor there, to drive his wagon while he is away.

PINKERTON

Mrs Elliott and daughter Grace, of Vancouver, B C, are visiting the former's parents, Mr and Mrs Jas Murray.

Miss Cora Cleghorn, of Berlin, is visiting at the manse.

Mr and Mrs Howard Birrell, of Toronto, are visiting the former's parents, Mr and Mrs Thos Birrell.

Mrs Nelson Flett and daughter, of Walkerton, are visiting at Mr Wm Flett's on the 14th con.

A very pleasant evening was spent at the manse on Thursday by the members of the Young People's Guild of the Presbyterian church.

Mr and Mrs Gordon Ritchie, of the Durham road, spent Sunday at the home of Mr John Wilson.

The 14th con boys defeated the 12th con baseball team in a match played here on Thursday evening.

Mr Ansley Gregg and family are moving to Inverhuron for a few weeks.

An accident that might have had serious results occurred here about ten o'clock on Friday evening. The beer delivery rig driven by several men came down the big hill, and not seeing the lanterns and piles of debris on the road where the bridge over the sawmill race had stood, they drove into the excavation. Considerable work was required to get the team out. The horses escaped with a few scratches.

EBENEZER

Mr and Mrs Ed Scarrow, of Owen Sound, called on friends here last Thursday.

Irene McKelvey and Olive Quigley were both successful in passing the entrance examination.

Messrs Andy Porteous and Will Crawford, of Arkwright, spent Sunday at Mr Earl Grant's.

Mrs J H Lipsett, of Chesley, with her daughter and son are visiting friends here.

Mrs E H Grant and son Jim spent a few days in Owen Sound last week.

Miss Dolly Potts has returned to Tara after spending holidays with her brother Dwight.

Quite a number from here attended the celebration of the 12th of July in Owen Sound. All report a good time.

Mr Jas Rushton occupied the pulpit here on Sunday in the absence of Rev Mr Ockley.

Mrs Darroch of Collingwood, Mr and Mrs Geo Dixon of Toronto, and Mr Dan McLean of Port Arthur, have been visiting at the home of Mr Howard McFadden.

Children Cry

FOR FLETCHER'S

CASTORIA

S. S. No. 1, SAUGEEN ARRAN & ELDERSLIE

Jr IV to Sr IV—honors—Annie Stanley, Ruth McDougall, pass—Russel Fleming, Sr III to Jr IV—honors—Robbie Scott, pass—Harold Fleming, Helen Hamilton, Nellie McDougall. Jr III to Sr III—honors—Fraser Scott, Mabel Grant, Pearl Quigley, pass—Margaret McKechnie. II to Jr III—honors—George Thomas, Flora McLean, pass—Milburn Fleming, Violet McDougall. Sr I to II—honors—Harvey Grant, Beatrice Scott, Tracy Thomas, pass—Frances McDougall, Ingald McLean (equal). Jr I to Sr I—honors—Hugh McLean.

M. WARREN

WALKERTON

The discovery of a man's hat and clothes alongside of the river bank near the boathouses on Tuesday morning gave rise to the belief that the owner of the raiment had been drowned in the river. As a result many people hiked down to the dam and peered into the water there in the hope that if the body came down stream it would be held up here. Although no such corpse has yet been discovered yet the fact that the clothes have not yet been claimed, causes many to believe that somebody while in swimming has met his fate in the river.

Prof Reithdorf has just closed a three weeks' campaign in Bruce county in behalf of the Patriotic Society, and has visited all the villages of the county and paid particular attention to the German localities. The professor has impressed these German settlers that it was quite consistent for them to retain their love for the fatherland and the customs and still be among the supporters of the allies against the military system of Germany, and that the allies were in reality fighting for the freedom of the German people, and it was to their interest to support them. After the war a new Germany would be built out of the ruins of the present Germany, which would be a freer and better Germany.

John Cassibo of Chepstow and Andrew Hanmore of Cargill, who were recently fined $20 and costs each, or a total levy of about $28.75 a piece, by Magistrates Jas Tolton and Robert Richardson here, on the charge of travelling stallions without having their horses properly enrolled with the Government, had their fines rescinded by the same magistrates in Walkerton on Saturday last and were dismissed on each paying $8.75 costs, it being learned that they did not travel their horses or actually carry on a business of this kind. The charge against Henry Ernst was also similarly treated, he being allowed off on paying the court costs on the grounds that although his stallion was duly enrolled a mistake had been made in the spelling of its name.

The Knechtel Furniture Company's branch at Walkerton, received an order for 55000 boxes to hold howitzer shells. Each box is made to hold two shells of the 45 size. The boxes are to be made of spruce with maple ends. To complete this order will take eight carloads of lumber and a car of hardware. The order is worth about $60,000. It is stated on the authority of the shell committee of the war department that there are 125 woodworking factories in Canada working on shell boxes only. This order will take about six weeks to complete, and with their ordinary work will require an increased staff working overtime to complete.

John Himmelspach, a Hanover barber, Fred Gibbons, an hotel porter, and Reuben Pink, caretaker of the Hanover house boat, were each fined $300 and costs by Magistrates Jas Tolton and Robt Richardson at Walkerton on Saturday for running what the law believes is a club house on the Saugeen river below Hanover. It seems that for the past three summers the parties mentioned have been putting in their Sabbaths drinking booze down at the house boat. Floating on the billows, like Noah's ark, it was no Sunday school class that the boys went to attend when they assembled around the beer kegs on Sunday and assuaged their thirst with the foaming suds. While the hotels were closed tight in Hanover on the Sabbath the moisture is said to have been running freely at the house boat, with the result that many complaints reached Inspector White here about the way the house game was being worked on the river. The Inspector, in conjunction with Chief Ferguson, journeyed to the spot in the wee small hours of the night and swooped down on the house-boat about 3 o'clock in the morning of Sunday, June 27th. They discovered at first a full keg of beer with the tap in, ready for business, and one of the occupants of the boat informed them that that was all the booze there was on board, but not being too credulous, the officers continued their search and came upon another keg of the moisture, besides an empty one, and many empty beer bottles and glasses. Seizing the booze cargo the Walkerton sleuths returned home and laid charges against the title who conducted the boat. At the trial, which came off here on Saturday, it was asserted that the house-boat had taken on another supply of booze some days after the Inspector's raid. The Carlsruhe brewery manufactured the suds that were dished up on the house-boat, and the brewer,

The Paisley Advocate.

D. McKENZIE, Publisher
Vol. 47—No. 30

PAISLEY, ONTARIO, JULY 29, 1915

$1.00 per Annum in Advance
$1.25 if not so paid

Big Reductions
IN ALL
Summer Goods

Ladies' Waists to clear at	$ .19
Hosiery reduced to	.09
Ladies' Gloves at	.19
Ginghams to clear at, per yd	.8½
Boys' Underwear cut to	.19
Odd sizes in Men's Underwear	.19
Men's Summer Socks, 2 pair for	.25
A few Men's Straw Hats at half-price

Men's Suits

$16.50 value for	$8.85
15.50 " "	9.95
14.00 " "	9.98
13.50 " "	8.98
8.50 " "	4.49

Boys' Suits

$8.50 value for	$4.98
7.75 "	4.49
6.75 "	4.19
6.50 "	3.98
5.00 "	3.49
3.50 "	1.98

In Our Shoe Department

Ladies' Pumps, $4 for	$2.98
A few Oxfords to clear at	.69
High Shoes at	.98
Men's Oxfords, reg. $4.50 for	2.49

Wool Wanted!

The highest price will be paid for Wool—Cash or Trade. ¶ Bring your Farm Produce, for which the top price will be paid.

M. J. CAMPBELL

W. H. McFarlane's Old Stand : : Paisley

New Spring Suitings

See our goods and styles before buying. We have a large stock to choose from.

We Make a Specialty of . . .

Ladies' Tailoring

No trying on or worrying. Just leave your measure and we will attend to the rest. All the newest goods and latest styles from which to make your selection. Satisfaction guaranteed.

I. S. Cruickshank

City Dairy

Ice Cream

Boot Bargains at Bonathan's

The last chance to buy Shoes at cost price. We have still a few pairs that have got to be sold. ¶ Also an assortment of New Shoes just in, in the latest summer styles, guaranteed to fit. We have bought these to fill out the vacant places in our stock, and are offering them at close prices, too, to help dispose of the whole stock. We don't intend to keep Shoes when this stock is sold out, and we want to do it quick, so offer attractive bargains to complete the clean-up.

Congoleum, the cheap but servicable Floor Covering

The Clay Lawn Dryer Just the thing to do away with labor-some clothes hanging.

Sheet Music—We have added another department to our business for the convenience of music lovers. We can procure any selection in Sheet Music, vocal or instrumental, at a price that is right. Also Folios.

A. T. BONATHAN

Hyde's Old Stand : : Successor to W. S. Mitchell

—Private funds to loan.
D. FORRESTER.

—Wilkinson plows and repairs at P. Carter & Son's.

—Marriage licenses issued and money to loan. T. H. GEORGE.

—Cotton crepes reduced to 12½c a yd. Ballachey, Laidlaw & Co.

—TWINE—McCormick binder twine and machine repairs, at E. G. Eckel's.

—Full lines of fine engagement and wedding rings at I. Shoemaker's jewellery store.

—Highest prices paid for hides and sheepskins. H. E. McGregor, Butcher, Steele Block.

—Paisley garden party at Mr. John Collins' on Friday evening of this week (July 30). Don't miss it.

—Highest price for beefhides, horsehides, calfskins, sheepskins, tallow, &c. P. OLTSHER, Paisley Meat Market.

—"Rough on Rats" clears out Rats, Mice, etc. Don't die in the house. 15c and 25c at drug and country stores.

—Flannelette blankets, 66x80, white and grey, with pink and blue striped border—special $1.30. Ballachey, Laidlaw & Co.

—Just received a beautiful assortment of Hand Painted Nippon Chinaware. Call and look it over, splendid values. Ballachey, Laidlaw & Co.

—Centre Bruce Garden Party at Mr. Geo. Brown's, 8th Bruce, on Aug. 5th. Kincardine Highlanders band has been engaged. Further announcements later.

—Auction sale of 10 fresh cows, 10 calves and 5 springers, at Central hotel yards, Paisley, on Saturday, July 31st, at 2 p.m. J. B. Cass, prop.; R. C. Pearce, auc.

—Have you tried Lythes' Sterling Pickles, sweet or sour, or Heintz Bulk Sweet Pickles or Tomato Chutney. We have them always fresh. Ballachey, Laidlaw & Co.

—If you have a guest at your home, are going out of town for a visit, or know of any interesting news, kindly let us hear from you. We will always appreciate such favors.

—Come to Stevenson's bookstore to subscribe for your newspaper or renew subscriptions to magazines, journals, etc. Paisley pennants—fine assortment. Pipe and tobaccos, and a salve that is a salve.

—HOMESEEKERS' EXCURSIONS every Tuesday up to and including October to the Canadian Northwest. For tickets, maps, etc., apply at the Canadian Pacific Railway ticket office, W. H. McFarlane's old stand, Paisley.

—Come to the "Tea to the Allies" to be given by the organized class I. A. H. of the Paisley Baptist Sunday School, on the lawn at the parsonage on the evening of Tuesday, Aug 10. For further particulars see bills. Admission 15c and 10c.

—Five Roses, Rendrose, Purity, Cream of the West, and Stark's high-grade flours, also Bran and Shorts, Blatchford's Sugar and Flax, Caldwell's Molasses Meal, and full line of Poultry Foods and Tonics. Always in the market for coarse grains. E. G. ECKEL.

—Clubbing rates with all the city dailies and weeklies.

—Clifford Trelford is spending holidays in Tara.

—Miss Kate McBeath is home from Guelph for holidays.

—Mrs. Shaw, of London, is visiting at the home of her sister, Miss Stark.

A new cement flume is being put in at Stark's flour mill.

—Rev. L. W. Diehl attended the Masonic Grand Lodge in Hamilton last week.

—Mrs. Jas Replen and Miss Annie Sergison have gone to Dunnville on a visit.

—Mrs. F. D. Foster and daughter, of Clifford, visited at F. S. McLachlan's last week.

—Misses Mabel and Clara Jeard, of Wingham, are visiting friends in Paisley and Elderslie.

—Isabel Forsythe and Stewart Kennedy, of St. Marys, are visiting their aunt, Mrs. Jas. Sheepy.

—Mr. H. G. Eckel, of Buffalo, was over visiting his brother in Paisley and other friends in Bruce.

—Mr. D. H. Sparrow left Wednesday on a trip to the west. His destination is Shoal Lake, Man.

—Mrs. Wm. Mitchell, of Toronto is visiting her sisters, Mrs. Thos Johnston and Mrs. Montgomery.

—The new teacher engaged at Continuation School assistant is Mr. F. D. Rendall, of Plattsville.

—Miss Cavill and Miss Milne of Chesley, were guests at Mr Jas Hope's for a few days.

—Mr Jas. Hanley, of Toronto, is spending a short time in Paisley at the home of his sister, Mrs. John Fraser.

—Mrs W N Matthews and son of Montreal, and Miss Lily Dean of Toronto, are guests at Mr J Trelford's.

—Mrs Tully and daughter Annie, and Miss Ida Sutherland of Ripley, are visiting at Mr M McAllister's, Elderslie.

—Mr Wm Woods of Owen Sound, and his daughter, Mrs. McMillan of Dryden, are guests at Mr. F. S. McLachlan's.

—Miss Mabel Irwin of Toronto, is spending holidays at the home of her parents, Mr and Mrs Jos Irwin, 10th con. Bruce.

—Misses Bessie and Florence Hargreaves, of Toronto, are visitors at the home of their grandmother, Mrs R. Fleming.

—Mr. John McArthur was over from Owen Sound visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Neil McArthur, Elora road north, and attending the funeral of the late Adelle Pfaff.

—Mrs. (Dr.) Dryden, of Hibbing, Minn., is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. Keane, 8th Bruce, for a couple of months.

—Mrs. A. Sinclair has returned from Brantford, where she was visiting friends for several weeks and attended the wedding of her niece, Miss Madaleine Cutcliffe.

—Port Elgin Dominion Day Celebration Committee have a surplus of $267.71 from the proceeds this year. The total receipts amounted to $1735.21, and the expenditures $1457.50.

—Mr. Thos. Vale recently purchased the Stewart property (formerly the Jas. Steele place) on Church St. west, and removed his household there last week.

—Rain interfered with the programme at Cameron's garden party on July 15th, but not with the financial receipts. There was $135 taken at the gate and the refreshment sales ran the total up to $191.36.

—Mr. Paul Oltsher is building a new cement walled slaughter house on the farm south of the town that he bought lately from Mr Hugh Nichol.

—Two rinks of Cargill bowlers were over on Thursday evening and played a double header with the locals. The latter got decidedly the better of their opponents in the scoring.

—Mr P O'Hagan, of Elderslie, was taken very seriously ill on Friday last and at time of writing is in a critical condition.

—Miss Avis Greer, from Athabasca Landing, Alta., and Miss Winnie Leeder of Palmerston, are visitors at the home of their uncle, Mr Geo Greer, 12th Bruce.

—Mrs Jarrett and daughter, who have been with her brother Mr Geo Greer, 12th Bruce, for about a year, leave this week for their home at Calgary.

—Rev D McIntosh, who preached in Knox church very acceptably on Sunday, will again occupy that pulpit on Sunday next.

—Miss Olive Barss, who has been visiting her parents and friends here for several months, returned this week to Shoal Lake, Man.

—Miss Celena McNeill had the misfortune to slip on a plank while going to the garden on Tuesday morning, with the result that she fell and sustained a broken wrist.

—Regular meeting of the Women's Institute will be held in Putnam's hall on Monday, Aug 2nd, at 2.30 p.m. Each member present to read, sing, make a speech or pay a forfeit. An invitation is extended to all ladies to attend.

—The [illegible] bullet in Mr John McInnes' arm was located by the ex-rays. It was imbedded in the bone at the elbow. Mr McInnes proceeded down to Guelph hospital on Friday with Dr Cape, where the ex-ray was successfully applied and the bullet extracted.

—Mr. Matt. Andrews, blacksmith, has his right arm in a sling at present after being struck by a sledge hammer head, which flew off the handle as it was wielded by his assistant. Matt was lucky enough to get off with bruised muscles rather than scattered brains.

—Miss Morton and Miss Pearl Morton, of Guelph, are visiting at the home of their uncle, Mr John McDougall, Elora road north. The latter, who is soloist in a Royal city choir, will render a solo at the morning service in Knox church next Sunday.

—The citizens of Paisley and surrounding country are invited to come to the Church of England garden party in Paisley on Friday evening and be entertained by Robt Clarke of Toronto. Paisley band in attendance. At Mr John Collins' residence, or in the rink if bad weather.

Bug Destroyers

Look us up for Paris Green, Bug Death (a bug destroyer and also a fertilizer for the plant), Insect Powder, Bluestone, Quassia Chips, Hellebore, Instant Louse Killer, Royal Purple Louse Killer, International Louse Killer, Hess Dip and Disinfectant, Pheus, Chloral, Royal Purple Disinfectant, Zenoleum, Little's Sheep Dip, McDougall's Sheep Dip, Larkspur Lotion (for head lice), King's Bed-Bug Poison.

P. B. MORE, Druggist

Established over Forty-one Years

THE STANDARD BANK OF CANADA

ASSETS OVER $48,000,000

The A, B, C of Banking

Joint Accounts are a Convenience.

Keep a Savings Account, and Let Your Money Accumulate.

We solicit your account in our SAVINGS DEPARTMENT

PAISLEY BRANCH

F. C. RYAN Manager

Branches also at Harriston and Tiverton.

Paisley Meat Market

Fresh Beef, Pork, Mutton, Cured Hams, Bacon, etc. Salt Pork, Cooked Meats, Home-made Sausage (3 lbs. for 25c), Bologna and Headcheese. Kidney Suet. Poultry in season.

Cash for Hides and Skins . . . Bell Phone

P. Oltsher

J. S. DEWAR

PAISLEY

Builder, Contractor and Cement Worker

Brick or cement buildings erected, brick work, cement work and plastering contracts taken.

Cement Supplies Furnished

Building Blocks, Window and Door Sills, Culvert Tile, Well Curbing, Lawn Rollers, Lawn Vases, Verandah Columns, Balusters and other fancy Cement Products.

Building Material

Cement, Lime, Lath, Shingles, Glazed Sewer Pipe and Flue Lining, Mortar Color, etc.

Two Extra Specials

For next two weeks we will sell all Ready Made Dresses at cost or less. We can give you Dresses for little girls at 3 years to the largest of women at from 25c. up. Come and we will do our best to please you.

Ribbons

We are making a special of Ribbons. Large reductions will be given and in many cases only half price.

Our Groceries are the Best that can be Bought

Both 'Phones PUTNAM & SON

—A fine of $300 and costs was imposed on Mrs. J. C. Nichol, proprietress of the Midlandh House, Durham, for illegally having liquor on her premises. It was the result of seizing a trunk by Constable Arrowsmith three weeks ago when he saw it delivered at the hotel, and it was found to contain two large kegs, each holding ten gallons of gin and whitkey.

—A report from Detroit declares that there will be another "Ford" sensation in the near future, and that the price will be brought down below $350. This means that soon even a Methodist preacher will be able to get a Ford, at least a second hand one. Mr Ford is also said to be contemplating invading the tractor industry, as he thinks he can make a tractor for $100 or $150. And yet he can afford to pay his men $5 and $6 a day!

—We are often told by public writers and public speakers that it is the duty of Canada to help Great Britain in this war. That is right. But it should not be forgotten that we are not merely fighting for Britain or for the Empire. We are fighting for ourselves, for our country, for our homes and for our women and children. Make no mistake about that. The war may seem far away from us, but its results will come as close to us be it victory or defeat, as they will come to any of our Allies. If Britain goes down we go down with her. The Kaiser wants Canada, and if he defeats and overcomes Britain, he will attempt to do the same to Canada.—Hamilton Times.

It Pays to Dress Well

"Nothing gives a man more prestige than to be well attired"

You can have this done at the minimum cost at This Shop . . .

THERE has just been placed on the shelves a splendid line of Summer Suitings and Pantings—all the new patterns and colors will be found here. We invite you to inspect our up-to-date stock.

Special Bargains in Furnishings

G. B. IRWIN

Tailor and Furnisher - Paisley

The Triumph of Mrs. Harvie.

It was their first quarrel. That was not entirely due to Mr. Harvey's amiability of temper; during the two years of his married life he had ruled with a firm hand, and generally managed to get his own way.

He was not an aggressive man himself, but his chief friend, Danny Walker, had ideas about the management of women, born of long observation as a married man, and, before Mr. Harvey's marriage and after, he had dinned them into the latter's ears.

"You want to take a strong line from the start," he had said. "Women are all right when once you get the upper hand of them, but if you show a weakness in the beginning they'll lead you no end of a dance. You're a young man, Bert, and I'm an old one, and I tell you it's so. Never back down, even when you're in the wrong."

That was the sort of advice Mr. Harvey received every evening that he met Danny Walker in the Green Man, and it had become part of his philosophy of life. He had steadily set out to be the strong, masterful man, and there had been no friction in the house, for Emma had given way every time.

She was a soft, yielding little thing, and she thought her husband quite the most wonderful man in the village, or, for that matter, in the world beyond.

But this time, for once, she was resolutely determined.

"I must go over to my people this afternoon," she said. "It's Elsie's birthday, and I've baked her a cake. Besides, I promised we'd both go over this afternoon, and take baby. Sunday's the only day I get free."

Mr. Harvey looked sulky.

"Why not go yourself?" he said. "I don't mind you going, but I'd rather stay quietly at home."

Mrs. Harvey looked up with tear-wet eyes.

"What's the use of talking like that, Bert? I can't carry baby all that way myself. If I'd only a perambulator like the Dunnings——"

That was the last straw for Mr. Harvey. He could not bear any allusions to the new perambulator that was paraded by the people next door. Besides, the takings at the shop the night before had been bad, and he had lain awake with uneasy thoughts about a steady diminishing business and final bankruptcy.

"You're always harping on that," he snapped. "Remember, the Dunnings aren't as poor as what we are. No, I won't go."

But the strain and tension in the house all the morning had weighed upon his spirit. The ham and eggs at breakfast had been cold, and Emma had not spoken a word. She had gone about her work with set face, and hard, resolute eyes, and it seemed as if she were determined never to speak again.

Their first quarrel was likely to be more serious than he had expected. After all, he thought, Danny Walker's recipe for domestic happiness might not be as effective as the old man asserted. When they had eaten dinner in silence he rose from the table, and said with bad grace:

"All right. If you're set on going I'll have to go with you. Put on your hat and things, and don't be too long."

But there was a new spirit about Emma.

"Oh, it's no use going if you don't want to!" she said proudly. "I'm not going to ask you to do it as a favor."

Mr. Harvey looked agast. Never before had he known Emma to speak like this, and he felt that he must check any signs of revolt in the beginning.

"Don't talk nonsense!" he said peremptorily. "When I say I'm going to do a thing I mean to do it. You know that as well as I do.'

And he bounced out of the room, and went to change his clothes. His irritation had increased to a deep sense of injury, and he felt angry at the whole universe, and especially at Emma.

What right had she to drag him out when he did not want to go? Those Sunday afternoons might be very pleasant for her, but they were quite uncomfortable for him. He was tired of walking round her people's back garden while his father-in-law, in smoking cap and slippers, asked embarrassing questions about the shop, and boasted about his prize tomatoes.

The irritation increased an hour later when he took the baby in his arms, and set off across the fields. His new boots were tight, and pinched at the toes, and he had a feeling that his collar was climbing up the back of his neck.

But the most humiliating thing was the knowledge that for the first time in his married life he had weakened and given away. It made him snap out surly monosyllables in reply to his wife's remarks till at last she turned round in protest.

"Seems to me, Bert,' she said, "that if you're not inclined to be more sociable it wasn't any use coming at all.'

"Well, who wanted to come out?" he demanded.

"Oh, I don't know!" she replied airily. "But it isn't healthy to lie sleeping in a chair all the afternoon. Then's as if you got any exercise during the rest of the week."

"Exercise!" he repeated scornfully. "Of course it isn't enough to stand on your feet day in and day out."

"Not in a stuffy shop, serving lollies and gingerbread to children," she replied. "A man wants something more than that. Ever since George Peters enlisted, and had to march his thirty miles a day he's been twice as healthy."

The face of Mr. Harvey grew red, and he wanted to say something sharp and stabbing; but there rose in him a feeling that if it came to scarcastic repartee he might get the worst of it.

"That'e enough," he said angrily. "It's no use going over all that again. Here, take the baby while I light my pipe."

"No," she said determinedly. "You've been smoking all the morning. It's smoking so much that spoils your temper."

A look of amazement spread over his face as she walked on, gazing straight ahead of her. It was something quite new for Emma to act this way; he did not know what had come over her.

"Oh!" he said. "Oh, I suppose I can't have a pipe if I want to. I suppose I'll have to ask leave if I want a glass of beer next. And it's a nice woman who won't look after her own child.'

"It's your child as well as mine, Bert," she said sweetly.

The exasperating way in which she crossed the stile ahead of him, and tripped lightly to the other side disturbed his balance. He did not know that a couple of nights before, when Danny Walker had been laying down the law to him in the Green Man, Mrs. Walker had taken the opportunity of speaking a few words to his wife, and had given her some sound advice.

It had been Mrs. Walker's opinion that Bert Harvey was growing too fond of his own way, and that a firm front would have to be presented to him at once.

"Men are all right," she had said, "when you've once got the upper hand of them, but if you show a weakness in the beginning, they'll lead you no end of a dance."

These words were echoing in Emma's head now as she tripped on, and Mr. Harvey stood still with the baby in his arms and his mind in a whirl.

"Very well," he said, with extravagant coolness "We'll leave it here by the hedge, will we? It's sure to be nice and comfortable."

"Please yourself," said his wife lightly. "You mostly do."

He wrapped the shawl well round the baby and laid it down. When he looked up she had not turned round, but was gazing at the roofs of the village in the distance.

"S'pose we can get it coming back?" he said, with an attempt at indifference.

The astonished determination in her manner nearly took his breath away. He caught up to her, and they walked on together without speaking. The squash of their boots on the slippery grass was the only sound to be heard, but in Mr. Harvey's head Danny Walker's words were buzzing as loud as hornets. It was a conflict of wills, and he had to conquer at all costs.

"I die before I go back now," he thought fiercely.

They were fifty yards away from the hedge now, and in spite of himself Mr. Harvey began to show signs of disquietude. He stole a secret glance at his wife, but her face was as set and determined as his own.

It was almost uncanny to see Emma setting herself against him like this, after the cheerful way she had always hurried to fetch his pipe and slippers. He told himself he had to win now or he would never be his own master or the head of his house again.

"She's bound to turn back in a minute," he said to himself reassuringly.

They were a hundred yards away now, and Mr. Harvey slipped a pace behind in order to look back at the baby, but, fearing she might think she had triumphed, he caught up with her again. The suspense was beginning to get his nerves, but he nourished his stubbornness on his pride and kept on.

They had come to the second stile now, and Emma slipped quickly ahead of him and grabbed up her skirts.

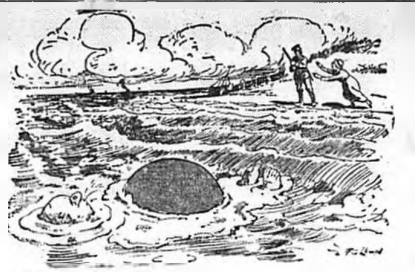
"Look here——" he burst out explosively.

But from the top of the stile her eyes were sweeping the lower part of the field they had crossed. A low cry escaped her. Her face became pale and her legs seemed to totter under her.

"Oh, Bert," she sobbed—"the strawbery bull! They warned me against it."

She turned to run back to the baby, but in a flash he had sprung past her. The strawberry bull was the talk of the village, and it was not only women who were scared when it was let out in the fields.

Forgetting the tightness of his boots, he raced up the footpath and gathered up the sleeping baby from under the hedge. He was breathing heavily when he came back, but his face was full of triumph as the baby stirred in his arms.



His wife was leaning against the stile, apparently still exhausted by her terror.

"No," he said steadily. "I'm going to carry it now I've got it."

"It's my child,' she pleaded.

"It's mine as much as yours," he replied.

He hugged it tightly to him and marched exultantly down the path towards his father-in-law's house. After all, he said to himself, it was the man who came out top in moments of danger, and he had vindicated his position once and for all as lord and master.

"Don't shoot! It's my husband!! Not a floating mine!!!"
—London Opinion.

The sense of triumph sustained him till they were near the house, and then a horrible suspicion penetrated his slow brain.

He struggled with it, but the more he thought about it, the more his feeling of superiority seemed to ooze away.

"I didn't see no strawberry bull," he muttered to himself ungrammatically.

But they were near the gate, and his wife did not need to reply. But her husband did not see the little smile on her lips. She had found out there are other ways of getting your own way besides doing it by force.—London Answers.

HEALTH AT SUMMER RESORTS

Sanitary Conditions Should be the Chief Attraction.

The sanitation of summer resorts is a matter of supreme importance. A summer resort should be a place where people may go for rest and recreation, to store up energy for work, to live for a time in closer touch with nature, and not a place whence one returns suffering with disease contracted thereat.

In the choice of a location for the summer vacation the most important questions to be considered are good sanitary conditions and pure air, food and water.

Plenty of pure air is one of the boons of the summer resort, and every effort should be made to secure to the visitors this recreative element. The air should be fresh and free from disagreeable odors. In too many cases, especially at summer hotels, or large boarding houses, the air is tainted by foul odors, sometimes the result of unsanitary conditions, as the improper disposal of waste and garbage, or of the too close proximity of stable or outside closet, while sometimes it may be caused by a stagnant pond of water or a cesspool.

Too often also the bedrooms in these hotels are small and poorly ventilated. In any case the windows should be as large as possible, easily opened and properly screened, to prevent the entrance of flies and mosquitoes.

Summer resorts usually depend upon wells for water supply. In such places the water supply should be carefully considered, as bad water is a prolific carrier of disease. The location should be such that the natural drainage is away from the well, and should be as far as possible from closet, stable, cesspool or other contamination.

Where outside closets are used, they should be frequently cleaned and always properly deodorized by the use of lime, a solution of copperas, wood ashes or even dry earth.

Garbage should be kept in a closed fly-proof receptacle and two or three times a week it should be removed and buried at least a foot under the ground.

On account of lack of conveniences, greater care of sanitary conditions is required in the country than is usually necessary in the city. Summer visitors should, therefore, take care that their surroundings are such as will not result in their returning to their homes with the germs of typhoid to offset any advantage of the summer's change.

From Toys to Shells.

Great activity prevails at the engineering shops at Liverpool in preparation for utilizing the machinery for an immediate output of shells. Mr. Lloyd George's stirring appeal has met with an instant response, and the engineers are working together unanimously in the resolve that, so far as they are concerned, there shall be no delay in meeting the urgent demand for shells. Some time ago certain engineers engaged on private work patriotically put it on one side and turned to the manufacture of munitions. One firm employed in making mechanical toys put some of their most skilled men to manufacturing parts of shells. Another prominent engineer offered to place his works at the disposal of the War Office some weeks ago, and others were equally anxious to do the same. Although there are no very large engineering works in Liverpool as in other centres of industry, there are many small ones, and with a unanimous will to make the most of their machinery it is believed that the output of shells will not be inconsiderable.

Seemed Classical to Her.

"Why do you call that song she's singing 'classical?' As a matter of fact it's just a popular ballad."

"Is that so? I thought it must be classical. I can't understand a word she's singing."

CATCHING A TIGER.

How the Natives of the Malay Peninsula Manage It.

Orientals show the greatest ingenuity in the methods they adopt in the capture of wild beasts. Nothing affords the natives of the Malay Peninsula so much sport as catching tigers. One was taken in a pit dug in a Chinaman's garden; and it is interesting to learn of the clever fashion in which they got the beast out of the pit.

This pit was circular in shape, eleven feet deep and three feet in diameter at the top. It was slightly smaller at the bottom. It was in sandy clay, and as the sides were clean-cut, the tiger could not scramble out. The pit was situated on the margin of a jungle, and it had been contrived, not to capture tigers, but wild hogs. It was covered with a thin roof of sticks, grass, and leaves.

As soon as the owner of the pit became aware of the nature of his prize he covered the mouth of the pit with strong planks. Then he looked about for a purchaser, who was soon found. The money was paid over while the beast lay at the bottom of the pit. The sum agreed upon was £25, but it cost £50 to remove, cage, and convey the animal to Singapore.

For six days the captive was allowed to lie in the pit; he was fed very sparingly, in order to reduce his strength and energy. Six Malays with a thorough knowledge of the ways of wild beasts were engaged to cage him.

Their first step was to rig a strong beam at a height of about nine feet over the pit; the beam was supported on well-secured uprights, to which it was strongly lashed with withes. Next, the men prepared two cylindrical baskets of green rattan. One basket was two feet in diameter and eight in length; the other was just large enough to be passed into the larger one, in order to give additional strength to the contrivance. One end of each basket was open, and bride is a remnant of the do wpurse the other was closed, except for a hole about three inches in diameter.

The smaller basket having been jammed into the larger one, the two were firmly lured together throughout with withes.

Finally, two new hempen ropes nearly three inches in circumference were prepared with running nooses. As soon as the Malays had cut a few long poles and prepared them, with forks on some and pieces of wood lashed on others to form hooks, they were ready for the tiger.

They separated the planks that covered the mouth of the pit so that they could pass down the ropes and poles. The noose of one of the ropes was lowered, and in spite of the tiger's resistance, the men, by skill and patience, got the noose over his head and round his neck. As soon as the noose was in position it was drawn fairly tight. The other rope was then passed down and secured in a similar manner. The operation of placing the two nooses round the neck of the captive occupied twenty-five minutes.

The ends of the ropes were then passed through the cylindrical baskets. The baskets were placed mouth downward over the pit, and when all was ready they began to haul on the ropes. The tiger was drawn up headforemost into the basket, which was just large enough to receive him. As soon as he was well within the basket the Malays drew up the whole contrivance, laid it on its side, and laced up the mouth of the basket so that only the tiger's tail protruded. When all was fast the nooses were slackened in order that the tiger might breathe more freely. The basket was then slung on a pole and borne to the cage that was in readiness to receive the captive.

THOUGHTS FOR THE DAY.

It is one thing to show a man that he is in error and another to put him in possession of the truth.—Locke.

It is futile to attempt to live in sections, separating business from religion and work from faith.—Hugh Black.

The best of men and the most earnest workers will make enough mistakes to make them humble. Thank God for mistakes and take courage. Don't give up on account of mistakes. —Dwight L. Moody.

A gifted, gentle, patient, valiant human soul, which buffets its way through the billows of time, and will not drown, though often in danger, cannot be drowned, but conquers, and leaves a track of radiance behind it. —Carlyle.

AERIAL ATTACK UPON GERMANY

Great Britain Will Soon be in a Position to Launch Big Surprise on the Huns.

According to a writer in the New York Sun, who is said to have had unusual facilities for gathering information, and who was in England for several months after the war broke out, Great Britain is preparing for the greatest aerial assault ever made. The announcement is interesting in view of the agitation that has been carried on by H. G. Wells and some aviation and military enthusiasts for some such attack. In the opinion of these writers to the English press it would be possible for British aviators, if they were numerous enough, to bring the war suddenly to an end by dropping tons of explosives upon the Krupp works and upon other strategic points well within the flying radius of modern British aeroplanes. Two or three raids have been made upon German and Belgian territory, and it is said that as a result of one of the latter there remain no Zeppelins upon Belgian soil.

When the war broke out Germany in the matter of aeroplanes and balloons was better equipped than the Allies, but is was not long before the individual daring of British and French aviators had more than counterbalanced the German superiority in numbers. The most daring aerial exploits of the war have been performed, not by Germans, but by British and French aviators. As the months went by the Allies overtook Germany to the number of fighting and scouting aeroplanes, though they may be behind her still with reference to dirigibles, which have proved a tremendous disappointment. Now it is believed that Great Britain has been secretly preparing the greatest aerial flotilla ever assembled, and that it is about to undertake a series of attacks upon German fortified towns and other strategic positions that will have an immense bearing upon the conduct and duration of the war.

Britain Has 7,000 Aviators.

It was announced recently in the House of Commons that Great Britain had then ten times as many aviators as at the outbreak of the war; and this means that at the present time she must have about 7,000 of them. If there are 5,000 in France and Flanders, which is, of course, an absurd allowance, and another 1,000 in the Gallipoli Peninsula, which is equally impassible, she has another thousand at home. If half the number at home were required for purposes of driving off Zeppelins, this would leave, at the lowest possible estimate, 500 aviators, and with this force available there is no good reason why attacks of unprecedented magnitude could not be made upon Essen, the Keil Canal, the vital bridges in German possession in France and Belgium and other points. The new British fighting aeroplanes, which carry a pilot and a man to operate a machine gun or drop bombs, are admitted to be the fastest ever constructed, and have a speed of more than one hundred miles an hour. According the the Sun correspondent, the manufacture of these machines has been going forward with the greatest rapidity. He mentions the case of a relative who has had a War Office contract to build 100 aeroplane wings a week till further orders, and says that other small manufacturers in the same neighborhood are equally busy.

Within Striking Distance.

This certainly looks as though a great effort might soon be made, and according to such writers as H. G. Wells and others less imaginative, there is nothing inherently improbable in the supposition. Flying at a rate of one hundred miles an hour or even faster, the machine could reach territory now occupied by Germany in an hour, and could even fly across the whole of Germany and back in the course of a long day. Anti-aircraft guns have not been developed to such a state that they are a serious menace to the fast flying aeroplanes, and since the German machines are for the most part smaller and less speedy they would have the greatest difficulty in repulsing an attack in force by a hostile squadron.

It Looks Feasible.

Nor would the Zeppelins be of the slightest use in warding off such a blow. They are much slower than the aeroplanes, and cannot be manipulated so handily. Indeed, it is difficult to see just how a combined attack by one hundred British aeroplanes, each well supplied with bombs, could be warded off, and the probability of its success strongly suggests the likelihood of the attempt being made if, as is asserted, a great number of aeroplanes has been constructed. It is to be remembered to the credit of Winston Churchill that while he was in the Admiralty he took the keenest interest in the aviation wing of the service, and was said, indeed, to have qualified as an aviator. In defensive operations and as scouts British aviators have already won imperishable fame.

Training the Troops.

Lord Kitchener trains his men for six or nine months before putting them in the fighting line; Wellington in the Waterloo campaign had to rely on raw youths and untrained militia. "I never saw such a set of boys, both officers and men," said old General Mackenzie, who inspected a battalion at Brussels; and Lord Albemarle stated that his corps, the 3rd Battalion of the 14th Foot, had 14 officers and 300 men under 20 years of age. Yet it was these boys who faced Napoleon's veterans and won the day.

GILLETT'S
EATS LYE DIRT
CLEANS-DISINFECTS

Pure Ice Cream

IS IDEAL for the growing child, especially in the summer.

But it must be pure and made in a sanitary plant, such as the City Dairy. We ship thousands of Ice Cream Bricks for consumption in the home and thousands of gallons of Bulk Ice Cream for consumption in the shops of discriminating dealers everywhere in Ontario.

City Dairy

Look for the Sign.

TORONTO.

We want an Agent in every town.

The Housewife's Corner

With Gooseberries.

Gooseberry Creams.—1 quart gooseberries, 3 tablespoonfuls sugar, third cream, wafer biscuits. Method—Stew the gooseberries until tender and rub through a sieve. Add the sugar and the cream whipped lightly. Stir all carefully together and pile the mixture in custard glasses with wafers stuck in each.

Gooseberry Dumplings.—¼ lb. self-raising flour, 2 tablespoonfuls beef suet, water to mix, 1 pint gooseberries, 2 tablespoonfuls sugar. Method—Prepare the suet crust carefully and line some small cups with this rolled thinly. Fill these with gooseberries and sweeten with sugar. Cover each with a round of suet pastry and tie down with greased paper. Steam these for an hour and serve turned out on a hot dish.

Crumbed Gooseberry Pudding. — 1 quart gooseberries, ¼ pound sugar, 2 eggs, 1 ounce butter, brown breadcrumbs. Method—Stew the gooseberries until tender, adding just enough water to prevent them burning, and rub them through a sieve. Add the sugar and half the butter melted, and likewise the eggs well beaten. Butter a mold thickly and freely. Sprinkle with brown breadcrumbs. Half-fill the mold with the gooseberry mixture, and then add a layer of crumbs. Continue this until the mold is full. Cover with buttered paper and bake in a moderate oven for about 40 minutes. Turn out carefully and serve.

Gooseberry and Rice Pudding. — ½ pound rice, 1 pint gooseberries, ½ pint sweet sauce. Method—Place the rice on a scalded floured cloth, add on top a pint of gooseberries. Tie up the cloth securely, leaving room for the rice to swell. Boil for an hour. Turn out and coat with sweet sauce.

Gooseberry Turnovers. — One-half pound short pastry, 1 pint gooseberries, sugar. Method—Prepare some good short pastry and roll this out to the thickness of one-quarter inch. Cut out rounds with a saucer. Place some gooseberries, topped and tailed, on one half. Turn over the other half and pinch up the edges together. Bake on a buttered tin for half an hour. Sprinkle freely with castor sugar. Serve hot.

Gooseberry Trifle. — One-quarter pound Savoy biscuits, 1 pound loaf sugar, ¼ pint water, 1 quart gooseberries, 1 pint custard, white of egg. Method—Cut up the biscuits into slices and place in a glass dish. Boil the sugar in the half-pint of water for 10 minutes to make a syrup. Top and tail the gooseberries and stew these in the syrup until soft, but unbroken. Place these on the top of the biscuits. Prepare a custard and pour this over the berries, and lastly pile up a beaten white of egg and serve cold.

Gooseberry Jam.—Seven pounds green gooseberries, 8 pounds sugar. Method—Top and tail the gooseberries and place them in a preserving pan. Add the sugar and slowly bring to boiling point and boil for 40 minutes. If the jam jellies quickly when a sample is placed on a saucer, it is quite ready and must be bottled at once.

To Bottle Gooseberries.—Gather together some bottles with wide necks. See that they are perfectly clean and dry. Fill them with gooseberries and place in the oven until thoroughly hot through without breaking the skins. Remove from the oven, add two tablespoonfuls sugar to each bottle, and fill up with boiling water. Seal with paraffine and store.

Gooseberries in Batter. — Four tablespoonfuls flour, 2 eggs, pinch salt, ¼ pint milk, ¼ pint gooseberries, 1 tablespoonful sugar, 10 ounces dripping or butter. Method—Prepare the batter by mixing the flour and salt with a little milk and the eggs beaten to a froth. Beat this thoroughly until smooth and the surface free of bubbles. Stir in gently the remainder of the milk. Heat the fat until smoking hot in a baking-tin and pour in the batter and gooseberries. Bake in a hot oven for half to three-quarters of an hour. Cut into sections and sprinkle freely with pulverized sugar.

Gooseberry Souffle. — One pint stewed gooseberries, ¼ pound sugar, 20 ounces butter, 1½ ounce flour, 2 tablespoonfuls corn flour, 3 eggs, 1 teacupful milk. Method—Prepare a teacupful milk. Method—Prepare a sauce with the flour, corn flour, milk and butter. Stir in the gooseberry pulp and the yolks of eggs, also the sugar. Beat the whites to a stiff froth and fold these carefully into the mixture. Prepare a souffle mold by tying a greased paper round the top. Place the mixture in the tin and steam for an hour. Turn out very carefully and serve at once.

Gooseberry Jelly. — Seven pounds green gooseberries, 2 quarts water, 1 pound sugar to each pint liquid. Method—Crush the gooseberries with the rolling pin or potato masher. Place these in a pan with the water and cook until soft and tender. Strain the mixture very carefully, without squeezing, through a coarse cloth. Add a pound of sugar to each pint of liquid and boil for half an hour to three-quarters.

Useful Hints.

Baked apple juice makes a delicious drink, especially combined with grape juice and lemon.

Lemon juice with a little sugar added, is better than vinegar for making up vegetable salads.

If bicarbonate of soda is spread around where ants congregate, it will kill them and drive them away.

Boiled cauliflower arranged with layers of grated cheese between and baked is a delicious luncheon dish.

Brown sugar used in place of granulated sugar in sweetening brown Betty will make it taste much richer.

When early breakfasts are required, prepare them as much as possible overnight to save time in the morning.

Always save the corners of linen after cutting out large centrepieces; they can be used for the centres of tiny doilies.

Use the outside leaves of the lettuce head for sandwiches. It will add a great deal to the sandwich and save the lettuce.

Brass polished with oil and rottenstone will have a deep rich yellow tone. The whiter, more brilliant tone is caused by acid polishes.

Practical keeping places should be arranged in a child's room so that it can learn order by putting things in their places at the end of the day.

Before broiling ham, it should be soaked one hour in lukewarm water. Then drain, wipe and broil three minutes. The slices should be thin.

Cranberries can be kept fresh indefinitely if put in a jar and filled up with cold water. Place a lid on lightly and change the water every day or two.

If, after a pumpkin has been cut, you do not use it all, pour melted paraffin over the cut surface; it will keep the pulp of the left-over portion sweet and solid.

Fruit jars should be sweet and clean before they are put away. Put a pinch of soda in the jar when you give it its final rinsing. This will destroy all old flavor.

A delicious pudding is made as bread pudding would be, only with crackers instead. This should have a thin sauce flavored with vinegar (or lemon) nutmeg.

Rice, either used separately as a vegetable, or combined with other ingredients in entrees and desserts, makes a very acceptable addition to the everyday menu, pafticularly in these times, as it is inexpensive.

Photographs that have not been protected by glass and have become fly-specked, can be cleaned by dipping a piece of absorbent cotton in pure alcohol and wiping the photograph off. The cotton should just be dampened.

SETTLERS START FOREST FIRES

Close Season Necessary to Protect Forests During Dangerous Period.

During the last few days in May and the first week or ten days in June, the weather conditions in both Ontario and Quebec were very dry, resulting in the spread of many fires, some of which assumed large proportions, and did considerable damage. Information secured by both the Conservation and the Railway Commission indicates that, while the damage done by railway fires was small, much property has been destroyed through the spread of fires started by settlers for the clearing of land. In Ontario, there is practically no restriction upon settlers brush-burning operations, and the result has been that, during every dry season, fires started by settlers for this purpose have spread beyond control, causing great loss of property, and, in some cases, loss of life. In Quebec, the law endeavors to regulate the setting out of fires, by establishing a closed season, during which no such fires shall be set, unless a permit is issued by an officer of the Forest Protection Branch. However, great difficulty has been met in securing satisfactory observance of this law, and nearly every year great damage is caused on this account. The modern tendency in forest fire protection is very distinctly toward the establishment of a closed season, during which no fires for clearing operations are allowed to be set out, unless upon permit by an authorized officer. Coupled with this must be an adequate and competent staff to make the law effective. The past difficulties in eastern Canada have been largely due to either the lack of such a law, or of its adequate enforcement.

As a rule, the railways are now doing thoroughly commendable work in fire protection, and in many cases have expended considerable sums in controlling fires unquestionably due to outside sources. The next big step in forest fire protection throughout eastern Canada should be in the direction of securing better control of settlers' slash-burning operations during dangerous seasons.

Hansom cabs were so called after Joseph Hansom, who invented them.

Mauritius has, on an average, only one thunder-storm every eighty years.

Secretary birds are so called because of the quill-like plumes about their ears.

During the present century, the King's Prize at Bisley has been won three times by Canadians.

Simple Patterns for Tub Frocks.

Everywhere this Summer one sees linens and linens, an evidence not only of their popularity, but also of their practicability. Linen, in spite of the fact that numerous other kinds of goods have come into favor, will perhaps lead because of its unquestioned coolness and freshness of appearance due to the ease and frequency with which it can be laundered.

It goes without saying that they make up best in simple styles, and it hardly need be added that the simpler garments are not only easier to fashion, but nine times out of ten, look better. A well-cut pattern or few pieces should be used, such as Ladies' Home Journal Pattern No. 8963, shown above. The sleeves the waist and the upper part of the skirt are cut in one piece, while the lower part of the skirt consists of a circular flounce, giving the new full effect at the hem. The pattern cuts in sizes 32 to 41 inches bust measure, requiring in size 36 five yards of 42 inch material. The young girl's wash dress is most practical when it depends upon its own tucking for trimming, as does the misses' dress cut by Ladies' Home Journal Pattern No. 8963. This has a drop shoulder blouse with the front eased into a slash underneath the collar, full length sleeves, turn-back cuffs, a deep shaped girdle and a one-piece straight gathered skirt with three graduated tucks lengthened by a one-piece gathered flounce with a tuck and a deep hem. The pattern cuts in sizes 14, 16, 18 and 20 years, size 18 requiring ten yards of 27 inch material with one-half yard 36 inch contrasting goods. Patterns, 15 cents each, can be purchased at your local Ladies' Home Journal Pattern dealer or from the Home Pattern Company, 183-A George Street, Toronto, Ontario.

CALVE'S SINGING CHEERED SOLDIERS.

Prima Donna Delighted Many of the Wounded Frenchmen.

Kings, Queens and Presidents have listened delightedly to the golden notes of the world's most famous "Carmen," that wonderful daughter of France, Mme. Calve, but they are not among the audiences she loves to sing to-day. Her heart is with the French and English soldiers, "her children," as she calls them, who live in the hospitals.

"I wanted," she said to the interviewer, just before she departed for America, where she is due to fulfill a long-standing contract, "to serve as a trained nurse in the Red Cross Hospitals of France, but I was told that I could do a greater work by soothing suffering men with the songs they love. To my suffering countrymen in the larger hospitals and cathedrals I sang the old French songs. Selections from the operas and other songs which I ventured to sing they liked, but they invariably asked me to sing the old songs of France.

"One soldier paid me one of the most delightful compliments of my life.

"'Ah, madame,' he said, "it is as refreshing as a drink of pure water, your singing, when one is perishing with thirst.'"

Perhaps Mme. Calve's most curious experience was that of singing to a number of German soldiers. One of the soldiers in a certain hospital asked if she would mind a certain door being open while she sang.

"Not at all," replied the famous singer; "why do you ask?"

"Oh," replied the soldier, "that door leads to another hall where there are a number of wounded Germans. They are sad and suffering as badly as we are, and I am sure they would love to hear you."

"I thought to myself," said Mme. Calve, as she related the incident, "I cannot be less Christian than this man,' so I went to the door and sang to the German prisoners. It happened very often afterwards that I sang to the Germans in hospitals."

Mme. Calve, as she bade her friends adieu, proudly displayed a Red Cross badge set in brilliants with which she has been decorated by the Red Cross Society.

"I nursed at the front for nearly three weeks," she told the interviewer, "but it was too terrible."

The War and Class Distinction.

The effects of the war upon the life of rural England are discussed in an interesting paper by Mr. S. L. Bensusan. In the course of his theme Mr. Bensusan says:—

"A welcome result of the war has been the collapse of class distinction. As far as the old-established families are concerned, there has been no constraint—they are unconscious of any need of it; the new-comers who have bought or hired the home of some impoverished family are the people who grate upon peasant and yeoman alike. The latter suspect their intentions, resent their patronage, and misrepresent their best-intentioned actions. War has altered all this. It has given to the old landowner, the non-venu riche, the farmer, and the ploughman, a common interest, a single anxiety. A ploughboy may come home wearing the Victoria Cross, the heir to the estate may lie by his side on some stricken field. The poacher, resolved to find a new character and to exercise his love of adventure for his country's good, may find himself in a trench next to the magistrate who sentenced him; the loafer of the wayside inn, properly fed, clothed, and drilled, may be smartened out of all recognition and recover his hold upon manhood and self-respect. The values of people and things have changed. Many good men would not wait for a commission; they preferred to join the ranks, and out of this will come a great levelling up, a wide fellowship.

Higher Death Rate.

